V. 8. The Lord hath ſworn,] The better to confirm, and ſtrengthen the hearts of his people, in an hopeful expectation of the forementioned mercies and favours, he telleth them, that God had taken a ſolemn oath, both for the performance of them, in their due time, and for their continuance alſo with them. So Chap.54.9,10. Heb.6.17,18.

by his right hand, and by the arm of his power] Or, rather, his arm of power; or might; that is, his powerfull, or mighty, arm; arm: as, his arm of glory, or bravery, for, his brave, or glorious, arm, Chap.63.12. God is ſaid to ſwear, ſometime, by himſelf, Gen.22.16. Chap.45.23. Heb. 6.13. ſometime, by his ſoul, the ſame with himſelf, Amos 6.8. ſometime, by his holineſs, Amos 4.2. ſometime, by Iſraels excellency; which he himſelf alone is, Amos 8.7. here, by his right hand, and his arm; which are no other, then his might, and power, manifeſted in the exerciſe thereof, Pſal.136.12. Chap.26.11. & 30.30.engaging his almighty power therein; becauſe it was to be employed, and diſcovered, in this great, and glorious deſign, concerning his people. See ver.3. It is, as if he had ſaid,Let me not be deemed almighty; let it be ſaid, that I wanted ability to effect it, if I make not this good. See Num.14.15,16.

Surely, I will no more give] Heb. If I ſhall any longer give. Of which form of an oath, ſee on Chap. 5.9. & 22.14. the word, ſaying, is here wanting; and to be ſupplyed, as Pſal. 110.4. & 132.11. expreſſed, Pſal.105.11. Heb.6.14.

I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thine adverſaries; and the ſons of the ſtranger ſhall not drink thy wine, for which thou haſt laboured:] Strange people, thine enemies, ſhall not enjoy the fruit of thy labours; as formerly they have done,chap. 1.7. See Chap.65.22.

I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thine enemies;] Or, I will no longer make thy corn meat for thine enemies; for ſo the word of giving, doth very commonly ſignifie. See on chap.61. 8. So Pſal.79.2. they have given the corpſes of thy pious ones meat for the beaſts. And God is ſaid to have done it; becauſe by his juſt judgment on them, for their ſins, and exceſſes; as it was formerly threatned, Lev.26.18. Deut. 28.30,33,52. ſo it had been effected, and inflicted on them, Jer.5.15,17.Amos 5.11. See Judg.6.3.

the ſons of the ſtranger] Heb. a ſtrangers ſons; that is, ſtrangers: as Pſal.144.7. See Chap.2.6. & 56.3. & 61.5.

thy corn, and thy wine] corn, and wine, put for all manner of proviſions; becauſe two of the principal. So Gen.27.28,37. Deut.32.14. Pſal.4.7. Zach.9.17. in which laſt place,the word rendred, new wine, is here uſed for wine, in generall. See Chap.49.26.

V. 9. But they that have gathered it, ſhall eat it, and praiſe the Lord; and they that have brought it together, ſhall drink it in the courts of my holineſſe] Thy people ſhall enjoy the fruit of their labours; bleſſing God for them; and imparting of them unto thoſe, that have been ſerviceable unto them, in the getting of them in; and to the Miniſters of God, that were therein to partake with them, Pſal.128.2. Chap.65.21. a note of a quiet and peaceable time and ſtate,ch.37.13. Jer.29.23. Amos 9.14.

they that have gathered it] Heb. the gatherers of it; to wit,of thy corn, ver.8. they taking part of it, with thee, that had their pains uſed, to get it in for thee: for of them, equity required, that a ſpecial regard ſhould be had, among other of meaner rank then themſelves, Deut.15.13,14. & 16.11,14. & 24.14,15. & 26.12-14. the contrary practice is condemned, as an accurſed courſe, and a crying ſin, Jer.22.13. Jam.5.4.

praiſe the Lord] Themſelves bleſſing the Lord for his bleſſing upon their labours,and ſerving him the more cheerfully, in regard of his goodneſſe therein towards them,Deut.8.10. & 16.10-15. & 26.1-11. & 28.47. and thoſe that partaked of it with them, bleſſing God, both together with them, and for them, Ruth 2.4. Job 31.16-20. 2 Cor.9.12,13.

they that have brought it together] Heb. the gatherers of it; to wit, of the wine, ver.8. or, the grapes of which it was made: this word, and the former, are both of one notion; and do here include all the pains taken, as well about the tilling of their grounds, and dreſſing of their vines; as about the cutting down, and bringing in, of their corn; and the cutting of their grapes, and making their wine; being put for the reſt, becauſe the end, and upſhot of them, Jam.5.7.

ſhall drink it in the courts of mine holineſſe] Either, in my courts of holineſſe; that is, mine holy courts: as, mine hill of holineſſe, for, mine holy hill, Chap.11.9. & 56.7,13. or, in the courts of my ſanctuary; as the word is found uſed, Exod.31.11. Lev.10.18. See Chap.65.18. that is, in the buildings, and places neer about the Temple, in which the holy things were to be eaten, Lev.6.16. for the Prophet alludeth here unto thoſe ſolemn anniverſary feaſts, that were held by them,at Jeruſalem, unto which the Levites, among other, were invited, Deut.12.17-19,26,27. & 14.22-29. & 16.11,14. and more ſpecially unto that part of their encreaſe, that was in a more peculiar manner appropriated unto the Prieſts, and was not to be eaten by any, but by them, and theirs, and that within the precincts of the Sanctuary, taken at large, for the whole fabrick of buildings, within the utmoſt verge, or wall, of it, Lev.6.16,18,20,26,29. & 22.10-13. as implying, that they ſhould be as Prieſts. See Chap.56.5. & 61.6. For I cannot aſſent unto that reverend Writer, who ſuppoſeth a trajection to be in the words of the text, and would have them thus read, The gatherers thereof ſhall eat it,and the inners thereof ſhall drink it; and ſhall praiſe the Lord in the courts of my Sanctuary: as if the courts of Gods houſe, were the place here deſigned, not to the eating of it, but the praiſing of God for it; which way ſoever we take it,there is a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as Chap.61.7.

V. 10. Go thorow, go thorow the gates] The Prophet, as in ſpiritual raptures is uſual, doth oft wind and turn, in his diſcourſe, from one matter to another, from one party to another; though all concerning the main argument principally intended, the reſtitution of Gods people. In regard whereof, the context of his ſpeech, both here, and elſe-where, is very abrupt, and by reaſon thereof, ſometime alſo, ſomewhat obſcure. He had before introduced the Lord, promiſing to furniſh his people, with a conſtant ſupply of faithful watchmen, for their better ſecurity, ver.6. he had then called upon thoſe, whom that office belonged unto, for the diligent performance of ſome duties,for the furtherance of their weal,ver. 7. he had then brought in again God by a ſolemn oath, aſſuring them of a conſtant courſe of tranquility,ver.8,9. he now directeth his ſpeech to the people themſelves; and from them inſtantly diverteth it, again, to others, that were to be helpful,and uſeful,in their return from captivity, ver.10. then returneth again to God, and a proclamation in his name publiſhed,ver.11,12.

Go thorow,go thorow the gates] Heb. paſſe,paſſe by,or,thorow the gates; ſo is the particle taken, Jer.7.2. & 17.20. now becauſe this admitteth a divers conſtruction: for it may be underſtood,as well of coming in,as of going out. Hence ariſeth much variety in the interpretation of the place; for ſome ſuppoſe it to be an intimation of the great multitudes of thoſe,that,upon return from captivity, ſhould come thronging into the city, Chap.60.11. or an invitation of people,to come flocking into the Church, whereof the city was a type, Chap.26.2. Others, an adhortation unto thoſe, that being returned, were now ſeated in the city, to repair to the Temple, there to perform holy duties, in way of thankfulneſſe to God; as Pſal. 118. 19,20. ver. 9. And whereas the words next enſuing,of fitting the way for them, may ſeem to imply, that the place is not meant of perſons, now returned, and at their journeyes end;but of perſons,preparing for, and about to travel: This to ſalve; ſome would have it underſtood of thoſe already there ſeated and ſetled; as called upon to go forth at the gates to meet,and make way for others that were coming,and on the way toward them; which they apply unto the faithful Jews,at firſt,called to Chriſt;as encited to prepare for, and receive the Gentiles, that were to come in to them. But in all the parallel places of this Prophet, the mention of preparing & fitting the way, is conſtanly for the people returning from Babylon, and that by others,for them; not by them, for any other,whom they ſhould go out to meet: tho it is not denied, that their return was typical; and a type reſembling the delivery of people from the thraldom of ſin, and Satan, and the converſion of them, unto Chriſt, Act.26. 18. Thoſe therefore that conceive this paſſage to concern thoſe, that were now upon return, underſtand them; Some, as directed to the perſons themſelves, as calling upon them, to paſſe by the gates, and come forth out of Babylon, or other cities, where they made their abode, having by Cyrus his Proclamation, liberty now ſo to do, alluded unto, ver.11.and ſo it is, in effect, the ſame with thoſe places, Chap. 48. 20. & 52.11. where they are in like manner called upon, ſo to do, and this I take to be the genuine ſenſe of the place; though if any ſhall ſuppoſe, that in theſe words, other people are called upon, to go out of their gates, that is, out of their ſeveral cities, or places of abode, (as Deut. 12.17. & 14.27.) to help to make the wayes fit for Gods people to paſs by; I ſhould rather thereunto encline; then to that, which ſome other, as well of the Jewiſh, as of ours, have, that it ſhould be a command given to officers, to paſſe unto the gates, that is, from gate to gate, as Exod.32.27. or from city to city,to proclaim the liberty for return, granted to Gods people, Ezr.1.1. or,to that of our ancienteſt Engliſh, that rendreth it, Depart, go aſſunder, ye that ſtand in the gate; as if it were a command given to people, to quit, and cleer the gates, for the freer paſſage of Gods people. Howſoever it be taken, the word is doubled, to add the more emphaſis to it: as the like is, in the words enſuing.

prepare ye the way of the people] Or, prepare way for the people. Make the people way; or, prepare, and fit the way, for Gods people to paſs. See Chap.41.3. & 57.14.

caſt up, caſt up, the high-way;] Or, as ſome render it, tread down, tread down, the cauſey; becauſe the verb is ſo deemed to ſignifie, Jer.50.26. & Lam.1.15. and cauſeys are firſt caſt up for the raiſing of them, then troden, or rolled, to make them eaven and plain: but of the ſenſe of the former place, there is ſome doubt; and the word in the latter place is divers from this, and ſeems to be of another houſe: the received reading is ſafe, and ſure. See Chap. 57.14. and of the noun, Chap.35.8.

gather out of the ſtones;] The verb here uſed, ſignifies, in general, to ſtone; but more ſpecially, ſometime, to pick ſtones out; as Chap. 5.2. ſometime, to caſt ſtones in, or at, one: as 2 Sam. 16.6, 13. Hence ariſeth a divers expoſition of this place. Some rendring the word, ſtone it; that is, pitch, or, pave, it, with ſtone: as the particle is uſed, Cant. 1.1. & 3.9. to make it the more firm, and plain; as wayes well paved, or pitched, are wont to be. Others, whom our verſion followeth; ſtone it, that is, by ſtoning: as Chap. 5.2. cleer it, or, free it, from ſtone; that is, from ſtones: the word being taken collectively, as Hab. 2.11. that there may no ſtones, or ſtone, be left lying in the way for Gods people to trip, or ſtumble, at, Pſal. 91.12. as Hoſ. 9.12. I will bereave them from a man; that is, ſo that there ſhall not be a man of them left: pick the ſtones out of the way, to make it the more eaſie, and the leſſe troubleſome, or offenſive: and this the rather I embrace, becauſe in that place parallel to this, Chap. 57.14. the words are, take away the ſtumbling, (whether ſtone, or block) out of the way of my people.

liſt up a ſtandard for the people] Or, as others, to the people; (as Chap. 53.1.) or, peoples, rather, as Chap. 56.7. for the word is plural. Heb. over the peoples; ſo high, that being over them, or above them, it may be ſeen of them. Becauſe the Jews in their captivity, were diſperſed into many places, and were now ſojourning among ſundry people, there is an enſign ſaid to be ſet up aloft; either, for thoſe people among whom they ſhould then be found reſiant, to cauſe them to bring the Jews home from among them, Chap. 49.22. & 66.20. or, as others, to thoſe people, for the Jews, abiding with them; that reſorting to it, and having gathered themſelves together, they might travel in troops, Chap. 60.8. with more conveniency, by mutual ſociety, and ſafety. See Chap. 11.11, 12.

V. 11. Behold, the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world;] Heb. The Lord hath made to hear (that is, publiſhed, or, cauſed this to be heard; as Chap. 45.21. 2 King. 7.6.) unto the end of the earth: ſo far as any of them might be diſperſed, Deut. 30.4. Chap. 48.20. The words have reference to the Proclamation ſent abroad, through Gods appointment, and procurement, into all parts, by Cyrus, 2 Chron. 36.21–23. Ezr. 1.1, 2.

Say ye unto the daughter of Zion;] Let this be publiſhed, and made known, unto thoſe that belong unto Sion, to my people in all parts; ſo Chap. 48.20. Zach. 9.9. Mat. 21.5. of the daughter Sion. See on Chap. 1.8.

Behold, thy Salvation cometh;] Or, is come; thy deliverance is at hand: or the time of it is come, Pſal. 102.13. Chap. 51.5. & 56.1. & 60.1. or, thy ſalvation, for, the author of thy ſalvation; thy Saviour, as Luk. 2.30. thy King, that ſaveth thee, Chap. 33.22. is come to thee, to ſave, and deliver thee, Pſal. 74.12. Zach. 9.9. Joh. 12.15. and that it is thus to be here taken, the clauſe enſuing ſheweth. See chap. 59.20.

behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.] Of this paſſage, ſee before on Chap. 40.10. For I ſuppoſe that learned man to be out of the way, who conceiveth the meaning of the latter to be, that God, for his work, or ſervice, done him, by Cyrus, had given him his reward before-hand, ch. 45.1-4. As for ſome other, he rewarded Nebuchadnezzar afterward, Ezek. 29.18-20. The prediction of Gods coming in this manner, is uſhiered in, with a three-fold Behold; as to note the certainty of it, as a thing in preſent ſight; ſo to intimate the ſtate and magnificence of it, as being a matter of much admiration, and wonderment. See Chap. 63.1. and the like three-fold Behold, but in an other argument, Jer. 23.30, 31, 32.

V. 12. And they ſhall call them, The holy people;] Or, And men ſhall call them, (to wit, Sions ſons, or thoſe that belong to her; and ſhall now again people her, ver. 5.) or, they ſhall be called (as the like, Mal. 1.4.) an holy people. Heb. a people of holineſſe: as, a ſeed of holineſſe, for, an holy ſeed, Chap. 6.13. See Chap. 4.3. & 60.21.

the redeemed of the Lord] Such as God, by reſcuing, and delivering them out of the hands of ſo powerful adverſaries, in ſo ſtrange a manner, hath ſhewed, that he owneth for his, Chap. 35.9. & 51.10. & 63.4. See the term alſo, Pſal. 107.2.

and thou ſhalt be called, Sought out;] thou, O Sion, verſ. 11. (a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as ver. 2.) ſhall be called. Heb. it ſhall be called thee. See ver. 4.

Sought out] Or, Sought unto, or, Sought after: as one had in high eſtimation, and regard; whom out of reſpect, and regard, men repair, and reſort unto. See Pſal. 111.2. contrary to that, which was formerly ſaid of thee, in the time of thy low, and dejected eſtate, This is Sion that none ſeeketh after, Jer. 30.17.

a city not forſaken] As ſhe ſeemed to be formerly, in the time of her captivity. See ver. 4.

CHAP. LXIII.

Verſ. 1. WHo is this, that cometh from Edom, with garments died from Bozrah;] Whether this paſſage hath any connexion with that foregoing, or no, is queſtionable. Some ſuppoſe that it hath. And that to confirm Gods people, in the aſſurance both of their deliverance, and of their continuance in a ſetled eſtate after their return, therein promiſed, God is brought in, returning, as in triumph, from the conqueſt, and ſlaughter of thoſe, that were the chief enemies of his people: partly thereby to make way for the one; and partly, to give ſecurity unto them, for the other: as Chap. 37.29-36. & 38.6. and it may ſeem indeed to have reference unto thoſe words; Behold, thy Saviour cometh, chap. 62.11. Whether it have or no, (and it is probable that it hath) certain it is, that the Prophets words run, as if in a viſion he ſaw the party here ſpoken of, appearing as ſome great Commander, in goodly rich robes, the more goodly, becauſe beſprinkled with the bloud of his enemies, returning in triumph from the ſlaughter, and conqueſt of thoſe, whom he had vanquiſhed in fight. See ſomewhat the like paſſages, in that triumphant Pſalm, 68. verſ. 7, 8, 12-14, 17, 18, 21-23, 33. as alſo, Rev. 19.11-16.

Who is this,] It is a queſtion, who it is, that moveth this queſtion. It is the Angels, ſay ſome of the ancients. It is Iſrael, ſay ſome, of the Rabbines. It is the Church, ſay ſome of ours. It is the Prophet Eſay, ſay others, of either; to whom the ſight, or apparition was offered in a viſion, or ecſtaſie; with whom I concur. So one of the Elders to John, but as inviting him to ask, what they were, Who are theſe? Rev. 7.13, 14. And it ſeemeth ſpoken by way of admiration; as the like, Cant. 3.6. & 8.5. And it is a ſecond queſtion, who the party ſhould be, that thus appeared to the Prophet. Some ſay, God, that gave order for the proclamation before-mentioned, Chap. 62.11. So ſome, both of the Jewiſh Writers, and other. Some ſay, Chriſt, the Meſſias; ſo many of ours, both Old, and New. Some ſay, Micael, one of the chief Angels; that had been fighting with the Perſian, Dan. 10.13. ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters. Some Judas the Maccabee, of whoſe victories, againſt the Edomites, Joſeph the Jew, lib. 12. c. 11, 12. & 1 Maccab. 5.3. ſo a learned late Writer. I ſhall accord with the firſt; becauſe this place ſeemeth parallel to that other, Chap. 59.16-18. the very ſame terms, ſome of them, being uſed alſo in either.

that cometh from Edom, —— from Bozrah;] I joyn theſe two together, for the more expedite explication of either; concerning which, to let paſs the Rabbines ridiculous conceit, taking Edom, ſtill for Rome, where in theſe Prophecies they meet with it; becauſe in Hebrew, the letters of either, are much alike; and their State was by the Roman Empire, utterly ruined: as alſo the groundleſs opinion of ſome Chriſtian Writers, that would have Edom here to be Antichriſt; though I doubt not, much leſs deny, but that by theſe victories atchieved by God, for his people, againſt their adverſaries, and oppreſſors, are typified Chriſts procedings againſt the enemies of his Church, and ſo againſt Antichriſt, among the reſt, Rev. 19.19-21. & 20.7-10. But by Edom, in the firſt place, is here meant Idumea, the country inhabited by the poſterity of Eſau. Of which, ſee Chap. 11.14. By Bozrah, what is meant, is by ſome made more queſtionable. For whereas there were two Bozrahs, at leaſt, one, in the land of Moab, Jer. 48.24. another in Idumea, Gen. 36.31, 33. Jer. 49.13, 22. and was the royal city of that Realm, Amos 1.12. Some would have that of Moab to be here meant; becauſe they find Edom, and Moab to be joyned ſometime together, as the joynt adverſaries of Gods people; as Chap. 11.14. But I ſuppoſe rather that Bozrah to be here meant, that was held by the Edomites, (from whoſe country this conquerer is ſaid to come) and was their head-city: as alſo, I find them both joyned together, Chap. 34.6. a place parallel to this. But it is demanded why this gallant Commander ſhould be ſaid to come from the overthrow of the Edomites, and from Bozrah; and not rather from the conqueſt of the Chaldeans, and from Babylon; theſe being the principal oppreſſors of Gods people, whoſe State therefore for the deliverance of them, was to be deſtroyed; Chap. 14.1. & 44.14. Whereunto the anſwer is, that the Edomites are put for the enemies of Gods people in general, in regard of the ancient, inteſtine, and inbred enmity, and malignity, in their firſt founder, againſt their progenitor his brother, Gen. 25.22, 23. & 27.41. continued, yea, perpetuated in his poſterity, Amos 1.11. and that notwithſtanding the neerneſs of kindred between them, Mal. 1.2. and the fair, and friendly carriage of the Iſraelites towards them, in their paſſage to Canaan, Deut. 2.4-6. and the Laws made afterward in favour of them, above ſome other neighbouring nations, Deut. 23.7. yet none had demeaned themſelves more ſpitefully and cruelly, then they at the ſurpriſal of Jeruſalem, and the ſacking of it by the Chaldeans,Pſal.137.7.Obad.10-14.In regard whereof Gods people, as they threaten Babylon, that ſhe ſhould be ſerved with the like ſauce,as ſhe had ſerved in to them,Pſal.137.8. ſo they foretel Edom, that ſhe was to drink drunk of the ſame cup, that they had drunk ſo deep of before her,Lam.4.21. Add hereunto,that Edom is the rather mentioned,in reſpect of her Neighborhood ; to aſſure Gods people of their better ſecurity,and more conſtant tranquility, their neighbouring adverſaries being ſubdued and quelled, as well as their enemies more remote. See Chap.60.11,18. & 62.8,9. For as concerning that, which a reverend and learned Interpreter hath,that neither Edom,nor Bozrah, are here mentioned with any reference at all unto thoſe places, but in alluſion only to the names they bare; the one ſignifying,red; (a two-fold reaſon whereof, ſee Gen.25.25,30.) whence alſo the Edomean,or the red-ſea, was ſo termed : and ſuiteth well with one,that cometh from ſhedding of bloud, ver.3,6. in garments alſo therewith beſmeared.ver.2. the other having a notion of vintage in it ; and this Warriour is ſaid alſo to come from treading the wine-preſſe, ver.3. I ſuppoſe it to be ſomewhat over-curious : albeit that to the notations of terms, alluſions be oft found. But not to inſiſt on that which might be excepted,that Boſrah (whence by change of a vowel,the Punick, Butſra,and by tranſpoſition of letters, the Greek and Latine, Byrſa,though Ptolomy, coming neerer to the Hebrew, retain the name Boſtra) cometh not from the verb batſar,as it ſignifies,to cut grapes, Lev.25.5. Deut.24,21. but as it ſignifies, to fortifie,or to fence, Chap.22.10.& 51.23. the Prophecy here ſeems principally to have an eye unto the place, and to the diſpoſition of the people thereof poſſeſſed, Gen. 26. 9, 33. Deut.2.5.

with died garments] Or, with garments tainted, or ſtained. Heb.levened,as ſome : becauſe the verb it cometh of, ſignifies, to leven,or to be levened rather, Exod.12.34,39. Hoſ.7.4. But the word, though not found ſo uſed in Scripture ; yet in the Writings of the Rabbines, is uſed for to dip, or to be dipped, whether to waſh,or to dy. And from words of that notion are the terms that betoken dying,tainting,and ſtaining; both in Greek and Latine derived; hence ſome render it, wetted, or moiſtened: I ſhould rather,dipped,or ſtained; and this receiveth ſtrength from that parallel place,Rev.19.13. he was clad with a garment dipped in bloud,ſee ver.3. the Hebrew is, word for word,dipped,or ſtained of clothes,or garments,that is,having his garments ſtained, as if they had been dipped in ſomwhat that might ſtain them.So Chap.36.22. rent of garments, for having their garments rent : one of the Rabbines rendreth it, red,or redded,that is, died,or ſtained, red. But he ſeemeth therein rather to have regarded the ſubject matter of the relation, then the ſtrict notion of the term.

this that is glorious in his apparel;] Heb. this gorgeous one in his apparel, that is, this gorgeouſly apparelled one, in ſuch a rich coat of arms,as great commanders,and generals, uſed to go out to war in.See the term applied to apparel, Job 40.10. Pſal.104.1.Prov.31.22.

walking in the greatneſſe of his ſtrength?] Or, marching, or ſtalking ; as intimating a going in ſtate ; as a word in Hebrew, next dore to it doth,Judg.5.4.Pſal.68.7. It ſeems properly to ſignifie,a travelling unto, in, or from ſome forreign Countrey, Chap.51.14.Jer.48.12. in which latter place alſo it is uſed,for to cauſe, or enforce others ſo to do. Whence the Rabbines here,ſome of them expound it , either of driving the enemies of Gods people out of their countries,or of bringing back the Iſraelites into their own countrey , from the lands wherein they remained as exiles, Chap.51.14.but it is not here in that form : one of them rendreth it girt : and God indeed is ſaid to be girt with might, Pſal.65.6. But he ſheweth not how this word ſhould come ſo to ſignifie : the old Latine rendreth it, gradiens : ſome late Writers, incedens both terms uſed of a war like march,and ſtately gate : and may ſeem either well to ſute with the notion here intended; which thoſe that render it travelling,ſeem not to reach : For the meaning ſeems to be, that he paſſeth along,not as one fleeing,or retiring,after ſome foil received,or diſcomfited in fight ; as Chap.31.8,9. but as one marching leiſurely,with a ſtately gate, and with ſtrength entire,having made a full riddance of his foes,and fearing no enemy behind.

in the greatneſſe of his ſtrength.] Or, with his greatneſſe of might ; that is,with his great might, as Pſal.33.17. by his greatneſſe of ſtrength,that is,by his great ſtrength:and his arm of might, for his mighty arm,Chap.62.8. marching with his, that is, his own might (as,his ſoul,for his own ſoul,Pſal.22.29) not, as other commanders, with ſtrength ariſing from troops of horſe, and horſemen,and companies of foot;but with his own might alone,ver.5.

I that ſpeak in righteouſneſſe;] Gods anſwer returned to the Prophets demand ; deſcribing himſelf, by his fidelity in his promiſes,and his ability to perform them : both which were now manifeſted by the accompliſhment thereof; as by his preſent garb, and gate might appear.

ſpeak in righteouſneſſe;] That is,as ſome, that ſpeak of righteouſneſſe ; as the particle ſeems to ſignifie, Deut.13.12. Jer.38.24. & 48.27. of Gods Juſtice to be executed upon his enemies, and the enemies of his people ; which the old Latine ſwerveth not much from,rendring it,That ſpeak righteouſneſs, that is,paſs a juſt ſentence of condemnation upon them : as, to ſpeak judgments, is uſed. Jer.1.16. & 39.5. But I ſuppoſe, with others,that in righteouſneſſe,here,is righteouſly: as,in truth, truly, ſincerely, Pſal.145.18. Chap.38.3. 10, in righteouſneſſe, righteouſly, faithfully, (for faithfulneſſe is a branch of righteouſneſſe,Heb.6.10.1 Joh.1.9.) So, to ſwear in righteouſneſſe, is, to ſwear righteouſly,uprightly,faithfully,with a purpoſe to perform, Chap.48.1.Jer.4.2.I utter nothing in my promiſes,but what I intend to make good,and what ye may now ſee accompliſhed.See Chap.55.10,11.

mighty to ſave.]Heb,much,or great;as Pſal.25.11. ſome render it ſufficient : ſome,ample : it implyeth indeed Gods ample power and ability, of it ſelf all-ſufficient to ſave and deliver his,without aſſiſtance of any other. See ver.5.

V. 2. Why art thou red in thine apparel ?] Or, Why is thine apparel red ? As before verſ. 1. A ſecond queſtion, by the Prophet,moved unto this great Warrier,thus appearing. As if he had ſaid, If thou beeſt of that might that thou ſpeakeſt of, how cometh thy gorgeous apparel to be all over ſtained thus, like one that were come out of ſome wine-preſs, from treading of the grapes. ?

and thy garments like him that treadeth in the wine-fat ?] Or, to make the ſentence ful and exact to the text, and why are thy garments,as the garments of a treader in the wine-preſs ? See the like defect,and ſupply, Chap.5.29. Dan.4.33. Like one that by treading of the grapes in the wine-preſs, comes to be beſmeared all over with the blood, (as it is tearmed, Gen. 49. 11. that is, the juice) of them ; the liquor cruſhed out of them. See Chap. 16.10.

that treadeth] Heb. a treader. One that treadeth grapes : as before the Noun regent was wanting, ſo here the Noun under regiment. Of the like whereunto, ſee on Chap. 61. 3.

in the wine-fat] Or, wine-preſs : as it is rendred, Lam. 1. 15. Joel. 3.13. But I ſuppoſe our Tranſlators render it thus here, for variety ſake onely ; becauſe another, of the ſame notion, is uſed in the next verſe. The term here is,gath : in the uſe whereof, ſome would finde an alluſion to the name of Gath, a Town of the Philiſtims , where Goliah was born, 1 Sam.17.23. So called, ſay they, becauſe wine-preſſes were there firſt invented,and great uſe of them in thoſe parts. But to paſs by the improbability of the notation, and the ground given for it , there is little reaſon to imagine that the Prophet,in uſing the common, and moſt uſual name of a wine-preſs, and ſpeaking of Idumea, ſhould have any glance at a city in Paleſtine.

V. 3. I have troden the wine-preſs alone] Gods anſwer to the Prophets ſecond demand,ver,2. and that conceived in a metaphorical form,correſpondent to the ſimilitude,made uſe of in the queſtion. As if he had ſaid, Thou ſaieſt that I am arraied like one that had been emploied about the treading of grapes in ſome wine-preſs : and it is true indeed, that I come from ſuch a like employment : I have been treading in a wine-preſs, but another manner of wine-preſs, then that wherein grapes are wont to be troden. And here again ſome conceive Bozrah to be alluded unto : For becauſe, ſay they, the country about Bozrah was,much of it, planted with vines ; it is as much in effect, as if he ſhould ſay, I come from another manner of vintage, and treading of grapes for the making of wine,then that,at,or about Bozrah,uſeth to be. But whence they have this concerning the land bordering upon Bozrah ; unleſs it be from the notation of the name, of which ſee on ver.1. I know not. I finde not the land of Edom, for bearing of vines,or yielding of much wine, any where commended in Scripture. This we finde, that when through the wrath of God , people endure heavy preſſures, eſpecially unto the utter undoing, and deſtroying of them,they are in Scripture phraſe compared unto grapes,that are ſqueezed, and cruſhed under mens feet in the wine-preſs,and are ſaid to be troden in the wine-preſs of Gods wrath. See Lam.1.15. Rev.14.19,20. The meaning is plain, I have diſcomfited the enemies of my people,and troden them down,as grapes in a wine-preſs. So of Chriſt, Rev.19.15. in which place, parallel to this,the reaſon ſeems rendred, why his garment was ſaid to be dipped in bloud, ver. 13. becauſe it is he that treadeth the wine-preſs of Gods wrath.

troden the wine-preſs] That is, the grapes in the wine-preſs, as before,ver.2. So, to drink the cup ; for,the wine in the cup, Jer.49.12. Ezek,23. 32.

wine-preſs] A word divers from the former, ver. 2. but in ſenſe the ſame. It cometh from a word that ſignifieth, to break,or,diſſolve,Pſalm 74. 13. Chap. 24. 19. and is ſo called, becauſe the grapes are bruiſed and broken in it. The word is no where found but here, and Hag. 2. 16. where this rather then the former might be rendred, a fat: for it is there diſtinguiſhed from the preſs; (which is by a third term there expreſſed) and ſeemeth to be put for the fat, or veſſel that receiveth the wine, running into it from the preſs. And by collation of theſe two places, it may juſtly be deemed to comprehend both.

alone; and of the people there was none with me] This is added, as to render a reaſon why his raiment was ſo beſmeared with blood: becauſe he trod the wine-preſs himſelf, whereas the owners of vineyards, and great wine-maſters are wont to do it by others not medling with that kinde of emploiment themſelves: ſo withal to intimate the great might and valour of this gallant Warrior, that performeth all himſelf, in the ſlaughter and conqueſt of his enemies; not needing, or requiring the aſſiſtance of any, for the effecting of ought, like worldly Commanders, that of themſelves can do nothing without the help of men and ammunition; but able to diſpatch, and tranſact all that he pleaſeth by his own might alone, of himſelf. See ver. 1. Chap. 44. 24. Hence divers Interpreters are induced to expound this whole diſcourſe wholy of the worke of mens redemption, by Chriſt wrought upon the croſs, by the effuſion of his blood: the rather, for that there he is ſaid to have ſpoiled principalities and powers, and to have led them openly in triumph, Col. 2. 15. In which action of his, moſt certain it is that he had no creature his coadjutor. But others, even of the beſt note and rank, do herein diſſent from them, conceiving the current of the context to run rather another way, as reſpecting rather, in a ſpiritual ſenſe, Chriſts deſigns, as a powerful Prince and a valiant Warrior, in the behalf of his people, by executing vengeance upon his and their enimies, then the performances of his prieſthood. Againſt which if it be objected; that in the deſtroying and ſubduing of ſuch, God ordinarily makes uſe of men: and it cannot be ſaid therefore, that therein he is alone, and none with him. To this ſome anſwer, that the meaning is not, that none aſſiſted him; but that there were none able to maintain fight with him, Chap. 27. 5. And the latter branch of this paſſage may well admit that ſenſe. Of the people; that is, of the Edomites, from the ſlaughter of whom I come, there was none with me; that is, none that durſt, or was able to ſtand it out with me. For ſo is the like phraſe uſed, Pſal. 55. 18. where when David ſaith, There were many with me; he meaneth not, many fighting for me; but warring with me, that is, againſt me. And the words following, both in this verſe and the next, will well agree hereunto; yea, the next branch indeed ſeems to exact it: for there is nothing to refer the pronoun demonſtrative thereunto, in theſe words, I trod them, but the word, people, in this. And this may ſeem to be therefore the genuine ſenſe of the words. But this anſwer, though it may clear the ſenſe of that paſſage, & ſo may take off the edge of the argument, ſo far forth as it is thence drawn; yet it meeteth not with the word alone, nor with that which cometh after, ver. 5. Others, therefore anſwer, that God indeed uſeth men as inſtruments, as well bad as good, for the effecting of ſuch things; but ſo, as that, to ſpeak preciſly, they afford no aſſiſtance, they add no ſtrength to him: Yea, they receive from him whatſoever ſtrength they have, Chap. 45. 1, 5. Being no more able to do ought without him, then a rod or ſtaff to ſtrike; an ax, or a ſaw, to hew or ſaw, without the hand of the workman, or of him that holdeth it, Ch. 10. 5, 15. Nor, to add that they many times mind nothing leſs, then the doing of Gods work, or the fulfilling of his Will, Chap. 10. 6, 7. And that God oft-times, ſo carrieth things, when he maketh uſe of them, that by his power alone it appeareth, that thoſe works were brought about, which he is pleaſed to effect by them, Pſal. 109. 27. Chap. 49. 26. Thus it is ſaid, Deut. 32. 12. The Lord alone did lead him: And yet, he led them by the right hand of Moſes; here after, ver. 12. and, by the hand, that is, Miniſtery, of Moſes and Aaron, Pſal. 77. 20. So, albeit, the Lord made uſe of humane helps; of forreign Princes, as Cyrus, Darius, Artaxerxes, of godly governers, as Zerubabel, and Nehemy, of men and arms, for the reſtitution of his people and protection of them, and the re-edifying, both of Temple and city; yet by his Prophet ſpeaking to them of theſe things; Not by might, or ſtrength, ſaith he, to wit, of man, but by my Spirit, ſaith the Lord, Zach. 4. 6. And although God make uſe of men alſo, for the battering, and beating down of Satans ſtrong holds, erected in mens hearts, and the ſubduing of all unto the obedience of Chriſt; yet the power, whereby all this is done, is from God alone, 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. and the buſineſs is ſo carried, that the power may appear to be, not of man, but of God, 2 Cor. 4. 7.

for I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury] Or, but I trod them down in mine anger, and trampled on them in my rage. Heb. and: but the copulative is ſometime uſed as a diſcretive, or adverſative; as Chap. 60. 10. & 61. 6. and ſometime as a cauſal; as Chap. 53. 2. & 64. 4, 5. Some would have the words read, as our verſion rendreth them, not in the time paſt; becauſe it is a prophecy of a thing to come. But that is no good argument; becauſe the Prophets uſual wont is, to ſpeak of matters future, as paſt, or preſent. And here there ſeemeth a neceſſity of it; becauſe the party here mentioned is deſcribed, not as going out to war, but as returning from fight, and from the ſlaughter of his foes, verſ. 1. as did David from the ſlaughter of the Philiſtins, 1 Sam. 18. 6.

for I will tread them] Or, for I trod them down. Which notion of the particle, if we retain, it may be added as a reaſon, by way of explication, rendred of his firſt words; I have troden the wine-preſs: For I trod them down, and trampled on them; as the treaders do on the grapes in a wine-preſs. Or, of the word, alone; I alone did it; for I my ſelf trod down all that I met with. Or, of the branch next before-going, in the ſenſe fore-mentioned, none could maintain fight with me; for I trod them all down before me. Or, according to the other ſenſe, reading the particle, but; there was none with me; but I trod them down my ſelf: mine own arm did what was done, ver. 5.

tread] Or, tread down; that is, diſcomfit and deſtroy, Pſal. 44. 5. & 60. 12. Chap. 25. 10. and there are two things here implyed in the term; the facility of the diſpatch, I trode them down, as eaſie as one treadeth down cluſters of grapes in a wine-preſſe, and the havock made of the enemy; they were utterly ſpoyled, as grapes are under the treaders feet; and their bloud was ſpilt on the ground, as the juyce or liquour is wholly forced out of them, ver. 6.

them] That is, the Moabites, ver. 1. the people next before ſpoken of: and ſo it is expreſſed, ver. 6. Otherwiſe we muſt underſtand his adverſaries, thoſe he fought with: and ſo then muſt the pronoun (as ſometime it is. See Ch. 30. 8.) be put for the noun.

trample them] Or, trample on: It is a word ſomewhat more emphatical, then the former. See Chap. 41. 25. Dan. 8. 7, 10. 2 King. 9. 23.

fury] See Chap. 43. 25. & 59. 18.

and their bloud ſhall be ſprinkled upon my garments, and I will ſtain all my raiment.] Or rather, their bloud was ſprinkled upon my garments, and I ſtained all my raiment: For it is a part of the anſwer to the foregoing demand, by what means his garments came to be ſo ſtained, ver. 2. as they then appeared already to be, ver. 1.

their bloud] Not his own bloud; for he ſhed none in fight himſelf, but theirs with whom he fought: and this paſſage therefore doth not belong to Chriſts paſſion. Heb. their ſtrength, or ſupport: as the word ſignifies, 1 Sam. 15. 29. Lam. 3. 18. and the bloud is ſo termed, as the Jewiſh Criticks agree, becauſe the life, ſtrength, and ſupport, of the living creature therein conſiſteth, Gen. 9. 4. Lev. 17. 11, 14. See further, ver. 6.

ſprinkled upon my garments] As was Jezabels upon the wall, 2 King. 9. 23.

ſtain my raiment] By this means my garments came to be ſtained. Heb. polluted; or, defiled; for bloud polluteth, Chap. 59. 3. Lam. 4. 14.

V. 4. For the day of vengeance is in mine heart;] Or, was in mine heart: For he ſpeaks ſtill, as of a thing paſt; as if he had ſaid, Do ye ask why I was ſo fierce and furious againſt them, and ſhed ſo much bloud with them? the day was come wherein I had reſolved, having a long time forborn them, to take vengeance upon them, for all their wrongs and inſolencies committed againſt me and my people, Chap. 34. 8. and 61. 2.

in my heart] That is, as ſome, the day much deſired and longed for, by me; as Pſal. 40. 8. or rather, the day, or time, in my ſecret counſel fore-appointed, and deſigned thereunto, Chap. 65. 6. Act. 17. 31.

and the yeer of my redeemed is come.] Or, was come; the time was come, wherein my people were to be reſcued out of the hands of their oppreſſours, and righted upon them. See Chap. 34. 8. Pſal. 102. 13. an alluſion to the Jublilee, the yeer of remiſſion of Debts, and reſtitution of States; as Chap. 61. 2.

V. 5. And I looked, and there was none to help; and I wondred that there was none to uphold:] Or, And when I beheld, that there was no helper; and wondred, that there was no upholder; then did mine own arm bring ſalvation, &c. The like Syntax, See Chap. 53. 2. & 59. 16. a place parallel to this, whereof ſee more there: Then God ſtrook in for the relief and deliverance of his people, when all humane helps failed, and none appeared that would once offer to put forth his hand toward the helping, or upholding of them. So 2 Chr. 20. 12, 15–17. Chap. 26. 18, 19. & 37. 3, 36.

therefore mine own arm brought ſalvation unto me; and my fury it upheld me.] Or, then. Heb. and; as Chap. 30. 20. & 37. 36.

God by his own might made a glorious conqueſt, and did all that was to be done; that which he can do, when means are all miſſing, and men all fail, in doing their duty, Pſal. 98. 1. and there needed nothing but his own juſt indignation, and zeal for his people, either to put him upon the work, or to make him go thorow ſtitch with it, Chap.37.36. See Chap. 59. 16.

V. 6. And I will tread down the people in mine anger;] Or, I trod down; as before, ver.3. See there. See alſo, Chap. 14.25.

and make them drunk in my fury;] Or, made them drunk in, or, with my fury; his fury, being here conſidered, either, as the cauſe impellent, putting him on it, to deal with them, as he did; as Chap.14.6. Pſal.95.11.ver.3. or, as the efficient cauſe unto them, through the direful effects of it upon them, of their diſmal condition, Chap.51.21-23. I made them drunk; that is, by the evils inflicted on them; I did ſo aſtoniſh them, that, like perſons overcome with drink, they were not able to ſtand, nor knew which way to turn themſelves. See Pſal.60.3.& 75. 8. Chap.19.14. Jer.25.16,27. or, to keep to the reſemblance in which we are, the meaning may well be; I drenched them in their own bloud, I gave them their fill of bloud, I made them drunk with it, as with wine newly trod, Chap.49.26. for ſo the word there uſed doth properly ſignifie. See Rev.17.6.& 18.24.& 16.4,6.

and I will bring down their ſtrength to the earth.] Or, I did ſhed their bloud upon the ground. Heb. I made their ſtrength, or ſupport, to deſcend (that is, to go down, or run down) to the earth: the word is the ſame that was before rendred bloud, ver. 3. and there ſeems no reaſon to render it otherwiſe here, then there. So of Edom, and Bozrah, Chap.34. 7. their land ſhall be ſoaked with bloud. Howbeit, ſome would have the meaning here to be, I will bring down their ſtrength, that is, their men of ſtrength; the ſtrongeſt among them: ſtrength, for men of ſtrength, ſtrong ones, Chap.3.25. as Juſtice, for a man of Juſtice, a juſt one, Chap.41.2. Wiſdome, for a man of wiſdome, a wiſe one, Mic.6.9. and might, for men of might, mighty ones, Chap. 3. 25. But the courſe of the context pleadeth ſufficiently for the former.

V. 7. I will mention the loving kindneſſes of the Lord, and the praiſes of the Lord, according to all that the Lord hath beſtowed on us, and the great goodneſſe toward the houſe of Iſrael, which he hath beſtowed on them according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his loving kindneſſes.] Here ſeemes to begin a new diſcourſe, if not a new Sermon, continued unto the end of the next Chapter. Wherein the Prophet having begun with an ample acknowledgment of Gods great goodneſſe to his people, complaineth, in the next place, of their ungracious, and rebellious demeanure toward him; bewaileth Gods eſtrangement of himſelf from them, for the ſame, and the evils, that thereupon had befallen them: and earneſtly ſueth unto God, yet out of his free mercy, to mind them in their preſent miſery, and to be reconciled again unto them. In this verſe, is contained his thankful acknowledgment, of the abundant mercies & beneficences of God exhibited to them, which he ſo dwelleth upon, as if he could never find words enow, or pregnant enough, to expreſs them. See Daniel dwelling in like manner, in his prayer, on the confeſſion of their ſins, Dan.9. 5,6. and the like various expreſſions of the amplitude of Gods grace and goodneſs in Chriſt, Eph.2.5,7.

I will mention] Some would have theſe to be the words of the people; I ſee not why they ſhould be the words of the Prophet, as the Chaldee makes them, though attempered and accommodated unto the condition of the people, in the time of their captivity; I will mention, as Chap.48.1. or, I will call to mind, as Gen.41 9. or, I will celebrate, with praiſe and thankſgiving acknowledge, as Chap.12.4. But here rather, the firſt, or ſecond; the main drift and ſcope of the Prophet, being hereby to exaggerate their rebellious demeanure towards him, who had done ſo much for them, ver. 10. and expected other manner of behaviour from them, verſ. 7. See Jer. 2. 2.

the loving kindneſſes of the Lord] His manifold, great, ample, abundant, loving kindneſſe: and ſo afterward again, the multitude, or magnitude of his loving kindneſſes. So Pſal.89.1. Lam. 3.22. theſe are brought to remembrance, partly, yea principally, to aggravate the unworthy carriages of Gods people towards him, who had dealt ſo graciouſly and bountifully with them; as Deut.32.7-14. and partly alſo it may be, to ſtir up in the hearts of them, amidſt the calamities of thoſe times, ſome hopeful expectation of finding the like favour with God again, as Pſal.77.5-11.

and the praiſes] A defect of the copulative, as Chap.30.33. unleſſe we will ſupply from the former branch (as Gen.1.16.) I will mention, or celebrate, his praiſes.

beſtowed] The word carrieth uſually with it a notion of retribution, Pſal.103.10. 1 Sam.24.18. but ſometime again of a free contribution, as Pſal.116.7.& 119.17. and ſo here.

the houſe of Iſrael] See Chap.5.7.& 14.2.

mercies] Or, tender mercies; as the word is rendred, Pſal.25. 6. and that in Greek anſwering is, Luk.1.78. See Chap.54.7. abundance of mercy, and tender mercy; mercy, not merit, Deut. 7.7,8. & 9.4,5. So Pſal.6.4.& 25.6,7. Dan.9.9,18.

V. 8. For he ſaid, Surely they are my people; children that will not ly.] Heb. And (as Chap.53.2.) he ſaid: he thought with himſelf; he made account, he preſumed, (as 2 King.5. 11.) what time he brought them out of Egypt, and took them to be his people, that they would carry themſelves loyally and dutifully unto him. A ſpeech taken from the affection and diſpoſition of men, who expect reſpective carriage from them, whom they have ſhewed kindneſſe unto; or of a Father, preſuming and hoping the beſt of a child, whom he hath had ſpecial care of, and been at much coſt with: implying how ſuch favours ſhould have wrought upon them, and how they ſhould have ſtood affected toward him, who had dealt ſo kindly and bountifully with them, Pſal.81.8-10. See the like affection aſcribed in like manner to God, Zeph.3.7.

they are] It need not be put in a different character: for the pronoun demonſtrative, ſupplies the place of the verb ſubſtantive, as Ezek.2.7.

my people] Whom I have taken in a more peculiar manner to my ſelf, Exod.19.5,6. Deut.7.6.& 26.17,18.

that will not ly] Will not deal diſloyally, as Chap.59.13. but ſee the contrary pronounced of them, Chap.30.9. a defect of the relative, as Chap.62.1.

ſo he was their ſaviour.] Heb. and (as Chap.59.19.) he was unto them for a Saviour. Upon theſe hopes, this expectation, theſe grounds, and theſe conditions, he undertook the protection o them, Exod.19.5,6. Pſal.81.8,9. the like ſyntax, ſee 1 Chronſ 19.12.

V. 9. In all their affliction he was afflicted,] There is a double reading here in the Hebrew, ſome copies, it ſeems, anciently having the word lo, written with an aleph, and then it is an adverb negative, and ſignifies not; ſome with a waw, and then being a prepoſition, with a pronoun affixt, it ſignifies to him: the like diverſity about the ſame word is found, alſo, Exod.21.8. Job 13.15. Pſal.100.3. Hence, the words come to be diverſly rendred. Some, with whom our verſion concurreth, In all their affliction he was afflicted. Heb. affliction was to him, as affliction is to me; for I am afflicted, Pſal.18.6. Lam.1.20. he took to heart their afflictions; he was himſelf grieved for them, and with them, Judg.10.18. a form of ſpeech taken from the manner of men, as the Jewiſh Maſters well here obſerve. See Pſal.106.44,45. Zach.2.8. Act.9.5. Others, taking it in the negative, yet reading the words, by way of interrogation, (as ſome alſo do that, Job 13.15. & Pſal.105.26. to reconcile the elder verſion with the latter) was not affliction to him? or, was he not afflicted? for ſenſe and ſubſtance, come home to the former. But others, and ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors alſo, read them in the negative, by way of enunciation, he did not afflict them; or, affliction was not to them: they were not afflicted, that is, as ſome, he afflicted them not, (having no will or deſire ſo to do, Lam.3.33.) but they brought affliction upon themſelves, Chap.3.9. Job 36.23. Jer.2.17. or, though they vexed him, yet he ſpared them, and did not afflict them, as they deſerved that he ſhould, Pſal.78.38.& 103.10. or they were not long in any affliction; (and a little is as nothing) becauſe he ſpeedily delivered them out of it, Pſal.106.44. Or, as ſome, if not including both; yet admitting the one, and ſupplying the other; there was no affliction to him: he was not afflicted, he was not troubled with their troubles; he ſeemed for ſome time not to regard them, that they might have a more effectuall work upon them, Chap.8.17.& 30.18.& 45.15.& 57.17. Hoſ.5.15. or, becauſe this ſeems to croſs the Prophets drift in this place: Others, there was no ſtrait to him, (as Pſal.31.9. & 59.16. & 69.17. ſtraitneſſe is to me, that is, I am ſtraitned, I am in ſtraits, in diſtreſſe) or, he was not ſtrait; as Chap.49.20. the place is too ſtrait to me, or for me: he was not ſtrait-laced towards them, as we uſe to ſay; or he was not ſtraight-handed, Chap.59.1. he was not backward to help them, as they ſpeak, Joſh.10.6. ſlack not thine hand from helping us: He was forward to help them; or he was not weary of helping; it was no trouble at all to him to help them. Or laſtly, as a learned late Writer, He was not an enemy, or adverſary to them; (as the word commonly ſignifieth, Lam.1. 5,7,10.) he carryed himſelf toward them, not as a fo, but as a friend. And this, as alſo the next before, may either of them carry ſome good probability with them. Howbeit, the firſt I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe, and the words to have ſpeciall reference to Gods taking to heart their afflictions in Egypt, Exod.3.7,9.

and the Angel of his preſence ſaved them:] By the Angel of his face, (as the Hebrew ſounds) or his preſence: the Jewiſh Doctors here underſtand, ſome of them, Micael; the tutelary Angel (as they account him) of their nation, Dan.10. 13, 21. called the Angel of his face, or preſence, becauſe he ſtands continually attending in Gods preſence. See Mat. 18.10. Others, Metraton, whom they ſain to be Gods herbinger, or meſſenger, from a Latine word that importeth the former: And ſome of them ſay, that this Angel is no other then Enoch, ſince his tranſlation, ſo employed. Others again, that this is but the title of his office; but his proper name is Micael, and ſo bring it home to the firſt: nor want there of ours, who out of ſome of their Writings, wherein they talk much, in a wild manner, both of the title (which is indeed no more then a meer deformation of the Latine metator, an herbinger) and of the party that beareth it, would prove that this Metratoh, can be no other then the Meſſias; as many of our Divines alſo conceive Micael to be, mentioned, Dan.12.1. Jud.9. Rev.12.7. Certain it is, that this Angel here ſpoken of, is that Angel, of whom God ſpake unto Moſes, Exod.23 21-23. termed both Jehovah, Exod.13.21. & 14.10,24. and his face, or preſence, Exod.33. 14,15. and an Angel, Exod. 33. 2. who that he was no other, then the Meſſias, Jeſus Chriſt, the conducter of them in the wilderneſſe, holy Steven enformeth us, Act.7.38. the eternall Son of G O D, the reſplendancy of his Fathers Majeſty, and exact image of his perſon, Heb. 1. 3. in whom therefore his name is ſaid to be, Exod.23,22. he that appeared unto Moſes in the buſh, Exod.3.2. ſtyled Jehovah there, ver.4. and by Jacob, the Angel, that delivered, or reſcued him out of all evil, Gen. 48.24. & by Malachy laſtly, Jehovah, the Angel of the covenant, Mal.3.1. termed an Angel, or Meſſenger, in regard of his Mediatorſhip, Heb.8.6. of Gods face; either becauſe he doth exactly reſemble God his Father, Joh.14.9,10. Col.1.15. or, becauſe he appeareth before the face, or in the preſence of God, for us, Heb.9 24. See Rom.8.34. Rev. 8,3. this Angel ſecured and ſafegarded them all the way thorow the Wilderneſſe, from Egypt to Canaan, Deut.8.2,4.& 32.10,12.

in his love, and in his pity, he redeemed them,] He reſcued them out of the Egyptian bondage, out of meer affection to them, and compaſſion toward them, Deut.7.7,8.

and he bare them, and carryed them all the days of old.] Or, he took them up, (as Chap.40.15.) and carryed them all the dayes of old. Heb. dayes of perpetuity, or of antiquity; days of yore, as in our old Engliſh they had wont to ſpeak: for in the former notion is the word taken, when ſpeech is of times future; in the latter, when of times paſt, as here. He not led them onely, but lifted them; took them up in his arms, as Parents, or Nurſes, are wont to do with young children, and weakly ones, (alluded to Pſal.91.12.) Chap.46.3. and carryed them, as the Eagle doth her young ones, not fully fledged, or unable yet to fly, on her wings, Exod.19.4. Deut.32.11. all the time of that their infancy, and conſtantly alſo afterward from time to time, as occaſion and their neceſſities required it, Chap.46.4.

V. 10. But they rebelled] They anſwered not Gods expectation, ver.8. they proved diſloyal children, Chap. 30. 9. and a rebellious race, Chap.48.4,8. See Exod.16.2,5. Num. 14.4,11. & 16.3,11,42. Deut.9.7,24. & 31.17. Pſal.78.56. & 95.9. & 106.7. Ezek.20.8,13.

and vexed his holy Spirit] Heb. his Spirit of holineſſe: and ſo ver.11. as, his hill of holineſs, for, his holy hill, Chap. 56. 7. his name of holineſs, for, his holy name, Ezek. 36. 21. his day of holineſs, for, his holy day, Chap.58.13. They ſo carried themſelves towards him, as might juſtly be cauſe of vexation, and grief of heart to him; a form of ſpeech, borrowed, as the former, ver.8,9. from the nature of man: though God be not ſubject to ſuch infirmity and paſſion, as men are. See the like forms in this kind, Gen.6.6. Chap.7.13. & 43.24. Pſal.78. 40. Ezek.6.9. Amos 2,14. Act.7.51. Eph.4.30.

his Spirit] Which he had ſet among them, and put upon them, to guide, and govern them, ver.11. and whereby he had ſtriven, and ſtrugled with them, to reclaim, and reduce them, Gen.6.3. Num.14.11. Pſal.95.10.

therefore he was turned to be their enemy,] Heb. and: as Chap. 47. 8. he was enforced to carry himſelf, as an enemy towards them, Jer.30.14. Lam.2.4,5. So Job 13.24. & 30. 21. & 33.10.

and he fought againſt them] There is a defect of the copulative; as ver.7. but it is ſupplyed with an expreſſion of the pronoun, not ſo uſual, and having therefore an emphaſis in it; as if he had ſaid, he that before fought for them, did then fight againſt them, Chap.29.2,3. he not only forbare to aſſiſt them againſt their enemies; but fought for theſe againſt his people: he raiſed up adverſaries againſt them, and cauſed them to fall before them, Lev.26.25. Deut.28.25. & 32.30. Chap. 30. 17. Pſal.44.9,10. the hand of God was againſt them for evil, whenſoever they went out, Joſh.2.14,15. So he threatned, that if they walked croſly, or thwartly with him; he would alſo deal in the like manner with them, Lev.26.23,24. Pſal.18.26.

V. 11. Then he remembred the dayes of old,] Then; as chap. 38.4. or, Yet: as chap.9.1. & 60.10. Heb. And. the dayes of old. Heb. of antiquity; as Pſal.44.1. See verſ.9. This is ſpoken, as ſome conceive, of God himſelf, calling to mind what he had formerly done for this people, and as loath now to looſe all the fruit of his former favours, notwithſtanding their preſent untoward carriages, thereby induced to work new deliverances for them: (the argument, that Gods ſervants preſs him oft with, in their prayers, Exod. 32. 11, 12. Deut.9.26,18,19. Num.14.13-19. Joſh.7.7,9.) and whether we underſtand it of a diſcourſive remembrance; (after the maner of men, given unto God) as Exod.32.13. Pſal. 78.39. or, an active remembrance, in manifeſting his mindfulneſſe of them, by what he did for them: as Gen.8.1. & 30.22. it ſhould have reference to thoſe former deliverances, that God, upon this conſideration, had in times paſt afforded this people, notwithſtanding their manifold, frequent, great, and grievous delinquencies, after he had brought them out of their troubles and diſtreſſes: and this may ſeem probably to be the genuine ſenſe of the place. Yet others ſuppoſe it to be ſpoken of Gods people, (and ſo the moſt as well Jews, as ours) amidſt their troubles, better bethinking themſelves, and as calling to mind, what God had formerly done for their anceſtors, Pſal. 22.4,5. and 78.34,35. ſo complaining, that at preſent he did not the like for them, Judg.6.13. See Pſal. 44. 1-14. And this may ſeem not altogether improbable: one main difficulty is, that the verb is here ſingular; whereas of the people he ſpake before in the plural, verſ.10. and ſo afterward again. Whereunto might be anſwered, that the word, people, being, though of a collective notion, yet of a ſingular form, it is joyned oft, with ſingular, both verbs and nouns. See Chap. 5. 26,27. where the very like ſyntax is; and as the words are there rendred, they ſhall come; ſo, this ſenſe admitted, they might here be rendred, then they remembred.

Moſes, and his people] About theſe words, there is no ſmall diſagreement among Interpreters. Some of the Jewiſh Maſters conceive Moſes, not to be at all here mentioned, but the word moſhe, here to be a participle of that verb, from which moſes had his name, Exod. 2. 10. and they read the words, he remembred the dayes of old, him that drew out his people; to wit, out of the Egyptian thraldome; or, that brought him up, out of the red-ſea; as in the next branch: ſo David ſaith of himſelf, he drew me out of many, or, mighty, waters, 1 Sam. 22.17. Pſal.18.16. where the ſame word is uſed, and ſave in the ſtory of Moſes, not elſewhere. Nor want there of ours, that go this way; but as if it were a noun, rendring the words, the eduction, or bringing out, of his people. But the moſt, both of theirs, and ours, take Moſes to be meant here: and of theirs, ſome ſuppoſe a defect of the prepoſition, before the word, people; the like whereunto they find, 1 King.3.15. theſe read the text thus; him that ſent Moſes to his people: but I find one only of ours, that doth therein follow them. Others of them, will have rather a defect of the copulative, ſuch as they find, Habb.3.11. and with theſe moſt of ours concur; yet not agreeing about either the ſyntax, or the ſenſe of this clauſe: for ſome refer theſe words both to dayes; the dayes of old, of Moſes, and of his people. Others, to remembred; he remembred Moſes, and his people; that is, ſay ſome, what by the Miniſtery of Moſes, he had done for his people, Exod. 3. 10. & 32.1,7. Pſal.77.20. Others, the covenant, that by the mediation of Moſes, he made with his people, Exod.19.3-9. & 24.3-8. Gal.3.19. Or, Moſes his vehement, and prevalent interceſſions at ſundry times, in the behalf of his people, Exo. 32.11,12. Num.14.19,20. & 16.22. & 21. 7. Pſal.106. 13. Now which of theſe latter wayes we underſtand the words, is not greatly material; eſpecially, if we conſider them, as things in times paſt remembred, whether by God, or, by his people; though the text ſeems to run more ſmoothly, if we refer them to his remembrance, rather then to theirs. But if we ſhall tranſmit the matter unto future times, and transfer the words to the people, that were to be in the Babylonian captivity, as the Rabbines, moſt of them, do; then it muſt be conceived in the time to come, and read, they ſhall remember the dayes of old: and the former words ſhould rather run in this tenour; But they have rebelled, and vexed his holy Spirit; and he is therefore become an enemy unto them, he himſelf hath fought againſt them: Yet they will remember the dayes of old, in Moſes his time, and his people that then were; or, Moſes, and his people: where his people, unleſs we refer it to Moſes, as if they ſhould call them, Moſes his people; as God himſelf alſo, but in anger, doth, when he ſaith to him, thy people, whom thou broughteſt out of Egypt, Exod.32.7. the form will not ſo well ſuit with the perſon of the people. But this rub would be removed, and all defects ſalved, without any ſupply, if, with a grave and learned Writer, we might thus read the words; And his people will call to mind the dayes of Moſes his age. But this reading, the points, or ſtops, in the originall, will not admit: for they make a ſtay at age, but none at Moſes; and in the text, his people, cometh after Moſes. ſaying, Where is he that brought them up out of the ſea] The word ſaying, is not in the text, but is inſerted by Interpreters; as Pſal.105.15. Chap.26.19. & 45.14. & 56.12. and elſewhere, ſo here; underſtanding it as before; ſome, of God; ſome, of the People: but ſome other inſtead thereof, inſert, But now: as the like expreſſion is,in a parallel place,Judg.6.23. deeming the words enſuing,to be the Prophets own, complaining, if not in the perſon,yet in the behalf of the people;as if God did not mind them,as formerly he had done,notwithſtanding their manifold ſins and exceſſes, Chap.49.14. The Chaldee thruſts in, Leſt the Gentiles ſhould ſay; and one of the Rabbines, The Gentiles now will ſay: But theſe ſeem over-bold inſertions.

Where is he ?] Such kind of ſpeeches, concerning God, are uſed ſometime in way of deriſion, as intimating,that God was not able to relieve,or deliver his,in their diſtreſſes; as by the enemies of Gods people and ſervants, Deut.32.37. Pſal. 42.3.& 115.2.and ſo the Chaldee here accounteth it: ſometime,in way of expoſtulation and complaint,as implying,that God did not manifeſt his power and providence, in the behalf of his people,as in times paſt he had done: ſo Judg.6.23. and ſo rather here. There is a third manner of uſage of ſuch like forms, to wit, in way of inquiſition, as enquiring after God,that had done ſuch things for his people, out of a deſire, to know him,and to ſerve him: the neglect of which enquiry,is taxed,both in Prieſts,and People,Jer.2.6,8. and it is not amiſs, by ſome, obſerved, that it ſeems here to be intimated, that they who had not regarded to ask after God, in this kind formerly,in the time of their proſperity, ſhould be enforced to complain of the want of him, and his abſence from them afterward,in the time of their adverſity. So 1 Sam. 2.17. & 7. 2.Jer.22.21. & 2.31,32,37. Where is he ? ſaith he, or, ſay they, either the People, or the Prophet, as in their perſon; implying, that he was not now to be found; as before he had threatned, Hoſ.5.6. becauſe they had neglected to ſeek him, when he might have been found,Pſal.32.6.Chap.55.6. But ſome of thoſe of chief note, that conceive theſe to be Gods words, render them ſomewhat otherwiſe, then the reading commonly received, thus; Where ſhould he be ? as if God ſhould thus reaſon with himſelf, Where would the glory of God appear,and be manifeſted, if he ſhould ſuffer his people to periſh ? Or, where would the fruit of all be, that he had done for his people, if dealing with them according to their deſerts, he ſhould utterly deſtroy them ? Of this ſomewhat before. But it ſeemeth over-harſh here: Nor can I be induced to concur with them,in attributing this part at leaſt of the preſent diſcourſe unto God; becauſe it is apparent, ver. 14. to be ſpoken of him,and unto him in part alſo, by ſome other,at which place they are enforced, to bring in the people ſpeaking,without any colour of reaſon, cutting that off from the reſt.

that brought them up out of the ſea,] Heb. made them to aſcend from the ſea: both carryed them ſafe thorow the ſea, the red ſea, and brought them ſafe out of it, from the very bottome of it, Exod.14.29,30. & 15.5,8. ver.13,14. one of the greateſt miracles that God ever wrought for his people, which God himſelf therefore mentioneth, as one of his maſter-pieces, Chap. 50. 2. and it is by them therefore likewiſe moſt frequently commemorated,Neh.9.11. Pſal.68.22. & 77. 19 & 78.13.& 106.9.& 114.3,5.& 136.13,14. eſpecially in the times of their diſtreſſes and extremities;as here,ſo Pſal.74.13, 14.Chap.51.9,10.ver.12,13.

with the ſhepherd of his flock?] There ſeemeth to have been here alſo a double reading in the ancient copies,ſome having the word with a ſoundleſſe jod, and ſome, with an he in the end: Whence ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks read it, not ſhepherd,but ſhepherds; which our margent alſo gives us. Thoſe that read it,in the ſingular number, with an he, expound it of Moſes,of whom, ver.11. and who was the Leader and Governour of Gods people;yea,as a King among them, Deut.33.4,5. and unto ſuch is the name of ſhepherd given, Chap. 44.28. Ezek.34.23,24. Thoſe that read it, in the plural,with jod,expound it of Moſes and Aaron both, according to that in the Pſalm 77.20. Thou leddeſt thy people like a flock,by the hand of Moſes and Aaron: Whether of the two we take to, the flock is ſaid to be,neither the ones,or boths, but Gods, the ſhepherd of Iſrael,Pſal.80.1. who led it by them, ver. 11. Howbeit, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, following the Chaldee, render the words,as a ſhepherd his flock; that is, ſupplying the verb from the foregoing participle; as a ſhepherd bringeth forth,or, leadeth out his flock: for ſo is that word oftentimes taken at large; as Lev.11.54. Joſh.24.17. Ezr.4.2. Jer.50. 9. and the manner of ſhepherds,in thoſe parts,is to lead out their flocks, Joh.10.3,4. ſo the particle with,ſhould be here a note of ſimilitude, which I ſuppoſe is hardly found; and the former expoſition being familiar and ready, there is little reaſon to refuſe it.

where is he, that put his holy Spirit within him ?] Heb. his Spirit of holineſſe (as ver.10.) in the midſt of him;that is, within him,or in him; as Zach.12.1.with 1 Cor.2.11.ſo the moſt, both of the Jewiſh,and ours. But the Jewiſh reſtrain it,to the Spirit of Prophecy. Ours extend it, to that ſpirituall endowment,wherewith Moſes was, in a very large meaſure, furniſhed,and thereby enabled,both for the inſtructing and government alſo of Gods people, See Num.11.17.Deut.18.15.but other, of either ranks, render it, in the midſt of him,or of them, (becauſe the word people, to which they ſuppoſe it referred, is a collective) that is, among them; as the Canaanites dwelt amongſt the Ephraimites,Joſh.16.10. and ſo Neh.9.20. thou gaveſt them (to be ſupplyed from the words foregoing) thy good Spirit to inſtruct them: for it was given to them, and placed among them; becauſe beſtowed upon thoſe with them, and over them,in their behalf,and for their behoof,1 Cor.3.22,23. See Chap.59.21.and this is that Spirit, which they vexed by rebellious courſes, 1 Theſſ.4.8.ver.10.

V. 12. That led them by the right hand of Moſes] See Pſal. 77.20.on ver.11. Yet it is ſaid, The Lord alone did lead him, Deut.32,12.of which place,ſee on the word, alone,ver.3. a defect of the pronoun,as Neh.9.20. Chap.57.13. but ſupplyed here from ver.13.where it is expreſſed.

by the right hand of Moſes]Heb.at the right hand of Moſes. So the old Latine rendreth it; and moſt Interpreters,both Jewiſh and Chriſtian: In which form of ſpeech, becauſe the right-hand is uſed commonly, in a ſucceſſeful and well-boding notion,and the left,in the contrary, Mat. 25. 30,34,41. Some would have noted the ſure and ſafe paſſage, and journeying of the people under Moſes his conduct: But that ſeems over-curious; and the term of right-hand ſeemes to have, after the phraſe moſt frequent in Scripture, not ſo much a notion of proſperous ſucceſs, (which among heathen people it uſually hath, Ezek.21.21,22.) as of power and ability, the right-hand being generally accounted the ſtronger, and the more active then the left. So Pſal.21.9. & 89. 26,43. Others therefore read it,that lead them,being at Moſes his right-hand, to help and aſſiſt him. So the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 16.8. he is at my right-hand,that I be not moved; and, the Lord at thy right-hand ſhall ſtrike thorow Kings,Pſal.110.5. and the Jewiſh Doctors, ſome of them,ſuppoſe,that there is an eye had in this term, to the ſtaff,that Moſes held in his right-hand,over the red-ſea,at the dividing of it,Exod.14.16,21. The Greek readeth it,that led Moſes by the right-hand;and ſo is God ſaid, to hold by the right-hand thoſe,whom he ſtrengtheneth and ſupporteth, Pſal.63. 8.& 73.23.Chap.45.1. but neither is any inſtance produced of the uſe of the particle here prefixed in that notion: and the form of the ſubſtantive ſhewes, that Moſes is ſubjoyned to it, as governed by it.

with his glorious arm] Heb. his arm of bravery, (as the word is rendred,Chap.3.18.) or gallantry,(See Chap.62.3.) for,his brave,or gallant arm; as, his arm of might, for, his mighty arm, Chap.62.8.and a name of gallantry,for,a gallant name,or fame, ver.14.The particle with,is not in the text: but the want of it is very uſual,as Pſal.17.13,14.& 44.3. Chap.51.19. Now by his arm, Some of the Jewiſh Doctors underſtand the Angell that conducted them,Exod.14.19. moſt of ours,Gods mighty power aſſiſting Moſes, and working by him, whatſoever was done of him,for the ſafety and protection of the people committed unto him; as the word is,in this argument eſpecially, moſt frequently taken,Exod.6.6.& 15.16.Deut.4.34.& 5.15. & 7.19.& 9.29. & 11.2.& 26.8. Pſal.77.16. & 89.11. & 136. 12. And this ſome ſuppoſe the rather added, in regard that the former word ſeemed to have ſome glance at the ſtaff in Moſes his hand,to ſhew that the dividing of the red-ſea,upon holding up of the ſtaff over it,was not effected by any virtue, either in his hand,or in the ſtaff it held;but by the powerfull act of God alone. See Exod.15.21. Howbeit,ſome,for that according to this reading, there are defects in the text; the one, of the pronoun before-mentioned; the other,of the prepoſition here inſerted, ſuppoſe that the text, as it is, without any ſuch ſupplies interjected,may be thus read and rendred; That made his glorious, or gallant arm, to go, or walk at Moſes his right hand; that is, who by his mighty power went along with Moſes,and was ever at hand to be aſſiſtant unto him,according to his promiſe,Exod.3.12.& 33.14. Nor is this reading altogether improbable: the moſt that I ſuppoſe can be objected againſt it,is,that the word of making to walk,or go,may ſeem not to ſuit ſo well with the word arm; and that it is in the next verſe applyed to the people.

dividing the water before them] Or, that divided (for it runneth in the ſame ſtrain with the former,that led) the water (to wit,of the red-ſea before-mentioned,ver.11.) before them: before his people, the Iſraelites, to make a paſſage thorow it for them, Exod.14.21,22. Joſh.3.16. Chap.43.6. So Neh.9.11. Chap.43.12. Some would draw away the former clauſe to this branch,reading the words; That by his glorious arm divided the Sea before them: but this reading croſſeth the ſtops in the originall; which without cauſe to diſturb, or ſolicite, is not meet.

to make himſelf an everlaſting name.] To procure to himſelf, by a work never before the like heard, an everlaſting fame; both in regard of his almighty power therein manifeſted, and of his providence therein appearing over his people: name, for fame,or renown; as Gen.6.4.& 11.4. Jer. 32.20. and, a name of eternity,ſc. perpetuity,for, an everlaſting name ; as Chap. 56. 6. Yet the words are by ſome deemed to import, not ſo much the end, as the event ; not ſo much what God aimed at,in the doing of it,as what from the doing of it, accrued and redounded unto him, as Chap,59.19. Exod. 14. 17. of ſuch forms,ſee on Chap. 3.8.

V. 13. That led them thorow the deep, as an horſe in the Wilderneſſe,that they ſhould not ſtumble.] A further amplification of this ſtrange work. The like whereunto, yea, the very ſame in effect, ſee Pſal.106.9.

led them] Heb. made them to go : the word uſed before, ver. 12.as alſo in the Pſalm.

thorow the deep] Heb.depths,or deeps ; and ſo alſo is it, Pſal. 68.22.& 106.9. implying, that it was not in ſome ſhallow or ſhoaly place,that the people paſſed that Sea, but where it was with the deepeſt. See Exod.15.5,8.

as an horſe] This is not in the Pſalm, but is inſerted here, by the Prophet , for the further amplification of this act of God,in the conduct of them, enlarged alſo further, ver. 14. God is ſaid to make Judah his goodly horſe for battel, Zach. 10. 3. and men are very chary of thoſe choice ones , that they keep for ſuch purpoſe.

in the wilderneſſe] This in the Pſalm ſeems to be referred unto the people , becauſe of an horſe is no mention there made ; and may imply ; that they went as ſafe and as eaſily thorow the ſea,as they had travelled, either before, or afterward, in the Wilderneſſe. But here it is referred unto the horſe : he led them thorow the deepeſt of that ſea, as ſafely and inoffenſively,as a man could lead an horſe,or as an horſe goeth in the wilderneſſe; that is, (ſaith one of the Rabbines, whom ſome other alſo herein concur with) on dry land : the wilderneſſe,for dry land ; becauſe Waſtes,in thoſe parts,are commonly ſuch, Chap.41.18. Jer.17.6. But I conceive rather that the word rendred wilderneſſe,doth here ſignifie a plain, as alſo another of the Jewiſh Doctors here ſuggeſteth: nor is it otherwiſe to be taken,Jer.9.10. Lam.4.19.& 5.9. and that the text would here at leaſt, if not in the Pſalm alſo, be rendred, as an horſe goeth in the plain ; that is , as he goeth on plain ground, where there is neither clod,nor ſtone, nor ruck, nor ridge,without ſtumbling. See ver.14.

that they ſhould not ſtumble] Or, ſo that they ſtumbled not,Jer. 31.9. Heb. they ſhall not ſtumble, or, did not ſtumble. So Pſal. 78.53. he led them ſafely, or, ſecurely ; and they feared not; that is, ſo that they feared not : they were without fear ; but here the particle is omitted, as oft, in the like ſyntax, chap. 40.24. & 41.7. & 43.17. & 58.6. See the promiſe, Pſal.90.12.

V. 14. As a beaſt goeth down into the valley,] In the former part of this verſe, moſt Interpreters conceive to be a full,and formal ſimilitude, conſiſting of two parts, a propoſition, and a reddition, more largely laying forth, what was more conciſely delivered, ver.13. in thoſe words, as an horſe : the former part whereof,they ſuppoſe to be contained in theſe words; which ſome therefore thus read, As a beaſt, that goeth down into the vale is lead ; (ſupplying the relative, as ver. 8. the verb from the words next enſuing ; as Chap.18.7. & 30.17.) that is, gently, and quietly, as an horſe is wont to be led, or beaſt driven, down an hill, not head-long, as thoſe ſwine, whom the Devils drove, Mat.8.32. ſo rather, if we retain this verſion, then, as ſome would have it, eaſily ; for this reaſon, becauſe it is eaſier going down, then it is going up, an hill : and ſome would have an eye herein to be had, to the condition of the Jews own country, which being mountainous,much of it, Pſal.125.2. Luk.1.39. their manner was to drive their cattel down to graze in the vale. Others would have it to allude to their deſcent into the chanel of the red-ſea, from the land, or the ſhore, that muſt of neceſſity, ly far above it ; as before to their aſcent, or, coming up again, from the ſame, on the other ſide, in the word,made to aſcend, ver.11. But I ſuppoſe the word rendred, goeth down, doth here ſignifie no more,then as it alſo doth oft elſewhere, to go on, or to go along : hereof, ſee inſtances enow, Chap.38.8. and ſo the Chaldee , whom ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters follow, ſeemeth here to take it : the words therefore, as I conceive, may be thus rendred ; As a beaſt goeth along in the vale ; or, As a beaſt,that goeth along in the vale ; that is, freely, eaſily, without any let, or impediment ; as a beaſt, whether horſe, or other , (for the former reſemblance is here enlarged) travelleth in the vale, where the way is uſually cleer before it : and thus taking them, that which a learned Writer ſuggeſteth, to me ſeemeth very probable; who anexing this, unto that in the verſe before-going, thus readeth them together ; That led them thorow the deeps, as an horſe in the plain,without ſtumbling ; as a beaſt going down, or, going along in the vale ; ſo conſidered, they make up the former illuſtration ; do not begin any new collation , to be abruptly broken off again, in the very next ſentence. The meaning is, that God did not only divide the ſea , to make way for them thorow it ; (which albeit he had done,and done no more, they might have been ſtifled in the mud, and buried in the ooze, or have tumbled down head-long, in the deſcent, on the one ſide, or never have been able to get up again on the other) but he ſo diſpoſed the matter, that as the water ſtood like ſolid ſtone walls, on either ſide of them, Exod. 15. 8,16. ſo the muddy ſoil, was as firm ground under their feet, Exod.14.22. & 15.19. Neh.9.11. and they had their whole way thorow the ſea ſo fitted for them, that notwithſtanding any ſuch deſcent, or aſcent, or ought elſe,that might obſtruct, or impeach their paſſage, they made it, as eaſily, as if they had gone on plain,and eaven ground all the way : thus did God as their herbinger, level their way for them, Chap. 26. 7. and 40. 4.& 45.2.

the Spirit of the Lord cauſed him to reſt] How theſe words come in here, is by many much queſtioned. Some would have them, to be inſerted, as a parentheſis, between the propoſition, or the former part, and the reddition, or latter part of that ſimilitude, which they ſuppoſe to be in this verſe ; becauſe, ſo, the note of reddition, comes after it : and that for this cauſe inſerted, to prevent, and meet with, a doubt, that might ariſe in ſome mens minds, how it were poſſible that ſuch miraculous matters ſhould be brought about ; which to remove, it is by the way caſt in, that it was the Spirit of God, that did all this, unto whom nothing is either impoſſible, or difficult, Job 42.2. Pſal.115.3. & 135.6. Jer.32.27. Others, among whom, one of the Jewiſh Commenters, would draw this paſſage within the latter part of the ſimilitude , ſuppoſing a trajection in the words, which ſhould thus be diſpoſed, ſo thou leadeſt thy people, and the Spirit of the Lord made them to reſt. But this ſeemeth to make over-bold with the context, And no leſſe wide ſeems that to ſtray from the text , which a reverend Writer of ours hath on it, who knitting theſe words to the former part of it, thus rendreth the context; As a beaſt, which the Spirit of God leadeth, goeth in the valley; to wit, quietly and in ſafety. For howſoever it be true, that Gods providence and protection, reacheth even unto beaſts, Pſal.36.6. and that God, for man, taketh charge of them, and care for them, Gen.8.1. Num.20.8. Yet is there no ſuch thing intended, by the Prophet, in this place. Nor ſeemeth that ſo ſuitable which a late learned Annotator ſuggeſteth, who thus rendreth the words, As a beaſt goeth down into the valley, and the wind of God giveth him reſt ; ſo didſt thou lead thy people ; that is, as the deſcent of a beaſt down a ſteep hill, eſpecially travelling with a burden on his back, is troubleſome and toilſome ; ſo the wind, when he is therewith wearied, giveth him ſome reſt and refreſhing ; ſo leddeſt thou thy people a toilſome journey through the Wilderneſſe, to bring them to reſt in the land of Canaan : And whereas the affix him is maſculine, whereas the word beaſt is feminine; that he ſeeketh to ſalve, by referring it to the word horſe here intended, v. 13. the like whereunto ſome ſuppoſe to be, Gen.4.7. & 13.10. 1 Sam.15.9. But the reſemblance ſeemeth not to come ſo handſomely off ; and howſoever ſome of the Ancients have ſo expounded, The Spirit of God, that is, the wind of God, Gen.1.2. alledging to that purpoſe that, Pſal.147.18. He maketh his wind blow ; yet the verſion ſeemeth harſh, and in neither place convenient. More probable to me ſeemeth the conceit of that learned Writer before-mentioned , who ſuppoſing no ſuch formal ſimilitude, conſiſting of propoſition, and reddition, to be contained in this verſe ; but the former branch to depend upon the verſe before-going, doth make theſe words an entire axiom, neither having any ſuch ſpecial relation to either; nor being any ſuch inſertion between either of thoſe two ſuppoſed parts of a ſimilitude, as thoſe other Authors conceive of them ; but an adjection only to what went before, concerning Gods ſetling his people quietly in the land of promiſe. Of which , more anon.

the Spirit of the Lord] The Word of the Lord, ſaith the Chaldee: whereby ſome conceive to be meant, the ſecond perſon, the Son, Joh.1.1,14. the Angel that went before them, ſay others, ver.9. the Spirit of the Lord, whereof, ver.10,11. the holy Ghoſt , the third perſon, ſay others : God himſelf, ſay the Jewiſh Doctors, and others alſo of ours: the Spirit of the Lord, here, ſay they, as his ſoul, Chap.42.1. for himſelf ; and the Lord himſelf is ſaid to have gone before them, Exod.13.21. Num. 14.14. and to lead them, Neh.9.12. Pſal.77.20. But howſoever the name of Spirit, is given to all the three perſons; to the Father, Joh.4.23,24. to the Son, 2 Cor.3.17. to the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Joh.5.6-8. and the external operations of the deity, are undivided : yet I conceive the diſtinction of perſons to be intimated in ſuch forms as this , and the third perſon to be more peculiarly here implyed.

cauſed him to reſt] Concerning both the notion of the verb here uſed, and of the perſon here pointed to, there is ſome diverſity of opinion , as well among the Jewiſh Criticks, as among our Writers. Some reading the words, as our verſion, He cauſed him to reſt, underſtanding it, of the people hereafter mentioned : whom, ſay they, God gave reſt to from their adverſaries that purſued them, by a ſafe conveyance thorow the Sea, of the one; and the total ſubverſion in the ſame Sea, of the other, Exod.14.26-30. Pſal.78.53.& 106.10,11. Others, rendring them, he led him. So the Chaldee, ſome of the Jewiſh, the ancient Greek, the old Latine, and divers of ours, as well as thoſe that follow it. And among theſe, ſome underſtand it, as the former, of the people; ſo the Greek, who render it therefore in the plural, them; as before, that led them, ver.13. and ſo the ſame ſhould be ſaid here, with that in the next branch. Others, of Moſes, by whom God led them, Pſal.77.20 the Spirit of God, ſay they, led Moſes, and them, by him. See ver. 13. The reaſon of the main ambiguity, is, for that the words of reſting, and leading, are both for letters and ſound of very neer affinity the one with the other; and words of ſuch neighbourneſſe, do oft mutually lend to, and borrow, the one from the other; as by many inſtances might be ſhewed: The analogy of the form, here uſed, pleadeth for the former; the tenour of the context ſeems in the judgment of many learned, to ſpeak for the latter. I conceive it may include a double notion, as ſome other, taking part from two divers roots, are deemed to do. I will point onely at one of them: it is but one word that is rendred, Zach. 10. 6. I will bring them again to place them: and in like manner, I ſuppoſe that this may here be rendred, The Spirit of the Lord leading him, or them, (to wit, his people) cauſed them to reſt, that is, ſo led them, that they travelled quietly, and had places of reſt, by the way: to which purpoſe it is ſaid, Num. 10. 33. that the Ark went before them, (the viſible ſign of Gods ſpecial preſence among them) to ſearch out reſt (that is, a reſting place) for them. Nor do I miſlike what ſome of the Jewiſh Writers here have, to wit, that the Prophet having before ſpoken of their paſſage thorow the Sea, ver. 13. and having done with that, doth here come to ſpeak of Gods conduct of them, after they came out of the Sea, all the way thorow the wilderneſſe, untill they came unto Canaan: to which purpoſe the learned Interpreter before alledged, carrying on the reſt, here intended, to their reſt in that land: whereof ſee Deut.13.9. Pſal.95.11. Chap.14.3. rendreth the words, The Spirit of the Lord brought them to reſt; as if it were ſaid, The Spirit of the Lord led them, (that is, never left leading of them) untill he brought them unto reſt: and this expoſition receiveth ſtrength from that, Jer. 31. 2. where it is ſaid, of thoſe that eſcaped the ſword in the Wilderneſſe, that God went out to make them reſt, that is, to ſettle them in the land of Canaan, where they were to reſt. See the note on the place. I add onely what I further conceive, that the words may well be read, by way of interrogation, as all the former along are; The Spirit of the Lord that brought them to reſt? to wit, Where is he? as before, ver.11. the ſtop in the original favoureth it; nor doth the defect of the relative, in the text, at all hinder it, being a matter ſo rife, as before, ver. 8. So it ſhould be the cloſe of the expoſtulation before-going, debated hitherto, whether by the Prophet with himſelf, or the people with themſelves; not directed yet to God, unto whom, in the next words, the tenour of the diſcourſe turneth.

So didſt thou lead thy people,] Or, Thus didſt thou lead thy people; that it may have reference to the whole former paſſage, not to any particular branch of it alone. See the like concluſion, where the ſpeech is likewiſe directed unto God, when as it ran otherwiſe before, Judg.5.31.

to make thy ſelf a glorious name,] Heb. a name of bravery, or gallantry. See ver. 12. Chap.62.3. and this ſeemes added, as intimating, what honour and renown God might gain to himſelf, by manifeſting his power and providence, in the delivering of them now: though in an humble and modeſt manner, they do not, as yet, expreſly mention it, or directly crave it; yet thereby to induce the Lord to do the like for them, that then he had done; if not for their ſakes, who had deſerved nothing leſs at his hands, yet for his own names ſake, and in regard of that glory, that might thereby accrue unto him. See Pſal.106.8. and 116.1. Chap. 43. 25. and 48. 9. 11.

V. 15. Look down from heaven, and behold from the habitation of thine holineſſe, and of thy glory.] Here, they, or the Prophet, in their perſon, beginneth to fall directly unto prayer, and ſupplication, for favour and mercy; yet mixed with ſome paſſionate, but ſubmiſſive expoſtulation, herein differing from the former, that it is directed unto God himſelf.

Look down from heaven,] Or, Behold from heaven. So Deut.26.15. Pſal.80.14. Lam.3.50. not that God hath not an eye in all places, Prov.15.3. as well on earth, as in heaven, 2 Chron.16.9. nor that he is not preſent, as well here on earth, as in heaven, Jer.23. 25. but becauſe heaven is as his palace, in which he doth in greater glory and ſtate manifeſt himſelf, Pſal.11.4.& 115.3. there his throne is, Pſal.11.4. & 103.19. or that is his throne, Chap.66.1 from which as being high and lofty, Ch. 6.1. (as a King ſitting above others, in his chair of eſtate, 1 King.10.18,19. looketh down upon thoſe, that either ſtand, or ly proſtrate, before, but far beneath him) is God ſaid to look down upon men here on earth, Pſal.14.2.& 33.13.

and behold] Or, ſee; as Chap.37.17. behold, and ſee; as Pſal.80.14. as, ſee, and behold, Lam.1.11. words much of the ſame notion, uſed to expreſſe their earneſt deſire, that God would be pleaſed, not barely to ſee them, or look on them; for nothing is hid from his ſight, Chap.26.17. Job 34. 21, 22. Prov.5.21.& 15.11. Heb.4.13. but to have reſpect, and regard to them, to look with tender pity and compaſſion upon them; and to make it appear, by ſome gracious effect, and deliverance, wrought for them, that he ſo did. So Pſal. 25. 18.& 74. 19.& 84.9.

the habitation of thine holineſſe, and of thy glory.] Or, thine holy, and glorious, or magnificent habitation: A deſcription of heaven; yet in ſuch terms, as are given alſo to the Temple, a type of it. Heb. thine habitation of holineſſe (and ſo Exod.15.13. Deut.26.15. Pſal.68.5. & 136.2. Jer.25.30.) and of thy gallantry, or magnificence; as ver. 15. See Chap. 60. 13,15.

where is thy zeal, and thy ſtrength, the ſounding of thy bowels, & of thy mercies towards me?] A new expoſtulatory complaint, that there ſeemed now not to appear any ſuch affection in God towards his people, or any ſuch ability with him, to do for them, as he had given evident ſigns, and conſpicuous proof of, in times paſt: ſo ver.11.

where is] What is become of them? Where are they to be ſeen? So Pſal.89.49.

thy zeal] Such an ardent affection of love, as cannot endure to ſee the party beloved, to be wronged or moleſted: See Chap.9.7.& 26.11.& 37.32.

thy ſtrength] Heb. powers, or valours: for, exceeding great power, and valour; as Job 41.12. Pſal.71.16. & 90.10. & 147.10. or, for valiant acts, as Deut.3.24. Pſal.145.12. & 150.2. See Jer.14.9.

the ſounding of thy bowels] Some would have it to be, the ſtrutting of thy paps, or breaſts; as if it were a metaphor taken from women that give ſuck, whoſe paps, or breaſts, when they are full of milk, pain them, and they cannot be at reſt, untill they have milked it out, and ſo given themſelves ſome eaſe: but the mention of bowels, whoſe place, the belly is, not the breaſt, admitteth not this trope. Some render it, the multitude of thy bowels: and the word here uſed doth ſometime ſignifie a multitude. See Chap.13.4. & 17.12. & 33.3. and the word bowels, in Greek, is uſed for a tenderneſs of affection, ariſing from pity and commiſeration, Luk.1.78. Phil.1.8. & 2.1. Col.3.12. 1 Joh.3.17. and ſo the meaning ſhould be, multitude of tender compaſſions; and, of multitude of mercies, and tender mercies, is found mention in Scripture, Pſal.51.1.& 69.16. ſee alſo, ver.7. But neither doth the word, here uſed, when it is taken for a multitude, ſignifie any multitude in general; but a multitude of men, or perſons, gathered together, ſo called, not in regard of their number ſo much, as of the noiſe that they are wont to make: Nor is the Hebrew term of bowels, or entrails, here found, any where ſimply ſo uſed, as the Greek is, with whom, the word alſo deduced from it, hath a notion of compaſſion, and commiſeration in it, Mat.9.36. Mar.1.41. Luk.7.13. whereas, in Hebrew, from the word that ſo ſignifies, there is none ſuch: The word therefore is here to be taken, in reference to its firſt and native ſignification, wherein it ſignifieth a noiſe, Amos 5. 23. which hereby appears in that the verb of ſounding, or making a noiſe, from whence the word cometh, is in this notion commonly joyned with the word bowels, Cant. 5. 4. Chap.16.11. in which forms of ſpeech, there is a metaphor taken from thoſe rumblings in the bowels, that ſudden and ſtrong paſſions of this nature do ſometime produce: and it may well be here rendred, yernings; as the like is, 1 King.3.26. where it is ſaid of the mother of the child, which the King bad ſhould be divided; her bowels yerned upon her ſon: though the words there be divers, but in the ſame notion with theſe. It is a reſemblance taken from humane frailty, to help mans ſhallow capacity, attributed to God, as here. So Jer.31.20. Hoſ. 11. 8.

and of thy mercies towards me?] Or, and thy tender mercies. See ver.7. the word, in the ſingular number, ſignifieth properly the womb, Gen.20.18. Exod.13.2. and more generally, the belly, Chap.46.3. where both are put as parallel; and belly, for womb, Pſal.132.11. and ſo uterus, in Latine, uſed of either ſex. Hence, in the plural, it is uſed for bowels; becauſe the belly is the place of them. So of Joſeph it is ſaid, Gen. 43.30. his bowels yerned upon his brother: and of that mother before, the like; in both which places the ſame word is uſed: ſo that this word may well alſo be here rendred, bowels (being of the ſame notion with the former; as womb, and belly, are one, and the ſame, in the place before-mentioned) had we like variety of words, fit to expreſs both by: for the ſenſe of either bowels, or entrails (which in the former member may not do amiſs) ſeems the ſame.

are they reſtrained?] This diſtinction of the text, in our verſion, is ſomewhat diſcrepant from the pointings in the originall, nal; wherein the ſtop, is at the latter word, that ſignifies bowels, and the word rendred toward me, is carried on, and joyned to this laſt. This moſt other, both Tranſlators, and Expoſiters, have obſerved, and therein therefore this our laſt verſion ſeems to go by it ſelf; to reckon up all the various readings, and rendrings, would be too tedious. I will point at ſome few of the principal only; the old Latine giveth it us in the enunciative; they contain, or, reſtrain, themſelves upon me, or, toward me: that which a learned late Writer controling, would rather have it read, they do with violence (like a torrent, Job 6.15. Pſal.126.4. hence ſo called) pour themſelves forth upon me: a metaphor from waters, that having been pent up ſome time, break forth, and run down with more violence, when the floud-gates are ſet open: but this is directly contrary to the main drift of the whole paſſage; and the Geneva verſion therefore coming neerer home to the Latine, they are reſtrained from me: wherewith thoſe alſo do, in ſenſe and ſubſtance, concur, who read them interrogatively apart by themſelves; and render them, as doth the Italian, Do they reſtrain themſelves towards me? Nor do they much differ in regard of the ſenſe of the place, who bring this laſt branch, within compaſs of the foregoing interrogation, which the leſſer ſtops hinder not; either renewing the interrogation, at the mention of mercies; becauſe no conjunction cometh between that, and the former: and reading it, (which divers do) the yerning of thy bowels, and thy mercies, are they reſtrained? or, as others, ſhould they reſtrain themſelves, towards us? or, carrying on the whole, in a continued tenour to the end of the verſe, as our ancienter Engliſh Verſions, and ſome other do; How is it, that thy jealouſie, thy ſtrength, the multitude of thy mercy and loving kindneſs, will not be intreated of us? But theſe do not ſo fitly, and exactly expreſſe the notion of the word here uſed: the word is in a reciprocal form, and ſignifies properly, to contain, or, in a manner, to enforce ones ſelf, that is, by force, to reſtrain, and keep in, from expreſſing, and maniſeſting it ſelf, ſome inward affection, that is hard to conceal, and would be breaking out. So of Joſeph it is ſaid, when his bowels yerned upon his Brother Benjamin; he made haſte to withdraw, and having wept a while in private, (for he could not wholly forbear) he waſhed his face, and coming out again, he refrained, or, reſtrained, himſelf, Gen. 43. 30,31. and again, Gen.45.1. Joſeph could no longer refrain himſelf; it is applyed unto God, Chap.42.14. & 64.12. I concur therefore with thoſe, that adjoyn theſe words to the latter part of the interrogative, reading them, either with a learned late Writer, Where is the yerning of thine entrails, and thy bowels, (ſo I conceive it to be moſt fitly rendred) which reſtrain themſelves towards me? (the relative ſupplyed, as ver.8.) or rather, with the Greek, which inſtead of the relative, ſupplyeth the particle, that, (as the like is, ver.13.) Where is the yerning of thine entrails, and thy bowels, (what is become of them?) that they (to wit, thy entrails, or bowels) do reſtrain themſelves towards me? that they keep themſelves in, as ſhut up, under forcible reſtraint, and do not break out into tender pity, and compaſſion towards me, in this my preſent doleful, and diſtreſſed condition? it is that which John ſaith, If a man ſee his brother in want, and ſhut, or cloſe up, his bowels from him, 1 Joh.3.17. or, if any ſhall deem it better, to ſever them from that branch, and take them apart by themſelves, I ſhould chooſe to render them in a potential notion; can they contain themſelves at us? or, towards us? as if they had ſaid, how is it poſſible, that ſuch compaſſionate bowels, as thou aboundeſt with, beyond the reach of mans thought, ſhould be able to contain themſelves from yerning upon me, at the ſight, and conſideration of my preſent condition? the potential uſe of theſe forms is frequent. See Num.23.8,10,21. Chap. 38. 18. the like expoſtulatory complaint of the ſuſpenſe, or, reſtraint, of Gods mercies, ſee Pſal.77.7-9. Chap.64.12.

V. 16. Doubtleſſe, thou art our Father;] To move God the rather to compaſſion towards them; and to intimate why they expect it from him, and may ſeem not without ſome good ground, to complain of the reſtraint of it, they mind God of the relations between him and them. So Chap.64.8.

Doubtleſſe] Or, Certainly. So is the particle uſed, Chap. 49.18. & 60.9. Yet it is here by ſome rendred, For; as chap. 28.27. and it may be read, Since that, as ſome render it: or, Yet; or, Howbeit: as Job 5.7. Chap.9.1. and 31.4. and 49.25.

thou art our Father] Deut.32.6. Mal.2.10. Mat.6.9. and a father cannot but be compaſſionately affected towards his children, Pſal.103.13. Mal.3.17. Mat.6.26,32. & 7.9-11. Luk. 11.11. & 15.17,18,20. or, thou art he, upon whom alone we depend, as upon our Father, for ſupport and relief. See Mat.23.9.

though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Iſrael acknowledge us not] Or, for (as Pſal.12.1.) Abraham knoweth us not; nor doth Iſrael ken us: he is alike ignorant of us: for it is but the ſame notion, in divers terms, as is very frequent with this Prophet; and ſo the latter word is commonly uſed; as Gen. 27.23. Ruth 3.14. 1 King.20.41. As for Abraham, and Jacob, they were our fathers indeed; but we are now out of their cogniſance: and it were in vain for us to expect ought from them, who being departed hence, are ſtrangers to the affairs of this world, and altogether unacquainted (for ought we know) with our preſent condition. So the Jewiſh Commenters themſelves, on this place; Abraham, ſaith one, knew us not, when we were afflicted in Egypt: nor did Iſrael know us, when we wandred in the wilderneſs; for they were long before taken out of the world. And another of them; fathers of fleſh and bloud, may know their children, and their childrens children, ſo long as they live: but Abraham, and Iſrael, were dead many ages agone; but thou alone art our living, and laſting Father: and thou doſt, thorow all ages, continue ſo to be; and we have no father here to ſeek to, beſides thee. See Job 14.21. 2 King.22.20. and this exactly goeth with the Hebrew. Yet ſome would have the meaning to be, that they were grown ſo degenerate, that neither Abraham, nor Iſrael, were they alive again, would own them. See Joh.8.39,40. Rom.9.6,7. And others, that though Abraham, and Iſrael, ſhould refuſe to own them, yet would not God ceaſe to be their Father; as Pſal.27.10.

Abraham, and Iſrael] Theſe two he mentioneth, ſay the Jewiſh Doctors; becauſe the one was the firſt of the three chief Patriarks, and the covenant was by God, with him plighted, for himſelf, and his ſeed, to be God to him, and them, Gen. 17.7. the other, becauſe he was the laſt of them; and his whole iſſue taken into the covenant: whereas Iſaacs whole ſeed was not. See Chap.43.1, & 44.1.

thou, O Lord, art our Father] Or, as ſome, yet (ſupplyed, as Chap.49.4. & 57.10.) thou art our Father; or, but (ſupplyed, as Chap.54.15.) thou art our Father; thou continueſt ſo to be; as Dan.1.21.

our Redeemer, thy name is from eternity.] Thou art both our Father, and our Redeemer, Chap.44.24. See Deut. 32.6. or, becauſe of the ſtop, at our father, in the text, as ſome read it, our Redeemer is from of old thy name; thou haſt thorow all ages from time to time, been called, and accounted, the righter, and reſcuer of us thy people, Pſal.90.1. See Chap.47.4.

V. 17. O Lord, why haſt thou made us to erre from thy wayes? and hardened our heart from thy fear?] Why haſt thou given us up to a ſpirit of errour, and obſtinacy, by denying unto us the conduct, and guidance of thy good Spirit, ver.11. and leaving us to be led away by our own corrupt, and perverſe luſts, Pſal. 81.12. Rom.1.26,28. and ſo it may ſeem to have reference unto that dreadful and direful doom, by God, paſſed upon this people, Chap.6.9,10. or, why ſhouldeſt thou, by ſuffering us to lye under ſuch heavy preſſures, for ſo long a time together, in the hands of cruel oppreſſors, give this people occaſion to leave thy law, and, in a deſperate obſtinacy, caſting off thy ſervice, to betake themſelves to wicked and heatheniſh wayes. See Pſal.125.3. Whether way of the two we take, I ſupppoſe it to be by the Prophet conceived, not as ſome would have it, in the perſon of the profane, and worſe ſort among them, murmuring againſt God, and imputing to him, the cauſe of all their miſcarriages; but in the perſon of the pious, and better party, lamenting, that God had, (though juſtly) thus given up his people unto errour, and obſtinacy; and as amazed to conſider, that God their Father, who had formerly been ſo gracious to them, and chary of them, ſhould now inflict on them, ſo heavy a judgment, as to withdraw himſelf from them, and to leave them thus to themſelves; and bewailing the horrid effect, and event, that it either already had, or was like to have, with many, who were, or would be, thereby induced to withdraw themſelves from God, and betake themſelves to heatheniſh ſuperſtitions, and the ſervice of other gods: and this latter, with a learned Writer, I encline to, as conceiving it to be the genuine ſenſe of the text.

made us to erre] Or, wander. So Abraham of himſelf, when God cauſed me to wander, Gen.20.13. But I ſuppoſe, if we follow the former ſenſe, it would rather here be rendred; why haſt thou permitted, or ſuffered, us; or, as ſome, doſt thou permit, or ſuffer us, to wander from, or, out of, thy wayes? for in this notion, not of impulſion, but of permiſſion, is this form frequently uſed, and ſometime rendred. So Prov.10.3. The Lord will not ſuffer the ſoul of the righteous to famiſh: and, Thou ſhalt not ſuffer a witch to live, Exod.22.18. & Pſal.37.33. The Lord will not condemn (that is, ſuffer him to be condemned, but cauſe him to be cleered, ver.4. Pſal.109.21.) when he is judged; as alſo, Pſal.119.10. let me not wander, or, ſuffer me not to ſtray, (the very ſame word that is here uſed) from thy commandements; or, according to the latter reading, Why ſhouldeſt thou cauſe us to wander from thy wayes? why ſhouldſt thou give this people any occaſion, which their wicked hearts are over-prone to take, ſo to do; as if thou hadſt put them thereupon. So it ſhould be, not unlike that ſpeech of David, 1 Sam.26.19. by driving me from abode in the Lords inheritance, they ſay, Go ſerve other gods: as if they ſhould ſay, What gain will there, or can there, accrue unto thee, by keeping us ſo long, in this forlorn condition, (as they reaſon, Pſal.30.9. & 44.12.) eſpecially, by the revolt of many of thy people from thee, a thing likely thereupon to enſue?

and hardened our heart from thy fear] Or, why haſt thou hardened our hearts, (for the word heart, is here collective, as Pſal.119.70.) hardened our hearts; as it is ſaid of Pharao, delivered up, by God, unto the hardneſs of his own obſtinate heart, by Gods forbearance, and mercies, yet further obdurated, Exod.7.3,8,15,19,32. & 9.7,12,34,35. & 10. 1,20,27. & 11.10. & 14.4,8. But ſo the word here uſed, is no where found, ſave here, and Job 39.16. where it is ſaid of the eſtrich, that ſhe hardeneth her ſelf againſt her young ones, as if they were not hers: from thy fear; that we ſhould not fear thee: for that is the conſtant notion of this form; as Pſal.69.23. from ſeeing, for, that they may not ſee: from ſpeaking, for, that one may not ſpeak, 1 Sam.25.17. from houſe, ſo that no houſe is left, Chap. 23.1. from entrance, ſo as none can enter, Chap.24.15. thy fear, for, the fear of thee; as Pſal.5.7. and as, his knowledge, for, the knowledge of him, Chap.53.11. not, as the ſubject, but as the object of either: or, why ſhouldeſt thou harden our hearts from thy fear? that is, from thy ſervice. So as we ſhould not ſerve thee, but leaving thee and thy ſervice, go after ſtrange gods; as they, Jer.44.16,17. for ſo is the word, fear, very frequently uſed in Scripture. See 2 King.17.25-28,32,33,35,36,40, 41. Chap.29.13.

Return for thy ſervants ſake, the tribes of thine inheritance.] Or, unto the tribes of thine inheritance: as Moſes at the ſtay of the Ark, Return, O Lord, unto the many thouſands of Iſrael; a defect of the particle, as 1 King.3.15. Chap.52.4.

Return] Turn from thy wrath, and return in mercy, and favour; be reconciled again to thy people: as Pſal. 80.14. & 90. 13.

for thy Servants ſake] For Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacobs ſake, unto whom thou madeſt thy promiſes, Gen.22.17,18. & 26.3, 24. & 28.13,14. Pſal.105.9,10. in regard whereof, thou haſt thy ſelf profeſſed to have ſelected us, and to affect us, Deut.7. 6-8. So Moſes, Exod.32.13. for theſe, though not excluding other their religious, and pious progenitors, as David among the reſt, of whom mention is alſo made in the like kind, Pſal. 132.1. Chap.37.35. or, for thoſe few, thy faithful ones, that remain yet among us. See Chap.65.8. but here rather, the former.

the tribes] This ſome, by way of appoſition, joyn to the words before-going, thy ſervants, expounding it of thoſe, their anceſtors, who were, ſay they, as rods, (ſo the word in its native notion ſignifies) out of which theſe people, as ſprigs did ſprout. But I conceive it rather to be meant, as before was ſaid, of the people themſelves, who were divided into tribes, and according to their tribes, had the land of promiſe divided among them, Num.34.13-15. Pſal.78.55. of thoſe, not for whom, but unto whom, God is entreated here to return.

thine inheritance] As well the land it ſelf, (which ſeemeth here intended, by what followeth, ver.18.) as the people are called Gods inheritance; and the rod of Gods inheritance; becauſe lands of inheritance, upon diſtribution, among coparceners, were oft-times meted out by the rod, Pſal.74.2. & 78. 71. & 79.1. & 94.5. Chap.19.25. So rather, then as ſome, both of the Jews, and others, that render the word here rods, and expound it, Rulers: as relating to that, Chap.43.28. and this therefore they plead unto God, as intimating, that it might be deemed a diſhonour unto him, not to regard his own inheritance, (whether the men, or the land) but to ſuffer it ſo to be trampled on, and ſuch waſte to be made of it, Jer.50.11. Joel 2.17. & 3.2.

V. 18. The people of thine holineſſe have poſſeſſed it but a little while] Or, Thine holy people (Exod.19.6. Deut.7.6. Heb. thy people of holineſſe: as, thy mountain of holineſſe, Chap.56.7. and, thy cities of holineſs, Chap.64.10.) have held it but a little while; the pronoun it, is not in the text, but to be ſupplyed; as Chap.46.11. & 57.8. and hath reference to inheritance, verſ. 17. that is, the land of promiſe, as moſt here take it. Where queſtion is moved, how it ſhould be ſaid, that Gods people had poſſeſſed their land, but a little while, when as they had held it for ſo many hundred yeers. Whereunto ſome anſwer, that it is ſaid, a little while; becauſe a long time ſeemeth but little, when it is once paſt, in that eſtate, and thoſe things eſpecially, that men deſire longer to enjoy, Job 9.25,26. Pſal.90. 4. Others, a little while, in regard of Gods promiſe, that they ſhould poſſeſs it for ever, Gen.17.8. & 26.3. & 28.13. Exod.32.13. which promiſe yet had a condition alwayes implyed in it, and is expreſly mentioned, 2 Chr. 33.8. See Jer. 18.9,10. and theſe anſwers are the moſt probable, the words being thus rendred. For ſome take in the word, Sanctuary; So the ancient Greek, joyning this branch to the former verſe; Return to the tribes of thine inheritance, that thy people may poſſeſſe thy Sanctuary a little longer. But this the words will not well bear. Others reading this whole verſe, thus; Thine holy people but a while poſſeſſed thy Sanctuary, which our enemies trample on: and here one of the Jewiſh accountants, helpeth them a little, that go this way, which he ſeems alſo ſomewhat to encline to, obſerving on the place, that the Temple ſtood but 420 yeers: whereas from the promiſe made of the poſſeſſion of the land, to their deliverance out of Egypt, was above 430. yeers, Gen.15.13. Exod.12.41. and from their deliverance out of Egypt, or, (as they uſe to ſpeak) from the Lamb, or, the Law, to the Temple, 480. yeers, 1 King. 6.1. but one of ours rather would have it ſo ſaid; becauſe they had ſlighted it, and made little good uſe of it, and might well be ſaid therefore but a little while to have poſſeſſed it. But this ſeemeth to be over-much ſtrained; beſides, that it maketh a needleſs trajection of the terms in the text. Others therefore underſtand it of the adverſaries of Gods people; one reading the words, They have almoſt poſſeſſed themſelves of thy people. Another, For a little ſpace of time, have they poſſeſſed thy people, and trampled upon thy Sanctuary; that is, for three yeer and an half, under Antiochus, Dan. 12. 7,11,12. But the former cometh ſhort of the Prophets purpoſe; the latter directly croſſeth his drift: a fond thing to imagine, that the people of God ſhould complain, that their enemies had been but a while poſſeſſed of them. The old Latine readeth it, As a thing of nought have they poſſeſſed thine holy people; that is, as thoſe that follow it, they poſſeſs, and uſe thy people, as ſome ſorry thing of no account. See ver.19. & Lam.1.11,17. & 3. 45. and the common uſe of the word may ſeem to winde it ſomewhat this way; for it is uſed ſometime for little, whereof Zoar was ſo termed, Gen.19.20,22. ſometime, for the younger, as in Latine, the leſſe: and as great, for, elder, Gen.25.23. ſometime, for, a ſmall company, 2 Chr. 24. 24. ſometime, for one of ſmall account, or, reckoning, Pſal.119.141. Mic.5.2. See Chap.60.22. but of time, or ſhortneſſe of time, I no where find it uſed. And I deem therefore this reading not improbable; the rather, becauſe the particle prefixed, hath ofttimes the like uſe; as Gen.16.3. when it is ſaid, that Sarah gave Hagar unto Abraham, not to be his wife, (as it is amiſſe rendred) but, to be as his wife. And I ſhould much rather encline to it, then to that, which yet ſome of prime note hold out, Even unto the leaſt do they as by right of inheritance poſſeſſe thine holy people. But this I leave to the judgment of others, hinting only mine own diſſent.

our adverſaries have troden down thy Sanctuary] Or, tread down, or, trample upon, thy Sanctuary; that is, as ſome, thine holy land: whereunto the name of Sanctuary, is ſometime given, Exod.15.17. Pſal.78.54. Jer.12.10. See Chap. 43.28. or, as others, rather, thine holy houſe, thy Temple, thy Palace, where thou hadſt wont to appear to thy people; and where thy people had wont to worſhip thee, Chap.64.11. Pſal. 74.3, 7. Lam.1.10.

V. 19. We are thine; thou never bareſt rule over them; they were not called by thy name] That is, We are yet ſtill thy people, ver.18. thy ſervants, thy ſubjects, ſo called, and ſo accounted, and ſuch as do call upon thee, Chap.48.1,2. & ver.8. that which theſe people, our enemies, ver.18. never were, never did, Chap.65.1. Jer.10.25. or, We have been thy people of old. So the Chaldee, and one of the Jewiſh Doctors, on the place, and ſome other; We are thoſe, whom thou haſt long ſince taken to thy ſelf, to be thy peculiar people, Ver.19. Exod. 19. 5,6. Deut.7.6,7. that which they never were, Amos 3.2. But the word, thine, is not in the text; and at we are, or, we have been, there is a ſtop. The ancient Greek, and the old Latine, therefore, whom divers others, even of ours, follow, read the words, thus; We have been, or, are, as from the beginning, when thou didſt not rule over us, nor was thy name called upon us; that is, before the deliverance out of Egypt, ſay ſome, or, (becauſe that ſeems not ſo to be. See Exod.3.7. & 4.12.) before Abrahams time, ſay others, Joſh.24.2,3. We are no more regarded, nor looked after by thee, then before thou tookeſt us to be thy people: the note of ſimilitude is ſupplyed; as Chap. 62.5. the particle of time; as Chap. 48. 13, 21. Divers of ours, whom I concur, We are become, as thoſe, whom thou didſt never bear rule over, nor were ever called by thy name: or, as I conceive, more exactly to the terms of the text; We are, as if we were thoſe, whom from of old, thou hadſt not ruled over, nor had thy name been called upon. We are in that deſpicable condition, ſo vilely uſed, and baſely dealt with, as if we were none of thy people, much leſſe ſuch as have been ſo long time thy ſubjects, living under thy protection, and whom thou haſt been pleaſed from time to time, to own as thine. See Chap. 26.13. and ver.18. as if we were thoſe (the like ſupply, ſee Job 39.16. ſhe carrieth her ſelf hardly towards her young ones, as if they were not hers) whom from old (as ver.16.) thou hadſt not ruled over, or, thou hadſt never (as Chap. 64.4.) ruled over; (Heb. ruled over them; the demonſtrative, for the relative: as Chap.42.1. & 46.4. or, a defect of the relative; as verſ. 8. and a redundancy of the demonſtrative: as Jer.1.2.) nor had thy name been called upon. So the Hebrew; ones name is, in Scripture, ſaid to be called upon thoſe, that bear his name, or are called by his name, as having relation to him, in ſome kind, or other, as their Superiour, and one that hath ſpeciall intereſt in them, and power over them. So Children are ſaid to have their fathers name called on them, Gen. 48. 14. the wife her husbands, Chap. 4. 1. the ſubjects, and ſervants, their Soveraign Lords, and their Maſters. So here. See Jer. 14. 9. Dan. 9. 19. So Deut. 28. 10. 2 Chron. 7. 14. Chap. 48. 1. & 43. 7.

CHAP. LXIV.

Verſ. 1. O That thou wouldeſt rent the heavens, that thou wouldeſt come down;] That this Chapter runneth on in one tenour, with the latter part of the former, is not doubted. But here appeareth plainly, what was formerly obſerved (ſee Chap. 58. 3.) that the Maſorets, or who ever they were, that divided the books of Scripture, into Chapter, and Verſe, did not ſometime exactly diſtinguiſh either: For theſe words, together with thoſe, that make up the firſt verſe of this Chapter with us, are in the Hebrew copies, caſt into the laſt verſe of the Chapter foregoing, and ſo cloſe up that Chapter; and this Chapter is made to begin at our ſecond verſe, which hath a manifeſt dependance upon this, whereas this hath no ſuch coherence with that, which by them it is annexed unto. So that this Chapter, according to the diviſion of the Greek, and Latine verſions, as we have them now divided, and of our Engliſh ones likewiſe, beginneth in the middle of a verſe, according to the diſtinctions in the Hebrew, and that with better ground, if we regard the courſe of the context, as any intelligent reader may eaſily diſcern. Yet this to ſalve, the Chaldee thus rendreth this paſſage; not, as a learned man relateth him, Didſt not thou rent the heavens for us? but, as if the word were not lu, but lo, Thou haſt not rent the heavens for them; to wit, for thoſe, over whom thou didſt not rule, nor were called by thy name, Chap. 65. 19. whereunto one of the Jewiſh Commenters treading in his ſteps, addeth, As thou didſt ſometime for us. But herein the other Jewiſh Maſters diſſent from him, and agreeing with us, refer us, for the ſignification of the particle to Pſal. 81. 13. which Writers do now generally accord in: Onely ſome of them render it in the time paſt, O that thou hadſt rent the heavens, and come down; when Nebuchadnezzar was about the ſtorming of our city; as thou didſt, when thou cameſt to deliver thy people from Pharao's purſuit of them, Exod. 14. 24. Pſal. 77. 16-18. and as thou didſt againſt Sennacheribs Forces, when they lay before Jeruſalem, Chap. 30. 30. & 37. 36. But the moſt, as our Verſions, in the preſent, or future, for notion, if not for form, O that thou wouldeſt (beholding how baſely thine holy people are dealt with, and how horribly thy glorious courts and palace, are profaned and polluted, and in deſpight of thee, trampled and troden upon, Chap. 62. 19. and taking to heart ſuch inſolencies & indignities, offered to thy ſacred majeſty) no longer forbear, but rent the heavens, and come down; that is, come down in furious and violent manner; as if thou didſt rent the heavens, and all aſunder before thee, to deſtroy thine adverſaries, and deliver thy people. See Pſal. 18. 9-16.

that the mountains may flow down at thy preſence?] Or, that they might run down, or melt. See on ver. 2, 3.

V. 2. As when the melting fire burneth, the fire cauſeth the waters to boil,] That theſe words belong to the former verſe, as intimating in what manner the mountains would melt, or run down, if God in ſuch manner ſhould appear, and are amiſs therefore disjoyned from them, Writers of the beſt note obſerve and acknowledge. Some ſuppoſe them, to contain two diſtinct ſimilitudes; the former, taken from the melting of metals; the other, from the boiling of water in a caldron, or kettle. Others, but one onely, and that this latter. To paſſe by the great variety of improbable Verſions, and pitch on thoſe onely, that carry ſome probability with them. Some of thoſe that make them two, thus read the words; As when the fire of burnings melteth, or, as when the fire burneth the meltings; that is, the things melted: for the verb is taken ſometime actively; as Chap. 50. 11. Jer. 17. 4. ſometime paſſively; as Deut. 32. 22. Jer. 15. 14. and ſo the meaning ſhould be, the mountains ſhould run down with fire, as the metall that runneth by the force of the fire that melteth it; and, as the fire (whether falling into the water, as ſome, or kindled under it, as others) doth cauſe it to boil, or to ſwell, and to riſe up in bubbles: whence thoſe ſwelling blains, or bliſters, Exod. 9. 9, 10. have their name. See on Chap. 21. 12. & 30. 13. as if it were ſaid, that it might be with the mountains, as with water boiling in a pot, which the fire underneath it, makes to work and ſwell, and riſe up in bubbles; as Job 41. 31. of thoſe that conceive but one reſemblance alone, ſome read them; As when the fire burneth the dry ſtubble, or the ſpray, the fire (that is, it, the noun for the pronoun; as Chap. 37. 14. 2 Tim. 1. 18.) maketh the water to boil, or bubble. Others, As when a melting fire, or, a vehement fire burneth, the fire (that is, ſuch a fire) maketh the water to boil. Which way ſoever of all theſe we take it, the meaning will be very neer the ſame; that upon Gods, ſo deſcending, as is here deſired, and in ſuch manner manifeſting himſelf, the mountains may be ſtrangely wrought upon, and made to work, as hard, and as rocky as they are, like water boiling amain over ſome extream forcible fire. Some, following the Chaldee Paraphraſt, would have it an alluſion to the fire, that upon Elias his prayer, falling from heaven, conſumed not the ſacrifice onely, but the ſtones alſo that the altar was built with, and the water in the trench about it, 1 King. 18. 38. but it is by others, deemed rather to have reſpect onely to the force of fire in this kind, upon water in general; Whereunto may be added, that ſulphury mines (of which more anon) being kindled under ground, neer to ſtreams of water, or to the ſea ſide, do ſometime make thoſe ſtreams to boyl up in ſtrange manner; yea, to make the ſea it ſelf, to boyl like a caldron, as not long ſince, at one of the Weſtern Iſlands, where the fiſh died therewith in great abundance; and an Iſland of ſome good bigneſs, ſhot up out of the ſea, at a great depth, whereinto afterward it ſunk again. The ſimilitude is not amiſs, by ſome deemed to hold, eſpecially, in the large quantity of ſteem, or vapours, that a pot, ſo working, is wont to ſend up: That which may help to back the opinion of thoſe, who ſuppoſe the caſe of Mount Sinai, when God appeared in fire on it, to be here, at leaſt, glanced at, as it is commonly ſuppoſed to be intended, ver. 3. at which time it is ſaid of it, that the ſmoke of it aſcended, as the ſmoke of a furnace, Exod. 19. 18.

As when] Of the uſe of the note of ſimilitude, including the particle of time. See on Chap. 17. 5.

the melting fire] The word here uſed, is no where elſe found; whence divers opinions of it; a Jewiſh Critick ſaith it ſignifies, dry ſtubble: ſome of ours render it, ſpray, ſuch as is commonly put under pots to make them ſeeth, Pſal. 58. 9. Chap. 27. 11. Eccl. 7. 6. But neither give they any reaſon why the word ſhould ſo ſignifie, or any inſtance of ſuch uſe of it. A learned Writer would have it deduced from a Syriack word, ſaid to have a notion of boldneſſe, and to ſignifie, a vehement fire: The moſt take it to be, word for word, a fire of liquefactions, diſſolutions, or meltings; ſuppoſing the root from whence it cometh, as it hath, for letters and ſound, neer affinity with the word that ſignifieth to melt, ſo to be of the ſelf-ſame notion with it; with whom I concur, as conceiving it to ſuit very well, with what both that learned man, and the Jewiſh Doctors ſay of it, to wit, that it importeth, as he, a vehement; as they, a great, or ſtrong fire: not like that of ſtubble, or ſpray; but of ſome more ſolid matter, ſuch as is able to melt and diſſolve metals, ſtones, rocks, or any other materials that it meeteth with, Job 28. 2. Howbeit, a late learned Annotator, would have it, from the Arabick, to ſignifie, a gentle fire, ſuch as makes no great noiſe; and the meaning to be, as a gentle or ſoft fire is enough to make water boyl; ſo thy very name made known to thine adverſaries, will be ſufficient to affright them. See Pſal. 68. 1, 2. But this I leave unto the judgment of others.

to make thy name known to thine adverſaries,] That thine adverſaries may ſee and take notice of thy power: name, for, might, power, majeſty, and the like; as 1 King. 8. 42, 43. Pſal. 106. 8.

that the nations may tremble at thy preſence.] Heb. the nations will tremble at thy preſence: but there is a defect of the particle that; as Chap. 63. 13. See Exod. 15. 14-16.

V. 3. When thou didſt terrible things which we looked not for;] Or, As when, &c. carrying on the ſentence: the note of ſimilitude ſupplied, as ch. 62. 5. See v. 2. Oh that thou wouldeſt do now ſuch dreadful things, as, in times paſt, thou didſt for our fore-fathers; and that then, when they little looked for any ſuch matters.

thou didſt terrible things] In the behalf of thy people, both while they were yet in Egypt, and afterward alſo in the Wilderneſſe, Pſal. 78. 12, 13, 43-53. & 105. 27-36. & 106. 9-11. Neh. 9. 9-11.

which] The relative ſupplyed; as Chap. 63. 8.

we looked not for] we, that is, our fore-fathers, with whom, we are as one race, as one body. So Jer. 2. 6, 7. Mic. 6. 4. This is the rather inſerted, to ſtrengthen their faith, and to encourage them to ſeek unto God, for the like terrible things now to be done for them; conſidering, that God had been pleaſed, in times paſt, to do ſuch things for thoſe, who then expected them not. See Pſal. 65. 5.

thou cameſt down] To deliver thy people, and to deſtroy their oppreſſours, Exod. 3. 8. a metaphor taken from the practice of ſome great Prince or Potentate, that ſhould come down, in ſtate, from his Palace, to hear the ſuits of poor ſuppliants, and to ſee juſtice done for them, upon ſuch as had wronged them. So ver. 1.

the mountains flowed down at thy preſence.] Or, ſo that (ſupplied, as ver.1.) the mountains melted at thy preſence. Theſe words have, queſtionleſs, reference to ſome particular ſtory of things, formerly paſt and done. And it is by moſt Interpreters deemed, that there is in them a ſpeciall reſpect unto Gods glorious appearance on the top of Mount Sinai, at the giving of the Law; at which time, ſay ſome of the Rabbines upon this place, the thick cloud wherein God appeared, and out of which he ſpake, and from which thoſe fearfull thunder-claps, and flaſhes of lightning proceeded, Exod.19.16,18,20. & 18.20,21. did withall pour down ſuch ſhowrs of rain, as in ſuch caſe is wont to be, that the mountains all about, not Sinai alone, but mount Paran, Hab.3.3. Mount Seir, Deut.2.5. and others, did run down with ſtreams of water. And we find indeed ſomewhat the like to have been at the paſſage of Gods people thorow the red-ſea, and the ſubmerſion of Pharao and his forces, that purſued them, Judg.5.4. Pſal.68.8,9. & 77.17. but of any ſuch ſhowres that ſhould be at the time of the giving the Law, I read not: Nor ſeemes is very probable, if any ſuch were, that they ſhould reach ſo far, as to Mount-Paran, and to Mount-Seir, much leſs, ſo far diſtant from Sinai. But I ſuppoſe the word rendred, flowed down, as deemed to come from one commonly uſed of water, Job 36.28. Pſal.147.18. Jer.9.18. would, in this place, at leaſt, be rendred, ran down, or melted, as in the like argument, where that word is queſtionleſs uſed, it is rendred, The mountains melted at his preſence, Judg.5.5. And as the Pſalmiſt, though uſing another word there, The mountains melted like wax, at the preſence of the Lord, Pſal. 97.5. Here ſo the rather, if not in regard of the foregoing reſemblance of the melting of metals, ver. 2. becauſe that is by ſome queſtioned; and the word is here in ſomewhat another form, then that in the other place, ſo rendred: yet for that it is by a Jewiſh Critick conceived to come from a root, that ſignifies, as by melting to waſte, whence a rioter is ſo termed, Deut.21.20. Prov.23.21. becauſe by riotous courſes, he melteth, and waſteth away his means. And though it ſhould not be denied, but that the words might have an eye to that dreadful ſight on Sinai; yet rather with reference to the fire, and the flaſhings of it, then to any water, or flouds thereof, that ſhould at that time be ſeen. And it may well be deemed, that there is withall ſome alluſion, to the uſuall manner of thoſe burning hils, ſuch as Etna in Sicily, Soma in Italy, Hecla, and Hegla in Iſeland, which breaking out, are wont to run down with ſtreams of fire, and ſulphury matter, in the ſeas beſide them, and valleys beneath them. Nor is it unlikely, but that, as in thoſe Egyptian tempeſts, it is ſaid, that the fire ran along upon the ground, Exod.9.13. ſo in that terrible apparition, the mountain which was all on a flame, Deut. 4. 11. did run down with fire, as if it had been melted and diſſolved therewith; as it is ſaid, that in the generall execution of GODS vengeance upon his enemies, the mountains ſhould be melted with their bloud; that is, they ſhould run down with ſuch ſtreams of bloud, as if they were melted therewith, or diſſolved thereinto, Chap.34.3. Nor is it needfull, becauſe mention is made of mountains; that therefore we ſhould have recourſe unto thoſe more remote ones. There ſeemeth to have been a cluſter, or combination of mountains in that place, the two principall and higheſt whereof being Sinai, and Horeb, and they joyning much and neer together, the place in the Mount, on which God ſo appeared, is ſometime called Mount-Horeb, Exod.3.1. & 33.6. Deut.4.10,15. & 5.2. ſometime Mount-Sinai, Exod. 19.11,18,20,23. of Sion, and Moriah, ſee ſomewhat the like, on Chap.2.2. & 14.13. Howbeit, in regard that that apparition on Mount Sinai was not intended ſo much for a terrour unto Gods enemies, as to ſtrike a reverent aw, and dread of his Majeſty, into his own people, Exod.20.19,20. Deut.5.29. I conceive the words here to have reſpect, not unto that alone, but unto other Gods majeſtical manifeſtations of himſelf in dreadfull manner about thoſe times, for the preſervation of his people, and in way of oppoſition to their adverſaries, and unto that more ſpecially before-mentioned, when Pharao purſued them, being then neer the brink of the red ſea, having gotten them, as he thought there, in a trap, Exod. 14.3. at Piharoth, that is, at the mouth of the mountains (ſo the word ſignifies) between the jaws whereof they ſeemed to be ſhut up, no way left to eſcape, but by ruſhing into the Sea, wherein they muſt of neceſſity periſh, Exod, 14.3,9. and the mountains here mentioned, may well be thoſe among others, between which they paſſed, neighbouring ſo neer upon that place, where that admirable deliverance was wrought, for Gods people, with ſo remarkable a deſtruction of their inſolent adverſaries. See Habb. 3.3-15. I ſhall propound but one conjecture more, which I ſhall leave to the conſideration of the learned. I obſerve that an Interpreter, of ſpeciall note, carryeth the latter part of this verſe, to the beginning of the firſt, the words being in either place preciſely the ſame: and renders the words, as there; ſo here; Oh that (I ſay) thou wouldeſt ſo come down, that the mountains might run down at thy preſence: ſo the whole tract of the context between the one and the other ſhould be inſerted by way of parentheſis; which if it be admitted, I ſuppoſe that the former words of this verſe might not improbably be deemed to have reference unto that ſtrange, and indeed unexpected (in all likelyhood, for the manner of it) defeat given unto Sennacheribs army before Jeruſalem, and the deliverance of the city and ſtate, thereby produced, Chap.37.36. and then the mountains here mentioned, might have ſome eye alſo unto thoſe mountains, on which God threatned to tread down the Aſſyrian, Chap. 14.25. See the lively deſcription of that defeat, Chap.30.27-33. Howſoever, they ſtray from the genuine ſenſe of the text, that would by mountains have here underſtood, mighty men, or great Potentates; as Chap. 2. 14. drawing hither that, Ch.33.10-12. which is but to ſow together things unſuitable.

V. 4. For from the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye ſeen, O God, beſides thee, what he hath prepared for him, that waiteth for him.] Or, Nor have men ever heard, or heard of; nor hath any eye ſeen a God beſides thee that hath done, or can do ſo for him, that waiteth for him. Theſe two Verſions exhibit, though not the particular, yet the principal differences, about the ſenſe of this paſſage. It is not without juſt cauſe deemed to be here brought in, as in the perſon of Gods people, to intimate, that they wanted not ſome good ground to ſolicite God to do for them, as they here deſire, in their preſent diſtreſs; becauſe they knew him to be ſuch a God, as was able to do for thoſe that depended upon him, as no other was ever known to do for his people; or becauſe thoſe wonderful works that he had done, could do, and would do, for thoſe that relied and reſted upon him, were ſuch, as no humane eye, or ear, had ever either ſeen, or heard. See Chap.66.8.

from the beginning of the world] Heb. from the world; whence a Rabbine here expounds it, the people of the world; as the boar from the wood, for, of the wood, Pſal. 80.13. but I find not where this form is ſo uſed: It is rendred ſometime, from everlaſting, (which ſeems a very improper ſpeech) or, from eternity, Prov.8.23. Pſal.90.2. Chap.63.16. ſometime from of old, Gen.6.4. Chap.57.11. or, in old time, Joſh.24.2. and ever of old, Chap. 25. 6. (where the one ſeems ſuperfluous) and with the negative, never, Chap. 63.19. and may well be ſo rendred here.

men have not heard] Men is not in the text: the Jewiſh Maſter before-mentioned; they of the world have not heard; but the verb ſeems indefinite, they have not heard; & the noun, ſaith another of them, is incloſed in the verb; the hearers, or they that hear, have not heard; as, they embalmed him, that is, the embalmers embalmed him, Gen.50.26. or, more plainly, they have not heard, that is, there hath not been heard; as, they ſhall call them, for they ſhall be called, Mal.1.4.

nor perceived by the ear] This word, as it is oft joyned with the former, Deut.32.1. Pſal.49.1. Chap.1.10. & 28.24. & 51.4. ſo they are much of the ſame notion the one with the other: yet ſome here ſo diſtinguiſh them, as if the one implyed the hearing of a thing immediately; the other, a receiving it by report from others. So that whereas there be three ordinary means, by which men come to notice of things; either by hearing them immediately themſelves, or by hear-ſay from others, or by eye-ſight; all three ſhould be here excluded: whereunto the Apoſtle ſeeming to have an eye to this paſſage, addeth a fourth, 1 Cor.2.9. the diſcourſe of reaſon; nor hath entred into mans heart: but that alſo receiveth ſtill ſome ground from ſenſe. Now theſe two branches, or this branch rather conſiſting of two ſprigs, ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters ſeem to refer unto the terrible things mentioned, ver. 3. ſuch, as the like before, had never been heard, Chap. 48. 6. See Deut.4.32-34.

neither hath the eye ſeen, O God, beſides thee] That is, as thoſe that go this way, which ſome alſo of the Jewiſh Writers do; no humane eye, or ſenſe, ever was able to reach, or apprehend, the things that God intended, to do for his, before he did them; or that he intendeth to do, before they be done, though to God himſelf they were well known before, Act. 15.18. to which purpoſe, the Apoſtle alſo ſeemeth to apply them, 1 Cor.2.9,11. Others read them, no eye hath ever (ſupplyed from the former branch) ſeen a God beſide thee: there was never any ſuch a God heard, (as Deut.4.33,35,36. & 5.24.) or heard of, (as 1 King.8.42.) or ſeen (Deut.4.36.) that hath done, or can do, the like things that God hath. See Pſ.66.8. & 89.6,8.

what he hath prepared] Heb. what he will do, or hath done; for the tenſes are oft promiſcuouſly uſed: yet the word is ſometime rendred, to prepare, as Ezek.46.2. and ſo our Tranſlators here give it; the rather, I ſuppoſe, becauſe the Apoſtle uſeth that term, 1 Cor.2.9. though the ancient Greek hath it not: And they are miſtaken therefore, who ſay, that the Apoſtle here followed them. Thoſe that take the word, God, before, in the vocative caſe, are enforced here to acknowledge a change of the perſon, he hath prepared, or done, for, thou haſt prepared, or done; or, he will do, for, thou wilt do; as, ye have deſired, for, they have deſired, Chap.1.29. and, thou that teareth himſelf, for, teareſt thy ſelf, Job 18.4. thoſe that make it an accuſative, or a governed caſe, do not alter the perſon, but inſert the word, ſo, that hath ſo done, or can ſo do: the former ſupply both the antecedent, and the relative, included in the word, what; that is, that, or thoſe things, which, as the like is, ver.5. & Jer.2.8,11. the latter, the relative onely; as before, ver.3. that, or which, (to wit, God) hath done, will do, or can do: for the indicatives are oft in a potential notion. See on Ch. 49.15. Some of either take the words in the time paſt; as meant of acts already done: So doth the old Latine. Others take them, in the time to come: ſo doth the ancient Greek. And from ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters we have an hint given us, that ſome of their ancienter Doctors expounded them, of the times of the Meſſias, and matters, under him, to be effected. Of which, the Apoſtle is alſo commonly ſuppoſed to underſtand them (See Chap. 52. 16.) as being of the mind, that no prophecies went beyond the Meſſias his dayes. But others of them underſtood them, as they profeſs alſo to do, of the world to come. I agree to them, that hold the text to have an eye to what God had formerly done for his people; ſuch things, as no other God had ever been known to have done, or was able to do. See Chap.41.21-29. & 43.9-13. And this is confirmed by that which followeth, running on in the ſame ſtrain, ver.5. The Apoſtle ſeemeth to have made uſe of the Prophets words, applying them to his preſent diſcourſe, as he doth thoſe other of the Pſalmiſt, Rom. 10.18. borrowed from Pſal.19.4.

for him that waiteth for him] For him; or, for them; (and the Apoſtle hath it in the plural) for the word is taken either collectively, for all thoſe; or, diſtributively, for any one of them: The like ſee ver. 5. & Chap. 57. 15. that waiteth for him, or for thee: If there be ſuch a change of the perſon, as was before intimated, and the true God be here intended, for thoſe that patiently wait, and depend upon thee, Chap. 8. 17. & 28.16. & 30.18. or, that waiteth for him; to wit, on any other god beſides thee; as Baals Prieſts did on him, who could not do for them, as the true God did for Elias, 1 King.18.26-29,36-38. But the other alſo, according to this expoſition, is, though not expreſſed; yet implyed; for when it is ſaid, No other God hath ever been known, beſides thee, that hath done, or can do, ſo for them, that expect help from them; It is plainly intimated, that God had done, and could do ſtrange things, for thoſe that rely upon him; and that ſometime, even beyond their expectation; as it is, ver. 3. For what is here ſaid, that wait on him, the Apoſtle hath, that love him. And indeed, as none truly wait on him, but thoſe that ſincerely love him; ſo all that truly love him, are content, and willing to wait on him for them. See 2 Tim. 4. 8. with Heb. 9.28. Jam.1.12. Nor do I doubt but the Apoſtle had an eye to this place; howſoever the Ancients ſome of them have not ſticks to affirm, that the teſtimony alledged by him, is not at all found in the books of the Old Teſtament; and ſome, both of them, and of later times, would have it taken out of ſome Apocryphal Writing, going under the name of Elias; as of that of Jude, ver. 14. out of the like of Enochs: but ſuch baſe counterfeits, the Apoſtles would ſcorn to own, or to grace, as theſe allegations they do.

V. 5. Thou meeteſt him that rejoyceth, and worketh righteouſneſſe, thoſe that remember thee in thy wayes.] Or, Thou didſt meet him that rejoyced, and wrought righteouſneſſe; and, or even, thoſe that remembred thee in thy wayes: For it ſeemeth a continuation of their commemoration of Gods dealings, for, and with, his people in times paſt.

Thou meeteſt] Or, didſt meet: hadſt wont to meet. The word here uſed, is diverſly taken, ſometime, in a notion of kindneſſe, and reconcilement; as the prodigals father ran to meet him, while he was yet afar off, Luk.15.20. and as we uſe to ſay, I will meet him half way; when we are willing, upon equal terms, to come to an accord with one, with whom we have been at variance: ſo moſt take the word here. Thou didſt in former times, meet our forefathers in mercy and goodneſſe; thou didſt freely, of thine own accord, ſhew them abundance of kindneſſe, and didſt prevent them, even unasked, with thy favours, Pſal.21.2,3. or, as moſt of the Jewiſh Commenters, When thou waſt diſpleaſed with thy people, yet didſt thou accept of the interceſſion of thoſe righteous ones, that were among them, in their behalf, Exod. 32.11-14. Num.14.13-20. Pſal.99.6-8. Of this uſe of the word, ſee on Chap.47.3. & 53.12. & 59.16. But the former ſenſe ſeemeth more natural, this latter more ſtrained, ſcarce finding any clear inſtance to back it: that yet more conſtrained, which they relate from ſome other of their maſters; who becauſe they find this word of meeting, not ſeldome uſed, in a contrary notion, as we alſo uſe it, when we ſay, of one, whom we intend ſome ſhrewd turn to, I will meet with him; and ſignifies, to run on, or fall foul (as we uſe to ſay) upon one, Numb. 35.19,21. 2 Sam.1.15. 1 King. 2. 29. whereof alſo, ſee on Chap.41.2. would have it here ſo to ſignifie. Thou didſt ſlay, or, take away, or, Thou haſt ſlain, or, taken away, the righteous ones: Underſtanding it, ſome of them, of the times paſt; of Moſes, and Aaron, whom God took away, when as yet, at their entreaty, he had ſpared, and deſtroyed not, the mutinous multitude, Num.20.12,24. Others, of the times preſent, that God had taken away all the godly ones, that might ſtand in the gap, to intercede for his people: the complaint of the Prophet, that lived in the ſame times with Eſay, Mic. 7. 1. See Chap.59.16. ver.7. but neither doth the word it ſelf, in the places produced, ſignifie to take away, or to ſlay, though joyned with thoſe, that ſo ſignifie; nor is the ſyntax here, the ſame with that there uſed; and cannot therefore here have place.

him, that rejoyceth, and worketh righteouſneſſe] Or, him, that rejoyced, and wrought righteouſneſſe. This ſome Jewiſh Writers underſtand, as ſpoken of Abraham: Thou waſt beneficial to Abraham, that rejoyced in thy favour, and walked uprightly, Gen. 15.1. & 17.1,17. Others, of Moſes, and Aaron, as was before-ſhewed. But the word, though ſingular, yet doth not deſign any one particular perſon, or perſons; but is indefinite, as the like in the cloſe of verſe 4. The term of rejoycing, ſome refer to the word, before-going, and render the words, Thou didſt meet with joy, him, or, them, that wrought righteouſneſſe. But, beſide that they take no notice of the copulative; the word here uſed, is never a noun; ever, either a verb, as Chap.66.14. or, a participle, as Pſal.119.162. and ſo here. Others therefore generally joyn it and the next epithet together; but ſo as they take this former in divers notions; for ſome underſtand it of the outward eſtate of the perſons intended: rejoycing, that is, being in a cheerful and proſperous condition, as oppoſed unto the ſad eſtate, wherein themſelves were at preſent; but the moſt rather conceive it meant of their inward diſpoſition; that rejoyced, and wrought righteouſneſs; that is, that rejoyced to work righteouſneſs; (ſee the like, Chap.61.5.) that ſerved thee cheerfully, and delighted in well-doing, Deut.16.11,14,15. & 28.47. Pſal.2.11. & 37.4. & 68.3. & 112.1. Chap.58.13. Of the phraſe, working righteouſneſſe, ſee on Chap.56.1.

thoſe that remember thee in thy wayes] Some read theſe words, in the future, they will remember thee in thy wayes; ſo the meaning ſhould be; thy people, who at preſent being at liberty, and in proſperity, regard thee not, nor look after thee; yet when they ſhall be in diſtreſs, and under reſtraint, will then think upon thee, and ſeek to thee for relief, Chap.26.16. Lev. 26.39. Jer.2.31,32. & 22.21. Pſal.78.34. Dan.9.4. Hoſ.5.15. Others, in the preſent, as our verſion; but moſt in the time paſt; Yet ſo, that ſome diſtinguiſh theſe from the former, rendring the words, with a ſupply of the copulative; and thoſe that remembred thee in thy wayes; that is, thou didſt deal graciouſly, not with thoſe alone, that in times of proſperity had walked uprightly before thee; but with thoſe alſo, who when thy judgments were upon them, being thereby reclaimed, and reformed, did then mind thee, and ſue to thee for mercy, chap. 26.8,9. Deut.30.1,2,3. Pſal.22.27. 2 Chr. 15. 4. but others rather conceive thoſe to be the ſame perſons with the former, by another character further deciphered; and render the text therefore with the ſupply of an explicative; even thoſe that remembred thee in thy wayes: ſuch as were conſtantly mindful of thee, and of their duty to thee, according to the divers paſſages of thy providence about them, as well to praiſe thee in proſperity, as to pray unto thee in adverſity, to ſerve, and bleſſe thee, in both, Chap.26.13. Deut.8.1,19. Job 1.8,21. & 2.3. & 13.15. & 27.3-6. Pſal.44.17,18. the wayes, here mentioned, ſeeming to be rather wayes of providence, and diſpoſal, then wayes of injunction, and direction; as thoſe, Pſal. 119.1,2. & 128.1. whether way we take it, there is in the text a defect both of the antecedent, and relative; ſuch as before, ver.4. as alſo of the copulative, according to the one, as Chap.63.7,10. of the explicative according to the other; as Chap.51.22. & 57.2. though there want not here, that ſupply, ſome, the cauſal, reading the words; becauſe they remembred thee in thy wayes: others, the illative therefore, or, then; they praiſed thee for thy wayes: for thoſe thy dealings with them; as Chap.57.17. of the uſe of the word, remember, ſee on Chap.12.4. But I adhere rather to the laſt of thoſe beforementioned.

behold thou art wroth; for we have ſinned: in thoſe is continuance, and we ſhall be ſaved] The Prophets conciſe language ſeems to have made this place the more obſcure. Scarce two Interpreters agree all out in the ſenſe of them. The Jewiſh Doctors, much to this purpoſe, expound them; If, or, when, thou waſt wroth; becauſe we (to wit, thy people) had ſinned, yet by thoſe (juſt ones, ver.4. our peace being made with thee) we were ever, or, of old, ſaved; or, when thou art wroth; becauſe we have ſinned; by theſe, or, for thoſe, (to wit, ſuch righteous ones, were they alwayes among us,) we alſo might ever, or, as of old, be ſaved. Among ours, ſome, Behold, thou art wroth; wroth; and we ſin ſtill, in them (to wit, our ſins,) have we alwayes been; or, againſt them (to wit, thy wayes, thy precepts) have we ever ſinned; and yet have we been ſaved: as Pſal.106. 6-8. Neh.9.26-28. or, as ſome, and how ſhould we be ſaved? as Ezek.33.10. Others, Behold, thou art wroth; becauſe we have ſinned; in thoſe (thy wayes) had we ever been, we alſo had been ſaved: had we continued in thy wayes, as they did, we had been ſaved from thoſe miſeries, wherein we now are, Deut.30.20. Chap.36.16. or, had we remembred thee, or, been mindful of thee, perpetually, in thoſe (thy wayes) we alſo had been ſaved. Others, referring it to God; in thoſe (thy wayes) is continuance, that we may be ſaved: (and, for, that; as Chap.53.2. and ſo Pſal.80.3.) thou continueſt conſtant in thoſe thy courſes with us, to work thereby our ſalvation, Rom.2.4. 1 Cor.11.32. Others, but in thoſe (thy wayes) thou art ever, therefore are we ſaved; or, therefore we ſhall be ſaved: (the copulative, in an illative notion; as Chap.48.7.) thou continueſt conſtant in thy mercy and goodneſſe; and that is the reaſon, why we are not yet deſtroyed: or, it is that that putteth us in hope, that thou wilt yet ſave, and deliver us, out of our preſent diſtreſſes, Lam.3.21,22. Mal.3.6. Divers other expoſitions there are; but theſe have authors of note, and may ſeem more then enow. I concur with that latter of the Jewiſh Doctors; the rather, for that it ſuiteth beſt with what followeth, ver.6,7.

behold,] Or, if; as Jer.1.10. and, if, for, when; as Pſal.63. 6. or, though: as Job 13.15.

thou art wroth] A degree above anger: when thou art, or, though thou beeſt, grievouſly angry. So Chap. 47.6. & 57. 16, 17. ver.9.

for we have ſinned] Heb. and: here, for; as Pſal.60.11. & 108.12. Chap.53.2,11. or, becauſe, rather; as Chap. 57. 17. 2 Sam.24.1. becauſe one had moved David; or, David had been moved: where this uſe of the particle obſerved, would help much to cleer that place; becauſe we have ſinned, or, do ſin, (as 1 King.8.46.) and provoke thee unto wrath, by our ſins: though one of the Jewiſh Criticks, (to intimate, that ſin goeth before wrath, and wrath cometh after ſin,) would have the notion of it here, not becauſe, but after; as Exod.14.21. and made the ſea dry-land, and (that is, after) the waters were divided: and, Exod.16.20. and it bred worms, and putrified; that is, after it had putrified: and ſo here; thou art wroth, and we have ſinned; that is, after we have ſinned; not before: but this ſeems ſomewhat nice; and the other is more familiar, and frequent.

in thoſe] Or, by thoſe; as Chap. 38. 16. or, for thoſe: as Chap.47.9. & 57.17.

is continuance] The Hebrew word here uſed, is very general; it hath in it a notion ſometime of eternity; ſometime, of antiquity; ſometime, of perpetuity; ſometime, of diuturnity, durability, continuance, conſtancy: whence it cometh to be rendred, ſometime, of old; ſometime, for ever. So verſ.4. here, whether it be underſtood of the time paſt, or preſent, it may be rendred the former way: a defect of ſome particle there is, which way ſoever it be rendred; as the like is, Pſal.89. 1, 2. Nor do I ſee why there may not the note of ſimilitude, be ſupplyed; that it might be rendred, as of old; according to that, Lam.5.21. Mic.6.14.

and we ſhall be ſaved] Or, by them of old yet we were ſaved; or, for them, yet as of old, we might be ſaved: and, for, yet; as Chap.42.25. & 46.7. the particle is tranſpoſed: as chap.17. 14. 2 King.2.14. Job 23.12. God might ſtill in mercy, either at their interceſſion, as in times paſt, (ſee on ver.4.) or, in reſpect of them, or, out of favour to them, be induced to ſpare us; as Gen.18.32. had we any ſuch now among us. See Jer.5.1.

V. 6. But we are all as an unclean thing] Or, rather, unclean perſon; becauſe the term is maſculine. Their preſent wretched, and forlorn condition, is in this verſe, and the next deſcribed; as oppoſed to the ſtate and condition of thoſe, that were before-mentioned, ver.4,5. In former times there were ſuch among Gods people, that walked uprightly, and were in ſpecial grace, and favour with God; for whoſe ſake God conferred many bleſſings upon them, and that helped, when God was at any time diſpleaſed with them, being provoked to wrath by their ſins, to make up the breach between him, and them, Pſal.106.23. but thoſe righteous, and godly ones, are now all gone, Jer 5.1. Mic.7.2. Pſal. 12. 1. there is ſuch an univerſal corruption of all ſorts with us, that the main body of our people ſeemeth no other, then a lump of ſome filthy matter; ſuch unclean ſtuff, as by the Law was to be burnt, or, abandoned, Lev.13.55,57. & 14.45,46. or, like ſome leprous perſon, one overſpread with leproſie, or ſome other foul, and loathſome malady from top to toe; ſuch an one as is deſcribed, Chap.1.4. and very unfit therefore to appear in Gods preſence, deſerving rather to be ſequeſtred from his ſight; as the leper, and perſons unclean otherwiſe, were ſhut out of the Camp, and ſecluded from ordinary ſociety with men, Lev.13.45,46. Num.5.23. & 12.14. 2 Chr.26.20,21. of ſuch general defections, ſee Pſal.12.3. Jer. 9.2,3. Chap. 59.3, 4. the ſcope is to ſhew, that it is not to be marvelled, if God, who is of ſo pure eyes, Hab.1.13. cannot endure to look upon ſuch polluted creatures; if none be found fit to intercede with him for the reſt, when they are generally alſo defiled. See ver.7.

and all our righteouſneſſes are as filthy rags:] There is no ſmall debate about the ſubject of this propoſition, the word, righteouſneſſes: and great variety of opinion, concerning the attribute, the word rendred, filthy rags. By the former, to wit, righteouſneſſes, ſome underſtand, thoſe legal rites, ceremonies, and ſacrifices, in the obſervation, and performance whereof, they deemed their righteouſneſs to conſiſt, (ſee Chap. 57.12.) but were ſo performed by them, that they found no grace, or acceptance, with God, yea, were very loathſome, and abominable in his ſight, Chap.1.11-14. & 66.3. the Jewiſh Commenters give the word a larger extent; the good works, ſay they, that they did in thoſe times, were done, either out of vain-glory, to gain applauſe, or, out of emulation, to out-ſtrip one; or out of other like corrupt grounds, and other like ſiniſter ends, which made them ſuch in Gods ſight, as is here ſaid. Such were the Phariſees both devotions, and alms-deeds, Mat.6.2,5. & 23.5. and ſo ſome preached the Goſpel, Phil.1.15,16. See 1 Cor.1.3. Many of ours draw it out further, and take in all the beſt works and actions, even of the beſt, and in the beſt manner performed, as not free from ſome default, and defilement, that might deſervedly render them, ſuch as is here implyed, in Gods ſight, if he ſhould look narrowly, into them, and deem of them, according to the exact tenour, and rigour, of his Law, Rom.7.21. And thus both divers of the Ancients, and very many, not Proteſtant only, but Popiſh Writers alſo, not a few, do both expound, and apply the place; theſe latter, with thoſe Ancients, giving teſtimony thereby, unto the truth, herein maintained, by us, againſt thoſe of their ſide, that do therein controll, and oppoſe us. Some yet further enlarge the ſubject matter here mentioned, as comprehending the natural conſtitution and condition of all mankind, being ſuch, by breeding and birth, as is deſcribed, Ezek.16.4-6. But herein for the genuine ſenſe of the place, others of ours, and thoſe of chief note, depart both from theſe, and the former, adviſedly obſerving, that the Prophets intendment here, is to make acknowledgment of ſuch enormious evils, not bare inbred vitioſity, or, defects, of meer infirmity, but vile, and abominable practices, as had incenſed the wrath of God againſt his people, to ſuch an height of heat, as to caſt them out of their land, and to leave them unto a long, tedious, and grievous captivity. That which induced thoſe, both ancienter, and late Writers, to bring within compaſſe of this doom, in this place, thoſe defects, and defaults, adhering to, and alloying the pureſt practices of the moſt ſincere, ſeems to have been; becauſe the Prophet ſaith, our righteouſneſſes; as ſpeaking in his own perſon, and putting himſelf in among the reſt: But they obſerve not what one of the Jewiſh Doctors ſuggeſteth, that the Prophets, (which, ſaith he, they learned from Moſes, Exod.34.9.) ſpeak oft in the perſon of the people, as their mouth to God; and yet withall compriſing themſelves in what they ſpeak, as members of that body, in whoſe perſon they ſpeak, as taking to heart, and affected with the evils, that do generally, either infect, or infeſt, that body, as if therein they partaked with them; albeit they were wholly free from them themſelves. So Ezr. 9.6,7,10,15. Dan. 9. 5,6,10,11. The words may well be underſtood with thoſe Jewiſh Doctors, (whom ſome of our beſt Interpreters herein condeſcend unto) of thoſe outward ſemblances of holineſs and righteouſneſs, that ſome among them, in thoſe times, might ſometime make ſome flouriſh of, when they were inwardly full of nothing but filth, and corruption, and their very lives alſo otherwiſe very vile and abominable, as it was with ſome of the Phariſees, Mat. 23. 14,23-28. Howbeit, I conceive the genuine ſenſe of the place, to be other then is commonly received, and to ſpeak rather of the perſons themſelves, compared one with another, though in regard of their properties, and practices, then of the properties, and practices of the ſame perſons, collated ſome of them, with ſome other: by our righteouſneſſes, therefore I take to be meant, the moſt righteous of us, or among us; it is no unuſual thing in Scripture, to put the abſtract for the concrete. So, wiſdome, for, a man of wiſdome; a wiſe man, Mic.6.9. folly, for, a woman of folly; a fooliſh woman, Prov.14.1. peace, for, a man of peace; a peaceable man, Pſal.120.7. ſtrength, for, men of ſtrength; ſtrong men, Chap.3.25. pride, for, men of pride, proud men, Pſal. 36. 11. now theſe abſtracts in a plural form, enhance the notion of the word to a ſuperlative degree: as, wiſdomes, for the greateſt, and chiefeſt, wiſdome, Prov.1.20. & 9.1. and, a man of underſtandings, for, a man of very great underſtanding, Prov. 11. 12. and, neerer home yet to our purpoſe; deſires, or, delights, for, a man of deſires, or delights; (as it is more fully expreſſed, Dan.10.11,19.) one very much deſired, or delighted in, Dan.9.23. for what is there rendred, greatly beloved, is no more in the Hebrew, then, deſires, or delights: and, the ſpouſe of her love, Cant.5.16. he all, or, all of him, is deſires, or, delights; that is, he is altogether moſt deſireable, or, moſt delightful; (it is rendred, altogether goodly) or, there is nothing but moſt deſireable, or delightful, in him: in like manner here, as righteouſneſſe is by our Interpreters deemed to ſignifie, a man of righteouſneſſe; or, a righteous man, Chap.41.2. (but of that, ſee there) ſo here, righteouſneſſes, for, men of righteouſneſſes; that is, men of the greateſt righteouſneſſe; the moſt righteous, among us; thoſe that ſeem, or are deemed, the very beſt among us, are no better then ſome unclean thing, (as he ſaid, ſome unclean perſon, before,) or ſuch as is here further inſtanced. This expoſition I gather from a parallel place of a Prophet, coetaneous to Eſay, Mic. Chap.7. where the Prophet having complained of a general defection in the State; the pious man is periſhed out of the land; and not an upright one left among men, ver.2. ſubjoyneth, verſ.4. the beſt of them is a bryar, the uprighteſt beyond a thorny hedge; worſe to deal with, he meaneth. See 2 Sam.23.6,7. it is true, there is no more in the text, then good, and upright: but the words are aright rendred, beſt, and uprighteſt; for theſe poſitives with the Hebrews, when they are uſed by way of collation, if the collation be of one perſon, or party, with ſome one other, make up the firſt degree of compariſon, which we call the comparative; when with more then one, the ſecond, which we call the ſuperlative. So, the great ſhall ſerve the little; that is, the greater, or elder, ſhall ſerve the leſſe, or younger, Gen.25.23. becauſe ſpoken only of two; and, of Japhet, the great, for, the greateſt, or, eldeſt, Gen.10.21. as, of Cham, the little; that is, the leaſt, of Noahs three, Gen.9.24. as Micah therefore ſaith there, the beſt, and uprighteſt, among them; ſo Eſay, here, the moſt righteous of us; ſpeaking of the ſame people, both the one, and the other.

as filthy rags] He ſaid in general before, of his people, that they were, the whole body of them, as ſome unclean perſon, ſome leper, or the like; he proceedeth now to ſhew more particularly, what the very beſt of them were like. Concerning the notion of the word here uſed, and not elſe-where read, as alſo concerning the notation of it, there is great variety of opinions, even among the Jewiſh Criticks themſelves. Some of them render it, a coat of patches, or rags; a beggers coat made up of rags, of old cloth, worn out, and caſt away; from a Chaldee word that ſo ſignifies. Others, a garment defiled with bloud; from a word, that ſignifies prey, or ſpoil, Gen.49.27. for that garments ſo taken from ravenous beaſts, or, by men, in fight are uſually ſuch, Gen.37.31,33. Chap.9.5. See Lam.4.14,15. Others, a clout of ſores; a clout, or rag, pulled off from ſome matury ſore; from a Chaldee word, ſo ſignifying, Lev.13.2. Others, the cloth, or ſheet, mentioned, Deut.22.15, 17. from a term, that imports teſtimony. Others, a birth-clout, or cloth uſed about child-birth; from a Chaldee word ſignifying to bear, or be with child, Gen.4.1. Others, laſtly, a cloath, or cloath of ſeparations, or, a menſtruous cloth, or clout; as coming from a word, that ſignifies, both in Hebrew, and Chaldee, as before, to put away, or to remove and ſeparate, Prov.25.20. Dan.2.21. and as having affinity with another word of that notion, Ezek.7.19,20. & 36.17. and this moſt pitch upon; the old Latine among others, and our oldeſt Engliſh: Nor is the Greek deemed to entend other, when it rendreth it, of a ſitting woman, being ſuppoſed to have an eye to that of Rachel, Gen.31.34,35. Nor the Chaldee, who rendreth it an abominable thing in general; but hath a word, in particular deſigning this, derived from it. And to ſome ſuch loathſome and naſty ſtuff, in all likelyhood, doth the Prophet compare, the moſt righteous among the main multitude of his people. See Chap.30.22. Lam.1.17.

and we all fade as a leaf,] A juſt conſequent of this their ſinfull and polluted condition: we are thrown all of us down, and carryed away into captivity.

and] Or, therefore, as Chap.12.3. & 47.8.

we all fade] Or fall; or, we are all faded, or faln: for though the word here uſed, be commonly ſuppoſed to ſignifie the former onely, (whereof yet no proof can be made, becauſe it is no where elſe found in the form here uſed) yet that root, which it hath very neer affinity with, and it is by ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks, referred unto, doth frequently imply both, to fade, and to fall. See Chap. 28. 1, 4. we are, not with the bleſſed man, like the tree, whoſe leaf never fadeth, nor falleth, Pſal.1.3. but with thoſe curſed wretches, Jer.17.5,6. like a tree whoſe leaves fade, and ſhed, Chap.1.30. or, rather, we are altogether like a company of ſuch leaves of trees, that at time of year ſhed them, as fade, and fall, to the ground, at the beginning of Winter, in the eighth month, Bull, 1 King.6.38. So termed from the word here uſed; becauſe then the leaves of ſuch trees begin to fade, and fall; though ſome from the other root, in regard of the rains that fall then. See Pſal.37.2, & 90.5,6, and our iniquities like the wind have taken us away.] We are for our iniquities hurried out of our land, and carryed away captive, as ſuch withered leaves; or other ſuch like dry and light ſtuff, carryed away with ſome bluſtering guſt of wind in a ſtorm. See the like, Chap. 57. 13. Jer. 4. 11. Hoſ. 4. 19.

taken us away] Heb. taken us up: but the word withall implyes, ſometime, having taken up to bring away. So the Eaſt-wind is ſaid to have brought in the locuſts, Exod.10.13. ſometime, having taken up to carry away: And ſo the Weſt-wind is ſaid to have carryed them away, Exod.10.19. and in this latter notion is it here taken. They were by the wind of Gods wrath for their ſins taken up, and carryed into Chaldea, as the Prophet was ſometime by the Spirit of God, taken up in Chaldea, and carryed from thence to Jeruſalem, Ezek.8.3.

V. 7. And there is none that calleth upon thy name, that ſtirreth up himſelf to take hold of thee:] Amidſt theſe our troubles, or notwithſtanding them, there are very few, or none among us, that ſeek unto thee as they ſhould; or that put out themſelves, to endeavour by any means, to pacifie thy wrath, and procure thy gracious return again to us.

none] Not ſimply none, for ſome godly in all times; but ſo few, that they are not ſeen, they appear not, they are drowned in the multitude. So Pſal.14.3.

that calleth upon thy name] That addreſſeth himſelf unto thee, for the redreſs and removal of theſe evils, Pſal. 14. 4. Chap.43.22. Dan.9.13. Hoſ.7.7,24.

ſtirreth up himſelf to take hold of thee] Either to ſtay thee with us, when thou threatneſt departure; (as when he ſtood on the threſhold of the Temple, Ezek. 10. 4.) as they preſſed our Saviour to ſtay with them, Luk.24.28,29. or, to induce thee to return in mercy again to us, ſince thou haſt withdrawn thy ſelf from us, Jer.12.7. Ezek.10.18,19. See Chap. 59. 11.

for thou haſt hid thy face from us] Or, though thou haſt hid thy face from us; as the particle is uſed, Pſal.23.4. Chap.53.8. Or, as ſome, when thou didſt hide thy face from us; as the ſame particle is uſed, Job 5.21. Pſal.75.2. Joel 2. 20. And this later reading ſeems very probable, thus knitting this with the former; Neither was there any that called upon thy name, nor that ſtirred up himſelf to take hold of thee, when thou didſt hide thy face from us. When at firſt thou beganneſt to manifeſt thy diſpleaſure towards us, by withdrawing the light of thy countenance from us. See Chap.8.17. & 57.17.

and haſt conſumed us,] Or, didſt conſume us; as before. Heb. melt us, or diſſolve us, Job 30. 22. Chap. 14. 31. Ezek. 21.7.

becauſe of our iniquities] That were before ſaid to carry them away. Heb. in the hand; that is, the room, or place of our iniquities, in the land where they were committed, while we were yet in our own countrey: ſo is the word uſed, Chap. 56.5. or, by the hand, that is, by means of our iniquities, as Chap 62. 3.

V. 8. But now, O Lord,] After this doleful deploration of this their ſinful and ſad condition, followeth a pathetical imploration of favour and mercy, which they make way unto, or entrance into, by minding of God, or themſelves rather, (thereby to raiſe within themſelves, the better hope of ſpeeding and prevailing with God) of that ſpecial relation that God had unto them, as a Father. So the prodigal, Luk. 15. 17,18.

But] Or, yet; as Chap.17.6. though we have carryed our ſelves thus ungraciouſly, and unworthily, towards thee, Deut. 32.5,6.

thou art our Father;] A very pithy and affectionate compellation, by a ſweet and compaſſionate appellation, Pſal.103. 13. ſo David to Saul, 1 Sam. 24. 11. See now my Father. See Chap.63.16.

we are the clay, and thou art our potter,] Or, we were clay, and thou waſt our potter, or the framer of us; that is, when we were at firſt but as a lump of clay, a rude maſs, without form or ſhape, a confuſed multitude, thou didſt mould and faſhion us into a State, both Civil, and Eccleſiaſtical, into a body politick, into a Church, Chap.43.1,7,21. & 44.2,21,24. a metaphor taken from the Potters employment; (as thoſe other forms alſo, though to another purpoſe, chap.29.16. Jer.18.6.) but having withall ſome eye to the manner of Gods framing mans body at firſt, Gen.2.7. as alſo to the faſhioning of it, ſtill in the womb, Job 10.8-12. & 31.15. Pſal.119. 73. & 139. 13, 16. Jer.1.5.

we all are the work of thine hands.] Not as we are men onely, or of Adams poſterity; but as by thy ſpecial procurement we are made a people, yea, a peculiar people for thy ſelf, Chap. 43. 21. an argument that God himſelf uſeth to ſhew, why he would not, yea, could not, forget them, Chap.44. 21. and that his people are wont to preſs him with, thereby to perſwade him the rather to ſpare them, Job 10. 8, 9. Pſal. 138. 8.

V. 9. Be

V. 9. Be not wroth very ſore, O Lord,] It will not ſtand with the tender affection of a Parent to be over fierce, over-rough,or rigorous,to his child, to ſcourge him over-much, or over-long. Heb. Be not wroth unto much, or to externity; though thou beeſt wroth, becauſe we have given thee juſt cauſe of wrath by our ſins, ver. 5. yet be not over-wroth with us, either over-much, or over-long; let not thy fierce wrath burn and devour like fire for ever,Deut.32.22.Pſal.79.5. See on ver.12.

neither remember iniquity for ever.]Retain not wrath againſt us for ever,in regard of fore paſſed exceſſes; a tender Parent is not wont ſo to do, but is very prone, and ready to pity and pardon,Pſal.25.7.& 79.5,8.& 103.9.Lam.5.20.

Behold,ſee,we beſeech thee]Or,Lo,behold now; or, we beſeech thee. See Chap. 38. 3. a very pathetical form of ſpeech. So David,See now,yea, ſee, O my Father, 1 Sam.24.11. be pleaſed yet to caſt a glance of thine eye upon us, to ſee in how lamentable a condition we remain; as if the very ſight of them, in what plight they were,might of it ſelf be ſufficient, to move him unto commiſeration of them. See Chap. 63.15. Lam.1. 9,20. & 2.20.& 3.50.

we are all thy people.] Or, we all are thy people: Not we are thine onely people, all the people that thou haſt; though that alſo, in ſome ſenſe, was, at that time, true, Exod.19.5. Pſal.147.20. But we all of us,as bad as we have been, or are, and as badly, and baſely,as we are by our enemies entreated, are thoſe that thou haſt been pleaſed to take into covenant with thee,and to make thy peculiar people, Deut. 5.3.& 29. 10-15.See Chap.63.19.

V. 10. Thy holy cities are a wilderneſſe; Zion is a wilderneſſe, Jeruſalem a deſolation.] From themſelves, and their relation to God, they paſs to God himſelf, his intereſt, and honour, concerned in this their preſent condition, and the devaſtation of their country,thoſe places eſpecially,which himſelf had made choice of for his peculiar reſidence among his people, and their ſolemn attendance on him, and ſervice of him, there; that ſo if not for themſelves, who had deſerved ſo ill of him,yet in regard of himſelf,and his own concernment, he might be induced unto mercy and commiſeration of them, and to wrath and indignation againſt their oppreſſours, who ſo deſpitefully uſed, as well him, as them. So Pſal. 74. 22,23.

Thy holy cities]Heb.The cities of thy holineſſe, or rather, Thy cities of holineſſe; as,Thy mountain of holineſſe,Pſal.15.1. and, thy city of holineſſe,Dan.9.24.Thy cities,not ours; and, holy cities,having ſpecial relation to thee. Now hereby ſome underſtand onely Jeruſalem,and Sion,afterward mentioned; and render the words therefore, the cities of thy Sanctuary. See Chap.31.9. But moſt,rather, the cities of Judah in generall, Jer.10.22. called holy cities, as the whole land, an holy land, Zach. 2. 12. becauſe aſſigned to Gods people; an holy people, Exod.19.6.Deut.14.2,21.to inhabit,Chap.63.18.& 65.9. and becauſe they had in them ſet, and ſolemn conventions, for the conſtant ſervice of God, every Sabbath in their Synagogues,Pſal.74.8.Act.15.21.

are a wilderneſſe] Or,are become a wilderneſſe; have lien ſo long ruined, that they are become like a meer wilderneſſe. See ver.11.

Zion is a wilderneſſe,Jeruſalem a deſolation.] Or, Zion is become a wilderneſſe,Jeruſalem a waſte. See Chap.1.7.& 62.4. the ſubject matter riſeth; not the leſſer cities onely, but the mother city Jeruſalem, and the Seat of thy royal Palace, and of thy Temple, Sion; and the ſentence runs conciſe and quick. So Micah's prophecy fulfilled, Jer. 26. 18. Mic.3.12. Pſal.79.1.

V. 11. Our holy, and our beautifull houſe, where our fathers praiſed thee, is burnt up with fire.] The ſubject matter riſeth yet a degree higher, as from the lower cities to Jeruſalem,and Sion; ſo from theſe to the Temple; the other were oft ſurpriſed and ſacked, when Jeruſalem and Sion, yet held out and were ſaved,Chap.5.7,8.& 7.1. & 36.1. & 37.35. and Jeruſalem might be taken and ſackt, and yet the Temple ſaved,2 Chr.25.23,24.but now,not thoſe inferiour cities onely, but Jeruſalem and Sion; nor thoſe alone, but Gods Temple alſo is deſtroyed together with them,Pſal.74.3,6,7.

Our holy,and our beautifull houſe,] Heb.our houſe of holineſſe, (as,cities of holineſſe,ver.10.) and of bravery, goodlineſſe, or gallantry. See Chap.60.7. our houſe; ſo they call Gods Temple, though termed commonly Gods houſe, Chap.56.5,7. & 60.7. and ſet it forth with glorious attributes, thereby to expreſſe and teſtifie their affection to it, as not ſo much affected with the loſſe of their own houſes, as the loſſe and want of it. So Pſal.84.1,2.

where our fathers praiſed thee] They ſay,not we, but our fathers; as ſcarce daring once to mention their own ſervices there: they had been either ſo regardleſſe of Gods houſe, ch. 65.11. Ezek. 8. 16. or in that manner there ſerved him, that their performances there might well (they feared) be moſt loathſome and abominable to him,Chap.1.11-15.& 66. 3.Jer.7.9-11. but yet minding him, how formerly, in better times,he had by their Anceſtors there been ſerved.

is burnt up with fire.] Or, rather, is burnt down with fire, Pſal.74.7. Heb. is become unto a burning of fire; or, is become a burning of fire; becauſe the particle is in ſuch forms oft redundant. See Chap.5.9. & 13.9. for the ſyntax of it, with this word, ſeemeth divers, Chap. 9. 5. of the burning of the Temple,ſee 2 King.25.9. 2 Chr.36.19.Jer.52.13.

and all our pleaſant things are laid waſte.] Heb.all our deſires, or delights: for the word is a ſubſtantive, as appeareth by the conſtant uſe of it,1 King.20.6. Ezek.24.16,21,25. but the abſtract is here put for the concrete,as before, ver.6. deſires, or delights,for matters of much deſire,of moſt delight; that is, moſt deſireable,or delightfull: Our moſt deſireable,or delightfull, either things, that is, matters in general; as it is expreſſed, 2 Chr.26. 19. where it is ſaid of the Chaldeans, that they deſtroyed all her (that is,Jeruſalem's) matters of deſires, or delights,rendred there,goodly veſſels: But the word there uſed is of a far larger extent,then our Engliſh veſſel, and reacheth unto any utenſil,or other matter of uſe whatſoever.See Chap. 22.24.& 32. 7. and ſo is the adjective,or concrete of the ſame root and notion uſed,Lam.1.7,10,11. or, our moſt deſireable,or pleaſant places; as it is ſupplyed, Hoſ. 9. 6. becauſe of that which followeth, are laid waſte. Heb. is, or is become unto a waſte; as Jer.7.24.& 22.5.as to a burning,before. So alſo,ver. 10. the verb being ſingular,it would be rendred,to anſwer the Hebrew exactly, each of our moſt deſireable, or delightfull,matters,or places,is become a waſte; and it may ſeem to have reference to the Kings palace, and the great mens goodly houſes,with their appurtenances, orchards,gardens, and the like places of delight and pleaſure; which together with the Temple,were likewiſe burnt down and demoliſhed, 2 King. 25.9. Jer.39.8.& 52. 13. the word is ſometime applyed alſo to perſons; as Cant.5.16.whereof ſee before on ver. 6. & Lam. 2.4. Hoſ.9.16.

V. 12. Wilt thou refrain thy ſelf for theſe things,O Lord?]Or, Canſt thou contain thy ſelf at theſe things? as one of the Rabbines well rendreth it. How canſt thou endure to ſee thy Citles,Synagogues,thy Templo it ſelf, ly thus waſte and ruined, and thine own honour thereby ſo exceedingly empeached,and empaired, Pſal. 74. 10, 18,22,23. See Chap. 63.15.

wilt thou hold thy peace] Or, canſt thou be ſilent? How canſt thou endure to forbear, and let them alone that thus wrong thee? See Chap.42.14.

and afflict us very ſore.] Or, how canſt thou endure to afflict us ſo extreamly? Heb.unto very much. Or,as ſome render it, unto extremity. So ver.9. Howbeit, I obſerve that the form here uſed,is appliable as well to extent of time, as to intenſion of degree; and in ſuch uſe of it, ſignifies either over-long, or for ever: ſo ſome Jewiſh Criticks take it,in thoſe words,Pſal.119. 8. forſake me not over-long (as our Geneva Verſion rendreth it) Or, for ever; wherein other of their own that controll them, to give it ſome ſenſe fit for that place and paſſage, are conſtrained to offer force to the text, and to knit that clauſe to the former part of the verſe, reading the words, I will keep thy ſtatutes exceedingly, or exactly; (as anſwering to what went before, ver.4.) O forſake me not. But beſide that the pauſes there oppoſe them,carrying on unto this clauſe the word of forſaking: There is another place in that Pſalm,ver.43. which cannot be ſo avoided. Take not the word of truth out of my mouth for ever; that is, Never let the word of truth be taken out of my mouth; as Chap.25.2. For it is a very poor and ſorry ſenſe that their Verſion hath, who render it,Take it not much out of my mouth; nor theirs much better, that render it utterly: The Pſalmiſts meaning ſure was,never, at any time, or at all. And I conceive therefore, that it may here be ſo rendred,as thoſe of Geneva have it,in the former place, as well, afflict us over-long,as, afflict us over-much, or, afflict us for ever, and ſo the Chaldee here rendreth it. See Pſal. 79. 5. and 88. 5.

CHAP. LXV.

Verſ. 1. I Am ſought of them, that asked not for me;] This Chapter the Jewiſh Commenters annex to the former,ſuppoſing that God,in the firſt words of it, returneth an anſwer to the prayer of the captive people, conceived in the latter part of the Chapter fore-going. But it ſeems rather to contain a new Sermon divers from the former. And in it we have a cleer prediction, both of the converſion, and coming in, of the Gentiles; and of the rejection of the Jews,with a relation of their particular ſins, and their obſtinacy in them, for which they were to be rejected. Howbeit, a remnant of them to be reſerved,whom God would proſecute with ſpeciall favours, in the times of the Meſſias eſpecially, when his Church ſhould be renewed.

I am ſought of them,that asked not for me] In theſe words the Jewiſh Doctors conceive that God, in way of anſwer to the former complaint of his people, concerning his harſh uſage of them, and the continuance of the captivity, doth render a reaſon why it ſo fared with them, to wit, for the obſtinate carriage both of their fore-fathers, and themſelves; who,albeit he had from time to time called upon them by his Prophets, to return from their wicked ways, and rebellious courſes, and come in to him, yet had ſtood out ſtill againſt him,and rejected his gracious invitations and offers. So that they underſtand this whole paſſage,ver.1,2.of their own people,and tell us, 'tis all the ſame thing four ſeverall times told over,in divers terms,to add the more emphaſis to it. But from the Apoſtles allegation of it,Rom.10.20,21. it evidently appeareth, that the former part of it, ſpeaketh of the Gentiles; the latter part,only of the Jews: The Jewiſh Criticks to draw this Scripture their ways, are mightily puzzled about the ſignification of the firſt word: for there ſeems, ſay they, a contradiction in the text; I am enquired of, and they ask not: and this to aſſoil,they render the words, ſome, I was ready to be enquired of,entreated by,and reconciled to your fore-fathers, when they had offended me, had they ſought me in their afflictions,but they asked not after me. So ſay they is the word uſed, Pſal.111.2. The works of the Lord are ready to be ſought, and found out. Others, giving the paſſive a reciprocal notion, as oft-times it hath (ſee Chap.26.20.) I made my ſelf to be ſought; that is, offered my ſelf to be ſought unto by them; according to that, Chap.63.5. thou didſt meet,that is,prevent them with mercies unaskt. Others,taking the word as a potential (of which,ſee on Chap.63.12.) I might have been ſought of them, if they would; but they had no mind to it. Others, as ſpoken by way of interrogation; Should I offer my ſelf to be ſought of thoſe that ask not after me? Ours, divers of them, ſomewhat ſtrain themſelves needleſly about it. Some render the words, I am expoſed to thoſe that asked not: and the word indeed in the Rabbinical Language is commonly uſed for to expound; whence midraſſes,or expoſitions,are ſo termed: But that ſuiteth but ſorrily with this place,or the notion here intended. Others,becauſe the Apoſtle ſeems ſo to render it, I am ſought,ſay they,that is,I am found; ſeeking, put for finding,as Eccl.3.6.a time to ſeek,that is,to get; becauſe the one is the end,and uſual conſequent of the other, Mat.7.7. Luk.11.10. and ſo on the other ſide; finding, for ſeeking,Gen.19.11. they wearied themſelves with finding (that is, ſeeking) the dore. But the word of finding, uſed by the Apoſtle (with whom the two branches are tranſpoſed) hath reference,not to this word, but to the word following, which the ancient Greek alſo ſo rendreth. This word,both that Verſion, and the Apoſtle retaining it,rendreth,I am manifeſted, or, I have been made manifeſt: and theſe ſtrains all ſeem needleſs. The old Latine, which ſome, without cauſe, here control, telling us, that the word is here paſſive,gave the right ſenſe of the text, They ſeek me,that before asked not of me,word for word,I am ſought to,by thoſe that have not asked,to wit,ought of me;that is,I am now enquired of, ſought unto, called upon, (ſo the word is commonly taken: ſee Chap.55.6.Ezek.36.37.) by thoſe, who in former times,having no notice at all of me,Chap.52.15.& 55.5.Rom.15.20,21.had not wont to ask ought of me, that is, to ſeek to me for ought. So is the word moſt frequently uſed, 1 King.3.5,10,11.Chap.7.11.& 58.2. Hoſ.4.12. Zach.10.1. and I rather chooſe therefore to make the ſupply of me, then for me. See Rom. 10. 14. It is apparently ſpoken of the Gentiles, converted by the miniſtery of the Goſpel. The ſpeech is conciſe and quick; a defect both of the antecedent, and relative,before the latter verb,as Chap.64.5.and ſo in the next branch: Of the pronoun after it, as Chap.46.3. & 50.2, 4. in the next branch expreſſed,

I am found of them that ſought me not] I prevented their ſeeking of me,by ſending,and ſeeking of mine own accord to them,2 Cor.5.20.Eph.2.17. Which ſome of the Jewiſh Authors would again turn aſide unto Terah, and thoſe before Abraham,that had not ſought God, before God ſought them, Joſh. 24.2,3.

I ſaid,behold me, behold me, unto a nation that was not called by my name.] The Jews to pervert this paſſage, miſerably wreſt theſe words,expounding them, a nation not called by my name; that is,a nation that ſo carry themſelves,as if they were none of mine. But to leave them to their forced interpretations. Nor are ſome of ours, ſo cleer in their expoſitions of this paſſage: For ſome take them, as ſpoken in way of invitation to the Gentiles, as if God did thereby call upon them, to look after him,and come in to him,as Chap.45.22. or tender,and offer himſelf unto them, (as the Prophet to God, Chap.6.8.) being ready to entertain them, and make them his people, which before they were not, Deut.32.21. Hoſ.2.14.Rom.9.25. and this way our Verſion ſeems to encline. Others, as directed, and delivered, at departure to the Jews; Behold me, behold me, now leaving you, and paſſing to a nation that were none of mine before, according to that of the Apoſtle; Behold,we turn to the Gentiles, Act.13.46. The words run in the Hebrew, I have ſaid, or I ſay, (ſo would it be rendred to fit with the former) Lo I, Lo I; or, as it is frequently rendred, Here am I,here am I,Gen.22.1,7,11.& 27.18.Chap.6.8. and it is the voice of God returning a gracious anſwer unto the ſuits and ſupplications, of thoſe that ſeek to him by prayer; here am I at hand, ready to hear and help. So Chap. 58. 9. When thou ſhalt cry, he will ſay, Lo I; or here I am: and it is doubled, to intimate his forwardneſſe, to hear, and grant their requeſts: whereof ſee,ver.24. The latter words, ſome render,unto a nation that did not call upon my name, as Chap.64.7.Jer.10.25. and this ſenſe would well ſuit, both with the terms of the firſt branch,and with the former member of this, if the words of the text would bear it: But this word of calling here, is not a participle active; but a verb, in a weighty form paſſive: and there is but a vowel difference between either,which cauſed the miſtake.Our Verſion renders it aright, that was not called by my name,as Chap.63.19. that had not in times paſt born my name; had not been called, or accounted my people: there is a defect of the relative, as Chap.64.3,4. This whole verſe,ſome Interpreters render all in the future; I ſhall be ſought to; I ſhall be found; I ſhall ſay; becauſe it is a Prophecy of future times. But the Prophets manner is not unuſual to ſpeak of things to come,as paſt,or preſent; ſo Ch.13.4,5.& 19.1.Rev.1.7.

V. 2. I have ſpread out mine hands all the day unto a rebellious people,] Here we cloſe with the Jewiſh Commenters,and with good warrant from Rom. 10. 21. agree unto them, that the ſpeech is of them,and their nation, whom God had long laboured with from time to time, to reduce and reclaim; but in vain: and for their wilful obſtinacy therefore was now reſolved to reject,and to receive the Gentiles in room of them, Rom.11.11-24.

ſpread out my hands] As the manner is of thoſe that require audience,Act.26.1.or deſire acceptance,Prov.1.24.

all the day] Continually,conſtantly; as Chap.62.6.

unto a rebellious people] Or, a refractory people. Jer.5.23. that would by no means be reclaimed, ver.12. Chap.66.4. Jer. 7.13. & 11.7,8. for that expoſition of the word, that a Rabbine gives on the place, a people gone out of the way; though it ſuit well with what followeth, and the word may be deduced from that which ſignifies, to go aſide, Exod.32.8. yet it doth not ſo fully expreſs what the word uſually importeth,and is commonly therefore to another root referred.

which walketh in a way that was not good] Heb. that walk (for the word is plural, becauſe the word people, collective; ſo ver.3.) the way not good; that take no good courſe: or, in a way (the particle ſupplyed: as Neh.9.19.) that is not good; that it may anſwer the preſent walk: or, if we retain was,then,as ſome, that walked; not good: a form of diminution, for, evill, very bad, ſtark naught: as 1 Sam.2.24.Pſal.36.4. Prov.24.23. & 28.21.

after their own thoughts] Following, not the motions, and directions of my Word, and Spirit; but led by their own minds and luſts, Numb.15,39. 1 King.13.33. Pſal. 81. 11,12. 2 Pet.3.3.

V. 3. A people that provoketh me to anger continually to my face;] Heb. that provoke me, or, provoked me; as before,ver.2. See Chap.3.8.

to my face] That is, either ſimply, in Gods ſight, as Exod.20.3. Deut.5.7. & 31.29. as if a ſervant ſhould do things directly croſs to his maſters known mind and command, to his face: ſo David aggravateth his own ſin, Pſal.51.4. or, as ſome,in Gods own houſe,in his Sanctuary; of which,Pſal.42.2. and of their grievous profanations of Gods Temple, ſee 2 King.16.10-15. & 21.4,5,7. & 23.4,6. 2 Chr.36.14.Jer.7.10,11.& 11.15. Ezek.8.3-16. & 43.8. But the former ſenſe ſeems the more familiar.

that ſacrificeth in gardens] Heb. that ſacrifice (as before) in the gardens: ſuch as they have ſet apart for idolatrous ſervices, and dedicated to their idols. See Chap.1.29. & 66.17. the reaſon, ſaith one of the ancients, why Naboth would not part with his vineyard, to be converted, by Ahab, into a garden, that it might not be ſo abuſed: but that is a groundleſs conjecture. Howbeit, ſome underſtand it of their groves; whereof, ſee on Chap.17.8. & 27.9.

and burneth incenſe upon altars of brick] Heb. and burn incenſe (as before) upon bricks: who leaving Gods houſe, and his altar, ver.11. ſacrifice, and burn incenſe to idols of their own chooſing,in places of their own deſigning,upon altars of their own erecting: Which, in contempt, he calleth bricks; (ſo the word properly ſignifies, Exod.1.14. & 24.10.) from the matter whereof they were made; as Ezekiah the brazen ſerpent ſo abuſed,braſſe, 2 King.18.4. Some expound it,of ſuch ſtones, with figures engraven upon them, whereof mention is made,Lev.26.1.& Numb.33.52. But this ſeems a groundleſs conjecture. Others, of the tile-ſtones, wherewith their houſes were covered, on the tops whereof being flat-roofed, they were wont to ſacrifice, and burn incenſe to their idols. See Jer.19.13. this is more probable then that; but the firſt carrieth moſt likelihood.

V. 4. Which remain among the graves] Heb. Who ſit in, or, on, the graves: but to ſit, is oft uſed, for to ſtay, or abide, as 2 Sam 7.18. Jer.39.14. and the particle, in, or on, is ſometime uſed for, among: as Chap.57.6. that abide among the graves, to conſult with ſpirits, that haunt ſuch places; or, to have dealings with the dead, Deut.18.11. 1 Sam.28.8,11. Chap. 8. 19. Mar.5.5. The Chaldee rendreth it; that dwell in houſes built of the duſt, or, moulds, taken from graves.

and lodge in the monuments] That is, in their idol-Temples, as the old Latine hath it, or, in caves, under ground; or, cut out in rocks, as the Greek, there to expect dreams from their imaginary deities: which was an uſual practice among the Pagans, as appeareth from Ariſtophanes, Ariſtides the Sophiſter, & others; & Jerome on this place teſtifies to have bin practiſed by them, in his dayes. The word here uſed is ambiguous; it ſignifieth properly, places kept, or obſerved. Whence it is rendred, Chap.1.8. beſieged: and ſo it ſignifies, Ezek.6.12. ſome would have it here to ſignifie ſuch horrid places, as people therefore are wont cautiouſly to obſerve, for to ſhun and avoid. See on Chap.1.8. Others, ſecret, hidden, places: as hidden things, Chap.48.6. which agreeth well with thoſe ſecret vaults, caves, and cloſets, wherein the heathen had wont to have private commerce with their gods. Others, and this way the Jewiſh Criticks moſt go, render it, waſtes; deſolate places, ſuch, ſay they, as are oft-times haunted with Devils, Mat.12. 43. and ſo they would have the word taken, Chap.49.6. but of that there: or, as ſome of them, among the corpſes, that are kept in the graves, and there held as in priſons, or holds, chap. 14.18. Ezek.32.23. or, with the corpſes, for ſuperſtitious purpoſes, reſerved and kept by them. Some late Writers of note, that lodge with the kept ones. So, ſay they, in deriſion, are their idols here termed; becauſe they were kept carefully for fear of being ſtoln, as oft-times they were, Gen. 31. 19, 30. Judg.18.18,24. being not able to keep, or ſave themſelves, much leſſe thoſe, that ſerved them, by whoſe care and proviſion, they were to be kept from miſcarrying, Chap.41.7. and 46.1,2,7.

that eat ſwines fleſh] Forbidden by Gods Law then in force, Lev.11.7. Deut.14.8. Chap.66.3,17.

and broth of abominable things is in their veſſels:] Or, and in whoſe veſſels the broth of abominable things is: the demonſtrative, for the ralative; as Chap.54.5. and a defect of the particle in, as Chap.57.8. there is here a two-fold reading: Some read the firſt word merak, which ſignifies broth; ſo uſed, Judg. 6.19,20. and no where elſe found. So the Chaldee, Greek, and old Latine, render it; and the Jewiſh Criticks do moſt follow this reading: and they conceive the word following, to ſignifie the carcaſſe of any unclean creature, from Ezek. 4. 14. and conſequently, ſuch broth meant here, wherein the fleſh of any ſuch had been ſod: but ſome other read it perak, that ſignifies a fragment, or, part torn off; from a word, that ſignifies, to tear, or break, off, Exod. 32. 2. Nah.3.1. and thoſe that follow this reading, expound the word following, from Lev.7.18. & 19.7. where the ſame is uſed of the fleſh of ſome ſacrifices reſerved till the third day, deemed then to be abominable; and of ſuch fragments, or parcels, of fleſh, contrary to the Law ſo reſerved, would they have the words here to be underſtood; but no clear place appears for this uſe of the former word: and the other reading is the more received; and the rather, for that the latter word, where it is uſed of ſuch remainders ſo reſerved, ſeems to have ſome reference unto ſuch unclean fleſh, as implying, that being ſo reſerved, they ſhould be no more accepted, then any ſuch fleſh, in its kind unclean.

V. 5. Which ſay, Stand by thy ſelf, come not neer to me:] Theſe perſons as impure and profane, as they were, yet would ſeem to be holier, then others, and counted all unclean, and polluted, beſide themſelves. So the Phariſees, in Chriſts time, Luk. 5.30. & 7.39. & 18.11,12. and the Samaritanes anciently, Joh.4.9. as the ſtories of them relate; and the Jews, and Hereticks, in Jeromes time, yea to this day.

Stand by thy ſelf,] Heb. Approach, or, Draw neer, to thy ſelf: keep apart by thy ſelf; ſo the Jewiſh, and moſt of ours: though ſome, Get thee to thine; that is, to others like thy ſelf.

Come not neer to me;] touch me not; as the Samaritanes are reported to have cryed uſually to others, not of their way, as fearing to be defiled by them: this is ſuppoſed alſo to have been the reaſon why the Phariſees uſed to waſh ſo, when they came home from the market; as having contracted ſome defilement by the touch of others there, Mar. 7. 4. See Luk. 7. 39.

for I am holier then thee] So the Chaldee renders it; and the Jewiſh Commenters unanimouſly expound it. Heb. I ſanctifie thee; and becauſe the word, ſanctifie, is in Scripture uſed, ſometime, for to ſet apart for ſome ſacred uſe, Levit. 17. 5. 1 Sam.16.5. or, for ſlaughter, Jer. 12. 3. Some render the words, I will ſanctifie thee; that is, I will make a ſacrifice of thee; I will ſlay thee: and they ſuppoſe the words to have been ſpoken to the Prophet, repairing to them, when they were buſied about ſome of their abominable ſervices, or ſacrifices, to reprove them for the ſame, as giving him warning to keep aloof off, and let them alone, otherwiſe threatning to make a ſacrifice of him. Others, becauſe the word, Kadeſh, is ſometime uſed, for ſome unclean, vile, and abominable perſon, Gen.38.31. Deut.23.18. 1 King.14.24. & 15.12. Hoſ. 4. 14. and it is ſo rendred, Job 36.14. would therefore have the verb here to be taken in that ſenſe, and render it, I pollute thee; that is, I account thee a polluted, and unclean perſon; as Act.10.15. & 11.9. Do not thou pollute; that is, account polluted, or unclean: and the old Latine rendreth it, Thou art unclean: to which purpoſe, ſome apply that, Lam 4.15. ſome colour might this Interpretation ſeem to receive, from what is ſpoken of theſe perſons, Chap.66.17. where it is ſaid of them, that they ſanctifie themſelves in the gardens: if the word ſanctifie, might be taken there for, to pollute; as certain it is, that their ſanctification was no other then a groſs pollution; and the word ſanctifie, might by a kind of antiphraſis, be uſed for to defile, or unſanctifie: as the word to bleſs, ſometime, for, to curſe, Job 1.5. 1 King.21.13. but the words following there, carry it another way: nor is any place produced, where this verb is ſo uſed. We return therefore to the firſt, and moſt generally received Interpretation; wherein all the matter of doubt, or difficulty, ariſeth from the defect of a particle, or prepoſition, ſuch as in the affixing of pronouns to verbs, is oft-times omitted; this ſupplyed, it would be, I am holy from thee: of this kind of defects, ſee on Chap.28.15. & 47.8. and 48.10. & 49.24. of this particle in particular; Jer.10.20. my children are gone out me, for, gone out from me. Now this prepoſition in Hebrew, as παρα, in Greek; præ, in Latine, hath a peculiar uſe, in comparative notions: ſo good from, or above, as it is, ſometime, not amiſs rendred, Judg.5.24. Pſal.45.7. is, better, Prov. 22. 1. Eccl.7.1. wiſe from, or above, is, wiſer, 1 King.4.21. Ezek.28.3. and, holy from, or, above, is, holier. But an exact, and full inſtance of the like defect of the ſame particle, in the ſame uſe, we find, Jer. 20.7. where the Prophet ſpeaking to God, ſaith, thou art ſtrong me, for, ſtrong from, or above, me; that is, ſtronger then I, as it is well rendred there: and it may be, would as well be, holier then thou, here. The ancient Greek renders it, I am clean; but they take not notice of the pronoun affixed.

theſe are a ſmoke in my noſe, a fire, that burneth all the day.] Theſe are a continual provocation, and vexation, unto me, (ſee Chap.63.10) like ſmoke, that riſing from green wood, or other like wet fuel, is moſt grievous and offenſive to mans noſe, and eyes, Prov.10.20. See Chap. 3. 8. or, as ſome, Theſe will I in mine anger (as Chap. 9. 21.) diſpel, and diſperſe, like ſmoke, Pſal.68.2. and make fuel of them, matter for the fire, Chap.1.31. & 9.18. As others, My wrath incenſed by them, ſhall ſmoke againſt ſuch, and burn everlaſtingly againſt them, Deut.29.20. & 32.22. Pſal.18.8. & 37.20. & 104.32. & 144.5. Chap.14.31. & 30.33. & 34.9. & 66.24. The firſt ſeemeth moſt natural.

all the day] Or, all day long; continually: their continual provocations of him, oppoſed to Gods continual invitations of them, ver.2. So Hoſ.11.2.

V. 6. Behold, it is written before me] Or, is written, and lyeth before my face: a defective form of ſpeech; of which kind, ſee on Chap.38.21. Theſe their courſes are upon record with me; and this record lieth alwayes open before my face, (as was before ſaid of their ſins, verſ. 3.) that I may not forget them: a metaphor taken from the manner of men, great ones eſpecially, that keep books, or records, wherein they enter ſuch matters, as they would not have to be forgotten, Ezr. 4. 15,19. & 6.2. Eſt.6.1. So Deut. 32. 34. Pſal.56.8. Jer. 3.22. Hoſ.7.2. Mal. 3.16.

I will not keep ſilence] I will no longer forbear, as hitherto I have done, Pſal. 50. 21. & 83. 1. See Chap. 42. 14. and 64. 12.

but will recompenſe, even recompenſe into their boſome] Or, will repay, yea, repay (as Chap.44.15. Heb. and; as Chap.56.5,7.) into their lap: as it is rendred, Prov.6.33. that is, abundantly, largely: a figurative form of ſpeech, borrowed from thoſe, that deliver not, what they give out, by tale, meaſure, or, weight, but pour it forth into the receivers lap, without any regard how much they give of it. So Pſal.79.12. Jer.32.18. Luk.6. 38. the word is redoubled, to put the doing of it out of doubt, So Deut.32.41. Chap.59.18. Jer.51.56. Ezek.21.7.

V. 7. Your iniquities, and the iniquities of your fathers, together, (ſaith the Lord)] Some Interpreters repeat here, from ver.6. I will recompenſe, or repay; and inſert it into the text: but that is needleſſe; for the former words of this verſe, have an immediate dependance upon thoſe words in the former verſe: and our Verſion therefore cloſeth that verſe only with a comma; that neither Verſes, nor Chapters, are alwayes exactly diſtinguiſhed, was before obſerved, Chap. 58. 3. & 64. 1.

Your iniquities] Or, their iniquities; a change of the perſon: as Chap.1.29.

and the iniquities of your fathers together] The meaning is that when God ſhould ſet upon it, the ſins of that nation being come to their full height, (as of the Amorites he ſpeaks, Gen. 15.16.) he would remember, as well their anceſtors ſins, (which he had upon record, ver.6.) as their own; and would take vengeance for both together; that which no way impeacheth the juſtice of God: who although he lay nothing upon any perſon, but what his own particular ſins deſerve, yea, what comes indeed far ſhort of what is due to them, Ezr.9.13. Job 37.23. yet he hath an eye oft in inflicting judgments, on notorious wicked ones, deſcended alſo from ſuch, unto the ſins of their anceſtors, and either enhanceth, or lengtheneth, their afflictions, to make their ſufferings the more exemplary, that men may obſerve how execution of vengeance, though for ſome time delayed; yet even here falleth, at length oft, with a full ſtorm, on the race of the wicked. So 1 Sam.3. 12. Jer. 2.5. Lam. 5.7. Matth. 23. 32,35,36. and 27.25. 1 Theſſ. 2. 15, 16.

which have burnt incenſe upon the mountains, and blaſphemed me upon the hills:] Or, reproached, or diſhonoured, me, Chap.37. 4. Pſal.89.51. for it is no verbal, or vocal; but a reall, and actual reproach, that he chargeth them with; to wit, their idolatrous ſervices on ſuch places frequently exerciſed, Chap.57. 7. Jer.3.1,6. Ezek.18.6,11. & 22 9. Hoſ.4.13.

therefore will I meaſure their former work into their boſome.] Or, I will, I ſay, (Heb. and I will, as Chap. 58.10. & 59.17.) mete out the reward of their former work (Heb. firſt, for, former, or forepaſſed; as Chap.41.22. & 42.9. and, work, for, reward of work, as Chap.49.4. & 61.8. & 62.11.) into their lap; as verſ.6. a threefold repetition, to aſſure the certainty of it; as Ezek.21.14,27. and an interchange of perſons, as Chap. 1. 29. & 64.4.

V. 8. Thus ſaith the Lord,] Gods ſoreſt, and ſureſt menaces, have yet alwayes ſome matter of grace, and mercy, mixed with them, for the ſupport and comfort, of the few faithful: that which is here therefore annexed, and ſubjoyned, to this diſmall doom, concerning a remnant ſtill to be ſpared, and reſerved, for the propagating of his Church.

As the new wine is found in the cluſter, and one ſaith, Deſtroy it not, for a bleſſing is in it:] Or, As when (ſee Chap.17.5. and 64. 2.) wine (as Chap.62.8.) is found (as Chap. 13.15.) in a cluſter, one ſaith, (or, it is ſaid, men uſe to ſay, Jer.3.1. Mal.1. 4.) Deſtroy it not; for a bleſſing is in it. As when a vine being blaſted, or otherwiſe decayed, is grown ſo bad, and ſo barren, that ſcarce any good cluſter of grapes can be diſcerned on it, (Jer.8.13.) whereby it may be deemed to have any life left in it, or any likelihood conceived of its recovery, and ever becoming fruitful again; and the husbandman therefore is about either to ſtub it up, or to cut it down by the ground, if one chance to eſpy on ſome branch of it, ſome one cluſter that hath grapes with liquor in them, whereby it may appear, that there is life yet, in ſome part of it, and ſome hope therefore, that it may, by good husbandry, the dead branches of it being cut away, grow fruitful again; he may thereby be induced to forbear the utter rooting out, or hewing down, of it. This ſeems to be the genuine ſenſe of the ſimilitude: for the old Latine rendring it, a grane in a cluſter; hath led Interpreters aſide unto another ſimilitude, of ſaving a cluſter for a ſound grape, or two, among many withered, or rotten ones: applying it unto the ſaving of thoſe, that had any matter of ſound grace, or goodneſſe, in them, notwithſtanding the generality of the judgment, to be put in execution upon the main body of the profane, and rotten-hearted, Chap.17.6. & 24.13. but that ſeems to be beſides the Prophets ſcope in this place; in this compariſon, at leaſt.

a bleſſing in it] That is, according to ſome Interpreters, ſome good liquor in it, through Gods bleſſing upon it; all things conducible to the ſuſtentation of mans life, being in Scripture termed bleſſings, Deut.28.4,5. Joel 2.14. but by bleſſing, I rather ſuppoſe here to be meant, not ſo much the liquor in the cluſter, a matter of ſmall moment, as the life, and ſap, that it argued to be in the plant; whereby it might give hope of recovery, and growing fruitful again. See Chap.44.3,4. & 61. 9,11. Pſal.65.10. & 67.6.

ſo will I do for my ſervants ſake, that I may not deſtroy them all] Heb. not to deſtroy all. The meaning is, that for thoſe his ſincere ſervants, that remained yet among them, he would not deſtroy the whole nation. (ſee Mat.24.22.) but reſerve a remnant for poſterity, as he did with Noah, and his family, (whom the Chaldee here inſtanceth in) in the floud; though ſome alſo in his family, it may be, none of the beſt, Gen. 7. 1. & 9. 22,25. See Chap.63.17. See Jer.30.11. Amos 9.8.

V. 9. And I will bring forth a ſeed out of Jacob] Or, But; as Chap.61.6. I will reſerve a remnant of Jacobs poſterity, which I will bring back again, out of the Babylonian Captivity; a type, as oft before, of the ſpiritual delivery from the the ſervitude of ſin and Satan, Chap.9.20-22. & 43.5,6. Pſal. 22. 30.

a ſeed] A ſmall number, that ſhall be as a ſeed, which though ſmall, yet is apt to grow, both numerous, and great, Gen. 15. 5. & 26.4,12. Mat.13.31,32. See Rom.9.27,29.

and out of Judah, an inheriter of my mountains] Heb. a poſſeſſor; a certain number of Judahs poſterity, that ſhall poſſeſs the mountains of Judea. See Chap. 14. 23. Ezek. 36. 1, 8. and 38.8.

and mine Elect ſhall inherit it, & my Servants ſhall dwell there] Or, my choice ones (as Pſal.106.23. Chap.43.4. & 45.6. & 48. 10.) ſhall poſſeſs it, (to wit, their own land again) and my ſervants (thoſe faithful ones, for whoſe ſake, I forbear to deſtroy the whole, ver.8.) ſhall dwell there, Pſal.102.28.

V. 10. And Sharon ſhall be a fold of flocks, and the valley of Achor a place for herds to lye down in, for my people that have ſought me.] The countrey ſhall not only be peopled again, with men, but repleniſhed with cattel. See Jer.31.27.

Sharon] A pleaſant, and plentiful quarter, having good ſtore of paſture-grounds, 1 Chron.27.29. See Chap. 33. 9. & 35.2.

a fold of flocks] Or, rather, a paſture for ſmaller cattel; as the word is rendred, Ezek.34.14. for that ſeemeth but a nicety, that ſome, retaining the former, would have the meaning to be; that that whole region ſhould be as full of leſſer cattel, as a fold is wont to be of ſheep.

the valley of Achor] A very rich vale neer to Jericho: ſo called, from the execution done on Achan, and his there, who by his tranſgreſſion had diſturbed the whole State, Joſh.7.24, 26. promiſed, as here; ſo Hoſ.2.15. as a dore of hope to Gods people upon their return; of the enjoyment of their whole land again, becauſe it ſeems to have been the firſt ground that they ſet foot on, after their paſſage through Jordan, Joſh.3.16. And Eſay might well here have ſome eye to that of Hoſhea.

a place for herds to lye down in] Heb. a lodging, as Chap.35. 7. for neat, or oxen; as Chap.11.7. though I conceive that to be groundleſſe, that, from the former term, ſome would gather, that the whole vale ſhould be as full of beaſts, as a ſtall is wont to be: for the term is uſed very commonly of beaſts, lying down, and lodging, in thoſe places abroad, where they uſually feed, Pſal.23.2. Chap.13.20. & 27.10. Ezek. 34. 14. Now becauſe theſe two places were ſituate at either end of the land of Canaan, Achor, Eaſtward, neer Jordan; Sharon, Weſtward, neer to Joppe, hence ſome ſuppoſe, that the repoſſeſſion of the whole country is hereby implyed, and here intended. for my people that have ſought me] Or, unto my people, that ſeek to me: as ver.1. See Chap.64.4. Jer.29.13,14. Lam. 3. 25. Ezek.36.37.

V. 11. But ye are they, that forſake the Lord] Or, But ye, or, As for you, that have forſaken the Lord. Heb. And ye: But ſo, Chap.57.3. a place parallel to this. For as there, ſo here, having related what God would do for the better ſort of them, he proceedeth now, returning to the main body of the wicked ones, of whom before, ver.2-4. to illuſtrate the bleſſed, and comfortable eſtate of the one, by the curſed, and diſmal condition of the other.

that forſake the Lord] Or, have forſaken: as Chap. 1. 4, 28.

that forget mine holy mountain] Heb. my mountain of holineſſe; as Chap.56.7. mount Sion, whereon the Temple was ſituate, Chap.2.2. that regard it not, think not of it, have no mind to it; as Jer.2.32. Hoſ.8.14. contrary to that practice, and profeſſion of thoſe faithful ones, Pſal.102.14. & 137.5,6. See Chap.62.6,7.

that prepare a table for that troop] Or, that ſpread, or furniſh, a table. So Prov.9.2. Pſal.23.5. Chap.21.5. As Gods people had certain ſolemn feaſts, wherein they feaſted before God, Deut.16.14,15. Pſal.68.3. ſo had the idolaters, in imitation thereof, ſuch like feaſts, which they kept in the places where they worſhipped their idols, held as for them; becauſe in honour of them, Judg.9.27. Ezek.18.6,11. Amos 2.8. 1 Cor. 8.10. & 10.21. And this way, the word of ſpreading, or furniſhing, uſed commonly of tables, doth rather carry it, then the way of thoſe, who by table, here, would have an altar meant; becauſe Gods altar is ſometime found termed his table, Ezek. 41.22. Mal.1.7,12.

for that troop] Or, for the troop: ſo the word ſeems to ſignifie in the ſpeech of Leah, at the birth of Gad, whom ſhe therefore ſo named, when ſhe ſaid, as it is there rendred, A troop cometh, Gen.30.11. and Jacob, alluding to his name; Gad, a troop ſhall betroop; but he ſhall betroop them at laſt, Gen.49.19. and from the ſame root indeed, comes the word there rendred, a troop, as very commonly alſo elſewhere: but the word Gad, ſave in that ſpeech of Leah, is no where elſe found. Thoſe that take it here, in that notion, underſtand by it, either the multitude of their idols, which they ſo doted upon, that they thought they could never have enow of them, Judg.10.6. Jer. 2.28. & 11.13. and are ſaid therefore to be in their whoredomes unſatiable, Ezek.16.24-26,28,29. & 23.40-44. ſo the Chaldee ſeems to take it ; or, the hoſt of heaven, the celeſtial bodies, which they worſhipped inſtead of the maker both of themſelves, and them, Jer.7.18. & 8.2. and ſo ſome of the Rabbines upon this place. But the moſt of them hold it to be the name of a particular ſtar, or an imaginary deity, to wit, Luck, or Fortune, in Arabick ſo termed ; and in effect both fancies come home to one : for they that make a ſtar of it, which ſome affirm to be the planet Jupiter, ſay, there is no ſtar, for luckineſs, where it favoureth, like to it ; and they tell us withal, that in old time, they uſed, in every houſe to have a bed, or, a table, (for on beds they tabled anciently) continually ſpread for this idol ; which was commonly called ; Good lucks table, or bed. And Jerome relateth, that in Alexdria, and other cities of Egypt eſpecially, on the laſt day of the yeer, there uſed to be a table ſpread and furniſhed, with variety of diſhes, and delicacies, both of meat and drink, for this idol, either in way of thankfulneſſe, for the proſperity and fertility of the yeer paſt ; or to procure and obtain from it the like for the yeer enſuing.

and that furniſh the drink-offering] Heb. that fill mixture ; that is, wine : at firſt ſo termed, becauſe they uſed in their ordinary uſe of it, to mix it with water, to abate the ſtrength of it : but from that uſe in proceſs of time, both in Hebrew, and other languages, the Greek eſpecially, the word of mixture, came to be uſed for wine ; or, any ſuch liquor as wine : ſo Pſal. 75.8. the cup in Gods hand is ſaid to be full of mixture ; that is, of ſtrong liquor : and to take us off from fancying ſome mixture there intended, Rev.14.10. the wine in that cup is ſaid to be (word for word) mixed unmixed : which may ſeem to imply a contradiction ; but is well rendred, poured out (or, if ye will, powred in) without mixture ; for the verb to mix, or mingle, is from the ſame ground uſed commonly, both in Hebrew, Greek, & Latine ; for to pour in, pour out, and ſerve out, wine, or other liquor, ſimply, without reſpect had to any mixture : and ſo would it be rendred, Prov. 9.2. where it is ſaid, of Wiſdome, ſhe hath poured out her wine ; to wit, into cups, ready to be ſerved out : where they render it amiſſe, ſhe hath mingled her wine ; that is huckſters faſhion, alluded to, Chap.1.22. not hers. So Prov.23.30. it is ſaid of wine-bibbers, that they go out to ſeek mixture ; that is, wine, or liquor ; where alſo it is ill rendred, mixt wine : for it is the meer, not the mixt, that they affect, and look after ; and no leſs abſurd is one of the Jewiſh Doctors note here, mixture ; that is, wine mixt with water : they would not in likelihood deal ſo with their deities, eſpecially when they intended, as for the moſt part they did, to drink moſt of it themſelves : another of them much better expoundeth it, a drink-offering, as our verſion alſo rendreth it ; but the word ſignifies, as hath been ſaid, and ſhewed : and to fill wine, or, fill out wine, or other liquor, is a form of ſpeech with us alſo not unuſual.

unto that number] The word here uſed is commonly deemed to ſpring from a root, that ſignifies to number, Gen.13.16. Num.23.10. 2 Sam.24.1. Dan.5.23,26. Whence ſome render it by number : and of theſe ſome ſuppoſe it to be meant of pouring out a certain number of cups, either according to the number of their idols, unto which they performed thoſe rites ; or of thoſe perſons that joyned together in the ſervice. Some again, of their own, drinking by number : For thus, as ſometime at their carouſing feaſts, they uſed to drink healths, according to the number of letters in the parties name, that they drank the health to : ſo in the ſolemn feaſts of Anna Peranna, one of their idols, they were wont to drink, in honour of her, as many cups, as they deſired years, to have their life prolonged by her, by which means ſometime their dayes came to be abbridged of what otherwiſe they might have been. Of the former, ſee Martial, lib.1.Epigr.12. Of the latter, Ovid, in his Faſt, lib.4. Others render them, as our Verſion hath it, unto that number, or, unto the number ; that is, as before, to the numberleſſe number, either of their idols, or of the celeſtiall bodies : though ſome more ſpecially to the ſeven planets, or the conſtellations, which the Aſtrologers have reduced to a a certain number. Others, laſtly, render it, as our margent exhibits it ; unto Meni, or unto Mni, which they ſuppoſe to be the name of one of the Planets ; that which we call Mercury, and to be the Merchants God, ſo termed from numbring, or caſting up of accounts, a buſineſſe, about which they are much converſant ; and from the word Maneh. in Hebrew, Mna in Greek, and Mina, in Latine, for a pound, hath its name. And of this name, that an Idol was anciently in Armenia and Phrygia, worſhipped, is by a learned man out of Strabo, and Jamblicus, reported : Whereunto may be added, that Armenia is ſuppoſed to have been termed, as ſome, from Aram, and Minni, or Menni, as the Latine rendreth it, mentioned Jer. 51.27. or, as others, of Har, and Minni, as the mountainous part of Minni, which Minni being the ancienteſt appellation of that countrey, may probably be deemed to have been the name of ſome great man that there ruled, and was after his deceaſe (as the manner was) deified by his poſterity. See the like, Chap.46.1. Jer.50.2.

V. 12. Therefore will I number you to the ſword,] Heb. And ; Yet ſometime the copulative is put for the relative, as Chap. 47.8. & 63.12. But it may well be here an expletive onely, as oft it is, Ezr.1.1. Ezek.17.22. Jon.1.1. I will number you to the ſword ; or, if ſome emphaſis be deemed in it, I will even, or in like manner, number you to the ſword : Becauſe the word before-going, had either a notion of numbring in it, or a neer affinity in ſound, at leaſt, with the Hebrew word, that ſo ſignifies ; God, by the Prophet, taketh occaſion to deliver their doom, in theſe terms, as if he had ſaid ; I will alſo in no ſmall number, ſet you apart for the ſword ; or I will deliver you up to it (that is, as the next words ſhew, I will deſign you to ſlaughter) by number and tale, ſo that none of you ſhall eſcape. See the manner of ſetting out ſome in that ſort, that may ſeem here alluded to, 2 Sam.8.2.

and ye ſhall all bow down to the ſlaughter] As you uſed to bow your ſelves down before your idols, Chap.44.15,17. or like thoſe beaſts, which you uſed to knock down, to ſacrifice to your idols. See the uſe of the word, Judg.5.27. Chap.10.4. & 46.1,2. and like alluſions, Chap.1.29,30.

all] Not ſome, but all of you : I will not ſtand to tithe you out, as in execution of multitudes is uſually done, or ſever and ſingle out, as well ſome to be ſaved, as others to ſuffer, as David did with the Moabites, 2 Sam. 8.2. but deliver you all out to ſlaughter, and that by tale alſo, that none of you may eſcape.

becauſe when I called, ye did not anſwer ; when I ſpake, ye did not hear ;] Or, Ye would not anſwer ; ye would not hear ; to expreſſe more pregnantly their wilful obſtinacy. Heb. becauſe I called, and ye anſwered not ; I ſpake, and ye heard not. But the like Syntax is frequent, as Chap.44.14. & 53.2. & 59.16. and the indicative in a potential, or ſpontaneous notion, as common : and ſo it is well rendred, Pſal.81.11. Jer.36.25. and would alſo be, Prov,13.1,8. Jer.7.24,26. Zach.1.4. See Prov.1. 24,25. Chap.50.2. & 66.4. Jer.7.13.

I called——ſpake] In, and by my Prophets, whom ye refuſed to hear, and obey, Zach.7.7,11,12. 2 Cor.5.20. & 13.3.

but did evil before mine eyes] Or, did that which was evil in my ſight. (See Chap.57.1.) that is, that that is diſpleaſing to me, as 2 Sam.11.27. chap.66.4. See ver.3.

and did chooſe that wherein I delighted not :] Or, which I would not, to wit, have to be done, as 1 King.13.33. Pſal.40.6. with Heb.10.5. but expreſly forbad, and utterly abhorred. See chap.66.3,4.

V. 13. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord God, Behold,] Behold, intimating a ſtrange alteration, as chap.51.22. & 62.11. four ſeveral times repeated, to make the deeper impreſſion.

behold, my Servants ſhall eat, but ye ſhall be hungry ; behold, my Servants ſhall drink, but ye ſhall be thirſty ;] Or, when my Servants ſhall eat, ye ſhall be hungry ; when my Servants ſhall drink, ye ſhall be thirſty ; or, my Servants ſhall eat, when ye ſhall be hungry ; my Servants ſhall drink, when ye ſhall be thirſty. Heb. and ye ſhall be hungry, and ye ſhall be thirſty : the ſame ſyntax with that ver.12. Thoſe that have been loyal and faithful to me, ver.9. whom ye have vilified and abuſed, ver. 5. Chap.66.5. ſhall enjoy plenty, and live cheerfully, when it ſhall be far otherwiſe with you, Pſal. 37. 11,19,20. and 68.1-3,6. Eccleſ. 9.7.

behold, my ſervants ſhall rejoyce, but ye ſhall be aſhamed.] Chap. 66.5. Dan.12.2. the ſyntax, as before.

V. 14. Behold, my ſervants ſhall ſing for joy of heart ; but ye ſhall cry for ſorrow of heart, and ſhall howl for vexation of Spirit] A further enlargement of the laſt branch of the verſe foregoing. See Pſal.68.3. Prov.29.6. Luk.6.20,21,24,25.

joy of heart] Heb. goodneſſe of heart, as Deut.28.47. ſo, a good heart, for, a merry, or a cheerfull heart, Eſt. 1. 10. Prov. 15.15.

vexation of ſpirit.] Heb. breach, or, brokenneſſe of ſpirit ; as, Prov, 15. 4. a breach in the Spirit. See Chap. 61. 1.

V. 15. And ye ſhall leave your name for a curſe unto my choſen.] Your very name ſhall be accurſed, and uſed in curſing, as when men ſay, God make thee like ſuch an one. See Chap.43. 28. Jer.24.9. & 29.22. & 34.9.

for a curſe] Becauſe unto ſolemn oaths were execrations uſually annexed ; Let that befall me, that befell ſuch an one, if I fail, or break my faith, Num. 5. 21. 1 King. 19. 2. Neh. 10. 19.

my choſen] See ver.9.

for the Lord God ſhall ſlay thee] Heb. and ; (as chap.64.4.) Adonai Jehovah ſhall ſlay thee : a change of the number ; as chap.64.5. See ver.12.

and call his ſervants by another name:] Heb. ſhall to his Servants call another name; as Deut. 2. 11, 20. chap.47.1. By name,is ones ſtate,or condition, in Scripture, commonly implyed; and by change of name,is an alteration of ſtate ordinarily intimated. Hereof ſee, chap.62.4. by another name then, is here meant,either another ſtate,then they were formerly in, in regard whereof other terms ſhould be given them, and ſpeeches uſed of them, then heretofore had been, Hoſ.1.6,9. & 2.1,23.Rom.9.26.1 Pet.2.10. or,a divers ſtate and condition from the wickeds, before ſpoken of; ſuch as ſhould be uſed,not in curſing,but in bleſſing. See Gen.28.3,4.& 48.20. Ruth 4. 11. and this way the Jewiſh Commenters go. Howbeit, divers Interpreters here maintain debate about this other name,or new name; (as it ſeems termed, chap. 62. 2. as, other tongues,and new tongues,are one, and the ſame, Mar. 16. 17. & Act.2.4.) and diſpute much what particular name it ſhould be; and ſome here would have it to be the name, of a ſtable people;or, the people of the true God,ver.16. Others,the name of Gods children,Ioh.1.12. Gal.3.26. & 4.4-6. Others, the name of Chriſtians, at Antioch firſt given them; now an honourable title,whereas the name of a Jew is grown reproachful and odious, Act.11.28. 1 Pet.4.16. But that of the Rabbines ſeemeth moſt agreeable to the courſe and current of the context.

V. 16. That he who bleſſeth himſelf in the earth, ſhall bleſſe himſelf in the God of truth; and he that ſweareth in the earth, ſhall ſwear by the God of truth.] So that men, in bleſſing, and ſwearing, ſhall make uſe of your names; as in curſings, and execrations of theirs, ver. 15. Though ſome ſuppoſe,that by bleſſing, and ſwearing, is here intended the whole Worſhip of God,as chap.19.18. Jer.4.2. and the meaning to be, that all religious Worſhip, ſhall be given generally to the true God, and not,as formerly,to idols, chap.45.23. But this ſeems not the ſcope of the Prophet in this place.

That] Or, So that: To make the connexion of this with the former the more cleer.

he who bleſſeth himſelf] Or,that bleſſeth,ſimply,either himſelf,or any other: he that wiſheth, deſireth, or prayeth for good unto any: for theſe forms are not always, in notion,or uſe,reciprocal; as by many inſtances might be ſhewed. See Gen.22.18.& 26.4,chap.66.10.

in the earth] Either on earth,as chap.42.4.Mat.16.19. & 18. 18. or in the land,to wit,where Gods ſervants abide, as chap. 5.8 & 6.12.& 60.18, ſhall bleſſe himſelf] Or,bleſſe,ſimply.

in the God of truth] God indeed is ſo ſtyled, a God of truth, Pſal.31.5.Jer.10.10. whereof ſee there, and the word, Amen, here uſed, given unto Chriſt, expounded, faithfull and true, Rev.3.14. but the word is an attribute, not an abſtract, and hath relation therefore to ſome ſubject, which to make the ſenſe entire, therefore muſt be ſupplyed: it ſignifies, firm, faithfull,ſtable,ſtedfaſt: it wanteth his ſubject here, (the like whereunto, we have frequently found in this Prophet. See Chap.5.4.& 17.5,10.) which ſome ſupply people,rendring the words, ſhall bleſſe by the God of the faithfull, or firm, and ſtable people, Pſal. 89.16,37. they ſhall in bleſſing uſe the name of God,as having relation to his people, and mention them withall as a people bleſſed, and eſtabliſhed, by him; as they ſhall bleſſe in Gods name, as craving and expecting the bleſſing from him: ſo mentioning Gods people,and their condition, as a precedent, and pattern, of the good that they wiſh unto any. So Gen. 28.4. & 48.15,16,20. Ruth 4. 11. See Zach.8.13.

that ſweareth in the earth] On earth,or in the land, as before, and as Chap.66.8.

ſhall ſwear by the God of truth]Or, by the God of the faithful, or firm & ſtable people,that is,they ſhal in their ſolemn oaths, mention together with him, his goodneſſe to them,and their bleſſed eſtate,& ſetled condition,by reaſon thereof.In ſolemn oaths,they uſed,as execrations and curſings,if they meant not truly,or ſhould deal unfaithfully: ſo bleſſings alſo, and expreſſions of deſire to live and thrive, do well and proſper, as their intentions were ſincere, and their performances ſhould be faithful. So the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 15. 31. by our rejoycing which we have in the Lord Jeſus, that is, ſo may I have joy together with you in the Lord God;and as we uſe to ſay,So help me God. The meaning then is, that in conceiving oaths, they ſhould uſe ſuch forms as theſe, or the like; The Lord that bleſſed ſuch,and ſuch his ſervants,bleſſe me,and mine, in like manner, and no otherwiſe, then as I ſhall deal ſincerely and faithfully, in that,which by oath I now oblige my ſelf unto.

becauſe the former troubles are forgotten] Or,when(as Job 3. 22. & 5. 21.) the former afflictions ſhall be forgotten: When former matters,both your ſins (as Chap.43.25. Jer.31.34. ſay ſome) your ſorrows and ſufferings (as Chap.54.4. which all agree in) ſhall no more be minded,then as if they never had been. See Zach.10.6.

and becauſe they are hid from mine eyes.] Or, and when they ſhall be hid from mine eyes. This ſome (as was before hinted) underſtand of their ſins, the procuring cauſes of their former afflictions and ſorrows; which as they are ſaid to ly open to Gods eye, ſo long as men after the committing of them continue obſtinate and impenitent,ver.3,6. ſo, upon mans repentance,they are ſaid to be covered,and hid from Gods ſight; he regarding them no more now to take vengeance, or caſt off, for them,then if he neither ſaw,nor knew them, Pſal. 32.1.& 85.2.Chap.38.17. Mic.7.19. But becauſe there is no mention at all of ſins, in the text; Others therefore underſtand this alſo,as the former, of their ſufferings and afflictions, that God out of his tender affection to his children, that had been long in ſtreits and difficulties, as not able to endure longer to ſee them in that miſery, ſhould utterly remove them now out of his ſight,by delivering his people out of them,and putting a full period to their grievous preſſures, Exod. 3. 7, 8. Num.23.21.Pſal.106.44,45.Chap.16.4.& 26.17.& 60.18.See Chap.63.15.& 64.12.

V. 17. For behold,] A further more ſtrange alteration, ſubjoyned, to give further aſſurance of the change formerly mentioned, not without a multiplyed iteration of this note of wonderment, ver. 13,14. See the like of our Saviour, Joh. 5.25,28.

I create new heavens,and a new earth:] Or, I am creating a new heaven (as Chap.1.2.) and a new earth; I am even now about it,as Chap.3.1. and ſo ver. 18. I am making of a new world; I am about ſo to alter and change the face and ſtate of all things, that the whole frame of the creature ſhall ſeem not to be the ſame, that before it was. This applyed to the external ſtate and condition of Gods people, may bear that interpretation, that ſome here have given it; the sky not cloudy and gloomy, as hinting Gods wrath, and expreſſing his frown,Joel 2.2.Amos 5.18. but clear and fair, and lightſome and ſeaſonable, Chap.30.26. & 60.1. the ground not horrid, and waſte,and ſhapeleſſe,and fruitleſſe, Jer. 4.23-26. but pleaſant,delightful,fertile,and fruitful, Chap.4.2. or that which ſome other have, that the change of their condition ſhall be ſo great, their proſperity ſuch, in regard of their former afflictions and adverſity, that coming ſuddenly out of the one into the other, they ſhall ſeem to be in a new,in another world. See Pſal.126.1. But, being ſpiritually underſtood,is applyable to the ſtate of the Church, in the times of the Goſpel,under the Kingdom of Chriſt, in regard of thoſe plentiful endowments of ſpiritual graces, that therein ſhould abound,the myſteries of Salvation,being much more clearly revealed, and the ſervice and worſhip of God in a more ſpiritual way ſetled, thoſe former types and ſhadows,being taken away and removed, Joh. 1. 16,17. & 4.21-24. Act.2.17,33. 2 Cor.3.6,18. Heb.9.1-12. & 10.1-9. and hereunto do the Apoſtles apply this renovation of the Church, in this world then to be inchoated, 2 Cor. 5.17. to be conſummated in the next, 2 Pet.3.13. Rev. 21.1,5. and thus alſo do ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors expound it. See Chap.66.22.

and the former ſhall not be remembred, nor come into mind.] Heb.aſcend unto the heart;as Jer.3.16. 1 Cor.2.9. and it ſeems a form of ſpeech taken from thoſe vapours,or ſteams, that being ſent up from the ſtomack, and poſſeſſing the brain, are wont to produce fantaſies and dreams; as if it were ſaid, they ſhall not ſo much as be once dreamed of. The meaning is, that the ſpiritual excellency of the Church in thoſe times,ſhal ſo far exceed that, which in former time it had been, that the conſideration of the one, ſhall ſeem to drown and aboliſh the memorial of the other,Jer.3.16.2 Cor.3.7-10.

V. 18. But be ye glad, and rejoyce for ever, in that which I create:] Or, am creating; as ver. 17. a defect both of antecedent,and relative; as ver.1.

be glad,and rejoyce] This ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters conceive to be ſpoken, as that which ſhould be the conſtant and continual language of thoſe times, enciting one another to chearfulneſſe and joyfulneſſe, ſuch as the condition of the times required. So it ſhould be like that, Let us rejoyce,and be glad, Pſal.118.24. Rev.19.7. But it is rather the ſpeech of God himſelf, as calling upon his people, to rejoyce in the good intended by him, for them, in the reſtitution of his Church, Chap.66.10. ſo withall aſſuring them, that howſoever it fared with the wicked ones, ver. 12-15. yet it ſhould go well with them, Chap. 3.10.they ſhould not want juſt matter,and occaſion of joy; and withall,that this matter, and occaſion of joy in them, ſhould not be momentary, and fading,ſuddenly come, and ſoon gone, like Jonas his gourd, Jon. 4. 10. but ſhould be permanent, and perpetual, Chap. 35.10.

in that which I create]Or,am creating; reſtitution and renovation, eſpecially for the better, is deemed as a creation, ver. 17. Pſal.104.30. So Pſal. 51.10. Epheſ. 2. 10. and 4. 24.

for behold,I create Jeruſalem a rejoycing, and her people a joy.] Heb. I am creating,as ver.17. the word of creating here implying not a bare reſtitution onely, but a reſtitution in a glorious and magnificent manner: for of ſuch kind of works alſo is the word uſed, Gen. 1. 26, 27. Deut. 4. 32. chap. 40. 26. I am repairing her, and reſtoring her to ſo glorious a condition, as will miniſter matter of abundance of joy, both to her, and them, and all that are well affected unto either. I am about the doing of that, that I have been ſo much, and ſo long ſolicited for, by my ſervants, chap. 62. 7. Heb. for rejoycing, and for joy; as, for a bleſſing, Pſal. 37. 26. Prov. 10. 7. or, a bleſſing, ſimply; and joy, and rejoycing, for matter of mirth and joy; as praiſe, for matter of praiſe, chap. 60. 18. & 61. 11. for rejoycing, and for joy, that is, to be matter of rejoycing, and of joy; as, for a curſe, that is, to be matter of a curſe, ver. 15.

V. 19. And I will rejoyce in Jeruſalem, and joy in my people:] They ſhall rejoyce in me, chap. 61. 10. and I will rejoyce in them, chap. 62. 5. as it is much matter of joy unto an affectionate parent to ſee his children do well; and to a gracious Soveraign to ſee his people proſper and flouriſh, Pſal. 35. 27. Jer. 32. 41. 1 Theſſ. 2. 19, 20. & 3. 8, 9. 2 Ioh. 4. 3 Joh. 3, 4. and the voice of weeping ſhall be no more heard in her, nor the voice of crying.] See the like promiſes, chap. 35. 11. & 51. 11. Jer. 31. 12. Rev. 21. 4. for thoſe Jewiſh Doctors narrow the text over-much, that reſtrain weeping, and crying here, to the mourning for perſons, either ſlain, or taken away by immature death; becauſe of that which followeth, ver. 20. Howbeit, it is well obſerved, both by ſome of them, and other learned, that in theſe, and the like predictions and promiſes, the terms, no more, and for ever; as they concern the ſtate and condition of this preſent life, have in them a notion of diuturnity; as they have reference to the life to come, a notion of perpetuity: as alſo that for the ſubject matter of them, or the things therein propounded, or promiſed, as they concern the former, they import a degree onely of eminency; as they have relation to the latter, a pitch of abſolute perfection. In this manner are we to underſtand, as theſe, and the enſuing paſſages; ſo alſo thoſe, chap. 54. 9. & 60. 18. and other the like.

V. 20. There ſhall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man, that hath not filled his dayes: for the child ſhall dy an hundred years old; but the ſinner being an hundred years old ſhall be accurſed.] Albeit, there be no ſuch great difficulty in this paſſage; but the literal ſenſe of the words, (as I conceive) if the Hebrew forms, uſed in it, be adviſedly weighed, will appear to be obvious enough, and familiar: Yet it is ſtrange to ſee what a number of far-fetcht ſenſes have been forced upon it; ſo that among that multitude of Interpreters, that are commonly in hands, ſcarce any, very few, at leaſt, found, that hold out the genuine ſenſe of the place. The Jewiſh Doctors underſtand it of the length of years, that their nation ſhall attain to, in the dayes of the Meſſias; to wit, that then they ſhould live as long as the Fathers did before the floud, and that therefore a man at an hundred years ſhould be counted but a boy, or child, ſtill; and one that ſhould dy at theſe years ſhould be deemed ſome accurſed creature, as having his life ſhortned by God for his ſins. Others, run out to morall, and myſtical ſenſes. Some, that whereas in former times, they had many grey heads, with green wits; many ancient for years, but of babiſh diſpoſition, and childiſh behaviour, there ſhould now be none ſuch among them; but their old men ſhould be grave, ſound, and diſcreet, able to fulfill, and perform all offices required of them, at that age, in their places: and as for thoſe boyiſh, or childiſh old men, for behaviour and carriage, they ſhould, as accurſed wretches, be conſumed and worn out, in the time of the captivity. Some, that whereas God did formerly threaten, that if the Magiſtrates did not duly perform their duty, in doing juſtice upon delinquents, he would himſelf do it, by taking away perſons ſo ſpared, by untimely and iſſuleſs death, Lev. 20. 4, 5, 20, 21. as he did Er, and Onan, Gen. 38 7, 10. that now ſhould not be, it ſhould not need: for that the Magiſtrates ſhould now be very ſtrict and exact in the execution of juſtice, not ſparing any for age, though he were an hundred years old. Some, that whereas the Law, as a petty School-maſter, kept men like children, and infants, in their firſt elements, or rudiments, unto their old age, the Goſpel ſhould bring them unto maturity and perfection, Gal. 3. 24. & 4. 3. Heb. 7. 19. Others, that in the times of the Goſpel, all true Believers ſhould be continually growing up in grace, untill they came to a full growth, in which then they ſhould continue for ever, Eph. 4. 12-16. Others, that a child in the Kingdom of Chriſt, ſhall be happier, then an old man in the Kingdom of the world: for a child in the kingdom of Chriſt, ſhall attain to an happy perfection of life; whereas in the Kingdom of the world, a ſinner, even then when he ſeemeth to have attained a perfection of life, ſhall be accurſed. Others, refer it all to the reſurrection, and the life to come, wherein there ſhall be no difference of old and young, but children ſhal riſe in a perfect ſtature, and old men ſhall be raiſed in youth-like vigour and ſtrength. Some few have diſcovered, that long life is here promiſed, after their return from captivity, to Gods people: but in opening of the words, they have gone ſomewhat wide. For the better conceiving whereof aright, we are to conſider that length of life, is, in Scripture, frequently promiſed, as a bleſſing, Exod. 20. 12. Deut. 4. 1, 40. & 6. 2. Pſal. 21. 4. & 61. 6. & 91. 16. Prov. 3. 2, 16. Eph. 6. 2. and, on the other ſide, the ſhortning of mens lives mentioned, and threatned, as a curſe, 1 Sam. 2. 32. Iob 15. 32, 33. Pſal. 55. 23. & 94. 23. & 102. 24. Eccl. 8. 13. God therefore, among other bleſſings which he would confer upon his people now refined, and reſtored, promiſeth this, as one ordinarily much deſired, that none among them, young or old, ſhould be taken away by untimely death; but ſhould live to the utmoſt of that, which in the courſe of nature they might reach; and others of their condition, and conſtitution, are (where not impeached by any croſſe, occurrent from within, or from without) wont uſually to attain. See ver. 22. Zach. 6. 4. Howbeit, that the wicked, ſuch as remained ſtill unreformed among them, (as ſome few yet, even in thoſe times might) though their lives in thoſe times of publike peace and tranquility, might be prolonged; yet a curſe of God ſhould purſue them, and at laſt ſeize upon them, they ſhould be but accurſed creatures, Pſal. 140. 11. Eccl. 8. 12, 13. But we ſhall diſcuſſe the terms apart as they ly in the text.

There ſhall be no more from thence] There ſhall not hereafter, as in former times, go out, or be carried out, to wit, unto burial, from thence; that is, from Jeruſalem, ver. 19. but put here for the whole Land and State of Iſrael; becauſe the head city of the Kingdome: and thus far the Jewiſh Commenters go along with us. See Eccl. 8. 10. So muſt the words, from thence, be underſtood, as with a notion of place; not, as ſome, from thenceforth, in a notion of time: the word is no where found ſo uſed.

an infant of dayes] The word, here uſed, ſeems by a late learned Scholiaſt, to be taken for an embryo, or child conceived, and contained, as yet in the womb: for he rendreth the text, a youngling, or little infant, that ſhall not fulfill, or accompliſh his dayes; that is, ſaith he, the dayes required, for the birth of it, with life. So this branch of the promiſe, ſhould be equivolent with that, Exod. 23. 26. that none among them, going with child, ſhould miſcarry, or, be abortive. And it is true indeed, that a word of neer affinity to this, and whereby the Jewiſh Commenters here expound this, is uſed of ſuch, Job 3. 19. as infants, that never ſaw light; as alſo that, Gen. 33. 13. a word deemed to be of the ſame kindred with this, is rendred, great with young. But this, I ſuppoſe, here, to have been this learned mans ſingular conceit, and ſo leave it. That word wherewith theſe Jewiſh Maſters here render it, is ſuppoſed commonly, to ſignifie a ſucking-child, or, a ſuckling; but we find thoſe two diſtinguiſhed, the one from the other, 1 Sam. 15. 3. & 22. 19. Jer. 44. 7. Lam. 2. 11. See on Chap. 49. 15. and as that, ſo this ſeems to be uſed more generally, for a child, or boy, though of ſome bigneſſe; for as of the one it is ſaid, the children ask bread, Lam. 4. 4. ſo of the other, boyes deſpiſe me, and ſpeak againſt me, or prate of me, Job 19. 18. which of ſucking children, can neither of them fitly be ſaid. But by a child, or a boy, of daies, what ſhould be meant, is further queſtioned; and here ſome would have the meaning to be, one of many daies; as Joſh. 23. 1, 2. gone in dayes, is uſed for, ſtricken in age: and Dan. 10. 14. the viſion is for dayes; that is, for many dayes, as our Engliſh well renders it; and ſo a boy, or, a child, of days, ſhould be one, that hath lived a long time, many dayes, is far ſtricken in yeers; and yet continueth ſtill a child, childiſh, or boyiſh. Others would have it, a child of dayes; that is, of few dayes: as, a number, for, a ſmall number. See Chap. 10. 19. But to let paſſe theſe needleſſe ſupplies; a child of dayes, here ſignifies, as the words ſimply, and properly, import, a child for dayes; one in regard of dayes, or age, but a child: and the oppoſite word, old man, joyned with it, doth evidently evince, that to be the true notion, both of the word, and form, here uſed. So that the meaning of the words, no child, that ſhall not fulfil, or, accompliſh, his dayes, is, that their children ſhould not come to untimely ends, as formerly; having their brains daſhed out by the enemy, 2 King. 8. 12. Pſal. 137. 8, 9. Jer. 9. 20. or being ſtarved for want of food in the ſiege of the city, Lam. 2. 11, 12, 22. but ſhould live, & attain to their juſt growth, and full ſtint of yeers; and herein alſo the Jewiſh Criticks accord.

nor an old man that hath not filled his dayes;] Heb. and an old man: but the copulative, is here in a diſcretive, or disjunctive notion; as, father and mother, for, father or mother, Exod. 21. 15. as, the child, and the old man, are here oppoſed: ſo the old man, and the full of dayes, are diſtinguiſhed, Ier. 6. 11. and the Jewiſh Maſters here are ſomewhat curious, in their explication of theſe terms: a man, ſay they, is deemed an old man, at ſixtie, but is not ſaid to be full of days, or to have filled his dayes, untill he reach unto ſeventie, the ſtint of mans life, Pſal. 90. 10. ſo it is ſaid of David, that he died full of dayes, 1 Chron.29.28. and yet he lived not beyond ſeventie; for he began to reign when he was thirtie year old, and reigned fortie, 2 Sam.5.4. but, ſay they, now they were to live hundreds of years, as they did before the floud: had they ſaid an hundred years, they had not ſpoken much amiſſe; for the words following imply as much; but their computation is with the niceſt, and their aſſertion too hyperbolical: a man is then ſaid to have filled, or accompliſhed his days, when he hath lived ſo long, as in courſe of nature, he might well reach; being not, by any caſualty intervening, debarred from attaining thereunto.

for the child ſhall die an hundred years old:] The child, or boy, or lad, or youth, or young man; for it is not the word, that was before uſed; but another, which in Scripture ſeemeth to comprehend infancy, child-hood, and youth: and ſometime alſo, to take in men of middle age. Some would ſtint it at twenty years; and it is given to Joſeph at ſeventeen, Gen.37.2. but to Benjamin, when he is deemed to have been above thirty, Gen. 43.8. this child, or what you pleaſe to call him, the ſon of an hundred years ſhall dy; ſo the words ly, and are word for word, in the text. Hence thoſe Rabbinical fictions of men living ſo many years; that at an hundred, they ſhould ſeem to be but children, and boys: And on the other ſide, the fancies of thoſe, who have, out of this form, coined us a proverb, a child of an hundred years old, for, an old dotter, or a fool; ſtyled therefore afterward, ſay they, a ſinner: Whereas the ſyntax is familiar, and as clear as the day-light, or ſun-ſhine: the child, or youth, (that now is) ſhall dy the ſon of an hundred years; that is, ſhall be an hundred years old when he dyeth. So Gen. 11. 10. Sem the ſon of an hundred years begat Arphaxad. And Abraham was the ſon of an hundred years, when Iſaac was born to him, Gen.21.5. and in the ſame form run all thoſe genealogical reckonings, Gen.5.32. & 7.6. & 12.4. & 16.16. & 17.1. & 25.20,26. & 37.2. & 41.46. & 50.26. and very frequently elſewhere: neither young, nor old, ſhall dy, untill they have made up a compleat age; ſuch as an hundred years hath anciently with Greeks, and Latines, been deemed to be; whence their ludi ſeculares, held ſolemnly every hundreth year: a form of ſpeech here uſed, to expreſs length of life.

but the ſinner being an hundred years old, ſhall be accurſed] Heb. and the ſinner the ſon of an hundred years ſhall be accurſed. Where becauſe the word rendred, a ſinner, comes from a verb, which, in the firſt place, ſignifies to miſſe the mark. So Judg. 20.16. hence ſome would here alſo have it ſo to be taken, and this branch thus rendred, he that miſſeth, (or falleth ſhort) of an hundred years, ſhall be accurſed; that is, ſhall be deemed ſo to be: but this ſenſe cannot be made out from the words, without manifeſt wringing, and wronging the text. Others, taking this word aright, run as wide in the latter: for becauſe it is ſaid, Deut.21.23. that he that is hanged on the tree is accurſed; would have the meaning to be this, that wicked men, as well old, as young, ſhall be, by execution of juſtice done on them, made exemplary, and ſo deemed, as accurſed; and that ſuch become ſometime matter of a curſe, in proverbial phraſes and by-words, appears by Jer. 29.22. See ver. 15. But this is but to ſtep out to fetch fire, or water, abroad, when we have either of them under our noſes at home. The genuine ſenſe of its own accord, offereth it ſelf to us; That amids all this proſperity and tranquility, all this flouriſhing eſtate and condition of Gods people, the man that liveth among them, unreclaimed, and unreformed, continuing ſtill in a ſinfull courſe of life, ſhall be never ſo long prolonged; but ſhall, at length, prove a curſed wretch. See Job 21.7-20. Pſal. 37. & 73. Prov.1.32. Eccl.8.12,13. Chap.3.10,11. & 48.22. & 57. 20,21. It ſeems to be not much unlike that, Rev.20.6. Bleſſed is he (not that liveth in the times of the firſt reſurrection; that is, in the times of the reſtitution of the Church to its purity and peace, but he) that being holy, hath his part in the firſt reſurrection; through a ſpiritual change wrought on his ſoul, in raiſing him from the death of ſin, to the life of grace, Joh. 5. 25. I ſhall add only a ſmall punctilio, if I may ſo term it, which yet, as to me ſeems, might conduce to make the connexion of this clauſe, with the reſt of the context, a little clearer; to wit, if that the copulative here were rendred, by the diſcretive, though: and the whole clauſe put into a parentheſis, (though the ſinner an hundred yeers old be accurſed) becauſe, in the very next words, he goeth on, in relating what benefits, together with this long life, the godly party ſhould enjoy.

V. 21. And they ſhall build houſes, and inhabit them; and they ſhall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.] They, to wit, my ſervants, ver. 13,14. ſhall live to poſſeſs quietly the houſes built by them, and to receive, and enjoy the fruit of their labours, ver.9. See Pſal.128.2. Jer.29.5.

V. 22. They ſhall not build, and another inhabit; they ſhall not plant, and another eat] To wit, the fruit of what they plant; as in the former branch, inhabit the houſes by them built; both to be underſtood from ver. 21. not only for that the curſe threatned, Deut.28.30,39. ſhould now have no place; they ſhould not build, or plant, for an enemy to poſſeſs and enjoy, Chap.62.8,9. but that they ſhould not build, or plant, for poſterity alone, but ſhould ſurvive long to enjoy whatſoever, in either kind, they had taken pains about themſelves: and this to be principally here intended, appeareth, both by what went before, ver.20. and by what here followeth.

for as the dayes of a tree are the dayes of my people] Or, ſhall the dayes of my people be; as of a laſting tree, that continueth for many ages; not as of a fading leaf, as formerly, that at time of yeer ſheddeth, Ch.64.6. it is well known of what continuance oaks and elms are, to omit all others: nor need we therefore have recourſe here with the Jewiſh Doctors, therein following the Chaldee Paraphraſt; wherewith the Greek alſo concurreth, to the tree of life, Gen.2.9. which, ſay they, laſted five hundred years. See Pſal.128.5,6.

and mine Elect ſhall long enjoy the work of their hands] Or, my choiſe ones (as ver.9.) ſhall live long to ſpend themſelves, and even to wear out; (ſo the word properly ſignifieth, Job 21. 13.) what by their labours they have gotten, and gathered, Pſal.128.2,6. ſo rather, then, as ſome other, they ſhall make their handy-work durable. See Chap.23.18.

V. 23. They ſhall not labour in vain] As thoſe do, that cannot enjoy the fruit of their labours; but others eat what they have tugged and toiled for: or whoſe labours prove fruitleſſe, for want of a bleſſing from above, Lev.26.16. Deut.28. 30. Jer.51.58. Habb.2.13. Hag.1.6. 1 Cor.15.58.

nor bring forth for trouble] Or, unto trouble. Their iſſue ſhall enjoy the like quiet and proſperous condition together with their parents; having no occaſions of mourning miniſtred unto them, by the untimely death and loſs of parents, or other diſmal occurrents; which in times paſt, of publike calamity do ſo frequently fall out, that the iſſue of thoſe that live in thoſe times, may ſeem bred to nothing, but to ſorrow and grief; as in times of peſtilence, for the grave; in times of war, for the ſword: and they are wont therefore to be deemed happy, that are in ſuch times without iſſue. See Deut.28.4. Hoſ.9. 12,13,14. Mat.24.19.

for they are the ſeed of the bleſſed of the Lord, and their offſpring with them] To wit, is bleſſed: Gods bleſſing is entailed upon them; it taketh in their iſſue together with them, Exod.20.6. Pſal.37.25,26. & 115.13,23. See Chap.61.9.

V. 24. And it ſhall come to paſſe, that before they call, I will anſwer] And it ſhall be (as Chap.2.2.) before they call, and I will anſwer; as Chap.57.11. I will be more forward to grant, then they to crave; more ready to anſwer, then they to ask. See inſtances hereof, Pſal. 32. 5. Dan. 10. 12. Luk. 15. 18, 20.

and whiles they are yet ſpeaking, I will hear] By gracious acceptance of their ſuits, and granting to them, what they are ſpeaking, and ſuing for, Dan.9.20-23. So Act.10.44. & 11. 15. See Chap.58.9.

V. 25. The wolf, and the lamb, ſhall feed together;] That is, ſay ſome, juſtice ſhall be ſo ſtrictly and ſeverely executed, that there ſhall be no murthers, nor robberies committed, as in former times, Chap.1.21,23. See Deut.13.11. But the meaning rather ſeems to be, that ſuch as had been of a fierce, and ſavage diſpoſition formerly, ſhould now be ſo altered and changed, that they might ſeem to be transformed out of wolves, into ſheep; ſo altered, at leaſt, as if a wolf were grown ſo tame, that he might ſafely be truſted with ſheep, and ſuffered to go among lambs, contenting himſelf to feed quietly, and harmleſly, not on them, but with them. See Chap.11.6.

together] Heb. as one: ſo this form is uſed, Ezr.2.64. & 3. 9. & 6.20. Neh.7.66. ſo alſo, Pſal. 82. 7. which there not obſerved, hath cauſed a miſtake in the meaning of the place.

and the lion ſhall eat ſtraw like the bullock] Not prey upon cattel, as in times paſt. See Chap.11.7.

and duſt ſhall be the ſerpents meat.] He ſhall reſt content with the food, by God, aſſigned him, Gen.3.14. and not faſten on man, or beaſt, not feed on, or hurt at all any other creature; all ſhall be harmleſſe. See Chap.11.8.

They ſhall not hurt, nor deſtroy, in all mine holy mountain; ſaith the Lord.] Or, none ſhall hurt, nor deſtroy, in all mine holy mountain. Heb. mountain of holineſſe; as verſ. 11. thorowout my whole Church, among my people, Chap.2.2. Pſal.15.1. & 24. 3. Sion, for Jeruſalem; becauſe the chief part of it, wherein Gods Temple, and the Kings Palace, ſtood: and Jeruſalem, for, the whole Land; becauſe the mother city. See on verſ. 20. from thence. Of the whole paſſage, ſee Chap.11.9.

CHAP. LXVI.

Verſ. 1. THus ſaith the Lord;] This Chapter, though it ſeem a diſtinct Sermon from that next beforegoing; yet is much of the ſame ſubject matter, and argument with it, and hath many forms and expreſſions, the ſame that we there had: it conſiſteth of various paſſages, inter-woven the one within the other; of mercies and comforts to the godly, of judgments to the wicked: together with Prophecies concerning the ſtrange, ſudden, and unexpected reſtitution of the Church, and the dilatation of it into all parts.

The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footſtool:] Becauſe the carnal Jews confided much in the material Temple, and the external ſervices, and ſacrifices, therein performed, Jer.7.4,10. when as neither their hearts were upright with God, nor their lives otherwiſe conformable to the rule of his Word; God, by the Prophet, endeavoureth to beat down, and raze the grounds of this their vain confidence; in the former, in this verſe; in the latter, ver.3. heaven is my throne] That is the place of his Majeſtical preſence, where, in moſt glorious manner, he manifeſteth himſelf unto the bleſſed ſpirits, as a King ſitting in his royal robes, on his throne, Pſal.11.4. & 103.19. Mat.5.34.

the earth is my footſtool] So is the earth in general termed; becauſe the loweſt part of the world which he filleth with his powerful preſence, Pſal.110.1. Mat.5.35. but in a more ſpecial manner the Ark, as a place on which he ſeemed to reſt, as mens feet do on a footſtool, 1 Chr.28.2. Pſal.99.5. & 132.7. Lam.2.1. See Chap.60.13.

where is the houſe that ye build unto me?] Or, where is there an houſe, that ye ſhould, or can, build for me? the pronoun demonſtrative, put for the verb ſubſtantive: as 1 Sam.9.18. Job 39.19,24. Pſal.25.12. Chap.50.1. and the verb taken potentially, as Chap.49.15. & 64.11. when as I fill heaven and earth with my preſence, Jer.23.25. what houſe can ye build, that ſhould hold, and contain me? do ye imagine, that I am included in, or confined unto, my Temple, as one of your idols, unto ſome cell, or houſe, that ye have framed for it? Chap.44.13. See 1 King.8.27. 2 Chr.6.18. Act.7.47-50. & 17.24.

and where is the place of my reſt?] Or, or (the copulative, for the disjunctive; as Gen.2.6.) where is there a place (as before, & Job 38.19.) for my reſt? or, as ſome, what place (ſo the old Greek rendreth it, and ſo Luke, Act.7.49.) is my reſt? reſt, for, a place of reſt: as Pſal.95.11. & 132.14. ſuch a place for me to reſt and repoſe my ſelf in, as if I could not find reſt any where elſe, but there; as the dove in the deluge, Gen.8.9. Howbeit, in ſome reſpects, the Temple, in regard of the Ark, termed Gods footſtool, is ſometime called Gods reſt, or his reſting place, Pſal.132.8. as a type of his Church, wherein he is pleaſed to reſt, and repoſe himſelf, by his Spirit, Cant.1.7. chap.11.10. See Chap.60.7,13.

V. 2. For all thoſe things hath my hand made] Or, Since that (Heb. And; as Job 19.28. & 21.22.) my hand hath made all thoſe things: (as ver.8.) to wit, heaven and earth, (ver.1.) and whatſoever is contained in either of them; even whatſoever ye ſee and behold, above, or below, in the sky, or on the earth, Chap.40.26. Gen.1.1. & 2.1. Pſal.146.6. Joh.1.3. Act.7.50. Heb.3.3,4. & 11.3. for they ſeem to go aſide from the true ſenſe of the text, who expound them, of the Temple, and the ſacrifices; as being all Gods creatures, 1 Chr.29.14,16.

and all thoſe things have been, ſaith the Lord] Or, are; that is, have their being, Act.17.25,28. and ſubſiſt, Col.1.16,17. or, are; that is, continue: as the word is uſed, Dan.1.21. So Pſal.119.89,91. they continue in being, as ſupported by him, Heb.1.2,3. they are, to wit, by my hand; thus rather, then as ſome, have been; that is, had a beginning: or, as ſome other, were; to wit, the work of my hands: though that was in the former branch intended. Since that all things, both heaven and earth, with all the contents and furniture of either, have had their being at firſt from him, and are ſtill upheld by him, he hath no need at all of them; but can well be without them: as he was alſo before they were; much leſſe hath he need of any houſe to receive him, or of any ſervice of man therein to be done him, Pſal.16.2. & 50.10,11. Act.17.25.

but to this man will I look, even to him that is poor, and of a contrite ſpirit, and trembleth at my word] Or, yet, (Heb. and: as Chap.60.10. & 63.11.) to this man do I look, to one afflicted, or, humbled, and ſmitten in ſpirit, and that trembleth at my word. Albeit, that I am ſo infinitely high and great, and ſo alſufficient of my ſelf, yet will I look after, regard, and take notice of any one that is of an humble mind, and of a penitent ſpirit, and that doth ſincerely fear me, Pſal.33.18. & 34.18. & 138.6. & 147.11. ſuch are they that I deſire, and delight to abide with, the hearts of ſuch are the houſe, that by my Spirit, I am willing, and well content, to inhabit, Prov.8.31. 1 Cor.3.16. & 6.19. Eph.2.22. as alſo theſe affections, and diſpoſitions, are the ſacrifices that he accepteth of, and taketh delight in, Pſal.51.16,17. See Chap.57.15.

poor] To wit, in ſpirit, Mat.5.3. or rather, here, at leaſt, afflicted, or humbled; for that the word properly ſignifies, and is well ſo rendred, Pſal.18.27. & 22.24. & 88.15. Prov.15.15. & 22.22.

of a contrite ſpirit] Heb. contrite of ſpirit; as ſome; ſuppoſing it to come from a word that ſignifieth to grind, or, to vex, Ezek.13.22. and to be the ſame with that, which, from thence derived, is found, Prov.15.13. & 17.22. & 18.14. rendred, ſometime, a broken, ſometime, a wounded, ſpirit: but though in ſound it come neer to it, and be in ſubſtance the ſame with it; yet it ſeemeth to come from another root, and to ſignifie properly ſmitten; and by ſmiting, weakned: uſed elſewhere of the body, 2 Sam.4.4. & 9.3. here applyed to the wind, and ſignifies, one ſmitten in heart; as it is, Pſal.102.4. or, dejected in ſpirit; as ſometime it is uſed alſo for an abject, Pſal.35.15. Inſtead of thoſe two, Chap.57.15. we have two others, though in root, and ſound, different from them; yet in notion neer them, to wit, contrite, and low of ſpirit: but two of the ſame, not notion only, but notation alſo with them, Chap.53.4.

and trembleth at my word] Or, and that trembleth; for the relative is wanting, as Chap.65.1. a note of one that truly feareth God, to ſtand in awe of his word, and with due reverence receive it, Ezr.9.4. & 10.3. So 2 King.22.11,19. Pſalm 119.131. Chap.50.10. Jer.36.16.

V. 3. He that killeth an ox, is as if he ſlew a man:] As this people confided much in their Temple; ſo in their ſacrifices, and other external ſervices therein performed, no leſſe, 2 Chr.13.10,11. God therefore in theſe words acquaints them, how he eſteemed of thoſe performances, where thoſe inward affections, and diſpoſitions of ſoul and ſpirit, were wanting; no better then as oblations, conſiſting of ſuch abominable things as the Heathen offered to their idols; yea, no better then as the committing of the hainouſeſt crimes, that may either againſt God or man be committed; ſuch as were murther, the hainouſeſt offence in the ſecond table inhibited, and idolatry in the firſt. See Prov.15.8. & 21.27. Chap.1.11-14.

he that killeth an ox] To wit, for ſacrifice; as in the next branch, of a ſheep.

is as if he ſlew a man] Heb. killing an ox, ſmiting a man; or a ſlayer of an ox, a ſmiter of a man; that is, a murtherer of him: ſuch an one, as God would have, by force haled from his altar, and put to death, Exod.21.14. for the term of ſmiting, is uſed oft-times for ſlaying: as Num.35.11,15,30. Jer.40.14,15. God, by the Prophet, ſo ſpeaks, as putting no difference at all between the one, and the other; between their ſlaying of an ox for ſacrifice, and the murthering of a man: between the ſprinckling of his altar by them, with the bloud of a beaſt, and the polluting of it with the gore bloud of one of their children, that they ſlew and ſacrificed to their idols, Pſal.106.37,38. that which they make offer of unto God ſometime to do for him, if he would accept, and give them leave to live as they liſted, Mic.6.6,7. yea, and acted ſometime on the very ſelf-ſame day, whereon they tendered him their ſacrifices, Ezek.23.38,39. the note of ſimilitude is wanting; as Gen.49.10. Chap.47.3. & 58.3. which yet maketh the ſpeech the more emphatical. See on Chap.40.6,7.

he that ſacrificeth a lamb, as if he cut off a dogs neck] Heb. a ſacrificer, or, a ſlayer, (as Exod.12.4.) of a ſheep; (for ſo the word ſignifies. See Chap.53.7. a necker of a dog, or, one that necketh a dog; that is, beheaddeth him, or cutteth off his head by the neck: as the word is alſo uſed, Deut.21.4. for the verb is derived from a noun, that ſignifieth the hinder part of the neck, on which, in the beheadding of man, or beaſt, the executioners ſtroke is wont to light: and hence alſo in the Jewiſh Talmud, the neck, is termed the houſe, or place, of ſlaughter; becauſe in ſlaying of beaſts for ſacrifice, they gave the deadly ſtroke there. See Jer.2.27. to neck, for, to cut off by the neck: (though ſometime alſo to break the neck. So it is rendred, Exod.13.13. & 34.20.) as, to root, for, to pluck up by the roots, to root out, Job 31.12. Pſal.52.6. and, to tail, for, to curtail, or, to cut off the tail, or hindermoſt part of ought, or party of ſome troop, Deut.25.18. Hoſ.10.19. See the like, Chap.10.28. & 22.5. here, the beheading, or killing, of a dog, by necking, or knetching of him, is mentioned as a matter intended for ſacrifice: a thing by the ritual Law, then in force, ſo vile, and abominable; that whereas ſome other beaſts, as the aſſe, though unclean, and ſecluded from being made matter of ſacrifice, or the firſtlings thereof, to be tendred for an oblation, yet might be redeemed, and ſomewhat accepted in liew of them, Exod.13.13. there was ſolemn proviſion made, in expreſſe terms, that no price of any dog ſhould be brought into Gods houſe, Deut.23.18.

he that offereth an oblation] Heb. maketh an oblation to aſcend, or, a maker of a meat, or, meal, or, corn-offering, to go up; as 1 Sam.7.10. Jer.33.18. See Chap.1.13. & 57.6. & 60.7.

is as he offered ſwines bloud] There is no more in the text then ſwines bloud: the reſt is ſupplyed from the former member of the ſentence, and as in the other branches. See the ſupplyes from fore-going members, Gen.1.16,30. 2 Chr.10.11. Prov.15.15. Chap.58.13. ſwine were unclean, and their fleſh not to be eaten, or ſo much as touched, Lev.11.7,8. much leſs their bloud to be offered on Gods Altar, as was the bloud of beaſts allowed for ſacrifice, Exod. 23.18. See Chap.65.4. ver.17.

he that burneth incenſe,as if he bleſſed an idol:] Heb. a remembrancer of incenſe, (that is, one that with incenſe makes a memorial; as Lev.2.2.) or, as ſome, *a celebrater,*or praiſer (of God) by incenſe: one that, by ſuch means, would ſeem to praiſe God,and expreſſe his thankfulneſſe to him. See Pſal. 141.2. Chap.1.13.Mal.1.11. (and of this uſe of the word here uſed, ſee Chap.12.4.) a bleſſer of vanity, or vexation: ſo is an idoll here termed; becauſe no other then vanity, Jer. 10. 15. and matter of meer *vexation,*and *affliction,*unto all thoſe that ſerve them,obſerve them,and rely on them. See Chap.41.29.& 46. 1.and of the ſignification of the word, Chap. 1. 13. & 10.1, Howbeit,the Chaldee Paraphraſt, whom ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors follow,expound it another way; he that makes a memorial with incenſe, as if he bleſſed me with ſome rapine; that is, as if he preſented me (for,a bleſſing is uſed for, a preſent, Gen. 33.10.) with ſomewhat gotten by oppreſſion,which I profeſs to abhor, Chap.61.8. but the former ſenſe ſeemeth genuine; and the meaning to be , that their incenſe-offerings were ſo far from being any grateful ſavour unto him , that they did but vex him, as much by preſenting him with them, as they could by praying to,praiſing of,and tendring themſelves,and their ſervice,to ſome idol. See Ezek.20.39. where God expreſly profeſſeth , that he would rather they ſhould go ſerve any the vileſt and baſeſt idols, being ſuch as they were, then perform any ſervice in his houſe to himſelf; as deeming himſelf more profaned,and diſhonoured, by this latter, then by the former.

yea,they have choſen their own ways,]Or,*becauſe,*or *ſince that they chooſe ways of their own.*Heb. alſo they, or they alſo; that is, ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters,both their fathers,and they alſo,as Chap.65.7.but theſe particles are of very various uſe; and this in particular, as it is an illative, Job 7.11. ſo it ſeems here to be a cauſal; and *gam,*to be put for ſheggam, becauſe Gen.6.3. and ſo alſo one of the Jewiſh Criticks here expounds it; affirming, that in theſe words, God rendreth a reaſon,why he ſo deemed, and eſteemed of their ſervices; to wit,becauſe their perſons,and their practices were ſuch,ſo deteſtable, and ſo directly contrary unto that which he required. See the ſame reaſon of the like rendred, Ezek. 20. 39. Jer.7.21-28. Some render the words, they chooſe theſe things (to wit,before-mentioned) in their ways: which reading,were it admitted , the former might ſeem to bear a far other ſenſe, then hath been given of it; to wit, they that ſacrifice an ox, or *a ſheep,*or *bring an offering,*or burn incenſe, are ſuch as are withall murtherers, and ſacrificers of dogs,and ſwine, and idolaters: but this miſreading,and miſrendring here,ariſeth from a ſuppoſition,that the particle beth, ſhould here ſignifie in, as it oft doth: whereas indeed it is but a bare note of the verbs government of the noun, whereunto it is prefixed; which as it is in the ſyntax of divers other verbs , ſo in that of this very frequently,as may be ſeen,Deut.7.7. & 14.2. & 18.5. & 21.5. 1 Sam.10.26.& 16.8,9,10. as alſo, Chap. 14.1. & 44. 1, 2. and hereafter again twice,ver.4. yea,very ſeldom otherwiſe: it is therefore aright rendred; *Ye chooſe your own ways,*or ways of your own: ſuch as your ſelves have deviſed,and your hearts hang after; but are none of mine, but directly repugnant to what I require. See Chap.65.2. & ver.4.

and their ſoul delighteth in their abominations.] They have no delight in ought, but ſuch abominable practices as they have made choice of,and betaken themſelves unto. Of the word rendred *abominations,*ſee on ver.17.*their ſoul,*for themſelves; as Pſal.3.2.& 33.20.& 107.18. & 124.7. yet the phraſe maketh it more emphatical; as Pſal.11.5.Zach.11.8. Heb.10.38.*their abominations,*as before,their own ways.

V. 4. I alſo will chooſe their deluſions, and bring their feares upon them:] One of the Jewiſh Maſters finding two gams, or alſoes, here; the one, in the verſe before; the other,in this, would have them rendred, that they may the one anſwer the other,both they have choſen,and I alſo will chooſe; as the like, ſaith he,is found, Deut.32.25. Num.18.3. Eccl.9.1.though ſcarce any of theſe places are parallel to this. But I ſuppoſe rather,that the former gam, was there uſed as a cauſal; this here, as an illative; becauſe they have choſen, therefore will I chooſe; and may well have a two-fold reference , as to their impiety before-mentioned: ſo to their obſtinacy therein, hereafter ſubjoyned. Howſoever, there is in the word thus repeated, an implication of a retaliation; as if he had ſaid; They have made their choice,and I will make mine: they have taken the courſes that they pleaſed with me, and I will take what courſe I pleaſe with them. See the like,Lev.26.27,28.Pſal.18. 26.Chap.65.12.Jer.34.17. The Jewiſh Critick before mentioned, would have ſomewhat here ſupplyed from ver. 3. to wit, *I will chooſe,*and delight in their deluſions; it may be the rather, becauſe of the particle beth, here again found; but of that before: and though as much may be implyed , yet the ſupply is not neceſſary.

their deluſions]Or,*devices,*or deſignes: the word is no where found, but here,and chap.3.4.from which place,together with ſome other,where the verb it comes of is uſed for,in contumelious manner,to *mock,*and *abuſe,*as Judg.19.25. 1 Sam.31.4. Jer.38.19. ſome Interpreters here render it, deluſions, illuſions, petulancies, or mockeries; and this ſome take actively, or ſubjectively,*their illuſions,petulancies,*or mockeries; that is, the abuſes,indignities,and diſhonours,done by them,& offered to Gods ſacred majeſty; and theſe put for the reward of them,or the reward for the ſame due unto them. Others, paſſively, or objectively,their illuſions,or mockages, that is,the reproachful,and diſgraceful uſages, that they ſhall be expoſed unto, undergo,and endure; and this I take to be the genuine ſenſe of the place: ſo,my wrong, for the wrong done, not by me,but to me,Gen.16.5.and, *my violence,*for the violence offered to me,Jer.51.35.and this well ſuiteth,with what followeth,their fears. So the meaning will be , As they have made choice of ſuch wayes and courſes, as pleaſe not me; ſo will I make choice of ſuch things for them, as they ſhall find ſmall pleaſure in; ſuch as ſhall bring nothing, but reproach and deriſion,dread and diſtraction, upon them, that ſhall expoſe them to ſhame and terrour, Jer.18.16. & 19.8. & 24.9. & 25. 9,18. & 29.18. Howbeit, becauſe a word of the ſame allyance with this,is uſed ſometime for devices; ſometime,deſigns, and that uſually in the worſe part, for *evil devices,*and *evil deſignes,*Deut.22.14.Pſal.141.4. Ezek.20.43,44.& 21.24.& 24. 14. the greateſt number of Interpreters would have this word alſo ſo to ſignifie here;by devices; and deſignes, underſtanding the due, and deſerved reward of them; as Chap.65.7. But the uſe of the word is without example.The Jewiſh Commenters have hints of either.

and will bring their fears upon them] Such terrours and affrighments, as they ſhall ſuſtain,and be diſtracted with; as Pſal.34.4.Jer.20.4. Some conceive the meaning to be, that God would bring upon them thoſe evils , which at preſent they feared, and by betaking themſelves to thoſe idolatrous ſervices,and practices hereafter mentioned, ver.17. hoped to avert,according to that Prov. 10.24. The fear of the wicked, (that which he feareth,and out of fear,ſeeketh by evil courſes to avert,or avoid) ſhall befall him. See Ier.42.16. Ezek. 11. 8.and pregnant inſtances hereof, 1 King. 12.26-30. with 13. 34.and Ioh.11.48,50. with Luk.19.43,44. & 20.24-26. But the people in likelyhood, at the time of this Prophecy , were rather poſſeſſed with ſecurity,then ſurprized with fears.

becauſe when I called,none did anſwer; when I ſpake, they did not hear:]Or,*none would anſwer,*and would not hear. Heb. *I cryed,and there was no anſwerer; I ſpake,and they heard not.*See Chap.65.12.

but they did evil before mine eyes,] Or, that which was *evill in my ſight;*that is,diſpleaſing to me.Heb.and, as Chap.29.13. and, *the evil in mine eyes,*as Chap.65.12.Ier.7.30.

and choſe that in which I delighted not.] Made choice of ſuch courſes,and walked adviſedly therein, as I deteſted and abhorred,ver.3.See Chap.65.12.

V. 5. Hear the word of the Lord,ye that tremble at his word:] Ye that truly fear God,ver.2. for to them he now turneth his ſpeech; as Chap.50.10.& 51.1,7. partly, to encourage and ſtrengthen them,againſt the reproachful,diſgraceful, and deſpiteful uſages,which at preſent they ſuſtained at the hands of their own profane and ungodly people: and partly, becauſe they onely, and ſuch as they were, had right to, and were to ſhare in thoſe favours,and mercies, that God promiſeth here to beſtow upon his Church, in, and after the reſtauration of it.

your brethren] In name and profeſſion,but falſe and counterfeit ones,2 Cor.11.26,Gal.2.4. and this term ſeems the rather here given them , to aggravate their harſh and unbrotherly demeanure toward the godly;as Ezek.18.18.Obad.10. 12.1 Ioh.3.15.

that hated you,that caſt you out,for my names ſake,] Or, that hate you,&c.that malign and oppugn you for your ſincere ſervice of God,and cleaving cloſe to him; or,as one of the Rabbines,not amiſs,for their trembling at his word, Pſal. 38. 20. Cant.1.6.ver.2.

caſt you out] So ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks,according to that Job 18.18.and ſo it ſhould imply, that cenſure of caſting out, the loweſt degree of excommunication in the Jewiſh Church,called *Niddui,*by a word from that root; or, *put you off,*or far from them; as others of them, conceiving the word here uſed,to come from another, but neer neighbour term, that ſignifies,to *remove,*or *put far off,*Amos 6.3. and they refer it to the wonted ſpeeches of thoſe, Chap. 65.5. & Lam.4.15. who, though moſt vile themſelves , ſhunned others truly pious,as perſons polluted,and ſuch as ſhould pollute them, if they came neer them. The two roots are ſo neer a kin, that among the Criticks, it is queſtioned, whether the term *niddah,*that hath a notion of ſeparation for uncleanneſs, cometh from the one, or from the other; and the meaning here is, thoſe that either by unjuſt cenſure, under pretence of a legal proceeding, caſt you out, as perſons unworthy of communion with Gods people; or that ſhun you, as perſons ſo polluted, and defiled, that there is no dealing with you, without being defiled by you. See Ioh.9.34. & 16.2.

for my names ſake;] As Mat.10.22. & 19.29. Luk.21.17. Ioh.15.21. that is, for my ſake; for me; for your loyalty to me, Pſal.44.22. & 69.7. Mat.5.10,11. Mar.10.29. and thus moſt, both annex, and expound, this clauſe, which yet ſome of the Rabbins, with whom one of ours, an Interpreter of prime note, concurreth, knit unto the words following, and make part of theſe preſumptuous ones words, By, or through my name, God is glorified. But the phraſe to me ſeems uncouth; and I leave it therefore to the judgment of others.

ſaid] Or ſay, to wit, when they do thus expreſs, and manifeſt their malevolent, and malignant affection, and diſpoſition towards you.

Let the Lord be glorified:] An Egyptian Rabbine, of no ſmall note among his countrey-men, interpreteth theſe words far otherwiſe then we read them, as if, in them, this ungodly people ſhould complain, that God was over heavy, and burdenſome to them, in requiring of them, ſuch a ſtrict obſervation of his rites and precepts; and renders the words, The Lord is burdenſome, or heavy, alledging 2 Sam.13.25. and affirming withal that in that form, wherein it is here uſed, it doth never ſignifie otherwiſe: but herein another of his own coat controlleth him, and pointeth him to a place, Job 14.21. where, in the ſame form, it ſignifies, to be honoured, or had in honour. And theſe, either of theirs, or ours, that thus render it, as the moſt do, expound it, ſome of them, as ſpoken by them in way of juſtification of their ways and courſes in general, to wit, that they honoured God more, by ſerving him in ſo many places, and with ſuch variety of all ſorts of ſacrifices, then thoſe did, that confined his ſervice to one place onely, and reſtrained his ſacrifices to a ſmall number of creatures, ſee Ch. 36.7. or, of this particular act of theirs, in caſting out of his ſervants, or ſequeſtring themſelves from them, as pretending that they had very good, and juſt ground, and cauſe ſo to do, and that they did a ſervice very acceptable to God, and ſuch as much conduced to the honour of his name, in ſo doing. So Ioh.16.2. and they render the words, the Lord is glorified; to wit, by us, in what we do. But others rather conceive it ſpoken, in way of deriſion, Let God be glorified, or appear in glory; as Ch.2.11. 2 Theſſ.1.10. Tit.2.13. let him manifeſt his might, and majeſty, in doing ſome remarkable matter for you, if ye be ſo dear to him, and are ſo deep in his books, as ye deem and pretend your ſelves to be; as deriding, and jeering them, for their vain (as they counted it) confidence in God, and hopefull expectation of his glorious appearance, to redreſſe and right their wrongs. So chap.5.19. Pſal.22.7,8. Mat. 27.43. 2 Pet. 3.3, 4. and this ſuiteth fitly with what followeth.

but he ſhall appear to your joy, and they ſhall be aſhamed,] Or, but he ſhall appear to your joy, when they ſhall be aſhamed; as Ch. 65.13. See Pſal.50.1-5. 2 Theſſ.1.7-10. Heb. and he ſhall appear: whence ſome take occaſion to annex the former member of this branch, at leaſt, if not both, to the words foregoing, making it part of thoſe profane ones ſpeech; ſome rendring them; and let them be ſeen to your joy. Others, and let us ſee, or that we may ſee, ſomewhat done that may miniſter matter of joy to you, and ſuch as ye are: but the copulative, in a diſcretive notion, is frequent, Chap.60.10. & 61.6. and theſe readings do too much disjoynt the text: nor can I concur with thoſe, who, though ſevering this branch from that ſpeech of theirs, render it; but we (that is, I and ye together) ſhall ſee (as Chap.41.23.) your joy: for the ſyntax will not bear it; after the verbs of ſight, the particle is not wont to be vacant.

V. 6. A voice of noiſe from the citie; a voice from the Temple; a voice of the Lord that rendreth recompenſe to his enemies.] Some would thus hang this verſe upon the foregoing paſſage; they ſhall be confounded by a voice of noiſe, &c. Others, disjoyning this verſe from that, yet ſo as to carry on the context, prefix ſome words, and render the text; For there ſhall be heard a voice, &c. But I concur rather with thoſe, who conceive that the Prophet abruptly, on purpoſe, breaketh out into theſe words, as if, in a Prophetical rapture, he heard the noiſe of that voice, or thoſe voices, that here he ſpeaks of. See the like, Chap.13.4. Jer.50.22, 28. & 51.54. and it ſeems not fit or ſafe, to enervate, and diminiſh, the force and emphaſis of Prophetical ſtrains, by any unneceſſary additions. But what manner of voyce this ſhould be, or when uttered, and heard, is much queſtioned. Some would have it a voice of triumph, and joy, of ſhouting in the city, of thankſgiving in the Temple, upon Judas Maccabeus his recovery of the city, and reſtitution of the Temple, after the ſpoyl and pollutions, by Antiochus, of either, 1 Maccab.4.52-58. The Jewiſh moſt refer it to the Meſſias his dayes, at what time ſuch a voice ſhould go forth, to ſet forward the expedition, againſt Gog, and Magog, Ezek. 38.21, 22. The moſt of ours refer it to the ſurpriſal of Jeruſalem, and the deſtruction of the Temple, either by the Chaldeans, as ſome, 2 King.25.4, 9. or, by the Romans, as others, Mat.24.2,13. & 23.38. Luk.19.43,44. & 21.20,22. This laſt is moſt likely.

a voice of noiſe] Or, of tumult. So the Chaldee; that is, a tumultuous noiſe. So Chap.13.4.

from the city] To wit, Jeruſalem; of people, upon the ſurpriſal of it by the enemies forces, running to and fro in the ſtreets, like perſons diſtracted, and like blind men, falling foul one upon another. See Zeph.1.10,17. Lam.4.14,15.

a voice from the Temple.] Of people fled thither for ſuccour and ſafeguard; or of the Prieſts, and other Officers, as much diſtracted and diſtreſſed, as the people; or, of both crying to heaven, but in vain then, for help. Hither ſome refer what Joſeph the Jew relateth, in his Jewiſh war, l.7.c.31. of the Temple dores flying open ſuddenly of themſelves: and a voice heard, at the feaſt of Pentecoſt, by the Prieſts from the inner Sanctuary, after a noiſe of ſome ſtirring, or ſhuffling within, ſaying; Let us depart hence; as alſo of one Jeſus Bar-Annas; that at the feaſt of Tabernacles, went up and down the city, crying, A voice from the Eaſt, a voice from the Weſt, a voice from the four winds; a voice againſt Jeruſalem, and the Temple, a voice againſt all this people: all which prodigious occurrents, are reported to have been not long before the deſtruction of that city, and Temple, by the Romans. Howbeit, they ſeem not to be the cry intimated, and pointed to, in this place. For the Jewiſh Maſters ſeem to ſwerve from the true ſenſe of the text, who becauſe Heaven is ſometime called Gods Temple, or Palace, (for the word imports either) Pſal.11.4. would have the Temple here to be Heaven; and the voice, Gods thundring voice, Pſal.29. by ſtorm, and tempeſt from heaven: as Joſh. 10.11. Judg.5.20. diſcomfiting the forces of Gog, and Magog, Ezek.38.21,22. See Rev. 20.8,9. But the materiall Temple on earth, built in that City, ſeems rather, here ſpecified; and that the rather mentioned, to controll their vain confidence in it, as implying, how little relief, or ſafeguard, they ſhould then receive from it. See ver.1. Lam.2.20.

a voice of the Lord] Not his ſtill and gracious voice, ſpeaking now by his Prophets, and calling upon them for repentance, with tenders of mercy upon their repentance, which they refuſed then to hear, verſ.4. but his roaring voice of vengeance now to be executed upon them, for their manifold exceſſes, and refuſal to be reclaimed by the former, Ezek.9.6, 7. & 24.21. So Joel 2.11. Amos 1.2. the word voice repeated, hath no ſmall emphaſis in it; which they ſeem to leſſen, who by variety of terms expreſſe it.

that rendreth recompence to his enemies] Heb. repaying a retribution, or reward, to his enemies. But who theſe enemies are, the queſtion is. Some would have them to be ſtrange nations, the enemies and oppreſſors of his people, Chap.59.18, 19. Jer.50.15,28. Others rather, the obſtinate wicked ones amongſt his people, whom he juſtly ſtyleth his enemies, as here, ſo elſewhere, Chap.1.24. of whom he uſeth the very ſame terms, Chap.65.6,7. and to whoſe confuſion he threatned to appear, ver.5. See ver.14.

V. 7. Before ſhe travelled, ſhe brought forth; before her pain came, ſhe was delivered of a man-child] The moſt Interpreters, both Jew and Chriſtian, underſtand theſe words, of the ſtrange, ſudden, and unexpected delivery of the remainders of Gods people, out of the Babylonian bondage, by Cyrus; whereof, ſee Chap.43.18-21. and this as it ſeemeth to be a collation of diſſimilitude, compared with their deliverance out of Egypt, which was not without much tugging and ſtruggling, effected, Exod.3.19. & 5.9,19,21,23. & 6.9. whereas this was done without any labour, or travel at all on their parts, upon Cyrus his Proclamation only ſent out, 2 Chr.36. 22,23. Ezr.1.1-3. Pſal.126.1. So it is not unfitly deemed, by a compariſon of ſimilitude, to have ſome glance at the ſpeech of the Egyptian Midwives, concerning the Hebrew women, that they were ſo vigorous, and quick, in their travel, that they were uſually delivered ere the Midwife came at them, Exod.1.19. Sion is compared to a teeming woman; the people of Iſrael, to ſuch an ones children; which ſhe is ſaid to be delivered of, without pain, or throws, in ſuch caſe ordinary: as Varro reporteth of the Illyrian women, who being at harveſt work in the field, when they were neer their time, would but ſtep aſide, and return again, bringing a child with them, as if they had found it, behind the hedge; Varro, of husbandry, l.2.c.10. Howbeit, divers Interpreters underſtand it of the reſtitution and reſtauration of the Church, under the miniſtery of the Goſpel, when ſo many thouſands were ſo ſoon, and ſo ſuddenly converted, without any great labour, or pains-taking about them, of thoſe by whom they were converted, Act.2.41. & 4.4. and both theſe expoſitions conceived, as ſubordinate the one to the other, may very well be admitted. But as for that groundleſs fancy of Popiſh Writers, expounding theſe words, as ſpoken of the Virgin Maries delivery of Chriſt without pain; not unlike that their fiction of the ox, and the aſſe, in the ſtable with her, from Chap. 1.3. I let it paſſe, as ſcarce worthy the mentioning.

ſhe was delivered of] Heb. ſhe hath delivered. So the word properly ſignifieth, Chap.31.8. but is applyed to delivery of children, by birth here; as to the delivery of a fowles young one, by hatching, Chap.34.15. and the reaſon of the phraſe is; becauſe they ſeem to be delivered, by birth, the one, by hatching, the other, out of thoſe ſtreits wherein they were formerly, being encloſed and pent up, the one in the womb, the other in the ſhell: and on the other ſide, with us, the woman is ſaid to be delivered, becauſe ſhe is rid of the burden that ſhe went with before.

a man-child] As Gen.4.1. Joh.16.21. a man. Heb. a male; as Rev.12.5, as noting both the more might of it: as Rev.12.5. So Pſal.105.37. and the more joy for it, as Joh. 16.21. for the female is deemed the feebler ſex, 1 Pet.3.7. and leſſe joy uſually at its birth: but, that which is more; the term here, ſeems to be taken collectively, a male, for, males: as Gen.3.7,9. for multitudes are here intended at one birth. See ver.8. and to draw it to Chriſt, ſaid to be formed in the hearts of believers, Gal.4.19. ſeems ſomewhat harſh. Of the joy at the return of the people from captivity. See Pſal.126. 1,2. Chap.60.4,5. at the converſion of people unto Chriſt. See Act.2.46. & 8.8. & 11.18,23.

V. 8. Who hath heard ſuch a thing? who hath ſeen ſuch things? ſhall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? or ſhall a nation be born at once?] Was it ever known, heard, or ſeen? (ſee Chap.64.4.) or is it a thing poſſible, that a whole country of people ſhould be born in one day; or, that a woman ſhould be delivered of a whole nation at one birth.

ſhall the earth be made to bring forth in one day?] According to this verſion, the meaning may ſeem to be, as if the queſtion were, whether the whole earth, or all a whole country, that is, all the women in the world, or, all of ſome country, ſhould be made to bring forth, together, in one day; or, as ſome, whether the earth be able, in one day, to bring forth the ſeeds of herbs, and plants, committed unto it, and laid up in it, as at the firſt, without any ſuch ſowing, it did, Gen.1.11,12. or, whether it can bring forth (which is more then ſo) ſuch living wights of all ſorts, in one day; as in the ſixt day of the creation it did, Gen. 1.24. becauſe the old Latine hath it; ſhall the earth bring forth in one day? But the words would rather be read, Can a land, or, a country, be brought forth in one day? So the Chaldee, Is it poſſible, that a land ſhould be made, or, produced, in one day? and one of the Rabbines more fully; Is it poſſible that a woman ſhould in one day be delivered of children enow, to fill a whole land, or a country? Verbs indicative uſed in a potential form, are common in Scripture. See on Chap.49.15. & 64.12. and earth, for, land; no leſs riſe. See Chap.26.1,10. & 65.16. yet the word, of it ſelf ambiguous, might here the rather be uſed, with ſome glance, at the production of both heaven and earth in one day, Gen.1.1. as implying Gods power, that he, who at firſt produced the whole earth, and heaven together with it alſo, in one day, is no leſſe able to make his Sion bring forth children enow in one day, not to people ſome one land only, but to fill the whole world. See Chap.27.6. The verb here uſed, ſignifies in its firſt form, to be grieved, or, to be in pain, generally, Jer.5.3. more particularly, to be in travel, as women are wont to be neer unto their time of delivery, Chap.23.4. & 26.18. in its other forms, it hath a notion of framing, forming, producing; or, of being framed, formed, produced, in general, without ſpecial relation to any pain, or, travel, Pſal.51.5. & 90.2. Prov.8.24. & 25.23. and it is obſerved by one of the Jewiſh Criticks upon this place, that the active form of the term, here uſed, is taken ſometime in a tranſient notion, for to make to travel, or bring forth, or be in pain: as Pſal.29.8. but that very ſeldom: ſometime, yea, moſt commonly, in a ſtanding ſenſe, for to be in travel, Chap.26.17. and here, verſ. 7. and by conſequence, becauſe birth uſually followeth travel, (returning to a tranſient notion; but in another kind,) to bring forth. See Chap.45.10. and the paſſive form here accordingly, to be produced, or brought forth.

or ſhall a nation be born at once?] Or, can a nation be born at once? as before; the disjunctive, inſerted, is needleſs: there is a particle indeed in the text, that commonly ſignifies, if; but is here no other, then a meer interrogative note, as Job 6.5. and here again, ver.9. The meaning is; Is it poſſible, that a woman ſhould have as many children at one birth, as were enow to conſtitute a nation? as if he ſhould ſay, in the courſe of nature it is not: for as for thoſe ſtories related by John Aventine, in his Bavarian hiſtory, the one; and by Thomas Fazel, in his Sicilian hiſtory, the other; of two German Counteſſes of Henneburg, Margeret, and Maud, the one whereof ſhould have 364. the other, 1514. children at a birth, they are deſervedly deemed fabulous; and may juſtly challenge the whetſtone. But that of the multitudes of thoſe that returned to Jeruſalem, after Cyrus his Edict of liberty publiſhed, to wit, 42360. at once; beſides 7337. ſervants, and maidens, ſee Ezr.2.64,65. which might well be deemed a nation brought forth in one day: as alſo that, whereunto ſome apply this of thoſe multitudes of converts in the primitive Church, 3000 at one time, and 2000, if not 5000. at another, Act.2.41. & 4.4. may well have place here.

for as ſoon as Zion travelled, ſhe brought forth her children.] Or, as others, that Sion is in travel, and withal bringeth forth her children. And becauſe there may ſeem ſome contradiction in this, to what was before ſaid of delivery without travel; Some anſwer, that the meaning was in the former place, before ſhe was ſcarce in any travel; in this place it is, that ſome travel ſhe ſhould have, but that ſo light, and ſhort, that it might well be deemed, in a manner, as none, Chap.26.20. The Hebrew is, word for word, that Zion, or, yet Zion (as the particle is taken, and rendred, Job 5.7. Eſay 9.1. & 33.4. & 49.25. which thoſe miſtake, that render it, as ſoon as Sion) hath travelled, yea, brought forth her children; to wit, at once, or, in one day: for that is the thing intended, and intimated, and is from the former part of the verſe, to be ſupplyed, in the application of it unto Sion; for therein the miracle (as one of the Rabbines hath well obſerved) conſiſteth, that ſhe ſhould be delivered of ſo many ſons ſo ſuddenly, as in one day: and the word of travel ſeems rather in this place, to deſign the time of travel, then the pains, or pangs of it; ſhe both came neer to childbirth, and was delivered of her children, at once, in one day: her burden, or children, ſtuck not at the breach, or the birth, to put her to any pain. See Chap.37.3. Hoſ.13. 13. ver.9.

V. 9. Shall I bring to the birth, and not cauſe to bring forth, ſaith the Lord] Or, Should I bring to the wombs mouth, and not cauſe to bring forth? Some of the Rabbines would have it, ſhould I bring upon the ſtool? to wit, that mentioned, Exod.1. 16. that is, ſay they, ſhould I caſt my beloved wife, Sion, into child-bearing pangs, and throes, by bringing in Gog and Magog upon her, Ezek.38.9,16,17. and not withal afford her deliverance? reſembled here by birth. But of the word, which the verb here uſed, hath relation unto, ſee on Chap.37.3. and another of them rather reading it, as it was before rendred, expoundeth it well; Shall I ſet upon a work, and not go thorow with it; cauſe the children to come to the very opening of the womb, and not enable them to come forth, or not afford ſtrength to bring them forth? Some of ours, Should I open other womens wombs; or, ſhould I that open the matrice to others; (and make them fruitful. Gen.29.31. & 30.22.) not my ſelf beget, or breed; (as Gen.11.27. but remain iſſuleſſe) or not cauſe my Sion to bring forth? But the former ſenſe being obvious, and ſuch as the words of themſelves freely afford, I ſee not why we may not reſt therein.

ſhall I cauſe to bring forth, and ſhut the womb? ſaith the Lord] Heb. Am I he that cauſe to bring forth? and ſhall I ſhut, or, reſtrain? that is, as the Jewiſh Commenters, Am I he that have conferred upon mankind the power of propagation, Gen. 1. 28. and that have cauſed people in all parts of the world to propagate? and ſhould I now deny this bleſſing to my Sion? But the Hebrew may as well be rendred; Am I he that begat? (ſo the word is expreſly rendred, Jer.16.3. their mothers that bare them, and their fathers that begat them) and ſhould I reſtrain, from bringing forth? for that is the firſt, and native notion of the word. So Gen.16.2. God hath reſtrained me from bearing. Should I that have begotten children upon Sion, reſtrain her from being delivered of them? it is true, that the ſame word is uſed in that phraſe, of ſhutting up the womb, Gen.20.18. but that is meant of reſtraint from conception, not from birth; for whereas divers render it, ſhall I be reſtrained? they depart from the conſtant uſe of the word, which is never other then active; there is only in the text, a defect of the pronoun demonſtrative, her, (as Deut. 25.12.) relating to Sion, mentioned, verſ. 8.

V. 10. Rejoyce ye with Jeruſalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her] An exhortation directed to all Sions well-willers, inciting them to rejoyce with her, as friends and allies are wont to do, at the child-birth of one, that hath been long barren and childleſſe, Luk.1.14,58. or upon the reſtitution, or recovery of one, that had formerly been decayed, and ruined, in his eſtate, Job 42.11.

be glad with her] Heb. of her, or, in her; or, for her: as Pſal.9.14. & 31.7. for of, or, in Gods goodneſſe ſhewed unto her; yet is the particle ſometime rendred with: as Pſal.2.11. but then denoting the manner how; not the company with whom. See Chap.65.19. and hereafter, ver.13.

rejoyce for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her] The ſame thing in other terms. Heb. rejoyce with joy; that is, be exceeding joyful: as Ch.61.10. Mat.2.10. 1 Pet.1.8. all ye that mourn for her, or, that mourned for her; formerly, in the time of her afflicted and dejected condition. See Chap.61.3. Zeph.3.18. the Hebrew term is in a reciprocal form; but of that, ſee Chap. 65.16.

V. 11. That ye may ſuck, and be ſatisfied with the breſts of her conſolations:] Or, as the Chaldee rendreth it, for that, or, becauſe, (for the particle hath oft a cauſal notion, 2 Chron. 21. 7.) ye ſuck, or, ye ſhall ſuck, and be ſatiated; that is, ſuck your fill, (as, they ſhall eat and be ſatisfied; that is, eat their fill, Pſal. 22.26.) with the breſts; or, of the moiſture that cometh from the breſt. See Chap.60.16. that ye may partake with her of thoſe bleſſings, both temporal and ſpiritual, that God ſhall very largely endow her with, and beſtow upon her; and as her foſter children being nurſed by her, 1 Theſſ.1.2,7. 1 Tim. 4.6. may receive abundance of refreſhments and comforts from her, Pſal.36.8. Ezek.14.22,23. 2 Cor.1.4-6.

that he may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory] Or, becauſe ye ſhall milk out, &c. much the ſame, in other terms, with the former.

milk out] Or, wring out; as Chap.16.4. Prov. 30.33. for the proper notion is the ſame, though the forms divers: as the Jewiſh Critick here well obſerves; the word it ſelf is no where elſe found.

and be delighted] Or, delight your ſelves; take your pleaſure, as Pſal.37.11.

with the abundance of her glory] As Pſal.37.11. in abundance of peace, or proſperity: but the terms here and there are divers; the word here uſed, is not in the like notion any where elſe found: the Jewiſh Criticks will have it ſignifie ſplendour, or brightneſſe; the rather in regard of a Chaldee word of that notion, coming very neer to it: and this fitteth well with what we had, Chap.60.1-3.

V. 12. For thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing ſtream] I am reſolved to bleſſe her with abundance of proſperity; and to make her glorious by the acceſſe of the Gentiles to her, with whatſoever from them may help to grace and adorn her. See Chap.60.5-14.

Behold, I will extend to her] Lo, I am extending to her, or bringing in upon her. Of the form, ſee on Chap.65.17.

peace like a river] Or, proſperity, (as Pſal.72.3,7.) as a floud, Chap.48.18. See Chap.59.19. as Euphrates, ſaith the Chaldee. So Pſal.72.8. Zach.9.10.

like a flowing ſtream] Or, an over-flowing ſtream, or river: as Chap.30.28. as Nilus, the river of Egypt, Chap.27.12. See Jer.47.2.

then ſhall ye ſuck] Heb. and ye ſhall ſuck; and there is the middle diſtinction in the text; as ye ſhall ſuck Kings, and Queens, Chap.60.16. ſo ye ſhall ſuck her, ver.11. or, ye ſhall ſuck it; that is, part of that proſperity and glory, that ſhall flow in upon her, and from her, be conveyed and imparted unto you, ver.11.

ye ſhall be born upon her ſides,] Heb. ſide: in her arms on the one ſide, as children uſe to be carryed. See Chap.49.22. and 60.4. Pſal.90.12. yet ſome, becauſe the Latine renders it, Ye ſhall be carryed at her breaſts, or teats; would make it to have relation to infants that hang upon the teat: but that ſeemeth ſomewhat more coact.

and be dandled upon her knees.] The word here uſed ſignifies to take much delight in ought: the Pſalmiſt oft uſeth it, to expreſſe his delight in Gods Law, Pſal. 119. 16,24,46,70,77,92, 142,144. and of the comforts and refreſhments, which from thence his ſoul received, Pſal. 94. 19. it is uſed of children, playing and ſporting themſelves, Chap.11.8. and ſome therefore here render it; ye ſhall play upon her knees; as alluding to children that ſit playing in their mothers lap. Howbeit, it ſeemeth not amiſs rendred, dandled: for in ſuch dandlings, children much delight: and it is implyed, that they ſhould be as darlings, children of delights, Jer. 19. 20. (where this word alſo is uſed) and, children of dandlings, as they ſeem termed. Lam.2.20. it hath reference unto the manner of parents, that are wont to have their young ones, their darling ones, eſpecially, whom they take moſt delight in, frequently in their laps, and on their knees, Gen.30.3. & 50.23. Ruth 4.16. According to the received reading, there ſhould be here a defect of the pronoun poſſeſſive her; as Chap.27.22. Howbeit, the words may be read well enough without it; Ye ſhall be born in arms, and dandled on knees; that is, ye ſhall be carefully, and curiouſly, or tenderly, and delicately, nurſed up, as darling children, of great ones eſpecially, are wont to be, that are almoſt perpetually, either in the arms, or on the knees. See Num. 11. 12.

V. 13. As one whom his mother comforteth, ſo will I comfort you:] He ſaith not, as a man comforteth his wife, or his ſpouſe (though the Church be ſo to him, Hoſ.2.19,20.) as it is ſaid, that David comforteth Bathſheba, after the deceaſe of her little one, 2 Sam.12.24. But becauſe the tender affection of mothers to children, is by common experience well known, (See Chap. 49. 15.) to expreſs therefore his compaſſionate diſpoſition, and tenderneſſe of affection to his people; As a mother, ſaith he, comforteth her child. As a mother, when her child weeps and cryes, having taken ſome hurt by a fall; or the like accident, doth by all tender and gentle uſage, bemoaning it, hugging it, and affectionate ſpeech to it, ſeek to quiet and ſtill it again; or, as when upon ſome wanton, or waſpiſh carriage of the child, ſhe hath ſhewed her ſelf diſpleaſed with it, and it may be hath withall chaſtiſed it, or carryed her ſelf ſtrangely toward it, and perceiveth that the child taketh it to heart, and is troubled not a little therewith, ſhe cannot reſt, nor be at quiet, untill ſhe have reconciled her ſelf again to her child; (See David's affection toward Abſolom, 2 Sam.13.39.) and by all fair and ſweet inſinuations, and expreſſions of renewed love and affection, endeavoureth therefore to cheer it again: In like manner will I cheer up, and comfort the dejected ſpirits of my people again, whom I had for a while put to ſome heavineſs, by chaſtiſing them for their ſins, Chap.12.1. & 14.1. & 51.3. & 54.7,8. & 57.15,17, 18. & 61. 2, 3. See Pſal. 94. 19. Act. 9. 31. 2 Cor. 1. 3--5.

as one] Heb. as a man; though a child be intended; as Gen. 4. 1. Joh. 16. 21. or, a man, for, any one; as Chap. 40. 26.

and ye ſhall be comforted in Jeruſalem.] Beholding Gods goodneſs towards her, rejoycing in it, and enjoying of it together with her, ver.10.14.

V. 14. And when ye ſee this, your heart ſhall rejoyce,] Heb. ye ſhall ſee this (ſupplyed, as Chap.59.15.) and your heart ſhall rejoyce; ye ſhall rejoyce heartily: ſo Pſal.105.3. or, For when ye ſee this, your heart ſhall rejoyce; as rendring a reaſon of, or, further confirming, what was delivered in the cloſe of the verſe fore-going. The like ſyntax, ſee Chap.53.2. & 59.16. & 65. 12.

and your bones ſhall flouriſh like an herb:] Or, as the tender herb; as it is rendred, Deut.32.2. or, the tender graſſe; as Prov. 27.25. or, the green graſs, as Pſal.23.2. your ſtrength and vigour ſhall revive, and recover verdure again, as graſs and plants do in the ſpring, that in Winter time were withered, and ſeemed as dead, Chap.26.19. & 44.4. & 61.11. when the vigor and ſtrength of mans body is decayed and conſumed, his bones are ſaid to be waſted and withered, or broken and ſhattered, or disjoynted and diſlocated, or diſperſed and ſcattered, Job 33.19. Pſal.6.2. & 22.14. & 31.10. & 32.3,4. & 53.5. & 102. 5. & 141.7. Prov.12.4. & 14.30. & 17.22. Ch.38.13. Jer.50.17. Lam.3.4. Habb.3.16. and on the other ſide, when vigour and ſtrength is recovered again, the bones are ſaid to revive, and to be refreſhed, and to be filled with moyſture and marrow again, Job 21.24. Pſal.51.8. Prov.3.8. & 15.30. & 16.14. Chap. 58.11. In like manner did Gods people deem of themſelves in the time of the captivity, that they were no other then, as a company of dead and dry bones, that lay diſperſed and ſcattered, here and there, without regard, Ezek.37.11. but God telleth them, that thoſe their dead and dry bones, ſhould revive, and grow moyſt, and recover life and vigour again; as thoſe in the viſion, Ezek.37.1-10.

and the hand of the Lord ſhall be known towards his ſervants] Gods goodneſſe; his good hand, his power manifeſted for the good of his loyal, and faithful people (Chap.65.13,14.) ſhall evidently appear, Ezr.7.6,9. & 8.18. Chap.62.2.

and his indignation towards his enemies.] Heb. and (or, but; as Chap.65.11.) he will have indignation againſt, or, be wroth with his enemies; or, as ſome would have it rendred, he will deteſt, or defie his enemies; as it is rendred, Num.23.7,8. But I conceive it may very well be rendred, as it is, Zach. 1.12. he will have indignation towards his enemies. Our Tranſlators ſeem to have taken the verb for a noun. The deliverance of Gods ſervants, and the deſtruction of his, and their enemies, go frequently together. See Chap.1.27,28. & 14.1. & 61.2. & 63.4. God will, in the reſtoring of his people, make a difference to be ſeen between the one, and the other; as Deut.4. 3,4. ſo Mal.3.17,18. & 4.1,2.

V. 15. For behold the Lord will come with fire,] God will come to execute Judgment, and take vengeance on the wicked, in moſt terrible manner; for nothing is more fearfull, or formidable, either to man, or beaſt, then fire: nor were fireworks alſo anciently unuſual, in warlike expeditions; and devaſtations thereby moſt frequently effected, Joſh.6.24. & 8.19. Judg.9.49. & 20.40. Jer. Jer.38.18. & 52.13. that which is alluded unto in this, and the like expreſſions, Pſal.50.3. & 97. 3. Dan.7.9,10. Amos 7.4. though ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors expound it; with hell-fire.

and with his chariots like a whirl-wind;] Or, and his chariots ſhall be, or ſhall come, (ſupplyed from the former clauſe) like a whirl-wind; as Chap.5.28. Jer.4.13. of Gods chariots: See Pſal.68.17.

to render his anger with fury] Or, to put in execution his anger with fervour, Ezek.18.18. Mic.5.15.

and his rebuke with flames of fire.] Or, fiery flames, or flaming fire; as Pſal.29.7. & 105.32. Chap.29.6. & 30.30. Of his rebuke, buke,ſee Chap.50.2.& 51.20.& 54.9. This vengeance of God was in part executed on the wicked of his own people, at the deſtruction of Jeruſalem,Jer.1.15,16.& 39.2,8. and, in part, on the oppreſſours of them, at the ruine of Babylon, Jer. 50. 18,31,32.but ſhall fully be accompliſhed at the laſt day,in the general judgment that ſhall then be, 2 Theſſ.1.8.2 Pet.3.7, 10,12.

V. 16. For with fire,and with his ſword, will the Lord plead with all fleſh:] God will no longer debate in words with men, as formerly he did, by his miniſters and meſſengers, the Prophets, Mic.6.1, 2. but he will now plead with fire and ſword, the ordinary inſtruments of hoſtility , ſuch as men in armes are wont to plead, and decide matters with. So Ezek. 38. 22.

with fire] As before,ver.15.

with his ſword] No ordinary one. See Chap.27.1. ſword, for all manner of Warlike weapons ; as Gen.27.40.

plead] Heb. be judged,or tried ; as Pſal.37.33. & 109.7. or, plead,and debate,the matter ; as Chap.43.26. Ezek.20.36. or, execute judgment ; as 2 Chr.22.8. or, proceed in judgment ; as Jer. 2.35.

with all fleſh] Either with the main body of the wicked Jewiſh people ; as Mat.24.22.and theſe of all ſorts and ranks among them; as Chap.1.5,6.if that particular judgment be in theſe words intended ; or,with the generality of wicked ones, thorow out the whole world, if the laſt ecumenical judgment be deſigned,Act.17.31. Rom.3.19,20. See Chap.34.1,2. Jer. 45. 5.

and the ſlain of the Lord ſhall be many.] The Lords purpoſe is to make a great ſlaughter. See Jer. 25. 33. the ſlain of the Lord,for,thoſe that are ſlain by him ; as, the ſlain of the ſword, for,ſuch as are ſlain by it, Chap.22.2. Lam.4.9.

V. 17. They that ſanctifie themſelves, and purifie themſelves in the gardens,] He proceedeth more particularly, to deſign who the perſons be , againſt whom he is reſolved thus to proceed : by the deſcription of whom , it evidently appeareth, that the judgment here denounced, doth in a more ſpeciall manner concern the wicked ones of the Jewiſh Nation, before deciphered,Chap.65.4,5.

that ſanctifie and purifie themſelves] That uſe ſuperſtitious rites of expiation , ſuppoſing themſelves thereby to be made holy and pure. Thus rather then as ſome, that firſt pollute, and then purifie themſelves with water, like Pilate, that by waſhing his hands, thought he might diſcharge himſelf of the guilt of Chriſts bloud.Mat.27.24. See Chap.65.5. that ſanctifie and purifie themſelves; that think they do ſo, when they do nothing leſs ; as,that bleſſeth himſelf,Deut.29.19.

in the gardens] Set apart for idolatrous ſervices, Chap.1,29. & 65. 3. in the pools,or lavers, that there they had for ſuch uſes : or,for the gardens ; to prepare and fit themſelves for the exerciſe of their idolatry in them : ſo is the particle uſed, 1 Sam.1.27.Ezek.6.9,11.as among Gods people, the manner was,after any legal uncleanneſs contracted, to purifie themſelves, by aſperſion of pure water upon them , or by dipping themſelves therein,before they repaired unto Gods Sanctuary,for the performance of any holy duty, Num.19.7,8,13,19, 20.alluded to Pſal.26.6.ſo in imitation thereof, both Heathen people,and theſe idolatrous Jews did, by ſuch like waſhings, deemed themſelves cleanſed from the ſoil of their ſins , and made fit for their idol-ſervice ; but it is more likely, that in thoſe gardens,then out of them,they did ſo purifie themſelves for the ſervices to be acted in ſome other part of them, or in ſome Temple thereunto adjoyning : as the Heathen had their delubra,or holy lavers,neer to their Temples.

behind one tree in the midſt] This paſſage hath no ſmal variety of notions by Interpreters faſtened upon it. The Greek renders it, in the porches, or entries,before dore,or without dore: The old Latine clean contrary; behind dore within; as Chap.57.8. that is, ſay ſome Expoſiters,in ſecret,where they might not be ſeen,or taken ſuddenly,in the manner,Jer.2.26,27.but as the former hath no footing at all in the text ; ſo this latter very little. The Chaldee,which ſome of the Rabbines follow, renders it,not ſimply one after another,as ſome cite him,and ſome of ours render the text; but,company after company;one company of them after another, untill the whole Society of them be ſanctified. Others of them, which our Verſion admitteth behind ſome one tree,or other, in the grove, or in the garden, Jer. 3. 6. Whereunto ſome of ours add, as a thing not unlikely ; that as every one of them had a god of his own ; ſo each of them had his peculiar tree, whereat he did ſervice to that his idol. Others,behind ſome one fountain,or pool ; for they obſerve here a double reading ; the one of a maſculine ; the other of a feminine,form ; and they ſupply terms accordingly correſpondent to either. Some of ours would have it rendred, for ſome one ſtrange god; that purifie themſelves in the gardens , for the ſervice of ſome ſtrange god : But the word,that they render ſtrange, is not found ſo to ſignifie in the form here uſed. Others therefore,give it otherwiſe in terms, but in effect to the ſame notion, after ſome one falſe god, or other,which they follow and ſerve. Others,laſtly, which to me ſeems moſt probable,conceive the word achad,or echad, or as it is not unuſually pronounced, ahad, and ehad, rendred commonly,here one, to be, in this place, a proper name ; yet not a name of God, as ſome ſuperſtitiouſly would have it to be,Job 31.15.Zach.14.9.but of an idol Ahad,or Ehad, whom alſo by a gemination of the final conſonant, they termed Adad: for ſo Macrobius in his Saturnales,l.1.c.23.reporteth,that the Aſſyrians called the chief god that they worſhipped,Adad, by a word, ſaith he,that ſignifieth one, whence alſo he gathereth,that by this name,they underſtood the Sun,who is but one, and ever one,otherwiſe then the Moon.And this ſome learned ſuppoſe to be the ſame with Hadad;which ſeems to have been a name very common among the Kings of Edom, or Idumea; Gen.36.35,36. 1 Chr.1.46,47,50,51.1 King.11.14,17,25.but grew afterward much more common with the Kings of Aram,or Syria,2 Sam.8.3,5,8.& 10.16,19.1 King.11.24.& 15.18,20.& 20.1,33.2 King 6.24.& 8.7,15.& 13.3,24. See Jer.49.27. and Joſephs Antiquities,l.7.c.6.Howbeit,becauſe theſe two names differ in the initial letter,I conceive them not to be the ſame. But to return to thoſe that underſtand the word here of that Aſſyrian, rather then Syrian idol, (though it might be common to them both) Some of them render the words, after Ahad,whom they go after, that is, follow and adore ; as Judg. 2.11,12. Others,behind Ahad,that is,behind the Temple of Ahad,amidſt the walks and gardens adjacent.

in the midſt] That is,ſay ſome,openly,publikely;in open view; ſhameleſly acting ſuch things in their impious rites, as were moſt unſeemly. But I find not where this form is ſo uſed in Scripture. Others therefore expound it of thoſe fountains, or lavers , in thoſe gardens , wherein they purified themſelves , which were uſually ſituate in the midſt of them : though we need not drive it ſo neer home, as to ſay, with ſome Jewiſh Criticks,that their groves were at the either end of the gardens,and theſe fountains,or lavers,in the midſt, having the one grove before them, and the other behind them; as the men of Ay,had the Iſraelites,Joſh.8.22.

and the abomination]Heb.the ſhekets, which ſome ſuppoſe to be the name of ſome particular kind of unclean creature;and one of the Jewiſh Doctors ſeems to intimate as much,when he ſaith, There are ſome nations that eat the ſheket, and the mouſe : and the placing of it here between two other diſtinct kinds, may well bee deemed to imply no leſs. And if place may be afforded for conjecture,the joyning of choled, or holed, commonly rendred a weſel, with that which is deemed a mouſe, Lev.11.29.may afford ſome ſuſpition, that ſhekets here, may be the ſame with that choled,or holed there. Howbeit,the word is uſed more generally, for abomination, or any abominable thing,Lev.11.10,11,12,20. Ezek.8.10.as alſo is another word derived from it,Dan.9.26.& 11.31. compared with Matth.24. 13. the plural whereof we had before,ver.3. as alſo,Jer.4.1. & Ezek.20.7,8.

and the mouſe] Some having rendred the former abominable creatures (See Zach.9. 7.) render this,as the mouſe ; and the copulative is ſometime put for the note of ſimilitude ; as Job 21.33.& 34.3.but ſeldome,I ſuppoſe,in that manner, as here. The mouſe,is, among other unclean creatures, reckoned up, and expreſly inhibited for mans meat,Lev. 11, 29. Yet that mice,ſome kind of them eſpecially, were commonly eaten, in many places, among other people, and that reputed alſo as a dainty diſh,doth,by Authors of good note and credit,appear; for Varro,in his Treatiſe of Husbandry,l.3.c.15. relateth, how for dormice , one kind of them, they made Warrens for the breed of them,and coupes for the fatting of them ; and Pliny, l.8.c.47.reporteth,that in the Laws ſometime made to reſtrain exceſs in diet, the uſe of dormice, together with ſome ſhelfiſh, and forrain fowl,was inhibited. The name ſome would have given them, from a word, that ſignifies to diſturb, or trouble : whence Acor, Chap.65.10. becauſe they are wont to diſturb and trouble the houſe,by knawing ; the fields, by digging ; both by devouring and deſtroying things of uſe, 1 Sam. 6. 5. and we read indeed of an Iland,called Gyarus in the midland ſea, to have been ſo infeſted with mice , that the inhabitants were enforced to quit it, Pliny, l.8.c.29,57. And Euſtathius on Homer, from Ancient Writers, reporteth , that in ſome places, by the name of Smintheus, they worſhipped Apollo, for ridding their grounds of this kind of vermine,if mice may, at leaſt, be properly ſo called. But the notation of the word, in regard of the letters of it, ſeems not very probable ; and I have ſome doubt, which I ſhall only propound, and leave to the learned, whether the word here uſed,ſignifie a mouſe,or no : and the ground of my doubt is; becauſe the creature here mentioned, is ranked among creeping things, Lev. 11.29. and I ſee little reaſon, why the mouſe, or the weſel , or the ferret, ſhould go under that name, more then the hare, or the cony, (which ſome alſo render, a mountain mouſe;) Lev. 11. 5,6,26.

or why they ſhould not be comprehended under the general head of beaſts, beforementioned, Lev.11.2. and come within the general rules concerning beaſts there delivered, ver. 4,5. the rather, for that I find creeping things ſtill diſtinguiſhed from beaſts, Gen.1.24.& 7.14,21,23. I encline therefore to think, that the creature here, and elſewhere, mentioned, is ſome creeping thing, not unlike the ſcorpion, as they differ not much in name;the one termed Acbar, the other, Akrab,Deut. 8.15. and that divers ſorts of creeping things, as liſards,and locuſts, (for they are reckoned alſo among the creepers; and are not forbidden food, Lev.11.21,22.) and the like,were with many people in times paſt, not unuſually eaten, (as frogs, and ſnails, and torteiſes, alſo are, in many places at this day) is not only, by divers other Authors, but of ſome of them, to wit,the Locuſt, by Scripture it ſelf teſtified, Mat.3.4. Mar.1.6. yea of others, beſide the divers ſorts of locuſts, under the names of the ſoleam, and the chargol, or, hargol, and the chagab, or hagab, with their ſeveral kinds, Lev.11.21. which it had been in vain to allow for meat, had they not been fit for food, or not uſually eaten. But hereof, let others further conſider, and deem, as themſelves ſhall pleaſe. The word is no where found in Scripture ſave here, in that place of Moſes, and the ſtory of the Philiſtines,with ſuch kind of creatures annoyed,1 Sam. 6.4,5,11,18.

ſhall be conſumed together, ſaith the Lord] See Chap.1.28.

V. 18. For I know their works,and their thoughts] Heb.And I their works,and their thoughts. Which ſundry Interpreters ſuppoſing to contain an entire ſentence, but with ſuppreſſion of ſome word, or words (as in paſſionate ſpeeches it oft falleth out) conceived, do ſome ſupply, as our verſion, and ſome Greek Copies, I know; as Hoſ.5.3. Amos 5.12.and the Chaldee, they arerevealed, or, lye open, before me: which ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters expound of the thoughts of Gog and Magog, the enemies of Gods people, Ezek.38.10. that God knew their thoughts, though they little dreamed of his; as Mic.4.11,12. To which purpoſe alſo others of them,with whom, ſome of ours alſo concur, render it, I am with them. It is I that bring them together, and cauſe them to come up, and camp againſt Jeruſalem, Ezek.38.4,8.Zach.14.2. Others ſupply, I will viſit; or take vengeance upon them, for their courſes, and their counſels; as Chap.65.6,7. which would well ſuit with the clauſe next before-going. Others again, reading the words by way of interrogation, with a kind of indignation, And their works and their thoughts,ſhould I endure? not unlike that, Jer.5.9. & 9.9. But I rather here accord with thoſe, that knit theſe words together, in one ſentence, with thoſe that come after, reading the text, thus; As for me, when their works and their thoughts are come, (that is, when the time of taking vengeance for them, ſhall come,) I will gather all nations,&c. or, as others, As for me, ſince their works, and their thoughts are ſuch; or, becauſe of theſe their works, and theſe their thoughts, it ſhall come to paſſe, that I will gather all nations. Since that this people do take ſuch courſes, and go on obſtinately in the ſame, ver.3,4. I will execute judgment upon them, and caſting of thoſe, that thus perſiſt in their impieties, take in the Gentiles to me, in their ſtead,Rom.11.11, 12,15,17.

For I] Heb. And I; or, As for me: the word is put abſolutely, as 1 Chr.28.2. See Chap.65.11.

their works] Or, for their works; as, for the fear, Mal.2.5.

thoughts] As Chap.65.2.

it ſhall come] Or, it ſhall come to paſſe; or, the time ſhall come.

that I will gather] Heb. and I will gather together; ſo the copulative is uſed, Chap.65.24.

all nations, and tongues] People out of divers nations, and languages, Act.2.8-11. Rev.7.9.

and they ſhall come and ſee my glory] Or, that they may come and ſee my glory; the particle uſed, as before. That being brought into the Church, they may have revealed, and imparted unto them, that gracious and glorious preſence of God,in his ſacred ordinances, which the Jewiſh people alone did formerly enjoy,Pſal.97.6. Chap.40.5. 2 Cor.3.18.& 4.6.Eph.3. 6. The Jewiſh Doctors expound it, of the Nations of the world, being brought to ſee Gods glorious might, declared in the Meſſias his dayes, in the deſtruction of Gog and Magag, Ezek.38.23. & 39.6,7.

V. 19. And I will ſet a ſign among them,] What this ſign ſhould be,and where it ſhould be ſet, is much queſtioned. The Jewiſh Commenters would have it to be, the rotting of the fleſh, and eyes, and tongues of thoſe, that ſerved under Gog and Magog, againſt Jeruſalem, Zach.14.12. Ours, (to paſſe by the ſuperſtitious conceits of ſome Popiſh Writers,concerning the ſign of the croſſe, to which they apply that alſo, Mat. 24.30. and ſome other far-fetched, and over-ſtrained expoſitions) do moſt of them pitch upon one of theſe two notions: the one, of a ſign, or enſign, erected to call and gather people together; as Chap.11.12. & 49.22. & 62.10. that which ſome expound of Chriſt himſelf, ſaid to be ſet, for a ſign, Chap. 11. 10. Luk.2.34. Others, of the miniſtery of the Word, and other external ſigns of Chriſtian profeſſion, together,with the miraculous works accompanying the ſame,erected firſt among the Jews,for the converſion of the Elect among them,and the bringing in of the Gentiles unto them; and afterward alſo among the Gentiles. Some expound this branch of the erecting of it, among the Jews,Chap.2.2,3.Mar.16.15-20. Luk.24. 47,49. Act.2. & 5.12-16. Some, of the ſetting it up among the Gentiles, Gal.2.1. whereof, ſee on the next branch: and though the word uſed for a ſign, in thoſe other places of this Prophet, be divers from that here uſed; nor doth the word here uſed, ordinarily ſo ſignifie; yet it is ſo taken, Pſal. 74.4. in thoſe words, they ſet up their enſigns for ſigns, or,as ſigns; to wit, of conqueſt, and triumph. The other notion is of a ſign, or mark, whereby one may be deſcryed and diſcerned from ſome other: as it is ſaid, God ſet a ſign, or a mark, upon Cain: and ſo ſome render the words here; I will ſet a ſign,or,a mark, not among them, but upon them; as the ſame particle is uſed in thoſe words, Neh.9.10. thou didſt ſet, or, ſhew, ſigns and wonders upon Pharao, and upon his ſervants,and upon the people of the land: and they underſtand it of a privy note, or mark,that God would ſet upon his Elect, whom he would have reſerved; whereby to mark them out for Salvation; as temporal here, in the times of execution to be done upon the wicked crew, among whom they were mixed; ſo eternal hereafter: alludeing to that ſign of diſtinction between the Hebrews, and the Egyptians in Egypt, for the ſaving of the one, amidſt the deſtruction of the other, Exod.12.7,13,22,23.See the like,Ezek. 9.4,6. Rev.7.3. & 9.4. and of ſealing and marking for life eternal, 2 Cor.1.21,22. Eph.1.13,14. & 4.30. 2 Tim.2.19.and this expoſition,the word of eſcape following, ſeems to confirm. Now the text thus read, and rendred, the word them, muſt be reſtrained unto Gods faithful ſervants, before-mentioned,ver. 14. which becauſe it is ſomewhat remote, I ſuppoſe we may well retain the received verſion, among them; as the particle is rendred, Pſal.18.49. Chap.57.6. & 65.4. and hereafter, verſ. 19. So it may well include the mixt body of the people,among whom thoſe faithful ones abode, upon whom alone, this ſaving mark was to be ſet. And I conceive,that the copulative hath the notion of a cauſal in this place; as Chap. 53.2. and 65.15. and the text might better be rendred; For I will ſet a ſign among them, and ſend thoſe that eſcape of them, unto the nations: as ſhewing by what means,that ſhould be effected,which was before-mentioned,concerning the coming in of the Gentiles, ver.18.

and I will ſend thoſe that eſcape of them,unto the nations]Heb. I will ſend of them, or, from them, eſcaped ones,(that is, ſome of them,that do eſcape) unto the nations. This the Rabbines underſtand of thoſe Gogs and Magogs forces, who,though not ſlain, yet with their fleſh waſted, and tongue and eyes eaten out,ſhould, as ſpectacles of Gods wrath and vengeance,being diſperſed into remote places, publiſh, without ſpeaking, Gods powerful proceedings, and miraculous dealing with thoſe forreign forces, that had invaded his peoples land, Ezek. 39. 11. Zach.14.12,16. But our Writers expound it generally of the reſerves of the Jewiſh Nation, Chap.37.31. Jer. 44.14, 28. Mat.24.22,24.Rom.11.5,7. the Apoſtles,and other faithful, by whom the Word and glad tydings of ſalvation by Chriſt, was carried abroad and divulged,among the Gentiles, in all parts of the then known world, Mat.28.18. Mar. 16.15. Luk.24.47. Act.8.1,4. & 10.45. & 11.18-23. & 13.46-49. & 15.7,14.Rom.10.15,18. & 15.19,20. Eph.2.17. Col.1.23.

to Tarſhiſh] That is, as ſome, to the ſea. So the Chaldee, and the old Latine. Which ſome expound, of people coaſting upon the Arabian and Perſian Gulfs. Others, to the Ocean: as if it were ſaid,that they ſhall go carrying about the Goſpel, both by ſea and land, unto the parts hereafter named. See Chap.60.9. yet others, among whom the Greek Interpreters take it, for the name of a particular place, whether Tarſus, in Cilicia, as ſome; or Torteſus in Spain, as others,ſee on chap. 2.16. & 23.1.

Pul] This ſome ſuppoſe to be the ſame with Put, or Phut, mentioned, Jer. 46.9. & Ezek. 30. 5. and both indeed are deemed to be regions ſituate in Africa; but to be diſtinct and divers places. An Interpreter of prime note would have this Pul, or Phul, to be Cyrene, lying between Egypt and Tunis, taking the ground of this his conjecture from the name of a King, that ſometime there reigned, called, as he ſuppoſeth, Aphulla; but by Juſtine,l.22. corruptly,Ophellas. But herein a late learned Writer controlleth him; ſhewing,that Kings time to be by many hundreds of yeers too young to give this name to that place, whatever it was, that is here ſo called: as alſo from Diodore, l.20. and others, that that Kings right name was not Aphulla, but Ophellas, or Opheltes; the man himſelf a Grecian, and the name a Greek term. He would have it to be Phile, an Iland, with a city therein of the ſame name with the Iland ſituate amids the ſtream of the river Nilus; lus; about ſome hundred furlongs above Sciene and Elephantine, in the confines of Ethiopia and Egypt, whereof Strabo, Heliodore, Pliny, and many other, as being a place of ſome note: and he ſuppoſeth it, to have its name from the ſame ground, with Elephantine; (Phile and Elephantine, being two cities, for ſize and faſhion, bigneſs and beauty, ſo neer matches, nor in ſituation far diſtant, that ſome authors have confounded them, and taken the one for the other) and to have been ſo called of the word Phil; which with Syrians, Chaldeans, Arabians, and Ethiopians, is uſed for an Elephant; that Eſay inſtead of Phil, giveth it Phul: the like change being found in many other proper names in Scripture, as in Pau, Gen.36.39. & Pai, 1 Chr. 1.50. Tau, and Toi, 1 Chr.18.9.& 2 Sam.8.9. Perudah, and Peridah, Ezr.2.54. & Neh.7.57. But it may be doubted, whether the word Phil, for an Elephant, be in thoſe languages ſo ancient, as to give the name either to this Pul, or to that Phile; and whether it came not from the Greeks into thoſe languages; as to the Greeks in likelihood by the Punik, from the Hebrew Eleph, an ox; by them applyed to the Behemoth, that eateth graſſe, like an ox, Job 40.15. nor had the Latines, at firſt, any other name for them, then oxen, as by ſome old by-words, in common uſe among them, appeareth; until they had that of Elephants from the Greeks: beſides, it appeareth not that this Phile, ſituate thus in the midſt of the river, had any large territory belonging unto it: nor is it very probable, that two cities, no further diſtant, poſſeſſed both by the ſame nation, ſometime wholly, and in part conſtantly, and having in notion the ſame name, ſhould the one be ſo called, by an Ethiopian term; the other by a Grecian: and if the names of ancient Kings be deemed to be a matter of any moment, to afford light of conjecture, for the finding out of places, as bearing their names; it might be ſuppoſed, that this Pul ſhould rather be ſome place in or about Aſſyria; ſince that Pul, and Pil, are in Scripture records, found to have been anciently, even before Eſays time, in the names of the Kings of Aſſyria. See Pul, 1 Chr.5.26. & 2 King.15.19. and Pil-eſer, or Pilneſer, 2 King.16.7,10. 2 Chr.28.20. and from this Aſſyrian Pul, or Phul, may ſome of thoſe Πύλοι, or Pyſi, in Peloponneſus, whereof Strabo, and Pauſanias, have had their name; as alſo that Φύλλος, or Phyllus, in Theſſaly; whence Apollo had a ſirname; as Strabo, l. 9. & Φλυὸς, or Phligus, whom they feigned to be, agegenes, or a giant, one of thoſe whom the earth bare; ſome one of thoſe ancient Puls, or Phuls, in likelihood. See Pauſanius, in his Meſſeniakes. Beſides that I find Aſhur, and Elam, whereof more anon, mentioned in a place parallel to this, among thoſe regions, out of which Gods people were to be gathered. See Chap.11.11. Howbeit, if the conjecture concerning this Aſſyrian Pul, ſhall to the learned ſeem light, I am well content that it ſo paſſe, deſiring only to ſee more likely.

and Lud] Lud was the name of one of Sems ſons, brother to Aſhur, and Aram; the one the father of the Aſſyrians: the other of the Syrians, or Aramites, Gen. 10. 22. from him it is generally deemed, that Lydia, ſituate in that part of Aſia, which we now commonly call Anatolia, his poſterity there ſeating it ſelf, had its name: it was the Kingdome ſometime of Gog, or Gyges, (as Bozra, Byrſa, Chap.63.1.) See Herodote, l.1. and of this Lydia, and theſe Lydians, (for the name of the country is put for the people) Interpreters, with one conſent, underſtand this place: nor otherwiſe do moſt underſtand that in Ezekiel, 27.10. where Peres, Lud, and Put, are joyned together, as affording ſouldiery to Tyre. Howbeit, becauſe it is ſaid, Gen.10.13. that Mitſraim begat Ludim; and that Cuſh, and Put, and Lud, are mentioned among thoſe that were in league with Egypt, Ezek.30.5. and that as Pul, and Lud here; ſo Put, and Lud there, are joyned together, as neighbours: as alſo, that as Lud here; ſo the Ludim, Jer.46.9. are commended for archery: hence, that learned Writer, before mentioned, concludeth, that the Lud, both here, & in Ezekiel ſpoken of, as alſo thoſe Ludim, (the ſame in likelihood with theſe) are not the Lydians, ſo commonly called, but the Ethiopians, neighbours to Egypt, and their confederates; and, in ancient records, renowned for their ſkill at the bow. Concerning which, I ſhall not much contend, only the arguments, ſome of them, ſeem not ſo weighty; ſince that it appeareth, by Herodote, l.1. not only that the Lydians were, in ancient times, deemed one of the ſtrongeſt, and valianteſt people in all Aſia; but that they were alſo in confederacy with the Egyptians, whom Crœſus therefore had thoughts of ſending to, for ayd againſt Cyrus: and for the joyning of them together, with Put elſewhere, with Pul here; it is no good proof of neighbourhood between Lud and Put; no more then between Peres, and Lud: and beſide, that the ſite of Pul here, is uncertain, the reaſon of the copulative, here inſerted, may be, becauſe this member of the ſentence endeth with an attribute annexed to them, of handling the bow; whereof further anon.

that draw the bow;] Heb. drawers of bow, (as Jer.46.9.) handlers, benders (or, benders) of bow. Theſe, ſaith one of the Rabbines, are the Turks; but who the Anceſtors of the Turks, whom we now ſo term, were; or how in thoſe times they were ſtyled, or where they abode, is uncertain. The like character of expertneſs in the uſe of the bow, is given by Jeremy, as well to Elam, Jer.49.35. (where he giveth him the bow, as our Prophet doth the quiver, Chap.22.6.) as to Ludim, Jer.46.9. and it may well be queſtioned, whether this attribute of drawing the bow, being in the plural number, whereas Pul, and Lud, are both ſingular, be the character of the latter onely, or rather common to both; and that rather the reaſon of the copulative, then the neighbourhood of the nations. Our Tranſlators ſeem ſo to have deemed; and the Hebrew points which they exactly here follow, ſeem to carry it this way: that which addeth ſome ſtrength to my former conjecture concerning Pul, as either in, or appertaining to Aſſyria; for that Elymais (which all grant to be Elam) is by Strabo, l.16. aſſigned to the Aſſyrias, as part of Aturia, (which indeed is no other then Aſſyria) and the Elymeans noted for ſkilfull archers.

to Tubal] The old Latine here, hath Italy; as alſo Joſeph the ſon of Gorion, placeth Tubal in Tuſcany; and it was a groundleſs ſurmiſe therefore of a learned Writer, to imagine, that ſome Hebrew Copies, had anciently Ital, for Tubal; for this ſeemeth to have given occaſion of that erroneous opinion. Tubal we find to have been one of the ſons of Japhet, Gen. 10,2. whoſe poſterity therefore bare that name: where their ſeat was is queſtioned; for to paſs by ſome of the Ancients, who aſſign them Theſſaly in Greece, wherein none, I ſuppoſe, now follow them. Some place them indeed in Europe, and would have them to be the Spaniards, or the Iberi in Spain, at leaſt: for though that name did more ſpecially belong to the people, inhabiting one part of that vaſt countrey, bordering upon the river Iberus; yet the Romanes, as Strabo teſtifieth, uſed anciently, to call the whole countrey Iberia. But others with more probability place them in Aſia, where Iberi are alſo found; ſuppoſed by Strabo to have paſſed thither out of Europe; and unto theſe, Joſeph the ſon of Matthias, whom moſt of ours therein follow, in his Antiquities referreth them. Nor doth that learned late Writer ſtep far from him, who ſeemeth to have preciſely diſcovered both their place, and their name, out of the monuments of antiquity yet extant. For of Tubal, ſaith he, have the Greeks made Tibar; as of Picol, Phicor; of Belial, Beliar; whence the region Tibaris, Diodore, l.4. and the people, at firſt Tibari, and then Tibarein; who dwelling in part of Pontus, were neer neighbours both to the Chalybes, men of ſpecial note for iron-works, from whom, ſteel, in Latine, hath its name; and to the Moſchi, with whom, in Herodotes Story, the Tibarenes are commonly joyned; as in Scripture alſo Tubal is with Meſhec, being the poſterity of Meſhech, brother to Tubal, Gen.10.2. See Ezek.27.13. and 23.26. and 38.2,3. and 39.1. Beſides, that ſome prints of the name of Tubal, or Thubal remain in Thabilaca, a City, by Ptolomy, reported to be about thoſe parts, ſo called. Howbeit, ſome ſuppoſe this nation to have had the name of Tubal, from Tubal-Kain, (whence the Latines had their Vulcan) the ſon of Lamec, one of Kains poſterity, the firſt inventer of Smithery, Gen.4.22. not as ſome of his race (for that periſhed in the floud) but becauſe of his trade, which they were generally addicted unto.

and Javan] Javan was likewiſe one of Japhets ſons, brother to Tubal, and Meſhec, Gen.10.2. Thoſe of his poſterity were termed by the Greeks, and Latines, Iones, Iaones, and Iades; which, though it cleaved moſt conſtantly to thoſe Greeks that were ſeated in Aſia, and came to be peculiarly appropriated unto them; yet the title of Javan anciently took in all Greece, and Macedonia alſo with it: whence it is, that Alexander is termed the King of Javan, Dan.8.21.

to the Iles afar off] Or, ſimply, by way of appoſition, the Iles, or thoſe Iles afar off; or, thoſe remote countries, (as the word is oft uſed in this prophecy. See Chap.20.6. & 49.1.) ſuch eſpecially, as were beyond the ſea, or coaſted, and bordered, upon the Sea. See Chap.11.11. to thoſe, with whom the Jewiſh people had little commerce in times paſt.

that have not heard my fame,] Or, the report of me; as Chap. 53.1. where Chriſt had not been named, Rom. 15. 19. where the Goſpel had never been preached before, Chap. 52. 15.& 65. 1.

neither have ſeen my glory;] In that manner, as his own people had done, Pſal.27.4.& 63.2.& 106.5.

and they ſhall declare my glory among the Gentiles.] Or, that they may declare my glory among the Gentiles; as ver.18. fulfilled in the Apoſtles, and other of the faithful, ſent out from the Jews, to publiſh the glad tidings of the Goſpel, concerning the glorious riches of Gods grace, in the ſalvation and inheritance purchaſed by Chriſt. See before on the firſt branch of this verſe. See alſo, Rom.10.14-18. & 16.25,26. Eph.1.17-22. & 3.8,9.

V. 20. And they ſhall bring all your brethren for an offering unto the Lord, out of all nations,] They ſhall bring home into the Church of God, the converts of the Gentiles, and preſent them there as an offering unto God. See Chap.60.9. The Jews underſtand it of the remainder of their nation, that had not yet returned home, thus to be ſent into their countrey in great honour and ſtate, after the diſcomfiture of Gog, and Magog: And a late Writer of the diſmiſſion, and ſetting free of the Jews, taken captive in the Macedonian and Syrian Wars, after Judas the Maccabee his proſperous ſucceſſes. But the bringing in of the Gentiles, ſeem rather to be deſcribed here, as elſe-where; with ſpecial eye, and reference, to the return of the Jews from the Babylonian captivity, together with the accommodations of ſeveral nations, at Cyrus his command, afforded unto them, for the more eaſeful and commodious conveyance of them into their own country. Ezr.1. 1-6. See Chap.45.9.22.& 60.4,9.

your brethren] The convert Gentiles, made, by faith, the ſeed and children of Abraham, as well as ye, Rom.4.11,12. Gal.3.16,29. yea, the children of God, as well as ye, Joh. 1. 12,13.& 11.52. Gal.3.26,28.

upon horſes, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon ſwift beaſts,] Various means of conveyance heaped up, to intimate a plentiful affordance of all gracious helps requiſite for the bringing of Gods Elect home unto Chriſt. See other expreſſions looking the ſame way, Chap.60.9. ver.12. Of horſe, and chariots, ſee on Chap.24.7. Gen,50.9. nor need we, with the Jewiſh Commenters, ſuppoſe iron-chariots, though ſuch were uſed in war, Judg.4.3. theſe being intended onely for travel.

litters] The Jewiſh Criticks are much divided about this word, being found no where in this notion, but here, & Num. 7.3. there in the ſingular number; here in the plural. Some of them would have it ſignifie paniers, or doſſers, or the like, faſtened together, and ſo laid upon a beaſts back, to carry neceſſaries in, and to ride, if need be, between them: but what ſhould ſuch implements do with wains, or wagons, wherewith it is there joyned. Others therefore render it wains, or wagons yoaked, drawn with a yoke of oxen each of them, which might well ſuit with what followeth of twelve oxen, for ſix wagons, could any good reaſon be rendred of ſuch ſignification of the word. Others tell us, the right is, that it go for ſome beaſt; and we find a creeping creature indeed ſo termed, Lev.11.29. but very unfit ſure to be uſed about wagons: Our Interpreters well render them, their covered wagons; that is, cloſe wagons, as ſome term them: the word, in its firſt notion, ſignifieth, a torteiſe, though the Greeks render it, a crocodile. Now from the ſwelling up (for it hath very neer affinity with a word that ſignifies to ſwell, Num. 5.21, 22,27.) or, riſing, ſhield-faſhion (whence a ſhield alſo is, in Latine, ſo termed) of the torteiſes ſhell, both in Latine, and other Languages, were arched, and vaulted roofs, or works of any ſort ſo called; and from that faſhion of covering, were thoſe wains, or wagons, ſo termed, being appointed to carry the materials of the Tabernacle; and it may well here be rendred, coaches, or litters, ſuch being uſually much of that making. And that learned man therefore ſeemeth to have ſpoken himſelf without ground, who denieth any ground to be found in the Hebrew, for the rendring of them arched, or covered wains, or wagons, as ſome Interpreters of prime note have done: his rendring them narrow wains, or wagons, becauſe the like Ethiopick term is uſed for narrow, Mat. 7. 13. to me ſeemeth leſs probable, and further fetcht: but thereof, let others deem.

mules,] On theſe, great ones, Kings ſons, yea, Kings themſelves uſed to ride, 2 Sam.13.29. & 18.9. 1 King.1.33. and with horſes, and mules, in great ſtore, beſides camels, and aſſes, for carriage, were thoſe furniſhed, that went up, firſt, after the diſſolution of the Babylonian deportation to Jeruſalem, Ezr. 2.66. Neh.7.68.

ſwift beaſts] To the ſame purpoſe, moſt of the Jewiſh Doctors, affirming the word to ſignifie a kind of camel, ſwifter then ordinary (ſee on chap.16.1.) ſuch as the dromedary, chap. 66. 6. ſo called, ſay they, of a word that ſignifieth to skip, or dance, 2 Sam.6. 14,16. becauſe they have a kind of skipping pace; though ſome from the ſame place and ground, would have it rendred, pacing beaſts, or amblers, that keep a meaſure in their pace, and ſeem to dance as they go; as the word is in that place rendred. The Chaldee rendreth it, with hymns, or praiſes; and one of the Rabbines following him, with mirth and dances; as David conveyed the Ark to Sion: and another, with ſheep, for ſacrifices, expounding this, by that, which in ſound of letters cometh neer it, Chap. 16. 1. and indeed the word rendred dancing, ſeems to have its originall from the manner of ſheep, rams eſpecially, ſporting themſelves in their paſtures; the word car, ſignifying as well paſture, as ſheep, ram, or wether, Chap.16.1. and thence the word, carcar, to skip, and ſport, as they uſe to do, Pſal.114.6. The ancient Greeks render it, with ſhades, or umbellaes; ſuch as travellers uſe to carry in thoſe hot countries on the top of a cane, made on light ſtuff, and ſpread circle-wiſe, for ſhadow. Some other of the Greek, and ſo the old Latine, which ſome of ous alſo follow, in caroches, or coaches; ſuppoſing it to be another ſort of reeckts, for carriage, diſtinct from the former. The ambiguity is the greater, becauſe the word is no where elſe read: I ſuppoſe the firſt moſt probable, becauſe it ſorteth beſt with the root, whence the word ſeems to ariſe.

to my holy mountain Jeruſalem, ſaith the Lord,] Heb. upon, or unto, (as 1 Sam.1.10.& 2.11.) my mountain of holineſſe (as chap. 65.11,25.) Jeruſalem; either by appoſition ſimply, Jeruſalem; ſo termed, becauſe it ſtood, though in a plain, yet on a knole. See Jer.17.3. or, to my holy mountain, the hill of Jeruſalem, as chap.10.32. or, at Jeruſalem; as Pſal.68.29. to mount-Sion, a type of the Church, Chap.56.7.

as the children of Iſrael bring an offering in a clean veſſel, into the houſe of the Lord.] That is, ſay the Jewiſh Maſters, they ſhall bring them in goodly apparel, and rich rayment, ſuch as is fit to go unto Gods houſe with, Zach.3.4,5. and as a gift, or offering, that was not to be redeemed, Lev.27. 28,29. The meaning is, that as nothing, which was not pure, or holy, might be brought into Gods houſe, Chap. 52. 11. Ezr.8.28. Pſal. 93. 5. ſo theſe Gentile Converts ſhould no longer be deemed profane, or impure, and ſecluded, and ſequeſtred, therefore, from acceſſe unto Gods houſe; but as perſons purified, by faith in Chriſt, ſhould be admitted into the body of Gods Church, his houſe, 1 Tim. 3. 5. and have ſociety in it with the Saints, Act.10.15.& 11.8,18.& 15.9.& 26.18. Eph.2. 19. See Chap.56.3,7.

into] Or unto; the particle is wanting; but to be ſupplied; as Chap.13.2.

V.21. And I will alſo take of them for Prieſts, and for Levites, ſaith the Lord.] The Jewiſh Doctors are ſomewhat puzzled about theſe words. Some of them ſay the meaning is, concerning theſe onely now brought, whereof ſome might be of the Prieſtly linage, and ſome of the Levitical Progeny; that albeit, they had ſtaid long behind their brethren, in forrein parts more remote, inſomuch that they were grown now out of remembrance; yea, had peradventure alſo lived after the faſhion of thoſe Heathen, among whom they abode, or had been in ſervitude, and put to baſe employments among them, which might be deemed to make them unfit for, and uncapable of returning to ſuch offices again: yet upon their return, God would take them again, ſuch of them as were of the Prieſtly race, for Prieſts; & ſuch as were of the other Levitical Families, for Levites, and for Levitical employments. But ſome of them go a ſtep further, and ſay it is meant, as well of the Gentiles that bring them, as of thoſe that are brought by them, that God would take them into office. That which others ſtartle at, as if ſome Gentiles then ſhould be admitted into ſuch places; And this to avoid therefore, ſome of them expound the text, I will take of them for the Prieſts, and for the Levites; that is, ſay they, not to be Prieſts, or Levites, but to do ſervice unto them; to be as the Gibeonites, hewers of wood, and drawers of water, for the ſervice of the ſanctuary, and of them, that either as Prieſts, or Levites, ſhould miniſter therein, Joſh.9.23,27. To which purpoſe alſo they would force in that of Zach. 14. 21. in that day the Canaanite, (that is, ſay they, the Gibeonite) ſhall be no more in the Lords houſe: for theſe Gentile Proſelytes ſhall then ſerve as they did. They might more ſeemingly have alledged that paſſage, Chap.61.5, 6. But of that ſee there. Mean while ye may obſerve, how poor ſouls, they ſhut their eyes againſt the light that not ſhineth only, but blazeth and flaſheth full in their faces. They ſhall be brought, ſaith God, in ſtate, as holy ones, home to my houſe; and I will alſo (as ſpeaking of a further, and higher degree of honour) take of them; what to do with them? think we; to account them as accurſed ones, and to make bond-ſlaves and drudges of them? as Joſhua ſpeaks of the Gibeonites. No, nothing leſs, but to advance them to honourable places, to make Levites and Prieſts of them; as moſt of them expound the words of the text: even he himſelf, among the reſt, who relates the other, as his Fathers opinion. And it were a fond thing to ſay, that God would take of them for Prieſts and Levites, that were ſo born, and ſuch already. Of the convert Gentiles, though aliens by birth, therefore the place is cleer, whom God elſe-where promiſeth, that he will not onely bring to his houſe, but as he ſaith of the Eunuch (for the promiſe alike concerneth either) give a name, and a place, in his houſe, and within his wals, Chap.56.5-7. The onely difference between that place, and this, is, that the office, or place there-mentioned, is that ſpiritual Prieſthood, which all true Chriſtians ſhare in, and is therefore there promiſed unto every one of them in general: of which, 1 Pet.2.9. Rev.1.6. & 20.6.

whereas here under the name of Prieſts, and Levites, is intimated the miniſtery of the Goſpel, the office of Paſtors and Teachers,whoſe calling,and employment is,to teach, inſtruct, and edifie Gods people, Jer.3.15. V. 22. For as the new heaven, and the new earth, which I will make ſhall remain before me, ſaith the Lord; ſo ſhall your ſeed and your name remain.] Here again, do ſome of our Jewiſh Maſters ſtrain their wits. For they will needs have the former part of this collation,to be underſtood of the frame of heaven and earth,at firſt created,Gen.1.1. and the heaven, ſay they,is called a new heaven; becauſe it continueth in that newneſſe in which it was at firſt; nor is it grown old, but it is ſtill as it was at firſt, Pſal.119.89-91. and the earth is termed new, becauſe it ſtill continueth as at firſt it was; howſoever,the race of thoſe that are upon it alter and decay, go and come, Eccl. 1.4. But they forget what God had promiſed before, Chap. 65. 17. to wit, that he would create a new heaven, and a new earth,unto which theſe men,did they not wilfully wink,might eaſily ſee, that this paſſage hath a manifeſt and cleer relation. It is true indeed, that God doth ſometime illuſtrate his conſtant purpoſe of the continuance of his Church to the worlds end, by collations taken from the conſtant, and continued courſe,and entercourſe of the creature,from the firſt conſtitution of it unto the worlds end,Jer.31.35,36.& 33.25,26. But it is apparent, that he here ſpeaketh of that new heaven, and new earth, that was to come in the Kingdom of the Meſſias, Heb.12.28. unto whoſe times alſo, the moſt of them refer that prediction; and under whom,the face and ſtate of the Church ſhould be ſo renewed, that is, ſhould ſeem to be a new world, 2 Cor.5.17.See on Chap.65.17.

So oft as new moon,or Sabbath,ſhall come. So 1 Sam.7.16.2 Chr.24.5 & Zach.14.16.a place parallel to this, from yeer in, or unto yeer, that is, conſtantly every yeer,or yeer by yeer; as Neh.10.35,39. one of the Jewiſh Criticks draweth hither that,Exod.5. 19. the matter of the day, in its day; to which might be added, ſomewhat neerer to this,the matter of the yeer,in, or, within, or by the yeer,2 Chr.9.24. but the forms are not the ſame with this; that, of any other, comes neereſt to it; from day to day, and from moneth to moneth, Eſt. 3.7. Again, one of them would have the lengthening of the former prepoſition, by a ſyllabical adjection, to imply the conſtancy of their acceſs, without omiſſion of any of thoſe times. And true it is, that in ſome formes, the word ſo uſed, ſeems to have ſome emphaſis; as 2 King.4.8. where, from his paſſing by, is not amiſs rendred, ſo oft as he paſſed by; as alſo, 1 Sam.18.30. from their going forth, might as well be rendred,ſo oft,as they went forth. Howbeit, becauſe that adjection is ordinarily, in other forms of ſpeech, where no ſuch matter is intended; as Chap.28.19. Exod.36. 5. as alſo it is found, in like manner, uſed, with other particles Judg.6.5. Jer.51.28. nor are the forms alike to this, in the places produced, in which alſo the phraſe ſeemes to have ſuch force from the prepoſition it ſelf; rather then from that adjection; the note ſeemes to me, to be of no great weight: the ſame Author would have the words read disjunctively; from moneth to moneth; or from Sabbath to Sabbath. The one, for thoſe that were more remote from Jeruſalem, and therefore could not come above once a moneth thither: The other, for thoſe that were neerer at hand, and might repair thither every Sabbath: but then the Sabbath ſhould rather have been ſet in the firſt place; every Sabbath, or every new-moon, every moneth at leaſt; and this therefore ſeemes a meer needleſſe nicety. Theſe ſet-times are mentioned, becauſe the moſt frequent ſolemnities,the new-moon coming every moneth,Num. 10.10.Pſal.81.3. the Sabbath every week, Lev.23. 2,3. See Amos 8.5. There want not of ours,that expound the words, as underſtood,not of coming to worſhip, moneth after moneth; or Sabbath after Sabbath; but of a continual ſervice of God, without intermiſſion, all the time between new-moon, and new-moon,and between Sabbath, and Sabbath,(as intimateing the obſervation of a perpetual Sabbath) and not at ſet-times and ſeaſons onely, as it was with the Jewiſh people, Rom.14.5. Gal.4.10. Col.2.16. But the conſtant uſe of the phraſe doth ſufficiently confute them.

all fleſh] All ſorts of men; all people and nations indifferently,without exception,exemption, or excluſion of any; as well Gentiles,as Jews,ver.20. Chap.40.5.& 56.7. Joel 2.28, 32.Rom.10.12,13.

come to worſhip before me.]Or,in my preſence. Heb.to my face; as Pſal.42.2. in the Aſſemblies of Gods people; where God is, by his ordinances,in ſpecial manner, preſent, as ſometime in his Tabernacle and Temple: for they Judaize too much, that reſtrain this to the Gentiles repairing to worſhip in the utter Court,whereunto ſometime they had free acceſs,1 King.8.42, 43.See Joſeph of the Jewiſh war, l.6.c.14.

V. 24. And they ſhall go forth, and look upon the carcaſſes of the men, that have tranſgreſſed againſt me;] From the mercies and favours wherewith God would ſo abundantly endow and dignifie his faithful ſervants, the Prophet returneth to thoſe heavy judgments, that God would execute upon thoſe wicked and diſloyal ones, whom he had threatned to be avenged on before, v.15,16.of which he would have his faithful ones, whom they had ſcorned and wronged, to be ſpectators and eye-witneſſes,Pſal.58.10.

they] Thoſe added to the Church,ver.23.Act.2.47.

go forth] Come out of their graves, ſay ſome of the Ancients,underſtanding it, of the reſurrection, Joh.5. 28.come out of the world, ſay ſome late Writers, and joyning themſelves to the Church; go out of Jeruſalem, ſay ſome of the Rabbines:and it is not improbable,that an eye might be unto ſome ſuch occurrents concerning that people,wherein,having been ſtreitned by ſieges,or inroads,upon the defeat of the adverſe party,they regained liberty to look freely abroad. See Chap.33.17.

and look upon] Or, to ſee; as Joſh.24.9. ſome exemplary judgments of God, inflicted and executed on the wicked, for their contempt of the Goſpel, their profaneneſs, idolatries, and other impieties. See Rev.6.4,8.& 8.7,9. & 9.5,6,18,20, & 16.2-10,21. & 19. 20,21. for that ſeems too harſh of thoſe, who would here expound, ſeeing, by hearing, the torments of hell preached: Nor that of others ſo far,that refer it, to the real ſight of hell,and perſons therein tormented, after the laſt day,Rev.14. 10. though I deny not, but that by the hideous ſpectacles here-mentioned, thoſe torments are here typified.

the carcaſſes] Of thoſe of Gogs and Magogs forces, that ſhall ly ſlain upon the mountains neer unto Jeruſalem, ſay ſome of the Rabbines,Ezek.39.4,5,9. or lying, as others ſay, in the valley of Jehoſaphat,Joel 3.12,14. and others again,in Tophet,in the vale of Gehinnom,Chap.30.33.Jer.7.31-33. and it is not unlikely, but that ſome reſpect might be had in this paſſage, either to the carcaſſes of thoſe that lay ſlaughtered for ſome time in the former place, after that they had diſpatched one another,in the reign of Jehoſaphat,2 Chr.20.23,24. or,of thoſe Aſſyrians in Sennacherib's Camp, deſtroyed by the miniſtery of an Angel, Chap.37.36. whom that latter place of Tophet concerneth. Apparent enough it is, that this execution of Gods wrath on the wicked, is here deſcribed, by a reſemblance taken from dead bodies, that after great ſlaughter made of them, ly a long time above ground unburied, either as deemed unworthy to be at all interred; or, becauſe in regard of the multitude of them, it cannot ſuddenly be effected. See Ezek. 39. 12.

for their worm ſhall not dy, neither ſhall their fire be quenched;] Or, how their worm dyeth not, nor is their fire quenched; as the particle is ſometime uſed. See on Chap. 51. 2. The Prophet, in this clauſe, purſueth the allegory taken from corpſes unburied: and this the Jewiſh Doctors, ſome of them, taking notice of; but withall taking it literally, ſay, this ſhall be part of the ſtrange ſign, ver.19. that ſhould be ſhewen upon Gogs, and Magogs army, that though the judgment inflicted on them, be by fire, Ezek.38.22. yet the worms, that bred in their carcaſſes, lying many months unburied, Ezek.39.9. ſhall live in the fire: which fictions, others to ſhun, ſay, that the worm hath reference to the bodies unburied; the fire, to their cities burnt down with fire from above, Ezek.39.6. See Rev.20.8, 9. But ſuch ſalves need not: the worm hath reference to ſuch vermine, as is wont to breed in, and feed on, dead corpſes; ſuch carcaſſes eſpecially as ly ſo long above ground, untill they rot, and become as dung, or carion, Iob 12.14. & 21.26. Pſal.83.10. Chap. 14. 11,19,20. the fire, to the burning of ſuch bodies, not fit now to be ſtirred, or removed, but to be conſumed by fire, in the places where they ly, Chap.9.5.& 30. 33. Ezek.39.9. So that the reſemblance is taken from the bodies that ly rotting on the face of the earth, till they crawl all over with worms and magots, and in regard both of their unfitneſſe to be managed, and the multitude of them, it is a long time, ere they can be conſumed with fire; and becauſe the ſight of ſuch muſt needs be a very loathſome ſpectacle, it is therefore added; and they ſhall be an abhorring unto all fleſh.] Or, are a loathſomneſſe, or moſt loathſome unto all fleſh; unto every creature; or to all thoſe that behold them, one or other; as ver.23. the word here uſed, is no where elſe found, but here, and Dan.12. 3. where it is rendred, contempt: but might better be, loathſomneſſe, or deteſtation there; moſt loathſome, or, moſt deteſtable here: (loathſomneſſe, being put for extream loathſome, or, deteſtation, for moſt deteſtable: as abomination, for moſt abominable, Jer.44.4. deſolation, for, extream deſolate, chap.64.10.) for contempt, is a term of too low an alloy. The ancient Greek rendreth it here, a ſight, or, a ſpectacle, clipping off its firſt letter: The old Latine, a ſatiety of ſight, which came from the Chaldee, who cut it aſunder, and unadviſedly made two words of one. Some of the Jewiſh Criticks ſay, it cometh from a word, that ſignifies, a worm; they all herein agree, that it imports ſomewhat very loathſome, and deteſtable. By the whole ſimilitude, or allegory, that dreadful, direful, and deteſtable condition is expreſſed, that ſhall, at firſt, or laſt, befall all obſtinate wicked ones, ſometime in exemplary judgments executed upon them in this world; partly, by inward torture of mind, Dan.5.6. partly, by corporal pains, 2 Chr.21.18,19. Act.12.23. and ignominious uſages, chap.22.17,18. Jer.22.18, 19. amids which, this alſo is one part of their miſery, that they are, generally, rather abhorred, then pitied, Pſal.52.5-7.& 64. 7-9. but ever, if they do eſcape vengeance here, after this life, immediatly in their ſouls; and at the laſt day, in ſoul and body joyned together again; which the Jewiſh Writers alſo grant to be here principally intended: at what time their condition ſhall be everlaſtingly ſuch, as if carcaſſes ſwarming with worms, feeding on them, and committed unto the fire, could be ſenſible of either, and ſhould always ſo live and continue, with thoſe worms inceſſantly gnawing of them, and that fire unquenchable, for ever tormenting them; for thus are the torments of hell, in Scripture, deciphered, wherein wretches are to abide eternally, without either end, or eaſe, with ſome relation therein had to Tophet of Gehinnom, where corpſes lay continually rotting, or fire was conſtantly burning for the conſuming of them. See Chap. 30. 33. Mat. 3.12.& 10.28.& 18.8,9. & 23.41,46. Mar.9.44. Jam.5.3. Rev. 14.10,11.& 19.20.& 20.14,15.

The Jewiſh Maſters out of a ſuperſtitious fancy, becauſe they would have not this Prophecy conclude with ſuch diſmall terms, as this laſt verſe endeth in, repeat again the foregoing verſe after this, as thereby to ſalve and avert the evil preſage of it. But that is a ridiculous, as conceit, ſo device and practice of theirs. Well it would be, both for them, and others, ſo to order their wayes here, that they might not meet with ſuch a diſmal cloſe, or paſs unto ſuch a direful condition, when they depart hence. See the like at the end of the Lamentations of Jeremy.

ANNOTATIONS

On the Book of the Prophet

JEREMIAH.

The Argument.

THe Prophet Jeremie was a Prieſt, and ſo an ordinary Teacher (which ſome other of the Prophets were not) before his entrance upon this extraordinary employment. This he began (being in his younger yeers thereunto called) under a good King Joſiah; in times, though bad enough (the main body of the people, notwithſtanding all the care and endeavour of that godly Governour, continuing ſtill enclined to their former idolatry, and other wonted evil courſes) yet nothing ſo bad, as, not long after, they proved, when that pious Prince was, by immature deceaſe taken away, who had kept them yet within ſome compaſs of external conformity, and reſtrained them from the publike profeſſion, and open practice, of ſuch abominations, while he lived. But the Kings that ſucceeded him, being themſelves alſo addicted to like impieties, and exceſſes, and complying with the people therein; all things in ſhort time grew to ſuch an height of corruption, both in Church and State, that the Prophet having a long time, as one ſtriving and ſtrugling againſt the ſtiff ſtream of a ſtrong torrent, in vain, laboured to reclaim them; and having endured much oppoſition, by the falſe Prophets, and ſuſtained much hard meaſure from the Prieſts, Princes, and People, for the faithful performance, and due execution of his office, (under which ſome expreſſions of humane frailty, at ſome times, brake from him) he was, at length, conſtrained to denounce from God, the utter ruine and deſtruction of that whole State; which, by the Chaldeans, God accordingly made good. Howbeit, withall for the comfort and ſupport of the faithful, he foretelleth their return, after ſeventy yeers captivity; and the enlargement of the Church, by that bleſſed Branch, the Meſſias: withall, adjoyning divers Prophecies againſt thoſe ſeveral Nations, that had been, either the deſtroyers, or the oppreſſours, of Gods People.

Upon the ſurpriſal of the City by the Chaldeans, he was by the King of Babylon his ſpecial appointment, ſet at liberty: but was ſhortly after carryed away, by force, into Egypt, among the reſt of the people. Which Prince John, and his Complices, upon the murther of Gedalih, whom the Chaldean King had made Governour of the Land, for fear of the Chaldeans, againſt Gods expreſs charge, did thither tranſport. There continued he prophecying; how long, it is not certain: howbeit, being called unto that office in the thirteenth of Joſiah, it could not be leſſe, then between forty and fifty yeers, that he ſpent in that employment. In Egypt it is not unlikely that he ended his dayes; though how in what manner, or by what means, is as uncertain, as the time of his abode in thoſe parts.

Some other things ſeem to have been written by him, which are not now extant, beſides the Sermons and Prophecies recorded in this book: as a ſolemn Lamentation compoſed upon the death of Joſias, 2 Chron. 35.25. that roll or volume, which Baruc engroſſed for him, containing a Summarie of all his foregoing Sermons, Chap. 36.2, 18. and the ſame enlarged with ſome farther Additionals, Chap. 36.32. But the main, yea, in likelyhood the whole ſum and ſubſtance of both theſe, we have at large in the records of this Book. As for that Epiſtle, that goeth under his name, as written to his Country-men, that either were to be, or were already in captivity at Babylon, (divers from that ſpecified and recorded here, Chap. 29. ) it is deſervedly deemed a meer counterfeit, as well as thoſe Prophecies of Baruc, whereunto it is adjoyned.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. THe words of Jeremiah the ſon of Hilkiah of the Prieſts, that were in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin.] The three firſt verſes of this Chapter ſeem to contain an Inſcription, or Title, of the main body of all the Prophecies, and Sermons, in this whole book recorded: of all in general, in this verſe: of thoſe more ſpecially from his firſt calling, unto the time of the captivity, in the two next verſes.

The words] That is, Sermons, or Prophecies; as, The word that Eſay ſaw, Eſay 2.1. and, The words of Amos, Amos 1.1. and, The words of the Preacher. Eccl. 1.1. ſome render it, The book, and would have it to deſign no more, then what is delivered from hence, unto the end of the thirty ninth Chapter: from whence, ſay they, another book beginneth: as in the Revelation of John, from the eleventh Chapter the like, Rev. 10.9-11. But I ſuppoſe the term here to be of larger extent, and to take in the whole volume of Prophecies, that bear the name of this Prophet. Nor is it probable, that all thoſe enſuing prophecies from Chapter 39. ſhould be of later date, then Zedekiahs captivity; yea, concerning ſome of them, the contrary is apparent. See Chap. 51.59.

Jeremiah] Heb. Jirmjahu; and ſo conſtantly in this book; as Jeſhajahu, and Jechizkijahu, and the like; though elſewhere alſo, ſometime, Jirmjah: whereof ſee on Eſay 1.1. The Greeks render it Jeremias, Mat. 2.17. & 16.14. we in Engliſh, ordinarily, Jeremy; as, Zachary, and Timothy, 1 Tim. 1.2. and ſo our former Verſions exhibit it. It ſeems to ſignifie one raiſed up by God, 1 King. 14.17. & 16.2. 1 Sam, 2.7. Pſal. 9.13. and was a name, not unuſuall, among Gods people, as appeareth, 2 King. 24.18. 1 Chr. 5.24. & 12.4, 10, 13. Neh. 12.1.

the Son of Hilkiah] Added, to diſtinguiſh him from others, that might be in thoſe days of that name. Of the groundleſſe conceit of the Rabbines, concerning ſuch denominations of Prophets from their Parentage; See on Eſay 1. 1.

Hilkiah] Heb. Chilkijah, or Hilkijah, as the name is found written, 1 Chr. 6.13, 45. or, Chilkijahu, or, Kilkijahu; as here, and Eſay 22.20. See there. The Greek, and Latine, ordinarily render it, Helkias, as Benjamin, for Binjamin, Phil. 3.5. and for Joſhijah, Joſias, Mat. 1.11. Of this name divers were, as one there mentioned; and another that was High-Prieſt under Joſias, 2 King. 22.8. whom the Chaldee Paraphraſt, the Jewiſh Doctors, divers of them, and not a few Chriſtian Writers, with whom the Authors of our Geneva Annotations concur, ſuppoſe to have been the Father of this our Prophet: But hereof there is no great probability; for, to omit all other arguments, that ſeem to perſwade the contrary, the High Prieſt had his houſe and abode conſtantly at Jeruſalem; whereas this Hilkiah had his dwelling at Anathoth, ſubjoyned here, in likelyhood, of purpoſe to diſtinguiſh him from that other of the ſame name, being High-Prieſt; yet living, and exerciſing that function, ſome ſpace of time, after that Jeremy began at firſt to prophecy, as appeareth from 2 King. 22. 4. compared with the very next verſe of this Chapter. Nor ſeems that of force ſufficient to take this off, that of Abiathar the High-Prieſt under Solomon, it is ſaid, that he had fields of his own inheritance at Anathoth, 1 King. 2.26. for albeit, he ſo had, yet lived he at Jeruſalem, untill Solomon depoſed him, and confined him thither; whereas of this Hilkiah there is no ſuch thing read, but that he made his abode at Jeruſalem, as his place required, 2 King. 22.4, 8.

of the Prieſts that were in Anathoth] Heb. Of the Prieſts in Anathoth: or, at Anathoth, rather; becauſe the name of a Town, or City; as 2 King. 2.28. 1 Chr. 4.28-31. one of the Prieſts that dwelt there: it being one of the cities out of the Benjamites lot aſſigned to the Prieſts, Joſh. 21.18. 1 Chr. 6. 60. See Eſay 10.30.

in the land of Benjamin] In that portion of the land of Canaan, which by lot was aſſigned unto the poſterity of Benjamin, Joſh. 18.11. Jacobs youngeſt ſon: Of whoſe name, ſee Gen. 35.18. Heb. Binjamin: But we follow herein the Greek pronunciation, as in many other names; Act. 13.21. Phil. 3.5. See Chap. 37.12.

V. 2. Unto whom the word of the Lord came in the dayes of Joſiah, the ſon of Amon, King of Judah, in the thirteenth yeer of his reign.] In theſe words is preciſely related the time, and year, wherein Jeremy was called unto this Propheticall function, from being an ordinary Prieſt, to be an extraordinary Prophet, and began to execute the ſame.

unto whom the word of the Lord came] Heb. Whom the word, or, a word of the Lord (as 2 Sam. 7.4.) was unto him; a kind of elegant redundancy, in that language, very frequent: The like whereunto, ſee Gen. 1.11. Pſal. 1.4. 2 Sam. 6.22. Now by the word of the Lord, here, ſome underſtand a charge, or commiſſion, made out by God unto Jeremy, for the exerciſe, and execution of his Prophetical employment, and the publiſhing of theſe his Prophecies; as they conceive the word to be taken alſo, Hoſ. 1.1. Luk. 3.2. Joh. 10.35. word, for, charge, or commiſſion, or, command; as 1 King. 12.24. Eſt. 1.12. & 3.15. and ſo Chap. 26.1. Others conceive it to deſign the ſubject matter of his prophecy, or that which was revealed to him, and he enjoyned to publiſh; as, the word which Eſay ſaw, Eſay 2.1. & Gen. 15.1. the word, or, a word of the Lord was to Abraham; where no ſuch charge, or commiſſion, is implyed: and ſo, the word of the Lord, here; and, the words of Jeremy, ver. 1. are in effect, and ſubſtance, one and the ſame; called, the word of the Lord, becauſe proceeding from him, and delivered in his name, ver. 4.7. the words of Jeremy; becauſe by him delivered, as Gods mouth, and meſſenger, to his people, Chap. 15.19. & 26. 12, 15. And this latter I encline to, though the word may well comprehend both; ſince that the former alſo, together with the revelation, did conſtantly concur. So Mic. 1. 1. Zeph. 1.1.

in the dayes] The time of the reign. See on Eſay, 1. 1.

of Joſiah] Heb. Joſhijahu; as Jirmjahu, ver. 1. and ſometime Joſhijah; as Zach. 6.10. for the name (though not the perſon) is the ſame. Greek, Joſias, Mat. 1.10. which our Engliſh ſeems beſt acquainted with: and it ſeemes to import one firmly founded, or grounded upon God. See Eſay 16.7. & 46.8. Of this good Kings religious reign, but over a people, though by his pious, and ſedulous proviſions, reſtrained from their wonted pollutions, and reduced to an outſide of conformity in the publike profeſſion, and practice, of the ſincere ſervice of God; yet remaining ſtill, in regard of diſpoſition of heart and affection, much unreformed, and unreclaimed. See 2 King. 22. & 23. 2 Chr. 34. & 35.

the ſon of Amon] Of whoſe irreligious reign, and how he renewed, and reſtored again thoſe abominations and idolatries, which his Father Manaſſes, upon his humiliation and ſerious repentance, had abandoned and aboliſhed. See 2 King. 21. 19-23. 2 Chr. 33.21-24. The name ſignifieth, a nurſe-child, Prov. 8.30.

King of Judah] See on Eſay 1.1.

in the thirteenth yeer of his reign] Some five year before the book of the Law found in the Temple, by Hilkiah the High-Prieſt, 2 King. 22. 3, 8. and Joſias reigning one and thirty years in all, 2 King. 22.1. it followeth hence, that Jeremy prophecied eighteen years under Joſias.

V. 3. It came alſo in the days of Jehojakim, the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh yeer of Zedekiah, the ſon of Joſiah, King of Judah, unto the carrying away of Jeruſalem captive, in the fifth moneth.] As in the former verſe was related the beginning of Jeremies exerciſing this extraordinary function; with an intimation of the time of his prophecying under Joſias: So in this verſe is further related the continuance of it, under his Succeſſours, unto the captivity that was under Zedekiah, by the ſpace of two and twenty years. See 2 King. 23.31, 36. & 24. 8. 18. which taking in thoſe eighteen under Joſias, make up, at leaſt, forty: whence it may be that Jewiſh fable, that God ſhould tell Moſes of a Prophet to come, meaning Jeremy, that ſhould reprove them on this ſide, and reprove them on that ſide; that ſhould prophecy forty yeer one way, and 40 year another way; as if he ſpent in prophecying, as many years after the captivity, as he had done before it.

It came alſo] Heb. and it was : It was; as before, ver.2. and, for alſo; as Prov.28.16. Eſay 62.3. he had alſo propheticall viſions, and revelations in thoſe times. See Eſay 1.1. & 2.1. Jon.1.1 & 3.1.

in the dayes of Jehojakim] Here queſtion is moved Why Jehoahaz, and Jehoiacin are not here mentioned, as well as Jehojakim, whereof the one reigned before him, coming between him, and his Father Joſias: the other ſucceeded him, coming between him, and his brother Zedekiah. Whereunto the common anſwer is, that theſe two are omitted, becauſe they reigned little above three moneths a piece, ſome half a year onely; and that at two ſeveral times, between them, 2 King.23.31. & 24.8. 2 Chr.36.2,9. which anſwer may well ſerve for the former: concerning whom alſo it is uncertain, whether any ſpecial prophecy were revealed to Jeremy, or delivered by him, in his days. And for the latter, there was no ſpecial cauſe of naming him, whether ought in that kind came out under him, or no; ſince that his ſhort reign comes within the compaſs of the two liſts, and limits of time here fixed. See Chap.22.11,24.

Jehojakim] Of this Jehojakim; and his name, ſee on chap. 22.18. of his wicked reign, 2 King.23.34,37. & 24.1-6. 2 Chr. 36.4-8.

unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah] Heb. untill the eleventh year of Zedekiah was accompliſhed; as Lev.25.29. where there ſeemes to be ſome diverſity of account between this, and that which followeth, where the fift moneth is named; that which comes ſhort, by a whole moneth of the half, by many more of the whole year. But the anſwer hereunto is eaſie, that the fift moneth, though it ended not the year, in regard of its ordinary ſet, and ſtanding computation, yet it might end the eleventh year of Zedekiahs reign, having entered about that time thereinto.

the ſon of Joſiah] 1 Chr.3.15.

unto the carrying away of Jeruſalem captive] Heb. untill Jeruſalem (that is, the people thereof) departed; or, went into captivity; as Judg.18.30. unto the day, that the land departed, or was captived. There are two captivities mentioned; the one under Jehojacin, 2 King.24. 13. the other, under Zedekiah, 2 King.25.11. and of this the Prophet expreſly here ſpeaketh. Howbeit, the meaning here is, not that the Prophet, at this ſecond captivity, ceaſed prophecying, for it appeareth that he propheſied afterward, both in Judah, Chap. 40-43. and in Egypt, Chap. 44. but that he propheſied ſo long under the State that then ſtood, when he entered upon that office.

in the fift moneth] See on Chap.52.12,15.

V. 4. Then the word of the Lord came unto me, ſaying;] Heb. And the word of the Lord was unto me, ſaying; as ver. 2, 11. Jon.1.1. yet becauſe this ſeems to have reference to the time of his firſt call to this office, ver.2. the copulative is not amiſſe here rendred, then; as Exod.7.9. Eſay 36.3,9,11. A change of the perſon; as Mic.3.1.

V. 5. Before I formed thee in the belly, I knew thee, and before thou cameſt forth out of the womb, I ſanctified thee, and I ordained thee a Prophet unto the Nations.] The words of God to the Prophet, acquainting him, with his ancient purpoſe, and determination, to aſſign him to that office, which he now called him unto. See Eſay 49.1,5.

formed thee] Heb. moulded, or framed, and faſhioned thee; as the Potter doth the clay, whereof he maketh ſome earthen veſſel, Gen.3.7,8. Eſay 43.1. & 44.2. & 64.8.

in the belly] In thy mothers womb: ſo is the word belly uſed, Eſay 46.3. & 49. 15. He that at firſt framed man out of the earth, doth ſtill frame man in the womb, upon the earth, Job 10.9. & 31.15. Pſal.119.79. & 139.15,16.

I knew thee] I had thee in mind, I took ſpecial notice of thee, as of one to be thus employed. So Exod. 33. 12, 17. Rom.8.29.

before thou cameſt forth out of the womb I ſanctified thee.] The ſame thing in divers terms; I deſigned thee to be a Prophet before thou waſt either bred, or born. It is no more then what the Apoſtle ſaith of himſelf, that God had ſevered him, that is, in his ſecret purpoſe, ſet him apart, from his mothers womb, unto that miniſtery, which afterward he called him unto by his grace, Gal.1.15. See the uſe of the word, ſanctifie, Eſay 13.3. Chap.12.3. & 51.27,28. which they ſtrain too far here, who, with the Jewiſh Writers, expound it, of a real and actual ſanctification of the Prophet, by infuſion, and collation of ſpiritual grace upon him, while he was yet in his mothers womb: which howſoever concerning John the Baptiſt, the Evangeliſt, in the Angels words to his Father, ſeems cleerly to aver, Luk.1.15. in regard whereof, it is ſaid of him, by ſome of the Ancients, that he was new bred, yet unborn. Yet I ſuppoſe, it cannot be with good ground, from Scripture, affirmed of any other.

and I ordained thee a Prophet] Heb. I gave thee; I aſſigned, or appointed thee ſo to be; as Eſay 49. 6. It is in plainer terms, what he had before ſaid of him: the copulative need not be inſerted, being not in the text.

unto the nations.] The Jewiſh Doctors have many odd quirks and queſtions, here, about Jeremy: where, to let paſs, what they ſay of his parents preparation to the begetting of him, and the ſtrength of natural conſtitution deſigned unto him, and the prediction delivered to Moſes concerning him, whereof ſomewhat before; and that he ſhould propheſie one while to the Jews, another while to the Gentiles; and as long to the one, as to the other. They firſt move a queſtion, Why God ſhould tell him all this, when he called him, concerning his predeſtination of him unto, and preparation of him for this office, rather then Eſay, or any other of the Prophets: and to this they anſwer, that it was to encourage him, becauſe he hung back, and would have excuſed himſelf, ver.6. which Eſay did not, Eſay 6. 8. and therefore needed no ſuch ſpur. But then they move a new queſtion, Why did not God uſe the like motives to Moſes, who was as unwilling, as Jeremy, to go on Gods errand, Exod.3.11. & 4.1,10,13. to which they anſwer, that Moſes was a man of greater wiſdome, then Jeremy, and knew it well enough of himſelf: And beſides, he had a power given him to work miracles, which Jeremy had not; Exod.4. 2-8. And true it is, that, in all likelyhood, God uſed this ſpeech unto Jeremy, to confirm, and encourage him to that weighty work, which he was now about to employ him in; the rather, in regard of his age, being called to it very young; the conſideration whereof, made him ſo loath to come to it, ver.5. but God neither is wont, nor is tyed to uſe the ſame wayes and meanes of encouragement, at all times, and upon all occaſions, unto all, which at ſome times, to ſome he doth. Another queſtion they move, Why it is ſaid, that God had given him to be a Prophet to the Nations, when as he ſeems rather to have been ſent unto the Jewes. To this, ſome of them anſwer, that by the nations, are the Iſraelites themſelves here underſtood, ſo called; becauſe they walked after the faſhions and courſes of the Nations, and were, in that regard, in no other account with God. See Eſay 1.4. Chap.9.25,26. But others of them anſwer, with the Chaldee Paraphraſt, that therefore he is ſaid to be given for a Prophet to the Nations; becauſe he was to tender unto them the cup of Gods wrath, Chap. 25. 15. and they add withall, ſome of them, that the particle unto, may here ſignifie againſt, as it doth, Pſal.51.4. & 56.3. Job 7.20. & 8.4. and that he did propheſie againſt the Nations, or Gentiles, it is expreſly ſaid, Chap.46.1. as againſt Egypt in that Chapter, and Chap.43.10-13. againſt Paleſtine, Chap.47. againſt Moab, Chap. 48. againſt Ammon, Edom, Dameſcus, Kedar, Elam, Chap.49. againſt Babel, Chap.50. & 51. Howbeit, we need not conceive this ſo to be ſpoken of the nations, as to exclude the Jewiſh people; for howſoever God were pleaſed thus to ſpeak unto the Prophet, to let him know what a large and ample commiſſion he was to have, and how honourable an employment, as ver.10. the like whereunto, ſee Eſay 49. 6. yet his meaning was not thereby to exempt the Jews from his charge, but to comprehend them, with other Nations, therein; as Jeruſalem, and all the cities of Judah, are muſtered among the nations, and ſet in the front, whom with the cup he is ſent unto, Chap. 25.15,17,18.

V. 6. Then ſaid I;] Heb. And I ſaid. See on ver.2.

Ah, Lord God,] An interjection of grief and complaint: as Joſh.7.7. Judg.6.22. Chap.4.10. uſed here by the Prophet, in way of introduction to that ſpeech, which he was to make unto God, requeſting to be excuſed, and diſcharged of an employment of that nature, as both conſidering with himſelf the weightineſs of the work, 2 Cor. 2. 16. and conſcious to himſelf of his own weakneſſe and inſufficiency for the performance thereof, and the diſcharge of the duties therein required, 2 Cor.3.5. See Chap.17.16. and of Moſes the like, Exod.3.11. & 4.10,13.

Behold, I cannot ſpeak] Heb. I know not to ſpeak; as Eſay 29. 12. I know not a book, for, I cannot read. See the like, Chap. 6.15. & 8.12. I know not how to deliver thy meſſage, in ſuch manner, as I ſhould. For it cannot be conceived ſimply, as if either, in regard of infancy, or dumbneſſe, procured by ſome caſualty, he were ſpeechleſſe, as Zachary, Luk.1.20,22. for he could not then have given this anſwer. Nor doth his meaning ſeem to be, that he had ſome impediment in his ſpeech, as it ſeems Moſes had, Exod.4.10,14. or that he complaineth of ſome moral defect, or default; as Eſay ſeems to do, Eſay 6. 5,7. but that he was one unfit, to ſpeak by way of inſtruction, and reproof, and that not to one nation alone, but to many, as was intimated in his charge, wanting gravity, and authority, in regard of his age and yeers eſpecially. See 1 Sam. 16.11. & 17.12,13,42. Pſal.119.141. 1 Tim.4.12. Tit.2.15. See alſo Exod. 6. 12.

for I am a child] Or, a child I am; for the pronoun demonſtrative very frequently ſupplyeth the place of the verb ſubſtantive: as Chap.3.12. Hoſ.11.9. Mal.3.6. Here the Jewiſh Maſters about Jeremies words of himſelf, are at ſome variance among themſelves: for one of their principal Doctors (of whom they uſe to ſay, that from Moſes to Moſes, this Moſes (for that was his name) had no mate) telleth us, that the ancient Rabbines have a rule, that the Spirit of prophecy reſteth not upon any that is not wiſe, potent, and rich: and yet I ſuppoſe Amos was not very rich, when God called him, from being a neatherd, and gatherer of Sycamores, to be a Prophet, Amos 1.1. & 7. 14,15. but a child, or a youth, therefore, cannot be a Prophet; becauſe he carrieth no power, or authority, with him: and leſt this of Jeremy might deceive us, he telleth us, that the word naar, here uſed, doth not alwayes ſignifie a child, or, a youth: for it is uſed of Joſeph, when he was thirty yeer old: yea, of Joſhua, when he was neer threeſcore yeer old, Exod.33. 11. But concerning Joſeph, the great Doctors memory failed him; he is ſo called indeed, when he was ſeventeen yeer old, Gen.37.2. and Benjamin, when thirty, at leaſt, Gen.43.8. See on Eſay 65.20. but of Joſeph no where, at that age: for as for the place, which not the Doctor himſelf, but his tranſlator directeth us to Gen.42.22. neither is the word there Naar, but jalad; whence may come our Engliſh, lad: nor do they ſpeak there of Joſeph, according to the age that he was then of, Gen.41.46. but according to the yeers that he was of, when they ſold him; but thoſe two places, not adviſedly lookt into, ſeem to have bred the miſtake: & for Joſhua it is indeed generally agreed, that he was, at the time here deſigned, between fifty and threeſcore: but that term is there given him, as it is oft elſewhere in Scripture; not in reſpect of age, or years, but in regard of ſervice, miniſtery, and employment, under another: ſo the words themſelves lead us, as by the hand, there to underſtand it, calling him withal, Moſes his Miniſter; as one, that then waited, and attended upon him, being about thirty yeer, by the computation of ſome, younger then Moſes; the like uſe of the term, without reference to age, ſee Gen.14. 24. Exod.24.5. 1 Sam.25.5. and in a place parallel unto that, Eſt.2.2. But ſo to expound it here, there is nothing either in text, or ſtory, to induce, much leſſe to enforce. And other of the Jewiſh Writers therefore on this place, herein depart from their great Doctor, rightly deeming it to have been ſpoken by Jeremy, in regard of his yeers; as in reſpect thereof, not eſteeming himſelf fit to undertake ſo great an employment, as having not yet, it may be, been enured much unto ſpeech in publike, nor likely, when he ſhould ſpeak to perſons of place and quality, and concerning ſuch matters, as Gods Prophets were uſually ſent about, to be by any much regarded; and that God endueth young ones, as well as old ones, with the Spirit, and gift of Prophecy: they inſtance in Samuel, 1 Sam. 3. 1, 10, 19. and in Daniel, with his three companions, Dan.1.17,19,20. to which might be added that of Joel, 2.28. wherein God promiſeth to confer of his Spirit, whereby his ſecret Will ſhould be revealed, to old men by dreams, to young [illegible] viſions: howſoever that great Maſter, in the now Iſrae[illegible] to ſhift off the latter branch, by turning it off to the [illegible]ons, and illuſions, or deluſions, of falſe Prophets; as fondly and abſurdly, as ſome of our grand Sectaries, and affecters of new-lights among us, do pervert the former; as intimating, that the old Teachers ſhould but dream, and doat, when as their new upſtart younger ones ſhould have the clear revelations, and ſee the divine viſions.

V. 7. But the Lord ſaid unto me;] Heb. And; the copulative for the adverſative: as Eſay 66.2.

Say not I am a child; for thou ſhalt go to all that I ſhall ſend thee, and whatſoever I command thee thou ſhalt ſpeak.] The words may be taken two ways; either as ſpoken by way of injunction; as if it were ſaid, Make no ſuch excuſes, nor uſe any ſuch pretences; but do as I bid thee, go whitherſoever I ſend thee, ſpeak whatſoever I give thee in charge; as Num. 22.30, 35. Chap.26.2. Mat.10,27. for the future tenſe is oft uſed in an imperative notion, Exod.20.3-7,13-17. Mat.19. 18. with Mar.10.19. or, as delivered by way of prediction and promiſe, as if God had ſaid, Talk not of thy years, or thine inability to ſpeak; thou ſhalt be furniſhed with ſufficiency of ability, both to go whitherſoever I ſhall ſee good to ſend thee, and to ſpeak whatſoever I ſhall give thee in charge. So Exod.3.12. & 4. 11,12. Judg. 6. 14, 16. Matth.10.19,20. Mar.13.11. Luk.21. 14, 15.

to all that I ſhall ſend thee] Heb. upon all that I ſhall ſend thee; that is, upon whatſoever errand, and about whatſoever buſineſſe I ſhall ſend thee, Eſay 55.11. Act.26.16. yet the particle is ſometime uſed for unto; as 1 Sam. 2. 11. Pſal. 13.6. Eſay 45.1. and then the ſenſe will be, unto what perſons ſoever I ſend thee; as Mat.10.18. Rev.10. 11. this the rather is mentioned, ſaith one of the Rabbines, not amiſſe; becauſe he was to go to Jeruſalem, which was out of his wonted walk, and there deal with the King, and Peers of the Land; that wherewith he had not been formerly acquainted.

V. 8. Be not afraid of their faces:] In the former words God gave the Prophet aſſurance of a ſufficient ſupply of parts, and ability for the diſcharge of his duty: now he giveth him further aſſurance of protection, ſecurity, and ſafeguard, upon the diſcharge of his duty; the one, to remove all pretence of diſability; the other, to free him from all groundleſſe fears.

Be not afraid] As Abſolom to his Servants, 2 Sam.13. 28. God much more to his miniſters and meſſengers. So ver.17. Ezek.3.9. Act.18,10.

of their faces] Their ſtern looks, Ezek. 3. 9. the wrathfull diſpoſition, and affection of men, diſcovereth it ſelf ordinarily in their looks, and their faces, Dan.3.19. whence the face is ſometime uſed for wrath, Pſal. 34. 16. It may be rendred ſimply, Fear not before them; as it is Amos 2.9. or, at the preſence of them; as Pſal.68.2,8. either when thou commeſt to deliver my meſſage to them; as Pſal.119.46. or ſhalt come to be convented before them, for the delivery of the ſame, Mat. 10. 18,28. But the word ſeems here to have ſome emphaſis in it, which our Verſion fitly expreſſeth.

for I am with thee, to deliver thee, ſaith the Lord.] Gods preſence with his meſſengers is a guard, and a ſafeguard all-ſufficient, againſt all oppoſition whatſoever, Pſal.2.3,6. & 23.4. & 27. 1. Earthly Princes, and Soveraigns, are not wont to go with thoſe whom they ſend on embaſſage; God goeth along with thoſe, whom he ſends; and is, by his powerful protection, at all times, and in all places, preſent with them. So Exod.3,12. Deut.31.6,8. Joſh.1.5. Chap.20.11. Act.18.10. Hebr.13.6.

V. 9. Then the Lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth; and the Lord ſaid unto me, Behold I have put my words in thy mouth.] By theſe words it appeareth, that that which the Prophet here relateth, was done in a viſion, wherein God appearing in ſome viſible ſhape to the Prophet, did, by this external ſign, confirm and obſign to him, both his miſſion, and commiſſion, to go upon his errands, and the endowment alſo of ſpeech, and language, conferred upon him, for the delivery of his meſſages. See the like, Eſay 6.7. but that there done by the miniſtery of an Angel; this immediately, by God himſelf. For there is no ground, with ſome Interpreters, to induce the employment of any Angel here. And as for thoſe, who, with the Chaldee Paraphraſt, by hand, underſtand here the gift of propheſie; becauſe of that phraſe, the word of God, by the hand of ſuch an one, Hagg.1.1,3. Mal.1.1. they ſeem to be out of the way: the word hand, there ſignifying no other, then miniſtery; as it is well rendred, Hoſ. 12.10. and as it is alſo uſed, Eſay 37.24.

Then] Heb. And; as ver.6.

put forth] Heb. ſent; or, ſent out. So 2 Sam.15.5.

touched my mouth] Heb. upon my mouth. So Eſay 6. 7. or, reached to my mouth; as Judg.20.41.

Behold] As thou ſeeſt this outward ſign; ſo aſſure thy ſelf of the thing thereby ſignified. So Eſay 6.7.

I have put my words in thy mouth] That thou mayſt be as my mouth to my people, Chap.15.19. God ſends no dumb meſſengers. See the like form of ſpeech, Num.23.5,16. Chap.5. 14. and another ſomewhat near it, Pſal.40.3.

V. 10. See] As, Behold, before, ver.9. repeated again for more certainty. So Eſay 65.13,14.

I have ſet thee, this day] Heb. the day, for, this day; and ſo ver. 18. as Pſal. 2. 7. So, the yeer, for, this yeer, Chap. 28.16.

over the Nations, and over the Kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to deſtroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant.] Jeremies miſſion, in general, was before-mentioned: his commiſſion, and the ſubject matter of it, together with the object, or parties, whom it concerned, are more expreſly and diſtinctly, here ſpecified. The object, and parties, whom it concerned, and to whom it was extended, are whole Kingdoms, and Nations; as Rev.10.11. the ſubject matter of it, is referred to two heads, for evil, or for good, to deſtroy, or to ſave; by denunciation, and menaces of wrath, the one; by promiſes of mercy and goodneſſe, the other: both, by publiſhing that word, by God, put into his mouth; which ſhould as aſſuredly be fulfilled, and effected, as if the Prophet himſelf had done it, Chap.44.26. & 55.10,11. chap.5.14. See God expounding himſelf to the Prophet, Chap.18.7-9. and ſee the like manner of ſpeech, Exod. 8. 5. Moſt abſurd, and ridiculous, therefore, are thoſe Popiſh Paraſites, that out of theſe words would bring the Popes power of ſetting up, and pulling down, of Kings and Princes, and diſpoſing of their Kingdoms and Crowns, at his pleaſure: a lively character of that ſinfull caſt-away creature, as the Apoſtle ſtyles him, that ſhould lift up himſelf above every one that is called God, 2 Theſſ.2.4. It was great pity that poor Jeremy had not ſome one of them about him, to acquaint them with this his power.

to root out, and to pull down,]: There is a neerneſſe of ſound between theſe two in the original, which might be imitated in our Engliſh, if it were rendred, to pluck up, (ſo the word properly ſignifieth, and is ſo rendred, Chap. 31. 12.) and to pull down: there is in the one, a metaphor taken from husbandry; from architecture in the other, as by their oppoſites, in the latter end of the verſe, appeareth. See Chap. 45. 4. Theſe terms of deſtruction ſeem to be ranked in the firſt row, becauſe they were to take up the firſt place in his prophecying. See ver. 12, 16.

to build up] See Chap. 12. 16, 17.

to plant] So Pſal. 44. 2. & 80. 8.

V. 11. Moreover the word of the Lord came unto me, ſaying,] This ſeems at the ſame time, in the ſame viſion, to have been repreſented unto the Prophet, as well the Almond-tree rod, as alſo, the boiling caldron, ver. 13. and both at the time of his firſt calling unto this employment. Heb. And (as Eſay 8. 1.) a word of the Lord was to me; as ver. 2, 3. So Chap. 2. 1.

Jeremiah, what ſeeſt thou?] This queſtion God moveth to him, to ſtir him up the rather to attend unto, and take ſpeciall notice of that that was repreſented unto him; which otherwiſe it may be, he would have the leſſe regarded. So Amos 7. 8. & 8. 2. Zach. 4. 2. & 5. 1.

And I ſaid, I ſee a rod of an almond-tree.] I ſee (to wit, in viſion; as Eſay 6. 1.) a rod (as it is rendred, Gen. 30. 37.) or, a ſtaff, (as Num. 22. 27.) of an almond-tree: a viſible ſign for confirmation of what was to be delivered; as Chap. 19. 10. Such a rod, or ſtaff, in likelyhood, as was Aarons, with leaves, at leaſt, if not with bloſſoms, or almonds, upon it, as his had, Num. 17. 8. and ſuch as the hoary-head is compared unto, Eccl. 12. 5. otherwiſe he could not ſo well have diſcerned it to be a rod, or ſtaff, of ſuch a tree. Thus I rather conceive it to have been, then as ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors deem, without leaf, or bloſſom; in regard whereof, God ſhould afterward ſay, that he had gueſſed well, wanting that that might have readily enformed him of what tree it was: and that it may not ſeem uncouth, that a branch with leaves and bloſſomes upon it, ſhould be termed, a rod, or ſtaff, we have elſe-where the like, in a place, as ſome think, alluding to this, where, as it is ſaid, that violence is riſen up to a rod, or ſtaff; ſo that this rod, or ſtaff, hath bloſſomed; and the morning of vengeance is therefore come, that deſtruction is approaching, Ezek. 7. 10, 11. a good comment upon this place. The old Latine rendreth it, fondly, a waking rod; which yet ſome Popiſh Writers are pleaſed to applaud; and one of ours, a watch-mans rod; as far as that, from the meaning of the word.

V. 12. Then ſaid the Lord unto me,] Heb. And; as verſe 9.

Thou haſt well ſeen.] Heb. Thou haſt done well to ſee; Thou haſt ſeen aright; as, do well to play, for, play cunningly, or, skilfully, Eſay 23. 16. Pſal. 33. 3. Ezek. 33. 32. and, as to do well to be angry, for, to be very angry, Jon. 4. 4, 9.

for I will haſten my word to perform it.] Heb. I am waking unto, or watching over my word to do it: the word implyeth two things, ſedulity, and ſpeed. So Pſal. 127. 1. unleſſe the Lord do keep the city, the Warder wardeth, or watcheth, but in vain: and, Bleſſed is the man that is watching at my gates daily, (that is, early there) waiting at the poſts of my dores, Prov. 7. 37. and, a Leopard ſhall watch over their cities, Chap. 5. 6. ſo Eſay 29. 20. the watchers of iniquity; that is, ſuch as purſue it eagerly & with ſpeed; as the words σπεύδω & σπουδὴ in Greek (which may not amiſſe be deemed to come from this Hebrew ſhakad, as from the Greek λύκος, the Latine lupus) imply either. So that the meaning is, that the Lord was buſily contriving an heavy judgment, (reſembled by a rod, or ſtaff; as Eſay 10. 5.) which he would very ſpeedily, very ſuddenly, bring upon his people. So Chap. 44. 27. and there is in the word an alluſion to the Hebrew name of the Almond-tree, which in that language, hath thence its name; becauſe it is wont to bud, and bloſſom, the earlieſt of any; as the Mulberry, the lateſt. See Pliny, l. 16. c. 25. The like alluſion to the name of the thing, in viſion repreſented. See alſo, Amos 8. 1, 2. In imitation hereof in that tale of Suſanna, Daniel is fained to deſcant upon the Greek names of the trees there mentioned, verſ. 54, 55, 58, 59. whence, by ſome of the Ancients, it is well concluded, that the ſtory was not written in Hebrew, where the words have no ſuch conſonance. See the gracious promiſe of God to his people, upon their return to him, contrary to the heavy doom, here mentioned, and menaced, Chap. 31. 27. But what was here threatned, ſee, in part, performed, at the death of Joſias, a loſſe beyond eſteem; and after it firſt by the Egyptian King; that pilled and polled the country of their wealth and treaſure, 2 King. 23. 33, 35. and then by the Chaldeans, Syrians, Moabites, and Ammonites, all joyning together againſt them; to work their deſtruction, 2 King. 24. 2.

V. 13. And the word of the Lord came unto me the ſecond time, ſaying, What ſeeſt thou?] Heb. A word of the Lord was unto me the ſecond time, ſaying; that is, a ſecond word, or further ſpeech, was God, in the ſame viſion, at the ſame time, pleaſed to make to me, demanding again of me, what I ſaw? for there is no article here, in the original; nor is the ſupply of any, needful. So alſo, ver. 11. nor is the pauſe between the ſecond time, and ſaying; but between unto me, and, the ſecond time, to be joyned, therefore, with ſaying. Of the demand, ſee ver. 12. See alſo, Jon. 3. 1.

And I ſaid, I ſee a Seething-pot,] Heb. a pot blown up: and ſo made to boil, Job 41. 20. Now this pot, thus ſeething, or boiling with fire under it, is a reſemblance of Jeruſalem, and of the grievous condition of the inhabitants thereof, which they ſhould be in, during the ſiege of the city, Ezek. 11. 3, 7. & 24. 3, 5. though ſome would have the analogy conſiſt in the liquor boyling over, out of the pot; and the Inhabitants, by violence, caſt out of the city: but I ſuppoſe rather, the miſeries ſuſtained within it, here intended. See ſomewhat the like, Mic. 3. 3. Rev. 16. 9-11. And thus the people themſelves ſeem to have underſtood this paſſage, when in deriſion, as pointing at this of Jeremy, they ſay, This city is the caldron, and we are the fleſh, Ezek. 11. 3. Nor is it the fleſh, but the liquor, wherein it is ſod, that is wont in boyling to run over. Howbeit, by the pot ſome here underſtand, not the city of Jeruſalem, but the Chaldean Army, that ſhould come in like a ſeething pot full of ſcalding water, upon them; and not upon the city of Jeruſalem onely, but upon the whole Country of Judea: Not unlike to thoſe vials, or veſſels, that are ſaid to be poured out upon ſeveral perſons, and places, Rev. 15. 7. & 16. 1-4, 8-12, 17. Yea, one proceedeth farther, and would have it to be a deep hearth of fire, that the Aſſyrian, Chaldean, and other Aſſian Kings, with whom the Fire was eſteemed a deity, and worſhipped as a God, were wont to have carryed before them, and their armies, when they went forth upon any expedition. Concerning which, divers Authors are by him produced: to which, others alſo might be added. See on Eſay 33. 14. But I conceive it much ſafer, to interpret Scripture by Scripture, and one Prophet by another, living eſpecially together ſome part of their time; and having reference, in likelyhood, the one of them, to that which had been delivered before by the other. That which moved theſe Interpreters to ſtep aſide here, ſhall hereafter be met with in its place.

and the face thereof was towards the North,] The words thus rendred, have no good coherence with the fore-going branch; I ſee a ſeething-pot, and the face thereof was towards the North; a needleſs inſertion disjoynting the text: It would be rendred, as the Hebrew, word for word, yeelds it; I ſee a ſeething pot, and the face thereof towards the North, or, with the face of it Northward; and, for, with; as Exod. 1. 5. Neh. 12. 42. Chap. 2. 37. Howbeit, in the laſt words there is a kind of redundancy in the text; for it is, as if it were ſaid; from the face of Northward, or, toward to Northward: Much the like is, 1 Chr. 26. 17. Pſal. 9. 17. Amos 4. 3. Now by the face of the pot, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors underſtand the mouth of the pot; but that ſimply conſidered, cannot ſo fitly be here meant; for the mouth of a pot ſtanding on the fire, looketh plumb upward, not to this ſide, or that ſide, as did the mouth of the baſes on which the lavers were ſet, 1 King. 7. 31. Other of them therefore by the face, would have meant, that ſide of the pot on which it hath a lip, or notch, or the like; for the more convenient pouring of ought out of it: another, the ranges, on which the pot is wont to be ſet, that fire may between them be kindled, and burn under it: of which, Pſal. 68. 13. where the words would be read, though ye have lien between the ranges; as skullions oft, for warmth do, when the pot is away; and to this laſt I encline: yet adding withall, that the mouth of the ranges, or furnace either, rather then the ranges, or furnace it ſelf, ſeemes by face to be here deſigned: more plainly thus, the pot appears boiling; there muſt be fire under it to make it boyl, this fire, in likelyhood, contained within ſome range, or furnace; that range, or furnace, muſt on the one ſide, at leaſt, have an open paſſage, whereby to put fuel in, for the feeding of the fire; this open place is moſt fitly termed, the face of the furnace; and why not of the pot alſo, ſet upon it, and ſo faſtened to it, that it might well ſeem one with it, I ſee not; and this looked northward, becauſe from thence they were to come, that ſhould kindle the fire under this pot, and ſo ſet it on ſeething: ſo ver. 14. and this taketh away the difficulty, that made thoſe Interpreters interpret this pot, not of Jeruſalem, but of the Chaldeans.

V. 14. Then the Lord ſaid unto me;] Acquainting me with the meaning of this apparition; as before, ver. 12.

Out of the North an evil ſhall break forth upon all the Inhabitants of the land,] Out of the North; that is, from Chaldea, and Babylon, ſituate North from Jeruſalem, Chap. 4. 6. & 6. 1. Ezek. 26. 7.

ſhall break forth] Heb. ſhall be opened, or let looſe; as Eſay 51. 14. Thus wicked perſons, though never ſo powerful, yet are kept under reſtraint, as in bands, untill God pleaſe to let them looſe for the puniſhment of others, as bad, it may be, or worſe, then themſelves, Rev.7.1-3. & 9.14,15.

of the land] Or, of this land; for that is the land here pointed at, Chap.25.9. though it be true, that God gave the whole earth, or world, in thoſe days and parts commonly known, into the hands of the Chaldean King, who did grievouſly, in all parts, oppreſſe it, Chap.27.6. Eſay 14.16,17.

V.15. For lo I will call all the families of the Kingdomes of the North, ſaith the Lord,] Heb. lo I calling, or am calling, (ſee Eſay 65.17.) to all the families of the Kingdoms Northward; that is, I am, by a ſecret, but efficacious act, and paſſage of providence, ſo diſpoſing of things, that all thoſe of ſeveral Countries, in the Northern parts, under the command of the King of Babylon, ſhall come together with him, and be ſubſervient unto him, in the ſubduing, and deſtroying of this city, and country. See Chap. 5.15. & 6.22. & 10.22. & 25.9,26. for that is the manner of Gods call here ſpoken of. See Eſay 46.11. & 48.13. Zeph.1.7.

families] That is, countries, or people of divers countries. See on Chap.3.14.

and they ſhall come] At my call; for they cannot but come, whom God ſo calleth, Eſay 7.18, 19. and 40.26. and 48.13.

and ſet every one his throne, at the entring of the gates of Jeruſalem, and againſt the walls of it, round about, and againſt all the cities of Judah.] The end of their coming, to beſet, and ſurpriſe the cities of Judah, and Jeruſalem it ſelf. See Chap. 52.4,5.

ſet] Heb. give; as Chap.6.27.

every one] Heb. a man; as Chap.6.3.

at the entring of the gates] Heb. at the opening of the gates: the word is uſed, ſometime, for the dore, or wicket, that in great gates ſtandeth open oft-times, when the double leaves are ſhut: ſometime, for the porch, or entry, before a gate; as chap. 26.10. ſometime, for the way that lyeth before it, and leadeth to it; as Gen.38.14. Judg.9.35. 2 King. 7.3. See Chap.43.9. and ſo it is here to be taken: the gates, being uſually the places, againſt which, Beſiegers, and Aſſailants, are wont to pitch, as well to reſtrain egreſs, as to make their aſſaults, Judg. 9.52. See Eſay 22.7. There is another ſitting of them, not at, but in, the gates of Jeruſalem, now ſurpriſed and taken, part of it; mentioned, Chap.39.3. which ſome, amiſs, confound with this. The particle at, is wanting here; as alſo, Gen. 19.11. & 43.19.

againſt all the walls of it round about] Or, upon, as ſome; as ver.14. but here, againſt, rather; becauſe the ſiege, rather then the ſurpriſal, is here intended, and the ſtrictneſſe of it intimated. See Chap.4.16,17. & 5.6. & 6.22,23.

V. 16. And I will utter my judgment againſt them,] Or, paſs ſentence, or, give judgment upon them; as it is elſe-where better rendred, Chap.39.5. This ſome expound of a verbal, or vocal denunciation of judgments, by Huldah, Jeremy, Ezekiel, Zephany, Uriah, and others. But it ſeems rather to import an efficacious, and actual doom, that God would in his own appointed time, paſſe upon them, and put in execution, by the Chaldeans. See the uſe of the phraſe, Chap.4.12. & 39.5.

touching all their wickedneſſe] Or, for all their wickedneſſe; as Chap.33.5.

who have forſaken me] Or, becauſe they have forſaken me; ſo is the relative uſed, 1 King.15.13. Chap.13.25. See Chap. 17.13. & 19.4. or, whereby they have forſaken me; as Deut. 28.20. See Eſay 1.4. and 65.11. Chap. 7.5. & 16.11. & 22.9.

and burnt incenſe unto other gods,] Or, to ſtrange gods, chap. 7.9,18. & 19.4,13. one part of worſhip, put for the whole; as Eſay 65.3.

and have worſhipped the works of their own hands.] Idols of their own making, Eſay 2.8, 20. Chap. 16.20. and 32.30.

V. 17. Thou therefore gird up thy loins,] The Lord having acquainted the Prophet with the ſubject matter of his meſſage, enough to diſhearten and diſcourage one of more yeers, and (it may be) of better parts, and more native boldneſſe of ſpirit, then he, as yet, had; doth now, notwithſtanding, impoſe the charge upon him, enjoyneth him to go readily, and ſpeedily, about it; and withall, promiſeth to furniſh him, with an abundant ſufficiency of invincible ſtrength, and impregnable protection, againſt all power whatſoever, that ſhould by any be raiſed againſt him.

Thou therefore] Heb. And thou: So Chap. 6.11. and 7.16.

gird up thy loins,] Prepare thy ſelf for thine employment; addreſſe thy ſelf manfully, and readily thereunto. A proverbial form of ſpeech, borrowed from the practice of thoſe, who wearing ſide, and looſe garments, as in thoſe parts they much did, and do ſtill, are wont to truſſe them up, and gird them unto them, when they are about to undertake ſome journey, or to ſet upon ſome weighty, yea, or but ordinary work, Exod.12.11. 1 King.18.46. 2 King.4.29. & 9.1. Job 38.3. & 40.1. Prov.31.17. Luk.12.35. 1 Pet.1.13.

and ariſe] This word doth not imply, either any certain poſture, at preſent, of the party ſpoken to, or import an alteration thereof, but requireth onely a preſent and ſpeedy addreſſe unto the employment enjoyned, ſetting all other affairs and employments aſide. So Chap.13.4,6. Jon.1.2.

and ſpeak unto them all that I command thee;] Heb. ſhall command thee, or, ſhall give thee in charge. See ver.7.

be not diſmaid at their faces] Or, before them, or, at their preſence. See on ver.8.

leſt I confound thee before them.] Or, leſt I break thee to pieces: the word is the very ſame with the former; and it ſignifieth, ſometime, to diſmay, or affright; as Job 7.14. & 31.34. Habb.2.17. and, to be diſmayed, or affrighted; as Deut.1.21. & 31.8. Joſh.1.9. Chap.17.18. ſometime, to break in pieces; as Eſay 9.4. and, to be broken in pieces; as Eſay 8.9. Chap. 50.2, 36. and in this latter notion, it may well here be taken. Howſoever, it is, as if God had ſaid, Be not afraid of them, ſo as to forbear telling them out of fear, what I bid thee, leſt I fright thee in a worſe manner, then they are able to do, ſo as utterly to deſtroy thee. See Mat.10.28. Luk.12.4,5. So dangerous a matter is it, either for fear, or favour, to conceal Gods errand that he ſendeth us on, and not to dare, or not to do our duty, 1 Cor.9.16.

before them] In their ſight; that which befell Uriah, Chap. 26.23.

V. 18. For behold,] Heb. And I, lo; or, As for me, lo; As if he had ſaid, Do thou thy duty; do as I bid thee; and for my part, aſſure thy ſelf, that I will not fail to make good, what I do by promiſe engage my ſelf for, unto thee. See the like ſyntax, Gen.6.17. 1 Chr.28.2. Eſay 65.11.

I have made thee this day] Heb. given thee; as ver.5,15. for the word of giving, is, in Hebrew, of a very large extent. See Chap.49.15. Ezek.3.17. & 12.6.

a defenced city] Heb. for a city of defence; as Pſal. 108.10. Chap.34.7. that is, to be like a city ſtrongly built, and firmly fenced, ſupported for the ſtructure of it, not with timber, but with iron columns; and environed, not with ſtone, but with ſteel wals. See the like Eſay 50.7. Chap.6.27. & 15.20. Ezek. 3.8,9.

and an iron pillar] Heb. for a pillar of iron: the word pillar, here uſed, hath in it a notion of ſtanding upright, firm, and faſt, 2 King.11.14. and iron is uſed commonly to denote ſtrength: hence, bars of iron, Job 40.18. and bars of iron, Pſal.107.16. and, a ſtaff, or, ſcepter of iron, Pſal.2.9. and, an horn of iron, Mic.4.13. and, a yoke of iron, Deut.28.48. Chap.28.14.

and braſen walls] Heb. for walls of braſſe, or ſteel; as the word is oft taken, Pſal.18.34. Chap.15.12,20. So Zach.6.1. hills of ſuch.

againſt the whole land] There is the generality of his charge; the land, for the inhabitants of it in general, ver.14.

againſt the Kings of Judah, againſt the Princes thereof, againſt the Prieſts thereof, and againſt the people of the land.] Heb. unto the Kings of Judah, unto the Princes thereof, unto the Prieſts thereof, and unto the people of the land; and ſo it hath reference to the former reſemblances, I will make thee ſuch, or have made thee ſuch, as I have ſaid to all theſe; and the Lord ſubjoyneth this particular enumeration, to the former compriſal of them, in groſs; partly, thereby to fore-ſhew him, what he was to expect, to wit, that all ſorts, and degrees, would be ſure to oppoſe him, and band together againſt him; (as indeed they did, Chap.11.19,21. & 20.2. & 26.8. & 36.26. & 38.4.) and partly, to aſſure him, that though they ſhould all joyn in one againſt him, yet he ſhould prove too hard for them; they ſhould no more be able to prevail againſt him, then as if they ſhould puſh at an iron pillar, or a ſteel wall. See our Saviours words to his, Luk.21.17,18.

V. 19. And they ſhall fight againſt thee; but they ſhall not prevail againſt thee:] Heb. They ſhall war upon thee, or, againſt thee; as Judg. 20.11. The text may well be thus rendred, For though they fight with thee, or wage war againſt thee, they ſhall not prevail againſt thee, or, with thee. Heb. They ſhall not be able to thee, or, againſt thee. So Eſay 16.12. Hoſ.13.4. The like ſyntax, ſee Eſay 50.2. & 58.9. Job 13.15. And ſee the like promiſe repeated, Chap.15.20. So Pſal.129.2. Eſay 7.1. Rev. 17.14. They ſhall not be able for all their plots, and practices, to take thy life away from thee; but thou ſhalt ſurvive, to ſee their ruine, Chap.20.10,11. & 26.24. & 39. 11,12.

for I am with thee, ſaith the Lord, to deliver thee.] And that is ſecurity ſufficient, though all other fail, and all forſake. See ver.8. Chap.20.10. 2 Tim.4.17,18. for if God be with us, who can be againſt us? They muſt prevail firſt againſt him, ere they can prevail againſt them, that withſtand, and oppoſe thoſe whom he ſtandeth by to back and protect, Exod. 14.25. 2 Chr. 14.11. Act. 5.39. Rom. 8.31,37.

CHAP. II.

Ve.ſ. 1. M*oreover, the word of the Lord came to me, ſaying*;] Whether this were the firſt Sermon, that the Prophet Jeremy did directly preach unto the people, is uncertain, though it be the firſt here upon record: for the main ſum, and ſubſtance, of thoſe things, in the former Chapter recorded, is moſt concerning the time and manner of his firſt calling to the office, and ſuch generall inſtructions, that God was pleaſed then to give him concerning his carriage in it, and diſcharge of it: which was yet to be divulged by him, to procure credit and authority, unto what he was to deliver, as from God, and in his name, to his people. But in this, according as by God, he was expreſly enjoyned, ver. 2. he directeth his ſpeech unto the whole body of the State, in the name, and as in the perſon of God, debating the caſe, and expoſtulating with them; minding them of his mercies, and favours ſhewed them, taxing them for their baſe and unworthy carriage toward him, convincing them of their extream folly and madneſſe, in bringing miſchief and miſery upon themſelves; and forewarning them of the ſorry ſucceſſe they ſhould find, by relying on ſuch, as would not be able to relieve them. For the words of this verſe, ſee Chap. 1.11.

V. 2. Go, and cry in the ears of Jeruſalem, ſaying,] Go. Heb. to go, or going; as Eſay 20.2. an enterchange, as ſome, of the infinitive, for the imperative; or, as others, a defect of the imperative; which more fully ſhould be, going go, that is, be ſure thou go. See on Eſay 59.13. So Ch. 3. 12. and 19. 1.

Cry] Cry aloud; as Eſay 58.1. or, proclaim; as Eſay 61. 2.

in the ears] In the hearing; as Eſay 5.9. & 22.14.

of Jeruſalem] The inhabitants thereof; as Eſay 1.27. there, leaving Anathoth, the place of his former abode, he was now to reſide, and to preach unto them. See Chap. 1.1. and 37. 12.

Thus ſaith the Lord;] The Prophets ordinary preface, ſhewing whoſe meſſage they came with. So Eſay 55.1. Ch. 4.3.

I remember thee] Heb. unto thee, or, for thee; Whence ariſe various opinions, concerning the end of Gods repetition, and mentioning of the ancient matters, that here he mindeth them of; for ſome would have it to be for this end, that thereby they might be put in hope of being received again into favour with him, notwithſtanding their diſloyall, and unworthy carriages; as Chap. 3.1. he retaining ſtill in his mind, his kind and loving affection to them, at firſt; and they ſuppoſe therefore ſome emphaſis to be in the particle here uſed; as the like may ſeem to be in that, Neh. 13.23. this alſo remember for me: but the very ſame form of ſpeaking is found elſewhere uſed, where no matter of favour is intended; as Pſal. 137.7. and not far from the former place, Neh. 13. 29. where our Tranſlators, not amiſſe, ſuppoſing the particle to be a meer expletive, render the places; Remember me concerning this; and, Remember them; and, Remember the children of Edom: the likelyeſt place, that can be produced, ſeems that, Lev. 25.45. I will for them remember the covenant of their anceſtors: rendring there, for their ſake: as by ſome, for thy ſake, here. But others ſuppoſe, that Gods main end herein, is to aggravate their unthankfulneſſe, and to amplifie the hainouſneſſe of their ſin, who had carryed themſelves ſo vilely, and unworthily, towards him, who had ſhewed ſo much kindneſſe, and love, unto them. So Eſay 63.7-9. Amos 2.9-11. Mic. 6.3-5. And following this, (which I rather encline to) the verb may be taken in a notion of mentioning, or minding, another of ſomewhat; in which ſenſe the paſſive form is very frequently found uſed: and then, if the particle be deemed an expletive, the text may be rendred; I will mind thee of the kindneſſe of thy youth; as in that former place of Nehemy; and ſo Pſal. 136.23. or, if it ſeem to be of ſome force, I mention unto thee the kindneſſe of thy youth: I deſire to put thee in mind of what love and affection I ſhewed, when I firſt entred into covenant with thee, in the very beginning of thy being a people, what time thou waſt, as yet, but a young ſtate.

the kindneſſe of thy youth, the love of thine eſpouſals,] How theſe words, which in our Verſion hang over-looſly, may be aptly kept knit unto the reſt of the context, hath already been ſhewed. Some refer both branches to the people, as intimating their affection, and diſpoſition to God at firſt: and ſo the words ſhould be read; I remember thee, for the kindneſſe of thy youth, and the love of thine eſpouſals: as Mal. 2.5. but that, the main tenour of the ſtory of thoſe times uncontrolleth. See Deut. 9.6,24. Eſay 48.8. Others, divide them between God, and the people, referring the former to him, the latter to them: but they ſever things that are not to be disjoyned. They onely expound the text aright, that aſcribe both unto God: yet not as profeſſing ſtill ſo to affect them, as ſome would have it, reading them thus; I remember thee with the love of thy youth, and the love of thine eſpouſals; like that, Pſal. 106.4. but as minding them onely of what love and kindneſs, he then had ſhewed them.

the kindneſſe of thy youth] Or, thy child-hood; as it is rendred, Gen. 8.21. but here, rather, youth; becauſe ſpeech is here of this people, as of a damſal fit for eſpouſal; the kindneſs that I ſhewed thee coming out of Egypt: that is the time that is ſo oft termed, ſometime, the birth; ſometime, the youth of this people. See Eſay 44. 2. & 46. 3. & 54. 6. Ezek. 16. 43,60. Hoſ. 2.3,15.

the love of thine eſpouſals,] The word here uſed, is no where elſe found; but cometh from a term, that ſignifieth a ſpouſe, or a bride, ver. 32. the love that I bare and ſhewed unto thee, when I entred into a ſolemn covenant with thee, and ſo eſpouſed thee to my ſelf, Exod. 19.5,6,8. & 24.7,8. Deut. 4. 20,23,34. & 5.2. & 26.16,17. & 29.10-15. Chap. 31.31,32. Ezek. 16.8,60. Hoſ. 2.19,20.

when thou wenteſt after me in the wilderneſs, in a land that was not ſown] Heb. thy going after me: whence ſome would expound it, of her; that is, this peoples pious affection and diſpoſition towards God, in being content to follow his conduct, and keeping cloſe to him, in that tedious and uncouth paſſage thorow the waſte Wilderneſſe: To which purpoſe, alſo, is that alledged, Deut. 32. 12. and there was no ſtrange god with him: but this, as was before ſaid, the ſtory it ſelf refelleth, ſhewing in what manner, with murmuring, and repining, they there went after him, and how even there they went on whoring after idols. See Pſal. 106.7-32. Amos 5.25,26. As for that of Moſes, it intimates only, that God had no coadjutor in the conduct of them, not that they worſhipped no other god, either with him, or in his ſtead. See Eſay 43. 12. The words in our Verſion are not amiſſe rendred; and ſo better, then as ſome, how thou wenteſt after me; as Lam. 1.9. there is in the text only a defect of the particle frequently omitted; expreſſed, Deut. 4.21. & 6.7. but omitted, 1 Sam. 15.7. & 27.8. & 29. 6. the goodneſſe and kindneſſe is intended, that God ſhewed, in conducting, ſafeguarding, feeding, and furniſhing them, with all neceſſaries, in that wild and waſte place, where there was no tillage, nor ſuſtenance, conſequently, to be had, for the maintenance of mans life. See ver. 6. Num. 20.5. Deut. 8.2,3. & 29.5,6. & 32.10,12.

V. 3. Iſrael was holineſs unto the Lord;] Conſecrated and dedicated to God, as his peculiar, Exod. 19.5,6. Pſal. 114.2. Chap 31.44. Some ſuppoſe an alluſion here, as Zach. 14. 20. to the inſcription on the High-Prieſts frontlet, Exod. 39. 30. but the term is of larger extent; and reacheth unto any time, perſon, place, or ought elſe, that is conſecrated, and ſet apart for holy uſes, or for Gods ſervice, as in a more ſpecial manner his. So it is uſed, Exod. 31.15. Lev. 21.7. & 27.14,23. Eſay 23. 18. in all which places, and in the like ſpeeches, holineſſe, is put for holy: the abſtract, for the concrete, and ſo here.

and the firſt-fruits of his encreaſe:] The and, here, would be expunged; for it is not in the text, and it makes the reading ambiguous: for the words ſo read, may bear this ſenſe, that the firſt-fruits of Iſraels encreaſe, as well as himſelf, were holineſs to the Lord: which though a truth, yet is not the meaning of the words here. It would rather be read, either by way of appoſition, ſimply, the firſt fruits of his encreaſe: or, (the note of ſimilitude being inſerted; as Eſay 62.5. & 66.3.) as, the firſt fruits of his encreaſe: which, as other the holy things, being ſet apart for God, were not to be eaten by ſtrangers, Exod. 22.29, 30. & 34.26. Lev. 22.10. Num. 15.19-21. Deut. 26.2,10. Such are all Gods people, his firſt-fruits, Jam. 1.18. his firſt-born, Exod. 4.22. Heb. 12.23. See Hoſ. 9.10.

all that devour them ſhall offend, evill ſhall come upon them, ſaith the Lord,] The words thus rendred, imply nothing leſſe, then that which is here intimated, and intended. For the drift and ſcope of this paſſage, is not to ſhew how the caſe ſtood now with them; but how, in former times, it had: and the words therefore would be rendred, as the former branch was, in the time paſt, all that devoured them, treſpaſſed; contracted guilt, made themſelves guilty of a treſpaſs againſt God, and liable to judgment, Exod. 4. 23. as thoſe did, that ate or devoured ought that was holy, Lev. 5.15. Prov. 20.25. evill befell them: none that then wronged them, eſcaped without ſome exemplary puniſhment, Exod. 17.8,14. Num. 21.23,24, 33-35. & 25.17,18. & 31.2. Pſal. 105.14,15. & 106.11. And there is in the words thus rendred, a ſecret intimation, that the caſe was now altered, it was otherwiſe now with them; ſtrangers now preyed upon them, and devoured them, at pleaſure, as if they were ſome profane, and common thing, that any one might, without guilt, or fear of controll, feed upon, might lawfully enough be dealing with, ver. 14-16. Chap. 12.10. & 50.7. See Eſay 43.28. & 47.6.

V. 4. Hear ye the word of the Lord, O houſe of Jacob, and all the Families of the houſe of Iſrael.] An introduction uſual with the Prophets, requiring due attention to what they delivered, as not their own word, but the Lords. So Eſay 1.10. &

38.14.& 66.5.Chap.7.2. & 17.19.& 19.2.Hoſ.4.1.Jacob and Iſrael,here,one and the ſame; as Eſay 42. 24. & 43. 1. and, the houſe of Jacob,and of Iſrael, for his poſterity; as Eſay 2.5. & 5.7. and all the Families thereof, for,all the twelve Tribes; as Chap.31.1.

V. 5. Thus ſaith the Lord; What iniquity have your fathers found in me,that they are gone far from me,] God having before minded them,what kindneſſe he had,at firſt,ſhewed unto them,and how chary he had been of them; that the equity of his proceedings may the more cleerly appear,if he deal otherwiſe now with them, then formerly he had done, doth here challenge them, to ſhew wherein he had wronged them, or broken covenants with them, or given any juſt occaſion to their fore-fathers to depart from him, and leave him, as they had done. See the like, Eſay 1.2,3,18. & 5.3. Mic.6.3,4. verſ. 31.

and have walked after vanity,] That is,after idols,moſt vain things,that cannot avail them ought,being nothing,but meer vanity: the abſtract,for the concrete; as Eccl.1.2.& 12. 8. as noting their extream folly, in forſaking God, to follow ſuch, 1 Sam.12.20,21.Eſay 41.29.& 44.9.Chap.1.16.& 8.19. & 10. 15. See 2 King.17.15. So Rom.1.21.

and are become vain.] Senſleſſe and ſottiſh,in their counſels and courſes; like their idols whom they ſerve, Pſal. 115. 8. Jon.2.8.Rom.1.21,22. The words would be rendred, What iniquity did your Fathers find in me,that they went far away from me,and walked after vanity, and became vain; that it have the better coherence with what followeth.

V. 6. Neither ſaid they; Where is the Lord that brought us up out of the land of Egypt?] They did not ſo much as once think thus with themſelves; as Chap. 5.24. They regarded not to mind him,or make enquiry after him,who had done ſo much for them, ver.8. Pſal.14.2. The deliverance of them out of Egypt, is moſt frequently mentioned, as one of the moſt remarkable works, that was ever done for any people; and ſuch, as could not but moſt deeply,& firmly engage,& oblige both them, & their poſterity, to ſerve him faithfully & conſtantly, who had manifeſted, and magnified, as well his might,as his mercy, in working ſo great and ſtrange a work for them,and to cleave cloſe unto him for ever. See Exod.20. 2.Lev.25.38. Pſal.81.10. Eſay 63. 9,11,13. Hoſ. 13.4. Mic. 6. 4.

brought us up out of] Heb.made us to aſcend; as Pſal.135.7. as reſpecting the ſituation of that place, lying low, and depreſſed; ſo ſome. Or,that brought us forth, ſimply, without any ſpecial reference unto aſcent, or deſcent; as the word is oft uſed,Ezek.27.22.Chap.50.9. See Eſay 52.4.

that led us thorow the wilderneſſe,] See ver.2.Exod.13.21, 22.Num.10.33.

thorow a land of deſerts,and of pits,] Heb.a land of waſteneſs; as Chap.50.12.& 51.43. and of pit; as Chap.18.20,22. Prov. 22.14.& 23.27.a place deſtitute of all neceſſaries, ver. 2. and full of dangerous paſſages: yet,the word pit,is vſed oft for the grave, Pſal. 30. 3. & 103.4. which may here alſo be alluded unto; as if it were ſaid,a place where nothing but death (for want of food) and burial, could be expected. See Exod. 14. 9,10.

thorow a land of drought] Where no water was to be had, but what by miracle God afforded them, Exod.16.3. & 17.3. Num.20.2,5.Deut.8.15.

and of the ſhadow of death,] A land wherein they were expoſed to dangers,daily threatning death; as Pſal.23. 4. Luk. 1.79. See Deut.8.15.& 32.10. In the word, ſhadow of death, or deadly ſhade,there is alluſion,as ſome think, unto ſuch paſſages between hilly groves,in deſert places, ſo over-ſpread, and over-ſhadowed, with boughs of trees, that they ſtrike an horrour and dread into ſuch as are to paſs thorow them; the rather,in regard of ſuch harmful creatures,as may ly lurking there, and cannot eaſily be deſcried,nor avoided, when diſcovered: ſuch apprehenſions, ſo powerfully working many times upon men, that they ſeem dead, even before they dy. Others, ſuppoſe an alluſion to the ſhadow of ſome trees, deemed dangerous and deadly, not to plants onely, that grow neer unto them, (ſee Pliny,l.17.c.12.) but to men,or beaſts,eſpecially,that ly and ſleep under them, Pliny, l.16.c. 10. Plutarch,in his Sympoſiacks, l. 3. c. 10. Others, to that cloudineſſe, that riſeth before mens eyes, as over-ſhadowing their ſight,when they ly drawing on to departure; or,to the ſtate of death it ſelf, that is compared to darkneſſe, and conveyeth the deceaſed to a place of obſcurity and darkneſs, Job 10.21,22. where the phraſe it ſelf is uſed; a ſhade of death, for, a deadly ſhade,ſuch as death bringeth with it; as,ſleep of death, for,deadly ſleep,ſuch as death caſts men into,Pſal.13.3. See on Eſay 9.2.

thorow a land which no man paſſed thorow, and where no man dwelt] A land extreamly deſolate, either thorow which none had formerly paſſed; much leſſe made abode in, or affording neither fit abode,nor convenient paſſage for any. So Chap.6. 8.& 9.12.

V. 7. And I brought you into a plentifull country,] Or, Yet I brought you; as Eſay 60.10. & 63.11. A change of the perſon; as Eſay 61.7.& 64.4. Heb. into a land of Carmel. See of the term,Eſay 35.15. and of the land of Canaan,Num.13. 27.Deut.8.7-9. & 11.10-12. and God ſpeaketh here, as if he were parlying with thoſe, that lived in thoſe times, and directing his ſpeech unto them. See ver. 5,9. to eat the fruit thereof] To enjoy ſuch commodities, as it afforded. So Neh.9.36.

and the goodneſſe thereof:] As Eſay 1.19.

but when ye entred, ye defiled my land, and made mine heritage an abomination.] Heb. and ye entred, and defiled my land. See the like ſyntax,Gen.14.12.Eſay 30.20. & 35.4.& 65.12. & 66.14.

defiled my land] By idolatries, and other wicked courſes, Pſal.78.58.& 106.38.Chap.3.1.my land. So Lev. 25. 23. the land is mine,and ye are but ſojourners with me in it.

made mine heritage an abomination.] So horribly polluted that land, which I had aſſigned unto you for an inheritance, Pſal.36.21,22.or,as ſome,that was as deer unto me, and I was as chary of,as if it were mine inheritance, Deut.11.12. that it became moſt abominable, (the abſtract,for the concrete; as Eſay 1.13.& 41.24.So Chap.6.15. & 8.12.) that I could not but abhor it,Chap.16.18.

V. 8. The Prieſts ſaid not,Where is the Lord?] They that ſhould have exhorted, and excited others, to mind me, and ſeek after me, did not at all mind me, or ſeek after me, themſelves. See ver.6.

and they that handled the law,] The Prieſts and Levites that ſhould ſo have done; did,for,ſhould have done: the indicative form in a notion of duty; as the like, Eſay 26. 9. that ſhould have opened,and taught it to others,Deut.33.10. Neh. 8. 8, Mal.2.7.Rom.2.20.

knew me not] They were ignorant of me themſelves,whoſe office was to bring others to the knowledge of me, Hoſ. 4. 6. Luk.11.52.

the Paſtors alſo tranſgreſſed againſt me,] That is,the Governours,both Civil,and Eccleſiaſtical, ſay ſome; or, the Kings, and Princes: ſo the Jewiſh Commenters here expound it; they that ſhould be unto the people,as ſhepherds to the flock. See Eſay 44.28. & 56.11. Chap.3.15. & 12.10. the Princes dealt wickedly,as well as the Prieſts, 2 Chron. 36. 12, 14. Chap.5.5.

and the Prophets propheſied by Baal,] They became Baals Prophets; they worſhipped idols themſelves,and taught the people ſo to do,1 King.18.22.

and walked after things that do not profit.] Heb. went after ſuch things as will not profit; that is,cannot profit; as Job 15. 3.Lam.4.17.that is, after idols, that could do them no good; as ver.5,11. 1 Sam.12.21. Eſay 44. 9,10. Hab.2.18. a defect both of antecedent, and relative; as Exod.23.20. 1 Chr.15. 12. And when Prieſts, Princes, and Prophets, were all ſo corrupt, what was the ſtate of the people like to be? See Chap.5.31.

V.9.Wherefore I will yet plead with you,ſaith the Lord;and with your childrens children will I plead.] This ſome underſtand of a verbal pleading; & expound it of a courſe that God intended to take ſtill from time to time,by his Prophets,to convince them of their ſinfull and wicked courſes, as he had in former ages done, before he would proceed to execute judgment upon them,and that to render them the more inexcuſable, ſee ch. 7.25.2 Chr.36.14,15. Others, underſtand it of a reall pleading; as Pſal.74.22.Eſay 51.22. by inflicting of evils, and execution of judgment: he would further puniſh them, as he had done their fathers before them, ſince that they trode in their ſteps,Chap.7.26. yea,not them alone,but their poſterity alſo, either the hainouſneſſe of their ſins deſerving no leſſe, Exod.20.5. & 34.7. or fore-ſeeing that their iſſue would walk the ſame way, that they did; as Moſes (ſaith the Rabbine) foreſaw,what the people would do after his deceaſe, Deut.31. 29. eſpecially being trained up ſo, as by their parents they were,Ch.7.18. But the former I conceive the more probable, and more proper ſenſe of the place,eſpecially,if it be applied to Gods preſent debate with his people, which, I ſuppoſe, it doth alone concern; for it ſeemeth to me, as a paſſage from that former expoſtulation, that God had before with them, concerning their fathers, what reaſon they had to leave him, and deſert his ſervice; or what occaſion he had given them ſo to do, ver. 5. unto a new debate with them, upon another ground, ver. 10. which he deſireth may remain upon record unto Poſterity, to convince them alſo of the like extream folly,if they follow their impiety. So that it is,as if he had ſaid, I have argued the caſe with your fore-fathers already, let me debate the matter a little further with you; and let your poſterity alſo conſider well what I now ſay. See Deut. 31.19,21. and ſo is the ſame word afterward uſed,for debating the caſe, or pleading,ver.29.

V. 10. For paſs over the Iles of Chittim, and ſee; and ſend unto Kedar, and conſider diligently, and ſee if there be ſuch a thing.] A new argument of debate God here entreth upon with his people: wherein he challengeth them to produce any people, in any part of the world, then commonly known, that had dealt with their idols, as they had done with him: the Heathen were more conſtant and faithful to their idols, then they had been to the true God. See the like argument, Mal. 3. 8.

paſſe over] Or, go over to; as Eſay 8. 8. becauſe they were to paſſe the Sea unto thoſe parts. Howbeit, the meaning is not, that they ſhould either make ſome ſet journey, or ſend ſome meſſengers on purpoſe, to make diligent enquiry, how things there went; but that they ſhould conſider ſeriouſly what concerning them they knew, by report, or otherwiſe; and withall intimating, that if they ſhould either by journeying themſelves, or by diligent enquiry otherwiſe, endeavour to enform themſelves herein, they would find it to be ſo as he ſaid. See the like, Chap. 7. 12. Amos 6. 2.

the Iles of Chittim] The Iles, or lands; as Eſay 20. 6. & 41. 1. Chap. 47. 1. either ſituate in the mid-land ſea, or coaſting on the other ſide of it more Northward. See of Chittim, on Eſay 23. 1. to the Iles; as to Kedar: a defect of the particle with either; as 1 King. 3. 15.

Kedar] Arabia, that lay Southward from Judea. See Eſay 21. 16. & 60. 4. as if he had ſaid, Go which way ye will, to any country, North, or South: Yet ſome ſuppoſe that by the Chittim, are underſtood, the more civil people; ſuch as were the Greeks and Macedonians; by the Kedarens, people leſſe civil, and more ſavage, as thoſe Kedarens were, having no certain place of conſtant abode, See Chap. 49. 29. For the Rabbines doat and dally here after their wonted manner, when they tell us, that theſe two Nations are here mentioned, becauſe the one worſhipped the water, and the other the fire; and yet would not theſe leave worſhipping the fire, though they ſaw that the water put out the fire.

if there be ſuch a thing] Heb. if; or, whether there have been ſuch a thing as this: a defect of the antecedent; as Judg. 19. 30. and it would be in the time paſt, becauſe of that which followeth, ver. 11.

V. 11. Hath a nation changed their gods?] Or, Whether any nation have changed their gods? Whether the heathen keep not conſtant to their country idols. See 2 King. 17. 29-33. Mic. 4. 5.

which are yet no gods:] Heb. and they no gods; but meer counterfeit ones, idols, Chap. 16. 20. Eſay 37. 19. Gal. 4. 8. and, for, yet; as Eſay 60. 10. & 63. 11. So ver. 21.

but my people have changed their glory, for that which doth not profit.] Heb. and; as Chap. 1. 7. But my people have not onely changed, but made a moſt fooliſh exchange; they have put away, and parted with the true God, who was their glory, Pſal. 106. 20. of whom they had good, and great cauſe to glory that they had ſuch a God, Pſal. 44. 8. & 148. 14. & 149. 2. and who made them truly glorious, Deut. 4. 6-8. Pſal. 149. 4. Eſay 110. 10. & 60. 13. for that which they had juſt cauſe to be aſhamed of, ver. 26. for a thing of no worth, for that which could do them no good, could ſtand them in no ſtead. See before on ver. 8.

V. 12. Be aſtoniſhed, O heavens, at this, and be horribly afraid, be ye very deſolate, ſaith the Lord.] Some by the heavens, here, would underſtand the Angels, as called upon, to ſtand amazed, at the extream folly, and ſtrange impiety of Gods people. But the celeſtial bodies ſeem rather ſpoken to, by a rhetorical elegancy, and form of poetical and pathetical language, oft uſed in Scripture; as Deut. 32. 1. Eſay 1. 2. as implying that their courſes were ſuch, as might juſtly fill the whole world with aſtoniſhment; and that the very ſenſleſſe creatures, the heavens eſpecially, thoſe glorious ones, were they apprehenſive of ſuch things, would abhor them, be agaſt at them, and tremble to think what would be the end and iſſue of them. So rather, then, as ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, who following the Chaldee, would have the meaning to be, as if the heavens were called upon, to bewail and lament the deſolation of the land, that was to be, the deſtruction of the city, and the ſubverſion of the Sanctuary.

be horribly afraid] Or, agaſt, Ezek. 27. 35. & 32. 10. it ſignifieth properly ſuch a diſturbance, as a ſtrange ſtorm and tempeſt is wont to affect thoſe with, that are ſurpriſed with it: it hath ſome affinity alſo with the word, that ſignifieth, hair, and hairy, or rough: whereof, ſee on Eſay 34. 14 and may imply ſuch an horrour, as ſome horrid occurrent is wont to produce; ſuch as would make ones hair, as we uſe to ſay, ſtand an end.

be very deſolate] Or, utterly dryed up, and exhauſted; as Eſay 19. 5, 6. withdraw your luſtre, looſe your light, be clouded, and darkened; as if you were in ſome deſolate eſtate, in ſome diſmal condition. See Eſay 13. 10, 33. & 24. 23. Ezek. 32. 7, 8. but eſpecially, Mat. 27. 45. where the ſun, that glorious light, ſeemed to be abaſhed, amazed, and agaſt, at that tranſcendent and matchleſſe impiety committed, in putting of the glorious Lord of life, to an ignominious, and accurſed death, Act. 3. 15. 1 Cor. 2. 8. Gal. 3. 13.

V. 13. For my people have committed two evils] Two grand, two moſt notorious evils.

they have forſaken me the fountain of living waters,] A well-ſpring of all manner of good, yeelding water, that runneth conſtantly, and never faileth, and one that was ſuch inceſſantly unto them, while they continued loyal, and dutiful to him, Pſal. 36. 9. Chap. 17. 13. & 18. 14. Joh. 4. 14. & 7. 38. Revel. 22. 1. Of the word, ſee on Chap. 6. 7. it is a metaphor taken from waters, ariſing, and iſſuing from a ſpring, that are wont to hold out all the yeer long, Eſay 58. 11. and are, in Hebrew, therefore termed, living waters, Gen. 26. 15. oppoſed to ſuch waters, as proceed onely from ſome exceſſe of rain, as land-flouds, that, ſhooting down from the hills, run, with a violent torrent, in the Winter time; but in the heat of Summer, are dryed up, and fail, Job 6. 15-20.

and hewed them out ciſterns, broken ciſterns, that can hold no water.] So it is not amiſſe rendred the more diſtinctly to deſign that ſecond evil of the twain, before-mentioned; as the leaving of God all-ſufficient, the ever-living, and inceſſant flowing fountain of all good, Jam. 1. 17. ſo the betaking of themſelves to ſorry baſe idols, unable to do them the leaſt good, that is, to give them ſo much as a drop of water, when they want it, Chap. 14. 22. Zach. 10. 1, 2. Howbeit, the words run, in the Hebrew, to hew them out ciſterns; as the words are rendred, Deut. 6. 11. & Neh. 9. 25. to dig them wels; as if one having his habitation neer a fair and cleer ſpring, affording plenty of water all the year long, ſhould abandon the place, upon ſome groundleſſe diſlike, and in a fond humour go and ſeat himſelf elſe-where, where if he will have water, he muſt dig for it; and if by digging, he cannot find it, he muſt dig pits, to keep what cometh by rain, or occaſionally otherwiſe: and that which is ſubjoyned, and makes his condition the worſe, theſe wels, or pits, when he hath digged them, prove faulty; ſo as they are not able to keep what is committed to them, but it ſoaketh all away, leaving nothing behind but mire and mud, which uſually alſo breedeth vermin, and noyſome ſavours withall.

broken ciſterns] Or, pits: it ſeemes to have been a proverbiall form of ſpeech, like that, wells without water, 2 Pet. 2. 17.

they can hold no water] Heb. that will not hold water; and ſo we uſe to ſay of a cloven diſh, or a broken pitcher; it will not hold water: when our meaning is, it cannot: ſo ver. 8. that will not profit, for, that cannot profit. Such broken pits are all idols, unable to afford any relief, or refreſhing, unto thoſe, that rely on them, Eſay 46. 7. and not idols alone, but all outward ſtays whatſoever, that men, relinquiſhing God, the onely ſure ſtay, truſt unto, and ſo make idols of them, Chap. 17. 5. wherein alſo this people were faulty, reſting ſometime upon Aſſhur, and ſometime upon Egypt, that proved broken canes to them, Verſe 18, 36. See Eſay 30. 1-5. & 36. 6.

V. 14. Is Iſrael a ſervant? is he an home-bred ſlave?] The Lord proceedeth to ſhew what condition this people had caſt themſelves into, by forſaking of him, and putting themſelves under the protection of others, unable to do ought for them.

Is Iſrael a ſervant?] Some take this to be ſpoken, as if God ſhould demand of them, whether he had uſed Iſrael, as a ſlave, and not rather as a ſon, Deut. 8. 5. & 32. 6. ſo it ſhould be, as that afterward, Ver. 31. Others, rather referring it, to his evill entreaty, and baſe uſage by others; Is he a ſlave, that he is ſo ſlaviſhly uſed? like that, Chap. 49. 1. and the Jewiſh Doctors here not unfitly add; How cometh it to paſſe, that he who was in ſo great reſpect and reckoning with God, as was related, ver. 2, 3. that he accounted him, as his firſt-born ſon, Exod. 4. 22. ſhould now be left unto ſuch a deſpicable condition, that every one ſhould at pleaſure, wrong him, and domineer over him, as if he were a common ſlave: Though herein they ſeem to be out of the way, in that they make this the demand, not of God, or the Prophet, but of Iſrael himſelf, or of the people, which God, by the Prophet, ſhould return anſer unto, ver. 17.

is he an home-born ſlave?] Such an one, as being born in his Lords, or Maſters Family, of one that was his ſlave before, was, in that regard, a ſlave by birth, Exod. 21. 4. Lev. 22. 11. alluded to Pſal. 116. 16. theſe were with the Latines called Vernæ. So whereas there were two ſorts of ſlaves, ſlaves bought with money, and ſlaves born in the houſe, Gen. 17. 12, 23, 27. God ſeemeth to have here reſpect unto either; demanding, whether Iſrael were ſo impoveriſhed, that by extream poverty he had been compelled to ſell himſelf for a ſlave, Exod. 21. 7, 8. Lev. 25. 39, 47. or was born in the family, and under the dominion of them that thus tyrannized over him, as having in that regard, ſuch intereſt in him, and power over him, Eſay 26. 13.

why is he ſpoiled?] Heb. why is he for ſpoyl? as Chap.49.22. Eſay 42. 24. what is the reaſon that ſtrangers make a ſpoyl of him, as if they had a good right to, and intereſt in whatſoever he were poſſeſſed of, as the Lord, or Owner, hath, in whatſoever goods, or ſtate, his ſlave hath. See 1 King. 20. 3, 5, 6.

V. 15. The young lions roared upon him, and yelled.] Or, young lions roar aloud over him. Heb. Over him young lions roar, give out their voice; as Pſal.18.13. Amos 1.2. & 3.4. By young lions (of the term, ſee Eſay 30. 6.) are underſtood, the Kings of Syria, Aſſyria, and Chaldea; called lions, for their fierceneſſe; and young lions, for their ſtrength. See Chap.4.7. & 50. 17. ſaid to roar aloud over him; as a lion is wont to do upon his prey, or over his prey; either when he comes to ſeiz on it, or is already poſſeſt of it. See Eſay 5.29. & 31.4.

and yelled] Heb. give out their voice; for there is no copulative in the text: this ſome underſtand, as of a General, or Commander, giving out a command, or ſome ſignal, for aſſault; and it may ſeem ſo taken, Joel 2. 11. & 3.16. but it is commonly uſed for any loud cry in general. See Pſal.46.6. Prov.2.3. Chap.22.20. & 48.34. Habb.3.9. they roar, utter their voice, for, roar aloud, or, roar hideouſly; as, they make deep corrupt, for, they corrupt deeply, Hoſ.9.9.

and they made his land waſte,] Or, have laid his land waſte. Heb. put his land unto waſteneſſe, or, deſolation, Chap. 4. 7.

his cities are burnt without Inhabitant.] Heb. burnt from no Inhabitant, or, from without Inhabitant; as Chap. 46.19. that is, ſo burnt, that they ly as a waſte wilderneſſe; as Chap.9.12. which none can inhabit; and ſo Chap.9.10. burnt from no paſſenger, or, from without any paſſenger; that is, ſo burnt up, that none paſſeth by. See of this uſe of the particle, on Eſay 23. 1. & 24.10. See of the deſolation here mentioned, Eſay 1. 7. 2 Chr.28.5,20,21. & 33.11. & 36.6,7,10.

V. 16. Alſo the children of Noph, and Tahapanes have broken the crown of thine head.] The Egyptians alſo they make a ſpoyl of thee, 2 King.24.33,35. 2 Chr.36.3. And he ſaith, the Egyptians alſo, as ſome would have it, becauſe they were a more effeminate people; as if he ſhould ſay, not the Aſſyrians onely, a manly, and warlike people; but that womaniſh Nation, the Egyptians, with whom the men do womens work, as Herodote, l.2. But others, rather, becauſe this people was too prone to confide in them; though they got no help, or good, but much hurt and harm, from them, ver.18,36. Ezek. 29.6,7,16.

the children] Heb. ſons; that is, the Inhabitants, or Natives, (as the ſons of Jeruſalem, Eſay 51.18,20. and, the daughters of Sion, Eſay 3. 16.) of theſe two principal Egyptian Cities; put here, becauſe royal Seats, for the whole Kingdom, and land of Egypt.

the children of Noph] As, the children of Eden, Eſay 36.12. Of this city, ſee on Eſay 19.13.

Tahapanes] Or, Tachapanes; a famous and principal city of Egypt, Chap.43.8. Ezek.30.18. ſo called, in likelyhood, from Tahpanes, or Tachpanes, in Solomons time, Queen of Egypt, 1 King.11.19,20. it ſtood not far from Peluſium. Whence it is commonly termed by the Greeks, and Latines, Daphne Peluſiaca, to diſtinguiſh it from another place of that name neer to Antiochia, ſo named from a grove of laurel growing there; as Loretto, in Italy, hath its name from the like. But they are much out of the way, that would render the ſame reaſon of the name of this Egyptian city; becauſe the Greeks corruptly ſo term it, or dream of any laurel grove in thoſe parts. It is ſuppoſed to be the ſame with that called, alſo, Hanes, or Chanes, Eſay 30.4.

have broken the crown of thine head] So the Jewiſh Maſters expound it, taking the word, in the notion of breaking aſunder; as it ſeems taken, Chap.11.16, Mic.5.6. and, he ſaith, ſay they, the crown of the head; becauſe wounds on the head are dangerous, thoſe on the crown of it, eſpecially, as cleaving the head aſunder, Pſal.68.21. & 74.13,14. the Chaldee doth thus paraphraſe it, They have ſlain thy men of might, and plundered thy goods. The Greek renders it, They have known thee, and mocked thee; in ſuch a notion, as thoſe words are uſed, Gen. 19.5. & 39,17. and the old Latine, They have defiled thee to the crown of the head; which ſome expound, of no part left free from their filthy luſt; as of the Chaldeans, Lam.5.11,13. Others, of thoſe idolatries, that they were defiled with in Egypt, as well as in Chaldea, Chap.16.13. & 44. 17. Others, of abuſing them in baſe manner, and by cruell oppreſſions, riding over their head, or inſulting over their Princes, who are as their heads; that, ſay they, of the Aſſyrian reached up to the midſt of the neck, Eſay 8.8. & 30 28. but this ſhould go over the very crown of the head, Deut.28.43,44. Pſal.66.12. ſo that no part ſhould go free, from top, to toe, from abuſe and oppreſſion, Eſay 1.5,6. the heads of the people, the Princes themſelves not eſcaping, Lam.5.12,16. But theſe lay too much weight upon two vitious perſons, rendring the verb in ſuch a notion, as it is no where found uſed. Some late Interpreters render it, They have fed upon the crown of thine head, taking the word in a notion of feeding; as it is uſed, Chap.3.15. Eſay 6. 13. or, of depaſturing, rather; as Chap.6.3. with 12. 10. and Eſay 3.14. they have fleeced thee, deſpoiled thee, and eaten upon thee; either, fed upon the crown of thine head; or, fed upon thee in the crown of thine head; that is, ſay they, in the Southern part of thee, that lay toward Egypt, ſituate South from Judea, Eſay 30.6. Chap.13.19. the head of a land, by a trope; as the ſhoulders of it, Deut.33.12. or, rather, they ſpoyl and make havock of thee, in the beſt and principal part of thee; as Eſay 28.4. and this laſt, I conceive, to be the genuine ſenſe of the text; a defect of the prepoſition; as Eſay 32.6. & 57.8. and of the pronoun; as Eſay 60.4.

V. 17. Haſt thou not procured this to thy ſelf, in that thou haſt forſaken the Lord thy God, when he led thee by the way.] The Jewiſh Commenters conceive theſe words, to be, as an anſwer, by God, returned to the peoples complaint, of their preſent low, and forlorn condition, and Gods neglect of them in it, ver. 14. But they ſeem rather (for theſe were Gods words, not theirs) an argument, that God uſeth, to convince them of their extream folly, in forſaking him, and thereby plunging themſelves into ſuch a dolefull, and diſmal condition. So ver.19. Chap.4.18.

procured this] Heb. done this; as Chap.4.18.

in that thou haſt forſaken the Lord thy God] It was not his leaving of them, but their leaving of him, Chap.1.16. ver.13. who leaveth none, till they leave him, 1 Chr.28.9. 2 Chron. 15. 2.

when he led thee by the way] Heb. in the time, wherein he was leading thee on the way: a defect both of the relative, and of the verb ſubſtantive; as Gen.39.4. That by his providence governed thee, and led thee on in ſafety, protecting thee from all evils, while thou followedſt his conduct, and would ſo have done ſtill, hadſt not thou forſaken him, and refuſed to have been conducted by him, Pſal 91.1-13. Eſay 58.8,11. or, who preſcribed thee a way, and courſe of life, to walk in, which if thou hadſt obſerved, thou hadſt been ſafe and ſucceſsfull, Pſal.81.13-16. Eſay 48.18,19. & 64.5. Ezek.20.10,11. V. 18. And now what haſt thou to do in the way of Egypt, to drink the waters of Sihor; or, what haſt thou to do in the way of Aſſyria, to drink the waters of the river?] God here inſtanceth in, and twitteth them, with two of their cleft ciſterns, or broken wels, whereof, albeit, they had had proof enough formerly, how little good they had gained, or gotten, by ſeeking to them, and making uſe of them, yet they would needs be running after them ſtill. See 2 Chr.28.16,20. Eſay 30.1-7. & 31.1-3. & 36.6.

what haſt thou to do in the way of Egypt] Or, with the way of Egypt; as the particle is rendred, Pſal.147.20. Heb. what to thee, to the way! So 2 Sam.16.10. what to me, and to you? for, what have I to do with you? and, what to me, and to thee? for, what have I to do with thee? 2 King.3.8. See the like, Mar. 1.24. & 5.7. Joh.2.4. onely there is here a defect of the copulative; what need or occaſion haſt thou to ſend, or to travel, into Egypt? like thoſe, Num.14.3,4. to drink the waters of Sihor] Of Nilus, the river of Egypt, Amos 9.5. ſo called, of its blackneſſe, by reaſon of the mud and ſlime, that it brings down with it, wherewith it beteleth their grounds; Or, as ſome, by reaſon of the black colour, of the grounds & landſ it paſſeth thorow, which yet cometh, in effect, home to the former; for ſuch ſtuff muſt the river of neceſſity bring down with it, as is the land that it paſſeth by. See on Eſay 23.3. and it ſeems very ſtrange, that ſome granting Sihor, to be Nilus here, ſhould affirm it to be ſome ſmall rill, or riveler, elſewhere; as Joſh.13.3. 1 Chr.13.5. To drink the water of Nilus in Egypt, is put here, for to ſeek help and relief there. But he delivereth it, in theſe terms; as if he ſhould ſay, that they could have nothing to do there, or no errand thither, unleſſe it were to drink of the puddle water of that river, when they had, or might haue had, as good, yea, far better then that, neerer at hand, at home. See Chap. 18. 14. So 2 King.1.3.

Eſay 3.9. Hoſ.5.5. but the words would rather be read, Thine own wickedneſſe might correct thee; thy bad courſes proving ſuch,as they have formerly done,might be (one would think) ſufficient to reclaim thee , and amend thee , to make thee abandon them,and be fearfull of returning again to them.See Hoſ.2.7.

So Diphath,for,Riphath ; and,Rodanim, for,Dodanim, 1 Chr.1.6,7. with Gen.10.3,4. and Hadar-eſer,1 Chr.18.3. for Hadad-eſer, 2 Sam.8.3. the like in this word,ſee Chap.15.14. that which our Verſion hath, ſeems the right reading, and is owned by the Jewiſh Criticks: for as for the ancient Greek , and old Latine, who following this latter, render the words, Of old thou haſt broken thy yoke,and burnt thy bands (as chap.5.5.) and ſaidſt,I will not ſerve thee,like thoſe,Pſal.2.3.Luk.19. 14. they alter much the reſt of the text , where no variety of reading is.

playing the harlot.] Committing whoredom: ſo is idolatry commonly ſtyled in Scripture, chap. 3.1, 2. Ezek.16.& 23. Hoſ.1.2.& 9.1.the reaſon you have before,ver.2.

V. 21. Yet I had planted thee, a noble vine, wholly a right ſeed.] I ſetled thee, at firſt, in a right and goodly Church-conſtitution ; both free from all ſuperſtitious, and idolatrous ſervices,and ſo moulded,as was moſt ſeemly,and ſightly.

Yet I had planted thee,]Or, And I did then plant thee,Exod. 15.17.Pſal.44.2.& 80.8.Eſay 5.2.

a noble vine] The Church of God is,in Scripture,frequently,compared to a vine,or vineyard,Pſal.80,8.Mat.21.33. Mar. 12.1. Luk.20.9. See Eſay 5.1.& 27.2. Howbeit , the word, vine,is not here in the text : the Hebrew is no more then ſorek: which ſome therefore underſtand of the place where it was planted. I planted thee,in ſorek,in a choice place; for not vines onely,but other things ; as ſilk,or fine linnen, ſuch as lawns,and the like,have this attribute given unto them. See Eſay 19.9. and that from a place ſo termed,Judg.16.4. ſome choice kind of vines,had this name, it is commonly deemed ; and the word might be uſed,as Carmel,ver.7. more generally, for other the like : as alſo it is apparent,that the place is commended for a rich and choice place, wherein God ſeated his people, Exod.15.17. Eſay 5. 2. but the ſorek, is in the latter place diſtinguiſhed from the ſeat,or ſoyl,wherein it was planted. See Eſay 5. 3. The moſt therefore refer it, not to the place, but to the plant : and of theſe, ſome read the words with a note of ſimilitude ; as,ſorek,as,a choice vine. I had as much care, in planting of thee , as a man could have of the choiceſt vine,or plant,that could be,Eſay 5.3.& 17.11.& 27. 3. Some, I planted thee for a Sorek, for a choice Vine ; I ſo planted thee,that thou mighteſt prove ſuch an one. Others, laſtly,with ſorek,that is,with plants,or ſlips, of ſorek; ſuch as come thence : as for choice ſlips,and plants, curious people are wont to ſend far and neer, Eſay 17. 10. and ſuch ſlips are termed ſerukim,as ſlips of Sorek, Gen.49.11. Eſay 16. 8. and this beſt agreeth with that parallel place,Eſay 5.3.that which I conceive to be meant principally of theſe ordinances, that God, by Moſes, ſetled among them, when he moulded them firſt into a Church,and State. See Eſay 44.2.

wholly a right ſeed.] Heb. all of it a ſeed of truth ; a ſeed of truth,for,a right,true,genuine,or,generous, no baſtardly, no counterfeit ſeed ; as,men of truth,for,true,and truſty, Exod.18. 21. Neh. 7. 2. and God is ſaid to have given his people in Mount Sinai,ordinances right,and laws of truth,and ſtatutes,and precepts good,Neh.9.13. and it is the uſual epithet, that the Pſalmiſt gives unto Gods Word,and Ordinances, that they are all truth, Pſal.119. 142, 151, 160. and they are the ſeed, wherewith God ſetteth,or ſoweth his Church, Mat. 13.24,27. 27. Luk. 8. 5, 11. for ſeed is uſed in a large notion, as well of ſlips that are ſet, as of ſeeds that are ſown. See Eſay 17. 10, 11. I ſuppoſe therefore the words would be rendred,with ſeed all of it right,or true : the particle with, is oft ſuppreſſed ; as Eſay 17.10. Yet ſome read the words, whoſe whole ſeed might be truth; that is, ſay they, whoſe fruit might all be firm, or ſure ; from which he might certainly expect good fruit ; as Eſay 5.4. But ſeed,for,fruit, ſeemes to ſound here ſomewhat harſh.

How then art thou turned into the degenerate plant of a ſtrange vine unto me ?] By what means is it come to paſſe,that thou art ſo ſtrangely altered and changed ? For it is ſpoken by God,in way of admiration, as wondring at the ſight of ſo uncouth an alteration.See the like, Eſay 1. 21. and of this affection attributed to God,Eſay 59.16.

How then] Heb. And how ; as chap. 1. 12, 14. Eſay 40. 18.

art thou turned unto me ?] Or, turned me ? for there is an elegant redundancy in the word, to me, very familiar, not in Hebrew onely ; but in other languages alſo, and in our own. So,I will go me,Cant.4.8. and,Go thee, Gen.12.1. Cant. 2. 10. and,Stay ye,Gen.22.5.and,he ſhall flee him,Eſay 31.8.See ver. 22.chap.5.5.& 12.8.& 16.20.

into the degenerate plant] There is neither into,nor plant,in the text ; but ſome ſuch ſupply is needful of either : the term uſed here, is an adjective plural : it hath in it a notion of revolting, or, depurting, chap.17.13. for it is found onely in this form here, and there : it is not amiſs rendred degenerate , but muſt have ſome plural ſubſtantive joyned with it ; it may be rendred degenerate ſlips ſo a ſtrange vine, or plant, Eſay 17. 10. where ſee many inſtances of the like defects.

of a ſtrange vine.] Strange plants, and ſeeds, are ſometime mentioned, in way of commendation; becauſe ſuch are uſually rare, and choice ones. See Eſay 17.10. but here, in way of diſcommendation, not having ſo much relation to forrein parts, (though in that kind alſo ſtrange faſhions, and ſervices, were reproveable in Gods people, Eſay 2.6. Zeph. 1.8.) as in way of oppoſition to ſuch ſlips, and plants, as God had planted his vineyard with; that ſlips of Sorek, ſhould prove ſlips of Sodom, Deut. 32. 32.

V. 22. For though thou waſh thee with nitre, and take thee much ſope, yet thine iniquity is marked before me, ſaith the Lord.] Though thou uſe all the means, and courſes thou canſt deviſe, either to cleanſe, or to cleer thy ſelf; yet the foul bloches of thy wickedneſs, ſticking faſt upon thy ſoul, will appear ſtill, as freſh, as ever in my ſight; nothing will avail thee, either to free thee from the filth, and guilt of them; or to ſecure thee from my wrath.

For though] Or, Although: for ſo much the two particles joyntly ſigniſie; and the words ſeem to be, not ſo much any rendring of a reaſon of the fore-going reproof, as a paſſage unto a further conviction of her, by removal, and rejection of ſuch colourable pretences, as Gods people imagined to purge themſelves with.

waſh thee with nitre] The Hebrew word uſed here, and Prov. 25. 20. is that, from whence the Greeks, Latines, and We, have the name of this material, of ſingular uſe; not onely for the ſcouring of apparell, and taking out of ſtains, and bloches, from clothes; but for the clearing of the skin, and taking ſpots and frekels away from the body. Of it, ſee Pliny, l. 31. c. 10. and it is deemed therefore by ſome, to have its name from a word, that ſignifies to looſe, or diſſolve, Habak. 3. 6. becauſe as vinegar diſſolves it, Prov. 25. 20. ſo it diſſolveth, and looſeth, from clothes, and bodies, any foul and filthy matter.

take thee much ſope] Heb. multiply to thee ſope: to multiply ſope, for, to uſe much ſope: as, to multiply prayer, for, to make many prayers, Eſay 1. 15. to multiply gift, for, to offer many gifts, Prov. 6. 35. to multiply ſong, for, to ſing many ſongs; or, to uſe much ſinging, Eſay 23. 16. to multiply medicines, to uſe many medicines; much Phyſick, Chap. 46. 11. to multiply cities, for, to build many cities, Hoſ. 8. 14. multiply to thee ſope; that is, uſe much ſope about thee; or, uſe thee much ſope: by a familiar and frequent redundancy, as our Verſion ſeems to have taken it: whereof, ſee on ver. 21.

ſope] So ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, by a forrein term, expound it: But others of them ſay, it is a kind of herb; (with whom the old Greek, and Latine, concurreth) which Fullers much uſe, being of the ſame nature, and efficacy, with nitre, and ſope: it ſeemeth to be that which the Greeks call ſtruthium; the Latines, radicula; ſome later ones, ſaponaria, or, ſopewort. Of its ſingular quality, in this kind, ſee Pliny, l. 18. c. 3. Howbeit, Others ſuppoſe it to be a kind of mould, ſuch as we call Fullers-earth: and one of the Jewiſh Maſters would have it to be alome: that it was of much uſe with Fullers, for the ſcouring of cloathes, is apparent, by Mal. 3. 2. it is called ſometime, bor; as Job. 9. 30. Eſay 1. 25. ſometime, borith; as in Malachy, and here; from a word that ſignifieth, to cleanſe and purifie. By theſe natural means of abſterſion, and cleanſing, ſome underſtand here all rites of expiation, either religious, as ablutions and aſperſions, Num. 19. 9, 10, 12, 18, 19. Heb. 9. 10, 13. oblations, and ſacrifices; to this purpoſe, applying that, 1 Sam. 3. 14. Hebr. 10. 1, 2. or ſuperſtitious, by the uſe whereof they imagined their ſins, to be all wiped away; and themſelves made as pure, and clean, as if they had never done ought amiſs, Chap. 65. 5. & 66. 17. Others, all thoſe colourable pretexts, and pretences, whereby they ſought to ſmooth over their wicked courſes, and to extenuate, at leaſt, the guilt of them, if not wholly to excuſe them. See verſ. 23, 33, 35.

is marked] This word being here only found, is by Interpreters therefore very diverſly expounded. Some render it, it is revealed; it lies open before me, Job 34. 21, 22. Prov. 15. 11. Hebr. 4. 12, 13. Others, it is written; it remains upon record with me, Deut. 32. 34. Job 14. 17. Eſay 65. 6. Hoſ. 13. 12. but theſe give no reaſon why they ſo render it: the word cetem, whence it ſeems derived, doth in Scripture ſigniſie, fine gold, or, gold of ſpecial note, Job 28. 16. & 31. 24. whence ſome render the word, it ſhineth, it gliſters, like gold: a very unfit form, to expreſs the filthineſs, and foulneſs of ought: another therefore, carrying on the ſentence, Though thou waſh thy ſelf with nitre, and uſe much ſope about thee, and thine iniquity gild it ſelf over, with the fineſt gold before me: yet how canſt thou ſay I am not polluted? This courſe of the context ſhould we admit, I ſhould rather conceive the word to be taken in that ſenſe, wherein it is, by the Arabick Interpreter, commonly uſed, for to conceal, or to hide, Luk. 1. 24. 2 Cor. 4. 3. though thine iniquity conceal it ſelf: though thou ſeek to hide, and conceal it, all that poſſibly thou canſt, Job 31. 33. Pſal. 32. 3. Prov. 28. 13. But I ſuppoſe that the context rather runneth the other way aright: the word cetem therefore hath in the Chaldee, and Syriack, another notion, wherein it is among the Jewiſh Doctors very frequent: for it ſignifies with them, either a ſpot, a blot, a blemiſh, cleaving to the skin; as Jam. 3. 6. in the Syriack Verſion; or, a mark, a brand, entring deep into the fleſh; as in the ſame, Gal. 6. 17. Hence, ſome render it, it is exceedingly, or, remarkably foul, or, filthy: the old Greek, and Latine, thou art beſpotted with thine iniquity; but this the text will not ſo well bear. Others, thine iniquity is deeply imprinted upon thee; as Chap. 17. 1. Either of theſe laſt, or both (the word it ſeems to come of comprehending both) may well be received; thine iniquity is ſo exceeding foul, and it cleaveth ſo faſt to thee, and hath entred ſo deep with thee, that no nitre, or ſope, no waſhing thee with theſe, or the like, that is able to fetch it off, or get it out. See Job 9. 30, 31. Howbeit, a learned late Writer, rejecting all other Interpretations, would have it rendred; thine iniquity is laid up before me; producing, and drawing hither, as a parallel place, that of Moſes, Deut. 32. 34. this is laid up before me, ſealed up in my treaſures; that of Job 21. 9. God will hide (that is, lay up) his iniquity for his ſons; that of Hoſ. 13. 12. Ephraims iniquity is tyed up (as moneys in a pouch, or purſe) his ſin is hidden; that is, laid up in Gods mind and memory: the main ground of this interpretation, here, is, becauſe the Arabick word, Chetema, ſignifieth to hide: ſo found uſed in the Arabick, Pſal. 50. 14. Luk. 1. 24. & 8. 17. 2 Cor. 2. 3. Hebr. 4. 13. And this I ſhall leave to the judgment of the learned: onely adding, that yet, to me, the proportion, and oppoſition, ſeemeth to be more naturall, and familiar, between waſhing, and ſcouring; and remaining ſtill deeply ſtained, then between waſhing, or ſcouring, and being laid up, or hid.

before me] Or, in my ſight; howſoever, thou mayſt, either ſooth up thy ſelf in thy ſin, or, delude others with vain pretences; yet thou canſt not blind, or bleer mine eyes. I ſee thy filthineſs, as it is, Gal. 6. 7. Heb. 12. 13.

V. 23. How canſt thou ſay, I am not polluted?] How canſt thou be ſo ſhameleſs, as to offer, or aſſay once, to cleer thy ſelf, when as thy wickedneſſe is ſo evident? See Prov. 30. 20.

canſt thou ſay] Heb. wilt thou ſay; but the word is in a potential notion, as other the like, ver. 23. Eſay 49. 15. Chap. 11. 12. Yet ſome render it not amiſs, How dareſt thou ſay? See the like, Eſay 10. 14. & 36. 9. Zach. 1. 21.

polluted] As an Adultereſs, Numb. 5. 20.

I have not gone after Baalim?] Or, I do not go after Baals; as anſwering to that charge againſt her, of running, and gadding to and fro, ver. 20. by way of denial; as after alſo, verſ. 35.

Baalim] Or, Baals; the word Baal, ſignifying properly, a Lord, Maſter, or Owner; and in the next place, an Husband, as ſuch to her, that is joyned to him in wedlock. See on Eſay 46. 1. it was a term that they commonly gave unto idols, Hoſ. 2. 16, 17. and the name was therefore common unto many of them: hence Baal-Peor, Pſal. 106. 28. and Baal-Zebub, 2 King. 1. 2. and the like; and in the plural, comprehending the whole crew of them, Baalim, or Baals, Judg. 2. 11. Hoſ. 2. 11.

ſee thy way in the valley,] God, becauſe ſhe ſo pleaded not guilty, pointeth her, as with the finger, unto thoſe particular places, where ſhe had with her idols, defiled her ſelf. So Chap. 3. 2.

thy way] way, for courſe, or carriage; as Pſal. 1. 6. Eſay 55. 7. for thoſe Rabbines ſeem here to go out of the way, that would here have meant a path, that ſhould be made by her frequent paſſing to and fro.

in the valley] The valley over againſt Beth-Peor, in the plains of Moab, from whence they went up to worſhip Baal-Peor, Num. 22. 41. & 23. 28. & 25. 3. So ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, following the Chaldee Paraphraſt: that of the ſons of Hinnom, ſay others, where they burnt their children in ſacriſice, Chap. 7. 31. as pointing her to the bones of them that lay there. But the term ſeems more large, as was alſo their practice. See Eſay 57. 5, 6. for the Jewiſh Doctor ſeemeth over-nice here, who having moved the queſtion, why God ſhould bid her look to her way in the valley, whereas before ſhe was charged with ſacrificing on the hills, verſ. 20. maketh anſwer; Firſt, that a way is not ſo eaſily ſeen on the hill, being oft ſtony, and rocky, Prov. 30. 19. as in the vale; as if paths were not as viſible on the one, as in the other: And ſecondly, that the way in the valley, was for no other end, but to go up to the hills, to ſacrifice there: whereas by that place of Eſay it appears, that they exerciſed their idolatries, as well by the brook ſides in the vale, and where they had ſhady trees growing, as well as upon the top of the hills.

Know what thou haſt done] Or, take notice what thou doſt; as ver. 19. Chap. 3. 13. Prov. 27. 23.

thou art a ſwift dromedary, traverſing her wayes] Or, to make the context run on the more ſmoothly; take notice what thou doſt; how thou art as a light dromedary, that traverſeth her wayes: the note of ſimilitude is oft omitted; as Pſal. 11.1. Eſay 21.8. ver.3. and thus the Jewiſh Doctors, with the Chaldee Paraphraſt, read it. Or, as ſome, O thou ſwift dromedary, that traverſeſt thy wayes: her wayes, for thy wayes; a change of the perſon, as Job 18.4. O thou that teareſt his ſoul, for, that teareſt thy ſoul.

dromedary] Of this beaſt, ſee on Eſay 60.6.

ſwift] Heb, light; as Eſay 19.1. and the word may well be here retained, as it is, Chap.3.9. & 4.24. though what the Rabbines here tell us of the female, in this kind, being lighter, and ſwifter then the male, ſeems but a fable. Of the female the Prophet ſpeaks, for another cauſe; as the like, verſ. 24.

traverſing her wayes] The word is no where elſe read; that it cometh from, ſignifieth a ſhoe-latchet, Gen. 14. 23. Eſay 5. 27. hence ſome render it, retaining her wayes; keeping ſtill to her wonted guiſe; as the latchet, ſay they, keeps the ſhoe faſt to the foot. Others, dilating, or explicating, thy way; ſo the ancient Greek, and old Latine: that is, running at large, and ridding thy way, at pleaſure; as alluding to the looſing of the latchet, Mar.1.7. Others, latcheting, or, delineating, thy way; that is, as by thy looſe latchet, or ſomewhat that thou draweſt after thee, or droppeth from thee; ſo marking the way along, as thou goeſt, that thou mayſt thereby be traced: that which the Chaldee Paraphraſt may ſeem alſo to hold out, who render it, marring, or defiling, thy way; uſing a term, from whence, in the Chaldee, is a word deduced, that ſignifies dung, and other like filth. Others, laſtly, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, doubling, or implicating, and entangling; or, as our Engliſh exceedingly well, traverſing thy wayes: as the latchet, to faſten the ſandal to the foot, is drawn over and over; or, as the ſhoe-latchet is tyed up in knots, and ſo drawn ſeveral wayes, to make the ſhoe fit faſt to, and even on, the foot: and it is an alluſion to the manner of the dromedary, and other beaſts of the like kind, left at large, whoſe females, in gendring time, being mad for the male, run in a confuſed manner to and fro after them, and one while after one of them; another while after another: not unfitly reſembling the practice of this people, that, being mad upon their idols, thought they could never have enow, or enough of them, and were continually therefore running after ſome one, or other of them, and much pleaſing themſelves in variety and change. See ver.28,36. Chap.11.13. Ezek.16.25-29. & 23.5-20. I ſhall ſubjoyn yet, what I find lately in a learned mans Annotations; he would have it to be rendred, either from an Ethiopick word, ſignifying, late, or at even, Mat.28.1. Mark 13.35. that belateth, or, benighteth, her ways; alluding to the night-time, wherein wild beaſts ſtir abroad, Pſal.104. 20. (but that is ſpoken of beaſt of prey; whereof this is none) and looſe people look out, Job.24.15. Prov.7.9. or from an Arabick term, ſignifying, a companion, or, partner, that maketh her ways common; like a common harlot, promiſcuouſly admitting all comers, Ezek.16.25. But theſe I leave as conjectures to be deemed of by others.

V. 24. A wild aſs uſed to the wilderneſs, that ſnuffeth up the wind at her pleaſure;] To the former ſimilitude of the dromedary, he addeth this of the wild aſs, as wild, and as wanton, as the other; and ſuch as there is no reſtraining of, from her wild vagaries, or ſurpriſing of her, ſave when ſhe goeth great with young.

A wild aſs] Some, to joyn this to the former, render the words, A wild aſs ſhe is; and then, why not rather, as before, A wild aſs thou art; or like a wild aſs; as, a lions whelp, for, like a lions whelp; and, a ſtrong aſs, for, like a ſtrong aſs; and, a ſerpent, for, like a ſerpent, Gen.49.9,14,17. or, following the other Verſion, which need not be rejected, O thou wild aſs. The word here uſed, ſome would have to ſignifie wild, in general: and to anſwer, the Latine, fera; as in letters, and ſound, it doth: and to be appliable therefore, as well to a wild man, as a wild beaſt, Gen. 16. 12. ſuch as all men are naturally ſaid to be, Job 11.12. but the word ſeemes rather to denote ſome particular kind of wild beaſt; which yet the Jewiſh Maſters are not wholly agreed upon. Some give us ſtrange names of it, and tell us, it is a beaſt that ſleepeth one whole moneth in the yeer: ſome dormouſe belike they dream of. But the moſt herein concur, that it is the wild aſs, called onager: and ſo the old Latine here rendreth it, and the Greeks elſewhere, Job 6.5. & 39.5. Pſal.104.11. Eſay 32. 14. as alſo the Chaldee Paraphraſt ſo taketh it: though ſome take the word that he here uſeth, more generally, Dan.4.21. But another queſtion is among them, Whether it be the male, or the female, that is here ſpoken of; about which, both they, and ours, are divided. And the adjectives both, whether nouns, or pronouns, are, ſome of them, in the maſculine form; ſome, in the feminine: Whence ſome conclude for the one ſex, and ſome for the other: But one of them well obſerveth, that the genders in the names of beaſts, as ox, aſs, and the like, are promiſcuouſly uſed; which in other languages alſo is not unuſuall: but the tenour of the context ſeemes to imply, that as a ſhe dromedary, ver. 23. ſo a female onager, is here intended: Yet not, as they here again inculcate, becauſe the female is the better runner of the twain: as of the hind, they fable the like, on Pſal. 18.33. where the word may be rendred, as well hart, as hind: as lions, where yet the word is lioneſſes; but the participle joyned with it, maſculine, Zeph. 3. 3. See Chap. 4. 30.

uſed to the wilderneſſe] Heb. taught the wilderneſſe, that is, enured, and accuſtomed to it; as Chap. 13. 23. Hoſ. 10. 11. that runneth at large there, Job 39. 5, 6. for howſoever the word here uſed, ſignifieth, a plain ſometime, as well as a wilderneſſe, ſee on Eſay 63. 13. and a Rabbine would have it ſo taken here, becauſe running there is more ready, and leſſe ſubject to impeachment; yet I ſuppoſe the word here need not be diverted from its native notion, that of Job, and this, ſo well ſuiting together.

that ſnuffeth up the wind at her pleaſure,] Heb. that (a defect of the relative; as Eſay 65.1.) ſnuffeth up the wind; as Chap. 14. 6. but the ſnuffing up, or, rather, the drawing in of the wind, there, is not the ſame (though the words be the ſame, and the ſubject the ſame, and the Rabbines therefore confound them) with the ſnuffing up of the wind, here mentioned: for that is a drawing in of the freſh ayr, to allay the inward heat, ariſing from drought: whereas this ſnuffing up of wind, is, as the Hebrew here hath it, in the deſire, or luſt of her ſoul; (as Deut.12.15. all that thy ſoul luſteth after,) when ſhe windeth the male, going proud, as of ſome other creatures we uſe to ſpeak: and one of the Rabbines therefore obſerveth not amiſſe, that this ſnuffing appertaineth to the ſenſe of ſmelling, and is ſpoken of drawing in the wind, or ayr, by the noſtrils; though he here miſapply it, ſuppoſing it (wherein ſome other alſo concur with him) to be intended here, as done for the more freedom of breath, that ſhe may run the more ſpeedily; ſhortneſſe of breath, and difficulty of breathing, being a great impediment to ſpeed, which is clean beſides the Prophets intent in this place: as alſo, that ſeems no leſſe of ſome other, who ſo take it, as if it implyed, that ſhe would rather endure hunger and drought in the Wilderneſſe, then repair to places habitable, and be ſerviceable to man.

at her pleaſure] Heb. in her ſouls deſire, or luſt; when ſhe luſteth after, and longeth for, the male. There is here, a double reading, his ſoul, and her ſoul: and the former, it ſeems, ſome more curious, then skilfull, Scribe, would needs be putting in, becauſe he found the word, taught, in a maſculine; whereas the word ſnuffing, being in a feminine, might have taught him, to let it ſtand, as he found it: but the latter is the more generally received. And I wonder much at that learned Scholiaſt, who tearing the text aſunder, would not have thoſe words ſpoken of the wild aſs, but of Jeruſalem, becauſe the former words were in a maſculine form; whereas theſe run in the feminine: but of the promiſcuous uſe of the genders in living creatures, enough before; and we may find both, ſometime, uſed of the very ſelf-ſame thing; as Ezek.2.9. Jon.1.17. & 2. 1. (for what ſome of the Rabbines dream of two fiſhes there, is both frivolous, and fabulous) yea, the very like is, by the learned Scholiaſt himſelf obſerved in the very next verſe; and by one of the Jewiſh Commenters, Chap.3.5. & 4.14. and though Jeruſalem, or the Jewiſh people, be intended in the text; yet it is an allegorical way, under the reſemblance of ſuch a creature, and her uſual carriage; beſides, that he ſeemeth to be as far wide from the Prophets intendment, when he ſuppoſeth, that in this paſſage Jeruſalem thirſting after idolatry, is compared to, yea, or reſembled by, the thirſt of wild aſſes; whereof the Pſalmiſt ſpeaketh, Pſal. 104. 11. whereas that there touched upon, is no other, then ſuch as is ordinary, and common, with other beaſts, to wild aſſes; nor as that of the hart, Pſal.42.1. though extraordinary, yet differing much alſo from this here; the one proceeding from ſore want; from meer wantonneſſe the other.

in her occaſion who can turn her away?] What the word rendred occaſion, ſhould here ſignifie, is much queſtioned. The particle in, is not in the text: the moſt Interpreters therefore admit it not. The old Latine knitteth the firſt word to the former, rendring the text, ſnuffing up the wind of love, or luſt, rather: and this would ſuit well with the ſubject matter of the place, and the Prophets entendment here; but neither do the pauſes in the original allow it; nor is any ground given for ſuch ſignification of the word. The Chaldee Paraphraſt rendreth it, as a dragon; and ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors following him, dragon-like, or after the manner of dragons: they build partly upon that place, Chap.14.6. where it is ſaid, The wild aſſes ſtand in the high places, and ſnuff up, or draw in the wind like dragons: and partly, upon the affinity of ſound, and identity of ſome letters in either term: but there is no analogy that will fitly deduce, either the one from the other, or both from the ſame ſource. Some other of the Jewiſh would have it taken in a notion of yelling; or becauſe it is an aſs that it is aſcribed to, it might better be, braying; becauſe a word neer it, and of the ſame ſtock with it, is uſed for wailing, Eſay 29.2. Ezek. 2.5. Some of ours, a ſet time; rendring it, in, or at, her ſet time. Some, her courſe; her running, and ranging. Some, her incurſe, or aſſault, running upon the male, to incite him to cover her. Some, in her occurſe; in the lighting upon, or meeting with, her: and theſe all from that uſe of the word, whence it is derived; whereby it ſignifieth, to cauſe ought to befall one, or to meet with one, Exod. 20.13. Pſal. 91.10. Prov. 12.21. The moſt, her occaſion, or opportunity, or in her opportunity, or occaſion; becauſe the verb whence it comes, is ſo uſed, 2 King. 5.7. he ſeeketh an occaſion (or picketh a quarrel) againſt me: and the noun, thence derived, very little differing from this, Judg. 14.4. he ſought an occaſion againſt the Philiſtines: he intended to pick a quarrel with them: and though that learned Schollaſt reject this, as a poor, and cold expreſſion; yet to me it ſeems to ſuit very well with the Prophets intent: for it is, as if he had ſaid, when he findeth opportunity, or taketh occaſion, rather to run thus on madding after the male, there is no ſtaying, or turning of her; do what any can, ſhe will have her will, ſhe will have her way. Thus retaining our Verſion, which I prefer, there is onely a ſupply of the prepoſition, which is very frequently ſuppreſſed; as Eſay 44. 12. & 48.4. or, if that be omitted, there is a redundancy of the pronoun demonſtrative; her occaſion, who can turn it back? But the former ſeems the better.

all they that ſeek her will not weary themſelves] So the Jewiſh Commenters, for it would be to no purpoſe; becauſe it is a creature that will not be taken, or tamed, Job 39.5-8. though that is ſomewhat too large: But the meaning is, that there is no dealing with her, while ſhe is in this fit, ſhe is ſo wild and fierce then; there is no taking of her, while ſhe runs thus a madding: Yet ſome late Writers of note render it, to a clean contrary purpoſe; all they that ſeek for her, need not weary themſelves: that is, ſay they, turning it to Jeruſalem, reſembled to a common ſtrumpet; all that deſire to be naught with her, need not to take pains to ſeek her out; they may trace her well enough by what falleth from her, ver. 23. or they may find her at hand, ready at all times to receive ſuch, Chap. 3.2. Ezek. 16.25. & 23.44. but this ſuiteth not ſo well with the ſimilitude.

in her moneth they ſhall find her.] What ſome learned Interpreters here have of the monethly courſe, (which the old Latine here exhibiteth, and Popiſh Writers much beat their brains about, deviſing how to make good) and of the manner of lewd women, admitting looſe perſons like themſelves, without diſtinction of times, Ezek. 22. 10. ſtrangely ſtraining to fetch in hither for the backing hereof, that of Hoſh. 5. 7. and others of the new moons, on which for idolatrous ſervices they were wont to meet, Hoſh. 2. 11. I let paſs, becauſe I deem them to be clean beſide the intent and ſcope of the place; which I conceive to be meant of ſuch as hunt for, and ſeek to take the wild creature here ſpoken of: And this the moſt, as well Jewiſh, as our, Interpreters alſo, agree in: of the moneth, onely the queſtion is, what moneth ſhould be here meant. And one of the Rabbines telleth us, not that the wild aſs, but that the ſtrange creature, (I know not what, for two ſtrange names he gives us for it, and ſaith, ſome ſay it is the one, and ſome the other) here mentioned, lieth faſt aſleep all one moneth in the year; and that is the moneth, in which men may eaſily ſurprize her. But that is one of his idle fictions, whereof he hath not a few. Others, take it for the moneth, or moneths, (the word collectively taken; as day, for days, Gen. 8.8. and year, for years, Gen. 5.4, 5, 6, 7.) wherein ſhe goeth great with young, and groweth neer her time; when ſhe is heavy, and cannot ſo well ſhift for her ſelf: the moneths; of which, Job 39.1, 2. and this indeed ſeemeth the genuine ſenſe of the place: the meaning whereof well may be, as it is appliable to Jeruſalem, and the Jewiſh people; that albeit, there were now no dealing with them, while they were thus in the fervour of their filthy luſt, ſo deſperately bent to run after their idols, that they would have their ſwing whatſoever it coſt them, or whatſoever came of it, ver. 25, 31, 33. Chap. 22. 21. Yet the time ſhould come, when being in ſtreights, and diſtreſſes, they would be leſs wild and fierce, grow tamer, and become more tractable, and eaſier to be dealt with, by thoſe that ſeek after them for their good, ver. 27. Hoſ. 5.15. & 6.1.

V. 25. With-hold thy foot from being unſhod, and thy throat from thirſt.] That theſe words contain in them, an wholeſome admonition given either by God, or from God, to this people, is generally agreed on. In regard whereof, ſome put into the text, I ſaid, or, when it is ſaid unto thee. See the like defect, Pſal. 27.8. Act. 15.5. But about the expoſition of them, there is ſome difference. For ſome underſtand the words, as if it were ſaid, Do not wear out thy ſhooes, and expoſe thy ſelf unto thirſt, by taking journeys unto remote places thorow waſte Wilderneſſes, where water is not to be had, for the procuring of ayds from forrein people. See Joſh. 9.13. Eſay 36. 6. & 57.15. ver. 6. Others, do not, by putting off thy ſhooes, (as perſons do, when they go to bed) addreſs thy ſelf unto the adulterous bed, Eſay 57. 7. or do not uncover thy feet (as Deut. 28.57. Eſay 7.20.) do not proſtitute thy ſelf, Ezek. 16. 25. forbear thine adulterous thirſt after idols. See the uſe of the metaphor, Prov. 5.15-18. Eccleſ. 26.12. Other, laſtly, which I conceive to be the right, break off theſe thy wicked and wretched courſes, (to wit, in running and gadding after ſtrange people, and ſtrange gods) which will, at length, if thou go on in them, bring thee into captivity, and in it, to extream beggery and miſery. See Prov. 6.26. & 30.16, 20. Eſay 20.2, 4. & 47.2. Chap. 13.22. & 14.10. & 48.18.

with-hold thy foot] Or, with-draw thy foot. So Prov. 1.25. & 4.27.

from being unſhod] That is, that thou mayſt not come to be unſhod, to go bare foot, and bare legd, Eſay 20.4. & 47. 2. without hoſe or ſhooes. See Chap. 13.22. and ſo, from thirſt; that thou mayſt not bring thy ſelf to thirſt, that is, to extream want, having not ſo much as water, wherewith to quench thy thirſt, Pſal. 107.5. Eſay 5.13. See the like uſe of the particle, Eſay 23.1. & 24.10. Ezek. 16.41.

but thou ſaidſt] Heb. and; as ver. 11. Thou returnedſt a directly croſs anſwer, a plain negative; whereby is confirmed what was before ſaid, of no ſtaying, or turning her, in the heat of her luſt, ver. 24. See Hoſ. 5.4.

There is no hope] The word, here uſed, hath a notion of deſpair in it; as appeareth by the uſe of it, 1 Sam. 27.1. Eccl. 2. 20. And the moſt read it here, in way of aſſeveration, rendring it, in a Latine proverbial form, It is done: there is an end then, ſo let it be. Others, it is deſperate; the caſe is deſperate. Others, I am deſperate, I am at a point. Others, as our Verſion, There is no hope; there is no hope of reclaiming us. Others, which I encline to, as the fitteſt; There is no remedy, as we uſe to ſay, paſt cure, paſt care: Yet ſome Interpreters of note read it, by way of Interrogation; and that, it may be, the rather, becauſe the anſwer in the like caſe is found returned in the negative, Eſay 57. 10. Thou wert wearied with the length of thy way, and yet thou ſaidſt not, There is no hope: And they render it therefore, Should I deſpair? Should I grow out of heart, and give over my courſe, and the way that I am in? and the negative following ſo cloſe upon it, ſeemes to add ſome ſtrength to it. I ſhall leave it to the conſideration and cenſure of the learned. The ſame is found, Chap. 18.12.

No] Either we will not follow your advice: as Prov. 1.25. Chap. 6.16. & 44.16. or, we are not out of hope, by our own ways, to attain our ends, and ſufficiently to defend our ſelves, from theſe, and the like evils, and we are reſolved therefore conſtantly to perſiſt in them, Eſay 28, 14, 15. and 57. 10.

for I have loved ſtrangers, and after them I will go.] Or, I love ſtrangers; mine affection is ſtrongly and firmly ſet upon ſtrange people, and ſtrange ſervices; and them I will after, whatever come of it, Eſay 2.6. Ezek. 23.7. See Chap. 18.11, 12.

V. 26. As the thief is aſhamed when he is found; ſo is the houſe of Iſrael aſhamed, they, their Kings, their Princes, and their Prieſts, and their Prophets;

V. 27. Saying, to a ſtock, Thou art my Father; and to a ſtone, Thou haſt brought me forth.] That is, ſaith the Chaldee Paraphraſt, and the Jewiſh Maſters after him; As it is with one, that hath born the name, and had the reputation of an honeſt man, when he is taken ſtealing, and ſo cometh to be diſcovered, that then ſhame and ignominy befalleth him, by the loſs of his former reputation and credit: for an open, or a profeſſed thief, hath no ſhame of ought. In like manner is it with this people, who bearing the name of Gods people, as their Fathers did before them; and profeſſing to ſerve the true God, and him onely, may juſtly be aſhamed, when they are taken in ſuch groſs and palpable idolatries, worſhipping ſtocks and ſtones inſtead of him; yet the meaning, ſay they, is not, that they were indeed aſhamed: had they been ſo indeed, they would have turned from them, and not gone after them ſtill, but that they had good and juſt cauſe ſo to be, Chap. 3. 3. & 5. 15. & 8. 12. But moſt of ours, rather; As a thief that hopeth to carry the matter ſo cloſely and covertly, that he ſhall go away with his pilferings, and thefts, undiſcovered; yet is confounded, and put to ſhame, when contrary to his expectation, notwithſtanding all his ſlights & wiles, whereby he made account to eſcape, he is intercepted, and not onely miſſeth of his prey, but is expoſed to publike diſgrace, and made liable to legal penalties: ſo ſhall this people, all ſorts of them, be put to ſhame and confuſion, when they ſhall find their idols, whom they now truſt to, and rely upon, to fail them, and prove utterly unable to relieve, or deliver them, in their difficulties and diſtreſſes, ver. 27, 28, 36. Eſay 1. 29-31. & 2. 20, 21. & 20.4, 5. Chap. 3. 24, 25. Hoſ. 4.19.

As a thief is aſhamed] Heb. According to the ſhame of a thief; as, according to the overthrow of Sodome, Amos 4.11. See Chap. 48.27.

when he is found] Either upon ſearch made for him, found out, and apprehended, as Achan, Joſh. 7.11,18. or, taken in the manner, as we uſe to ſay, and as they ſpeak upon a groundleſs ſuppoſition, Gen. 44.12,16.

is the houſe of Iſrael aſhamed] So moſt Interpreters read the words in a paſſive notion; and ſo it is apparently taken, Ch. 46.24.& 50.2. Joel 1. 11. yet ſome late Interpreters of note, render it in an active notion; they have put to ſhame the houſe of Iſrael, them, &c. or, made them aſhamed; that is, their idols have ſo done: and ſo likewiſe they render it, Chap. 5.15.& 8.12. and ſo in this form it is once found uſed, 2 Sam. 19.5. but the other is the more frequent; and the Syntax ſeemes to favour it here.

Kings, Princes,] The chief that had better breeding, and ſhould have been exemplary to others. See Chap. 5.5. So Ch. 1.18. ver. 8.

Prophets, and Prieſts,] See ver. 8.

ſaying] Or, That ſay. See Eſay 8.12.

to a ſtock] A ſtock, and a ſtone, for, idols made of the ſtock of a tree, or of ſtone, Deut. 28.64. Eſay 40.20. & 44.14-17. Dan. 5.4,23. ſo in contempt he terms them, from the ſubject matter of them; as their altars alſo, are termed bricks, Eſay 65.3. So Chap. 3.9.

Thou art my Father] Giving the honour of God (who indeed was their Father, Deut. 32.6. Eſay 64.8. Chap. 3.4. Mal. 2.10. Mat. 23.9.) to idols; and being ſo ſottiſh, and ſenſleſs, as to take a dead ſtock, or a ſtone, void of ſenſe, and life, for their Father, and ſo to call, or account it, Eſay 44.17.

Thou haſt brought me forth] Or, begotten me: as the word is commonly uſed, Gen. 4.18.& 10.8. thou art my Maker: they make ſtocks, and ſtones, idols, made of ſuch matter, and of their own making, their Makers, ver. 28. See on Eſay 8.12.

for they have turned their back unto me, and not their face,] Or, but they turned their back unto me: ſo is the particle uſed, Eſay 30.16.& 49.25. they look after their idols, but they look not after me, but turn their back toward me, Chap. 32.33. Ezek. 8.16. See Eſay 1.3,4. Heb. the hinder part of the neck, Pſal. 18.40. See Eſay 66.3. there is in the original, an elegant antanaclaſis, or diverſity of notion in the ſame terms; as if it were ſaid, they face me with the back part of the neck, and not with the face. See Chap. 7.24.& 18.17.

but in the time of their trouble they will ſay, Ariſe, and ſave us.] Or, yet; as Eſay 65.20. ver. 11. Though they now thus neglect me, as if they had no need of me, ver. 31. and run after their idols, relying wholly upon them; yet when troubles come upon them, and they find now to their ſhame, how little help their idols are able to afford them, they will then be glad to ſeek to me for ſuccour and ſafety, Judg. 10.10,15. Eſay 26.16. Hoſ. 5.15. this is that which he ſaid before, in her moneth ſhe will be found, ver. 24.

Ariſe, and ſave us] The uſual note of Gods people, in time of diſtreſs, Pſal 3.7. & 7.6.& 10.12. & 44.23. whom theſe wicked ones would then imitate.

V. 28. But where are thy gods that thou haſt made thee? let them ariſe, if they can ſave thee, in the time of thy trouble.] Gods anſwer to them, turning them over to their idols, whom forſaking him, they had ſerved, to try what they could do for them, and to ſeek for relief, and reſcue from them. And ſome therefore put into the text, Then will I anſwer them. So Deut. 32.37. Judg 9.11-14. 2 King. 3.13. Hoſ. 13.10. Chap. 11.11-14.

But where] Heb. And where; or, where now; as Eſay 8.7. & 31.3. What is become of your idols now? where are they, that they help you not? as Chap. 37.19.

that thou haſt made thee] Or, that thou madeſt, or, hadſt made thee, Eſay 2.20. Chap 1.16.& 16.20.

ariſe, if they can ſave thee] Or, ariſe, and try whether (as Judg. 9.3.) they can ſave thee, or no; a complexive form of ſpeech, ſuch as Eſay 28.21. See Eſay 47.12,13.

ariſe] Implying, that they were not able to ſtir from the place where they were ſet, and fixt, Eſay 46.7. Chap. 10.5.

if they can ſave thee] Heb. will, or, ſhall, ſave thee: but the word is in a potential notion; as the like, ver. 8,11. See Eſay 45.20.

in the time of thy trouble] Heb. of thine evill; as Pſal. 49.5. So before, ver. 27.

for according to the number of thy cities, are thy gods, O Judah.] What needeſt thou come to me, when thou haſt idols ſo many, and thoſe ſo neer at hand to go to; enow, and neer enough, were they able to do ought for thee, or to afford thee any ſuccour. So Chap. 11.13.

according to the number of thy cities] A defect of the particle, the note of collation, or ſimilitude; ſuch as the Jewiſh Criticks obſerve, Exod. 14.13. to reconcile the words there with what afterward followeth: not, the Egyptians, whom, but in that manner, which ye ſee to day, ye ſhall never ſee more: for it is ſaid, they ſaw them after ly dead on the ſhore, Exod. 14.30. So Exod. 34.18. according to that which I commanded thee; and Chap. 32.11. according to the precept, and the ordinances. They had ſeveral tutelar deities for their ſeveral cities; after the manner of the Heathen, that had every country, and city, an idol, one, or more, of their own, 2 King. 17.29-31.

V. 29. Wherefore will ye plead with me?] To what end will ye ſtand out, and offer to debate the matter with me, when the evidence given in is ſo cleer againſt you? ver. 23,34. Ch. 3.2. yet ſome of the Jewiſh Interpreters turn it another way, expounding it of ſuch contending, as gave the name to Meribah, Exod. 17.2,3,7. why do ye quarrell with me, when miſchief befalleth you, and demand why I deal ſo with you? and that they were indeed too prone to, Chap. 5.19.& 22.8. But that ſeemeth not intended here

Ye all have tranſgreſſed againſt me, ſaith the Lord.] Or, ye have all rebelled againſt me; as it is rendred, Eſay 1.2. all, for all ſorts, from the higheſt to the loweſt. See ver. 26. So Mal. 3.9.

V. 3. In vain have I ſmitten your children, they received no correction.] I have tryed all courſes with you, by fair means to win you, by harſher courſes to reclaim you; but neither have prevailed to work any amendment with you. See Eſay 1.5.& 9.13. Chap. 5.3. Amos 4.6-11. Zeph. 3.2.

in vain] Without any good effect; as Chap. 6.29.

ſmitten] As Eſay 27.7. chaſtiſed; as Prov. 23.13,14. or, wounded; as 1 King. 20.37. ſo Chap 30.14.

your children] Whom you train up in ſuch idolatrous ways, as your ſelves take to, Chap. 5.7,17.& 7.18. and becauſe from the leaſt to the greateſt, they were tranſgreſſors alike, Chap. 6.13.& 8.10. So the Jewiſh Commenters, and ſome other. But your children, ſeems here rather, as others conceive, to comprehend, as well parents, as children, the whole body of the Jewiſh people; and it ſeems to me, to be no other, then as if he had ſaid, thy ſons, or children, O Judah, whom expreſly he named, ver. 28. as, thy ſons, O Sion, againſt thy ſons, O Javan, Zach. 9.13. So, the ſons of Judah, Joel 3.6. and, the children of thy people, for, thy people any of them, Lev. 19.18. See ver. 16. and Chap. 5.7.

they received no correction] Or, they would receive no inſtruction: though they were corrected, they would take no warning by what they ſuffered; they would not be inſtructed, that it might have been for their good, Pſal. 94.12. So the word is rendred, Prov. 5.12,23.& 6.23.& 8.33.& 12.1.& 13.18.& 15.32.& 24.32. and ſo it would here be rendred: for though the word primarily ſignifie chaſtiſement; as Prov. 13.24.& 23.13. and, ſtrictly taken, ſuch inſtruction, as cometh by chaſtiſement, correction, in its native ſenſe, as we term it, Prov. 22.15. yet inſtruction would do better then correction here, becauſe the thing by chaſtiſing here intended is inſtruction: whereas correction is with us moſt commonly uſed for the chaſtiſement it ſelf. Now as to receive inſtruction, is to yield to what, by admonition, reprehenſion, or correction, is required, and ſo to be bettered thereby, Prov. 19.20,27. Chap. 35.13. ſo, not to receive it, is to ſtand out againſt it, to refuſe to yield to it, or to be bettered by it, Chap. 5.3.& 7.28.& 17.23.& 32.33.

your own ſwords hath devoured your Prophets, like a deſtroying lion.] Ye have been ſo far from hearkning to admonition, and receiving of inſtruction, that, in ſavage and barbarous manner, ye have ſlain thoſe Prophets, which called upon you for repentance, that your ſelves might not be ſlain, 2 Chr. 24.20,21. Chap. 26.23. Neh. 9.26. Mat. 23,29,35,37. Luk. 11.47.& 13.33,34. Act. 7.52. 1 Theſſ. 2.15.

your own ſword] Or, your ſword: yet not, as ſome, the ſword that hath ſmitten you; not wherewith ye ſmite; but wherewith ye have been ſmitten: but here rather the other; as Pſal. 37.15. and the ſword here put at large, for any forcible means of taking away life. See Matth. 21.35,36. and 23.37.

hath devoured] Heb. eaten; as Eſay 1.20. hence, the ſword is ſaid to have a mouth, Chap. 21.7. Luk. 21.24.

your Prophets] The Prophets that God ſent to you: as Zachary, 2 Chr. 24.20,21. Urijah, Chap. 26.23. and others, not a few, 1 King. 18.13,14.& 19.10. So the moſt, both Jewiſh, and ours: yet ſome of either would have it, your Prophets; as Chap 37.19. and, their Prophets, ver. 26. the falſe Prophets; either, as pointing to ſuch executions, as themſelves had ſometime done upon them, 1 King. 18.40. 2 King. 10.15. (but that can have no place here) or, as intimating that the ſame ſword, that had ranged among them, had taken away, together with them, their falſe Prophets, who had promiſed them ſafety, Hoſ. 4.5. but nor doth this ſeem very probable to be meant in this place.

like a deſtroying lion] In a cruell and ſavage manner; as a lion, that killeth not onely, but renteth and teareth to pieces, Pſal. 72.

V. 31. O generation,ſee ye the word of the Lord,] God here again returneth to his former expoſtulation with them, preſſing them to ſhew,what wrong he had done them, or wherein he had carryed himſelf ſo harſhly towards them, as ſhould cauſe them to leave him,and relinquiſh his ſervice.See ver.5.

O generation] Some would have the Article here, to be a note of demonſtration, and knit this and the laſt words of the foregoing verſe together, thus rendring the text, like a devouring Lion is this generation; but this too much, disjointeth the context. Others would have it a note of admiration, and exclamation; as if it were ſaid Oh generation ! or how ſtrange a generation is this, what times are we, of this age, fallen into? But others rather a note of compellation; calling upon the people then living, to hearken ſedulouſly to what he ſaid, and preſſing that upon them now, which he had upon their fathers before, ver.5. So the Article is uſed. Deut.32. 1. Pſal. 9. 6. and 114.5. Joel 1. 2.

ſee the word of the Lord,] See; that is, conſider ſeriouſly; as ver.19. See the word; as,hear the rod, Mic. 6. 9. for the heart hath an eye to ſee the one,as well as an ear to hear the other: there is an inward eye,as well as an outward,Deut.29. 2, 3,4. Prov.20.12. Eccl.1.16.

have I been a wilderneſs unto Iſrael ?] Have I held my people to hard meat, as cattel kept upon ſome bare and barren heath, or wilde waſte? or, have I not made them my paſture ſheep,and been carefull to provide good feeding,and all other neceſſaries for them, Deut. 32. 13, 14. Pſal.23.1,2.& 103.3. Eſay 5.2,3,4.Ezek.34.14,30,31. or, have I been unto you, as that wilderneſſe,thorow which I led you to Canaan ? ver. 2,6. did not I make that vaſt and waſte wilderneſs,to be as no wilderneſs unto you,whatever it was to any other, by furniſhing you abundantly with whatſoever was needful for you, during the whole time of your abode in it? Deut.8.3,4. & 32. 10,11. Neh.9.20,21.Pſal.78.15,16,23-30. or, hath my ſervice been unto you,an unfruitfull ſervice, like a barren land; which though a man take never ſo much pains about it,and be at never ſo much coſt with it, yet will yield him nothing anſwerable to either? Heb. 6. 8. as of the ſervice of God thoſe complain,Job 21.15. Mal. 3. 14. or rather, have I not dealt at all times bountifully and liberally with you, ſo long as you followed me, and continued loyal unto me? Deut. 28. 1 - 13. 2 Chron.19.3-5.& 26.5.& 31.10.& 32.22,23. Chap. 22. 15. Mal. 3. 10.

a land of darkneſſe ?] Either by way of appoſition to the former: a land of darkneſſe, as that waſte, and wilde deſert was: or by way of disjunction; the disjunctive ſupplyed, or a land of darkneſſe; as ſome other horrid, and horrible place. The like want of the disjunctive, ſee Eſay 17.6. & 27.7. The word here uſed, no where elſe found in this form, is diverſly rendred: for the old Latine expreſſeth it,by a term, that hath in it a notion of lateneſſe; as we would ſay, a lateward land; that is, a land, in which it is long, or late,in the yeer, ere ought cometh up,or attaineth, at leaſt, to any maturity, or growth. So is a word of the ſame root rendred by divers, Exod.9.32. where it is ſaid,of the rye,and the wheat, they were lateward; not ſo forward as the flax, and the barley: and of later fruits, the Jewiſh Doctors do commonly uſe the word; as alſo the Chaldee, Eccl.11.6. and thoſe that go this way, thus paraphraſe the place; Have I been to you, as a wilderneſs, that yieldeth no fruit at all? or, as a lateward land, that cometh up very ſlowly with ought? have I been either barren towards you, or backward with you, in doing for you, as occaſion required? and not rather bountiful, and forward, in conferring upon you whatever your hearts could deſire, Pſal.37.4. & 81.10. But the moſt, both Jewiſh,and other, go another way, as our Verſion alſo doth. The root it cometh of, is very commonly uſed for darkneſſe; properly, a thick, miſty, palpable, darkneſſe, Exod.10.22. Jer.23.10. Joel 2.2. Amos 5.20. Zeph.1.15. Yea, hither alſo do ſome refer that, Exod.9.32. of thoſe kinds of grain, that they were yet hid in the ground, they lay in the dark: but as the ſimple word is uſed of that palpable darkneſs, that over-ſpread Egypt, Exod.10.22. ſo the word, thence deduced,much of the ſame making with this, is uſed of that black, cloudy darkneſs, that God ſet between the Egyptians, and the Iſraelites, at the red Sea, to keep them aſunder, Joſh.24.7. and to add a further degree unto it, the ſyllable jah, containing one of Gods names, whereof, ſee on Eſay 26.4. is, as the Jewiſh Criticks well obſerve here, annexed unto it; as if it were ſaid, land of darkneſs of God; that is, of extream darkneſs: as, a flame of God, for, a moſt vehement flame, Cant. 8. 6. where a term of the ſame frame: and, a trembling of God,for, a very dreadful trembling, 1 Sam.14.15. and, a ſleep of God, for, a very deep ſleep, 1 Sam.26.12. Of the like form of terms, ſee on Eſay 6.13. & 19.24. By the word then thus reſolved, is here meant, either, a land of extream miſery; darkneſſe, put for miſery; as Lam.3.2. So Eſay 8.22. & 9. 19. or rather, a land continually poſſeſſed with extream darkneſſe, receiving no light at all from heaven, or any of thoſe celeſtial creatures; and conſequently, unfit to afford abode for man or beaſt, and unable to produce ought that may be uſefull to either: and which therefore no marvel if people ſhould abandon, to ſeek ſome place of better abode elſewhere, Pſal. 107.4,5. It is then, as if God had ſaid, Have I been ſuch to my people, that their wants and ſtreights with me, ſhould enforce them to leave me? Some late Writers of prime note, derive the word from another root, that ſignifies to fall, or to ſhed; and render it, a land that ſheddeth, or ſpoileth, her fruit, Eſay 1.30. & 28.1,4. wherein nothing cometh to maturity, but falleth ere it be ripe, and fit for food; or, a land that caſteth down her Inhabitants; makes them fall, and fail, either for want of food, which it yieldeth not; or, through exceſſive pains, wherewith it tireth, and weareth them out in tilling of it; as Num.13.32. and it is true, that the Jewiſh Criticks tell of a two-fold pointing of the word, in divers books; but neither ſuits well with this notation, unleſſe we leave out a letter.

a wilderneſſe] and a land of darkneſs] for, as a wilderneſs, and, as a land of darkneſſe; as ver. 3,23.

wherefore ſay my people, We are Lords, we will come no more unto thee?] If my people cannot thus juſtly complain of me, or my ſervice,what is the reaſon then, why, now they think they are grown great, they withdraw themſelves from me?

ſay] Entertain ſuch thoughts; as Pſal.14.1.& 30.6.ver.25.

my people] Thoſe that I took to me, when they were in a very low condition, to make them my peculiar people, Deut. 4.20,34. & 7.6,7. & 32.9,10.

we are Lords,] The word here uſed, is by divers diverſly rendred. The Chaldee, as ſpoken in way of complaint, we are expelled,caſt off,or caſt out; as from an Arabick term, ſaith one,that ſignifieth to expell. One of the Jewiſh Commenters, we are ſeparated from thee: to which purpoſe alſo the old Latine, We are gone, have departed, or withdrawn our ſelves; as God complaineth of them, Chap. 5.23. The ground hereof is deemed to be from the uſe of a word ſo ſignifying in the Talmud; but that is of another form then this here; nor is ever ſo uſed in Scripture. But it may rather ſeem to have been in relation to another root, whereunto alſo ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks refer this: which albeit it properly ſignifie, to deſcend,or go down, Judg.19.11. yet is frequently uſed, without any ſuch ſpecial intimation of deſcent, for, to go, or to depart. See Eſay 30.2.& 31.1.& 38.8. A late learned Annotator giveth a two-fold expoſition of it,divers from any of the former: He would have it rendred,either, We will; it is our pleaſure; we are reſolved upon it,that we will come no more at thee, we will have nothing any longer to do with thee: from an Arabick word that ſo ſignifieth; as he would have this alſo ſo to do,Gen.27.40.& Hoſh.11.12.or,if that like not, We have mourned: as the word (though in an other form) is uſed,Lam.1.9. as if the people ſhould complain of God, that they never had merry day,but matter of mourning,from time to time,ſo long as they ſerved him. See Chap. 44. 17, 18, But ſome other of the Jewiſh Doctors, whom moſt of ours follow, and our Verſion concurreth with,take the word in a notion of ruling,both here, and Hoſh.11.12. as alſo, another of neer affinity with it,doth moſt frequently import, Lev.26.17. Eſay 14.2.and they render it therefore, We rule, or we lord it; as the Apoſtle ſeemeth to ſpeak, 1 Cor. 4. 8. ye lord it without us: We are grown up to a goodly Kingdome,furniſhed with Princes and Potentates; we have gotten that ſtrength, that we have no further need now of thy ſupport: and this ſeemeth to ſuit beſt, both with the ſcope of the place,and the uſe of the word elſewhere. See Chap.22.21. Hoſh.8.4. The ancient Greek rendreth it,We will not be ruled; as Ver.20. I will not ſerve: but that Verſion putteth in the negative, which is not in the text,and turneth the verb out of its active form into a paſſive.

we will come no more unto thee]. Or,at thee; we will be ruled no longer by thee; we can do well enough without thee; we will live no longer under thy ſtrict government. So Deut.32. 15.Ch.22.21.See too much of this in Uzziah, 2 Chr.26.15,16. a tang of it in David, Pſal.30.6. in Ezekiah, 2 Chr.32.25.

V. 32. Can a maid forget her ornaments,or a bride her attire?] God proceedeth to diſcover,not the unthankful carriage only,but the extream folly of this people,who though God had not onely been no ſuch fruitleſs land to them, as was formerly ſaid,ver.31.but an ornament,an honour, a dignity unto them,the main matter of their glory (ſee ver.11. Eſay 60. 2,3, 15, 19. & 62. 2, 3.) that made them to be of high eſteem & repute,in the eyes and minds of other nations,Deut.4.7,8. 2 Sam.8.10-13. 1 King.8.41,42. 2 Chr.32.23,30. Pſal.148. 14.& 149.9.Ezek.16. 10-14. yet they were more regardleſs of him,then a young maid, or a bride would, or could be, of her jewels, or ſuch her attire, and ornaments, that might grace her in the eyes of thoſe that beheld her, Eſay 62.10.

23. and ſo would that be rendred, Eſay 49.15.

or] A defect of the disjunctive; as ver. 31.

a bride] A bride, and a young maid, ſaith the Rabbine, are here, one and the ſame: for no bride, but a young maid, is ſo wont to be ſet out, not any other young maid ordinarily; and would have a glance here, to be had unto Gods eſpouſall of her at mount Sinai, ver. 2. but this ſeems too nice. See Eſay 49.18. & 62.10.

her attire] Heb. her bindings; the Greek, and Latine, her breaſt-band, or ſtomacher: but it would rather be, her head-bands. See Eſay 3.20.

yet my people have forgotten me] Or, that my people have forgotten me. Heb. and; as Eſay 22.20. ver. 11,27.

my people have forgotten me] Have given over my ſervice, and neglect me; do no more regard or look after me, then as if they had clean forgotten me, or had never known me, Deut. 32.15,18. Pſal. 106.21. Hoſ. 8.14. So Pſal. 44.17,20.

days without number.] That is, as we uſe to ſay, time out of mind: not now alone, but for a long time paſt, Eſay 48. 8. Mal. 3.7. Heb. days: whereof there is not number: ſo Cant. 6.8. a defect of the relative; as ver. 24.

V. 33. Why triumpheſt thou thy way to ſeek love?] Heb. why doeſt thou do well in thy way, or, make good thy way; as Ch. 7. 3. Whence divers Interpretations ariſe. The moſt received, both with Jews, and other; Why doſt thou uſe ſo many tricks and devices to gain love, and to draw forrein people unto thee, whom thou hopeſt for help by? See Chap. 4. 30. The word is uſed, as well of evill, as of good; as Mic. 7.3. and it is uſed of Jezabels dreſſing her head, 2 King. 9.30. See Eſay 23. 16. where the word is likewiſe uſed. Others, Why doſt thou uſe vain pretences, to varniſh, and ſmooth over, thy wicked courſes; as hoping thereby to regain favour, and get in with God again; and as if it were poſſible to delude him? as Pſal. 78.36,37. Chap. 3.4. or thereby making account to excuſe thy courſes, as if it were onely for fear of ſome enemy, when it is indeed for ſatisfaction of thy filthy luſt, that thou ſeekeſt to them. See ver. 35. Some other, in the laſt place, Why doſt thou take ſuch long and tedious journeys, to draw lovers, ſpiritual adulterers, to thee. See Eſay 57.9,10. which may ſerve for a Comment upon this place: and this I take to be the genuine ſenſe of it. It is well obſerved by a Rabbine, who yet goeth the former way, that the word is uſed generally to be earneſt, eminent, or exceſſive, in ought: ſo, to do well in play, is to play skilfully, Pſal. 33.3. Ezek. 33.33. to do well in anger, or, to make anger good, for, to be very angry, Jon. 4.4,9. to do well in evill, for, to do evill ſedulouſly, earneſtly, effectually, Mic. 7. 3. ſo here, to do well in way, or, to make good a way, is to travell hard; to take a long, a tedious journey; to go a great, and weariſome way.

therefore alſo haſt thou taught the wicked ones thy ways.] There are two readings, both here, and Chap. 13. 21. The one reading hath it, in the firſt perſon; I have taught; which thoſe that retain, expound the words, as ſpoken by God concerning himſelf. I have acquainted forrein people with the wickedneſs of thy ways, that they may come in to execute judgment upon thee for them, Chap. 1.15,16. & 40.2,3. Lam. 4.15. But the other reading is the more generally received, and ſeems the right; and one of the Rabbines who retaineth it, rendreth the words, Thou haſt enured, or accuſtomed thy ſelf to the worſt of ways; as the word was uſed, ver. 24. See Chap. 13. 23. But this, though one of ours approve it, ſeemeth ſomewhat forced. Others rather, with whom our Verſion agreeth, Thou art ſo lewd in thy courſes, that wicked women (for the word is feminine) harlots themſelves, may learn of thee; thou goeſt in thy filthineſſe ſo far beyond them, Chap. 5.28. 2 Chr. 33.9. Ezek. 5.6,7. & 16.31,33,34,48. therefore] Or, as one of the Jewiſh Commenters, ſurely, verily: whom one of ours following, would have this particle to be alſo ſo taken, Gen. 4.15. Chap. 5.2. Hoſh. 2. 16. which may do not amiſs here: ſo aken, and lacen, ſhall in thoſe places be the ſame.

V. 34. Alſo in thy skirts is found the bloud of the ſoules of the poor innocents.] Thou art guilty, not of ſpiritual adultery, idolatry alone, but of murther alſo, and that of poor innocents, which thou haſt added thereunto: the marks and evidences whereof are ſo freſh upon thee, that it cannot be either concealed, or denied.

Alſo] Over and above, or beſide thine idolatry, Ezek. 16. 20,21. 2 King. 21.16.

in thy skirts] Heb. in thy wings, Pſal. 91.4. Eſay 18.1. whence ſome would have it to be, an alluſion to fowls of prey, eagles, or, puttocks, that having ſeized upon chickins, pigeons, partridge, or the like, and torn them in pieces, have their wings, and feathers, all over ſtained with the bloud of them. See Ch. 12.9. But neither is the word, in this form, uſed of them; and the text ſeems rather to look another way. The word wing, is uſed commonly for the skirt of a garment, Num. 15. 38. 1 Sam. 24.4,5,11. and wings, for skirts, Deut. 22.12. in this form eſpecially; and it is rather therefore an alluſion unto ſuch, as having been killing people, and ſhedding of bloud, have their garments ſtained, and defiled, with gore bloud, Eſay 63. 2,3. For that learned Scholiaſt ſeems to me ſtrangely to torture the text, who expoundeth it of bloud concret, drawn from ſuch, as ſhe ſhould hire to commit filthineſs with her: ſo bloud here ſhould be ſomewhat like that, Joh. 1. 13. and garment, ſuch as Jude 23. but the notion is too obſcene, and the expoſition forced.

the bloud of the ſouls of poor innocents] That is, either ſimply the bloud of ſuch: ſouls, for, perſons, as Exod. 1.5. 1 Pet. 3.20. or, their life-bloud, as we uſe to ſay; for ſome bloud may be let out, and drawn from one, and yet life left: ſoul, for, life; as Chap. 19.9. & 34.20. the former I ſuppoſe the right; but the form makes the ſpeech the more pathetical.

of the poor innocents] Or, of poor innocents: for there is no article in the text; which, as it is here rendred, might very well be underſtood of their children, which they ſlew, in ſacrifice to their idols, 2 King. 16.3. & 21.6. Pſal. 106.37,38. Ch. 7.31. & 19.5. Ezek. 16.20,21,36. & 23.37. but according to the uſual courſe of conſtruction in Hebrew, wherein the manner is to place the ſubſtantive before the adjective, it ſhould rather be rendred innocent poor ones; and ſo comprehend (though not excluding thoſe) all the bloud, that by oppreſſion, and evill practices, was ſhed in Jeruſalem: Of the abundance whereof, ſee 2 King. 21.16. & 24.4. Eſay 1.15,23. & 59.3,7. Ezek. 7.23. & 9.9. Lam. 4.14. For otherwiſe, that of the poorer ſort of men, they uſed to make ſacrifices when they could come by them, is not by any teſtimony of Scripture ſo evident; that of Hoſh. 13.2. is ambiguous.

I have not found it by ſecret ſearch, but upon all theſe.] There needs no ſearch be made for the diſcovery of it: it is apparent to be ſeen upon all parts of thine apparel.

by ſecret ſearch] By narrow ſearch, or, by privy ſearch; as we uſe to ſpeak. Heb. by digging; thorow walls, Ezek. 8.8. & 12. 5. or, by breaking open; of dores, or houſes, Exod. 22.2. One of the Rabbines, whom a late learned Writer alſo followeth, readeth the words, Thou didſt not find them breaking up of houſes, (or, with ſuch a tool, as thieves are wont to carry about them, and to make uſe of for that purpoſe) but becauſe of all theſe things; didſt thou ſlay them: to wit, becauſe they reproved thee for them, and would not do as thou didſt. But this offereth over-much force to the text; from which alſo the old Latine ſtrayeth not a little in the former branch, that rendreth the words, I have not found them in ditches; that is, ſay they, that follow it, in obſcure cels, and caves: ſuch as harlots had wont to lurk in out of ſight: but thou exerciſeſt thy fornications in open, publike, and eminent places, Eſay 57. 7. Ezek. 16.24. true indeed, but nothing to the Prophets purpoſe in this place: and the Greek as far in the latter branch, rendring the words, but upon every tree, or oak; which ſome of the Ancients expound of the trees, under which they ſlew them in ſacrifice, ver. 20. And a learned late Writer of the oaks, or trees, that they found thoſe poor ſouls climbing up to get food, when they ſeized on them, to make ſacrifices of them: but the errour ariſeth from a groſs miſtake of the word, which the Latine diſcovered, and the interpretation is ſo unworthy ſo worthy an Author.

but upon all theſe] But; as ver. 27. upon all theſe: to wit, the skirts of thy garments; as if he ſhould ſay, Thy garments are all over-ſtained with bloud: not your hands only, as Eſay 1.15. See 1 King. 2.5.

V. 35. Yet thou ſaiſt, Becauſe I am innocent, ſurely his anger ſhall turn from me.] Heb. And; as ver. 27,32. But it may well be read in way of interrogation, And ſaiſt thou, or, Canſt thou ſay, or, Dareſt thou ſay, (yet after all this; haſt thou the face to ſay it) I am guiltleſs? ſure his anger will turn from me. See ver. 23.

Becauſe] Or, That; as Eſay 52. 5,6. But I ſuppoſe the particle here redundant; thou ſaiſt that I am cleer, for, thou ſaiſt I am cleer; as Rev. 3.17. thou ſaiſt that I am rich, for, thou ſaiſt I am rich.

I am innocent] Cleer, guiltleſs. So ſee Prov. 30. 20.

his anger ſhall turn from me] Heb. is turned from me: but the time paſt is uſed oft in a future notion. So Mic. 7. 8. I have riſen, for, I ſhall riſe. God hath no cauſe to be angry with me; Gods anger is ſaid to turn away, when he ceaſeth to manifeſt it, Eſay 5.25. & 9.11.

behold, I will plead with thee, becauſe thou ſaiſt I have not ſinned.] For this very cauſe I will plead with thee, becauſe thou pleadeſt not guilty; and by pleading not guilty, doſt double thy guilt. So the Rabbine, The deniall of a fault, is a doubling of it.

I will plead with thee] Or, I will proceed in judgment againſt thee. Heb. I will be judged with thee; as Eſay 66.16. Chap. 25. 31.

becauſe thou ſaiſt, I have not ſinned.] Becauſe thou ſtandeſt upon thy juſtification, ver. 23,29. and wilt not be brought to acknowledge thy ſin, Chap.3.13. though the proofs and evidences of it are ſo pregnant againſt thee, ver.20,23,34. I will, without any further debate, proceed to paſs ſentence upon thee, and put it ſpeedily in execution, Chap. 1. 18. One of the Jewiſh Doctors knits to this verſe, the laſt words of the fore-going, ver. 34. as having reference to this clauſe, thus reading the text; For all theſe things; and becauſe thou ſaiſt, I am not guilty —— I will enter into Judgment with thee. But thoſe words ſeem rather to have reference to what went before there, as was above ſhewed.

V. 36. Why gaddeſt thou about ſo much to change thy way?] To what end doſt thou run to and fro in this manner, one while one way, another while another way, to ſeek ſuccours abroad? Eſay 57.10. ver.18,25. Chap.14.10. like a trader that haunteth marts and markets, repairing now to one, then to another, Ezek.27.19. where the ſame word is uſed; one while ſending to the Aſſyrians, 2 King.16.7. 2 Chr.28.16. Hoſ.5.13. another while to the Egyptians, Eſay 30.2.& 31.1. Chap.37.5. Hoſ.12.2.

to change thy way] Or rather, changing thy way: for this was not the end of her gadding, to change her way; but the manner of her gadding rather, that ſhe did in gadding, change her way; or did ſo gad to and fro, that ſhe was oft taking a new way: ſo the particle is uſed; and this form would be rendred, Gen.3.22. Exod.14.11. Num.5.6. Deut.9.18. See Eſay 3.8.& 10.2.

thou alſo ſhalt be aſhamed of Egypt, as thou waſt aſhamed of Aſſyria.] Thou ſhalt receive no more ſuccour, or relief from the one, then thou didſt formerly from the other.

thou alſo ſhalt be aſhamed of Egypt] Thou, as well as others, that reſort to Egypt for ſuccour, Eſay 36.6. ſo the words thus rendred, may ſeem to import: but that is not the genuine intendment of them. They would rather be rendred, as they ly in the original, Of Egypt alſo thou ſhalt be aſhamed, or, thou ſhalt be aſhamed of Egypt alſo: that the collation may appear to ſtand between Egypt, and Aſſyria, not between other people, and themſelves.

of Egypt] As they were, Eſay 20.5.& 30.5. & 31.5. Chap. 22.22.& 37.7. 2 King.24.7. of Aſſyria] Who diſtreſſed them, rather then delivered them, 2 Chr.28.20.

V. 37. Yea, thou ſhalt go forth from him, and thine hands upon thine head.] Thine Embaſſadors ſhall return from Egypt, whither thou hadſt ſent them for ſuccour, ver.18. with heavy hearts, and in a dejected habit; having their expectation fruſtrate, and failing of thoſe aids, which from thence thou hopedſt to obtain. Thus the moſt: Howbeit, one of the Hebrew Commenters rendreth it, Thou ſhalt go from hence, from the place where thou now art, into captivity: nor ſhall all aids thou canſt procure from Egypt, or any other, be able to ſave thee, Chap.37.7-10. And this I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of the place.

from him] Heb. from this; to wit, place; as, in this, for, in this place, Num.22.19. 1 Sam.14.34.

and thine hands upon thine head:] Or, with thine hands upon thine head: for ſo the copulative oft knitteth notions together. So Eſay 35.10. they ſhall return, and come to Sion, and joy upon their heads, for, with joy upon their heads; and Chap.1.13. I ſee a boiling pot, and the face of it Northward, for, with its face Northward.

the hands on the head] A lamenting geſture, uſed commonly by women, importing extream grief, and anguiſh of heart and ſpirit. See an inſtance of it in Tamar, raviſhed by her brother Amnon, 2 Sam.13.19. and well ſuiteth with one expelled her country, and going out into captivity.

for the Lord hath rejected thy confidences,] Rejected; as Eſay 41.9. or, refuſed; as Job 34.33. where oppoſed to chooſing. Thus if we take it here, we may, with the Rabbine, read it, The Lord hath rejected thee for thy confidences. God, becauſe of thy reſting upon forrain forces, and not relying upon him, (2 Chr.16.7.) hath rejected, and caſt thee off, Chap.6.30.& 7.29. a defect of the pronoun; as Eſay 51.23.& 60.15. of the particle for; as Mal.2.5. or, the word may ſignifie, as it doth frequently, deſpiſed; as it is rendred, Pſal.53.5. Judg.9.38. Eſay 33.8. or, abhorred; as Job 7. 16. And referring it, as our Verſion doth, to the confidences, I ſuppoſe it may well be rendred, the Lord diſalloweth; for what we reject, or refuſe, we diſallow; or ſetteth light by them; for ſo we do what we deſpiſe; or, as ſome render it, the Lord abhorreth them: he cannot abide ſuch perfideous dealing, God approveth not of theſe thy courſes, that thou takeſt for the ſecuring of thy ſelf; he proteſteth againſt them by his Prophets, Eſay 30.1,15. or, he ſetteth light by them, he ſcorneth them, and your folly, in imagining to ſecure your ſelves by them, Eſay 30.6.& 31.2,3. Either of theſe will well fit with the words of the text. I encline to the firſt.

and thou ſhalt not proſper in them.] Or, therefore thou ſhalt not proſper by them: ſo is the copulative oft uſed, Chap.1.13. ver.9. No courſes can proſper that God approves not, Pſal.1.6.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. THey ſay,] That the firſt five verſes of this Chapter belong to the former, is the judgment of many of the beſt Interpreters, as well Jewiſh, as others; though how to knit them to the former, is that wherein they are much puzzled. This firſt word may ſeem to imply, that the diſcourſe ſhould begin with a continuation of the former argument; and thoſe that ſo deem, render it, as indeed it ſignifieth word for word, ſaying; as Chap.2.1. Yet among theſe again, there is ſome difference, as there was about the ſenſe of the laſt clauſe of the foregoing diſcourſe: for one of the Jewiſh Doctors ſuppoſeth, that God in the ſpeech ſubjoyned, rendreth a reaſon, why he muſt needs reject Jeruſalem; to wit, becauſe his own Law had ſaid, that if a man ſhould take again his wife, that had bin ſeparated from him, and had been joyned to another, the land would be defiled by it; and therefore he could not without ſome aſperſion, and diſhonour to himſelf, receive her again, who had left him, and joyned her ſelf to idols, untill he had given her up into the hands of her enemies, and by a long and tedious captivity under ſuch, made her to forget thoſe her lovers, whom ſhe had adjoyned her ſelf unto. Some of ours, and thoſe of note, ſuppoſe the coherence to be this, God rejecteth the courſes that thou truſteſt to, and will fruſtrate them, and turn them to thine evill, becauſe of thine obſtinacy; ſaying, That if thou didſt repent indeed of them, he would receive thee again, though an husband in ſuch caſe by the Law might not do it; but that there is no ſuch matter with thee; for thou perſiſteſt ſtill in thy wicked wonted courſes, ver.2,5. A learned Scholiaſt coming after them, though in rendring the text he concur with them, yet receiving no ſatisfaction (it ſeems) from theſe their expoſitions, ſaith onely, that the coherence is obſcure, and ſo leaveth them, and it. And indeed moſt Interpreters here leave them, ſuppoſing this paſſage to make entrance into a new argument, whereby God yet profeſſeth a willingneſſe to receive the Jewiſh State again into grace and favour, notwithſtanding their manifold forepaſſed abominations, upon their ſincere acknowledgment thereof, and ſerious repentance for the ſame; albeit, in the like caſe, an husband ſo uſed, by the Law might not ſo do: and they render the word, ſome, It is ſaid, Some, They ſay, Some, Be it ſaid; put the caſe, as we ſay: That which our ancienter Verſions ſeem to have followed. The old Latine, It is commonly ſaid; Whence ſome gather, that it was grown to be a vulgar, or proverbial ſpeech, common in mens mouths, when they would intimate ſome irreconcileable matter; A woman that is gone from her husband, and hath been joyned to another, may not again be entertained: and this indeed ſeemes to be the right notion of the term here, though none of them, that ſo expreſſe it, either give inſtance of it, or ſhew any ground for it. It is in the Hebrew onely in the infinitive mood, in a gerundial notion, with a particle prefixed, and knit to it, ſaying, or, In ſaying: but theſe infinitives are frequently uſed in an emphaticall, but defective form of ſpeech: whereof, ſee inſtances not a few, on Eſay 59.13. Of this word, in this very form with the particle, ſee Eſay 44.28. where it is as here, In ſaying to Jeruſalem, for, That in ſaying ſay of Jeruſalem; as the foregoing words, ver. 26. where the verb finite is expreſſed, do plainly ſhew; as alſo, Eſay 9.9. which cometh full home to this; In ſaying out of the pride and ſtoutneſſe of hearts. In ſaying, they ſay, for, they ſay commonly, or they uſe to ſay. So is it more fully with the participle, Chap.23.17. They are ſaying ſaying, that is, they are ſtill, commonly, or continually ſaying; and with the verb finite, Ezek. 28. 9. wilt thou in ſaying ſay, for wilt thou ſtill ſay? Our received Verſion therefore may well be retained, They ſay; for the ſpeech is indefinite; though the Latine be more full; and our Engliſh might ſo alſo be, if it were rendred, They ſay commonly, or, They uſe to ſay: and we need not have recourſe to ſuch ſtrained and forced connexions, as thoſe other Interpreters are enforced to flee unto. The like ſyntax is alſo, Eſay 44.24.

If a man put away his wife, and ſhe go from him, and become another mans, ſhall he return unto her again?] In this form it may be, that this proverbial ſpeech was uſed among them, when ſomewhat was preſſed upon them, that their ſtomacks went againſt, as to be reconciled to one, whom they conceived to have deeply wronged them, or againſt whom they had conceived ſome deadly fewd; Should a man entertain a wife again, that he had caſt off, when ſhe hath been another mans? Howſoever it is apparent, that the interrogative here hath the force of a negative, which it addeth alſo ſome emphaſis unto, and the Law expreſly forbids it, Deut.24.1-4.

put away] Heb. ſend, or, ſend out; as Gen.8.7,8. or, as we uſe to ſay, diſmiſſe, and it is commonly uſed of ſuch diſmiſſion, or divorce, as is here intimated, Deut. 22.19,29. & 24.1,3,4. Eſay 50.1. Mla. 2.16.

become another mans] Heb. be to another man. So Lev. 22.12. Deut. 24.2.

ſhall he return unto her again?] That is, may he entertain her to be his wife again? No, he may not; for ſo the words of the Law are, He may not return to take her (that is, receive her again) to be his wife, as before ſhe had been. Howbeit, it may ſeem that theſe words have not ſo much an eye to the inhibition of the Law, as to the uſual diſpoſition of mens minds in ſuch caſes: and it is not therefore ſaid, It is ſaid in the Law, as our Saviour ſaith, It is written in your Law, Joh. 8.17. or, The Law ſaith it; as the Apoſtle, Doth not the Law ſay it? 1 Cor. 9.8. but, They ſay; it is that which men commonly uſe to ſay: and the words therefore may well be rendred, Will he, or would ye return to her again? That is, Would he be reconciled again to her? for that is the uſuall notion of turning, in ſuch forms, Eſay 63.17. Zach. 1.16. & 8.1. would any man take ſuch an one into favour again? could he ſet his affection ſo again upon her, as to be reconciled to her, and entertain her again? albeit, that there were no law, that inhibited the doing of it.

ſhall not that land be greatly polluted?] Or, ſhould not that land be exceedingly profaned? Heb. in being profane, be profaned? for theſe geminations of the word have much emphaſis in them. So polluting pollute, Lev. 13.44. for ſo the words there are. The Land, or State, wherein ſuch baſe and abominable courſes ſhould be ſuffered, that women ſhould go to and fro enterchangeably, in ſuch manner forward, and backward, from man to man, would become vile, and much looſeneſſe, and diſſolute carriage would be, in it, thereby occaſioned: and this is deemed to have reſpect to thoſe words of the law, It is a thing abominable in Gods ſight, and thou ſhalt not make the land to ſin? Deut. 24.4. and by ſuch promiſcuous couplings, lands are ſaid to be defiled, Lev. 18.27,28. the ſame word, and form of ſpeech, concerning a land, or ſtate, ſee Num. 35.33. Pſal. 106.38. Eſay 24.5. Yet there want not that read, and render the words; Is not that land profaned, or polluted? That is, Is not the land that this people dwell in exceedingly profaned and polluted, by the manifold abominations that they commit, and exerciſe in it? ver. 2, 9. But I go rather with the former.

But thou haſt played the harlot with many lovers:] Heb. and thou haſt committed fornication with many friends, or companions; and according to the latter expoſition of the former branch, the copulative may well be in his proper ſenſe retained, carrying on the demand; Is not that land (wherein thou dwelleſt; or, which the Lord thy God gave thee for an inheritance, Deut. 24.4.) extreamly profaned, or polluted, by thee? and haſt not thou committed fornication with many thy mates? or, by thy committing fornication with many mates? as the copulative is uſed, Chap. 1.13. & 2.39. Howbeit, following the former; which the pauſes ſeem to favour, it is well rended, but; as Ch. 2.11,25. or, may not be amiſs, but though; for the copulative ſometime not emplyeth onely, but includeth, thoſe particles; as Eſay 65.12. & 66.14. Ch. 2.7,20. Hoſ. 12.2. Zach. 12.3. although thou haſt thus egregiouſly defiled thy ſelf, not with one onely, which yet were ſufficient by law to debar thee from all hope of return to an husband again; or were enough to make a breach irreconcileable between ſuch a wife and her husband; but with a multitude of looſe and baſe ones, like thy ſelf, idols, and others, in whom thou truſtedſt, ſo that thou haſt made thy ſelf as a common ſtrumpet. See Chap. 2.20,23,36. ver. 2. Ezek. 16.31,36. Hoſ. 2.5.

yet return again to me, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. and returning, or, in returning return again to me: a defect of the one verb, to be neceſſarily ſupplyed; as in the beginning of the verſe. So it is fully, 1 King. 9.6. if in turning ye turn, & 22.28. if in returning thou return, for, if ever thou return; returning return, that is, return ſedulouſly, and ſeriouſly, and not feignedly. See ver. 10. Chap. 4.1, 2. and if thou ſo do, there ſhall be free acceſſe for thee unto me again. I will diſpenſe with mine own law, I will do that in favour of thee, which I have inhibited others in the like caſe to do; and that ſcarce any man could endure, though there were no law to inhibit it; upon thine hearty repentance, I will be reconciled again unto thee, and receive thee into grace and favour again. For ſo much is here intimated, as is more fully expreſſed, Zach. 1.3. Mal. 3.7.

V. 2. Lift up thine eyes unto the high places, and ſee where thou haſt not been lien with.] This is ſubjoyned, to confirm, and to convince her, of the truth of the charge given in againſt her, concerning the multitude of her whoredomes, ver. 1.

Lift up thine eyes] A phraſe commonly uſed in Scripture, when perſons are called upon to view a thing conſiderately. So Gen. 13.14. & 31.12. Eſay 49.18. & 60.4.

to the high places] So the word properly ſignifieth, Eſay 49.9. Chap. 14.6. God pointed them to the places, where they had abuſed themſelves with their idols; as Chap. 2.23. but as there in the vale, ſo here on the hills; on which their idolatrous ſervices were moſt frequently exerciſed, 2 Kin. 17.9,10. & 21.3. & 23.5,8,13,15,19. ver. 6. Howbeit, we are enforced here to make a ſtand; for a learned late Writer herein controlleth all our Interpreters, and the Jewiſh Maſters with them, who the beſt and ſoundeſt of them expound the word here uſed, as we do high places; whereas this croſs man will needs have it to ſignifie valleys, or plains, becauſe in the Syriack the word is ſo uſed, Luk. 3.5. but it ſeemeth no ſuch ſtrong argument, to confirm the uſe of an Hebrew term, from the like in the Syriack, no more then of an ancient Greek word from the modern Greek, or of ſome Latine term from the preſent Italian; unleſſe the places where it is found uſed in the Hebrew text will atteſt alſo thereunto. This the Author of this new Interpretation fore-ſeeing, inſtanceth in a place, wherein he ſuppoſeth it muſt of neceſſity ſo ſignifie; for it is ſaid of Balaam, Num. 23.3. that (to try if he could meet with God) he went to ſhaphi, that is, ſaith he, to the plain; for to the hill, or high place, it cannot be, becauſe he was on the high places of Baal already, Num. 22.41. But to let paſs the divers interprations of the word in that place, the uncertainty whither it be the attribute there of any place or no, and the improbability of his going down into the vale, or the plain, there to meet God; who would not imagine, that, I ſay not, Balaam might, but, that he ſhould rather, though being already on the high places whereon they uſed to ſacrifice, yet ſtep aſide to ſome cliff, as ſome not amiſſe render it; or to ſome place ſomewhat higher and more eminent, then that where he and the reſt then were? ſo that this place little helpeth to ſtrengthen this new conceit; and that, Eſay 13.2. where the Hebrew uſe and notion of the verb original, plainly diſcovereth it ſelf in an attribute given to an high mountain; beſides, thoſe other places where it is uſed, both here, and elſewhere, in this prophecy; as ver. 21. Chap. 4.11. & 7.29. & 12.12. & 14.6. do ſeem clearly to carry it the received way; as when we come to ſcan them, ſhall be ſhewed. It is true, that the Chaldee oft-times renders it ſtreams, or floods; and from him one of the Jewiſh Commenters (but none of the ſoundeſt) in this place ſo expoundeth it: but ſtreams, though they run in the valleys, yet they come down thither from the hils, Pſal. 104.10. and ſtreams of water are promiſed on the lofty mountains, Eſay 31.25. as well as in the valleys, Eſay 41.18. ſee on the place. The ancient Greek, and old Latine, here, as alſo elſewhere, render it right forward, little regarding how it ſuiteth with the ſequel.

ſee where thou haſt not been lien with] Implying, that there was ſcarce any place free from her pollutions, Eſay 57.5-8. Chap. 2.20. ver. 6.13. Of the word here uſed; as alſo, Deut. 28.30. in which place, as in this, the over-mannerly Maſorets have been pleaſed to check the Pen-men of Scripture, and appoint an honeſter term to be read in the room of that they found written. See on Eſay 13.16.

in the ways haſt thou ſat for them, as the Arabian in the wilderneſſe:] Thou haſt carryed thy ſelf, like ſome ſtrumpet, that is wont to ſit by the high-way ſide, waiting and watching for cuſtomers: the manner of ſuch, that of Tamar ſheweth, Gen. 38.14. See Ezek. 16.24,25,31.

ſat for them] That is, ſat looking, or waiting, for them; to wit, for thoſe thy companions, and copeſmates, ver. 1. a complexive form of ſpeech; as Chap. 2.28.

As the Arabian in the wilderneſſe] The Greek rendreth it, as a crow in the wilderneſſe; becauſe the word for a crow, in Hebrew, hath the ſame radical letters with this; but the vowels differ much: nor is the form the ſame in either. The old Latine hath, as a thief in the wilderneſſe: and the Arabians are indeed to this day noted for people that live much upon pillage: which trade, ſuch as follow, are wont to ly in wait by the high-way ſide, in waſte, or woody places, eſpecially, for paſſengers, to ſpoyl them, Judg. 9.25. Hoſ. 6.9. Luk. 10.30. But others rather, and ſo the Jewiſh Writers, conceive it to have reference to another uſage of that people, who dwelling in tents, and inhabiting thoſe deſarts, by which Merchants uſed to paſs with wares and commodities, were wont to pitch their tents neer to the places of their ordinary paſſage; and there to wait their coming, to truck and trade with them. See Gen. 37.25. Job 6.19. Eſay 15.7. & 21.13. and ſo the reſemblance agreeth very well; ſhe waited for her cuſtomers, (as they for their chap-men) whom ſhe drove a trade with. See the ſame collation laid the other way, Eſay 23.17,18.

in the wilderneſſe] As thoſe of Arabia the deſart: who are hence alſo by ſome thought to have their name. See Eſay, 21.13.

and thou haſt polluted thy land with thy whoredoms, and thy wickedneſſe.] Or, profaned thy land (as ver. 1.) with thy whoredoms, and thy naughtineſſe; as with thine idolatries, ſo with other thy wicked courſes, and oppreſſion and murther, Chap. 2.34. See Chap. 16.18. Ezek. 36.17.

V. 3. Therefore the ſhowers have been with-holden;] Thou haſt been chaſtiſed with drought, Deut. 28.23,24. Eſay 5.6.

See Chap. 9. 12. and 14. 1, 2, 22.

Therefore] Heb. And; yet ſo the copulative is taken, Ch. 1.17. & 2.19. but I ſuppoſe here rather yet as ver. 1. (See there) And though; for Gods purpoſe is here to note out her incorrigible diſpoſition, that by no gentle chaſtiſements would be brought to ſhame of, or ſorrow for, her ſin, Chap. 2.30. and 3.5.

the ſhowers] That is, ſay the Jewiſh Doctors here, the former rain, that falleth uſually in the eighth moneth, called Marcheſwan, or Bull, 1 King. 6.38. containing part of our October, and part of November; and was requiſite for the bringing up of their ſeed; called therefore the ſeeds-rain, Eſay 30. 23. to which purpoſe alſo, was the more ſtore of rain in thoſe regions, being hotter, and the ground generally dryer then with us, required; and in regard whereof, it is ſaid, Joel 2.23. that God will give them the former rain in juſtice, or, unto juſtice: which our Verſion rendreth moderately. Some other, duly, in his due ſeaſon, Deut. 11.13. I ſhould rather ſay plentifully, or liberally; as Pſal. 68. 9. in juſt and full meaſure; as Pſal. 72. 3. Hoſ. 10. 12. and it is therefore alſo here ſo called, by a term, that hath a notion of muchneſſe, or multitude in it; uſed alſo, Deut. 32. 2. (where it is diſtinguiſhed from the ſmaller rain, that drilleth down, as thin as an hair) Pſal. 65. 10. & 72. 6. Chap. 14. 22. Mic. 5. 7. though it have another name more peculiar to it elſewhere: whereof ſee Chap. 5. 24. & Eſay 30. 20. as alſo in regard hereof, that moneth wherein it uſually falleth, is ſaid to be called the moneth of Bull, from the abundance of rain then falling, as making a deluge: and this the rather ſeems probable, becauſe it is diſtinguiſhed here from the latter rain: though the word otherwiſe be more generall.

have been with-holden] To wit, from thee, and from thy land, Amos 4.7. The reaſon, ſee Chap. 5. 25.

and there hath been no latter rain] Heb. latter rain was not: the latter rain, is that, which falleth in the firſt moneth, Joel 2. 23. called Nyſan, by a Syriack term, Neh. 2. 1. Abib, by an Hebrew, Exod. 13. 4. containing part of our March, and part of our April: this was much deſired for the filling of their corn, being then in the ear, and the fitting of it for harveſt; for from the corn then eared, hath that moneth its name in Hebrew. See Job 29. 23. Prov. 16. 15. And this latter rain ſeems to have its name from a word found onely, Amos 7. 1. where it is commonly deemed to ſignifie the latter hay, or graſs; by the Latines called fœnum cordum, ſo not a few render it; but I conceive it rather with one of the Rabbines, (whom yet I find none that follow) to ſignifie that which the Latines call culmum, and ſpicam, the corn, ſaith he, grown up unto its cane, or reed, that is, ſtem, or ſtalk: Before which, while it is yet in the blade, it is oft, either cut down for, or eaten down by cattel, where it groweth over rank: A courſe not unuſual, at this day with us, for the ſoiling of ſtoned horſes; and ſuch, in likelyhood, were the Kings horſes, for which ſuch corn was cut.

and thou hadſt a whores fore-head, thou refuſedſt to be aſhamed.] Some others, but; as Chap. 2. 25. I rather, yet; as Chap. 2. 35. For all my chaſtiſement of thee, in this manner, yet thou wouldſt not be drawn to take ſhame to thy ſelf, to acknowledge thy ſin with ſhame; as Ezr. 9. 6. or to be aſhamed of what thou haſt done, and to repent thee of the ſame; but like a common ſtrumpet, that is aſhamed of nothing, but to ſeem aſhamed of ought; thou haſt perſiſted in the open practice of thy former uncleanneſſes, Chap. 6. 15. & 8. 12. Amos 4. 7, 8. Zeph. 3. 5.

a whores fore-head] A proverbial form; ſhame appears in the face, Pſal. 69. 7. Dan. 9. 8. and none more ſhameleſs, then common harlots, whence Babylon hath her title, telling what ſhe is, written in her fore-head, Rev. 17. 5.

V. 4. Wilt thou not from this time cry unto me, My Father, thou art the guide of my youth?] There is a two-fold reading in the original. The one runneth thus; Have not I cryed unto thee, to wit, by my Prophets, that thou ſhouldeſt ſay of me, Thou art my Father, and the guide of my youth? But this both forceth, and ſtretcheth the text beyond reaſon, or due regard. The moſt, both Jewiſh, and ours, follow the other, which our Verſion alſo exhibiteth; yet do they differ much in the expoſition of it: For ſome take it, as ſpoken in the time future; Wilt thou not at length, learning wiſdome by thoſe chaſtiſements, wherewith thou haſt already been exerciſed, and finding by woful experience, how little relief thou canſt get from theſe, on whom thou relieſt, repent thee of thy folly, and ſeek again to me? Chap. 8. 4, 5. Eſay 1. 5. & 9. 12, 13. Some, in the time preſent, as intimating her ſhameleſneſſe, ver. 3. as if it were ſaid, Dareſt thou yet, after all this? Or, haſt thou the face to cry unto me in ſuch terms as theſe, and ask whether I will ever retain wrath towards thee? when as thou goeſt on ſtill to give me juſt occaſion ſo to do. Others again, in the time paſt, rendring the words, Didſt thou not from this time cry unto me? Or, Haſt thou not from this time cryed unto me? That is, Didſt thou not yet all this while make ſhew, as if thou hadſt not left me, but didſt ſtill continue loyall and faithfull to me? for in the deepeſt of their idolatries, they would ſeem to retain ſtill Gods ſervice, 2 King. 17. 32, 33, 41. Chap. 7. 9, 10. Ezek. 23. 38, 39. Zeph. 1. 5. Or, Have ye not ſince your rain hath been reſtrained, and ye have been puniſhed with drought and dearth, in fawning, but falſe-hearted manner, ſought unto me, imagining thereby, though without reformation, or amendment of ought amiſs, to pacifie my wrath, and obtain ſome releaſement of the preſent evill? Chap. 2. 35. & 36. 6. Pſal. 78. 34-37. Eſay 48. 1, 2. & 58. 2, 3. Hoſ. 5. 15. & 6. 1, 4. & 7. 14. and this expoſition, the form of the verb favoureth, being in the time paſt, and is more probable, then that of ſome other, who (either not regarding the negative particle here, or taking it onely for a note of interrogation, as in Greek ſometime it is; and as ſome other of note alſo do, Mal. 1. 10.) render the words, Doſt thou, or, wilt thou ſtill cry unto me, in this manner? as the ſpeech of God, reproving them, for repairing, or ſeeking to him, whom they had formerly caſt off, to run after idols, and others: not unlike that, Judg. 10. 13, 14. Pſal. 50. 16. Chap. 2. 26. Ezek. 20. 39.

Wilt thou not cry?] Or, Haſt thou not cried?

from this time] Wherein I now admoniſh thee, Chap. 2. 25. or, wherein I have chaſtiſed thee, ver. 3.

cry to me]. Or, call me; as Eſay 2. 19. Chap. 33. 16. Hoſ. 2. 18. for in this ſyntax, the particle is oft redundant.

O my Father,] Lamenting as a child to his Father offended; as Luk. 15. 21. Chap. 31. 18. not unlike that of David, to Saul, 1 Sam. 24. 11. or, My Father, by way of appoſition; call me, as I command thee, and would have thee to call me, ver. 19. and as thou oughteſt to do: call me thy Father; in account, and ſo acknowledge me, ver. 19. that is, one that have loved thee as a Father, carryed a Fatherly affection towards thee, Deut. 8. 5. Pſal. 103. 13. Mal. 3. 16. or that hath been thy Maker, Eſay 43. 1. & 44. 2. & 64. 8. for what one upon the place ſuggeſteth, that the manner was among the Jews, that the bride delivered over to the bridegroom, uſed then to call him her Father; becauſe ſhe was then to leave her Father, and cleave wholly to him, Gen. 2. 24. and he thence-forth, to be as a Father to her, ſeems groundleſs, and nothing probable.

the guide of my youth] Becauſe the old Latine hath it, the guide of my virginity: therefore ſome would have this, to reſpect the name of Father, before, given unto God here: for the Father, ſay they, hath the care and charge of his daughters virginity, untill ſhe be joyned unto an husband, Deut. 22. 15, 16. But this conceit hath no place here; and ſome other, though acknowledging the right reading, yet by guide of my youth, underſtand one, that hath foſtered, and brought me up from my youth, my foſter-father, as we uſe to ſay. But the words, which in the original are expreſly, as we have them, contain in them, the ordinary ſtyle of an husband, Prov. 2. 17. eſpecially ſuch an one, as hath marryed a wife, in her youth, or younger years, Mal. 2. 14. as God did this people, Ch. 2. 2. & to him, in divers reſpects, are theſe two relative titles given; the name of a Father, as he made them, a People, a Church, and a State, Eſay 64. 8. the name of an husband, as by entring into covenant with them, he eſpouſed them to himſelf, Ezek. 16. 8. See Eſay 54. 5. the words may be read, as the former, in way of compellation alſo, if we ſo take them, O thou the guide of my youth; as the words of a wife, ſeeking for reconciliation to her husband, being juſtly diſpleaſed with her, 1 Cor. 7. 11. or, as they are in our Verſion, calling upon God, in ſuch terms, as he likes, and allows, Hoſ. 2. 1, 6.

V. 5. will he reſerve his anger for ever? will he keep it to the end?] Theſe words, the Jewiſh Doctors make the Prophets words, by an interrogation, implying an undoubted negative; as if he had ſaid, Would'ſt thou but thus ſeek unto God, God (thou needeſt not doubt of it) would no longer retain his wrath, but would be at one with thee again, ver. 12. Deut. 4. 29-31. & 30. 1-3. 2 Chr. 7. 13, 14. But others, the moſt, and beſt, rather underſtand them, as the words of the people, running on in a continued tenour with the former; and thoſe either enjoyned them to uſe, and required to be uſed of them; as Hoſ. 14. 2, 3. Joel 2. 17. or uſed indeed by them; and complaining unto God (though not in ſincerity) as Gods own people are oft wont to do, when ſome breach hath fallen out between him, and them, lamenting and complaining of the continuance of his wrath and indignation, and labouring to pacifie, and appeaſe it again. See Pſal. 77. 7-9. & 85. 5. Eſay 64. 12.

reſerve his anger for ever] A defect of the noun, for the verb to paſs unto; as Gen. 42. 33. take, for, take food; gather, for, gather grapes, Lev. 25. 11. eat, for, eat bread, Chap. 16. 7. tread down, for, tread down their enemies, Zach. 10. 5. and in the preſent notion very rife. So Lev. 19. 18. thou ſhalt not reſerve againſt the children of thy people, Pſal. 103. 9. He doth not reſerve, or retain, for ever, Nah. 1. 2. he reſerveth for his enemies and hereafter again, I will not retein for ever, ver. 12 now the Jewiſh Doctors here inſert to make the ſenſe full, thy ſin, I will not alwayes keep in mind thy ſin, Eſay 43. 25. Chap. 31. 34. and indeed ſo it ſeems, to be not unfitly made up in that place of the law. Thou ſhalt not revenge nor retein, keep in mind a wrong or unkindneſſe done thee; which ſome of the Jewiſh thus explain. Simeon commeth to Reuben to borrow an ax of him, and he denies it him, ſome time after Reuben comes to Simeon to borrow of him a ladder. If Simeon anſwer him, I will not lend you my ladder becauſe you would not lend me your ax, he revengeth; if he ſay, though you would not lend me your ax, yet I will lend you my ladder, he reteineth: thus they. Howbeit, in the moſt places, and ſo here, the word wrath ſeems to do beſt.

to the end] Or, perpetually, without end, for ever; for it is in notion the ſame with the former. See Eſay 13.20 & 25.8. So 2 Sam.2.26. Pſal.9.19.

Behold, thou haſt ſpoken, and done evill things, as thou couldeſt.] Here we meet with a double reading again: for ſome copies have it, I ſpake, or, I have ſpoken. I Gods Prophet, or, I the Lord, by my Prophet, have ſpoken to thee, and admoniſhed thee of theſe things, endeavouring to reclaim thee, ver. 4. Chap.2.25. but thou perſiſteſt ſtill in thy wicked courſes, and wilt not be reclaimed. But the other reading, which our Verſion exhibiteth, is moſt generally received; yet with ſome variety of expoſition: for ſome render the text, as here we have it, Thou haſt ſpoken, and done evill things as thou couldeſt: what thou haſt ſpoken of thy deſperate reſolution, Chap.2.25. that thou makeſt good by thy wicked actions, obſtinately perſiſting in the practice of evill, all that poſſibly thou canſt, Ch. 8.6. Or, as ſome other, Thou doſt both ſpeak, and do evill ſtill, and prevaileſt; to wit, by thy obſtinate wickedneſs againſt my goodneſs, that I cannot remit, or ſlacken my wrath. See Chap.15.6. & 44.22. Rom.12.21. Others again, ſuppoſing the foregoing words to be the ſpeech of the people, thus thou haſt ſpoken, but (as Chap.2. 11, 25.) thou didſt wickedly ſtill all thou couldeſt; as Hoſ.7. 14. they cry not with their heart to me, when they howl on their beds; they aſſemble themſelves, to ſeek to me, for their corn, and their wine, but they rebell ſtill againſt me. So Eſay 58.2,3. And this laſt expoſition ſeems to me very probable.

as thou couldeſt] Heb. and thou couldeſt: which ſome render, thou prevaileſt, or haſt prevailed; which they ſeem to expound diverſly; one, of their perſiſtance in evill; what thou reſolveſt on, thou goeſt on in, and there is no ſtopping, or reſtraining of thee. Chap.2.24. & 8.6. Another, of prevailing againſt Gods gracious diſpoſition, and reſtraining him, from ſhewing favour to them, as otherwiſe he would, Chap.5.7,9. Another again, of prevailing with God, upon her repentance; and he renders the text, Hadſt thou thus ſaid, though thou haſt done evill things, yet thou ſhouldeſt have prevailed: and ſo indeed is the word uſed, 1 King.22.22. Chap.38.22. But here it ſeemeth rather to go in its moſt ordinary ſenſe, and the text to run with it moſt ſmoothly: and thou couldeſt, that is, either, when thou couldeſt: ſo the copulative is uſed, Ch.34.1. whenſoever thou canſt get any opportunity of putting thy wicked plots and purpoſes in practice, Mic.2.1. Or, as thou couldeſt; What thou couldeſt, as far as thou waſt able, or hadſt power in thine hand; as Mic. 2. 1. If thou didſt not always what thou hadſt determined to do, it was for want of ability; not for want of good-will. So is the copulative uſed, Job 21. 33. & 34.3. and ſo it anſwers that, Gen.44.1. as they can carry, that is, as much as they are able to bear. The Jewiſh Criticks obſerve here, that the former two verbs are feminine; this maſculine; which to ſalve, he ſaith, that the former hath reference to the word congregation; the latter, to the word, people. See the like, Eſay 27. 7,8. But of the promiſcuous uſe of the genders, ſee on Eſay 15.1. and on Chap.2.24,25.

V. 6. The Lord alſo ſaid unto me, in the dayes of Joſiah the King;] Here, as moſt agree, beginneth a new Sermon, wherein the Lord, by the Prophet, firſt relateth Iſraels revolt from him, and how thereupon he had dealt with them: Then taxeth Judah, and that as herein worſe then Iſrael, in having not taken warning by what had befallen Iſrael: yet inviteth both to repentance, promiſeth reſtitution, upon repentance; and a re-uniting of both people under the Meſſias: which gracious invitation the faithfull party accept of, and make their addreſſes unto God.

The Lord alſo] Heb. And the Lord; as Chap.1.3. or, Moreover; as Chap.1.11. or, Again; as Eſay 8. 1. becauſe it beginneth a new Sermon.

ſaid unto me] Acquainted me by revelation, to this purpoſe, with his mind. So ver.11. Chap.11.6.

in the days of Joſiah the King] Under the reign of King Joſiah, Chap.1.2. See ver.10.

Haſt thou ſeen that which back-ſliding Iſrael hath done?] Haſt thou not taken notice of the idolatrous courſes, that thoſe of the ten Tribes took?

Haſt thou ſeen?] Or, Haſt thou not ſeen? as 1 Sam.2.27, 28. did I appear? for, did I not appear? and, did I chooſe? for, did I not chooſe? See Chap.31.20.

ſeen] Conſidered, or taken notice of; as Chap.2.19,23,31. for whether Jeremy over-ſaw what was done among thoſe people, is uncertain; that he ſhould ſee what had been done by them, before their deportation, being yet unborn, was not poſſible.

that which] Or, what: for there is no that in the text. So Exod.19.4. Mic.6.1.

back-ſliding] Or, revolting; as it is rendred, Chap.5.23. So ver.8,11,12. See Hoſ.4.16.

Iſrael] The ten Tribes, ſo termed, as the greater part of Iſraels poſterity, after their revolt from the houſe of David, upon the death of Solomon, 1 King. 12. in way of diſtinction from Judah. See Eſay 7.1.

hath done] Or, did: for he ſpeaketh of things, long ſince paſt, and done before their deportation, 2 Kings 17. 7—12.

ſhe is gone up upon every high mountain, and under every green tree;] Or, how ſhe went up: a defect of the particle, how; as Exod.19.4. See Chap.2.20. 2 King.17.10.

and there hath played the harlot.] Or, and committed fornication there. See ver.1. Some render the words, where thou committeſt fornication, or, playeſt the harlot; as if in theſe words God ſhould turn his ſpeech unto Judah: and the word in its regular form doth ſo import; but as yet there is no addreſſe at all to Judah; and the like irregular form is found in ſome other words, Deut.32.18. Chap.18.23.

V. 7. And I ſaid, after ſhe had done all theſe things] Or, yet I ſaid unto her. And, for, yet; as Chap.2.35. ver.3. and a defect of the pronoun; as Eſay 37. 22. & 66. 12. I did not yet preſently caſt her off; but ſought to reclaim her, and invited her by my Prophets to repentance, 2 King.17.13. Hoſ. 12.6. & 14.1. So ver.1,12.

Turn thou unto me] Or, Return unto me; as ver.1. to wit, by repentance, and reformation, Eſay 57.6,7. Act.3.19. & 26.18, 20. Heb. Thou ſhalt return: the future indicative, for the imperative; as, Thou ſhalt love, Deut.6.5. and, Thou ſhalt not with-hold, for, with-hold not, Pſal.40.11.

but ſhe returned not] 2 King.17.14. Hoſ.7.16. & 11.2,5. Heb. and; as Chap.2.11. ver.1.

and her treacherous ſiſter Judah ſaw it.] Judah; the other two Tribes, Judah, and Benjamin, which continued ſtill conjoyned, when the other ten revolted: the name impoſed from the principall of the twain, that enjoyed the Soveraignty, thereby to diſtinguiſh it from the other ten. See Eſay 1.1.

ſiſter] Iſrael, and Judah, are, in regard of conſanguinity, being both of the linage of Jacob, termed Siſters, Ezek.16.46. & 23.2,4. treacherous] Or, perfidious, having violated her faith plighted unto God, when the whole body of that people entred into covenant with him at firſt, Deut.5.2,3. & 29.10-12. which ſhe had profeſſed to continue in, and keep inviolably, after the revolt of the ten Tribes, 2 Chr.13.9,10. yea, had often-times renewed, 2 Chr.15.12-15. & 23.16. & 29.10. & 34.30-32. but again ſtill violated, by returning eft-ſoons to her former abominations, 2 Chr.21.6,10,11. & 24.17,18. & 28.2,3. & 33. 2-9. & at preſent, howſoever ſhe would ſeem ſtill to continue conſtant in the ſervice of God; yet all being but counterfeit, her ways being otherwiſe very lewd and wicked, Ch.6.19,20. & 7.9-11. Howbeit, the ſame term is afterward given, as well to the one, as to the other. See ver.20.

ſaw it.] Saw; that is, knew; as Pſal.37.25. & 40.3. with 34.2. could not be ignorant; could not but take notice, both of what her ſiſter had done; and how ſhe had been invited by me to return: for by the ſame Prophets God had ſent to them both, 2 King. 17. 13. a defect of the pronoun, it; as Eſay 44. 19.

V. 8. And I ſaw,] The ſequel of the context in the enſuing diſcourſe, being ſomewhat obſcure and intricate, hath much troubled the Interpreters, and enforced them to take divers tracts. One of the Jewiſh Commenters gives me an hint of that, that may ſerve as a thread to lead us thorow this Labyrinth. He obſerveth well, that the ſeeing, here ſpoken of, hath a ſpecial reference unto that which cometh after, ver. 10. concerning the return of the Jewiſh people unto God, in the religious reign of Joſiah, that for the generality of it, it was not ſound and ſincere; that which, though Jeremy, and many others, could not diſcern; yet God, who tryeth and ſearcheth the heart, ſaw, 1 Sam.17.7. 1 King.8.39. Pſal.7.9. Prov.15.11. & 17.3. & 21.2. Chap.17.10. and the ſile of the context is therefore to be continued from this to that; which I conceive may moſt conveniently be thus done, without ſtraining, or forcing the text, as many here do. And I have ſeen, or ſee, that though for all this, wherein revolting Iſrael had committed adultery, I had diſmiſſed her, and given her a bill of divorce; yet her perfidious Siſter Judah was not afraid, but ſhe alſo went, and committed fornication; (for ſo it was, that with her notorious fornication ſhe polluted the land, by committing adultery with ſtones, and with ſtocks) and that for all this her perfidious Siſter Judah hath not returned unto me with all her heart, but counterfeitly, ſaith the Lord. But we ſhall examine, and explicate the words apart as they ly in order in the text.

And I ſaw] Or, have ſeen, or do ſee; as if he had ſaid, I asked thee before, whether thou hadſt not ſeen, how it had been with Iſrael, ver. 6. I ſhall now tell thee what I have ſeen, and do ſtill ſee in Judah; and more it may be then thou doſt, that as they have not taken warning by Iſraels fall, but have been as notoriouſly lewd, as they; ſo their externall reformation hath not been cordial, but counterfeit; I ſee; as Chap.23.13,14. Some others, And when I ſaw. Others, And it ſeemed good unto me. Others, otherwiſe; according to which they attemper the ſeverall Verſions of the words enſuing: wherein our Verſion faileth, leaving the words hanging in ſuſpence, as if it had bin rather, ſhe ſaw, then I ſaw. And the old Latine indeed ſeems ſo to have rendred it; for it knitteth the words following unto the laſt clauſe of the verſe before-going: and ſo ſome Greek Copies alſo ſeem to have had it. But that the Hebrew, which the Chaldee alſo concurs with, controlleth: which yet ſome Interpreters of prime note, though rendring the text themſelves otherwiſe, yet in the expoſition run unto.

when for all the cauſes whereby back-ſliding Iſrael had committed adultery, I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce,] Others, when I ſaw that for the actions, wherein ſhe had committed adultery, I muſt diſmiſs her. I gave her a bill of divorce. Others, It ſeemed good to me for all theſe cauſes — to diſmiſs her, and give her a bill of divorce.

for all the cauſes] Or, for all; or, becauſe of all: for that is all the word ſignifies, Gen.21.11,25. Num.12.1. & 13.24. Judg.6.7.

whereby backſliding Iſrael had committed adultery] Or, wherein. Heb. which: but herein little difference. Of the terms here given her, ſee before, ver.6. what is there termed fornication, is here called adultery; as alſo, ver.9. Ezek.16.37. becauſe fornication, and adultery, in a wife, are all one, Mat.19.9. and this her adulterous carriage, was the cauſe of her abdication, Ezek.23.5-8.

I had put her away,] Heb. diſmiſſed her. See ver.5. to diſmiſs her; or, that I muſt diſmiſs her, ſuit not well with the text.

and given her a bill of divorce;] Heb. a book of her divorce, or, her book of divorce, as we uſe to ſay, make, or, give him his mittimus. Of the term, ſee on Eſay 50.1. and God is ſaid to have diſmiſſed, and divorced her, by putting that State from under the wings of his protection, Ruth 3.9. and delivering it up into the hand of the Aſſyrians, who utterly ruined it, and carryed away the main body of her people, and placed them in forrain parts, 2 King.17.6. Ezek.23.9. what the Rabbines here debate about the different caſes of Judah, and Iſrael, ſee on Eſay 50.1.

yet her treacherous ſiſter Judah feared not] Or, that yet her perfidious ſiſter was not afraid: for the particle, that, very frequently ſuppreſſed; as Eſay 7.1. & 36.1. muſt of neceſſity be ſupplyed, either after I ſaw, or in the front of this clauſe: otherwiſe the member of the ſentence will have no good coherence. Of Judah, and the ſtyle here given her, ſee ver.7.

but went, and played the harlot alſo] Heb. and (as ver.1,7.) ſhe went, and committed fornication; or, ſhe alſo went on whoring: as, he went and wept, for, he went weeping, Pſal.126.6. there is an emphaſis in the pronoun here expreſſed, and not therefore to be omitted. See on ver.7. & Hoſ.4.15. & 11.12. She that had retained the profeſſion of Gods ſervice, when her ſiſter had wholly ſhook it off, and for her idolatries was divorced; yet was not deterred from running out into the like exceſſes, for which her ſiſter had ſo ſuffered, Ezek.23.11. See 2 King.17.19.

V. 9. And it came to paſs through the lightneſs of her whoredome, that ſhe defiled the land;] Or, For ſo it was, that by her notorious fornication, ſhe profaned, or polluted, the land. This paſſage, ſome underſtand of Iſrael; ſome of Judah; ſome partly, of the one, and partly of the other: which laſt, ſeemes more improbable, then either of the former: of which twain, I conceive the latter to be the genuine; and the whole verſe ſhould be encloſed with notes of interſertion, as above.

And it came to paſs] Heb. And it was; as 2 King.4.6. & 6.30. or, For ſo it was; as Gen.12.1. Eſay 65.15.

through the lightneß of her whoredome] Lightneſſe: So the old Latine ſeemes to have taken it; as coming from a word, that ſignifies light, Eſay 19.1. Chap.2.23. and we uſe indeed to term ſuch as here are intended, light women. The Jewiſh Doctors, with the Chaldee, ſeem to refer it to the ſame root, but as it hath a notion of contempt, and vileneſs, 1 Sam.2.30. and ſo it ſhould be, through the vileneſſe, or baſeneſſe, of her whoredome. But the word ſeems not to come from that root; nor is it ever found uſed in either of thoſe notions; it ſignifies commonly a noiſe, or ſound: but not ſeldome alſo, howſoever ſome have queſtioned it, a fame, or report. So it is taken, Gen.45.16. Chap.4.15. & 50.46. thus here underſtood, by the fame of her whoredome; will be meant, the report of it blazed abroad; or, as ſome other, by an hypallage, or inverſion of the words, not unuſual, the fame of her whoredome, for, the whoredome of fame; that is, her famous, (or infamous rather) her notorious whoredome; as, ſilver of ſhekels, for, ſhekels of ſilver; or, ſilver ſhekels, Lev.5.15. and, the greenneſſe of the tender graſs, for, the tender graſs of greenneſſe; that is, the green tender graſs, Pſal.37.2. and it may be ſo termed, not onely in regard of the fame, and bruit, ſpread abroad of it; but in regard of the notoriouſneſs of it, in it ſelf; ſuch as doth of it ſelf proclaim and publiſh the ſhame and filth of thoſe that practiſe it: as foul and hainous ſins are ſaid to have a voice, and to cry aloud even to heaven it ſelf, Gen.4.10. & 18.20. and this the words following, ſeem to confirm. Now being thus taken, (which I take to be the right) ſome conceive it to be ſpoken of Iſrael: as alſo, ſome going the former way of this ſyntax, render the words, notwithſtanding the report, or fame of her whoredome; that is, although the report of Iſraels idolatry, dwelling ſo neer her, could not but come to her ſiſter Judahs ears, Ezek.16.46. But I find not where the particle, here prefixed, is ſo uſed. Others, who take the latter, and (as I ſuppoſe) righter way, render it, for her famous, or notorious whoredome; to wit, it came to paſs, that ſhe defiled the land: which I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of the words; though more fitly expreſſed, if inſtead of for, we ſay with, or by, or by reaſon of; for the particle is here a cauſal: as Pſal.18.12,15. Eſay 21.3. & 33.3. & 63.17. but that which they fail in, is the miſapplication of it; in that they underſtand it, as ſpoken of Iſrael, whereas the courſe of the context aright conceived, and duly conſidered, will evidently ſhew it to be intended of Judah, who in the very next words before going, is ſaid to have gone a whoring, ver. 8. and concerning whoſe whoredoms, and the notoriouſneſs thereof, he ſpeaketh further in this verſe.

that ſhe defiled the land.] Heb. and ſhe profaned, or polluted the land: ſo is the copulative in this form of ſpeech very frequently uſed, Eſay 22.10. & 37.26. & 65.24. & 66.18. See the ſame before, Chap.2.7.

and committed adultery with ſtones, and with ſtocks.] With idols made of either. See Chap.2.27. or, by committing adultery with ſuch: as ſtand and feed, for, ſtand feeding, Eſay 61.5. See ver.8. Some render it for ſhe committed adultery. But the cauſal is not needful here.

V. 10. And yet for all this, her treacherous ſiſter Judah hath not turned unto me with her whole heart, but feignedly, ſaith the Lord.] Or, And that for all this yet; as having relation to what was before ſaid in the perſon of God, ver.8. I have ſeen, or, I ſee, that neither Judah took warning by what had befallen her ſiſter for her impieties and idolatries; for after that ſhe fell into them afreſh in the reign of Manaſſes, 2 Chr.33.3-9,22. as alſo that although they ſeemed to make goodly ſhews, and fair ſemblances of returning again to me, in the days of good Joſiah, 2 Chr.34.29-33. & 35,1-18. yet were they never throughly converted, or cordially turned from their former idolatrous courſes, as appeared by their ſudden relapſe, and return again to them, preſently after his deceaſe, 2 King.23.32-37. & 24.9,19. 2 Chr.36.12,14.

yet for all this] As ver.8.

her treacherous ſiſter Judah] See ver.6,7.

hath not turned unto me with her whole heart] Though Joſias himſelf ſo did, 2 King.23.25. yet the people, and generality of them had not ſo done: with the whole heart, that is, entirely, ſincerely, Pſal.119.2,10. Chap.24.7.

but feignedly.] Heb. in falſhood, falſly, counterfeitly: as thoſe, Pſal.78.36,37.

V. 11. And the Lord ſaid unto me,] Or, The Lord alſo ſaid unto me: as Chap.1.3.

The backſliding Iſrael hath juſtified her ſelf more then the treacherous Judah.] Iſrael is not ſo bad as Judah; Iſraels ſin is not ſo hainous as is the ſin of Judah: both in regard of her perfideouſneſs, that would ſeem to retain Gods ſervice ſtill with her, and renewed covenants oft with him; (which Iſrael never did) but brake them as faſt again, ſee ver. 7. and partly, alſo, becauſe ſhe would not be warned by the ſight of that, which had for ſuch idolatrous courſes befallen Iſrael, ver.8-10. See the like, Ezek.16.47,51,52. & 23.4—12.

juſtified her ſelf] Heb. her ſoul; as Num.30.5. ſo, his ſoul, for himſelf, Job 18.4. my ſoul, for, my ſelf, Pſal.7.2. thy ſoul, for, thy ſelf, 1 Sam.20.3.

more then treacherous Judah.] Heb. from, or in regard of; as if he had ſaid, Iſrael may go for an honeſt woman in compariſon of Judah; ſhe is ſo far the worſe. The like form, ſee Eſt.2.17. Prov.22.1. Eccl.7.1. Eſay 54.1. and in the like argument, Luk.18.14. Of the terms given to either, ſee verſe 6,7.

V. 12. Go, and proclaim theſe words towards the North,] God hereupon, the rather to ſhame Judah, and to encite her to repentance; biddeth the Prophet, turning towards thoſe parts, wherein thoſe of the ten Tribes remained captive, to proclaim a gracious invitation of them, to return again to him, with a promiſe of mercy and favour, to be ſhewed unto them, when they ſhould ſo do; together with a ſecret intimation, that it would ſometime be ſo done; and that under the Kingdome of the Meſſias the reſerves of either family ſhould be reunited.

Go] Heb. Going. Either the infinitive for the imperative, or the imperative ſuppreſſed. Going go; that is, go out of hand, preſently, ſetting all other affairs apart. So Chap. 2.2.& 13.1. Howbeit, as the Jewiſh Commenter well obſerveth, Gods meaning was not that the Prophet ſhould travell into thoſe countries where that people then abode; but to addreſs himſelf unto the performance of the duty enjoyned him, ſetting his face that way; as the like is enjoyned Ezekiel, Chap.20.46. & 21.2. and the word therefore (ſaith he well) is to be taken in a notion of addreſs: as Eccl.2.1. Jon. 1. 7.

and proclaim] Heb. and thou ſhalt cry. See the like, Chap.2. 2.& ver.7.

toward the north] Becauſe the regions of Aſſyria, and Media, into which thoſe of the ten Tribes were tranſported by Tiglath-Pileſer, and Salmaneſer, 2 King.15. 29. & 17.6. lay North-Eaſt from Judea. See Chap.50.3,9. as on the contrary part therefore Ezekiel being among the Jewiſh Captives in Chaldea, lying North likewiſe from Judea, Chap.1.14. is willed to look Southward, when he was to prophecy againſt Judah, and Jeruſalem, Ezek.20.46.& 21.1. So that he was to utter theſe words, in the hearing of thoſe of Jeruſalem; as Ch. 2. 2. but with his face toward the places, where Iſrael was in captivity, ſo ſpeaking, as if he were parlying face to face with them.

and ſay] Heb. and thou ſhalt ſay; as before, thou ſhalt cry.

Return, O thou back-ſliding Iſrael, ſaith the Lord,] The ſubject matter of that which he was to proclaim; a new ſummons of Iſrael to repentance. See ver.6,7,14. Chap. 31.22.

and I will not cauſe mine anger to fall upon you.] I will not proceed further in wrath againſt you.

cauſe mine anger to fall] Heb. make my face to fall: face, for, anger, or wrath, as Pſal.34.16. Lam.4.16. becauſe anger diſcovereth it ſelf in the countenance; to fall: a metaphor, either, from thoſe that fall in fight upon their foes, Joſh.11.7. or rather from ſtorms and tempeſts, that fall from above, to the ſpoiling and deſtroying of people, and other creatures here beneath, Gen.19.24. Pſal.11.6. Rom.1.18. See Chap. 30.23, 24. and the Jewiſh Doctors ſupply here not amiſs from the clauſe following, for ever, becauſe it had in the diſperſion of them fallen in part, and that heavily, on them already.

for I am mercifull, ſaith the Lord] Or, pious, pitifull, Deut.4. 31. Pſal.86.15.& 103.8.& 145.8. and I will not keep anger for ever.] I will ceaſe to be further wrath with you, Pſal.103.9. See on ver.5.

V. 13. Onely acknowledge thine iniquity,] No promiſe of pardon, but upon condition of repentance, Eſay 1.19, 20. & 55.7. nor ſincere repentance, without ſerious ſight, and ingenuous acknowledgment of ſin, Prov.28.13. Heb. yet; as Pſal. 25.1. know, that is, take notice of, or acknowledge; as Pſal. 51.3. Eſay 59.12. See Chap.2.23.

that thou haſt tranſgreſſed againſt the Lord thy God,] And haſt therefore been juſtly delivered up into captivity, 2 King. 17. 18.

and thou haſt ſcattered thy wayes to the ſtrangers under every green tree,] Running ſometime one way, and ſometime another, after ſtrange gods, and forrain people, 2 King.17.4,9,10. ver.6. See the like, Chap.2.23,25. The Rabbine perverteth it, when he expoundeth it, of the opening of the feet, Ezek. 16.25.

and ye have not obeyed my voice, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. ye have not hearkened unto my voice; calling upon you, by my Prophets, for reformation of theſe your wicked ways, and miſcarriages, 2 King.17.13—16. ver.7.

V. 14. Turn, O back-ſliding children, ſaith the Lord,] Or, Return; Turn again, as ver.12.

for I am married unto you] Or, I have married you: for the verb is active, and is in that form uſed ever of the man, Deut. 21.13 & 24.1. Eſay 54.5. & 62.10. Mal.2.11. of the woman perpetually in the paſſive form, Gen.20.3. Deut.23.22. Prov. 30.23. Eſay 54.1.& 62.4. I am your husband that have married you; I took you at firſt into covenant to me, and ye did enter into the ſame with me, and plighted your faith unto me among the reſt of my people, Deut.29.1-15. and I am ready, notwithſtanding your long continued revolt, upon your ſincere, and ſerious repentance, and return to me, to entertain you, and to renew my covenant again with you, Hoſ.2.19,20. ver.1. Some of the Rabbines render it, I am your Lord; and it is not for mine honour, that my people ſhould be in the hands of their enemies, Eſay 52.5. Ezek.36.20. and the word indeed in its firſt and proper notion ſo ſignifies. See Chap.2. 22. but in this place, the conſtant tenour of the context, comparing this people to a diſloyal wife, carryeth it rather the other way. For as for that, which one of them telleth us of a conceit of his Fathers, that it ſhould be rendred, I have been vexed, or grieved by you, or am grown a weary of you; or, I loath, and abhor you; for ſo the word ſignifies, whereby he expreſſeth it, Gen.27.46. Lev.20.23. Num.21.5. Eſay 7.16. withall adding, that the word doth always ſo ſignifie, where the particle beth, followeth it; it ſeems to me unworthy of any conſideration: nor had I mentioned it, but that I find ſome Writers of note, taking notice of it, and ſome great Criticks enclining to it, if not approving of it. It is true, that God is ſaid to be vexed and grieved, and wearied with the ſins of his people, Eſay 43.24.& 63.10. Chap.15.6. Ezek.6.9. but this in no wiſe ſorts here with the ſequel of the context: and for that of the particle, it is no where found in conſtruction with this verb, ſave here, and Chap.31.32. a place parallel to this; and no ſuch judgment therefore can be built thereupon; and it ſeemeth to me, to have no other uſe in either place, then it hath in the like ſyntax, with divers other verbs in that language, with which it is generally deemed to be redundant.

and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion.] Our Interpreters generally expound this of the paucity, or ſmall remnant of thoſe, that ſhould be reſerved, and return, whether into their own country, as they ſuppoſe ſome did with thoſe of Judah, at the diſſolution of the Babylonian Captivity; or unto God, being converted, and adjoyned unto his Church, according to thoſe foregoing prophecies, Eſay 10.11,12.& 17.6. & 24.13. On the other ſide, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors carry it beyond all reaſon wider another way; as if the meaning were, that if there were but one true convert in a city, that whole city ſhould be reduced, together with that one: and ſo if but two onely ſuch in a family, that whole family ſhould, together with thoſe two, be brought back; and ſo they ſhould all at length return to their own country again. But I ſee not how the words can admit of ſuch a ſenſe. The former, it is true, they may well bear: howbeit, ſo taken, they ſeem not ſo well to ſuit with the perſons ſpoken to. The revolted Iſraelites are invited to return; and God promiſeth, if they ſo do, to take them; whom but the Iſraelites that do return? ſome one out of a city, conſiſting of ſuch; and not the whole city rather, if there were an whole city of ſuch? or one out of a city, conſiſting of Iſraelites, among all whom yet but one ſuch ſhould be? I ſuppoſe it not probable, that there were any ſuch cities conſiſting of Iſraelites onely. I embrace, therefore, that here, that one of the Jewiſh Commenters ſuggeſteth, whom a learned late Writer followeth; That God would make ſuch an exact ſearch for them, in looking after them upon this their ſincere and ſerious return, in all places, in which they had been diſperſed; that though there ſhould be but ſome one only of them in a city, or ſome two onely in a whole country, yet they ſhould not be neglected, but ſhould be culled out and reduced. It is a plain parallel place unto that of Eſay 27. 12. See the note there. And whereas it may ſeem to be ſomewhat improper to ſay, one out of a city, and two out of a family; (for ſo it would for the fuller expreſſion be rendred) as if a family were of a larger extent then a city. To this, the Rabbine anſwers not amiſs, that the word family is in Scripture ſometime uſed for a country, or the people of a country; as Chap. 1.15. Gen.12.3. (compared with, Chap.22.18. where for families, in the former place, is nations, in the latter) Zach. 14. 17, 18. and may well ſo alſo be uſed in this place.

I will bring you to Zion] Either joyn you unto Judah again, that you may worſhip God at Jeruſalem with them, Chap.31. 6. Ezek. 27. 21, 22. or joyn you unto my Church, whereof Sion is a type; that ſo all Iſrael may be ſaved, Rom.11.26. See Eſay 56.7.& 66.20. See alſo ver.18.

V. 15. And I will give you Paſtors according to my heart, which ſhall feed you with knowledge and underſtanding.] As God promiſeth upon their repentance, to reduce, and reſtore them; ſo to ſettle a government among them, for the continuance of them, in a right and religious courſe and carriage, and ſuch Rulers over them, as ſhould not either miſlead them or oppreſs them, which others formerly had done, Eſay 13. 12. Chap.23.1,2. Ezek. 34. 2—4,10. but ſhould rule and govern them in a religious manner, with a wiſe and diſcreet regard of their good, Eſay 60.17,18. Chap.23.4.

I will give you] It is God that gives Governours, whether good or bad; as a bleſſing, the one; as a chaſtiſement and exerciſe, the other, Hoſ. 13. 11. Act. 13. 20, 21. Epheſ. 4.11.

Paſtors] Rulers, either in the State, as ſome, Chap.12.7. Mic.5.5. or in the Church, as others, Epheſ.4.11. or in both, Eſay 56. 10, 11. See Chap. 23. 1, 4.

according to mine heart] Such as I like and approve of, and know to be faithfull, and ſuch as ſhall govern you according to my will and deſire, 1 Tim. 1. 12. an alluſion to Gods teſtimony of David, 1 Sam. 13. 14.

which ſhall feed you] As Joh. 21. 15-17. 1 Pet. 5. 2. or, rule you, Chap 23. 2. Ezek. 34. 2. Act. 20, 28.

with knowledge and underſtanding] This clauſe either reſpects the manner of their ruling in ſkilful and diſcreet manner, Pſal. 78. 72. 1 Pet. 5. 2. or the ſubject matter of their feeding, the food wherewith Gods people were to be fed, the ſpiritual food of ſound knowledge, and right underſtanding of Gods truth. Deut. 33. 19. Neh. 8. 8, 12. Mal. 2. 7. Eph. 4. 11. 1 Tim. 3. 2. 2 Tim. 4. 2. But I ſuppoſe, that it hath reſpect here to the former.

V. 16. And it ſhall come to paſſe when ye are multiplyed and increaſed in the land, in thoſe dayes, ſaith the Lord, they ſhall ſay no more, The Ark of the Covenant of the Lord; neither ſhall it come to mind, neither ſhall they remember it; neither ſhall they viſit it, neither ſhall that be done any more.] This place ſeems as pregnant as is poſſible, for the utter ceſſation and abolition of thoſe viſible pledges of Gods ſpeciall preſence among his people, which before had by God himſelf been to that purpoſe ſanctified, ſet apart, and ſetled among them, after the enlargement and growth of his Church under the Meſſias. Which yet the Jewiſh Maſters, though acknowledging the Meſſias his times here to be intended, labour, by a very ſory ſhift, to put off: for the meaning, ſay they, is, that in thoſe times they ſhall not need to think of ſending for the Ark of God, to be with them in their camp, or of carrying it out with them into the field, as in times paſt they had done, Joſh. 3. 3, 6, 11. & 6. 8, 13. 1 Sam. 4. 4, 5. & 14. 18. 2 Sam. 11. 11. & 15. 24. becauſe all ſhall then be quiet, there ſhall be no war, after the expedition of Gog and Magog is once over, Eſay 2. 4. But beſides that we read not that after the Temple was once built, the Ark, once therein ſeated, was ever removed, brought out again, or any ſuch uſe at all made of it: the words are very general, and very expreſs, that it ſhould not at all be ſought to, or once minded, or any uſe at all made of it. And yet this, as ſlight a ſhift as it is, is by a learned late Writer alſo held forth, and approved. Nor want there other of ours, and ſome of chief Note, that will not ſuffer this Scripture to go the way before-mentioned; but turn it another way; ſome expounding it, that whereas formerly the Jews herein gloried over Iſrael, that they had the Ark of God with them, a pledge of his ſpeciall preſence among them, which the other had not, 2 Chr. 13. 9, 10. ſuch a conjunction and concord, ſhould be now between them, that Judah ſhould no more glory herein, God ſhould be alike preſent with either. Other again, that after their reſtitution, the Jewiſh people themſelves ſhould not ſo much truſt unto, and rely upon, thoſe outward pledges of Gods favour toward them, and preſence among them, the Ark, and the Temple, as formerly they had done, Chap. 7. 3. But theſe conſiderations, as well as the former, do all come far ſhort of, and are a great deal too narrow, to reach the large and wide extent of the expreſſions of Gods Spirit in this place. That which ſome others have, that therefore no regard ſhould in thoſe times be had of the Ark, becauſe the whole City ſhould be deemed equally holy with it; for whereas the Ark was as Gods Throne, or Chair of Eſtate before, (ſee on Eſay 37. 16.) and the Temple in regard of it, Chap. 14. 21. & 17. 12. Ezek. 43. 7. now Jeruſalem, the whole city ſhould be ſo eſteemed, verſ. 7. it fitteth well with the ſtate and condition of the Church; but could not conſiſt with the ordinance of God, ſo long as a Temple, whether with an Ark, or without an Ark, allowed and approved of by God, in its peculiar uſe and force ſtood. For as concerning what ſome others ſay, That in the ſecond Temple there was no Ark at all; and would have this Scripture to intimate as much: It is firſt a great queſtion, whether it be a truth, and not a Jewiſh fable: the grounding of it on that defect of a letter in a word, Hagg. 1. 8. is without doubt, both frivolous, and ridiculous. But whether it were ſo or no, it cannot concern this place: for if there were no Ark in it, it was a defect; and that ſuch as was not by any means extraordinary otherwiſe ſupplyed: and it is eſteemed by the Jews themſelves as a blemiſh; whereas the want of an Ark, the uſe of it, and regard to it, here implyed, is mentioned as no ſmall benefit and dignity to the Church, of the times here intended; they ſhould have no need now of ſuch an ordinance; they ſhould not miſſe it, they ſhould find no want at all of it.

they ſhall ſay no more] Or, it ſhall not be ſaid; as Chap. 16. 14. So Chap. 31. 29. there ſhall be no more talk of it.

The Ark of the Covenant of the Lord] So is the Ark commonly called, Numb. 10. 33. Deut. 10. 8. & 31. 9, 25, 26. Heb. 9. 4. as alſo otherwiſe, The Ark of the teſtimony, Exod. 25. 22. & 30. 26. & 31. 7. and the ground of either ſtyle is the ſame, to wit, becauſe the two Tables of the Law; wherein the Covenant made between God and his people, was contained, Exod. 34. 28. & 40. 35. Deut. 9. 9, 11, 15. and were therefore a Teſtimony of the ſame, 2 King. 11. 12. Eſay 8. 20. were reſerved in the Ark, Exod. 25. 16, 21. & 40. 20. and as the Ark is therefore ſo called in regard of them, as made principally for them, 1 King. 8. 9. ſo is the Tabernacle alſo called the Tabernacle of the Teſtimony, as intended chiefly for them, and it, Exod. 30. 26. & 38. 21. Act. 7. 44. the Ark therefore containing them, being ſeated in the innermoſt, principal, and moſt ſacred place, both of the Tabernacle, & the Temple, Exod. 40. 21. 1 King. 8. 6. Heb. 9. 3, 4. And if the uſe of this chief, and principall pledge of Gods preſence, after the coming of the Meſſias; and the Church conſiſting of Jew and Gentile under him ſetled, was utterly to ceaſe; much more the place deſigned for it, with the whole furniture thereof, ſervice reſtrained to it, and rites appertaining thereunto, Joh. 1. 17. & 4. 23. Col. 2. 17. Heb. 10. 1, 8, 9.

neither ſhall it come to mind] Heb. aſcend, or, go up, upon the heart. Men ſhall not mind it; they ſhall not ſo much as once dream of it. See Eſay 65. 17. So Chap. 7. 31. 1 Cor. 2. 9.

neither ſhall they remember it] Or, neither ſhall they mention it, or, make mention of it: for the ſyntax here ſeems to lead unto that notion of the word; it ſhall not be remembred, or mentioned any more: for the verb is indefinite, as that before, they ſhall ſay, for, it ſhall be ſaid: and alſo in the next branch.

neither ſhall they viſit it] That is, it ſhall not be viſited; there ſhall be no more repairing unto the place of its reſidence, to pray, and worſhip there before it, as now there is, Deut. 12. 11-14. 1 Sam. 7. 2. 2 Sam. 7. 18. 1 King. 8. 29, 30, 33, 34. 1 Chr. 13. 3. Pſal. 42. 2. & 84. 7. & 95. 2. & 99. 5.

neither ſhall that be done any more] No ſuch viſitation of it ſhall any more be uſed; or rather, as ſome other render it, neither ſhall it any more be magnified: it ſhall not be in any repute, or eſteem; ſo the word ſeems to import, Deut. 32. 6. 1 Sam. 12. 6. The Spirit of God uſing here ſo many pregnant expreſſions, and ſo ſeriouſly and inſtantly inculcating, in ſuch variety of terms, one and the ſame thing, ſeems to have foreſeen how loath and backward people would be, this people eſpecially, to admit of, and aſſent unto, the matter here foretold; and how prone and forward by ſlights and ſubtilties, to writhe and wreſt this prediction to ſome other intents and purpoſe; and to have delivered it therefore in ſuch expreſſe and preciſe terms, as might cut off all ambiguity, and meet with all ſuch devices as humane wit ſhould invent, either to elude, or divert it.

V. 17. At that time they ſhall call Jeruſalem the Throne of the Lord] Or, Jeruſalem ſhall be called; for ſuch indefinite forms are by the paſſive beſt expreſſed. So ver. 16. Mal. 1. 4. Jeruſalem, Gods Church, whereof that was a type, Gal. 5. 26. Rev. 21. 2. ſhall be called; ſhall ſo be, and be ſo accounted: as Eſay 60. 14. & 61. 6. the Throne of the Lord; in regard of his conſtant reſidence, and ſitting in ſtate and power, by his ordinances, and by the exerciſe of them there, together with his Spirit accompanying the ſame. See Chap. 14. 21. & 17. 12. and before on ver. 16.

and all the nations ſhall be gathered unto it;] That ſo Jacobs Prophecy may be fulfilled, concerning the gathering of the nations unto Shiloh at his coming, Gen. 49. 10. and the word here uſed, is the ſame with that, Gen. 1. 9. where God ſaith, Let the waters under heaven be gathered together into one place: as alſo it is ſaid in that parallel place, Eſay 2. 2. the nations ſhall flow in to it; as intimating both their multitudes, and their forwardneſſe, or eagerneſſe, rather forcing, then forced in, Pſal. 110. 2, 3. Matth. 11. 12.

to the name of the Lord to Jeruſalem] To the place which God ſhall make choice of, to place his name there, Deut. 12. 11. which was ſometime Jeruſalem, Pſal. 122. 3, 4. is now the Church, 1 Tim. 3. 15. Rev. 21. 2, 3. but Jeruſalem now without Ark or Temple; for thoſe things are now paſt and gone, verſ. 16. Rev. 21. 22. Yet ſome read it, for the name of the Lord to Jeruſalem. But the former I approve rather, as preciſely anſwering the particle, uſed twice here in the text, which though it be ſometime indeed ſo uſed, as in the former place they would have it, as Gen.2 23. yet why it ſhould here ſwarve from its moſt proper notion and uſe, I ſee not. See Eſay 60. 9.

neither ſhall they walk any more after the imagination of their evil heart.] Neither the Iſraelites, nor the Proſelyte Gentiles, ſhall take ſuch evil courſes, as before times they did; but ſhall live according to the preſcript of Gods Will and Word, Eſay 2.3.

the imagination] The word here uſed is very frequent, both in this Prophet, Chap.7.24. & 9.13. & 11.5,13. & 16.12. & 18.12. & 23.17. and elſewhere, Deut.29.19. Pſal.81.12. but concerning the native and genuine ſenſe of it, there is much difference among the learned, as well Jewiſh, as others: for ſome render it, ſtiffneſſe, obſtinacy, ſtubbornneſſe; deriving it from a term commonly uſed among the Talmudiſts, implying firmneſſe, and faſtneſſe. Others, pravity, and perverſneſſe; deducing it from a word that ſignifies the navel, and the knotty wreaths of it, Ezek.16.4. Job 40.16. Others, wrieneſſe, or obliquity. Whence enemies are deemed by them to be ſo termed; becauſe they look awry on thoſe whom they are at enmity with, Pſal. 5.8. & 27.11. & 54.5. & 56.2. & 59.10. though rather, becauſe they have either a cautious, or an inſidious eye on them, they obſerve and watch them to do them a ſhrewd turn, 1 Sam.18.9. Pſal. 56.6. Chap.20.10. Other laſtly, as ours here, imagination, or cogitation, or contemplation, or thought, or ſight: which laſt ſeems moſt genuine; becauſe all thoſe that thus diverſly render it, yet herein concur, that they hold it to riſe from a root that ſignifies to ſee, or to view, Num.23.9. & 24. 17. yet herein may ſome difference ariſe, in that ſight applyed to the ſoul, ſometime reſpecteth the mind and its imagination, judgment and approbation of ought; as Pſal.17.2 let thine eye-lids ſee the right; that is, conſider and approve it: and ſo the imagination of the heart ſhould be, what the mind conceiveth, reſolveth and approveth of: ſometime, it reſpects the will and affection; as Pſal.66.18. if I ſee iniquity with my heart: if my heart hang after it; if I affect it, and have a deſire to it: ſo it ſhould import here the deſire of the heart: according to either it may be rendred, the ſight of the heart: they ſhall not follow what their corrupt heart likes and loves; what it approveth and affecteth. See the like phraſe, Num.15.39. Eccl.11.9. Eſay 57.17.

V. 18. In thoſe days ſhall the houſe of Judah walk with the houſe of Iſrael,] Some render it, The houſe of Judah ſhall go to the houſe of Iſrael. So the ancient Greek, and the Old Latine; that is, ſay ſome, The one ſhall go to the other, that they may return joyntly in company home together: and ſo is the particle uſed, Eſay 22.15. and in the latter part of this verſe: And theſe ſuppoſe an alluſion in theſe words to the return from the Babylonian captivity, Judah ſaid to go to Iſrael, becauſe Cyrus his proclamation did principally concern them, abiding in Babylon, and other parts of Chaldea: But that they ſhould ſend to, and invite thoſe of the ten Tribes remaining in Aſſyria and Media, to come and go along with them: whereof, though we find no record, yet it is not unlikely that divers of the other Tribes did, whether invited by them or no. Or, as others, there ſhall be free and open paſſage from the one to the other, that they may have mutuall trade and commerce the one with the other; as Eſay 19. 23, 24. contrary to that which had formerly been, Luk.9.53. Joh.4.9. But the Chaldee, and the Jewiſh Commenters, whom ſome others alſo follow, reade the words as our Verſion hath them, Judah ſhall walk with Iſrael: and they point us to places where the particle is elſe-where ſo uſed, Exod.35.22. 1 Sam. 20.8. Eſay 7.2. Ezek.16.37. Mic.7.13. the meaning then is, they ſhall be reconciled either to other, and ſhall converſe in familiar and friendly manner the one with the other: for that is uſually deſigned by the term of walking together, Pſal. 55.14. Amos 3.3. the enmity that had been formerly between thoſe two houſes, ſhall then ceaſe: the ten Tribes being then reunited to the other two Tribes, and the other two joyning in amity with them, and both walking in one way together with thoſe proſelytes, ver.17. See Eſay 11.13. Ezek.37.19,22. Hoſ. 1. 11.

the houſe of Judah, with the houſe of Iſrael] Of theſe two houſes, ſee Eſay 8.14.

and they ſhall come together out of the land of the North] From Chaldea, and Aſſyria, the places of their captivity, both from Judea Northward: See ver.12. Chap.1.13. & 31.8. The ſpiritual deliverance, and reſtitution of them, by Chriſt, with the conſtitution of them in the body politick of his Church, being ſhadowed out in theſe prophetical Sermons, by thoſe temporal deliverances and reſtaurations, that to either of thoſe two people, or any conſiderable party of either, God was pleaſed to afford. So Eſay 11. & 54. & 60. Chap.31. & 33.

to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers.] Or, that I gave. Heb. which I cauſed your fathers to inherit, or to poſſeſs, as an inheritance, Pſal.44.2,3. & 78.51. & 135.12. & 136.21,22. the land of Canaan, ſee ver. 16.

V. 19. But I ſaid, How ſhall I put thee among the children, and give thee a pleaſant land, a goodly heritage of the Hoſts of nations?] Some read theſe words in the time paſt, How did I put thee among the children, and gave thee a pleaſant land, &c. as if God ſhould relate what he had formerly done for this people; as Eſay 63.7,8. Amos 2.9-11. but the moſt conceive them as the words of God, relating what he intended to do for them, upon condition of their repentance, and continuance in loyalty to him.

But I ſaid,] Heb. And I ſaid, which ſome alſo here retain. Others, I ſaid indeed; as Eſay 30.20. As if he had ſaid, I had ſuch thoughts as theſe with my ſelf, for he ſpeaketh after the manner of men, in dealing and diſcourſing with men. See Eſay 63.8.

How ſhall I] Or, ſhould I. The voice of God either admiring, and deviſing with himſelf, as ſome, by what means a people brought ſo low, and worn out with long captivity, might or could be reſtored to a flouriſhing ſtate and condition again, like that, Ezek.37.3. can theſe bones live? or, as others, rather, not ſo much wondring, as demanding of them, how he ſhould do that for them, which he had before ſaid, he would do, to wit, bring them home, and ſettle them in their land again, ver.18. ſuch an one, as is here related, when as they had dealt ſo perfidiouſly with him in times paſt, and had ſo defiled it before, verſ.6,9,13,20. Somewhat like that, Hoſ. 6. 4. & 11. 8.

put thee among the children] Or, as ſome, among my children: a defect of the pronoun poſſeſſive; as Job 13.18. Eſay 49.16. how ſhould I reckon or account thee as one of mine adopted ones, Hoſ. 1. 10. The ſyntax will not admit that of a learned late Writer, I will make thee ſons; that is, ſaith he, I will bleſſe thee with a plentiful iſſue, Eſay 44.3,4. ver.16.

and give thee a pleaſant land] For a childs portion; a poſſeſſion, among my people, who are as children to me, Exod. 13. 11. Pſal.16.6. & 136.21,22.

a pleaſant land] A deſirable, or delightfull land. Heb. a land of deſire, or delight. So is the land of Canaan termed, Pſal. 106. 24. Zach.7.14. Of the phraſe, ſee Eſay 2.16.

a goodly heritage] Heb. an heritage, or poſſeſſion of goodlineſſe, or beauty. Of the term, and form, ſee on Eſay 4.2. & 13.19. & 24.16. & 28.1,4,5. it is an attribute given oft to the land of promiſe, 2 Sam. 1. 19. Ezek.7.20. & 25.9. Dan.8.9. & 11.16, 41, 48.

of the Hoſts of Nations] Somewhat to this purpoſe, the Greek; and the Latine, juſt ſo rendreth it: but the Greek, and ſome other, inſert the word, God; the land of the God of Hoſts, the allmighty ruler of the Nations. Others, inſert the word land onely, ſupplyed from the former branch, and they expound it, ſome, a land of hoſts of nations; that is, a land held by people that were ſtrong and mighty, Num.13. 28, 29, 32, 33. Deut.4.38. Amos 2.9. or warlike, and ready to wage warre with thoſe that ſhould offer to invade them, Num. 21.23,33. But the Chaldee Paraphraſt, with whom the Jewiſh Doctors here concur, expoundeth the word here uſed, to the ſame effect with the former, as they may wel both belong to the ſame root, and may well import the ſame thing, ſave that the one is ſingular, the other plural: & it is by them two ways rendred, either the heritage of the delight of delights, or deliciousneſſe of deliciousneſſes of the nations; that is, the moſt goodly, pleaſant, and moſt delightful country, that any nation is poſſeſſed of: Or, a land of the deſires of the nations; that is, ſuch a land as all Nations much affect and deſire; the word coming from a root that in the Chaldee, or Syriack tongue rather ſignifies, to will, or deſire, Dan. 5.19. & 7.19. and this latter notion ſeemes in this place the genuine. See Ezek. 20. 6. where this land is ſtyled by the former term here uſed, the goodly one of all lands; that is, the goodlieſt and moſt deſireable of any.

and I ſaid, Thou ſhalt call me my Father, and ſhalt not turn away from me.] Or, as ſome, further I ſaid; as Chap.1.11. & 2.1. I ſhould rather render it, yet I ſaid; as ver.7. As if he had ſaid, After ſuch croſs thoughts as might diſſwade me, from ſhewing ſuch grace and favour unto this people, I yet at length reſolved to do it, upon condition, that they would take me for their protector, and continue loyal to me.

call me my Father] So account me, and ſo acknowledge me, ver.3,4. Pſal.89.26. Mat.23.9.

ſhalt not turn away from me] From following me (as Mat.16. 24.) to go after ſtrange gods, Deut.7.4. Heb. from after me; as 1 Sam.15.11.

V. 20. Surely as a treacherous wife departeth from her husband, ſo have ye dealt treacherouſly with me, O houſe of Iſrael, ſaith the Lord.] Concerning the connexion of theſe words with the former, there is ſome diverſity of opinion among Interpreters, whence the initiall particle is diverſly either rendred, or ſupplyed. For ſome reade as our Verſion, Surely; and the word here uſed moſt uſually ſo ſignifies, Gen.28.17. Exod.2.14. ver.23. Yet ſome render it, But; and ſo it ſeems to be uſed, Pſal.66.19. & 82.7. Zeph.3.7. and this laſt place may ſeem parallel to the preſent: for God there telleth, what he preſumed and promiſed to himſelf of them, and expected from them: but withall there relateth, what contrary courſes they took; and it may be deemed, that God doth the like here: and this ſuiteth well with the Expoſition of thoſe, who underſtand the foregoing verſe, of the time paſt; to wit, of Gods ſeating and ſetling them at firſt in that land. But Others, ſome render it with the ſupply of a cauſal, For ſurely, which I conceive to ſort beſt with the ſequell of the context; as if God ſhould in theſe words have rendred a reaſon, why he would have her engage her ſelf unto ſuch future loyall carriage; becauſe ſhe had in this kind been very faulty before; ver. 6, 13. the like defect of the cauſal, ſee Gen.42.18.

as] The note of ſimilitude is wanting; as Job 7. 9. but it may here be included in the particle expreſſed; as in other the like oft it is, ſee Eſay 29.16. & 64.9.

a treacherous wife departeth] Heb. a woman dealeth diſloyally; a woman, for, a wife, as Chap.16.2. dealeth diſloyally, for, dealing diſloyally departeth: or in diſloyal manner leaveth, and departs from her husband, Prov. 2. 17. a complexive form, like that, Eſay 38.17. thou haſt loved my ſoul from the pit; that is, out of love delivered, or ſaved my ſoul from the pit; as Pſal. 103. 4.

from her husband.] Heb. friend; as Hoſ.3.1. either her husband, whom ſhe hath in a ſolemn legal manner been joyned to, or to whom ſhe hath otherwiſe engaged her ſelf; as that Levites concubine, Judg.19.1, 2. and that Samaritan woman, Joh. 4. 17, 18. a learned man obſerveth here, that the word cometh from a term, that ſignifieth to conſort, or keepeth company with one, Prov. 29. 3. and that thence an Ethiopick word derived, is uſed for a bridegroom, Mat. 9.15. and would have this ſo taken here.

ſo have ye dealt treacherouſly with me, O houſe of Iſrael] Or, ſo ye houſe of Iſrael (ye Iſraelites) have dealt diſloyally with me; unto whom ye had ſolemnly plighted your ſelves, as in a conjugal bond, ver.14. ſee ver.8.

V. 21. A voice was heard upon the high places weeping, and ſupplications of the children of Iſrael.] This voice divers Interpreters underſtand of a lamentation, and out-cry, made by the people, in regard of their grievous preſſures, and ſore calamities, either breaking in upon them, as thoſe that apply it unto Judah and Jeruſalem, ſurpriſed and ſacked, as ſome, by the Babylonians; as other, by the Romanes; (who ſeem to be clean out of the way) or continuing ſtill with them, and lying heavy upon them; as thoſe that apply it unto Iſrael, whom queſtionleſſe it concerns. But others rather, and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters, expound it, of a bewailing of their ſins, and acknowledgment of them, with a ſeeking unto God for mercy and pardon: and this the term of ſupplications leadeth us unto. The like, ſee Zach.12.10.

A voice was heard] So the Greek, and the Old Latine, whom moſt follow: Yet ſome late Writers, ſhall be heard: but it ſhould rather be, A voice is heard: for, as the Jewiſh Critick well obſerves, it is not a verb, but a participle of the preſent tenſe; as the like is, Chap.31.15. a place parallel to this: and it is, as if the Prophet had ſaid, Me thinks I hear ſuch a voice already, ſee Eſay 13.4.

upon the high places] The Greek here, by a groſs miſtake, renders it, A voice from the lips; The old Latine, in the wayes; as Amos 5.16. But the right of it is, as the Jewiſh Commenter well expreſſeth it, in the eminencies, or high, and eminent places; as Chap. 7.29. which ſome underſtand, on the houſe tops: where in publike calamities, lamentations, and outcries, were ſometime made, Eſay 15. 3. & 22.1. Chap.38.28. Others, ſuppoſe it an alluſion to the manner of thoſe that keep ſentinel in places erected for that purpoſe; or that having ſome buſineſſe of importance to impart unto others, get up into ſuch places, or repair to ſome higher ground, from whence they may the better, and by the more, be heard, Deut. 27.12, 13. Judg. 9. 7. Eſay 40.9. whether way in that regard we take it, the phraſe ſeems to import, either a loud cry; as Chap. 22. 20. or an open cry; as our Saviour uſeth the like term, Mat.10.27. with reference to ſuch places, from whence ſuch cries may be lowdeſt and fartheſt heard: for I can not concur with that learned man, that would have it rendred, in the low places, or in the plains, ſee on ver.2.

weeping and ſupplications] According to this reading, there is a defect of the copulative; as Eſay 30. 33. & 32. 13. which the Chaldee ſupplyes: and they are found ſo conjoyned, Chap.31. 9. but the words in the original ſeem here to run in another ſyntax, thus; A voice of weeping of ſupplications; that is, of weeping in ſupplications, or, of ſupplication tears: of weeping, or, mournfull ſupplications; of ſupplications joyned with weeping. So Ezek.7.16. Zach.12.10. Chap.31.18. ſorrow for ſin, and the expreſſions of it, ſhould be ſomewhat proportionable to the hainouſneſs of it; Peter when he had fallen fouly, wept bitterly, Mat.26.75.

for they have perverted their ways, and they have forgotten the Lord their God.] This ſome take as rendring a reaſon of their preſent calamity, the ground that had given them this cauſe of lamentation, Chap. 2. 17, 19. & 30. 15. ver.25. Eſay 59.12. Others, rather conceive it as the ſubject matter of their lamentation; they bewailed their ſins and forepaſſed tranſgreſſions, as Ephraim, the ſame with Iſrael, Chap 31. 18. to which purpoſe alſo ſome of the Rabbines ſupply the word of confeſſion; confeſſing, that they have perverted their wayes: but that is not neceſſary: for the text without it, runs ſmoothly enough thus; A voice of weeping in ſupplications, or ſupplications joyned with weeping, that they have, or becauſe they perverted their ways; that is the thing that in their prayer they lament and bewail: it is not unlike that, Lam.5.14. Wo worth us, that ever we thus ſinned; the particle is in either place the ſame.

perverted their ways] See Lam.3.9. forgotten the Lord their God] Hoſ.2.13. & 8.14. See Ch.2. 32.

V. 22. Return ye backſliding children——Behold we come unto thee.] In theſe words the Prophet ſeems to perſonate both the Miniſters of God, that ſhould invite this people to return unto God, in the former branch; and the people wrought upon by their miniſtery, returning an anſwer unto their call, in the latter branch; for the better cleering whereof, ſome inſert theſe ſupplies, Return ye backſliding children; ſhall the Lord ſay; and, Behold we come unto thee, ſhal they ſay; or, Return ye backſliding children, ſaith he; Behold we come unto thee, ſay they; for the Prophet ſpeaks it in a Prophetical ſtrain, as of a thing preſent. See the like, Pſal.27.8. 2 Sam.18.3. Eſay 26. 19. Chap. 2. 25.

Return ye backſliding children;] Gods gracious invitation of them, by his miniſters, and meſſengers, Act. 2. 38. & 3. 19. 2 Cor.5.20. See ver.14. Hoſ.14.1.

and I will heal your backſlidings.] Or revolts; all the breaches made between you and me, ſhall be ſalved and made up again; I will paſs them all by, and be reconciled again to you; yea, I will remove all thoſe evils, and repair all thoſe ruines, which by your revolt from me, you had brought upon your ſelves, ſee Eſay 57.18. Chap.32.40. Zach.10.6.

Behold, we come to thee:] Their anſwer, as ready to return at Gods call; as Pſal. 18. 44. ſpoken rather in the perſon of the people of Iſrael, to ſhame Judah: not unlike to that, 2 Sam. 19.11, 12. then, as ſome would have it, the ſpeech of God, putting ſuch words into their mouthes, as he would have them to uſe to him, ver.4, 5. Hoſ.14.2, 3. reading the words; ſay, Behold we come to thee.

for thou art the Lord our God.] Thou art he that haſt right to us, and art beſt able to ſave us, Eſay 55.7. Chap.14.22.

V. 23. Truly in vain is ſalvation hoped for from the hills, and from the multitude of mountains:] The reaſon why they repair to God, and ſeek unto him; becauſe they now find the vanity and inability of all other ſtays, and that he alone is able to ſave them. The Hebrew is conciſe; in vain from the hills, the multitude the mountains; but the ſupply is from the next branch: the like whereunto, ſee Pſal.20.7.

Pſal.125.2. Amos 6.1. or the aids that they expected from beyond the hils, Pſal.121. 1. & 60.11. by mountains eſpecially, the helps of great Kings, as the Aſſyrian and Egyptian, Hoſ.5.13. & 7.11. & 12.1. & 14.3. But others, and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters, their idols, whom they had worſhipped upon the hils and high places, ver. 6. Chap.2.20. but now found altogether unable to afford them any relief, or delivery, Chap.2.11, 13. & 10.5, 14, 15. Eſay 46.7.

and from the multitude of mountains;] Or, from the multitude in the mountains; that is, the multitude of idols that were worſhipped on the mountains: for the Jewiſh Criticks obſerve, that the former word doth not lean upon the latter, but is in a form abſolute and entire; and a defect there is of the particle in, to be ſupplyed; as Deut. 22. 21. 2 Kings 12. 11. Howbeit, a learned man would have the word rendered mountains, to be not a noun, but a verb, that ſignifieth to lift up, or to offer, whence the word for an oblation, Eſay 40. 20. and he thus, rendreth the whole ſentence, Surely in vain it is from off the hills to offer a multitude, to wit, of oblations, or main oblations; or becauſe the word hamon ſignifieth, as well noiſe, or tumult, as multitude, Pſal. 65. 7. to offer with noiſe, or tumult, a defect of the particle; as Eſay 33. 5, 7. as having reference to the mountains on which they were wont to ſacrifice to their Idols, ver.6. Chap.2.20. The words will admit either.

V. 25. We ly down in our ſhame, and our confuſion covereth us; for we have ſinned againſt the Lord our God, we and our fathers, from our youth unto this day, and have not obeyed the voice of our God.] We have likewiſe brought abundance of ſhame and confuſion upon our ſelves,by treading continually in the wicked ſteps of our fore-fathers.

ly down in ſhame] As a man that being in ſtreits,or diſcontent,and knoweth not which way to help himſelf, is wont to caſt himſelf down upon his couch, 1 Kin.21.4.or as ſick men, not able any longer to hold up the head,are compelled to betake themſelves to their bed, 2 Sam. 13. 5. 2 King. 1.4. or as ſome ſluggards,that ly over head and ears, wrapped up, and buried(as it were) in their bed-cloaths; as the Apoſtle,of the wicked of the world, that ly wallowing, as ſwine, in mire and dirt,that they ly down in wickedneſſe,1 Joh.5. 19. and the Latine proverbial form,of ſome, that they ly all in leven, as over head and ears in it.

confuſion covereth us] As Pſal.44.15. the ſhame of my face covereth me; an alluſion here to the coverings that men have caſt over them,when they ly in bed,Eſay 28.20. we have nothing but ſhame to wrap our ſelves in; nothing but confuſion to cover our ſelves with: by the like ſimilitude,it is ſaid of of Babel,the worm is ſpread under thee, and the magot over thee, Eſay 44. 11: ſuch ſhame and confuſion have thoſe ſhamefull things our idols brought us unto,ver.24.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. I*F thou wilt return,O Iſrael, ſaith the Lord, return unto me:*] Whether this Chapter begin another Sermon, or continue the former, is ſomewhat doubtful: as alſo, whom the two firſt verſes concern, whether the ten Tribes, or the other two.

O Iſrael] Thoſe that conceive this to be the beginning of a new Sermon, by Iſrael,underſtand Judah,mentioned after, ver.3.and ſo is Judah ſometime termed, as being, though not the greater,or larger, yet the better, and more principal part of Iſrael,Gen.49.10. So is it ſtyled, 2 Chr.12.1. & 15.17.& 21.2,4. & 29. 21, 24. But thoſe that continue this with the former(whom, upon due conſideration,I rather concur with) by Iſrael,underſtand the ten Tribes, as before, where invited to repentance,chap.3.12.

If thou wilt return,return unto me.] The words run thus, word for word in the original; If thou wilt return, O Iſrael, ſaith the Lord,unto me,thou wilt,or ſhalt return: Which divers Interpreters diverſly render. Some, as our Verſion, If thou wilt return,return to me; that is,turn not this way,or that way, from one idoll to another,or one forrein friend and helper to another,or one evill courſe to another, as bad or worſe then it,Chap.2.36.but home to me,as thou profeſſeſt to do,Chap. 3.22.and do it heartily,not feignedly, as thy ſiſter Judah hath done,chap.3.10.to me,I ſay, chap. 3.7. that ſearch and ſee the heart,1 Sam.16.7.Prov.15.10.& 16.2. chap.17.10. Others, If thou wilt return to me,(as thou profeſſeſt to do) return: do it ſincerely,with thine whole heart, as Joſias did, 2 King.23. 25. not with an heart,and an heart, Pſal. 12. 3. with a double, Jam.1.8.or,a divided heart,Hoſ.7.14,16 this reading,the ſtops in the text favour,making a ſhort ſtay, at, unto me: they come in effect much to one, and either of them fit well with the latter part of the foregoing Chapter, where a large profeſſion is made in the perſon of Iſrael, or the people of the ten Tribes, of their return to the true God,the God of Iſrael,their God; which they are here admoniſhed to ſee to, that it be ſound and ſincere,as chap. 24.7. and for the latter word, being no other then the former again repeated; it is not unuſual, that the future indicative form be uſed for the imperative; as in this very word, chap. 15. 19. Prov.1.23. But it may well be rendred, ſuſpending the ſentence, If thou wilt return to me, wilt return;I ſay. The ſame thing emphatically repeated; as Eſay 27.5.& 57.19.or,as ſome again, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, If thou wilt return to me, thou ſhalt return; to wit,from thy captivity again, as God had formerly promiſed,Deut.4.29——31. & 30.2——5. chap. 3. 14. and this way the Chaldee Paraphraſt goeth. Howbeit, ſome others, both Jewiſh,and ours, take the word here in the latter branch, not in a notion of returning,but of reſting, and abiding quiet. Of which uſe of the word, ſee at large, on Eſay 30.15. as alſo, ſomewhat hereafter,on chap.30.10.of theſe,ſome expound it, thou ſhalt reſt,applying it to Judah; that is, thou ſhalt quietly abide in thy land,where now thou art, and ſhall not wander, or go out of it into captivity; as they underſtand the next branch: or,as ſome,underſtanding it,as ſpoken by way of admonition,as Eſay 7.4. keep thy ſelf quiet, and look not after this courſe, and that courſe, for thine own ſecurity and ſafety,but reſt upon God alone, Eſay 28. 16. But I take it here rather in the former notion, and as a branch of the condition.

and if thou wilt put away thine abominations out of my ſight, then ſhalt thou not remove.] Heb. and wilt not,or ſhalt not wander: And here again Interpreters run ſeveral ways; ſome referring it to Judah, as our Verſion rendreth it, then thou ſhalt not wander; that is, go out of thy land into captivity, 2 King.21.8.Lam.1.8. or,then thou muſt not wander, or, then do not wander; for both come to one: if putting away thine idols,thou wilt return to me, thou muſt not wander again after them,or any other,but keep cloſe unto me, Chap. 2.25.& 14. 20.Deut.4.3,4.& 30.20.Pſal.81.8,9.and,for then; as Eſay 40.19.chap.2.21. thus they fit Iſrael as well as Judah. And I ſuppoſe they may be thus rendred in a continued, but ſtill ſuſpended,ſentence, If thou wilt return to me, and if thou wilt put away thine abominations, and wilt not wander: this is word for word the text.

thine abominations] Thine idols,which my ſoul loaths and abhors,Deut.27.15.Ezek.11.18. & 20.7,8. Of the term, ſee on Eſay 66.3,17.

out of my ſight] That is, ſaith the Jewiſh Doctor, out of every place whereſoever they are, for Gods eye is in every place,Prov.15.3.much more out of his land, which he hath a ſpeciall eye upon, Deut. 11. 12. and moſt of all, and of his houſe, his Temple, which he hath a continual eye unto, 1 Kin. 8. 29. & 9. 3. in which yet they had placed their abominable idols, 2 King. 21. 7. & 23. 4, 6. 2 Chr. 36. 14. Ezek. 8. 5, 6. thus applyed and reſtrained unto Judah. Others, more at large, out of all places, as well publike, as private alſo, Deut. 27. 15. Eſay 44. 13. Ezek. 8. 12. or not out of your houſes onely, but out of your hearts; for there alſo I ſee them, Ezek. 14. 3, 4. chap. 17. 1. ver. 14.

V. 2. And thou ſhalt ſwear,] As by way of injunction, as Deut. 10. 20. where ſwearing by the name of God, is made a part of Gods religious worſhip. Or, And wilt ſwear, as carrying on ſtill the condition. See Eſay 19. 18.

the Lord liveth] Or, by the life of the Lord; as, by the life of Pharao, Gen. 42. 15, 16. the ordinary form of an oath uſed in thoſe times, 1 Sam. 14. 39, 45. & 19. 6. if thou wilt, when thou doſt ſwear, ſwear by the Lord, Pſal. 63. 11. Eſay 65. 16. not by Baal, or any idol whatſoever, Joſh. 23. 7. Chap. 5. 7. & 12. 16. Zeph. 1. 5.

in truth, in judgment, and in righteouſneſs.] In ſincerity, not in hypocriſie, in a true, right, and religious manner: not falſly, feignedly, fraudulently; as thoſe, Eſay 48. 1. Chap. 5. 2.

in truth] Or, truly; as Judg. 9. 15, 16, 19. 1 Sam. 12. 24. ſwearing nothing, but what is agreeable to truth: not abuſing Gods name, to atteſt an untruth, Exod. 20. 7. Lev. 11. 12. Zach. 5. 4. & 8. 17.

in judgment] Or, conſiderately, Pſal. 112. 5. well weighing, and adviſedly conſidering, what it is that thou art to ſwear, and who it is by whom thou art to ſwear; that thou neither profane his name, and make it common, by light uſage, or upon light occaſions, Mat. 5. 34, 37. Jam. 5. 12. nor make uſe of it unadviſedly; but uſe it reverently, religiouſly, in matters of weighty concernment, Joſh. 19. 14, 15. Mat. 14. 7. though ſome refer it to matter of judicature; as Prov. 16. 10. & 24. 23. but the word judgment, is of a far larger extent. See Eſay 56. 1.

in righteouſneſs] Or, righteouſly; as Pſal. 72. 2. Eſay. 63. 1. binding thy ſelf unto nothing by oath, but what is equal and juſt; not making an oath a bond of iniquity, 1 Sam. 25. 22. Mat. 14. 7. ſwearing with a full purpoſe, to perform what thou doſt by oath oblige thy ſelf unto; and being careful accordingly to make the ſame good, Pſal. 15. 4. Mat. 5. 33.

and the nations ſhall bleſſe themſelves in him, and in him ſhall they glory.] Or, then; as chap. 1. 4. See ver. 1. for the Jewiſh Doctor well obſerveth, that this cometh in here, as an effect, and event, that ſhould enſue upon Iſraels performance of the foregoing offices: though he carry it not along, as I conceive he ſhould do: the copulative running along in the original, in ſpeeches of this nature, thorough each branch the ſame, makes it uncertain ſometime where the condition ends, and where the matter, enſuing upon the performance of it, begins. Hence miſtakes in not ſetling the connexion aright, and breaking off the condition too ſoon. So in Jacobs vow, Gen. 28. 20. If God will be with me, and will keep me, and will give me food and rayment; 21. and I return in ſafety to my fathers houſe, and the Lord will be my God; 22. and this ſtone which I here pitch ſhall be Gods houſe; and of all that thou ſhalt give me I will tithe out unto thee: where they break off the condition amiſs in the midſt of ver. 21. rendring the words, then the Lord ſhall be my God: whereas it ought to be carryed on unto the end of that verſe, and the note of engagement fixed at the beginning of ver. 22. then this ſtone ſhall be Gods houſe, &c. In like manner, here is the condition needleſly interrupted, which might well be carryed on without interciſion from the beginning of the Chapter, to this branch; If thou O Iſrael wilt return to me; and if thou wilt put away thine idols, and wilt not wander; and wilt ſwear by the Lords life, in truth, and judgment, and righteouſneſſe; then ſhall the nations bleſſe themſelves in him, and in him ſhall they glory; That is, when thou ſhalt thus religiouſly demean thy ſelf, then ſhall other people moved by thine example, come in alſo unto God, and worſhip him, together with thee, Pſal. 47. 8, 9. that which was before hinted, chap. 3. 17.

ſhall bleſs themſelves in him] The word indeed is thus actively and reciprocally uſed, Deut. 29. 19. yet ſometime onely paſſively; as Gen. 22. 18. & 26. 4. compared with chap. 12. 3. it is ſomewhat ambiguous, whether way it be taken, Pſal. 72. 17. they ſhall bleſſe themſelves by him, or, they ſhall be bleſſed in him. Now the Jewiſh Doctors take it here; ſome, the former way; ſome, the latter; but both applying it not to God, but to Iſrael: the former thus expound it; they ſhall bleſſe either themſelves, or any other, in him; that is, in Iſrael: as for example, ſay they, when a man bleſſeth his ſon, he ſhall wiſh, or pray, that he may prove like ſuch or ſuch an Iſraelite. See ſomewhat the like to this, Eſay 65. 16. The latter render it, they ſhall be bleſſed in him; that is, in Iſrael, the ſeed of Abraham, and Iſaac, in whom all Nations ſhould be bleſſed, Gen. 22. 18. & 26. 4. And becauſe the change of thee to him, the ſecond perſon to the third, might be objected, as indeed it may well, they anſwer, That in Scripture ſuch paſſage from perſon to perſon is not unuſual, which is true indeed; for we find the like in the place a little before cited, Gen. 28. 21, 22. where there is a manifeſt change of the perſon from he to thee, from the third, back to the ſecond: but to make ſuch changes needleſly, there is little ground, or reaſon, where the text, as it is read ſimply, runs on ſmoothly without, as here it doth. In him, therefore is no other here, then that God, by whom they were to ſwear, and unto whom, being invited by him ſo to do, they were to return; in him the Nations, coming after their example in to him, and being his as well as themſelves, and finding gracious acceptance and entertainment with him, chap. 3. 17. ſhall bleſs him, Pſal. 103. 1. Eph. 1. 3. and be bleſſed in him, and bleſs themſelves for him, that ever they came to know him, and have intereſt in him. See Pſal. 72. 17. & 117. 1. Rom. 15. 10, 11.

and in him ſhall they glory] Not in Iſrael, but in God. The verb here, as the former, is in a reciprocal form: whence it is ſometime not unfitly rendred, as in ſuch a notion; he that boaſteth himſelf of a falſe gift, Prov. 25. 14. and, boaſt not thy ſelf of to morrow, Prov. 27. 1. But oft-times it doth not fitly admit that reciprocal ſenſe; and in this caſe ſometime it ſignifies, as in its firſt form, to praiſe: but in a more then ordinary, in an eminent manner; for theſe forms imply an intention of the thing deſigned, and add weight to it. So Pſal. 56. 4, 10. that which is rendred, In God will I praiſe his word; would rather be, I will greatly praiſe God, for, or becauſe of (ſupplyed, as Mal. 2. 5.) his word: that is, his promiſe: or, I will glory in God; as it is rendred, Eſay 45. 25. In God ſhall all the ſeed of Iſrael glory; and, Let him that glorieth, glory in the Lord, Chap. 9. 24. 1 Cor. 1. 31. 2 Cor. 10. 17. So it may well alſo be rendred, Pſal. 34. 2. & 44. 8. They ſhall exceedingly praiſe his name, having had pregnant proof of his goodneſs, 1 Chr. 16. 10. Pſal. 105. 3. and they ſhall glory now, having a part among his people in him, Pſal. 106. 5. as before they did in their idols, Pſal. 97. 7. for he is the praiſe, and the glory of his people, Pſal. 89. 16, 17. & 106. 47. & 148. 14.

V. 3. For thus ſaith the Lord unto the men of Judah and Jeruſalem;] From this place, the Prophet leaving Iſrael, turneth to Judah, and directeth his ſpeech unto them, calling upon them for repentance, and reformation of heart and life, and exhorting them to ſolemn and ſerious humiliation, for the averting of Gods judgments, ver. 3, 8, 14. diſcovering the neer approach of them, ver. 6, 7, 9. blaming the falſe Prophets for promiſing peace, ver. 10. convincing the people to be guilty by the wicked courſes of their own ruine, ver. 18. bewailing their folly, that would take no warning, ver. 19-22. and the calamities that for the ſame would ſhortly befall them, by the fierce and furious acceſs of a potent and enraged adverſary, ver. 11-13, 15-17. and by the horrible waſte and havock made of the whole land by him, ver. 23-31.

For] So is the particle rendred, Chap. 3. 25. & 6. 13. But I ſuppoſe it would rather be rendred, Moreover; as it is by Interpreters of good note, Eſay 15. 8. & 16. 9. becauſe it beginneth a new diſcourſe, directed to another perſon; but entred upon with the ſame admonition in effect, that before had been given unto the other, Chap. 3. 12, 14, 22.

thus ſaith the Lord to the men of Judah, and of Jeruſalem] What before he called upon Iſrael for, he calleth upon you of Judah now for the like. Heb. to man of Judah, (man, for, men, as Eſay 5. 3. or, man, for each one; as Ezek. 20. 7, 8.) and to Jeruſalem; or, as ſome, with a ſupply from the former, to the men of Jeruſalem; and may as well be, to the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem; as it is, Eſay 5. 3. and ver. 4. Of Judah and Jeruſalem, ſee on Eſay 1. 1.

Break up your fallow ground, and ſow not among thorns.] Heb. Fallow your fallow, or fallow ye a fallow: if theſe terms at leaſt do well ſuit with, and fitly expreſs, the notion of the Hebrew term; for the noun nir, ſeems to ſignifie a plough land, rather then a fallow: (as where it is ſaid, much food is in the plough-land of the poor, Prov. 13. 23.) and the verb by ploughing, to break up ſuch grounds, which therefore to the ſenſe our Verſion well yieldeth; and might not amiſs alſo be rendred, plough up your plough-land: and the Jewiſh Commenters ſo expound it; and ſo Hoſ. 10. 11. where the ſame advice is given to Iſrael, that is here unto Judah. Rid your hearts and lives by ſincere repentance, and ſerious reformation of your inordinate luſts, diſtempered affections, impious carriages, and abominable practices, which as noiſome weeds, or as briers and brambles, ſo long as your hearts are peſtered, and your lives over-grown with them, will ſuffer no ſeed of wholeſome admonition or inſtruction to prevail with you, nor ought to thrive or come to any good iſſue, that is either by your ſelves undertaken, or by any other for you; for the ſpeech is of far larger extent, then of preparation of the heart for the receiving of the word, though in particular applyable thereunto: whereof ſee Mat. 13. 7, 25. Luk. 8. 14, 15. Jam. 1. 21. but is not, leſt the Prophets of God ſow their ſeed among thorns with you; but that you your ſelves ſow not among thorns, leſt by continuance in your wicked courſes, ye cauſe that all your endeavours ſhould yield you no more benefit, then your grain caſt on the ground over-ſpread with thorns would do, Prov. 14. 31. a metaphor taken from grounds that are to be broken up for tillage, which had never been to that purpoſe employed before, or that having been formerly ſo employed, having lien long fallow, and being over-grown therefore with weeds and thorns, are not fit to receive ſeed, which would but be caſt away, being caſt upon them, untill they be broken up with the plough-ſhare, and rid of that traſh; which wicked courſes, are compared unto, Heb. 6.8.

ſow not among thorns.] Or, upon thorns. Heb. unto, for, upon; as 1 Sam. 17. 49. Chap. 35.17. It ſeems to have been a proverbial form among them; to ſow upon thorns, as, to ſow upon ſtones, Amos 6.12. Mat. 13.5. Luk. 8. 6. both uſed of fruitleſs labour. As all things thrive with the godly, Pſal. 1.3. Rom. 8. 28. ſo nothing proſpereth with the wicked, Chap. 2. 37. and 16.21.

V. 4. Circumciſe your ſelves to the Lord, and take away the fore-skin of your heart,] Circumciſe not your fleſh alone, but your hearts alſo; get you the ſpiritual circumciſion, Deut. 10. 16. & 30. 6. Col. 2. 11. and content not your ſelves with the carnal alone, wherein you ſo much glory, Act. 11. 2,3. Gal. 6. 14. Eph. 2. 11. Phil. 3. 5. for the one will nothing avail you without the other, chap. 9.25, 26. Rom. 2.25. The ſame thing in effect with the former, but delivered in another notion, to meet with their vain confidence in the fleſh, Phillip. 3. 4.

Circumciſe your ſelves] Heb. Be circumciſed; as Gen. 34. 24. but theſe paſſives are oft reciprocal. So, be hidden, for, hide your ſelves, Chap. 36. 19. See the like, Eſay 1. 6. and 5. 8.

to the Lord] With that circumciſion that he requireth, regardeth, take notice of, and approveth, Deut. 10. 16. Rom. 2. 29. Phil. 3.3. to the Lord, for, for to me: the noun, for the pronoun; as ver. 2. Gen. 19.24. 2 Tim. 1.18.

the fore-skin of your heart] The ſinfull body of the fleſh, Col. 2. 11. the obſtinacy that groweth like a thick skin over your hearts, Chap. 6.10. Ezek. 44. 9. Act. 7.51.

ye men of Judah, and inhabitants of Jeruſalem;] Heb. man; as ver. 3. Eſay 5.3.

leſt my fury come forth like fire, and burn that none can quench it, becauſe of the evill of your doings.] That the wrath of God, by your evill courſes incenſed againſt you, do not in ſo fierce a manner break in upon you, that there will be no pacifying, or appeaſing of it again, untill ye be conſumed by it.

my fury] Or, wrath: ſee Eſay 51.22. & 63.5.

come forth] As Judg. 9.20. or, go forth; as Eſay 55. 11. Hoſ. 6.5. as fire out of a cloud, Pſal. 18.12. or, as that from the Lord that ſmote Nadab and Abihu, Lev. 10.2.

like fire] Zeph. 2.2. So Deut. 32.22. Pſal. 79.5.

that none can quench it] Heb. and there be no quencher: So Chap. 21.12. Amos 5. 6. but theſe enunciatives have oft a potential notion. So Chap. 2.23,32. and the like denunciation, Chap. 17.20,27. and, for, that; as chap. 14.19. a defect of the pronoun it; as Eſay 9.9. & 21.3.

becauſe of the evill of your doings.] Or, for; Heb. from the face of. So chap. 7.12. It is ſin alone that encenſeth Gods wrath, Eſay 64.5.

V. 5. Declare ye in Judah, and publiſh in Jeruſalem, and ſay, Blow ye the trumpet:] Give warning thorowout the whole country, and at Jeruſalem eſpecially, of the enemies approach, ver. 16. And this the Prophet ſubjoyneth to his former admonitions, to ſhew, that it is high time for them to go about that, which therein be required of them; and withall, to intimate, in what kind and manner it was, that the wrath of God was ready to break in upon them; not by a peſtilence, as Pſal. 106.29. or famine, as Pſal. 105.16. but by a forrein invaſion, the laſt and worſt of evils; and that which uſually draws thoſe other two at its heels, Lev. 26.25,26.

Declare and publiſh] Or, Declare it, and publiſh it: the like defect with that, ver. 4. publiſh, Heb. make to hear; as Eſay 48. 20.

Blow the trumpet] To give warning of the enemies approach, Chap. 6.1. Ezek. 33.2,3. and to call men either to aſſemble and arm, 2 Sam. 20.1,2. 1 Cor. 14.8. or retire out of the fields, and repair to the Towns and places of ſtrength, chap. 8.14. & 10.17.

cry, gather together, and ſay, Aſſemble your ſelves, and let us go into the defenced cities.] The ſpeeches and courſes of people at their wits end, unable to ſtand before, much leſs to make head againſt the forces breaking in upon them, and reſolving therefore by flight, and repair to places of ſtrength, to make what ſhift they can to ſave themſelves.

cry, gather together] Heb. cry, or call, fill, that is, cry with full mouth; ſee ch. 12,6. or, call a full aſſembly: ſo, a fulneſs, for a full aſſembly; or, a company, a multitude, Eſay 31.4. &c, to fill, for, to follow fully, Num. 32.11,12. and, to gather all together, or, to make all ready, chap. 51. 11. call all together, or, call all to come together; call fill, for, call to fill; as, roſe early corrupted, for, roſe early to corrupt, Zeph. 3.7.

Aſſemble your ſelves] So chap. 8.14. Heb. be aſſembled, or gathered together; as Gen. 49.1. Ezek. 39. 17. as, be circumciſed, ver. 4. or, as ſome; Retire, betake your ſelves; as the word is uſed, Lev. 26.25. Num. 30.11,30. 2 Sam. 17.13. But in thoſe places is ſtill ſubjoyned, an expreſſion of ſome place to be retired unto; whereas here the word is put abſolutely: and that act is intimated in the next clauſe, to which this coming together, is as a preparative; as if it were ſaid, get ye together, as many as ye deſire ſhould be in ſafety, and repair to ſome place of ſtrength.

let us go into the defenced cities.] For ſhelter and ſuccour, againſt the invading enemy. So Judg. 9. 31. Chap. 36. 6. Mat. 24.16. Heb. cities of fortification, or defence; as Chap. 1.18. & 34. 7.

V. 6. Set up the ſtandards towards Zion:] Heb. ſtandard; as ver. 21. nor need it be altered; though the Authors of this Verſion ſeem to have conceived it, as ſpoken of the Chaldeans coming in, and marching with their banners and enſigns diſplayed againſt Jeruſalem: but they ſeem rather the words of the Prophet in the perſon of the Jewiſh people, ſhewing what they will then do, or require to be done; and to be a continuation of their advice, in part, delivered, ver. 5. And this way Interpreters, as well Jewiſh, as others, do moſt generally take them: towards Zion; that is, as ſome, in Zion; in Jeruſalem, and in Sion the higheſt place of it, whence it may be fartheſt ſeen: ſo, to the ground, for, on the ground, Gen. 28. 12. toward Babel, for, in Babel, Chap. 29.15. toward the North, for, in the North, Chap. 46.6. Or, as others rather, ſet up a ſtandard towards Zion; that is, whereby men may be admoniſhed to repair unto Sion, or to make towards Sion; to Jeruſalem, their chief city of ſtrength; as Sion the ſtrongeſt place in it, 2 Sam. 5.6,7. ſo Chap. 50.5. a defective or complexive form of ſpeech, like thoſe, Pſal. 31.17. let them be cut off into the grave, for, cut off, and thrown into the grave; Eſay 14.12. thou art cut down to the ground, for, cut off, and thrown down to the ground; Eſay 38.17. thou haſt loved my ſoul from the pit, for, out of love to my ſoul, kept it from the pit.

retire] Some render it, ſtrengthen your ſelves; as if it came from that verb, that hath a notion of hardening, or ſtrengthening, Prov. 7.13. & 21.29. but it ſeems rather to come from another root, that ſignifies, to retire, or get away; as Exod. 9.19. Eſay 10.31. Chap. 6.1.

ſtay not] Heb. ſtand not; as Deut. 5.31. Chap. 51.50. Haſten each one, without delay, to flee for his life from the danger approaching, Luk. 17. 31. Hitherto was the ſpeech of the people, ſuch as they ſhould uſe amidſt that fear and confuſion, that the Chaldean forces, breaking into their land, ſhould bring upon them. Now follow Gods Word, by the Prophet, relating the occaſion and ground that ſhould be of this terrour.

For I will bring evill from the north, and a great deſtruction:] Heb. I (the Lord) am bringing (ſo Chap. 5.15. & 6.19. as of a thing in doing; and ſo it is well rendred, 2 King. 21.12.) evill (a devaſtation of your land, Chap. 1.14.) from the north (from Chaldea, Chap. 1.13,15. & 6.22.) and a great breaking, or even (as Eſay 56.5,7.) a grievous deſtruction; as Eſay 30.23,24. ver. 20. Chap. 6.1.

V. 7. The lion is come up from his thicket,] The lion (Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Babylon, 2 King. 24. 1. ſo termed for his force and fierceneſs, Prov. 30.30,31. the like whereunto, ſee chap. 2.15. & 5.6. Ezek. 19.2. Dan. 7.4. 2 Tim. 4. 17.) is come up (or, come forth, or come on; as Eſay 7.1,6.) from his thicket; his covert; as Chap. 35.28. becauſe ſuch is commonly in the foreſt among the thicket, Eſay 9.18. that is, from Babylon, his ſtrongeſt hold, and ſtatelyeſt ſeat; his principall place of conſtant reſidence and retire, Dan. 4.30.

and the deſtroyer of the Gentiles is on his way] Or, a deſtroyer of nations; for here is no ſpecial diſtinction between Jew and Gentile intended: one, by whom God hath already deſtroyed many Nations, 2 King. 24.7. Eſay 14. 17. Chap. 50.23. & 51. 20. and intendeth to deſtroy thee, Chap. 23.7. is on his way; or, is ſet forward; as Num. 10.18,22. is on his march for Jeruſalem, Ezek. 21.21,22.

to make thy land deſolate] Heb. to put thy land into deſolation; or, to make it a deſolation; that is, very deſolate; as Eſay 13 9. Chap. 2.15.

and thy cities ſhall be laid waſte without an inhabitant.] Or, as ſome, that thy cities may be over-grown with graſs: for the Jewiſh Criticks are divided about the notion of the word here uſed. Some deriving it from a word, that ſignifies, dryneſſe, and conſequently waſteneſſe, Chap. 2.6. Others, from a verb ſignifying, as they conceive, to ſprout out with graſs, or the like, as the bodies of fowls do with feathers; becauſe the letters of it come neer to thoſe words that have either of theſe notions: and hence the two-fold rendring of the verb here; as the like of the participle, 2 King.19.25. & Eſay 37.26. for the word is no where elſe found in either notion, which maketh it the more ambiguous; but whether way it be taken, the ſenſe is the ſame; for places lying waſte, are ſo uſually over-grown, Eſay 5.6. & 32.13,14.

without inhabitant] As chap.2.15. & 9.11. or, becauſe there is no inhabitant in them: for in theſe, and the like forms, the particle here uſed, hath the nature of a cauſal; as Num.14.16. chap.10.6. & 19.11.

V. 8. For this, gird you with ſackcloth, lament and howl:] Or, Becauſe of this; or, Therefore; as Pſal. 32.6. Lam. 5.17, 18.

gird you with ſackcloth] Heb. gird ſacks: the wonted garb in great and grievous mournings, publike eſpecially, in thoſe times among that people, 2 King.6.30. Eſay 3.24. & 22.12. Chap.6.26.

Lament and howl] Some ſuppoſe that the former word importeth properly the expreſſions of grief, by outward geſtures of the body, as wringing the hands, beating on the breaſt, and the like, chap.2.37. Nah.2.7. Luk.18.13. the latter, by weeping, complaining, crying out, and the like, Pſal.32.3. Eſay 38.14. & 59.11. Hoſ.7.14. See on Eſay 32.12.

for the fierce wrath of the Lord is not turned back from us] Or, becauſe (as chap.3.21,25.) the fierce wrath of the Lord will not turn from us; untill it have done that which God intendeth by it, chap.30.24. ſee Eſay 9.12,17. & 13.13.

V. 9. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, ſaith the Lord,] As chap.3.16,17.

that the heart of the King ſhall periſh, and the heart of the Princes, and the Prieſts ſhall be aſtoniſhed, and the Prophets ſhall wonder.] The effect of the report of the enemies irruption, arriving at Jeruſalem, and the peoples flocking thither for ſhelter and ſafety; to wit, that the great ones, who ſhould have encouraged the meaner ſort, and thoſe who had promiſed them peace and ſecurity, ſhould then themſelves be utterly diſmayed, and at their wits end.

the heart of the Kings, and the Princes ſhall periſh,] They ſhall be clean out of heart: ſo Pſal.73.26. my heart faileth, and it is withered like graſs, Pſal.102.4. and melted as wax, Pſal.22.14. but here more then all that, it is periſhed; clean deſtroyed, utterly gone; as Pſal.12.1. Eſay 57.1. Mic.7.2. as it is ſaid of the Canaanites, that upon the report of the Iſraelites paſſing Jordan, there was no ſpirit any more in them, Joſh.5.1. ſo with theſe it would be upon this occaſion, as if there had been no heart at all in them.

the Prieſts, and the Prophets] The falſe Prophets, that prophecied nothing but peace, Chap. 6. 14. & 8. 11. See verſe 10.

ſhall wonder.] Or rather, be amazed; as the word is rendred, Eſay 13.8. or, aſtoniſhed; as Job 26.11. but that this was before uſed, to expreſs another term of the ſame notion: for wonder here is too ſlight and ſlender; ſince that the meaning is not, that they ſhould wonder to ſee their prophecies prove falſe, which they knew well enough to be no other, then vain devices of their own coining, chap.23.26,27. but they ſhould be diſmayed, as well as the reſt, for all their confidence that they had before made ſhew of, and endeavoured to work into others; and that the rather, becauſe, then to their ſhame, they would be diſcovered, and generally in diſgrace; yea, even abhorred by thoſe, whom formerly by their lying prophecies, they had deluded, ſee chap.37.19.

V. 10. Then ſaid I,] Heb. And I ſaid; as chap.1.11.

Ah Lord God, Surely thou haſt greatly deceived this people; and Jeruſalem, ſaying, ye ſhall have peace whereas the ſword reacheth unto the ſoul.] The Prophet having made mention of thoſe falſe Prophets, ver.9. doth here thereby take occaſion to complain of their deluding the people, by promiſing them, as from God, peace and ſafety.

Ah Lord God,] As chap.1.6. and ſee the Prophets grief, for the peoples being thus deluded by theſe falſe Prophets, chap.23.9.

Surely thou haſt greatly deceived this people,] Or, much deceived. Heb. deceiving deceived: not that God indeed had ſo done, or that he had promiſed peace and ſafety; but that the falſe Prophets had in his name, and as from him, ſo propheſied to them, chap.23,17,25,31. & 27.9,14,15. & 28.2,11. and the people believed them, chap. 23.32. and that God ſhould indeed have deceived them exceedingly, if he had ſent them upon any ſuch errand unto his people, as they pretended; but which indeed he had not done, chap. 23.16,21,25,27,32. Howbeit, ſome expound it, thou haſt deceived this people; that is, ſuffered them to be deceived; as Eſay 63.17. & Ezek.14.9. by giving them up, and leaving them unto thoſe their falſe Prophets deluſions; becauſe they loved not, nor liſted to liſten unto his truth, but deſired and delighted to be flattered, and ſoothed up with ſuch lies, as thoſe their Prophets preached to them, 1 King.22.8,23. Eſay 30.10,11. chap.5.31. Mic.2.6, 11. & 3.5. 2 Theſſ.2.11,12. Others, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, Thou haſt ſhewed this people to be greatly deceived; to deceive, for, to ſhew to be deceived: as, to know, ſay ſome of ours, for, to make to know, Gen.22.12. Deut.13.3. God by his judgments upon them, made it to appear, that their falſe Prophets had deluded them. But the words may well be read by way of interrogation; Haſt thou indeed thus deceived this people? as if he had ſaid; Is it poſſible thou ſhouldſt promiſe them peace, and hold them in an expectation of it, as theſe Prophets in thy name do, when thou intendeſt nothing leſs? implying it to be a thing altogether impoſſible that God ſhould ſo do, Num.23.19. Tit.1.2. The note of interrogation, in the Hebrew, oft wanting, maketh divers places the more ambiguous; as Job 13.15. Hoſ.4.14. Mal.1.8.

ye ſhall have peace] All ſhall be well; or all ſhall go well with you; for that is the uſuall ſignification of the term in ſuch forms of ſpeech; Is it peace? or, Is all well? 2 King. 9.11,17,19,31. and enquire of their peace; that is, whether all be well with them, Gen.37.14. 1 Sam.17.18. chap.15.5. and this was the falſe Prophets uſuall note to the people, chap. 23.17. & 5.12. Ezek.13.10,16.

whereas the ſword reacheth unto the ſoul.] Sticketh to the heart, ver.18. woundeth deadly, even to the taking away of life; ſoul, for, life; as ver.30. 1 Sam. 26. 24. Mat.16.25,26. Luk.14.26. So David, the waters are come in even unto the ſoul, Pſal.69.1.

V. 11. At that time it ſhall be ſaid unto this people, and to Jeruſalem, A dry wind of the high places in the wilderneſs toward the daughter of my people, not to fan, nor to cleanſe.] Tidings ſhall in thoſe times come to the men of Judah, and thoſe eſpecially of Jeruſalem, of a ſtormy wind coming toward them, that ſhall ſweep all away before it.

At that time] When the King of Babylon ſhall be on his march, ver.7.

it ſhall be ſaid to this people] News ſhall be brought them, ver.5. as Zeph.3.16.

and to Jeruſalem] As ver.

A dry wind] Or, as ſome, A clear wind: and ſo the Chaldee, becauſe the word is ſometime uſed for clearneſs, Eſay 32.4. or, A fair wind, without wet: the word being uſed for ſerenity, Eſay 18.4. and theſe two come much to one: and ſuch uſually the North wind is, Job 37.22. Prov.25.23. and they ſuppoſe the word hath in it ſome glance to that coaſt, from whence the enemy was to come, ver.6. which yet is more probable, then that which ſome of the Rabbines have, who becauſe the word ſometime applyed to mens perſons, ſignifies, fair, and white, Cant.5.10. Lam.4.7. expound it of the Chaldean army, that they ſhould be all goodly, and ſightly, the men, their horſes, their apparel, their armour, and arms, Ezek. 23.12,15. But the meaning is rather, as our Verſion well rendreth it, and as other of the Jewiſh Writers well interpret it, a dry, or, a drying wind; and the old Latine not amiſs, a parching, or a ſcorching wind; a wind that bringeth no rain or moiſture with it to water the grounds, but that blaſteth, and parcheth, and burneth up all, and maketh all the land to be, for drought, like a deſart. So is the word uſed, Pſal.68.6. Eſay 58.11. Ezek.24.7,8. & 26.4,14. It is a reſemblance of the Chaldean Army coming in ſwiftly and fiercely, like a ſore tempeſtuous wind, making ſpoyl and havock of all. So chap. 23.19. & 30.23,24,28.

of the high places in the wilderneſs] Or, upon the high places in the plain: for ſo alſo is the word uſed, ſee Eſay 63.13. chap. 9.10. a defect of the prepoſition; as Eſay 26.18. & 48.4. Some Interpreters put in the verb, bloweth: I ſhould rather, if any ſupply be deemed needfull, the participle, blowing: for the ſentence is not conſummate in this verſe, but continued, and carryed on to the next: a wind on high ground, and in a plain, in a champion, where it is wont to be moſt powerful and prevalent, there being no ſhelter againſt it, nor ought to break the force of it, as in other places oft there is, Eſay 32.1. Chap. 13. 24. Some think an alluſion to thoſe mountains, plains, or waſtes, that lay between Chaldea, and Judea, by which the enemy was to march, in his expedition, againſt them, ver.12. But a learned man would not have the word rendred high places, either here, or elſewhere, ſo to ſignifie; but champion, or plains, or valleys, rather; in which, ſaith he, lying between hills, the ſun-beames, by reflection having the more force, make the wind the more ſcorching; but it ſeemeth to be not the parching or ſcorching onely, or ſo much as the ſcattering and carrying away of all before it, that is here moſt intended principally, which in higher places the wind hath more power to do, then in lower, and I ſee not therefore, why the received Verſion (which the beſt of the Jewiſh Commenters conſtantly adhereth to) ſhould be waved, either here, or elſe-where: ſee on Eſay 13.1. chap.3.2.

toward] Heb. in the way of the daughter of my people ; as Num. 14.25. & 21.4,33. where there is a defect of the particle in, as here : and the words would be rendred, as here ; toward the red-ſea, and toward Baſan.

the daughter of my people] As, the daughter of Sion, Eſay 1.8. See there ; my people, for beauty and delicacy, like a young damſel ; and as dear to me as a darling daughter. So Chap. 9. 1.

not to fan, nor to cleanſe] Not ſuch a wind as they uſe to fan with, and by fanning, to cleanſe the grain, by ſevering the chaff, and ſuch like lighter traſh, from the good corn, and weighty grain, and carrying away the one, but leaving the other, Mat. 3. 12. for ſuch wind, muſt not be any ſtiff, or boyſterous wind ; but this wind is ſuch an one, ſo fierce, ſo furious, as ſcattereth, and carryeth all together away with it. See Eſay 27.8. chap. 15.7. & 18.17. & 51.1. Ezek. 5.2. & 21.3.

V. 12. Even a full wind from thoſe places ſhall come to me.] Even a full wind : the particle ſupplyed ; as Job 42. 16. or, A full wind, I ſay ; as Eſay 35.4. & 51.22. for the ſentence from the foregoing verſe is continued in this : a full wind, that is, a wind-full of a curſe and calamities ; a peſtilent wind, ſaith one of the Jewiſh Commenters : but rather, as another of them, a ſtiff, a ſtrong wind ; as 2 King. 9. 24. Jehu filled his hand with a bow, that is, as our Verſion not amiſs readeth it, drew a bow with full ſtrength : and ſo here, a full wind : a wind blowing in its full ſtrength, having nothing to oppoſe it. See on ver. 11. But there ſeems ſomewhat more in it, then the Jewiſh Criticks here takes notice of : for the particle ſubjoyned, is commonly a note of compariſon : great from, in Hebrew, is greater, Gen. 48.19. good from ; better, Prov. 22. 1. Eccl. 7.1. ſtrong from ; ſtonger, 2 Sam. 1. 23. Pſal. 18.17. in which places alſo it ſhould be ſo rendred : that therefore which is here rendred from thoſe places, as having reference to the high places in the plain, or waſte, before mentioned, ver. 11. ſome other Interpreters conceive rather, to imply ſome matter of collation, then of lation, or motion, from place to place : and they render the words a fuller, that is, a ſtronger then they : which they refer to the perſons before-mentioned, ver. 9, 11. that ſhould be carryed away with it : as if it were ſaid, a wind ſtronger then they are able to endure or withſtand : but that ſeems to look too far backward. I rather conceive it to have reference to ſuch winds, as they uſed to fan, and cleanſe their corn with, in the latter end of ver. 11. in the words next before going ; and ſuppoſe it would be rendred therefore, fuller and ſtronger, in fuller ſtrength, then thoſe, to wit, winds wherewith ye uſe to winow and cleanſe your corn, Eſay 30. 14.

ſhall come to me] Or, cometh to me, that is, as ſome, againſt me ; as chap. 3.25. Pſal. 51.4. & 56.3. So the Jewiſh Doctors : the Prophet, ſay they, ſpeaking in the perſon of the people ; or rather, relating the words of the people, what in thoſe times they ſhould ſay, ver. 11. But ours moſt underſtand it, as ſpoken in the perſon of God, ſhall come for me ; that is, by commiſſion from me, at my command, to do my work, to fulfill my will ; as of wind and ſtorm it is ſaid, Pſal. 148.8. So Eſay 6. 8. who ſhall go for us ? and this they ſuppoſe confirmed, by what followeth : but thereof there is no neceſſity ; and the courſe of the context ſeems to carry it rather the former way : unleſſe we will take it for an elegant redundancy, very common, not in Hebrew onely, but in other Languages, as well learned, as vulgar. So Gen. 12. 1. Go thee out of thy country, Num. 22.6, 11. Curſe me this people, Exod. 30.24. Take thee Spices, Gen. 27.13. Take me a kid, Cant. 4. 6. & chap. 5.5. I will go me, and the like ; which if we admit, it will then be no more then, ſuch a wind as hath been deſcribed, cometh me : for in the preſent tenſe, I ſuppoſe, it ought to be rendred ; becauſe it is not a ſpeech of prophecie, fore-telling what ſhall be, or what will come ; but a ſpeech, reporting at that time, when the enemy is on his way, what there is coming towards them.

now alſo will I give ſentence againſt them.] Heb. will I ſpeak, or, utter judgments with them. Of which phraſe, ſee chap. 1. 16. when this ſtorm comes, which they ſhall then be told of, ver. 11. The very report whereof ſhall amaze, and amate, the mightieſt, and moſt confident among them, ver. 9. then (for he ſpeaketh of it, as of a thing preſent) will I put in execution that doom, that I formerly paſt upon them : it would therefore be rendred, now, (to wit, at this time, by this ſtormy wind) will I alſo, or, even (as Eſay 57.6, 7.) I will do execution upon them. See chap. 39.5.

V. 13. Behold, He ſhall come up as clouds] Another reſemblance, ſetting forth the manner of the enemies coming in upon them ; uſhered in with a note of admiration in the front of it. So Eſay 10.33. & 66.12.

he] Nebuchadnezzar, and his forces.

ſhall come up] Or, come marching. See Eſay 7.2. ver. 7.

as clouds] As clouds driven with the wind, for ſwiftneſſe ; as Eſay 19.1. or, with forces, for multitude, as thick as clouds, Eſay 60.8. Heb. 12.1.

and his charets ſhall be as a whirlwind] See Eſay 66.15.

his horſes are ſwifter then eagles.] An hyperbolical form of ſpeech, uſed to expreſſe eminent, or extraordinary ſwiftneſſe, chap. 48.40. Lam. 4.19. Dan. 7. 4. Heb. lighter ; as Eſay 19. 1. chap. 2.23. ver. 24.

wo unto us, for we are ſpoiled.] The peoples voice, in their diſtreſſe ; or the Prophets, before-hand lamenting the ſpoyl that would be made of them. See the like, Lam. 5.16.

V. 14. O Jeruſalem, waſh thine heart from thy wickedneſs, that thou mayſt be ſaved.] A ſerious admonition and exhortation, to ſincere repentance and reformation, as well of heart, as of life, for the preventing and averting of this threatned deſtruction : the ſame, in effect, with thoſe former, ver. 3, 4. but delivered in a new notion, and expreſſed by a divers ſimilitude.

O Jeruſalem] Ye Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and people of Judah, in general, ver. 3, 11. ſo chap. 6.8.

waſh thine heart] As circumciſe thy heart, ver. 4. that your repentance being hearty, it may be ſound and ſincere, not feigned and counterfeit, as formerly, chap. 3.10. cleanſe not your hands alone, (as by external rites ye oft do, Mar. 7.3, 4. Heb. 9.10. alluded to, Pſal. 26.6.) but your hearts alſo, Jam. 4. 8. Act. 15.9. Hebr. 10.22. 1 Pet. 1.22. otherwiſe all your ceremonial waſhings will ſtand you in no ſtead, chap. 2. 22. Mat. 23. 25, 26. no more then Pilat's complemental waſhing of his hands, freed him from the guilt of Chriſts bloud, Mat. 27. 24. It may ſeem an alluſion to ſuch phyſical lotions, and potions, wherewith the inward parts of the body are wont to be purged and cleanſed ; which ſo long as they remain foul, all bathings, and ſcouring of the skin, or topical medicines, applyed to the outward parts, are in vain uſed : it requires, queſtionleſſe, the true inward waſhing, whereof the outward waſhings were all but types, and meer ſhadows, without ſubſtance, where the inward was wanting, 1 Cor. 6.11. So Eſay 1.16. See chap. 13.27.

from thy wickedneſſe] Not from thy bodily ſoyl, but from thy ſpiritual filth, that makes thee loathſome in Gods ſight, Prov. 30.12. 2 Cor. 7. 1. Hebr. 9. 13, 14. Jam. 1. 21. 1 Pet. 3. 21.

that thou maiſt be ſaved.] Not as the Apoſtle ſaith, baptiſm ſaveth, 1 Pet. 3. 21. though ſuch ſpiritual waſhing and cleanſing, as the Prophet here ſpeaketh of, be the way and meanes to attain that ſalvation too, 2 Theſſ. 2. 13. Tit. 3. 5. but that thou maiſt be ſaved, that is, delivered from thoſe evils and miſeries, that will otherwiſe to thine utter deſtruction befall thee. See ver. 4.

how long ſhall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee ?] Heb. thoughts of vanity ; as Zach. 10. 2. how long wilt thou feed thy ſelf with vain thoughts, and hopes of ſuccour and ſafety, from forrein forces, or other means, that are not able to relieve thee, chap. 2. 5, 37. or, thoughts of iniquity, or miſchief ; wicked and miſchievous thoughts ; as Prov. 6.18. Eſay 59.7. and ſo one of the Rabbines here expreſſeth it ; thoughts of violence and oppreſſion. See Eſay 55. 7. But I rather conceive the word here to ſignifie, (as natively and uſually it doth, and as in the very next verſe it ſeemes to do) affliction ; thy thoughts of affliction ; ſuch thoughts of thine, as will bring nothing but affliction, miſery, and miſchief upon thee ; as, prophecies of expulſions, Lam. 2. 14. ſo called, not from the ſubject matter of them, but from the effect of them ; not becauſe they threatned them with expulſion, but becauſe by promiſing them peace, (which the people relying on, repented not) they were the means of bringing expulſion upon them. Howbeit, there are two other readings : for becauſe the verb is ſingular ; and again may be as well of the ſecond perſon maſculine, as the third feminine : from the former conſideration, ſome of our Interpreters, of prime note, render it ; How long ſhall it (to wit, thy wickedneſs) even thy thoughts of vanity lodge in thy mind ? but it is common to have a noun plural, in way of diſtribution, joyned with a verb ſingular, and the ſenſe is, any one of thoſe thy ſuch thoughts : the like, ſee Eſay 26. 19. Pſal. 119.103. Prov. 14.1. & 28.1. From the latter, one of the Rabbines would have them thus read ; How long wilt thou lodge in thy thoughts of affliction ? that is, ſaith he, perſiſt and continue in them ? as, mine eye lodgeth, that is, continueth in bitterneſs, Job 17.2. So, the world lieth in evil, 1 Joh. 5.19. all the difficulty, in this reading, is, that the form is here maſculine, in the reſt feminine ; which he thus ſalveth, that in this the congregation is reſpected, in the other terms the people. See Chap. 3.5.

within thee] Heb. in the midſt of thee : as Nah. 3. 13. Deut. 18.2. & 19.10.

V. 15. For a voice declareth from Dan, and publiſheth affliction from mount Ephraim.] As if he had ſaid ; It is high time for you thus to do, for reports are coming to you thick and threathree-fold, of the enemies coming on apace toward you. Heb. there is a voice reporting, and making to hear; the verbs are the ſame that were before, ver.5. and that is related, as done here, that was either enjoyned, or adviſed there: a voice, for, a rumour, or a report: as Gen.45.16. Chap.50.46. and this report is ſaid to come from Dan; becauſe that was the utmoſt bound of the land of Iſrael Northward, towards the land from whence this evill was to come, ver.6. and from mount Ephraim, becauſe that neereſt to Judea, whither the enemy was bound: and the ſubject matter is affliction; as the word is well rendred, Job 5.6. and ſo it is uſed, Job 4.8. & 15.35. compared with Prov.22.8. Pſal.7.14. Eſay 59.4. See Eſay 1.13. Chap.20.18. and this is the firſt and native ſenſe of it; for it comes from a term, that hath a notion of grief, and mourning, Eſay 3.26. & 19.8. Hoſ.9.4. though in the ſecond place, alſo, wrong; becauſe by it, men are afflicted, grieved, and made to mourn. And thus the Jewiſh Rabbine, whom moſt of ours follow, expoundeth this place, which is confirmed, alſo, by that which is ſaid, Chap.8.16. the neighing of his horſes is heard from Dan. Howbeit, the Chaldee Paraphraſt, underſtands it of the voice of Gods Prophets, acquainting them, with what affliction was to befall them, for the worſhipping of the golden calves; the one, at Dan; and the other, at Bethel; and the idoll that Micah of mount Ephraim made, Judg.17.1,4,5. & 18.29-31. 1 King.12.28,29. But we read not the worſhipping of thoſe calves objected to Judah, but to Iſrael onely, Hoſ.8.5,6. & 13.2. Some other therefore late Interpreters, of ſpecial note, rendreth it; For a voice declareth, or there is a voice that declareth greater iniquity, or, the iniquity to be greater, then that of Dan; and that publiſheth more grievous, or, that publiſheth it to be more grievous, then that in mount Ephraim: as if he had ſaid; It is as notorious, as if it were proclaimed, that the wickedneſs of Judah, in idolatry, eſpecially, is greater, and more grievous, then that of Iſrael, committed at Dan and Bethel, with the golden calves there. I am not ignorant, that the particle here uſed, is, commonly, employed in compariſons, as was before obſerved, on ver.12. as alſo, that the noun here uſed, is uſually, in many places, rendred iniquity, (for which, there is another word, in Hebrew, more proper, though in ſound neer to this, yet of a divers notion, and notation) where I ſuppoſe it might better be rendred wrong; as Job 34.5,22. Pſal.5.5. & 6.8. & 14.4. as alſo, that the word in the former branch may well, and is oft ſupplyed from the latter: as Eſay.13.13. & 18.7. & 30.17. & that in ſuch collations, the ſubject matter, wherein the collation conſiſteth, is not ſeldome in the one member concealed: of which, ſee on Eſay 5.29. ver.31. and with all theſe favourable helps admitted, that ſenſe may be made up from the words, that theſe worthy Writers give unto it: Nor can it be denyed, but that Judah was, in ſome ſort, far worſe, and more condemnable, then Iſrael. See Chap.3.11. But it ſeems needleſs to me, thus to wring a text for a new ſenſe; where it doth, of it ſelf, freely afford one ſo ſuitable to the courſe of the context, and the main drift of the place. Nor doth that ſenſe, which another learned Annotator gives, ſeem to flow ſo naturally from the place, though one of the Rabbines, from whom he ſeems to have received it, have ſomewhat to that purpoſe, to wit, that the report of that affliction which had befallen them for their idolatry, at Dan and Bethel, ſhould have admoniſhed Judah, and been a warning to her: and ſo indeed ſhould it have been, Chap.3.8,10. but every truth is not in every place taught: nor ſeems this here to be implyed.

V.16. Make ye mention to the Nations, behold, publiſh againſt Jeruſalem, that watchers are come from a far Country, and give out their voice againſt the cities of Judah,] This likewiſe tendeth to give warning, or notice at leaſt, to thoſe of Judah and Jeruſalem, of the enemies march towards them; though ſome underſtand it of the ſummoning of the Chaldeans and other nations with them, to come on againſt them.

Make ye mention to the nations,] The ſubject matter, ſaith one of the Rabbines, of the voice, or rumour, before-mentioned, ver.15.

Make ye mention,] Or, Put them in mind; as Eſay 43.26.

to the nations] Thoſe of Judah, ſay ſome; concerning the nations, ſay others: the Chaldeans, and their complices, 2 King.24.13. ſo the particle is oft uſed, Gen.20.13. and 26.7.

publiſh] Heb. make to hear; give them to underſtand; as verſ.5. againſt Jeruſalem] Or, to Jeruſalem; as Exod.20.3. to my face; 1 Sam.2.11. to Ramah. See ver.5. or, concerning Jeruſalem, as Eſay 1.1. & 2.1. Some of thoſe that retain that which our Verſion exhibiteth, do thus render the words; Mind them of the Nations, tell them, Behold, againſt Jeruſalem watchers are coming.

watchers] So the word is uſed, 2 King.17.9. hoſtile forces; which why ſo termed, ſee ver.17.

come] Heb. coming; behold them coming; as if they might ſee them on their way, and did point with the finger to them; as Eſay 63.17.

and give out their voice againſt the cities of Judah] Or, that give out; the copulative for the relative; as Eſay 44.7. & 49.7. that threaten ruine to them: or, that will give out; that will with loud ſhouts aſſault them. See Chap.2.15. & 12.8.

V.17. As Keepers of a field are they againſt her round about] are they; or, will they be, againſt her; to wit, Jeruſalem, mentioned, ver.16. An intimation of a ſtreit ſiege to enſue; they will lye round about Jeruſalem, Eſay 29.3. Zach.12.2. As thoſe that are ſet to watch a field, or a vineyard, and the fruit in it, ſo ſtreit, that none can be ſuffered, either man or beaſt to get in, that may annoy it, or commit waſte in it, Eſay 27.3. and there is deemed by ſome to be a bitter taunt in the term; for both watch indeed; but the one to keep from going in, the other from coming out: the one watch that nothing go in that may hurt or annoy; the other, that nothing come in that may help or relieve, 2 Chron.16.1. 2 King.6.24,25. & 25.1-3. Yet ſome ſuppoſe the ſimilitude to be taken, from ſuch as are ſet to watch wild beaſts, or deer, encloſed in a wood, to keep them from breaking away, and making eſcape. But the former is the more probable; for field, and wood, are in Scripture commonly oppoſed. See Chap.5.6.

becauſe ſhe hath been rebellious againſt me, ſaith the Lord] The ground of all their miſery, as themſelves acknowledge, Lam.1.18,20. So Hoſ.13.16.

V.18. Thy wayes and thy doings have procured theſe things unto thee;] Heb. Thy way and thy doings (or, Thine own ways, and thine own doings; to make it the more vigorous, as Chap.6.19.) have doing done theſe things to thee; of which manner of ſpeech, both defective and redundant, ſee on Eſay 59.13. The ſame matter, ſee before, Chap.2.17,19. ſo Eſay 50.1. Pſal.107.17. Chap.5.25.

this is thy wickedneſſe;] Or, this hath thy wickedneſs done, or procured; ſupplying it from the former branch: as the like, Gen.1.16.

becauſe it is bitter] Or rather, that, as the particle is alſo frequently uſed, Neh.4.1. Job 11.6. & 22.3. Eſay 52.5,6. that it is bitter. See Ruth 1.20. Amos 8.10. So Chap.2.19. for their wickedneſs was the cauſe of the bitterneſſe; not this of that.

becauſe it reacheth unto thine heart.] Or, that it reacheth unto thine heart; that it goeth to the very heart with thee. See ver.10,19.

V.19. My bowels, my bowels;] Theſe words ſome would have to be the peoples, crying out in their diſtreſs; thereby to maintain the common reading of the foregoing words; which they rent from the former verſe, and thus knit unto this; Becauſe it is bitter, and reacheth to thine heart; therefore ſhalt thou ſay, My bowels, my bowels. Such defects and ſupplies, it is true, are not unuſual; ſee on Chap.3.22. but needleſs here: the right reading of the foregoing words, was before ſhewed. The moſt rather conceive theſe words to be the Prophets own, very pathetically bewailing the calamities of his people, and expreſſing his extream ſorrow and inward grief for them. So Chap.9.1. Eſay 22.4.

My bowels, my bowels] He cryeth out, as a woman in ſore and hard travel; or as one torn and tortured with wind in the bowels, that can find no vent. See Eſay 26.17,18. and the ingemination of it addeth no ſmall emphaſis to it; for, thoſe that are in pain are wont to double their words: ſo, My head, my head, 2 King.4.19. and, My leanneſſe, my leanneſſe, Eſay 24.16. See the like affectionate and paſſionate repetitions, 2 Sam.18.33. 2 King.4.13,14. Prov.31.2.

I am pained at the very heart;] Heb. at, or, in, (a defect of the particle, as 2 Chr.21.16.) the walls of my heart; the walls of the heart; that is, the ſides of it, ſay ſome: Others rather, the bowels that lye round about the heart; as encloſing and fencing it, ſituate in the midſt of them, Pſal.22.13. as if his very heart were beſet and ſtreitned, as the city in the ſiege, ver.17. or were ſurpriſed as its walls were, Chap.5.10. Lam.2.8,18. which he may well allude to: a defect of the pronoun; as Chap.3.19.

my heart maketh a noiſe in me;] Or, with me. Heb. to me. Of which form of ſpeech, ſee on ver.12. the like redundancy, ſee Pſal.144.2. Cant.1.6. & 8.12. my heart ſoundeth with me; as Eſay 16.11. though ſome render it, my heart worketh, or, is troubled: as it is rendred, Chap.31.20. (as the Sea is ſaid to work, and to be troubled, Chap.5.22. & 51.55. Eſay 57.20. Jon.1.13.) and is unquiet within me; it cannot reſt. So the word ſeems to be taken, Pſal.46.6. Cant.5.4. where the word moved, is too ſlender; ſtirred, at leaſt, had been better; My bowels round about my heart are ſo full of pain, that my heart fluttreth to and fro, and cannot reſt. See the like, Job 30.27. Lam.1.20. & 2.11.

I cannot hold my peace] Heb. I will not; or, ſhall not, be ſilent: but ſuch potential notions are frequent. See Chap. 2.23,32. It is as if one being in pain, and willed to be quiet and ſtill, ſhould anſwer thoſe that ſo ſpeak to him, My pain is ſuch, that I cannot be quiet, I cannot forbear ſpeaking. See Job 7.11. & 10.1. & 13.19. & 16.6. Eſay 22.4.

becauſe thou haſt heard, O my ſoul, the ſound of the trumpet, the alarm of war.] There is a two-fold reading, the one in the margent, the other in the text, I have heard, O my ſoul, ſaith the one; thou haſt heard, or, doſt hear, O my ſoul, ſaith the other. This latter is the more received, and is the more emphatical of the twain: as the like, Judg.5.21. Pſal. 103. 1. & 104.1. The reaſon why his heart cannot reſt; becauſe he is ſo affected, as if he had the noiſe of the enemies warlike trumpeting, and ſhouting, continually in his ear, Job 15.20,21. he ſaith not, as the Rabbine well obſerveth, O mine ear, but, O my ſoul: for the matter was not in being, but his ſoul, by the Spirit of prophecy, hearing and ſeeing it, as preſent, did as much affect him, as if he had with his bodily eye ſeen the enemies approaches, and aſſaults; and with his bodily ear, heard their hideous ſhouts. See ver.21. So Joh.8.56. Abraham ſaw my day, and rejoyced.

the alarm of war.] Or rather, the ſhout of battel: as the word is better rendred, Chap.20.16. for the allarm is properly that ſound, or noiſe, by which men are rouzed up, and called upon, to betake themſelves all to their arms; whereas that here intended, is the ſhout that is made in joyning battel, or in aſſault. So Chap. 49. 2.

V. 20. Deſtruction upon deſtruction is cryed.] Heb. Breach upon breach (as ver.6.) is cryed, or proclaimed. A farther reaſon of this his extream grief: there is yet a further noiſe in the ear of his ſoul, a grievous cry of one miſchief and calamity coming upon the neck of another: as Deut. 32. 23. Pſal. 42.7. Ezek. 7. 26. That is, ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Writers, the captivity of Judah, after the deportation of Iſrael. But other, and ſo ours, moſt of them, rather, (becauſe the Prophet ſpeaks of things to come, and concerning his own people) the death of Joſiah, 2 Chr.35.24,25. the depoſition and deportation of Jehoachaz, of Jehojakim, Jehojachin, and Zedekiah, ſucceſſively, and the utter ſpoyl and ruine of their land and ſtate in this laſt, 2 Chr.36.2-20.

for the whole land is ſpoiled] Or, as ſome, becauſe; or, as I conceive it, that, or, ſo that, (as ver. 18.) the whole land is plundered: ſo ver.27. See here after this general devaſtation moſt rhetorically deſcribed, ver.23-26.

ſuddenly are my tents ſpoiled, and my curtains in a moment.] The tents of my people, and their curtains, whereof thoſe tents conſiſt, Cant.1.5. Chap.49.29. that is, their ſtrong cities, lofty places, and ſtately houſes; or their habitations in general, Eſay 54.2. Chap.10.20, are as eaſily, and ſuddenly overturned and ruined, as ſome ſhepherds, or other like ſory tent, Eſay 38.12. Lam.2.6. an alluſion either to the ancient manner of that peoples dwelling, while they abode in the wilderneſs, Num.24.2,5. and in other parts before, Gen.33.18. Heb.11.9. and the ordinary habitation of divers people at that day, Hab. 3.7. or to the overthrow of a camp conſiſting of tents, Judg.7. 13,14. Chap.6.3.

V. 21. How long ſhall I ſee the Standard, and hear the ſound of the trumpet?] Or, How long ſhall I ſee the ſtandard? how long ſhall I hear the ſound of the trumpet? The interrogative ſupplyed from the former branch: as Pſal. 94. 3. The Prophet ſeemeth to have been ſo affected, as if he had the ſight of the one continually in his eye, and the ſound of the other in his ear. See ver.19. and withall, by this manner of ſpeech, implyeth the long continuance of this evill; that albeit the whole land were ſuddenly plundered and ſpoyled, yet the war were drawn out at length, as well in the ſurpriſal of city after city, as in the ſeveral ſurpriſals and ſackings of Jeruſalem, under her three laſt Kings. See on ver.20. and the like forms of ſpeech, ver.14. Chap.13.27. & 47.6.

ſhall I ſee? ſhall I hear?] Or, as ſome render it; am I compelled to ſee? am I compelled to hear? as Hab.1.3.

the ſtandard, the trumpet.] By ſtandard, and trumpet, ſome underſtand their own, either giving warning of the enemies approach; or calling people together, to repair to places of ſtrength, or to joyn together in a body, and arm, to make head againſt the enemy, ver.5,6. Others rather, whom I concur with, the enemies ſtandard, marching on, and coming to make aſſault; and his trumpet, enciting his forces, either to joyn battel, or to make aſſault, and to proceed eagerly in either, Eſay 31.9. & 33.23. & 59.19. Joſh.6.5,16. 2 Chr.13.12.

V. 22. For my people is fooliſh, they have not known me; they are ſottiſh children, and they have no underſtanding:] Or, as ſome render it; All this is, Becauſe my people is fooliſh: as Pſal.38. 3,5. My people, by their own folly, and ſtupidity, have brought all this evill and miſchief upon themſelves, Chap. 2. 17, 19. ver.18.

my people] God ſpeaketh it, yet owning them, that had caſt off him. So Chap.2.11,31,32.

is fooliſh] Or, are (becauſe the word is collective, and plurals follow; as Eſay 5.26.) fooliſh. So Deut. 32. 4. Eſay 44. 18, 19.

they have not known me] Or, they know me not, Eſay 1. 3. Chap. 9. 3.

they are ſottiſh children] So Chap.5.21. a ſottiſh people: children; as Eſay 1. 4. & 30. 1. the verb deduced from the noun here uſed, ſee 1 Sam. 13.13. 2 Sam. 24. 10. the pronoun demonſtrative, is here put for the verb ſubſtantive; and ſo in the next branches: as Eſay 60.21. Chap.9.3.

they have no underſtanding] Heb. they are not underſtanding. So Deut.32.28. Eſay 27.11.

they are wiſe to do evill; but to do good they have no knowledge.] They have no wit to any thing, but what is evil; that to plot and practiſe, they are cunning enough, Luk. 16.8. See Chap. 9. 3. the contrary hereunto, the Apoſtle requireth, 1 Cor.14.20.

they are wiſe] Heb. wiſe they are: the pronoun, for the verb, as before.

to do evil] Either to others, or to themſelves: for all their projects and policies were ſuch, as tended to their own ruine, by carrying them from God, and driving him from them, Eſay 30.11-14. and ſuch, indeed, is all humane wiſdome naturally, Rom.8.6,7.

but to do good, they have no knowledge.] Heb. and (as Chap. 3.7.) to do well, they know not: for well-doing, they have no skill. See Chap.13. 23. the contrary leſſon, God would have them to learn. Eſay 1.17.

V. 23. I beheld the earth; and loe it was without form, and void: and the heavens, and they had no light.] The Prophet proceedeth, here, to deſcribe the lamentable effects, that ſhould enſue this hoſtile invaſion, which as they were in a ſpiritual rapture repreſented to the eye of his mind; ſo he endeavoureth, by a very rhetorical delineation, to ſet forth at large, and to ſet a moſt ruful ſpectacle, as in a lively map of extream devaſtation, and deſolation, before their eyes, if the foreſight of theſe their miſeries, which otherwiſe would enſue, might ſo affect them, as to move them unto the timely entertainment of thoſe counſels and courſes, whereby the ſame might be prevented.

I beheld] Or, I ſaw, or, I ſee, (as ſpeaking of a thing preſent, and in view) in ſpirit; as Col.2.15. but here more then ſo, in a viſion, or apparition: as Dan.7.2,13. Act. 10. 11. & 11. 5. Rev.1.10,12. Or, when I look upon the ground, it is ſhapeleſs, or, unſightly, and empty; and ſo in the reſt: the like ſyntax, ſee Chap.2.7,20. & 5.7.

the earth] The land of Judea: but aright rendred, the earth; becauſe it hath a glance unto Moſes his words, Gen. 1. 2.

it was without form, and void.] Or, it is without form, and void: not onely without habitation, or inhabitants; but deſpoyled, alſo, of all its former goodly furniture, and laid utterly waſte and deſolate: inſomuch, that the earth might ſeem reduced unto that original chaos, or confuſed maſs, that at firſt it was, Gen.1.2.

and the heavens] Or, I ſaw, or, I ſee the heavens: by a ſupply from the former branch; as Gen.1.16. 2 Chr.10.11. ver. 21. Heb. to the heavens. But a Jewiſh Critick deemeth the particle here redundant; as Pſal. 2. 7. elſe it ſhould be rendred, I look to the heavens.

and they had no light] Or, how they are without light; (as Exod. 19.4. Pſal.119.159.) as if that primordial darkneſs were returned, that poſſeſſed the heavens, and over-ſpread the ſurface of this lower world at firſt, Gen. 1. 2. A ſad and ſolemn expreſſion in Scripture, very frequent of utter deſolation, or extream diſtreſs. See Eſay 8.21. & 13.10,13. & 24.23. Ezek. 32.7. Joel 2.10. & 3. 15. Amos 8. 9. Some expound it here of the ſmoke of the houſes; yea, whole towns and cities, fired and burnt down by the enemy, obſcuring the ayr, and darkning the sky: as Gen.19.28. Joſh. 8.20. Judg.20. 40. Eſay 9.18. & 35.9,10. See 2 King.25.9. Chap.37.10. & 38.23. & 39. 8. & 52. 13.

V. 24. I beheld the mountains, and loe they trembled; and all the hils moved lightly.] I ſaw, or I ſee; as before, ver. 23. the mountains (to wit, of Judea, Chap.3.23. & 9.10.) how, lo, they tremble, (Heb. are trembling) and the hils move lightly, or, ſwiftly: lightly, ſaith a Rabbine, as being lightned of their burthen; the trees growing on them, or edifices built upon them, being burnt up and deſtroyed: but ſwiftly, rather; yea, exceeding ſwiftly: for the verb is in a redoubled, and withall, a reciprocal form; as if he had ſaid, the hils all apace beſtirred themſelves: light, for, ſwift; as Eſay 5.26. ver.13. He ſpeaks, as if the calamity were ſo hideous, and Gods wrath revealed therein ſo fierce, ver.26. that the very ſenſleſs creatures might ſeem to tremble and quake exceedingly at the apprehenſion of it. So Pſal. 18.7. & 114.4,6,7. Eſay 5.25. Hab. 3.10. For that ſeems too ſlender, that a learned late Writer hath, of their ſhaking, with the multitudes of people paſſing over them: This hideous ſpectacle, concerning rather the ſpoyl of the Enemy made of, and in the land after the ſurpriſall of it, then their march either unto it, or in it. Some render it, they are deſtroyed, from a term uſual in the Talmudiſts Writings. But the received notion of concuſſion or ſhaking, another backeth from the Ethiopick uſe of the word. Matth. 24.29.

V. 25. I beheld, and lo there was no man,] Or, I look, and behold the men are gone. Heb. the man is not. So Eſay 6.12. Chap. 6.8. & 7.20. the people are either killed, or captived, or fled, and the land left without Inhabitants, ver. 7.

and all the birds of the heavens were fled] Or, the birds of heaven, (ſee Eſay 1.2. for it is but one heaven, at moſt, the birds abide in, Gen. 1.20.) or, of the ayr (as Mat. 8.20. & 3.32.) are fled; as Pſal. 11.1. or, wandred away; as Prov. 27.8. either falling down, or ſcared away, ſaith one, with the cryes of the Souldiery: or rather, having forſaken the land, for the extream deſolation of the country, become like a wilderneſs, ver. 26. See the like, Chap. 9.10. Zeph. 1.3. for of ſuch birds, or fowl, it is meant, as either being tame, are kept, or fed, in or about the houſe; or that uſe to haunt places inhabited, and peopled, and to build, and feed, about, or neer thereunto; not of ſuch as haunt, and abide, in deſarts, and places, by men abandoned, Eſay 13.21. & 34.14,15.

V. 26. I beheld, and lo the fruitfull place was a wilderneſs;] Or, I look, and behold the tilled land (Heb. Carmel. See Eſay 29.17. & 33.9.) is become a wilderneſs. See Chap. 9.12. & 12.10. & 22.6.

and all the cities thereof were broken down,] Or, all his cities, (the cities of my people, ver. 22.) or, its cities (the cities ſituate in ſuch places) are broken down, or demoliſhed, Eſay 1.7. Chap. 33.4. & 39.8.

at the preſence of the Lord, and by his fierce anger.] Heb. from the face of the Lord (that is, his wrath; as Chap. 23.12.) from the heat, or fervour, of his noſe, or anger. See ver. 8. Hereby intimating, that it was not ſo much thorough the enemies rage, as from the wrath of God, juſtly incenſed againſt them for their ſins, that ſo heavy a judgment was to befall them, 2 King. 24.3. 2 Chr. 36.17-20. Chap. 9.12,13.

V. 27. For thus hath the Lord ſaid] Or, Thus ſaith the Lord; as Chap. 2.5.

The whole land ſhall be deſolate] Or, This land ſhall be very waſte, or very much waſted. Heb. ſhall be waſteneſs; as Eſay 1.7. See ver. 20.

yet will I not make a full end,] Or, yet (Heb. and; as Chap. 3.7,9.) will I not make an utter conſumption, Chap. 5.10. & 31.11. For God would yet reſerve himſelf a remnant, Eſay 1.9. & 24.13. according to that which he promiſed in the Law, Lev. 26.44. Howbeit, ſome expound it, and yet I have not made a full end with them: all this ſhall not ſerve, to ſatisfie my wrath; but I will inflict further penalty upon them, and afflict them yet more grievouſly before I have done; as having an eye to their enſuing captivity, & thoſe grievous and tedious afflictions, that for ſo long a time, during it, they ſhould endure, Lev. 26.36-39. and to this purpoſe, this form may ſeem to ſound, Chap. 5.18. where it is ſaid, Notwithſtanding in thoſe days, I will not make a full end with you: but neither is the ſyntax the ſame here, and there: and that place alſo, may well be deemed to look rather the former way.

V. 28. For this ſhall the earth mourn, and the heavens above be black] They ſhall wear blacks as mourners uſe to do, Eſay 30.28. Pſal. 38.6. & 42.9. Chap. 8.21. & 14.2. See ver. 23. Ezek. 31.15.

becauſe I have ſpoken it, I have purpoſed it, and I will not repent, neither will I turn back from it.] What I have reſolved upon and ſaid, I will do, Num. 23.19. Eſay 14.24,27. The particle it, is ſupplyed; as Chap. 3.7.

I will not repent] Chap. 15.6. Zach. 8.14.

neither will I turn back] See ver. 8. Chap. 30.24.

V. 29. The whole City ſhall flee for the noiſe of the horſemen and bowmen;] The whole city; the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, all ſorts of them ſhall flee for fear (Chap. 39.4.) of the horſemen (Heb. horſeman; as Ezek. 26.10.) and bowmen, Heb. him that throweth, or, ſhooteth out arrows with a bow; as Pſal. 78.9.

they ſhall go into thickets,] There to hide themſelves for fear; as Gen. 3.8. 2 Chr. 33.11. So the Chaldee, whom ſome of the Rabbines follow, and the ancient Greek. Yet ſome of the Rabbines render it, they ſhall go up to the thick clouds; as the word is oft uſed, Job 20.6. Eſay 44.22. an hyperbolical ſpeech, ſaith the Jewiſh Doctor, that is, into the higheſt hills, that ſeem to reach the clouds; into the high places, ſaith the old Latine; or as if they would climb up to the clouds, Chap. 49.16. Amos 9.2,3. but the word ſignifieth thickneſs in general; and the former is more probable.

and climb up upon the rocks] Or, to the cliffs, Job 30.6. that are as the branches of the rocks; for ſo the word primarily importeth, Job 15.32. See the like, Eſay 2.21.

every city ſhall be forſaken, and not a man dwell therein.] Or, as ſome, the whole city; as before: but the pronoun in the clauſe requireth the received reading; the meaning is, that their cities generally ſhould be ruined, and left without Inhabitants, ver. 25,26.

V. 30. And when thou art ſpoiled, what wilt thou do?] Heb. And thou ſpoiled; which ſome render, thou that art to be ſpoiled; as Pſal. 137.8. deſtroyed, for, to be deſtroyed; as ſure to be ſpoiled, as if thou wert ſpoiled already; or, ſpoiled that is, ready to be ſpoiled; as, periſhed, for, ready to periſh, Eſay 27.13. But we need not depart from the received verſion; what wilt thou being ſpoiled do? or to make it the more emphatical; And thou being ſpoiled, what wilt thou do? that is, And as for thee, (for the pronoun ſeems to be put here abſolutely; as Eſay 65.11.) when thou art ſpoiled, what wilt thou do? But there is an irregularity in the ſyntax, not unlike that, Chap. 2.24. for the pronoun and verb are feminine; the Prophet here again turning his ſpeech unto Jeruſalem, or Sion, verſ. 31. and ſpeaking unto her as to a woman, and that an harlot, as before, Chap. 2.20. & 3.10. whereas the participle paſſive is maſculine. This to ſalve, the Jewiſh Criticks ſome of them, would have it to be a defective form of ſpeech, and the note of ſimilitude to be ſupplyed; And thou that art, or, when thou art as one ſpoiled, what wilt thou do? So it ſhould be like that, Thou haſt broken to pieces Rahab, as one ſlain, or thruſt thorow, Pſal. 89.10. But another of them hath recourſe to his wonted refuge, that the one hath reference to the congregation, the other to the people. See Chap. 3.5. & 4.14. but the genders are very oft in this Prophet found promiſcuouſly uſed, as in the places pointed to, hath been ſhewed.

though thou deckeſt thee with ornaments of gold, though thou renteſt thy face with painting, though thou clotheſt thy ſelf with crimſon, in vain ſhalt thou make thy ſelf fair; thy lovers will deſpiſe thee, they will ſeek thy life.] Theſe words ſome annex to the former, thus rendring the context; And thou who art to be deſtroyed, (or art neer unto deſtruction) what doſt thou, (or meaneſt, or intendeſt thou) that (as ver. 18.) thou thus deckeſt thy ſelf &c. as if he ſhould ſay; Is this a time for thee, when thou art threatned with deſtruction, thus to adorn thy ſelf, when it were more ſeaſonable for thee, to lay thy rich attire aſide, Exod. 33.4,5. and to put on ſackcloth rather, and to humble thy ſelf in the ſight of God for thy ſins. Thus ſome of the Rabbines, paralleling this place with that, Eſay 22.12,13. But the cloſe of the verſe ſheweth, that the words run rather another way. And a learned Writer of ours hath well obſerved, that the particle here uſed, includeth oft a two-fold notion; whereof, ſee on Eſay 29.16. & 51.9. & 62.9. Chap. 10.21. & 12.5. and ſo in this place: where it may therefore well be rendred; For though thou clotheſt thy ſelf &c. All thine whoriſh attires and deſigns, tricks of enticement, and arts of allurement, will ſtand thee in no ſtead, will not avail to ſave thy life; to retain thy lovers with thee, or to keep them from loathing, and growing weary of thee, yea and helping to work thy ruine.

clotheſt thy ſelf with crimſon] A wear of much account in thoſe dayes, as well as in theſe times, 2 Sam. 1.24. where it is rendred, ſcarlet; by ſome learned, there and here, a double dye; but of the word, ſee at large, on Eſay 1.18. See alſo, Rev. 17.4.

deckeſt thy ſelf with ornaments of gold] Arayeſt thy ſelf in the richeſt and moſt gorgeous manner that may be, 2 Sam. 1.24. where the ſame word is uſed, that is here rendred ornament: whereof, ſee alſo Eſay 49.18. Chap. 2.32. See Pſal. 45.13. Ezek. 16.13,17. 1 Tim. 2.9. Rev. 17.4. & 18.16.

and renteſt thy face with painting] Noted as an whoriſh practice; in Jezabel, 2 King. 9.30. in Aholah, and Aholibah, Ezek. 23.40.

renteſt] With exceſſive uſe of ſuch counterfeit ſtuff; paint and pargeſt ſo much and ſo oft, till at length thou crack the skin of thy face with it.

thy face] Or, thy cheeks. Heb. thine eyes; and ſo alſo, 2 King. 9.30. Ezek. 23.40. but the eyes are ſometime put for the face; as 1 Sam. 16.12. Eſay 3.15. as the face alſo for the cheeks, or the eyes, Eſay 25.8. compared with Rev. 7.17. See Eſay 3.16. though ſome would have the eyes here taken for the eye-lids, or eye-brows, as if that kind of counterfeit here mentioned, had been uſed, either to dilate the one, as ſome; or as others, to make black the other: neither of both very probable. See the next note.

with painting] Or, paint. Heb. puc, or phuc; whence both the Greeks and Latines have their phucos and fucus: which though ſome would make a mineral, yet moſt agree to have been a ſea plant, wherewith a kind of red colour was ordinarily died; whence alſo wanton women made uſe of it therewith to counterfeit red, as with ceruſſe white. See more hereof, on Eſay 54.11.

in vain ſhalt thou make thy ſelf fair] Strive to improve thy beauty, by adorning and ſetting out thy ſelf; as thou doſt thine idols, Chap.10.4. and as harlots uſe to do, 2 King. 9. 30. Ezek. 23.40. to gain love, and draw lovers to them, Chap.2.33.

thy lovers will deſpiſe thee, they will ſeek thy life.] Thoſe that formerly affected thee, will grow out of love with thee; and not ſo only, but now loathing thee, and waxing weary of thee, after they have ſatisfied their filthy luſt with thee, will not ſtick to work thy ruine. See Amnons affection, 2 Sam. 13.14,15. and Jehues practice, 2 King.9.30,33. and of the Romiſh Babylon, Rev.17.13,16. & 18. 3, 9. that is, Thoſe whom leaving God and his protection, thou haſt formerly relied upon, and that profeſſed to be in a league of amity with thee, Chap.22.20. Hoſ. 2.5. will then not leave thee only, but joyn with the enemy againſt thee, Lam. 1.2. See 2 King.24.3. Chap.27.3.

thy lovers] Or, paramores: for the word is never uſed but of wanton and laſcivious luſt, rather then love; found here only, and Ezek.23. where it and its off-ſpring are nine ſeveral times uſed; it is not unfitly expreſſed, by a Greek term uſed, of the Romiſh Babylon and her paramores, Rev.18.9. the pronoun is wanting in the original; as Eſay 60.4. but it may ſtand without it, and be taken more generally; no paramores will now look after thee, one or other: thou wilt be as an harlot out of date. See of Tyre, Eſay 23.15-17.

deſpiſe thee] Set light by thee; or, reject thee, or abhor thee. See on Chap.2.37.

ſeek thy life] Heb. thy ſoul; as verſ. 10. Chap. 11. 21. & 19.7.

V. 31. For I have heard a voice as of a woman in travel, and the anguiſh as of her that bringeth forth her firſt child; the voice of the daughter of Zion, that bewaileth her ſelf, that ſpreadeth her hands, ſaying] The Prophet as before he ſeemed to hear in his ſpirit the hideous ſhouts of the enemies forces aſſaulting and ſurpriſing Jeruſalem; ſo now to hear in like manner the doleful lamentation that Jeruſalem her ſelf maketh, proceeding from that extream anguiſh of ſoul, wherewith ſhe is ſurpriſed, to ſee her people, her children ſo ſavagely butchered, and no end made of the maſſacring and murthering of them. See 2 Chr.36.17. Eſay 29.7,8. & 46.6.

For] As confirming what was ſaid in the cloſe of verſ. 30. of their ſeeking her life.

I have heard] Or, I hear; as before, I ſee, ver. 23. methinks I now hear.

a voice as of a woman in travel] Heb. a voice as a travailing woman; for, a voice as the voice of one that is in travel. See the like, Eſay 5.29.

a woman in travel] A ſimilitude in Scripture very frequent, to expreſs extremity of anguiſh and grief, Pſal.48.6. Eſay 13. 8. & 21.3. & 26.17,18. Chap.6.24. & 30.6. & 49.22,24.

the anguiſh as of her that bringeth forth her firſt child] Or, a voice of anguiſh like the anguiſh of one being in travel with her firſt birth: a voice muſt be ſupplyed; becauſe it hath reference to ſomewhat heard: and anguiſh repeated; as voice before: one being in travel with her firſt birth. Heb. making her firſt birth; ſtraining to be delivered of it: and this addeth to the force of the reſemblance, and the extremity of the grief and anguiſh thereby reſembled. Women in ſuch caſe having uſually hardeſt labour, and (having not been enured unto, or acquainted with pains of that nature before) the leſs patience, for the moſt part, in that regard to endure it.

that bewaileth her ſelf] Or, how fetching deep ſighs, ſhe bewaileth her ſelf; for that is the proper notion of the word. See Pſal. 27.12. a defect either of the relative, as Chap. 2. 32. or of the particle how, as Pſal.55.2.

that ſpreadeth her hands, ſaying,] Or, how ſpreading her hands, ſhe ſaith: either ſtretching them out, as for relief and ſuccour, to thoſe from whom ſhe expecteth it; as Eſay 1.15. or wringing her hands, and diſplaying them, out of grief and anguiſh; as the manner of women in extremity of pain or ſorrow, joyned with impatience and impotency of ſpirit, is wont to be. See Chap.2.37. Lam.1.17.

ſaying] Or, ſaith; a neceſſary ſupply, as Eſay 58. 3. & 62.11.

Wo is me now,] Heb. Wo now to me. So Lam.5.16.

for my ſoul is wearied becauſe of murtherers.] I am weary of my life; as Rebecca ſpeaketh, Gen.27.46. but this word is not there: or, my ſoul fainteth, or, is faint; as the word is well rendred, 1 Sam.14.28,31. and ſo it would be, Chap. 31. 25. See Lam.5.17.

becauſe of murtherers.] Or, for (ſo the particle is uſed, as noting the cauſe or ground of ought, Exod.10.14. Mal.2.3.) murtherers; the Chaldeans, mine enemies, that murther my people without mercy, 2 Chr.36.17. and that much enhanceth her anguiſh, that her lovers, her paramores, are now become murtherers, and have their hands in her blood as deep as any, ver. 30.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. Run ye to and fro in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, and ſee now and know, and ſeek in the broad places thereof, if ye can find a man, if there be any that executeth judgment, that ſeeketh the truth, and I will pardon it.] Whether this Chapter cohere, as ſome think, with the former, is ſomewhat uncertain. Howſoever, God in it by the Prophet proceedeth to complaine of the general corruption of all eſtates and degrees among them, their groſſe abuſe of his mercy, their ſtrange obſtinacy under his judgments, their extream folly and ſtupidity manifeſted to their damage and deſtruction in either, which by the Chaldeans he threatneth them with.

Run ye to and fro] In this verſe he implies the great paucity and rarity of righteous ones in Jeruſalem, when he maketh offer to ſpare it, if by going to and fro, and making enquiry in the ſtreets and places of moſt concourſe and confluence of people, they could meet with, and light upon, but any one ſuch.

Run to and fro] Or, Go to and fro; or, up and down, as Num. 11.8. 2 Sam.24.2. Job 1.7. for there is no notion of running in it, either in the notation, or the common uſe of the term; but in this form it is conſtantly uſed of going to and fro for enquiry and ſearch, 2 Chron.16.9. Dan. 12.4. Amos 8.12. Zach.4.10. the world is in the plurall number, as ſpoken not to the Prophet alone, but to any other, that would undertake the employment; as if he had ſaid, make the ſearch who will, it ſhall be all one who doth it: for they narrow it overmuch, that would reſtrain it to Jeremy, and Baruch.

in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem] As Chap.7.17. the word is general, and comprehendeth as well lanes, as ſtreets, as well the narrower, as the broader paſſages in a town or city, 1 King. 20.24. See Chap.6.11. yea, ſometime more generally, all places, either without dores, in Town, or city; or without town or city, the country, as we term it, rendred therefore the fields, Prov.8.26. and ſo it would be rendred, Pſal. 144. 13. that our ſheep may bring forth thouſands —— in our fields, or villages: in the country, where the cattel are kept; diſtinguiſhed from the ſtreets, that is, the Towns, or Cities, where men abide, in the next verſe; no out-cry (ſo would it be rendred) in our ſtreets: thus if it be here underſtood, the meaning will be; go up and down, both in city and country alſo, about Jeruſalem. But I take it rather in the former ſenſe; as chap. 14. 16.

ſee and know] As, know and ſee, Chap.2.19. So 1 Sam. 23.22,23.

ſeek] Make diligent enquiry; as Deut.13.14.

in the broad places thereof] Heb. in the ſtreets; as Lam. 2. 11,12. Zach.8.4. ſo called in Hebrew, from the breadth, or broadneſs of them. See Gen.26.16. as alſo ſtreets have thence their name both in Latine and Greek, in which language alſo, they have another term, for narrower lanes, to diſtinguiſh them from the broader: theſe he mentioneth the rather, becauſe the greateſt numbers of people are uſually in the broader ſtreets; that which maketh them, ſaith one, ſometime to looſe their name: places of meeting and convention, either for market, or merchandiſe, being commonly in ſuch: and there therefore one being moſt likely not to loſe his labour, what ſort of people ſoever he were to look after.

if ye can find a man] Some deſcant here upon the word man, that is, ſay they, one that deſerveth the name of a man; as the Cynick ſometime went up and down at noon-day with a lanthorn and candle in his hand, amidſt a preſs of people in the market-ſted, ſearching, as he ſaid, for a man: and as one of the Ancients, who delighted too much in dallying with Scripture, would pick myſteries out of that form, as it is in the original, Exod.36.4. Lev. 15. 2. a man a man; that is, ſaith he, a man both wayes, in regard both of the outward and inward man: for there are ſome men men, and ſome men beaſts, Pſal.49.12,20. Eccl.3.18. Chap. 10.8,14. the notion is good; but the Scriptures are wronged: for a man, or, a man man, is no more, then any one, or, any ſimply, in the one place; and every one, or each one, in the other. So is the word commonly uſed. See Eſay 8.11. & 57.1. & 36.6. & 40. 26. & 66.13. Chap.4.29.

if there be any] The word any, is not here in the text, but is not amiſs inſerted, as ſupplyed from the former branch; and becauſe the next term is ſingular, ſome render it, any one: that admitted, here is a very large offer made concerning Jeruſalem, larger far then that which God made unto Abraham concerning Sodome. God came ſo low there, as to promiſe to ſave Sodome, if ten righteous at leaſt, might be found in it, Gen.18.32. whereas here he promiſeth, as is deemed commonly, to ſpare Jeruſalem, if but any one righteous one could be met with in the ſtreets of it, being in all likelihood a city larger and more populous, I ſay not then Sodome; but then that, and the other three cities joyned to it, that periſhed with it; yea, then all thoſe four cities added to it, that ſhould have been deſtroyed together with it: But of this more hereafter.

that executeth judgment, that ſeeketh the truth] Heb. doing judgment, ſeeking truth; (as Prov.12.17.) or, fidelity; 2 Chr. 34.12. to do judgment, is, to deal juſtly, uprightly, Eſay 56.1. as, to do truth, or, fidelity; is, to deal truly, faithfully, Prov.12.22. 1 Joh.1.6. to ſeek truth, or, fidelity, is ſeriouſly to apply ones ſelf unto true and faithfull dealing; as, to ſeek righteouſneſs, is, to apply ones ſelf in like manner, unto juſt and upright dealing, unto the practice of righteouſneſs, Zeph.2.2. So that the meaning ſeems to be, if there can be any one found, that is carefull to deal uprightly, and faithfully. Whence ariſeth a very great and difficult queſtion, wherewith Interpreters are much troubled; for was not Jeremy himſelf in Jeruſalem? was not Baruch his Scribe there? there is more then one, there is two at leaſt then; nor were then wanting ſuch in likelihood among thoſe Princes, Elders, and People, that reſcued Ieremy out of the hands of the cruell Prieſts, and falſe Prophets, and the ſcum of the people, Chap. 26.8,16,17,24. or, among thoſe that diſſwaded the King from burning the book, Chap.36.16,25. not to add Ebedmelec one of King Zedekiahs Courtiers, Chap.38.7--9. Now to this there are divers anſwers. For firſt, ſome of the Rabbines anſwer, that the command is to ſearch in the ſtreets; but that ſuch godly ones as were then in the city, were not there to be found, becauſe they did keep within doors, and durſt not come abroad for fear, Chap.36.19,26. but this is not propable, and the places before related diſprove it: Others, that there was none to intercede, or deal with God in the behalfe of the city, becauſe the wicked ones ſlew them, and delt ſo cruelly with them; as an enemy ſhould he ſurpriſe the city, could not do worſe: to add ſome ſtrength to this, the laſt clauſe might be read, that I may ſpare it; if any ſuch may be found, that will intercede with me not to deſtroy it: the copulative for the finitive, as Eſay 61.3,4. but it is not likely, that the godly party were ſo hard-hearted any of them; but of Samuels minde rather, Far be it from me, that I ſhould ſin againſt the Lord, in ceaſing to pray for you, 1 Sam.12.23. And of Jeremies, that prayed unto God conſtantly for them, even after that by God he was forbidden ſo to do: See on Chap.7.16. Some other ſolve it, by reading the laſt branch; and I will ſpare him, will deliver him out of the common deſtruction, as I did Lot ſometime out of Sodome, Gen.19.29. 2 Pet.2.6,7. ſuch an one ſhall have his life for a prey, Chap. 21.9. & 39.18. & 45.5. And this would do well, if the text would bear it; but the affixed particle here is not maſculine, but femine; which ſheweth it to have reference not to the juſt one, but to Ieruſalem. Others therefore again anſwer, that the words are ſpoken to Jeremy, and Baruch, and therefore they are included: and beſides, that Jeremy was not of Jeruſalem, but of Anathoth, Chap.1.1. and Ebedmelec a Chuſhite, Chap.38.7. But theſe never ſeem of weight: Of ours ſome of chiefe note thus ſalve it. God by the Prophet, ſay they, dealeth with the main body of the people apart, ſetting aſide thoſe faithfull ones, whoſe number was not great, and were not comprehended in that body of the people, whereof he ſpeaks; but neither doth this ſeem to ſatisfie: for to ſay, ſee if ye can finde any righteous or religious ones, except it be off, or amongſt thoſe that are ſuch, (and ſo in effect it muſt be) ſeemeth to be but a trifling manner of ſpeech; they come nearer home, who expound it, one, that is, very few; one, for a few; as one days, (ſo the Hebrew is) for, ſome few days; or, a few days, Gen.47.44. & 29.20. So Eſay.30.17. A thouſand ſhall flee at the rebuke of one, and one of a city, Chap. 3.14. But the truth is, one is not in the text, muchleſs but one; as one, for, one only, Eccleſ.4.8. Nor go they far from this, who conceive the meaning to be, any; that is, any conſiderable number, in regard whereof God ſhould ſpare the city, as he would have done Sodome ſometime. And this ſenſe the words may very well bear; any that doth, for, any that do; any, as we ſay, worth the ſpeaking of: or, if we will reſtrain it to an individuall notion, and underſtand it ſtrictly of one ſingle perſon; the meaning may be, and that I conceive to be the right, That the people of the city were generally ſo corrupt, that a man might go to and fro, from ſtreet to ſtreet, in it for a long time together, and yet not light on any man, one or other, that were ſincerely righteous, that were truly religious; See Chap.6.28. & 9.2--4. and the like generality of corruption complained off, Gen.6.1. Pſal.12.1. & 14.2,3. Eſay 64.6,7. Mic.7.1,2.

and I will pardon it,] or, ſpare it. As Lam.3.42. For that one, or, thoſe few righteous ones, I will ſpare the whole city and not deſtroy it, as Gen.18.24,26,29,31,32.

V. 2. And though they ſay the Lord liveth, ſurely they ſwear falſly] Whereas it might be objected that they might meet not a few, that would ſeem very devout, had Gods name oft in their mouthes, and uſed to ſweare not by idols, as others, but by the only true God; verſ.7. Chap.12.16. Eſay 48.1. this objection to meet with, God telleth the Prophet, and them by him, that though they ſo did, yet that they do is not ſincerely, Chap.12.2. & 44.26. Pſal.50.16. Mat.23.14,23. 2 Tim.3.5. For even then when they ſwear, calling God ſolemnly to witneſſe, they have no regard of truth, they ſwear falſly, and do it but to deceive, Chap.42.5,20.

And though] Or, For, (as Chap.3.24.) though; Heb. if, as Iob.14.7,8. or, when; as Pſal.63.6. Amos 7.2.

ſurely] Heb. unto ſo, or, even ſo, as Chap. 29.28. Even when they do ſo ſweare; but that which our verſion hath, may well be retained: for the word is ſometimes uſed as a note of aſſeveration. See Chap.49.26.

they ſwear falſly] Heb. unto falſhood; or, a lye; as Eſay.42.4. Vnto truth, or, in falſhood; as in vanity, or, in vain, Chap. 2.30. So Lev.6.3. Chap.7.9. See Eſay 48.1. Mat.23.23.

V. 3. O Lord, are not thine eyes upon the truth? thou haſt ſtricken them, but they have not grieved.] The Prophet turneth his ſpeech to God, complaining of their hypocriſie, which he could not but deſcry, and their extream obſtinacy under his hand.

are not thine eyes upon the truth?] Or, as ſome, doſt not thou reſpect truth, or, fidelity? that is, true, upright, and faithfull dealing (which in theſe men is wholly wanting) doſt not thou reſpect it, expect it, require it, delight in it? as Chap.22.17. thine eyes are not, but upon thy lucre only; that is, thou regardeſt and lookeſt after nothing but that. But thou affecteſt, or, delighteſt, in truth in the inward parts, ſaith David to God, Pſal.51.6. Howbeit, by truth, or, fidelity, ſome underſtand here men of truth, or, fidelity; that is, men true and faithfull; as ſtrength, for, men of ſtrength, ſtrong men, Eſay.3.25. and wiſdome, for, a man of wiſdome; a wiſe man, Mic.6.9. and it is true, that ſuch alone God reſpecteth, and regardeth, Pſal.11.5,7. & 35.15. So David of himſelf, Mine eyes are upon the faithfull in the land, Pſal.101.6. that is, thoſe they are that I reſpect and regard: yet the former, ſeems to be the proper ſenſe of the place. And others again, Thou deſcrieſt truth; thine eyes ſee and diſcern, whatſoever ſhews men may make, where ſincerity is, and where it is not, and thou knoweſt therefore well enough, how holow-hearted theſe men are; that which alſo is true as well as the former: for his eyes behold, and his eye-lids try, or, diſcern the children of men, Pſal.11.4. and, he pondereth their ſpirits, Prov.16.2. And both of them, I deny not to be here intimated, and to flow neceſſarily from the text, and the drift of the place; but the firſt I conceive to be the preciſe ſenſe of the terms.

thou haſt ſtriken them, but they have not grieved] But (Heb. and, as Chap.4.22.) they are not grieved, they are not affected with ought, that hitherto hath been inflicted upon them; either by the hand of Senacherib, Eſay.10.5,6. & 36.1. or, by Pharao Necho, 2 Kings 23.37. or, by the forces of the Chaldeans and their complices, under Jehojakim, and Jehojachin, 2 Kings 24.2,13. they take nothing to heart, they are like Solomons drunkard, Prov.23.35. Eſay.42.25. Amos 6.6.

thou haſt conſumed them, but they have refuſed to receive correction] Or, thou haſt waſted them; but (as Prov.11.23.) they refuſe to receive inſtruction, See Chap.2.30. Zeph.3.2. corrected they have been with a witneſs, but inſtructed they will not be; they have been grievouſly waſted, and yet will they not be warned; they are never the better, or more reformed, for ought that hath befallen them, Eſay.1.5,6. & 9.13. Amos 4.6--11.

they have made their faces harder then a rock] To harden the face; in Scripture, is to grow obſtinate and impudent, Prov.21.29. So, they made their hearts an adamant, as it is rendred, Zach.7.12. Heb. hard from a flint; that is, harder then a flint, as Ezek.3.9. but there uſed of firmnes and unmoveable conſtancy.

they have refuſed to return] Or, they refuſe to return; they go on ſtill in their wicked courſes, Chap.8.5. & 9.3. and refuſe by ſincere repentance and ſerious reformation, to turn from them, and return unto God; notwithſtanding that his hand hath been ſo heavy upon them, to reclaim them, and bring them home unto him, See Chap.3.1,12. & 4.1.

V. 4. Therefore I ſaid] And I ſaid: but the copulative is ſometimes uſed for the illative; as Chap.3.3. & 7.16. Howbeit, I ſuppoſe here it need not be altered, unleſs it be for a diſcretive; but, or, yet I ſaid; that is, I thought with my ſelf, as Pſal.39.1. Eſay 63.8. Chap.3.19.

ſurely, theſe are poor, they are fooliſh; for they know not the way of the Lord, nor, the judgment of their God.] Or, theſe; (to wit, that ſwear by the name of God falſly, verſ.2. and perſiſt in their wicked courſes, verſ.3.) are poor ones onely, as the particle is uſed, Gen.18.32. or, peradventure (as Pſal. 139.11.) they are poor ones; the pronoun demonſtrative, for the verb ſubſtantive, as Chap.4.22. It may be they are of the meaner, and poorer ſort only, that are thus faulty; poverty putting them upon evill courſes, Prov.30.9. which they make the leſs conſcience of, in regard of their ignorance, becauſe they are not ſo well acquainted with Gods word, and ways, Judg.1.10. Ioh.7.49. they are fooliſh, (as Eſay.19.13. Chap.50. 36.) or, they do fooliſhly, (as Num.12.11.) becauſe (as Chap. 3.21,25.) they know not the way of the Lord, nor the judgment of their God: the ſame thing in divers terms, See Chap.8.7. judgment, for courſe, cuſtome, or manner of dealing, in generall, 1 Sam.2.13. & 8.11.

V. 5. I will get me unto the great men, and will ſpeak unto them; for they have known the way of the Lord, and the judgment of their God] I will try whether it be any better with the great ones, peradventure I may find it otherwiſe with them, being better acquainted with Gods will, and his wayes; becauſe they have had better breeding, and more abundant means of inſtruction, then thoſe of the meaner ſort, Prov.4. 3,4.

I will get me] Heb. I will go me; as Cant.4.6. See Chap. 4.12.

they have known] Or, know; as verſ.4.

but theſe have altogether broken the yoke, and burſt the bonds] But theſe alſo generally, as well one as another (Pſal.14.3.) have caſt of the yoke of Gods Law, and the bonds of loyalty and obedience to him, Pſal. 2. 3. Lam. 3. 27. Mat. 11.29,30. Luk.19.14,27. they that ſhould have ruled and directed others, and have taught them better things, are as bad, if not worſe, then any other, themſelves, Chap.6.13.

V. 6. Therefore a lion out of the foreſt ſhall ſlay them] Nebuchadnezzar and his forces, reſembled here by divers ſimilitudes; compared to a lion for his ſtrength, a wolf for his ravenouſneſs, a leopard for his ſwiftneſs, as ſome, or for his ſlyneſs, and watchfulneſs, rather.

a lion out of the foreſt] As, a boar out of the foreſt, Pſal. 80.13. See Chap.4.7.

ſhall ſlay them] See 2 King.25.7,18-21. Chap.52.10,24-27. Heb. ſmite them: as Chap. 40. 14, 15. & 41. 2, 3. See Eſay 66.3.

and a wolf of the evenings ſhall ſpoyl them.] So the Chaldee, the old Latine, and the moſt, both Jewiſh, and other, the Greek onely excepted, who are clean out of the way here: yet the plural, from the word that ſignifies Evening, is, in this form, no where elſe found: the ſingular is, being there alſo applyed unto wolves, whereby theſe Chaldeans are alſo reſembled for their fierceneſs, Habb.1.8. as are the Judges, among this people, for their rapacity, Zeph. 3. 3. Wolves of the evening, or evening Wolves: ſo termed from the time, wherein beaſts uſually look out, range abroad, and lay about them for prey, Pſal. 104. 20. being then eſpecially the more eager upon it, when they have been all day before without it. See Gen. 49. 27. yet ſome in thoſe two places render it, Wolves of Arabia, as they ſuppoſe the word to be uſed, Chap.25.24. and would have it alſo to be ſo underſtood here; but that other place in this Prophet is queſtionable; and the form being plural, will not here admit it. That is more probable, which ſome other of the Jewiſh have, who render it, the wolves of the deſarts: for ſo the word is oft uſed, Chap. 50. 12. & 51. 43. becauſe there commonly they keep: or, of the plains; for ſo alſo is the word uſed, Deut.34.1. Chap.39.5. becauſe, for prey, they there uſually haunt.

a leopard ſhall watch over their cities, every one that goeth out thence ſhall be torn in pieces.] To a leopard, is the Babylonian King and his forces compared, as for ſwiftneſs, Habb. 1. 8. ſo here for ſlyneſs, watchfulneſs, and lying in wait: as Hoſ.13.7. and it is here ſaid of them, that they ſhall ſo ſtrictly beſet and begirt their cities, and have ſo watchfull an eye upon them, that not any one ſhall be able to peep out of them, but ſhall fall into their clutches. See Chap. 4. 16, 17. The words may be read with ſupply of the note of ſimilitude oft wanting: as Gen.49. 9,14,21,27. As a lion—ſhall he ſlay them; as a wolf—ſhall he ſpoil them; as a leopard—ſhall he watch over their cities: he ſhall, that is, God will; or indefinitely, one ſhall. See Hoſ.13.7.

becauſe their tranſgreſſions are many, and their backſlidings are increaſed.] Or, are multiplyed: as Pſal. 40. 5, 12. & 60. 4. the ſame thing twice in ſeveral terms, with a defect of the copulative: as ver.4,5. yet the Chaldee, ancient Greek, and old Latine, render it, are ſtrengthened, or grown ſtrong. But the conſtant uſe of the word well obſerved, carryeth it rather the other way. See on Eſay 16.14 & 31.1. & Chap.30.15.

V. 7. How ſhall I pardon thee for this?] Or, how can I, or, how ſhould I, (as Chap.2.23. & 3.19.) ſpare thee (as ver.1.) for this? as Gen. 2. 23, Mal. 2.3. How can I without ſome aſperſion and diſparagement to mine honour and juſtice, paſs by and pardon ſuch foul abuſes? So ver.9.

thy children have forſaken me] Thy citizens, or inhabitants: thy children; as Chap. 2. 30. have forſaken me, deſerted my ſervice, Chap.1.16. & 2.13.

and ſworn by them that are no gods.] By idols, falſe and counterfeit gods, Chap. 16. 20. Gal.4.8. ſuch they ſwore by, Chap.12.16. Zeph.1.5. contrary to that inhibition, Joſh.23.7. but here to ſwear by them, is put more largely for the ſervice of them, and performance of religious worſhip unto them: one kind of it uſed to imply all the reſt. See Chap. 4. 2. Heb. by not gods; a defect of the pronoun demonſtrative, the relative, and verb ſubſtantive: the like is, 2 Chr.13.9.

when I fed them to the full, they then committed adultery, and aſſembled themſelves by troops in the harlots houſes.] Thus idolatry and adultery, ſpiritual filthineſs, and corporal uncleanneſs, go uſually hand in hand the one with the other, Num. 25.1,2. Hoſ. 4.12,14. Amos 2.8. Rev.2.20. & 9.20,21. & 17.5. Fulneſs of bread, through mans abuſe, breedeth filthineſs and looſeneſs of life, Ezek.16.49. And the more love and kindneſs God ſheweth to corrupt man, the more liberty he thereby taketh to live looſly and lewdly, and the more freely to offend, Deut.32.15. Eſay 26.10. Hoſ.4.7. Rom.2.4,5. Jud.4.

when I fed them to the full, they then committed adultery] When I fed them plentifully, and gave them their fill. Heb. and I ſatiated them, (as Pſal.81.16. Chap.31.25.) and they committed adultery. See the like frame, Chap.2.7,20. the then in the latter branch may well be ſpared: as Eſay 66.14.

aſſembled themſelves by troops] Heb. trooped themſelves: as Mic.5.1.

in the harlots houſes.] Heb. in the houſe of an harlot: in the brothel-houſes: a defect of the prepoſition; as Job 1.13. houſe, for houſes; as Prov. 14. 11. and harlot, for harlots; as Prov.6. 26.

V. 8. They were as fed horſes in the morning; every one neighed after his neighbours wife.] Their exceſs of uncleanneſs, and the generality of it, is further taxed, and amplified with a ſimilitude taken from the unrulineſs in that kind of ſtalions, or ſtone-horſes full fed. See Ezek.23.23.

as fed horſes] About the Epithet here uſed, there is great variety of opinions: The Chaldee rendreth it wild horſes; as Chap.2.24. a wild aſs: The Greek, and Latine, mad upon mares; as deriving it from the word that hath a notion of fornication, or unclean couplings: but this the analogy will not admit. The Jewiſh Critick-Maſters would have it ſo read, as if it ſignified armed, or barbed horſes; ſuch as this people for their wilful running head-long into ſin, are compared unto, Chap.8.6. which ſome of their Commenters follow, as drawing it from a term that ſignifieth armour, or arms, Deut.23.13. & 1 King.22.38. as ſome think. But the moſt, both Jews, and ours, render it fed, or well fed: from a word that ſignifieth to feed, found in the Syriack, of Daniel, Chap.4.12. in the Chaldee Paraphraſe very frequent: whence alſo the word for food, or vitails, in Hebrew, Gen.45.23. 2 Chr.11.23. Dan.4.12. as alſo, if our Criticks may be credited, a word that ſignifieth a vitailer, or hoſteſs; as, ſay they, Rachab was, Joſh.2. 1. and our Engliſh by-word, of provender-prickt, beſides common experience, enformeth us, that horſes well fed, are wont to grow the more wanton and unruly; alluded unto, Deut.32.15. and the Maſters of husbandry, adviſe to keep ſtalions high fed, when they intend them for that uſe.

in the morning] About this word, there is no leſs diverſity of expoſition, then concerning the former. Some of the Jewiſh Doctors would have it to be a Gentiliſh term from the country called Meſhec, of note, ſay they, for horſes, ſtalions eſpecially; and for horſes, indeed, it ſeems that the Togarma, one of the ſame lineage with Meſech, was famous, Gen. 10. 2,3. Ezek.27.13, 14. as were alſo the Mazates; of whom Oppian, in his hunting poem, l. 1. v. 170. Nor doth the exception againſt this ſeem valid; to wit, that then it ſhould be not Maſhcim, but Maſhchijim: for the one jod, is in ſuch Gentiliſh terms oftentimes omitted; as in Jehudim & Sidonim, Deut.3. 9. Eſt.8.9. But of any ſuch note of that country for horſes, ſome better proof would be had: for that Oppians Mazates, and the Meſhecites, or Maſacites, were the ſame people, is not eaſie to prove. Some of the Greek Interpreters render it drawing; as if it were horſes of draught, or draughts: and the verb from whence they ſeem to have drawn it, is uſed of ſowing, Amos 9.13. and the noun from it of ſeed, Pſal.126.6. and ſo it might be deemed, to import beaſts uſed for tillage: but if it be taken for a participle, the analogy rejecteth it; if for a noun, the ſyntax refuſeth it: and the notion ſuiteth not with the ſubject matter. Howbeit, to help this, a learned late Annotator, would have it to be a participle, in a Chaldee, or Syriack form: the like whereunto he findeth, Dan.3.16. & 5.25. Mark 14.37. 1 Cor.4.11. 1 Theſſ.2. 9. 1 Joh. 2. 20. conceiving that they underſtood it, of drawing out at length that part, or member, not named, becauſe not ſo fit or needful to be expreſſed; and ſuppoſing withall, that they read the word in a paſſive form, otherwiſe vowelled then we now have it. But this ſenſe of the word here, he himſelf approves not. A learned late Writer would have it rendred, a ſtalion, that is, an horſe kept and maintained on purpoſe for breed. So he ſaith the Syriack Tranſlator hath expreſſed it: and the ſame he ſuppoſeth, that the old Latine intended. Nor ſeemeth the Chaldee otherwiſe to have taken it, rendring it in a word by the Talmudiſts uſed to ſignifie the gendring of camels, and taken from their peculiar manner of coupling, as dogs do; which yet may peradventure be of larger extent; for that a term neer it, differing but in an he for an het, or a chet, ſeems to have a notion of ſomewhat about horſes: whence they have a term for a quiry, or a Maſter of horſe. But ſome of the Rabbines here expound it, as our Verſion hath it, in the morning: as alſo ſome ſuppoſe the Chaldee did; but that the text is now corrupted, which had Shacharim, that is, ſeeking in the morning at firſt: and this Interpretation is moſt generally received; as, ſay ſome, the morning dew, is by the ſame word expreſſed, Hoſ. 6.4. whereunto they add that in the morning, horſes having been full fed over night, and reſted well in the night, are more frolick and luſty. Againſt which it is objected, that the word is ſingular in Amos, but here it is plural; whereof more hereafter. And whereas it is by ſome in defence of the former interpretation alledged, that the ſingular and plural contracted are ſometime the ſame, as in tannim and tannin, for tanninim, and tanninin, Job 30.29. Pſal.44. 19. Eſay 34.13. & 35.7. & 43.20. Chap.9.11. & 14.6. & 10.22. & 49. 33. & 51. 37. Lam. 4.3. Mic. 1. 5. To this the learned Annotator beforementioned excepteth, That in all thoſe places, the word is ſingular; as Ezek. 29.3. though collectively underſtood; which yet to affirm of ſo many places, ſeemeth ſomewhat hard. The ground of the miſtake, in theſe miſexpoſitions, he conceiveth to be, that the Interpreters refer, that to the horſes, which is meant of the men, wherein I concur with him; though three go not otherwiſe his way. He underſtanding it of the men, would have it rendred, going forth; for ſo, ſaith he, to draw out, to wit, the feet, or ones ſelf, is uſed for to go forth, Gen. 37.29. Exod.12.2. Deut.21.3. Judg.4.6. & 20.37. Job 31. 33. and for the form, he hath recourſe, as before, to the Chaldee: Howbeit not ſeeming herein ſatisfied himſelf, he addeth another conjecture, that it may be rendred, not going out, but looking out, as looſe and laſcivious perſons are wont after thoſe whom they affect and are taken with; from a word, that in the Chaldee and Syriack doth ſo ſignifie, and is ſo uſed in either, Gen.19.28. Num.23.9. Act.28.4. and becauſe the middle letter is not alike pointed in that and this here, he addeth, that the like variations are found in ſome other words, Eſay 3.16. ver.30. Chap.23.14. & 29. 17. But theſe conjectures to me ſeem ſomewhat over-ſtrained, and far fetcht: let other Learned deem of them, as to them ſhall appear. Mean while, amidſt this diverſity of opinion, I ſhall make bold to propound my thoughts, and ſo leave them to the Learned. I take the word in the received, common, and well known ſenſe, of riſing early; or, as it is alſo not unuſually taken, of ſetting ſedulouſly, and eagerly, upon ought. So God ſaith, that he called upon his people riſing early, and ſpeaking, and ſending, and proteſting, and teaching, Chap. 7.13,25. & 11.7. & 25.4. & 26.5. & 29.19. & 32.33. & 35.14, 15. that is, doing ſedulouſly and earneſtly all this: and the Prophet of himſelf profeſſeth to have in like manner done his duty, chap. 25.3. and yet neerer to the preſent, it is ſaid of this wicked people, Zeph. 3.7. they roſe up early, corrupted all their actions: that is, riſing early, they corrupted, or, they roſe up early to corrupt, all their actions: they were early, eager, and earneſt upon it: and I conceive the word of riſing early, is here attributed, not to the horſes, but to the men here compared to them, thus rendred preciſely, according to the words and pauſes in the text, Fed horſes riſing early they are; for the note of ſimilitude is not in the text, and it is oft omitted. See on ver. 6. here the rather, to make the ſpeech the more emphatical; as Chap. 4.23, 24. So that as it is ſaid of drunkards, and riotous perſons, Eſay 5.11. they riſe early to follow ſtrong drink: ſo here of theſe unclean and adulterous perſons, they are in the morning ſo ſoon as they are up like fed ſtalions, or ſtoned horſes, as eager and earneſt to look after their whores, as thoſe other to look after their liquor. All that can be objected againſt this is, that the participle is ſingular, which I acknowledge, the verb plural: which in diſtributive notions is a thing moſt frequent. See on Eſay 2.20. & 26.19. and hereafter, ver. 26. and that to expreſs more fully, rendred it may be, As full fed horſes they were riſing early each one of them: as in that former place it is put into the text, the very next words confirm it; where the noun is ſingular, a man, for each man, as Ezek. 20.7,8. as alſo, the pronoun his neighbour; and the noun, wife: yet the verb plural, they neigh.

every one neighed after his neighbours wife.] This one of the Jewiſh Doctors fondly expoundeth, of their coming abroad with jollity, when they come out in a morning from their adultereſſes bed; as ſhameleſly glorying in their ſin and ſhame, like horſes, ſaith he, that having fed well in the night, uſe to neigh in the morning: but the Prophets purpoſe here, is not to expreſs the diſpoſition or carriage of theſe looſe and lewd perſons, when their filthy luſt is ſatisfied; but rather their earneſtneſs and eagerneſſe in ſeeking after thoſe, with whom they may ſatiate their unbridled luſt; nor is the neighing here alluded to the neighing of an horſe, out of alacrity or courage, whereof, ſee Job 39. 19-25. but his neighing upon the ſight or ſent of the mare, proceeding from unquietneſſe, until he can come at her. Of the generality of this corruption among them, ſee Chap. 9.2. neighed after] That is, neighing ſought after; as, lamented after, for, lamenting ſought after, 1 Sam. 7.2.

V. 9. Shall I not viſit for theſe things, ſaith the Lord?] Or, Should I not? Should I ſuffer ſuch things to go unpuniſhed? I might well then be deemed a favourer of them, as ſuch wicked ones conceive of me, becauſe I forbear them a while, Pſal. 50.21. Mal. 2.17. to viſit, for, to puniſh; as Pſal. 89.32. Eſay 26.14. & 27.1. See Chap. 6.6. becauſe viſitation and due cogniſance ought to go before execution of juſtice, Deut. 13.14. and to ſhew, that God never proceedeth to execution of judgment, but upon ſure and certain knowledg, Gen. 18. 20,21. Zach. 1.12. for theſe things; as Chap. 1.18.

and ſhall not my ſoul be avenged on ſuch a nation as this?] Or, ſhould I not avenge my ſelf? as Eſay 1.24. my ſoul, for, my ſelf; as Pſal. 3.2. and, his ſoul, for himſelf, Amos 6.8. but my ſoul, maketh the ſpeech here more emphatical; as Pſal. 11. 5.

V. 10. Get ye up upon her walls and deſtroy.] Gods words, as ſigning or giving out a commiſſion to the Chaldeans, to ſurpriſe and ſack Jeruſalem, and to make havock of her people. See on Eſay 10.6. See alſo, Chap. 34.22.

but make not a full end] That is, as ſome, but ſtay not there; go on to waſte the whole country, to deſtroy the whole nation, Chap. 4.23-27. but the meaning rather is, that God would not have them utterly deſtroyed. See Chap. 4.27. & 30.11. and the ground of this reſtriction, in the like caſe, Matth. 24.22. Heb. and (or, yet; as Chap. 3.7, 19.) a full end ye ſhall not make; as implying a providential paſſage, fixing a limit how far they ſhall proceed, and no further: as with Job 1.12. & 2.6. and of the Sea, Job 38.10,11. ver. 22. but, though no leſs be implyed, yet the future indicative ſeems put for the imperative: as Chap. 3.7, 19.

take away her battlements] Break down her walls from the top to the bottom; the battlements whereof were appointed for ſafeguard, Deut. 22.8. yet of the word here uſed, there is ſome queſtion made; for though ſome of the Rabbines expound it, as our verſion rendreth it, calling them the teeth of the wall. Yet, becauſe it is not found elſewhere uſed, but of the branches of a vine, Eſay 18.5. where the ſame verb is joyned with it that is here, and Jer. 48.32. one of them would have it alſo to be ſo here: as if Jeruſalem were compared to a vine, whoſe branches were to be cut off and ſpoiled; as of Moab, Eſay. 16.8. and this further to put on, he would have the former word alſo rendred walls, to ſignifie the rows, alleys, or paſſages between the vines in the vineyard; of which alſo, or the like, ſome expound that, Job 24.11. but the term of ſcaling, ſuiteth ill with ſuch. The Chaldee rendreth the former, her cities; this, her palaces, Eſay 32. 14. But theſe neither of them carry any great probability; the battlements ſeem to have had that name given them; becauſe they ſhot up like branches above the main body of the wall.

for they are not the Lords.] The pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive; as ver. 4. God owneth them not, either them or their city; they are out of his protection, their ſhield is gone from them; they have loſt their beſt bulwark, Numb. 14.7. See Chap. 12.7.

V. 11. For the houſe of Iſrael, and the houſe of Judah, have dealt very treacherouſly againſt me; ſaith the Lord.] Both houſes, as well the ten tribes, as the other two, Chap. 2.4. have dealt very diſloyally and perfideouſly with me, Chap. 3. 1, 6, 10. Heb. in dealing diſloyally have dealt diſloyally; as Eſay 24. 10. Howbeit, the words may be meant here of the two tribes only, and be read, as by way of explication with ſome emphaſis, thus; the houſe of Iſrael, even the houſe of Judah; as Ezr. 1.8. Chap. 4.6. and to this I encline. See ver. 15. and Eſay 31.6.

V. 12. They have belied the Lord] Or, as ſome, denyed him; as Joſh. 24.27. Job 8.18. & 31.28. Prov. 30.9. or, They give the Lord the lie; they make him a lyer; as he ſpeaketh, 1 Joh. 5.10. See Eſay 59.13.

and ſaid] Or, in ſaying; or, ſaying: as Gen. 24.60. So Gen. 18.15.

It is not he:] The Prophets ſpeak not from him, but fright us with tales of their own deviſing, 1 King. 22.24. Chap. 29. 26,27. & 43.2. For as for that which a learned late Writer hath from one of the Jewiſh Commenters, that they deny neither ſhall evil come upon us,] See Eſay 28.14,15.

God to be the Ruler of the world; that which God ſhould afterward refute by two inſtances, the one in his ruling of the Sea, ver.22. the other, in diſpoſing of the ſeaſons of the year, ver.24. ſeems clean beſides the drift and purpoſe of the Prophet in this place.

neither ſhall we ſee ſword nor famine.] Heb. and ſword and famine (or, or famine; as Chap.2.18.) ſhall we not ſee; that is, feel, or ſuffer; as Chap.43.14. & 44.17.

V. 13. And the Prophets ſhall become wind;] Their words are but wind; their prophecies ſhall paſſe into the wind; ſhall prove windy, vain, and of none effect: a proverbial form of ſpeech, very common, not with the Greeks and Latines onely, but in Scripture alſo very frequent, Job 6.26. & 15. 2. Prov.11.29. Eccl. 5.16. Eſay 57.13. Hoſ.8.7. & 12.1. 1 Cor. 14.9.

and the word is not in them] Or, neither (as ver. 12.) is the word (to wit, of God) in them. They ſpeak not from God, as they pretend to do; nor doth God or his Spirit ſpeak by them, or in them, Chap.43.2. 2 Cor.13.3. See ver.12.

thus ſhall it be done unto them.] The evils wherewith they threaten us, ſhall befal themſelves, 1 King.22.24,27.

V. 14. Wherefore thus ſaith the Lord God of hoſts;] Eſay 22. 15. & 28.16.

Becauſe ye ſpeak this word] Becauſe ye ſpeak on this wiſe; word, for, words: as 1 Sam.30.31. or, for, thing; as Chap. 7. 23.

Behold, I will make my words in thy mouth fire, and this people wood; and it ſhall devour them.] I will out of hand make it to appear, that the word that I have ſpoken by thee my Prophet, (for to him abruptly, as men oft in paſſion, he turneth his ſpeech. See the like, ver.19.) to be no vain word, Deut. 32.47. but ſuch as ſhall ſpeedily be put in execution, and take hold on them, as fire on ſear wood, utterly to conſume them, Pſal.83.14. Eſay 9.18,19. Chap.6.11. See Chap.4.4.

Behold I will make] Heb. Behold (as Chap. 1.9.) I am giving; as Chap. 32. 3, 26. giving, for, making; as Ezek. 3. 8, 17.

my words in thy mouth] Which I have put into thy mouth, Chap.1.9,15,16.

fire] By the effect of it, Chap.23.29. See Ezek. 5.2,4.

this people wood] Fewel for it. See the like, Zach. 12. 6. Obad.18.

and it ſhall devour them.] Heb. eat them; as Eſay 26.11.

V. 15. Lo, I will bring a nation upon you from far, O houſe of Iſrael, ſaith the Lord] Heb. Behold I am bringing: as Chap.4. 6. & 11.11.

from far] From Chaldea; as Chap.4.16. Deut.28.49. Eſay 39.3,6,7.

O houſe of Iſrael] Ye people of the Jews, who are of the lineage of Iſrael; and the chief part thereof: for they alone are the people here threatned; the other ten tribes were in captivity already. See on Chap.4.1. So ver.20. Chap.6.9.

it is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation;] Heb. a mighty nation it is, a nation from of old, or, from antiquity, (as Eſay 63.16. Chap.2.28.) it is; the pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive: as ver.4,10. Eccl.1.10. that hath been a potent people ever ſince Nimrods dayes, the firſt founder of Babylon, Gen. 10.10. Eſay 23.13.

a nation whoſe language thou knoweſt not, nor underſtandeſt what they ſay.] For the Babylonians ſpake the Syrian tongue, Dan.2.4. as did alſo the Aſſyrians; which the Jewiſh people generally underſtood not, having not been accuſtomed thereunto, Eſay 36.11. that which was long ſince threatned, Deut. 28.36,49. who will be the more ſtern and ſavage to thee, becauſe thou ſhalt not underſtand what they ſay to thee, nor thou know how to entreat them. See Eſay 28. 11. and 33.19.

knoweſt not] That is, underſtandeſt not: as Pſal.81.5.

nor underſtandeſt] Heb. heareſt; as Eſay 26.11. & 33.19.

what they ſay] Heb. what he ſhall ſay; but the word nation is collective. So ver.16.

V. 16. Their quiver is an open ſepulchre] Heb. his quiver; or, whoſe quiver (the demonſtrative for the relative; as Eſay 47. 4. ver. 21.) is an open ſepulchre: a proverbiall form of ſpeech. See Pſal.5.7. Prov.1.12. the quiver ſaid ſo to be in regard of the arrows, the ſons of the quiver, as they are termed, Lam.3.13. that ſhall be deadly to deſtroy and devour, or conſume many. See Eſay 13.18. ſuch ſhall their arrows be, as ſhall not miſſe what they aym at, like the Benjamites ſling, Judg.20.16. and Jonathans bow, 2 Sam.1.22. and where they light, they ſhall wound mortally, they ſhall pierce to the heart; as Pſal.45.5.

they are all mighty men.] The pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive; as Eſay 60.21. So ver.17.

V 17. And they ſhall eat up thine harveſt, and thy bread, which thy ſons and thy daughters ſhould eat; they ſhall eat up thy flocks and thine herds: they ſhall eat up thy vines and thy fig-trees] They ſhall conſume and devour all thy proviſions, as well the fruits of the earth, as thy cattel. See Deut. 28.30, 31, 33,51.

thine harveſt] Thy crop, Lev.26.16.

which thy ſons and thy daughters ſhould eat] the childrens bread, Mat.15.26. and he ſaith, thy bread, that they ſhould eat, rather then, the bread that thou ſhouldeſt eat: becauſe unto tender-hearted parents, it is a greater miſery to want food for their children, then to want it for themſelves, Lam.2.11,12. Heb. which thy ſons and thy daughters ſhall eat: a defect of the relative; as Chap.4.31. and, ſhall eat, for, ſhould eat; as, ſhall reign, for, ſhould reign, 2 King.3.27.

thy flocks and thine herds] See Chap.3.24.

thy vines and thy figtrees] That is, the fruit of them; as Eſay 36.16.

they ſhall impoveriſh thy fenced cities, wherein thou truſtedſt, with the ſword.] By cutting off, and deſtroying the people in them. See Deut.28.52.

fenced cities] Heb. cities of fences: as, cities of fence, chap. 34.7. thy ſtrongeſt and beſt defenced cities: for theſe plural exaggerate. See on Eſay 58.11. & 64.6.

V. 18. Neverthleſs in thoſe daies, ſaith the Lord, I will not make a full end with thee.] Heb. And alſo; or, Yet even. And, for, Yet; as ver.10. alſo, for, even: as Eſay 57.6,7. Of the meaning of the words, ſee on Chap.4.27. and before here, ver.10.

V. 19. And it ſhall come to paſſe, when ye ſhall ſay, wherefore doth the Lord our God all theſe things unto us? then ſhalt thou anſwer them,] Heb. And it ſhall be; as Chap. 4. 9. and thou ſhalt ſay to them, when ye ſhall ſay,—then thou ſhalt ſay to them; or, that when they ſhall ſay,— thou ſhalt ſay to them; as Deut.30.1,3. a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as ver. 14. See Chap.15.2.

Wherefore doth the Lord our God all theſe things unto us?] Or, hath he done. Thus wretched and ſottiſh creatures, as if they were to be taught and told that, as a thing that they had never heard of before, which by the Prophets of God had ſo oft been foretold them; or as if they had cauſe to queſtion, why God ſhould deal ſo with them, when as they had dealt ſo diſloyally and perfidiouſly with him, ver.11. See the like expoſtulations of wicked ones with God, Eſay 58.3. Chap.13. 22. & 16.10.

Like as you have forſaken me, and ſerved ſtrange gods in your land; ſo ſhall ye ſerve ſtrangers in a land that is not yours.] See Deut.28.47,48.

forſaken me] Chap.1.16. ver.7.

ſtrange gods] Heb. gods of a ſtranger; or, ſtrange people. So Joſh.24.23. See the like, Chap.8.19.

in your land] Or, in your own land: to make it to anſwer the other branch more fully: as, to your own hurt, Chap. 7.6.

in a land that is not yours.] Heb. in a land not yours: as, for not bread, Eſay 55.2. by not Gods, ver.7.

V. 20. Declare this in the houſe of Jacob, and publiſh it in Judah, ſaying;] Declare and publiſh; as Chap. 4.5. the houſe of Jacob, and Judah; one and the ſame: as Jeruſalem and Sion, Eſay 1.27. & 2.3. See ver.11.

V. 21. Hear now this, O fooliſh people, and without underſtanding, which have eyes and ſee not, which have ears and hear not.] Hear now; as Eſay 7.13.

O fooliſh people] Or, ſottiſh; as it is rendred, Chap.4.22.

without underſtanding] Heb. to whom heart is not; as Hoſ. 7.11. a defect of the relative; as ver.17.

which have eyes and ſee not, which have ears and hear not.] See Eſay 6.9. & 42.20. Ezek.12.2. Heb. eyes are to them, and they ſee not; ears are to them, and they hear not: or, but they ſee not; but they hear not: the copulative for the diſcretive, or adverſative; as Eſay 29.13. Chap.12.2. and the demonſtrative for the relative, as ver.16. and a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as Chap.2.6,7. ver.19.

V. 22. Fear ye not me? ſaith the Lord; will ye not tremble at my preſence? who have placed the ſand for a bound of the ſea, by a perpetual decree, that it cannot paſſe it; and though the waves thereof toſſe themſelves, yet can they not prevail: though they roar, yet can they not paſſe over.] The folly and ſottiſhneſſe of this people is hereby evinced, in that neither the apprehenſion of Gods powerful greatneſſe manifeſted, in bounding that vaſt and violent body of the ſea, which no might or ſlight of man is able to maſter, when it riſeth and rageth with a bank of ſand, and ſo keeping it within compaſſe, that it cannot ſtir an inch further then he hath ſet and aſſigned it; will enforce them to fear him, and ſtand in awe of him: nor the conſideration of his gracious goodneſſe, Act.14.17. manifeſted, in crowning the yeer with his bleſſing, Pſal. 69.9-11. and giving ſeaſonable times for the ripening and receiving the fruits of the earth, induce them to ſerve and obſerve him for their own benefit and behoof, ver.24.

Fear ye not me?] Heb. Will ye not fear me? and ſo it would be rendred to ſuit with the next branch; unleſſe we render that alſo in the preſent; will ye not be ruled by me, who am able to rule and over-rule the moſt unruly creature of all others,] Job 7.12. the ſea, Pſal.65.7. & 93.4.

tremble at my preſence] As Pſal.114.7.

who have placed the ſand for a bound of the ſea] Heb. ſet the ſand a bound to the ſea. See Pſal.104.9. Job 26.10.

by a perpetual decree] Or, an ancient decree. Heb. an ordinance of perpetuity; as Exod.29.9. or, of antiquity, as ver.15. Hab.3.6. if we take it the latter way, it hath reference unto the antiquity, either of Gods diſpoſition, at the creation, Gen. 1.9. Job 28.10,11. or of his determination after the floud, Gen.8.21. & 9.11. if the former way; which the words following ſeem to lead unto, it muſt be underſtood of the continuance of it. Whereof, ſee Gen.9.11. Job 26.10.

that it cannot paſſe it] Or, which it cannot paſſe. Heb. will not, or, ſhall not, paſſe; as Pſal.104.9. the copulative and demonſtrative for the relative; as Eſay 46.11. & 48.8. and the indicative in a potential notion; as Chap.2.23,32.

and though the waves thereof toſſe themſelves, yet can they not prevail;] Heb. and (or, ſo that, as Chap. 14.19. or, though; as Eſay 10.5.) the waves thereof toſſe themſelves, (as Chap.46.7, 8.) and (or, yet; as Chap.3.7.) they cannot, (to wit, get over; ſupplyed from the next branch) or, they ſhall not prevail; as Gen.32.28. 1 Sam.26.25. that is, they cannot; as before: two copulatives diverſly uſed, in a two-fold notion; connexive, and conceſſive, the former; the like whereunto, ſee Exod.19. 4. ver.26. in a ſingle diſcretive notion, the latter; as ver. 10. So in the next branch; though they roar, yet can they not paſſe over.] Heb. and they roar, or, rage; (as it is rendred, Pſal.46.6.) and they ſhall not paſſe over: and, & and, for, though, and, yet; as Job 8.7.

V. 23. But this people have a revolting and rebellious heart; they are revolted and gone.] But. Heb. And; as ver.3.

a revolting] Or, refractary. See ver.3,6. they are of a refractary ſpirit, wholly bent unto, pitcht and fixed upon rebellious courſes, Pſal. 78.8.

revolted and gone] From my Law, which the ſea it ſelf obſerveth, ver.22. as ſome: the wretched and rebellious condition of mankind, who alone of all the creatures tranſgreſſe the Law which God hath preſcribed them; go beyond the bounds that he hath aſſigned them, Pſal.119.90,91. & 148.8. or, revolted and go on; perſiſt in their revolt and rebellious courſes, and will not be reclaimed, ver.3. Chap.8.4,5. Heb. they are gone aſide; (Pſal.14.3.) and go, or, will go, Chap. 2. 25. Hoſ.2.10.

V. 24. Neither ſay they in their hearts;] They think not once with themſelves; as Pſal. 14.1. Chap. 13. 22. Zeph. 1. 12.

Let us now fear the Lord our God] Let us ſerve and worſhip him; let us obſerve and obey him: to fear, for, to ſerve; as 2 King.17.25-41. becauſe all our ſervice of God ought to proceed from fear, Deut.10.20. 1 Sam.12.24. and to be mixed with fear, Pſal.2.11. Heb.12.28. Let us ſerve him for his goodneſſe, Deut.28.4. Hoſ.3.5. and for our good, Deut.5.29. & 6.24. & 10.13. Chap.32.39.

that giveth rain] Deut.28.12. Amos 4.7. Mat.5.41. which neither the idols, nor the clouds of themſelves can give, Job 38.25-28. Chap.14.22. Zach.10.1. and which if it be withheld, the sky will be as braſſe over our heads, and the earth as iron under our feet, Deut.28.23. rain, ſaith the Rabbine, to water their gardens, and for other uſes, both for man and beaſts; the other two ſorts ſubjoyned, principally for their corn: but this ſeems but a niceety; the other two ſeem to particularize rather this general, as being the rains chiefly deſired.

both] Heb. and; on which the Jewiſh Critick would ground his former niceety; but it is rather a particular explication of what rain he intended: and, for, both; as Chap. 17. 26. or, even: as Chap.52.13.

the former and the latter] Heb. joreh and malkoſh; So Deut. 11.14. for the word geſhem, for rain, before uſed, comprehendeth both, Hoſ.6.3. Joel 2.23. the former called here joreh, and elſe-where alſo moreh, Joel 2.23. is termed the former; not becauſe it came firſt, according to the more generall account of the year, and the ordinary ranking of the months whereof it conſiſted; for that which is here rendred the latter, came in the firſt month, Joel 2.23. this in the eighth: but in reference to their husbandry, and the order thereof; the former falling ſhortly after their ſeed time, the latter, ſome time before their harveſt, in regard whereof, alſo the year for civil contracts began at the month Tiſri, in account otherwiſe the ſeventh, See Lev.23.24. & 25.9. and it had its name joreh, or, moreh, from a word that ſignifies to pour down, Prov.11.25. Hoſ.10.12. See Eſay 30.20. Chap.3.3. In which latter place alſo, ſee of the latter rain, called malkoſh both here and there.

in his ſeaſon] In the months above mentioned, Lev.26.4. So Deut.11.14.

he reſerveth unto us the appointed weeks of the harveſt] Or, and keepeth; or, that keepeth for us the weeks appointed for harveſt: a defect either of the copulative, as ver.5.6. or, of the relative, as Chap.4.31. ver.17.26. That continueth unto us the ſeaſons of the year, each in his turn and due time, Gen.8, 22. or, that keepeth the times of harveſt fair and dry for us; ſo that we have weather of either ſort ſeaſonably; for rain in harveſt is unſeaſonable and hurtfull, Prov.26.1. See 1 Sam. 12.17,18. Eſay.18.4. Heb. weeks of ordinances, or, appointments of harveſt: whence one of the Jewiſh Doctors would have ſome reſpect had to the two ordinances, made for their harveſt oblations; the one for the ſheaf, Lev.23.10. the other for the loaves, Lev.23.17. and other to two requiſites in harveſt times; fair weather to reap, and a good wind to winow. But the former is wholly here impertinent, the latter over-curious. Their harveſt time for corn, was within the compaſſe commonly of two months, half Niſan, all Sivan, and half Iyar: but he ſhith rather weeks, then monthes, or days; in reference to thoſe ſeven weeks, between thoſe two ſolemn feaſts of Paſch, and Pentecoſt, Lev.23.15. Num.28.20. Deut.16.9. (whence the latter of them is called the feaſt of weeks, Exod. 34.22. Deut. 16. 10, 16.) within which it was the moſt part uſually got in; in this regard they were enjoyned at the Paſch, at which time they began to put ſickle to their corn, Deut.16.9. to bring for an oblation to the Lord, a certain quantity of corn; that is, as it is generally deemed, of barly, becauſe that was ſooner ripe with them, as in Egypt alſo, Exod.9.31,32. then wheat, Ruth 2.23. whether in the ear, or beaten out, is queſtioned; becauſe the term uſed in the Law is ambiguous, ſignifying as well a ſheaf of corn, as a certain meaſure of grain, or meale: nor was it lawfull for them to eat any bread, or parched corn, or green ear of that years grain, untill this offering had been tendred, Lev.23.14,15. and at Pentecoſt, (from the number of days, making up thoſe weeks, Lev.23.16. ſo termed, Act.2.1. 1 Cor.16.8.) they were to bring two loaves made of fine flower; of wheat, as it is generally deemed, being their wheat harveſt was then begun, and in its height, or heat, if not well neer done; for a tribute, as it is termed, Deut.16.10. or, in nature of their firſt fruits, as it is ſtyled, Lev.23.17. in regard whereof, is the firſt day of that feaſtivall, called the day of the firſt fruits, Num.28.26. Some of our Interpreters of chieſe note here, ſtep out of the common rode: ſome reading the words here; that keepeth with us the oathes of the ſtatutes of harveſt; as having reference to the oath, that God took for the continuance of harveſt in its due ſeaſon, Gen.8.22. but of any oath (oathes muchleſs, as here) there is no mention there. Others rendering them, the ſevens, and the ſtatutes of harveſt; and by the former, underſtanding the ſeventh year, wherein they were forbidden to till, Lev.25.4--7. by the latter, the bleſſing that God promiſed to give in thoſe years, Lev.25.20--22. but I find not the word of ſevens, or, weeks, any where ſo uſed; and it ſeems to diſtract the text too much: as for the ancient Greek and old Latine, who inſtead of weeks, here read and render fulneſs, they are too too apparently out of the way, ſuppoſing it to come from a root that ſignifies to ſatiate, which this hath no affinity with, nor hath that any place here: which groſſe miſtake yet our Popiſh writers endeavour to ſalve, inſteed of diſcovering, as they might better have done the ground of their errour.

V. 25. Your iniquities have turned away theſe things, and your ſins have withholden good things from you] Heb. good from you; as Eſay 55.2. This is the true cauſe why your rains have been reſtrained, Chap.3.3. If there be any reſtraint of Gods bleſſings, it is by reaſon of mans ſins, Pſal.107.17,34. Eſay 59.1,2.

V. 26. For among my people are found wicked men; they lye in wait as he that ſetteth ſnares; they ſet a trap, they catch men] or, that lye in wait, or, watch, or, prey each of them; (a defect of the relative, as ver.7.17. and a change of the number, as Joel 1.20.) as when fowlers couch themſelves; (the particle including a two-fold notion, as Eſay 54.9. & 64.2. ver.25.) they ſet a ſnare, or, a gin, to take men: as, roſe and warred, for, roſe to war, Joſh.24.9. roſe early corrupted, for, roſe early to corrupt, Zeph.3.7. know not give not, for, know not how to give, Job 32.22. So alſo Eccleſ.8.1.

are found] Or, are to be found; for, to be, as Eſt.1.5. Luk. 17.18.

lay wait] Or, watch, or, pry; for ſo the word properly ſignifies, Hoſ.11.7. whence enemies are called priers, or, watchers; becauſe they eye men to do them ſome miſchiefe, Pſal.5.8. & 27.11. & 54.7. & 56.2. & 59.10. & 92.11. See of Saul the like, 1 Sam.18.11.

as he that ſetteth ſnares] Or, as fowlers; or, as when fowlers, (ſo the word is ever taken, Pſal.91.3. Prov.6.5. Hoſ.9.8. never for a ſnare) couch, or, lye ſtill, and quiet; as thoſe do that lye in wait: Heb. as, or, according to fowlers in couching; for the verb in the form here uſed, is never found in a tranſitive notion, ever in an immanent. So it is uſed of the waters of the deluge; the waters were abated, or, alaid; fell, and began to be low, Gen.8.1. and the Kings anger was laid, or, appeaſed, Eſter 2.1. & 7.10. and in the tranſitive form, that thou maiſt ſtill their murmuring, Num.17.10. they lye in wait to catch men, as fowlers do to take fowl, Prov.1.11,17,18. See alſo Pſal.10.8-10. in which place, a word ſomewhat like that here; as well in ſound, as in ſenſe, is of the like uſed, as alſo, Job 38.40.

they ſet a trap] Or, gin, or, ſnare: the word propery ſignifies perdition, or, deſtruction, Exod.12.13. 2 Chr.20.23. Ezek.21.31. in the next place, a gin, or, ſnare, ſet on purpoſe to work deſtruction; in which notion it is here alone found: a learned late writer rendreth it, a pit; and true it is that a word ſomewhat neer it, and as ſome think, of the ſame family with it; is uſed ſometime for corruption, ſometime for a pit, Pſal.16.10. & 94.13. & 103.4. Prov.26.27. as alſo that pit-fals are made to take birds; and both pits digged, and ſnares laid in pits to catch other creatures, Pſal.7.15. & 9.15. & 35.7. but that will not fit well here; for, to ſet a pit, carrieth no good ſenſe; rather, as moſt render it, they ſet traps, or gins, or, ſnares; (for the word is here collectively uſed) to catch men; either to ſpoil them, or ſlay them, or both, Prov.1.11-13,16-19. So ſet Jezabel a ſnare for Naboth, 1 Kings 21. and Saul divers for David, though none of them took; See 1 Sam.18.17,21,25. & 19.1.11,17,20. & 23.7,9,14,22,23.

V. 27. As a cage is full of birds, ſo are their houſes full of deceit] A cage, or, a coup; for it is (as the Jewiſh Maſters tell us) a receptacle made of boards, wherein fowlers and poulterers uſed to keep and fat their fowl: the fowlers cage or coup, of whom before, ver.26. and it may ſignifie as well one made of twigs, as of boards; for it is uſed alſo for a maund, or, a basket, Amos 8.1,2.

their houſes full of deceit] Of goods gotten by deceit; by ſuch wiles and devices as they enſnare men withall: as, falſhood, for goods got by falſhood, Eſay 28.15. labour; for, goods gotten by pains-taking, Chap. 3.24. See Mic.6.10. Zeph.1.9.

therefore are they become great, and waxen rich] Or, thereby; or, by ſuch means. Heb. for ſo.

V. 28. They are waxen fat] Fat; that is, wealthy, Pſal.22.29. Habb.1.10. or, corpulent, being full fed, Pſal.73.7. & 119.70. See ver.7. Deut.32.15.

they ſhine] Or, they are ſlick, or, ſmooth; without wrinkles, as full and fat bodies uſe to be: ſo the noun hence deduced, (for the verb is no where elſe found) as poliſhed, or, ſmooth ivory, Cant.5.14. and, poliſhed, or, ſmooth iron, Ezek.27.19. for that is all the ſtock of it.

yea, they over-paſs the deeds of the wicked] According to this verſion the meaning ſhould be, they go beyond the very heathen themſelves in wickedneſs, See Chap.2.33. Ezek.5.6,7. and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters alſo underſtand the text. The ancient Greek rendreth it, they paſs by judgment; which would ſute well with what followeth, if the words would bear it: but it either mangleth the text, or forceth it over-much. The Chaldee, They tranſgreſſe the words of the Law, they do evill: and much to the ſame effect, the old Latine: they do wickedly paſs by my words: but they both alſo put in, what is not in the text. The Hebrew is word for word, they paſs by words, or, matters of evill; words, or, matters, of evill, is no other then evill things, Pſal.65.3. as, words, or, matters, of faſtings, and cry; for, the faſts and cries themſelves, So Chap.7.4,8,22. this ſome of the Rabbines expound, when any evill either is menaced, or befalleth them for the evill they do; they paſs it, or, put it by, and do the evill for all that; as ver.3. Some of ours, whom I concur with, they paſs by evills; they eſcape thoſe evill occurrents, of penalty and judgment, wherewith others are ſurpriſed, as Pſal.73.5. Howbeit, a learned late writer, underſtandeth it of perſons, in bad caſe, ſad, or afflicted; as the word evill, is oft uſed, Gen.41.4. Lev.27.10,33. Prov.15.15. as if the meaning were; they paſs by the matters, or, the cauſes of ſuch, refuſing to meddle with them: which though it would ſute well with what followeth, yet ſeemeth here ſomewhat forced.

they judge not the cauſe, the cauſe of the fatherleſs] Cauſe: Heb. judgment, as Deut.17.8. Chap. 22.16. & 30.13. the cauſe, I ſay, of the fatherleſs; or, orphant; either they refuſe to hear it, Eſay.1.23. or, if they do, they right them not, but wrong them rather, Zach.7.10. Hereby it appeareth, that what was before ſaid, was againſt thoſe principally intended, that were in place of judicature; yet not excluding others alſo, whom for bribes, thoſe great ones backed and bore out, See Eſay 1.23. Mic.7.2,3. Zeph.3.3,4.

yet they proſper.] Heb. and; as ver.10,22. They thrive with, or notwithſtanding, their wickedneſs: as Job 21.7-15. Pſal.73.3-12. Chap.12.1.2. Habb.1.3,4. Zach.11.5. or, as the words may well be read, that they might proſper: for ſo alſo is the copulative frequently uſed, Joſh.24.9. Eſay 10.19. & 11.3. & 13.2. & 41.22. & 53.2. See ver.22. they do not execute judgment and juſtice, that they might proſper through Gods bleſſing upon them for the ſame, Chap.22.15,16.

and the right of the needy they do not judge.] The right, or the cauſe, as before. Heb. the judgment: another word of the ſame notion with the former. So Exod.23.6. Job 31.13.

V. 29. Shall I not viſit for theſe things? ſaith the Lord, ſhall not my ſoul be avenged on ſuch a nation as this?] Or, Should I not? ſee ver.9. I might, otherwiſe, ſeem to be neither juſt nor merciful. See Exod.22.22-24,27. Luk.18.2-8. Jam.2.13.

V. 30. A wonderfull and horrible thing is committed in the land.] Heb. a ſtupendious; ſuch a thing as a man would be aſtoniſhed at; as, Be aſtoniſhed, O heavens, Chap.2.12. for from thence the word cometh: and an abominable thing, not an horrid, as ſome; ſuch as may make a mans hair ſtand an end: for it cometh not from that root, though they be very neer: the roots differ, as Shibboleth, and Sibboleth, Judg.12.6. though ſome would have that diverſitie oft-times diſregarded, ſee on ver. 8. but a vile, filthy, abominable thing, ſuch an one as a man would loath and abhor: it is uſed of thoſe figs, ſaid to be ſo bad, that there was no eating of them, Chap.29.17. So Ch.18.13, & 23.14. Hoſ.6.10.

V. 31. The Prophets propheſie falſly;] Heb. in, or by, or with a falſhood, or a ly: as Chap.14.14. & 20.6. & 23.25,26. Ezek.13.6. Either they propheſie in Baals name, Chap. 2. 8. or they propheſie lyes in my name, Chap.4.10.

and the Prieſts bear rule by their means;] Heb. the Prieſts, or Princes, (for the word will bear either: See on Eſay 61.10.) rule upon, or at, or by, their hands: as Eſay 62.3. This ſome render of the Princes, whom, ſay they, the falſe Prophets confirmed in their rapines, and robberies, being by them bribed ſo to do, Ezek.13.22. So ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors. Other of them expound it, of the corrupt carriage of the Princes in taking of bribes, Hoſ.4.18. Mic.7.3. and becauſe the word here uſed, is found, Judg.14.9. where it is ſaid of Sampſon, that he took in his hands of the honey that he found in the carcaſs of the lion; they would therefore have it here ſo to ſignifie, the Princes, or Prieſts, take bribes, that are as ſweet as honey to them, into their hands, to pervert the right, and to give wrong judgment. The ancient Greek, and the old Latine, following it, The Prieſts with their hands applaud them: or, as a late Writer would have the Greek to mean, They applaud their, that is, the falſe Prophets, hands; as if they had read with other vowels, they deſcend upon their hands. But this the words, without ſome variation, will not admit. Moſt of ours, There is a combination between the Prieſts, and the falſe Prophets, and theſe, by their falſe prophecies, ſupport and confirm the Prieſts in their ambitious courſes and corrupt carriages, whereby as Elie's ſons ſometime, 1 Sam.2.12-17,22. they domineered and tyrannized over Gods people, and which the true Prophets of God reproved in them. Nor doth that ſwerve from this in effect and ſubſtance, which that learned late Writer ſuggeſteth, that the phraſe at the hand here uſed, doth uſually ſignifie after, or according to, the leading, guidance, or direction of ſome other: as Exod.2.5. Num.13.29. Joſh.15.15. 2 Sam.15.18. (which place one of the Jewiſh Commenters here pointeth us to) 1 Chr.25.2,3,6. 2 Chr.17.14. & 31.15. Neh.3.2,4,5. ſo it ſhould be implyed, that the Prieſts ruled and ſwayed all, not ſo much by the miniſtery, as by the authority of the falſe Prophets, who pretended an extraordinary call, Howſoever we take the term, certain it is, that they both banded together againſt Gods Prophets, Chap. 26. 8. & 29.25-27.

and my people love to have it ſo:] They like and love the lies and flatteries of the falſe Prophets, better then Gods truth, Eſay 30.10. Mic.2.6,11. 2 Theſſ.2.9-11.

and what will ye do in the end thereof?] Some underſtand it, as ſpoken in the perſon of God, as rendring a reaſon of what he had ſaid, ver. 29. What will this wickedneſs grow unto, unleſs I do by ſome ſpecial penal courſe repreſs it? Others, rather, what will be the iſſue of this? what will become of you at laſt? when all ſorts among you, Prophets, Prieſts, and People, are ſo extreamly corrupt and faulty, what can be expected, but an utter riddance of you all? See Chap.6.13. Mic.3.11.

CHAP. VI.

V.1. O Ye children of Benjamin gather your ſelves] The Prophet proceedeth to give warning of the Chaldeans approach, ver.1-6. ſheweth what miſery and miſchief ſhould thereby befall them, ver.21-26. withall laying before them the cauſes of all this, to wit, the general corruption among all ſorts with them, ver.6,7,13,28. and their wilful obſtinacy, in refuſing to hearken to Gods Word, ver.8, 10-17,28. and to break off their wicked courſes, ver. 29, 30.

O ye children of Benjamin,] To the Benjamites, the Prophet directeth his ſpeech, as to forewarn them of the Babylonian expedition againſt Judah, and the ſiege of Jeruſalem ſhortly after to enſue, becauſe that Tribe had adhered to Judah, when the other ten had revolted from it, 2 Chr. 11. 12. Chap. 17. 26. and divers of that Tribe did inhabit Jeruſalem, part of the city lying within their lot, Joſh. 18. 28.

gather your ſelves to flee out of the midſt of Jeruſalem;] Or, retire: as it was before rendred, Chap. 4. 6. or withdraw your ſelves. See on Chap. 4. 6. out of the mids of Jeruſalem, for, out of Jeruſalem: as Num. 14. 44. As before they were adviſed to flee unto Jeruſalem for ſuccour and ſafeguard, as to a place of the greateſt ſtrength with them, chap. 4. 5, 6. thereby intimating the approach of the enemy unto their parts: ſo here on the other ſide, they are admoniſhed to quit Jeruſalem, and get ſpeedily out of her, leſt they be ſurprized in her, and periſh together with her: and as afterward to leave the land of Judah, chap. 10. 17. thereby intimating her approaching ſiege, and what would become of her, whom they had repaired unto for ſhelter and ſafety. See the like Eſay 23. 12. as that before rather foretelling what they would do, then ſeriouſly adviſing them ſo to do: ſo this telling them what indeed their beſt and wiſeſt courſe would be: ſee of Babylon, Eſay 52. 11. chap. 51. 6.

and blow the trumpet in Tekoa, and ſet up a ſign of fire in Beth-haccerem] The blowing of the Trumpet, and ſetting up of a ſign, are to give people in thoſe parts warning of the enemies approach, and either thereby to encite them to make preparation for oppoſition, or to admoniſh them to betake themſelves to places of ſtrength; as chap. 4. 5, 6. Hoſ. 5. 8. & 8. 1. not that they ſhould indeed be able to make head againſt ſo potent an enemy, or that in any place of ſtrength they ſhould find ſafety; but as foretelling what then would be done, and repreſenting to them, what they would in thoſe times be calling upon to have done, though it were to no purpoſe. See chap. 8. 14.

in Tekoa] A city of Judah, 1 Chr. 2. 24. 2 Chr. 11. 6. Amos 1. 1. it was ſituate on an hill, and lay toward the North of Judah, which way the enemy was to come; and there is in the Hebrew an elegancy of like ſound, in the name of Tekoa, and the term of trumpetting: the like whereunto is alſo found, Mic. 1. 10, 14. Zeph. 2. 4. ſo that it is as if he had ſaid, do that which thy name importeth.

ſet up a ſign of fire] That is, fire a beacon. So ſome of the Rabbines here expound it, whom alſo not a few follow; ſuppoſing the verb whence it cometh to have ſometime a notion of burning in it, and ſo to be uſed, 2 Sam. 5. 21. Job 7. 13. & 32. 23. Nah. 1. 5. and this word to be in that ſenſe derived from it, and ſo to ſignifie, both here and elſewhere, Judg. 20. 38, 40. & Ezek. 17. 9. but there is not one of thoſe places, but is very queſtionable, and may well therefore otherwiſe be rendred: and though it be true, that the firing of a beacon may well be comprehended among many other ſigns or ſignifications, of the uſe intended in the term here uſed; yet is the word a term of a far larger extent, and it importeth any thing whatſoever thus ſet up for a ſign, whether banner diſplayed, or beacon fired, or ought elſe of the like uſe: and the text is no more word for word, then lift up a lift-up; or ſome ſignal, ſo called, becauſe erected or lift up: let ſomewhat be ſet up that may give notice to the parts adjacent of the enemies approach: that which was called an enſign, or a ſtandard, Chap. 4. 6. but the term here uſed, is more general: and ſo Judg. 20. 28. that they ſhould cauſe to aſcend a great lift up (if we may ſo ſpeak) of ſmoke: and ver. 40. when the lift up of ſmoke began to aſcend: not unlike to that Eſay 9. 18. though another term there be uſed, to lift up a lift-up: as, to vow a vow, Gen. 28. 20. to faſt a faſt, 2 Sam. 12. 16. to ſerve a ſervice, Exod. 13. 5. to judge a judgment, Chap. 5. 28. See alſo, ver. 13.

in Beth-haccerem] Heb. on Beth-haccerem: that is, on the houſe of the vineyard. So one of the Jewiſh Commenters, expounding it of a tower, or turret; erected in a vineyard to overſee it, and other neighbouring ones, and for a Watch-man to watch in, for the preſervation of them, Eſay 5. 2. and the manner of writing, in Hebrew, the two terms ſtanding apart, with no ſuch line intervenient, as our Verſion exhibiteth, might ſeem to add ſome ſtrength hereunto: but the like is found in ſome other proper names, as Eſay 8. 3. where though in our Verſion the like lines are inſerted, yet in the Hebrew text, none ſuch appear. The Chaldee Paraphraſt rendreth it, on the houſe of the valley of the vineyards: Nor can I but wonder, why a Writer of great note ſhould ſay the word there uſed ſhould ſignifie cities ſituate on hils. But another of the Jewiſh Doctors ſaith, that it is the proper name of a place, and ſo the ancient Greek, and old Latine, take it; and, as ſome ſay, alſo, the Syrian. And Jerome reporteth, that Beth-haccerem was a Town ſituate on an hill between Tekoa and Jeruſalem, from whence Tekoa was not above twelve miles diſtant: It ſeemeth to be the ſame with Beth-haccerem, mentioned Neh. 3. 14. and of this ſtamp were the names of many Cities in thoſe parts: as Bethaven, Joſh. 18. 1. Bethania, Joſh. 19. 38. Bethania, Joh. 11. 1. Betharabah, Joſh. 15. 6. Bethbarah, Judg. 7. 24. or Bethabarah, Joh. 1. 28. Bethleem, Joſh. 19. 15. Mat. 2. 1. Bethſaida, Mat. 11. 21. Betheſda, Joh. 5. 2.

for evill appeareth out of the North,] From the Northern parts, by the Babylonians marching towards them from Chaldea, that lay North from them, Chap. 1. 14. & 3. 18. & 4. 6. and great deſtruction.] Heb. and (or, even, as Eſay 65. 6.) a great (or, grievous) breach, or, breaking: as Chap. 4. 20. & 48. 3. So Chap. 4. 6.

V. 2. I have likened the daughter of Zion to a comely and delicate woman.] Theſe words are diverſly taken, and diverſly rendred. The word woman, is not in the text: but there is a defect of the ſubject; as, ſtanding, for, ſtanding corn: and, fruitful, for, fruitful vine, Eſay 17. 5, 6. And ſome ſupply woman, as our verſion doth: but about the former attribute, the Jewiſh Doctors are divided; for ſome of them ſay, that it ſignifieth a woman that inhabiteth; one that dwelleth, or keepeth at home, not out of an houſwifely care, as Tit. 2. 5. but out of delicacy and nicety, a loathneſs to look out, or ſet her foot on the ground, as Deut. 28. 56. as coming from a word that ſignifies to inhabit, or to keep at home: as it is rendred, Habb. 2. 5. Others of them expound it, a comely, or beautiful woman; as the Rabbines frequently uſe the word whence it comes: and as another, whereof anon, very neer it, is uſed, and rendred, Cant. 1. 10. Prov. 17. 7. & 19. 10. & 26. 1. and ſome of ours, which admitting this ſupply, will the better ſuit with what enſueth, would have ſome fair ſhepherdeſs intended, whoſe love many ſhepherds ſeeking to obtain, come and pitch their tents, and feed their flocks neer to her. But there want not thoſe, who ſupply not woman, but land; and read the words; I have likened the daughter of Sion to a goodly paſture ground, and, a delicate land: ſuch as Aſhers is ſaid to be, affording royal dainties, Gen. 49. 20. and indeed the former word differeth in gender only from the term that doth uſually ſignifie a paſture; as it is well rendred, Ezek. 34. 14. though in ſome other places elſewhere, amiſſe: as alſo the ſame word is rendred a pleaſant place, Hoſ. 9. 13. whence alſo ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks expound it, both here, and elſewhere, as by interciſion of a letter not unuſuall, derived from a root that ſignifies to deſire, and as the ſame with deſired, or deſireable, ſuch as good and beautiful things uſually are, (whence alſo the words in the places before pointed to) and ſuch paſture grounds to ſhepherds; in regard whereof alſo, is Naioth deemed to have its name, 1 Sam. 19. 19. And to this the rather I encline; becauſe both the word may well bear it, and it ſuiteth exceeding well with the enſuing expreſſions, ver. 3. So that it is as if the Prophet had ſaid, Methinks Jeruſalem (for that is the daughter of Sion, Eſay 1. 8.) ſeems very like (as the former) to ſome beautiful and delicate dame, living plentifully and daintily in her own land, as at home; or, according to the latter, to ſome goodly pleaſant paſture land, that may well entice ſhepherds to repair to it with their flocks. One difference more there is among the Jewiſh Criticks, about the verb here uſed, which ſome of them underſtand as we have it here rendred; and ſo it is taken, Cant. 1. 9. Howbeit, becauſe the word is there in another form: and in the form here uſed, it ſignifieth generally, this one place excepted, whereſoever it is found in a notion of ſimilitude, not to liken, but to be like, as Pſal. 144. 4. Cant. 7. 7. Ezek. 31. 8. Some of them therefore would have it here expounded, not, I have likened, but, I have cut off, or, I will cut off: as the very ſame word is in this form uſed, Hoſ. 4. 5. where it is rendred, I will deſtroy thy mother. According to this interpretation, it ſhould be read without any ſupply, The fair and delicate daughter of Sion have I deſtroyed, or, will I deſtroy; for ſo the words lye in the text: but the attributes are not wont in Hebrew thus in conſtruction to lead their ſubject: and for the verb, both in this, and ſome other, the forms are ſometime confounded.

V. 3. The Shepherds with their flocks ſhall come unto her;] That is, the Babylonian Princes and Chieftains with their forces, as ſhepherds invited by her pleaſant paſtures fit for their flocks: So Chap. 12. 10. and there ſeemeth a ſecret taunt in the term of ſhepherds; as the like in watchers, and keepers, chap. 4. 16, 17.

with their flocks] Heb. and their flocks; as chap. 1. 13.

they ſhall pitch their tents againſt her round about,] pitch tents; as ſhepherds do, Eſay 13. 20. the warlike tents here intended, as Chap. 37. 10. a defect of the pronoun: as Eſay 13. 22.

againſt her round about] As chap. 4. 16, 17. or, beſides her; as the particle is uſed, Eſay 32. 20. they ſhall lye in ſiege about her, chap. 1. 15. & 4. 17. Ezek. 4. 2, 3.

they ſhall feed every one in his place] Heb. a man (for, each one, as chap. 5. 8.) his hand; which the Greek renders, with his hand: they ſhall by might and force, as we uſe to ſay, with ſtrong hand, deſtroy and ſpoil, So, with the hand, Eſay 28.2. The old Latine, thoſe that be under his hand: his companies; So the Chaldee; as, the ſheep of his hand, Pſal.95.7. Others, at his ſide: beſides him; what is next to him: as, the aſſes were feeding at the hand of them; that is, beſide them, Job 1.14. Others, they ſhall feed each one in his place; or, they ſhall depaſture, or, eat down, (deſtroy and devour, as beaſts are wont to depaſture a ground. See Eſay 3.14.) his place, or, his quarter, aſſigned him. So is the word hand, uſed, Num 2.17. Deut. 23.12. Eſay 56.5,11. & 57.8. they ſhall take up their quarters, and according to their employments in ſuch and ſuch places aſſigned them, they ſhall ſpoyl and make havock of all that they can. And this laſt I conceive to be the genuine notion and uſe of the word in this place.

V. 4. Prepare ye war againſt her] Heb. Sanctifie: as chap. 12.3. & 22.7. Joel 3.9. So Eſay 13. 3. I have commanded my ſanctified ones. The words of God himſelf; and, as I take it, of no other here: though moſt Interpreters underſtand them, as the words of the Babylonian King, or the Chaldean Princes, giving order for preparation; and ſuppoſe it to have reference to ſome ſolemn rites that the Heathen uſed, in denouncing war; and ſome alſo to the fire, that the Chaldeans, ſay they, made an idol of, and had born before them in their camp. See on Chap.1.13. But neither of theſe conceits ſeem to be very probable, as to the word here uſed; the uſe of it in this kind being ſo large, and ſo indefinite. But for the party, in whoſe perſon this is ſpoken, whoſoever he or they be, the Prophet here gives over his former reſemblance; and that they may underſtand more clearly, what manner of Shepherds they were, that were coming againſt them, he telleth them here, that they were Warriers, military men, unto whom God had given a charge and commiſſion againſt them. See Eſay 10.5,6. ver.6.

Ariſe, and let us go up at noon.] Theſe words, without queſtion, hold out the ſpeeches of thoſe, whom God in his ſecret counſel had deſigned unto that ſervice, and by an efficacious inſtinct ſtirred up thereunto; encouraging and enciting one another, with all ſpeed, to ſet upon it, and with all eagerneſs to purſue it: the Prophet thereby intimating, as I conceive, how ready they ſhould be to put in execution, what God would have done by them, ſo ſoon as ever the time was come, wherein God would have it effected. See Eſay 5. 26,27.

Ariſe] As chap. 1. 17. So Deut.2.13. Eſay 21.5. Chap. 49. 14.

let us go up] Let us march; a military term. See Eſay 7. 1.

at noon.] Which ſome expound, as an argument of courage, as who ſhould ſay; we ſhall not need to ſteal in upon them by night, we will ſet upon them at noon-day, 1 King. 20.16. Chap.15.8. Zeph.2.4. Others, as an intimation of their preſent ſtrength and flouriſhing eſtate, in regard whereof, they needed not to miſdoubt ought, but were ſure to carry all before them with ſucceſſe at pleaſure; day-light, for, proſperity: as Eſt.8.16. Eſay 59.9. But theſe ſeem to be both wide of the Prophets intendment. Nor cometh the Jewiſh Doctor any thing neerer, who telleth us, that noon, and night, here mentioned the one, and in the next verſe the other, are times of unlucky occurrents; according to that, Pſal. 91. 6. But they ſeem rather the words of men, manifeſting an impatiency of delay, and calling one upon another, either to march on, and ſet forward, ſo ſoon as they are got together, though it be at noon-day; or to aſſault the city inſtantly, though it be noon-day, ere they can come to ſit down before it; albeit that the heat of the day at noon-tide, in thoſe hot countries eſpecially, be nothing commodious or ſeaſonable, either for march, or aſſault: and complaining, that by delay and ſtay, they do but burn day-light. And to this purpoſe, one of the Jewiſh Commenters underſtanding this whole paſſage, not of their march towards Jeruſalem, but of the city, accordingly expounds and applyes the ſeveral terms here uſed; Prepare war; make ready to give an aſſault: ariſe, out of your ſeveral quarters, ver. 3. go up; ſcale the walls: as ver.5,10. that we may ſurpriſe the city, ere night approach: and as vexed that they cannot take it and ſack it the ſame day. But I conceive it rather to be meant of their march; and their forward deſire to be making on towards it.

Wo unto us; for the day goeth away, and the ſhadowes of the evening are ſtretched out]. This the Jewiſh Commenters, and many other treading in their ſteps, underſtand as the voice of Gods people, or the Prophet ſpeaking in their perſon, lamenting their woful condition, and complaining, that all their proſperity was drawing to a period, and the night of affliction was ready to ſurpriſe them; according to that, Amos 8.9,10. But others rather conceive it to be a continuation of the voices of the Chaldees, and their complices, eagerly deſirous to be ſetting on forward, and complaining that the day ſpent, and they loſt ſo much time, while by needleſs delayes, they retarded their expedition, and let ſlip their opportunities; as Chap.46.17.

for the day goeth away] Or, that (as chap.4.18. Lam.5.16.) the day paſſeth away; or, ſpendeth: as Pſal.90.9. a metaphor from one that at parting, turneth his face from us. See on Eſay 53.6. chap.2.27.

the ſhadows of the evening are ſtretched out] Or, are lengthened; as towards evening they uſe to be: or, decline, as Pſal.102. 11. & 109.23.

V. 5. Ariſe, and let us go up by night] Let us march night and day, that we may loſe no time. See ver.4.

and let us deſtroy her palaces.] Or, that we may deſtroy her palaces; as Chap.5.28. that which made them ſo eager upon this expedition, to have the ſpoyl of the city, the Kings houſe, and the ſtately houſes of his Princes, and great men, ſtored with much wealth, and rich furniture. See Eſay 13.22. and 32.14. & 39.6. Chap.9.21.

V. 6. For thus hath the Lord of hoſts ſaid;] Or, Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts: as Chap.5.14. That ye may not think that theſe men come led on only by their own ambitious, or covetous affections and diſpoſitions; be it known unto you, that God hath an hand in the buſineſſe; it is he that ſetteth them on work, to execute his wrath upon you for your ſins and exceſſes, Chap.1.15,16. See ver.4.

Hew ye down trees] To raiſe works for the ſiege, and make engines for a battery, ſuch as were then in uſe, Deut. 20. 19,20.

caſt a mount] Or, diſcharge engines of ſhot. See on Eſay 37. 33. So Ezek.26.8.

this is the city to be viſited] Or, puniſhed; as Chap.5.9,29. the time of her viſitation by judgment is come, Chap. 11.23. & 23.12. Ezek. 9.1. Hoſ.9.7. the time of Gods wrathful viſitation of them, becauſe of his gracious viſitation neglected by them, Luk.19.44. their ſins being riſen (as the next words imply) to the height, Ezek.7.10-12. 1 Theſſ.2.16.

ſhe is wholly oppreſſion in the midſt of her.] There is nothing but oppreſſion in her. She is ſo full of it from the one end to the other, as if ſhe were all made of it, 2 King.21.16. & 24. 4. Ezek.7.23. See of Niniveh, Nah.3.1.

V. 7. As a fountain caſteth out her waters, ſo ſhe caſteth out her wickedneſſe.] Theſe abuſes flow inceſſantly from her, as water from a ſpring: they are renewed daily with her; they never depart from her: ſhe is in regard of them, as a ſpring that is never drawn dry, Pſal.55.9-11.

caſteth out] Or, cauſeth to ſpring up, or, iſſue out; whence a word ſignifying a well, or, Spring, Chap.2.13. properly one diſcovered and procured by digging; for the verb in its firſt notion ſignifies to dig, 2 King.19.24. Eſay 37.25.

before me continually is grief and wounds.] Heb. diſeaſe and ſtroke, or, ſtripe: as Deut.28.61. their cruel courſes in vexing and oppreſſing one another, and the cry thereby cauſed, are continually in mine ear the one, in mine eye the other; provoking and urging me to proceed in all ſeverity and rigor againſt her. See Exod.22.22-27. Pſal.109.15. Eſay 3. 8, 14, 15. & 59.13-18. & 65.3. Luk.12.2-8. Jam. 5.4. Howbeit, ſome expound all this, not of evils committed by them, but of evils to be inflicted upon them; which the Prophet ſhould have continually in his ear, and his eye; as the ſtandard, and trumpet leading on, and enciting to them, Chap.4.21. but the former more eaſily floweth from the text.

V. 8. Be thou inſtructed, O Jeruſalem] A ſummons of them to repentance. Heb. Be corrected. Take warning, and be amended by the judgments, that already have befallen thee; for the word ſignifies in the firſt place, to chaſtiſe, Chap.31. 18. Hoſ.10.10. and in the next place, by chaſtiſing, to reform and amend, Prov.29.15. See Chap.2.30. & 5.3.

leſt my ſoul depart from thee,] Heb. be looſed, or, disjoynted from me: a metaphor taken from the diſlocation of a limb, the forcing of it from its natural place and poſture, and putting it, as we ſay, out of joynt, Gen.32.25. intimating what a pain and grief it is to God to leave, or caſt off a people, whom he is once in league with, and with how much difficulty he is drawn thereunto. So Ezek.23.17,18. ſoul, for, the perſon himſelf: as chap.5.9,29. but here ſomewhat more ſpecially for love and affection, whereof the ſoul is the ſeat: as Gen.34. 8. Pſal.42.1,2. Lev.26.11,15,30.

leſt I make thee deſolate, a land not inhabited.] Heb. leſt I make thee a deſolation, or, a waſte, as Chap. 4. 27, 29. Leſt I both caſt thee off, and cut thee off: two grand evils, dereliction, and deſtruction: and the one of them uſually following on the other. Hence that, wo to them, when I depart from them, Hoſ.10.12.

V. 9. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts] As before, ver.6.

They ſhall thorowly glean the remnant of Iſrael as a vine:] They (the enemy, the Chaldeans, compared to grape-gatherers: as Chap. 49.9.) Heb. ſhall gleaning glean; that is, thorowly glean; an alluſion to the Law, that inhibited the going over the vine again, after the general cutting, or the leaving of it wholly bare, Lev.19.10. Deut. 24.21. the meaning is, that the enemy in cutting them off, or captiving them, ſhould go over them again and again; as it is ſaid of the Iſraelites, when they had diſcomfited the main body of the Benjamites, they afterward gleaned them, as they lighted on them ſtragling in the high-wayes, Judg.20.45. and thus did the Chaldeans glean the remnant of Iſrael, the people of Judah; not ſo called in regard of the ten tribes, before by the Aſſyrian deſtroyed, 2 King.17.6. but in regard of thoſe of their own people, and their city, whom, and which, the Chaldeans had before plundered, captived, or cut off, not in the time of Jehojakim and Jehojachin only, 2 King.24.2,13-16. but in Zedekiahs reign, when at ſeveral times, they ſpoyled, killed, and carried away of them, 2 King.25.4. See Eſay 6.13. chap.10.16. & 52.28-30. Of the name Iſrael, ſee Chap.5.15,20.

as a vine] For the word here uſed, is peculiar to the vine, Judg.8.2. Eſay 24.14. of gleanings of corn, another word is uſed, Lev.19.9. Ruth 2.2,3.

turn back thine hand as a grape-gatherer into the baskets] Heb. upon the baskets. Gods ſpeech, ſay ſome, to Jeremy, bidding him pull off the cluſters of grapes, from a vine in viſion repreſented unto him one after another, untill he had pluckt all, and beſtowed them in a basket. Others, to the Chaldeans, enjoyning them to ſpoyl, and kill, and carry away again and again, until they had made a clean riddance of them. The Jewiſh Doctors conceive them to be the words of the Chaldeans, enciting one another to ſpoyl and plunder, and maſſacre, or captive again and again, while any perſons of regard, or matter worth the carrying away, remained; to which purpoſe alſo, ſome here inſert the word ſaying; as chap.4.31. See ver.4. I concur with the middle, and conceive a great ſpoyl, and that redoubled, both of perſons and prey to be intimated; though not an utter extirpation of either. See Eſay 6.13. chap.5.10. & 52.16. 2 King.25.12,22.

V. 10. To whom ſhall I ſpeak and give warning, that they may hear?] The Prophets complaint of an unteachable, and untractable diſpoſition, that did generally poſſeſſe this people. See the like, Eſay 28.9.

To whom] As Eſay 53.1.

give warning] Heb. proteſt; as chap.11.7.

that they may hear] To take warning and obey: as chap.7.23,24. Heb. and they will hear: as ver.5. Joſh.24.9. Mal.1.9.

behold their ear is uncircumciſed, and they cannot hearken.] Or, that they cannot hearken; as before: That is, ſay ſome, they have a meer carnal and fleſhly ear, that apprehendeth not, nor admitteth ought that is ſpiritual, 1 Cor.2.14. Col.2.13. Others, their minds and hearts are ſo poſſeſſed with ſenſuality, ſecurity, and wilful obſtinacy, that they regard not ought that is delivered to them from God, though it never ſo neerly concern them, and their own welfare and good. See Luk. 8.14. & 21.34. It hath reference, ſay ſome, to ſuch as have ears ſtopped with ear-wax, and ſuch like ſoily ſtuff that hinders their hearing; but rather to the foreskin, that in circumciſion was taken away, (ſee chap.4.4.) and to ſuch perſons, as having a thick skin or film, growing over the organ of hearing, are thereby deprived of the uſe of that ſenſe, implying, that they no more regarded any of Gods meſſages, then as if it were ſo with them, as with ſuch it is. So Act. 7. 51. See Pſal. 58. 4, 5. ver. 16. Chap. 7. 26. Zach. 7. 11. Act. 7. 57.

the word of the Lord is unto them a reproach] They account it as matter, not of reproof, but of reproach; ſuch as men cannot endure to hear So rather, then as ſome, they make it matter of reproach to thoſe that deliver it, Chap.20.8.

they have no delight in it] They cannot brook it, they have no love nor liking at all to it. See Chap.5.31. 2 Theſſ. 2. 10-12. 2 Tim.4.3.

V. 11. Therefore I am full of the fury of the Lord, I am weary with holding in: I will pour it forth upon the children abroad, and upon the aſſembly of young men together: for even the husband with the wife ſhall be taken, the aged with him that is full of days.] The Prophet, in theſe words, profeſſeth that, though he be moſt unwilling to denounce ſo dreadful and hideous a doom as God hath paſſed upon his people, ſuch as all ſorts, without reſpect of age, or ſex, were to ſuffer in, yet the ſpirit of prophecy is ſo full in him, and powerful upon him, that he is no longer able to keep it in, but he muſt of neceſſity denounce it. See the like profeſſion, though upon another occaſion, Chap.20.9.

Therefore] As Chap.1.17. & 3.3. Heb. and; which I ſee not why it ſhould not here be retained: for it is not ſo much, as I conceive, the conſideration of ought with them, as the ſpirit of prophecy within him, that enforceth him to this work.

full of the fury] Or, wrath. Heb. fervour, or heat: that fire of Gods wrath, whereof Chap. 4. 4. & 5. 14. See Chap. 15. 17.

I am weary with holding in:] Holding it in: as Chap. 4. 4. forbearing to denounce it, like Elihu, Job 32.18,20. So Chap. 20. 9.

I will pour it forth] The Prophets are ſaid to do what they denounce to be done. So Chap.1.10. & 15.1.

pour] A borrowed ſpeech taken from ſhours of rain, that the heavens pour down, Pſal.11.6. Eſay 24.18. Chap.7.20. & 10. 25. Ezek.14.18. & 22.21. Rev.16.1.

pour it forth] A defect of the pronoun, as before. Heb. in pouring out, I will pour out; that is, I will ſurely, or without more ado, without further delay, pour it out: a defective form of ſpeech: the like whereunto, ſee Eſay 59. 13. Chap. 14. 7.

upon the children abroad] Or, in the ſtreets; as the Chaldee renders it: and the word is uſed, 1 King.20.35. whither children uſe to run out, and where they uſe to play together, Zach.8.5. Chap. 9.21. intimating that the Chaldeans ſhould ſhew no mercy to any, not ſo much as to young children, 2 Chr.36.17. Pſal.137.8,9. ver.21. Hoſ.10.14.

upon the aſſembly of young men together] The word here uſed ſignifies firſt a ſecret, Pſal.25.14. Prov.11. 13. then a ſecret place Pſal.31.20. then a ſecret meeting, a conventicle, Chap.15.17. and laſtly, any aſſembly, as well publike, as private, Pſal.89.7. ſo here, upon the places where the young men meet to make merry together, chap.31.13. though it may probable be deemed to have a privy glance at their common meetings in bad houſes for evil purpoſes, chap.5.7.

for even the husband with the wife ſhall be taken] Or, that the husband alſo with the wife may be taken: as the particle is uſed, Job 6.11. Chap.4.18. or, ſurely the husband alſo with the wife ſhall be taken: ſo is the particle rendred, Eſay 49. 18. & 60.9. or, as the Hebrew hath it, man with woman, that is, man and woman; as ver.12. the one ſex with the other: no regard being had more to the one then to the other. See Eſay 3.16-24. & 32.9,10. ſhall be taken, that is ſurpriſed, and ſo fall into the cruel enemies hands; as Chap. 8. 9. Lam.4.20. and ſo is the word to be taken, Luk.17.34-36. though Interpreters go moſt there a contrary way.

the aged with him that is full of days] Heb. the old with the full of days, with the decrepit; with him that hath the one foot already in the grave. Of the phraſe, ſee Eſay 65.20. ſuch as were, in the courſe of nature, at the pits brink; ſuch as, though they ſhould have ſpared them, yet could not have lived long; as he of Jeremy, in regard of the famine in the city, Chap.38.9. of the Chaldeans cruelty towards the aged, ſee 2 Chr.36.17. Eſay 47.6. Lam.5.12,13.

V.12. And their houſes ſhall be turned unto others, with their fields, and wives, together.] A defect of the pronoun in the latter branch, but ſupplyed from the former; as Eſay 49. 22, 23. Heb. and women; which may be of larger extent then wives onely, and may comprehend both concubines, and maid-ſervants alſo, as well as wives. The meaning is, that all ſhould fall into the enemies hands. See this threatned long before, Deut.28.30. and again, chap.8.10.

to others] That is, to aliens, or ſtrangers, as Prov.5.9.

wives] Heb. women; as Chap.7.18. & 8.10.

for I will ſtretch out my hand upon the inhabitants of the land, ſaith the Lord.] See Eſay 5.25.

upon] Or, againſt; as Chap.15.6.

the land] Or, this land; as Chap.5.30.

V. 13. For] Or, Becauſe; as Chap.3.25. A reaſon rendred of this ſevere denunciation: the generality of corruption among them, and among thoſe eſpecially who ſhould have reproved and reſtrained it in others, and given example of better things. See ver.6.

from the leaſt of them, even unto the greateſt of them, every one is given to covetouſneſs:] Heb. from the little of them, and unto the great of them: a proverbial form of ſpeech uſed frequently in Scripture, to expreſs the generality of any practice, good or bad, among perſons of all ſorts and ranks, 2 Chr.34.30. Eſt.1.5,20. chap.31.34. & 42.8. little, for, leaſt; and, great, for, greateſt; as Eſt.1.5,20. Jon.3.5. ſo, good, for, beſt; and upright, for, uprighteſt, Mic.7.4. for nouns, in Hebrew, have no forms of compariſon; and in ſuch collations therefore, they make uſe of the poſitive, Pſal.118.8,9. Prov.22.1. Eccl.7.1.

every one is given to covetouſneſs] Heb. is coveting covetiſe; as Prov.1.19. & 15.7. Habb.2.9. See the ſame charge, chap.8. 10. and the like phraſe, ver.1.

and from the Prophet, even to the Prieſt, every one dealeth falſly] Heb. from Prophet, and to Prieſt (as before; that is, both the Prieſts and the Prophets; as, from man, and unto beaſt, for, both man and beaſt, Exod.9.25. chap.50.3.) each one is doing falſhood, as if that were their common trade: ſo Prov. 10. 4. & 11.18. See alſo the ſame manner of expreſſion, Mat.24.38,39. to do falſhood, for, to deal falſly; as, not to do truth, for, not to deal truly, 1 Joh.1.6. See alſo, chap.8.10. As covetouſneſſe is charged upon the Princes and People; ſo falſhood, or falſe dealing upon the Prieſts and Prophets: not that theſe were free from the former vice, (ſee Eſay 56.11. chap.5.31.) or thoſe from the latter (for of ſuch diſtributive forms of ſpeech, ſee on Eſay 5.13.) But this was the more ſpecial corruption reigning among the falſe Prophets and the Prieſts; that by their falſe prophecies and flatteries, they deceived the people, and ſoothed them up in their ſins. See chap.4.10. ver.14.

V. 14. They have healed alſo the hurt of the daughter of my people ſlightly, ſaying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace?] They do by their gloſings and flatteries lul people aſleep in ſecurity, bearing them in hand, that there is no ſuch dangerous matter towards them, as Gods Prophets tell them, but that all ſhall be well, whatſoever they ſay. See the ſame, Chap.8.11. See alſo, Lam.2.14. Ezek.13.22.

They have healed alſo] Or, They heal alſo. Heb. And they heal, which may well be retained; for it is an inſtance, and a pregnant one, of the deceitful dealing charged upon them, verſe 13.

the hurt] Heb. bruiſe, or breach; as Chap.4.20. & 10.19.

of the daughter of my people] See Chap. 4. 11. So Chap. 9.1.

ſlightly] Heb. upon a ſlight, or ſlighted thing: which ſome interpret ſlighting, or making nothing of it: So the Greek. Others, with ſome ſlight medicine: ſo is the particle uſed, Pſal. 92. 4. with words of falſhood, ſaith the Chaldee; with ſaying, peace, peace, which was a very light matter for them to ſay, ſo the Jewiſh Commenters: and it was indeed an eaſie thing to ſay ſo, as they ſaid it; though not as our Saviour ſaid the like, Mat.9.4,5. Others, according to ſome ſlight thing, or according to the cure of ſome ſlight hurt; ſupplying cure from the word heal; hurt from the word bruiſe, or breach, in the foregoing branch. Whether way we take it, the ſenſe is plain, that the Prophets, and Prieſts, dealt with the people and the ſtate, as unfaithfull Phyſitians, or Surgeons, with a fond and fooliſh patient, unwilling to apprehend how it is indeed with him; who, albeit his diſeaſe and wound be dangerous and deadly, yet make light of it, as if it were ſome ſlight matter, that might eaſily be helpt, apply onely ſome lenitive, or ſtupifying plaiſters unto it, that may for a time give eaſe, or take away the ſenſe of pain for the preſent, and bear him in hand, that he ſhall do well enough with it, he need not fear or miſdoubt ought; or that uſe lenitives only, where the diſeaſe requires cauſticks and corraſives, and draw a skin over places full of corrupt mature, that may cauſe them to feſter the more inwardly, unto the patients greater and further evil. See Chap. 23.14. Lam.2.14. Ezek. 13.10. Howbeit, becauſe the word here uſed, hath ſometime a notion of villifying and contempt, 1 Sam. 2. 30. Hence the old Latine rendreth it, one while, with contumely, and unto contumely, another while: that which ſome expound; the former, unto the contempt and reproach of the true Prophets, whom thereby they brought into diſgrace with the people, 1 King.22.24. Chap.28.2-4,10,11. the latter, unto ſuch contempt and reproach, as by their means ſhould befall the people, while being deluded by them, and giving credit to them, they neglect thoſe courſes, whereby their peace with God might have been procured, and thoſe evils prevented that Gods Prophets gave them warning of. See to this purpoſe alſo, Lam.2.14. But the words will not ſo eaſily admit this ſenſe.

ſaying, peace, peace.] A proverbiall form of ſpeech, implying as much as that which we uſe to ſay, all ſhall be well: So, is it peace? for, is all well? 2 Kings 4.26. & 9.17,18. and, it ſhall be peace; for, all ſhall be well, 2 Kings 4.23.

and there is no peace] Or, when there is no peace; when as mean while there is no ſuch matter, there is nothing well, but all full of deadly danger, Chap.4.10. Heb. and, (for, when; as Eſay.33. & 37.9,36.) peace is not, as 2 Chron.15.5. Eſay 57.21. ſo Ezek.13.10.

V. 15. Were they at all aſhamed, when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not aſhamed, neither could they bluſh.] Their ſin is further agravated by their ſhameleſneſs in it, as Chap.3.3. ſome read the words, Did they make them aſhamed? as if the meaning were, did they labour to bring the people, to a ſight of their abominable courſes, and to work them to ſhame and ſorrow for them? and ſo the word indeed, in this form and notion is uſed, 2 Sam.19.6. but not, that I find elſe-where; in this Prophet conſtantly the former way, Chap. 10.14. & 46.24. & 58.1, 20. & 50.2. & 51.17. So here, the Chaldee, Greek, and Latine take it, and the words following confirm it. See the ſame paſſage again, Chap.8.12.

when they had committed abomination] That is, idolatry, ſay ſome, referring it to the people; but as I conceive rather ſuch abominable things, as God ſaw, and complains of in the Prophets, Chap.5.30,31. & 23.14.

not at all aſhamed] Heb. in being aſhamed, aſhamed: or, in being abaſhed abaſhed, which commeth nearer to our Engliſh; of which manner of gemination, See Eſay 24.16. Chap.3.1.

neither could they bluſh] Heb. they know not to bluſh; as Eſay 29.12. I know not to read, for, I cannot read: they know not ſatiety; for, they cannot be ſatisfied, Eſay 56.11. and Zeph.3.5. the wicked have not ſhame: for though the latter word here uſed, be ſcarce found elſe-where, ſave in the tranſitive ſenſe; that which ſeemeth to have given occaſion of that divers verſion; yet the former word, in this latter branch, is never ſo uſed, and that this latter is not to be ſo here taken, appeareth by the place parallel to this, Chap.8.12. where it is exhibited in a paſſive form, that admitteth no ſuch ambiguity; and indeed, none were more ſhameleſs then their falſe Prophets.

therefore ſhall they fall, among them that fall.] That is, be ſlain, among thoſe that be ſlain; and to whom they now promiſe ſafety; to fall, for, to be ſlain, as Pſal.63.10. Luk.21,24.

at the time that I viſit them, they ſhall be caſt down, ſaith the Lord] Heb. in the time, wherein I viſit them, (See ver.6. a defect of the relative, as Chap.5.17,24.) they ſhall by ſtumbling be made to fall, or, be thrown down; as if they had ſtumbled, and fallen flat to the ground: for that is the words native and proper notion, Pſal. 27.2. Eſay.31.3. Chap.50. 32. Dan. 11.19.

V. 16. Thus ſaith the Lord, ſtand ye in the ways and ſee and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein; and ye ſhall find reſt for your ſouls.] God proceedeth here by the Prophet, to convince this people of their obſtinacy; and turneth his ſpeech now from the falſe Prophets that ſeduced them, unto thoſe that were ſeduced by them: relating both what advice he had from time to time given them, and how they had ſtill refuſed to hearken thereunto. And in this verſe, he ſeemeth to meet with an objection that the people might make; alledging for themſelves, that they went that way, that their Prieſts and Prophets directed them unto, and led them in: To which the Lord anſwereth, that he had from time to time admoniſhed them to do as travellers are wont to do, when they are at a loſs, or in ſome doubt of their way; ſeeing divers ways or paths before them, and know not which of them, leadeth unto the place that they are bound for, they are carefull to make inquiry of ſuch as are able aright to enform them, which is the way that leadeth to ſuch a place: and ſo ſhould they do, if they made doubt of the way they were in, or of thoſe divers ways, that they were invited unto by thoſe Prophets, that ſpake unto them in the name of the Lord; as both the true Prophets of God, and the falſe Prophets alſo did; they ſhould make a ſtand, and enter into a due conſideration concerning either, whether of them were the way, that might conduce to their good, and welfare; and to help and further themſelves in this iniquiry, ſhould have recourſe to Gods oracles, and the ſacred records of the former ages, and times therein regiſtred; and conſider what way it was, that is therein commended to them, and hath ever proved ſucceſſeful and advantageous to thoſe that walked in it; and that betaking themſelves unto that, and walking in it, whatſoever any might ſuggeſt, or enform them to the contrary, they ſhould be ſure to do well, as thoſe before them had done, ſo Deut.32.7. Eſay 8.20. Mal.4.4. Luk.16.29. 1 Theſſ.5.21. 1 Joh.4.1. And this I take to be the genuine, both drift and ſenſe of this place.

ſtand in the ways] Or, on the ways: as travellers, when at a ſtand, uncertain which way to take, Ezek.21.19–22.

and ſee] Or, conſider, As Chap.2.19.

aske for the old paths] Enquire after them: after thoſe that God by Moſes preſcribed you, ſay ſome; after thoſe that your anceſtours, Abraham, Iſaak, and Jacob, and other godly after them walked in, ſay others; or, enquire concerning them: as the particle is uſed, Eſay 56.4. Chap.14.10. Heb. concerning the pathes of antiquity; as, the days of antiquity, Deut.32.7. that is, the times that men of former ages lived in, and the courſes that men of former ages took and walked in.

where is the good way] Or, which of them is the good way, or, the beſt way: good, for, beſt; as, great, for, greateſt; little, for, leaſt, ver.13. for other degrees of compariſon, the Hebrew have not. Heb. where the good way is: the pronoun demonſtrative, for the verb ſubſtantive; as Pſal.25.12. Eſay 66.1. They much miſtake the text, who hence would prove, that the old way is the beſt way; to which purpoſe, many both Papiſts and Proteſtants abuſe it: for the Prophet doth not ſay, nor God by the Prophet, that the oldeſt way is the beſt, but willeth them to enquire, which of thoſe of former ages proved the beſt unto thoſe that walked in it: So Moſes, Deut.4.3,4. and Deborah, Jud.5.6–8. and Azariah, 2 Chr. 15,2-6. and this our Prophet, Chap.22.15–17.

and yea ſhall find reſt to your ſouls] That is, ſay ſome, your minds ſhall then be ſetled, ye ſhall not hang in ſuſpence, wavering between two ways; as thoſe in Eliahs time, 1 Kings 18,21. or, rather, ye ſhall find fredome from that reſtleſs condition, ye now remain in, Eſay. 57. 20. from thoſe fears and diſtractions, and ſuch evils and troubles, as by the courſes ye now take, ye procure to your ſelves, having aſſurance of protection and ſafety from God. See Deut. 33.12,28. Pſal. 91.1. Eſay 28.12. Mat. 11.29. your ſouls, for, your ſelves, as Eſay 55.2,3.

but they ſaid, we will not walk therein] Albeit, they had it by my Prophets ſo evidently ſhewed them, that the way which they directed them unto, and called upon them to take, was the only good, and ſafe, and advantagious way, and had from time to time ſo proved unto thoſe that walked conſtantly in it, that they could not but be clearly in conſcience convinced of it; yet out of a ſelf-willed obſtinacy, they refuſe to turn to it, and walk in it. See chap. 2.25. & 18.11,12. Heb. And they ſaid; and, for, but; as chap. 5. 3. or, as ſome read the place, inſerting the words, when I ſay (as Pſal. 27. 8.) ſtand on the ways, and ſee and enquire which way of former times was the beſt, and walk therein; they ſay, we will not walk in it. See the like ſyntax, chap. 2.25. Eſay 30.20. & 35.4.

walk therein] Or, in it: ſupplyed, as Deut. 8. 12. Eſay 35. 9.

V. 17. Alſo I ſet watch-men over you, ſaying, Hearken to the ſound of the trumpet; but they ſaid; We will not hearken.] Or, as ſome render it, Again he ſaith, I have ſet watch-men over you, hearken ye therefore to the ſound of the trumpet; but they ſaid, We will not hearken. Or, And when I ſet Watch-men over you, ſaying, Hearken to the ſound of the trumpet; they ſay, We will not hearken; as before, ver. 16. So Eſay 37. 9, 36. & 44. 4. & 53. 2.

watch-men] Gods Miniſters and Meſſengers, ſet over them, to watch for their welfare, and to warn them of approaching evils, that they may be prevented. See chap. 1.10. ver. 27. Eſay 56.10. Ezek. 3.17. & 33.7. Heb. 13.17.

hearken to the ſound of the trumpet] The voice of Gods Miniſters, Eſay 58.1. giving warning of approaching evils, Ezek. 33.2-6. an alluſion to the blowing of the trumpet, mentioned Chap. 4. 5. ver. 1.

they ſaid] Or, they ſay; as ver. 16. a paſſage from perſon to perſon: as Eſay 1.29. Chap. 5.19.

we will not hearken] To it; as, walk in it, ver. 16. See the like peremptory anſwers, chap. 22.21. & 44.16.

V. 18. Therefore hear ye, O nations; and know, O congregation, what is among them.] In theſe words, and the next enſuing, God being about further to lay forth this peoples perverſe, and pertinacious carriage, together with the penalties that for the ſame ſhould deſervedly befall them, taketh all the world to witneſs, even the ſenſeleſſe creatures themſelves among the reſt, of the obſtinacy of his people, and the equity of his dealing with them; turning his ſpeech unto others, becauſe they would not hear him. See the like, Eſay 1.2.

hear ye nations] That ye may not wonder, that I ſhould proceed in this manner with that people, whom I had formerly taken into my protection, and by ſolemn covenant and promiſes ſo engaged my ſelf unto. See Lam. 4.12.

know] Or, take notice: as Chap. 2.19. & 3. 13. Eſay 33. 13.

O congregation] Of Iſrael, ſay ſome: of any forrein people, as others rather: as Pſal. 7.7.

what is among them] Or, how it is with them; what an height of diſobedience and rebellion they are grown to, that ye may underſtand how juſt cauſe I have to proceed thus againſt them; though ſome render it, as of the evils to be inflicted upon them, what ſhall befall them; but the words better admit the former.

V. 19. Hear, O earth] That which this people will not hear. So Eſay 1.2. Chap. 22.29. for I ſuppoſe they are wide, who by the earth, here, underſtand mankind: as Pſal. 98. 9.

behold, I will bring evil upon this people, even the fruit of their thoughts] Or, Behold, (be ye as certainly aſſured of it, as if you ſaw it already done: as Eſay 7.14. & 65.27.) I am bringing evil upon this people, (as chap. 11.11. & 19.3. See chap. 4. 6.) even (Heb. and; as ver. 1.) the fruit of their thoughts; or, counſels, or, contrivements. See Eſay 55.7. & 59.7. Chap. 4. 14. the fruit of them, that, ſay ſome, that ſhall be proportionable to them, Pſal. 28.4. or that rather, which by thoſe courſes and contrivances, they have procured to themſelves, Prov. 1.31. for that ſeems too nice, which one of the Jewiſh Doctors ſuggeſteth; that he ſaith not their works, but, their thoughts; thoſe, to wit, by which they thought, that God ſaw not their works, Pſal. 94.7. Eſay 29.15.

becauſe they have not hearkened unto my words,] Heb. upon, for, unto, as ver. 10. unto my meſſages brought to them by my Prophets, and advices by them from me given them, ver. 16,17. Prov. 1.24,25.

nor my Law, but have rejected it.] Or, and as for my Law, they have even, (as before) or, alſo, (as Chap. 1.3.) rejected it. So Eſay 5.24. chap. 8.9.

V. 20. To what purpoſe cometh there to me incenſe from Sheba, and the ſweet cane from a far country? your burnt-offerings are not acceptable, nor your ſacrifices ſweet unto me.] Becauſe this people might object, that they had not left God; for they ſerved him ſtill; they frequented his Sanctuary with odors and offerings; God telleth them, that their ſervices were none of them pleaſing to him; ſo long as their lives and courſes otherwiſe were ſuch as he had before ſhewed. See the like, Eſay 1.11-15. & 66.3. Chap. 7.21-26. Ezek. 20.39. Amos 5.21. Mic. 6.6-10.

To what purpoſe cometh there to me incenſe from Sheba, and the ſweet cane from a far country?] The words thus rendred, ſound, as if ſome ſuch preſents were from remote parts brought to Gods Temple; as Pſal. 68. 29, 31. Eſay 60. 6,7. Zeph. 3.10. whereas no ſuch thing is intended; and the words therefore would rather thus be rendred, To what purpoſe are to me (that is, ſo far as concerneth me) is incenſe, that cometh from Sheba, or ſweet cane that cometh from far. See Eſay 1. 11.

incenſe] Such as you bring to burn before me. See Eſay 1. 13.

cometh there] Or, that cometh; a defect of the relative: as ver. 15.

from Sheba] See Eſay 60.6.

and the ſweet cane] Or, or (as Chap. 2.18. & 5.12.) ſweet cane. Heb. cane the good, or, that is good; or, cane of the beſt. See ver. 13,16. and that I take to be, as the native notion of the word; ſo the genuine ſenſe of it in this place: of ſuch cane, ſee Eſay 43.24. & Ezek. 27.19. where it is rendred, calamus.

from a far country] Far fetcht; becauſe their own land afforded it not; the word fetched, or, that cometh, ſupplyed from the former branch; as Gen. 1.16,30. yet we need not with Jerome, and ſome others, travel ſo far as India to fetch it; Strabo telleth us, that the Sabeans had ſtore of ſuch ſpices, lib. 16. and that might very well be termed a far country, Mat. 12.42.

your burnt-offerings are not acceptable] Heb. to well-liking, or, acceptance: as Eſay 56.7. & 60.7. See Eſay 1. 11. Chap. 7. 21.

nor your ſacrifices ſweet unto me] Heb. and your ſacrifices are not ſweet, or, delightful, to me: as Prov. 13.19. So Hoſ. 9.4.

V. 21. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, I will lay ſtumbling blocks before this people] Heb. Behold, I am giving, or, laying, (as Chap. 21.5. Lev. 19.14.) ſtumblements (if we might ſo ſpeak); any thing that a man may ſtumble at. See Eſay 57. 14.) unto this people: as, come unto them, for, come before them, Eſay 1.23. I will bring thoſe things upon them, that ſhall be means of ruine and miſchief to them. So Ezek. 3.20. & 7. 19. Some ſuppoſe an alluſion in the term to caltrops, and other like warlike engines, that are wont to be caſt in the way to maim foot or horſe, and cauſe them to fall: what is by them here intimated, ſee ver. 22.

and the fathers and the ſons together ſhall fall upon them] Or, ſhall ſtumble and fall by them. See on ver. 15. Eſay 3. 8. they ſhall miſcarry promiſcuouſly one with another, ver. 11. chap. 13.14. Howbeit, the Rabbine ſeems to ſtretch it too far, who ſo underſtandeth it, as if it were meant, that they ſhould tell or give warning of it, ſuch as did ſee that which they ſhould or might ſtumble at, one to another.

the neighbour and his friend ſhall periſh.] They ſhall ſo fall, that they ſhall not be able to recover, or get up again; but ſhall periſh and miſcarry, Eſay 8.14,15.

V. 22. Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, a people cometh from the North country; and a great Nation ſhall be raiſed from the ſides of the earth.] Or, Behold a people coming: as if he ſaw them on their march. So Chap. 4.16. The Chaldeans forces by which they ſhould fall and miſcarry, ver. 21.

from the North] As chap. 1.15. & 10.22. & 25.9.

ſhall be raiſed up] As a ſtorm is raiſed, chap. 25.32. And it is God himſelf that raiſeth it; as the like, Eſay 13.17. Chap. 50.9. & 51.1. Ezek. 23.22. See Chap. 1.15.

from the ſides of the earth] As far as the King of Babylons dominions reach, Chap. 1.15. See the like terms, chap. 50. 41. and this threatned, Deut. 28.49.

V. 23. They ſhall lay hold on bow and ſpear:] They ſhall be abundantly furniſhed with weapons to annoy and deſtroy with, both afar off, and at hand. See the like, chap. 50. 42. So Pſal. 35.2,3. Yet by ſpear, ſome underſtand here the ſtaff of the enſign, or ſtandard: as Joſh. 8.18,26. But the joyning of bow and it together, carryeth it rather the former and more frequent way.

they are cruel, and have no mercy] Heb. cruel is he; (the pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive, as chap. 5. 15,16.) cruell are they each of them; as afterward, and they will not pity, Chap. 21.7.

21.7. See the like, Eſay 13. 17, 18. Chap. 50. 42. and the thing fulfilled, 2 Chron.36.17.as had been before threatned, Deut.28.50.

their voice roareth like the ſea] See Eſay 5.30.

and they ride on horſes,] Heb. on horſes ſhall they ride; not as thoſe, to eſcape by flight, Eſay 30.16. but as ready to take the field, and well fitted for fight. So Chap.50.42.

ſet in array as a man for war,] That is, as ſome, a people, or nation, (from ver.22.) ſet in array as a man: the whole nation as one man, as Judg.20.8. or, ſet every one in array, as a man for war, or, for battel. So Chap.50.42. as if he ſaw them now not on their march, but in the field, and place of fight, ready to joyn battel, or make ſome aſſault.

againſt thee, O Daughter of Zion] As, O daughter of Babylon, Chap.50.42. See Eſay 1.8.

V. 24. We have heard the fame thereof, our hands wax feeble; anguiſh hath taken hold of us, and pain as of a woman in travel.] At the very firſt report of their approach, all will be diſmayed, and quite out of heart. See chap.4.9,31. & 13.21.

V. 25. Go not out into the field, nor walk by the way; for the ſword of the enemy, and fear is on every ſide.] The ſpeeches of them that in thoſe times ſhould be one to another.

Go not out into the field] Keep within the fenced cities and places of faſtneſs, chap.4.5,6. & 8.14.

nor walk by the way] Either ſtir not out at all; or, ſhun the common reads, and betake you to by-wayes, as people are wont to do, when the paſſages are dangerous, Judg. 5. 6. Eſay 33.17.

for the ſword of the enemy, and fear is on every ſide.] Or, as ſome, the ſword of the enemy is there; and fear on every ſide: or, for through, (or, by reaſon of, the particle wanting; as Pſal.17.13,14. & 44.2.) the ſword of the enemy, (Lam. 5.9.) there is fear on every ſide: that which ſeems to have been a proverbial form of ſpeech in frequent uſe among them, Pſal. 31.13. Chap.20.3,10. & 47.5. & 49.29.

V. 26. O daughter of my people], As chap. 4.11. ver.14.

gird thee with ſackcloth,] The common garb of mourners, Chap.4.8. & 25.34.

and wallow thy ſelf in aſhes:] As on the moſt doleful occaſions they were wont to do, Mic.1.10.

make thee mourning, as for an onely ſon] Heb. mourning of an onely one make thee: a defect of the ſubſtantive; as Prov. 4.3. See the like expreſſions, Amos 8.10. Zach.12.10.

moſt bitter lamentation.] Heb lamentation of bitterneſſes; as, weeping of bitterneſſes, Chap.31.15. Of the former word, ſee chap.4.8. The Prophet ſo ſpeaks, as if he could find no terms ſufficient to deſcribe ſuch a lamentation, as the grievouſneſſe of their calamities might be deemed to deſerve. See chap.9. 17, 18. for theſe plurals are wont much to exaggerate. See Eſay 58.9. chap.5.17. & 14.1.

for the ſpoiler ſhall ſuddenly come upon us.] Or, is ſuddenly come upon us; Nebuchadnezzar with his forces, chap. 48. 8. See chap.4.20.

V. 27. I have ſet thee for a tower, and a fortreſs among my people, that thou maiſt know, and try their way.] Or, To try have I ſet thee among my people as a fortreſs. Or, which I take to be the genuine interpretation, A fortified watch-tower have I made thee among my people. Gods ſpeech to the Prophet; I the Lord have appointed thee my Prophet, (ſufficiently ſupported and fenced, that thou mayſt not fear ought, Chap.1.18. & 15.20.) to be as a ſentinel ſtanding on a watch-tower, Eſay 21.5,8. Habb.2.1. to eſpy, and deſcry, the diſpoſitions, courſes, and carriages of this people.

I have ſet thee] Heb. given thee; as Chap. 1. 5. Ezek. 3. 17.

for a tower] Or, as ſome, to try, taking it for a verb; as Zach. 13. 9. but the moſt otherwiſe: the word properly ſignifies a watch-tower, whereupon ſentinel is kept, to deſcry and diſcover, the approach of ought that may prove prejudicial. See Eſay 23.13. & 32.14.

and a fortreſs] Heb. a fence, or fortification; that is, as ſome Interpreters not amiſs ſupply from the former words, a tower of fence, or fortification, that is, a fenced, or fortified tower: as, a city of fence, or fortification, for, a fenced, or fortified city; as Pſal,108.11. chap.1.18. & 5.17.

that thou mayſt know, and try their way.] To ſearch and ſift them, and to try them as a Founder doth metal, (for thereof alſo is the word uſed, Job 23.10. Pſal.66.10.) that thou mayſt by diligent obſervation of them, and their courſes, deſcry and take notice of (as ver.18.) their affections and diſpoſitions, be able to diſtinguiſh between the good and bad, and to worke, if it may be, the wickedneſſe of the wicked out of them, chap. 15 19. Heb. and thou ſhalt know, and try, or ſearch out, their way, for, that thou mayſt ſo do; as Joſh.24.9. Mal. 1. 9. Know and try, for, by trying know: as, ſearch and try, for, by ſearching try, Lam.3.40. make bald and poll, for, by polling make bald, Mic. 1. 16. live and remain, for, remain alive, 1 Theſſ.4.17.

V. 28. They are all grievous revolters] The Prophets anſwer returned unto God, as rendring an account of the charg impoſed on him, containing an exact cenſure of them, upon his ſearch and ſurveie. There is a grievous defection, and obſtinacy therein, in the generality of them. Heb. They are all (as Eſay 60.21.) revolters of revolters, or refractary ones, that is, grievous revolters, or extreamly refractary: as, a ſervant of ſervants, for, a moſt baſe ſlave, Gen.9.25. and wickedneſs of wickedneſs, for extream wickedneſs, Hoſ.10.15. See Chap.5.3,23. Some of the Jewiſh Doctors following the Chaldee, as alſo the old Latine, render it, Princes of revolters; and expound it, of great ones giving evil examples to the people, and making uſe of them, as inſtruments for the practice of wickedneſs, applying the next words to wrongful informations: but the initiall letter is diverſe (though in ſound much the ſame, and in ſome words promiſcuouſly uſed) nor will the text, without needleſs ſtraining, bear it.

walking with ſlanders] Heb. walkers of detraction. So Chap. 9.5. ſuch as make a trade of it, forbidden, Lev.19.16.

they are braſs and iron:] Baſe metall, droſſie matter; not any metal of price, gold or ſilver, to be found in them, which, yet with the oar of thoſe baſer metals, is ſometime, in ſome quantity, found mixed. See Eſay 1.21. Ezek.22.18.

they are all corrupters] Or, corrupt; both corrupt themſelves and corrupting one another, ſee Eſay 1.4.

V. 29. The bellows are burnt, the lead is conſumed off the fire, the founder melteth in vain, for the wicked are not plucked away.] All the labour and pains that hath been taken by God and his Prophets, for the refining and reforming of them, is loſt; it is but labour in vain, they are no whit the better for it, Eſay 49.4. Chap.2.30.

The bellows are burnt] The Prophet proſecuteth the ſimilitude taken from the practice of metalliſts, in trying and melting of their oar. By the bellows, ſome underſtand Gods chaſtiſements; ſome, his Spirit; neither well fitting here. Others, the Prophets tongue and throat, according to that, Pſal.22.15. & 69.3. I ſhould rather ſay their lungs, not unlike bellows, and with much ſpeech and clamour waſted. But unto ſuch particularities, in allegories, we need not deſcend.

the lead is conſumed off the fire] Or, as ſome, the tin (ſo termed, becauſe uſed for ſeparation of metals, as quick-ſilver in theſe times, Eſay 1.25.) is ſpent, as Gen.47.18. but lead and tin are diſtinguiſhed, Ezek. 22. 20. and the Jewiſh Commenters tell us, that lead was alſo in their times made uſe of, in fining of ſilver, to melt it the more eaſily, and with leaſt loſſe, or waſte. Howbeit, an Interpreter of prime note, readeth the text thus, The bellows are burnt with the fire: the whole is lead: there is nothing but droſſie matter that, upon melting, appeareth: and this ſhould I encline to, were there any inſtance of the like.

the founder melteth in vain;] Heb. in vain melting melteth he; or, trying trieth he: take he never ſo much pains in melting and trying, though he do it never ſo diligently and exquiſitely, all is to no purpoſe. See the like, Pſal. 58. 5. the word founder is not in the text, but is included in the verb, and from it ſupplyed; as Gen.50.26. they embalmed him; that is, the embalmers embalmed him; as it is more fully there, ver.2.

for the wicked are not plucked away.] Or, for their wickedneſſes. Heb. and (as Chap.3.24. & 5.2.) evil, or evils, (evil things, as Pſal.78.49.) will not, or cannot, (as chap.2.23.) be removed, or withdrawn, (as the word is rendred, Joſh.8.16. Judg.20.32.) from them; a double defect of the pronoun, both poſitive, and poſſeſſive, as ver.3,12. Gen.43.24. Eſay 13.8,15.

V. 30. Reprobate ſilver ſhall men call them:] Or, Refuſe, or Rejected ſilver (ſuch as is nothing but refuſe, or droſs; or ſuch as is refuſed, and will not paſſe in payment; oppoſed to currant coyn, ſuch as will paſſe without refuſal, Gen.23.16. and it agreeth well with the Greek word, that ſignifieth counterfeit, or diſallowed, 2 Cor.13. 5,6. where the miſ-tranſlating of it hath ſtumbled many) ſhall they be called. Heb. ſhall they call them; as Mal.1.4. for men, is not in the text. See Eſay 1.22. Prov.20.23. Lam.3.45. So Pſal.15.4. a vile man is in his ſight as refuſe.

for the Lord hath rejected them.] Lam.5.22. Hoſ.9.17. becauſe they have rejected him, and his word, Eſay 5.24. ver.19. chap. 8. 9. See chap. 2. 37.

CHAP. VII.

Verſ. 1. THe word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, ſaying.] At this Chapter beginneth a new Sermon or Prophecy, carryed on to the end of Chapter 9. In this the Prophet laboureth to beat them off from their vain confidence in the Temple and ſervices therein performed, ver.2–12. by ſetting before them the example of Shiloh, where the Tabernacle ſometime was, ver. 13-15. by ſhewing what account he made of their ſacrifices, being joyned with wilfull diſobedience, ver. 21-28. and for their continued idolatries, threatneth them utter deſtruction unavoidable, ver. 16-20.

and that ſo great, that they would want room to bury their corpſes, ver. 29-34. Of the words of this verſe, ſee on Chap. 1. 2.

V. 2. Stand in the gate of the Lords houſe, and proclaim there this word, and ſay, Hear the word of the Lord, all ye of Judah, that enter in at theſe gates, to worſhip the Lord.]

Stand] Not ſit; for they ſate there to hear cauſes, Chap. 26. 10. they ſtood to preach, or deliver prophecies, Chap. 26. 2.

in the gate] Or, in the porch, or at the entry: that which opened into the great court, where the people uſed to meet. See chap. 26. 2, 10. & 36. 10.

the Lords houſe] The Temple, chap. 26. 5. ver. 4 10.

proclaim there] There was he the rather to deliver this meſſage, becauſe to refell the fond conceit, that they had of that place, as a ſufficient ſhelter and ſafeguard for them, though they were never ſo looſe and licentious in their lives, ver. 8, 9.

this word] Or, this matter: as 1 Sam. 3. 17. Chap. 5. 14.

Hear the word of the Lord] As Chap. 2. 4.

all ye of Judah] Heb. all Judah: for out of all parts they uſed to reſort thither, ſo long as the Temple ſtood, Pſal. 84. 7. & 122. 4. and it may be, that this prophecy was delivered at one of thoſe ſolemn feaſts, wherein all the males of the land in generall were to meet there, Exod. 23. 14, 17.

at theſe gates] To go into the great court, the peoples court, diſtinguiſhed from the Prieſts court, 2 Chr. 4. 9. See chap. 36. 10.

V. 3. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael,] As Eſay 1. 24. So ver. 21. chap. 9. 15.

Amend your wayes, and your doings, and I will make you to dwell in this place] Heb. Make good your ways. So ver. 5. chap. 18. 11. & 26. 13.

make you to dwell] Continue your dwelling; as, make to live, for, continue in life, Exod. 1. 17.

in this place.] Not in the Temple, but in the land that ye now poſſeſſe, Pſal. 37. 3. ver. 7. ſo Eſay 36. 10.

V. 4. Truſt ye not in lying words, ſaying, The Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord are theſe.] Heb. Truſt not to you (an elegant redundancy, very frequent in Scripture, ſee Chap. 4. 12. & 5. 5.) in words, or matters, (as ver. 2. 22.) of falſhood; as Chap. 14. 14. & 23. 26. in ſuch thoughts and conceits, as will fail you, and fruſtrate your expectations, ver. 8. Chap. 4. 14. & 29. 31. Truſt not to the Temple, and the ſervices there performed, as if theſe things could ſecure you. See the like, Chap. 18. 18. Mic. 3. 11. 1 Cor. 10. 1—5.

the Temple of the Lord are theſe.] Or, Theſe are the Lords places; as Pſal. 11. 4. and ſo the word properly ſignifieth, Pſal. 45. 15. Eſay 39. 7. Not this people, (as ſome fondly would have it) or Gods Temple, 1 Cor. 3. 16, 17. & 6. 19. but theſe buildings, which with the finger he ſeemed to point to; as they, Mat. 24. 1, 2. ſee chap. 10. 11. as if he had ſaid, Theſe thoughts you have in your hearts, and theſe, or the like words oft in your mouthes. Theſe buildings, the two Courts, the Houſe, and the Oracle, were by Solomon built, at Gods appointment, for his place of conſtant and continual reſidence, which he will therefore hold and uphold for ever, Pſal. 132. 14. 2 Chr. 33. 7, 8. the pronoun poſitive, for the verb ſubſtantive; as chap. 6. 23, 28. This three-fold repetition, though it have an emphaſis in it, as well as that, Eſay 6. 3. & chap. 22. 29. yet I ſuppoſe not ſo much to import the excellency of the Temple, or eſtimation of it with God, as the frequency of theſe termes in the mouthes of the people: and much leſſe to aym at any curious diſtribution of it into the houſe, the courts, and the outer edifices about either, as ſome would have it: or that the people themſelves ſhould by this three-fold repetition have ſome reference to the three times of their ſolemn appearance yearly in that place, Exod. 23. 14, 17. as the Chaldee expreſſeth it.

V. 5. For if ye thorowly amend your ways, and your doings; if ye thorowly execute judgment between a man and his neighbour;] A promiſe of continuance, upon condition of reformation, in matter as well of juſtice and equity, as of piety and godlyneſſe.

thorowly amend] Or, ſurely, or ſeriouſly amend. Heb. making good make good; as ver. 3.

thorowly execute] Or, ſedulouſly exerciſe. Heb. doing do judgment, or right, See chap. 5. 1. & 22. 4. between a man and his neighbour]. That is, between man and man; as chap. 22. 8. Heb. between a man, and between his neighbour; as, between the light, and between the darkneß, Gen. 1. 4, 18. a redundancy frequent in Hebrew. So Joh. 10. 18. I have power to lay down my life, and I have power to take it up again; that is, I have power, having laid down my life, to take it up again.

V. 6. If ye oppreſſe not the ſtranger, the fatherleſſe, and the widow] Or, Oppreſſe not any ſtranger, orphan, or widow; carrying it on with the former, ver. 5. and, for, or; as Exod. 21. 15. perſons that God hath taken more ſpecially into his protection, and given a ſpecial charge of, Exod. 22. 21-24. Deut. 10. 18. & 27. 19.

and ſhed not innocent bloud in this place] Or, not ſhed innocent bloud; the guilt whereof, how grievous, ſee 2 King. 24. 4. in this place; in Jeruſalem, or the land ye live in; as ver. 3. ſee Num. 35. 31, 33.

neither walk after other gods to your hurt] Other gods; as Ch. 1. 17. to your hurt, or, to your own hurt; as chap. 5. 19. and ſo, their own faces, ver. 19. Heb. to evil to you; that is, to your own evil: not to any evil, or hurt, that ſhall accrue to me by it, but all to your ſelves. See ver. 19. God is neither the better for mans obedience, nor the worſe for mans wickedneſs: neither doth his goodneſs, or badneſs, reach unto God, Pſal. 16. 2. Job 22. 2, 3. & 35. 5-8.

V. 7. Then will I cauſe you to dwell in this place] As ver. 3. Heb. And; as Chap. 4. 1, 2.

in the land that I gave unto your fathers for ever and ever.] Heb. to from of old, and for ever; which ſome, ſo rendring, refer it unto gave, and expound it of the time paſt from Joſhuah's days, by whom God put them at firſt in poſſeſſion of it, wherein they had continued unto that time: Or, as others rather, from age unto age; referring it, as our Verſion doth, unto the word dwell, and underſtanding it of continuance for time to come, from age to age, in the land, upon performance of the condition here propounded. So Chap. 25. 5. The Jewiſh Criticks obſerve well a redundancy of the former to here, as elſewhere, Deut. 9. 7. Judg. 19. 30. Chap. 31. 34. and ſo ver. 25.

V. 8. Behold] Conſider and think ſeriouſly of it; as ver. 6, 19.

ye truſt in lying words that cannot profit.] Heb. ye are truſting to you (ſuch a redundancy, as Ch. 4. 12. & 11. 17. Ezek. 37. 11.) in words of falſhood (as ver. 4.) to not profit, or no profit; as Eſay 44. 10. This ſome underſtand of the falſe Prophets lies and flatteries, which they were too much taken with, and truſted unto, Chap. 5. 31, & 6. 13, 14. & 23. 26. & 28. 15. & 29. 31. but it ſeemeth rather to have reference to what went before, ver. 4. ye truſt in vain, to no purpoſe, on that which will not avail you, nor ſtand you in any ſtead.

V. 9. Will ye ſteal, murther, and commit adultery, and ſwear falſly, and burn incenſe unto Baal, and walk after other gods whom ye know not?] Will ye live in continual practice of iniquity, immanity, impurity, and impiety? Or, When as ye ſteal, &c. Heb. ſtealing ye ſteal: and ſo conſtantly in all the reſt; for they are all infinitives: Of the phraſe of ſpeech, ſee on Eſay 59. 13. and it is very emphatical; when as ye make a common practice of theſe things. The like ſyntax, ſee Chap. 2. 20. & 5. 7.

ſwear falſly] Heb. ſwear to falſhood; as Chap. 5. 2.

burn incenſe to Baal] See Chap. 2. 23. & 11. 13.

walk after other gods] Ver. 6. Chap. 11. 10 & 13. 10.

which ye know not] Or, which ye have not known; which ye have not formerly had any notice of, nor have been acquainted with in former times, Deut. 28. 61. called therefore new gods, Judg. 5. 8. Others, of whom ye have had no ſuch proof or experience, as of me ye have had: and that followeth well from the former; but the former ſeems the firſt, proper, and genuine ſenſe. See Eſay 43. 10.

V. 10. And come and ſtand before me in this houſe which is called by my name] Or, according to the ſyntax before hinted; When as ye ſteal, &c. —— Will ye come and ſtand before me in this houſe, &c. See the like conſtruction, Eſay 30. 20. & 35. 4. & 37. 9.

come] Repair to my Sanctuary. See Ezek. 23. 38, 39.

ſtand before me] After the manner of ſervants, attending upon me, as your Lord. See 1 King. 10. 8. & 17. 1. Prov. 22. 29.

in this houſe] The Temple, ver. 2. 4.

which is called by my name] That beareth my name, is called and accounted my houſe. Heb. which my name is called upon it; or, whereupon my name is called. So ver. 11, 14, 30. Chap. 32. 34.

and ſay, We are delivered to do all theſe abominations?] We are delivered: or, as ſome render it, We ſhall be delivered to do all theſe abominable things; that is, ſay they, That we may return again, having by ſacrifices, and other external rites, expiated the guilt of our former exceſſes, to commit and practiſe them afreſh as freely as ever; as the common ſort of people, in many Popiſh places, are reported to uſe it as a byword; We muſt ſin to be ſhriven, and be ſhriven to ſin. Or, as others, Notwithſtanding that we have committed ſuch things, yet ſhall we be ſafe, and do well enough for all that. See Mal. 3. 15. But neither will the words bear the latter; nor doth the former ſeem to expreſs the right ſenſe of the place: which the pauſes, in the original, being well obſerved, will lead us to: the middle pauſe is at, We are delivered; and there endeth their ſpeech; the words following are the Prophets, uttered in the perſon of God; not theirs. So the meaning is, Will ye when ye have robbed, and killed, and committed adultery, and perjury, and idolatry, come and preſent your ſelves before me in mine houſe, and ſay, we are delivered; that is, diſcharged of the guilt of theſe our ſins (ſo is the word uſed, Pſal.39.8.& 51.14.) that ye may return to the practice of theſe vile courſes afreſh? For I can not aſſent to that learned late Writer, who would remove here the interrogative out of his wonted and conſtant office, and make it a note, either of aſſeveration, or of demonſtration, both here, and elſewhere, Gen.27.36. 1 Sam. 2.27. 2 Sam.23.19. 1 King.16.31. Prov. 24. 28. in moſt of which places, the interrogative is generally admitted, and doth right well.

V. 11. Is this houſe, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes?] Do ye account my houſe, my palace, to be an hole, or an hold, for thieves and robbers, to ſhroud and ſhelter themſelves in? Mat.21.13.Mar.11.17.Luk.19.46. and that by performance of ſome formalities there, ye are not onely diſcharged of the guilt of your former ſins, but have liberty to ſin afreſh? and ſo make me both a patron of your baſe and abominable courſes, and a pander alſo thereunto? whereas I abhor and abominate both your wicked ways, and theſe your thoughts; and all your ſacrifices and ſervices the rather for them. See Prov. 15. 8, 9, 26. & 21. 27. Eſay 61. 8.

a den] An alluſion to ſuch dens and caves, where either wild beaſts, or men miſchievouſly minded, are wont to ly in wait to ſeize upon paſſengers; and whereunto they repair with their prey, and their ſpoyl, Pſal.10.8,9. Nah.2.12.

robbers] The word ſignifieth properly a burglar, one that breaketh open houſes, Ezek. 7. 22. but it is more generally uſed for perſons that ſpoyl and plunder, Dan. 11. 14. and for beaſts that live by ſpoyl and prey, Eſay 35.9.

in your eyes] Heb. is it in your eyes; that is, do ye ſo account it? or think ye that I can endure to have my houſe ſo eſteemed. See the ſame phraſe, Num.13.33. 1 Sam.18.23.

Behold, even I have ſeen it, ſaith the Lord.] I ſee theſe your abominable courſes, as cloſely, and covertly, as ye carry them, Pſal. 10. 11, 14. Ezek. 8. 12. and theſe your impious thoughts too, of me and my ſacrifice, Pſal.94.7,11. So Chap. 13 27. & 23.14.

V. 12. But go ye now unto my place, which was in Shiloh, where I ſet my name at the firſt; and ſee what I did to it, for the wickedneſs of my people Iſrael.] God refuteth this their vain confidence in the fabrick of the Temple, by an inſtance from another place, that ſometime had the like priviledge, that had the Tabernacle, and the Ark with it, as they now had the Temple: but that did not ſecure them when they grew wicked.

go ye now] His meaning is not that they ſhould travel thither, but go thither onely in their thoughts. See the like, chap. 2.10. Amos 6.2.

to my place] That which was once my place, as this is now, called therefore, his houſe, Judg.18.31. Pſal.42.4.

in Shiloh] Or, at Shiloh; a city belonging to the tribe of Ephraim, Pſal.78.60,67. ſituate, as may ſeem, between Bethel, and Shechem, Judg.21.19.

where I ſet my name at the firſt] Heb. where I made, or cauſed, my name to dwell: as Deut.12.11. where I at firſt in Joſhuaes time placed thoſe viſible pledges of my ſpeciall preſence and reſidence among you, Joſh.18.1. 1 Sam. 1.3,7. & 4.3,4.

and ſee] Take notice of, and conſider; as Chap.2.19. and 6. 16.

what I did to it] How I forſook that place, and fixed mine abode in another; having firſt ſuffered my people to be diſcomfited by the enemy, my Prieſts to be ſlain, mine Ark to be carried away captive, which albeit it were after ſome time ſent home again, yet never returned any more unto Shiloh, 1 Sam.2.10,11. & 7.1,2. Pſal.78.59-67.

for the wickedneſs of my people] Proceeding principally from the Prieſts, 1 Sam.2.12-17,22,34. See the like advertiſements, Chap.3.7,8. & 44.2,3.

V. 13. And now becauſe ye have done all theſe works, ſaith the Lord; and I ſpake unto you, riſing early and ſpeaking, but ye heard not; and I called you, but ye anſwered not.] Since that you do wickedly as they did, and will take no warning, I will deal with you, as I dealt with them.

riſing early] From time to time diligently addreſſing my ſelf unto you by my Prophets: a form of ſpeech taken from the wonted manner of ſedulous and induſtrious either tradeſmen, or workmen, that get up betimes before day-light, to follow their employments. See on Chap.5.8. So ver.25. chap. 11.7. & 25.3. & 35.15. See Eſay 65.2.

I called you, but ye anſwered not] Ye regarded not my call, inviting you to repentance, that you might prevent and eſcape ruine. So Prov.1.24. Eſay 50.2. & 65.12. & 66.4.

V. 14. Therefore will I do unto this houſe which is called by my name, wherein ye truſt, and unto the place, which I gave to you and to your fathers, as I have done to Shiloh:] Heb. And I will do, as Chap. 6. 21.

to this houſe] Which yet is but an houſe; and an houſe that cannot hold me, 1 King.8.27. Eſay 66.1.

which is called by my name] Which I am pleaſed yet to own, ſo long as I pleaſe, and no longer. See ver.10.

wherein ye truſt] But in vain, ver.4,8.

unto the place] Not to my Sanctuary alone, where at preſent I dwell, Pſal.132.13. but to the whole land alſo wherein ye dwell, ver.3,7.

which I gave you] And therefore can take again from you, when I pleaſe, Job 1.21. for it is mine ſtill, and ye do but ſojourn in it with me, Lev.25.23. and it was given both to you, and your anceſtors, upon condition, that ye ſhould keep my ſtatutes, and obſerve my Laws, Pſal.104.44,45. which ye do not, but the contrary, ver.9,13.

as I have done to Shiloh] Which I forſook, Pſal. 78. 60. Chap.26.6.

V. 15. And I will caſt you out of my ſight, as I have caſt out all your brethren, even the whole ſeed of Ephraim.] I will carry you away captive out of that land, wherein I have formerly in a gracious manner reſided among you, Pſal. 76.1,2. Heb. from againſt, or over againſt my face: as thoſe things are, that are before a man, and whereon he fixeth his eye. So Exod. 20.3. 1 King.9.7.

as I have caſt out] Sent into captivity by Salmaneſer, 2 King. 17. 6.

your brethren] That were the ſeed of Iſrael, as well as your ſelves; and ye have no reaſon therefore to look to fare better then they, when ye do as they did, 2 King.21.13,14.

the whole ſeed of Ephraim] The ten tribes bearing the name of Ephraim, as the principal among them. See Eſay 7.2.

V. 16. Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up cry, nor prayer for them, neither make interceſſion to me: for I will not hear] The Lord here turneth his ſpeech from them to the Prophet; and to intimate, that he was reſolved to put in execution the doom fore-mentioned upon them, notwithſtanding their vain hopes and confidence of the contrary; forbiddeth the Prophet to ſtrike in between him and them, by any interceſſion in their behalf, to ſtay his hand from proceeding againſt them, as Moſes did, Exod.32.32. Numb. 14. 13-19. and Aaron, Num.16.47,48. Pſal.106.23. See the like, Exod.32.10. Chap.11.14. & 14.11.

Therefore] Or, Wherefore. Heb. And; as ver.14.

for I will not hear thee] Shewing how little hope there is, that the prayers of the godly ſhould prevail with God, for thoſe that perſiſt obſtinately in ſinful courſes, rejecting the means of mercy tendred unto them, and preſſed upon them, 1 Sam.15.35. Chap.15.1.

V. 17. Seeſt thou not what they do in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem?] Art not thou thy ſelf an eye-witneſſe of thoſe abominable idolatries, that all ſorts of them, men, women and children, in all places among them commit? See Chap.2.28. & 11.13. Heb. Art thou not ſeeing? Is it not a continual eye-ſore to thee, as the Sodomites manner of life was to Lot? 2 Pet.2.7,8.

V. 18. The children gather the wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough, to make cakes to the Queen of heaven] Fathers and children, husbands and wives, find all ſome employment or other, about their idolatrous ſervices. See Chap.44.17,19.

children] Thus idolatrous parents train up their children in idolatry: let chriſtian parents learn from them to train up theirs in piety, Gen.18.19. Deut. 6. 7. Prov. 4. 3,4. & 22.6. Eph.6.4. 1 Tim.4.6. 2 Tim.3.15.

gather] Heb. gathering; and ſo, kindling, and kneading: and ſo it may be retained; as having reference to verſ. 17. Seeſt thou not —— the children gathering ſticks, and the fathers kindling the fire, and the women kneading dough? or, how (ſupplyed, chap.3.6.) the children are gathering ſticks, and the fathers are kindling the fire, and the women are kneading dough? as noting how buſily they were employed about it. So Mat. 24. 38. See Chap.6.28.

wood] The word is plural; rendred ſticks, Num.15.32,33. and ſo would be rather here, then there.

kindle the fire] To bake with it; as he to roaſt, Eſay 44. 16.

knead their dough] Heb. no more than, Kneading dough; nor needs any more. So Hoſ.7.4.

to make cakes] The word is no where elſe found ſave here, and Chap.44.18. they are ſaid by ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks, to have been ſo termed, from the figure of a ſtar that was imprinted upon them; to the honour of which they were made, to offer and preſent thereunto, Amos 5.26. Howbeit, ſome other would have them ſo termed from the curious preparation of them; and others, from the uſe of fire about the dreſſing of them, deducing it from a word that ſignifies to burn. It is hard to give any certain ſentence, where ſo little light to guide.

to the Queen of heaven] There is a two-fold reading here; for ſome read the word without an Aleph, and then it ſhould ſignifie a Queen; though in this form, that word be no where found: but yet thus divers of the Jewiſh Doctors, and the old Latine, whom many others follow, here take it, conceiving thereby to be underſtood, ſome the Sun; the words that ſignifie it, being one of them leſſe frequent, of a feminine form, Eſay 24.23. the other more uſual, though of a maſculine form, yet a feminine oft in uſe; as Nahum.3.17. Others, the Moon: one name whereof is feminine; though another be maſculine: and which the Phenicians, ſay ſome, from the Hebrew call Baaltis, and Baltis. Others, ſome great ſtar; but what, or which, they tell us not: and this way the Chaldee taketh; and that the idolatrous Jews did worſhip both the Sun and the Moon, is not to be doubted. See Chap. 8. 2. Howbeit, becauſe this word is never found uſed in that notion, (and yet the form is not irregular; and they might well of purpoſe ſo frame it, to make a ſacred term of it) the Jewiſh Criticks moſt of them, and others of ours following them, read the word with an Aleph; in which form it is very commonly found uſed for work, or workmanſhip, as Exod. 36.5. 2 Chr. 13. 10. Chap.48.11. and ſo render it, the frame, or workmanſhip of heaven; and the ancient Greek, the hoſt of heaven: which ſeemeth to receive ſome ſtrength from the collation of this place with that, chap. 19. 13. the name of hoſt being uſed there, inſtead of that here. The words then may be read, both here, and Chap.44.17. for the Queen, or, the frame, of heaven: as, a footſtool for thy feet, Pſal.110.1. and, a place for the Lord, Pſal.132.5.

and to pour out drink-offerings unto other gods] Both this and the former helping, in likelihood, to furniſh that Table, which for ſuch feigned deities they uſed to ſpread, Eſay 65. 11. whereof alſo ſome expound this place. In thoſe cakes, they imitated Gods meat, or, meal, offerings; in theſe, his drink-offerings: of both which, ſee Lev.2.4,5,7. Num.28.7,8. Eſay 1. 13. & 57.6. Of other gods, ſee Chap.1.16.

that they may provoke me to anger] Heb. to anger me. So 2 King.22,17. 2 Chr.34.25. Chap.11.17. & 25.7. & 32. 29. Not that they did theſe things purpoſely for that end; but that this could not but neceſſarily thence enſue. See on Eſay 3.8. and ſee the like, Chap.27.10. Hoſ.8.4.

V. 19. Do they provoke me to anger, ſaith the Lord? do they not provoke themſelves to the confuſion of their own faces?] Some render the words; Is it againſt me that they provoke me to wrath? is it not rather againſt themſelves, to the confuſion of their own faces? as if he had ſaid, Am I any whit the worſe for it? doth it not rather tend to their own ruines? the ſenſe is good: ſee on ver.6. and the matter ſuch as is implyed; but the words will not admit it: The Text is word for word thus; Do they anger me? ſaith the Lord: not themſelves to the confuſion of their own faces? and there is an elegant antanaclaſis, or variation of notion, in one and the ſame term: as if it were ſaid; they do not ſo much provoke me to anger, as procure anger to themſelves; by angring me, they do but anger themſelves, or, as we uſe to ſay, they do but ſpite themſelves, and bring ſhame and confuſion upon themſelves. See 1 Cor.10. 22. Of confuſion of face, ſee Chap.3.25. Pſal.44.15. Dan.9. 8. their own faces: as, their own wayes, Eſay 53.6. So chap. 4.18. ver.6.

V. 20. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord God; Mine anger and my fury ſhall be poured forth upon this place, upon man, and upon beaſt, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruit of the ground; and it ſhall burn, and ſhall not be quenched.] Since that they will needs be thus angring me, I will anger them to the purpoſe; and they ſhall find by feeling to their coſt, who it is that ſmarteth for it, that ſuffereth by it: and ſince that they will needs be encenſing my wrath, it ſhall be ſo fiered, that it ſhall waſte all with them, and none ſhall be able to quench it again. See the like, Deut.32.21,22.

Mine anger] Which they have provoked and raiſed, verſ. 18.

my fury] Or, wrath; or, fervour: my fierce or fiery indignation. See Chap.4 4.

ſhall be poured forth] As Chap.10.25. as the clouds or heavens are ſaid to pour down water, when they ſhoot down ſhowrs of rain in great abundance, Pſal.77.17. an alluſion to thoſe ſhowres of fire and brimſtone, that burnt up Sodome and Gomorrah, Gen. 19.24. Pſal. 11. 6. See Pſal. 78. 49.

upon this place] Not this city alone, but the whole land, ver. 7.

upon man, and upon beaſt, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruit of the ground.] A judgment parallel to thoſe of Egypt, Exod.9.3,6,18,19,25. & 10.5,15. Pſal.78.45-48. and 105.3-36. ſuch an utter deſolation and deſtruction of all, as is deſcribed, Chap.4.25. & 12.4. Zeph.1.3.

it ſhall burn and ſhall not be quenched] When Gods wrath is once throughly kindled, it is not ſo eaſie quenching of it again. Pſal.2.12 See Chap.4.4.

V. 21. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael;] As ver.2. The Lord turneth his ſpeech now to the people again. And becauſe their vain confidence was partly in the Temple, and partly in the ſacrifices that thither they brought and there offered; God therefore to beat them off alſo from this; as before he ſhewed what he would do with that houſe, verſ. 14. ſo now he giveth them to underſtand what account he made of all their ſacrifices, what ſorry acceptance they had at his hands.

Put your burnt-offerings to your ſacrifices, and eat fleſh] Keep your ſacrifices to your ſelves; diſpoſe of them as you pleaſe; eat your ſelves the fleſh as well of one ſort of them, as of the other: I neither require any from you, nor delight in any of them, nor deſire them, nor regard them. See Eſay 1.11. Chap.6.20. Amos 5.21.

Put your burnt-offerings to your ſacrifices] Your holocauſts that were to be all burnt, Lev. 1.9. to your other ſacrifices, whether pacificatory, or, gratulatory, voluntary, or, votary, whereof ſome part the offerers themſelves might eat, Lev. 7.11,12, 15,16. take them, and put them all together; I deſire no part or ſhare in any at all of them.

and eat fleſh] eat their fleſh; or the fleſh of them: a defect of the poſſeſſive; as Chap.6.3,12.

V. 22. For I ſpake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt-offerings, or ſacrifices.] Not that God did not then take order for, and give in charge, the due performance of theſe ſacred rites, Lev.1-7. but that theſe were not the things that he principally regarded, or chiefly required: it was not ſo much theſe ceremonial performances, as their cordial affection and conſtant obedience thence proceeding that he required of them, and looked for from them, 1 Sam. 15. 22. Pſal.50.5-16. Mar.12.33,50. Hoſ.6.6. Mat.12.7. I deſire mercy, and not ſacrifice; that is, not ſo much ſacrifice as mercy: and, rent your hearts, and not your garments; that is, not ſo much your garments as your hearts, Joel 2.13. For I can in no wiſe aſſent unto thoſe, (though I find among the ancients divers of the ſame mind with them) who ſuppoſe, that the uſe of ſacrificing was at firſt but an humane invention, and that God onely gave way to it, to prevent a worſe matter; becauſe otherwiſe men would be doing it to idols and devils, Lev.17.7. The antiquity of it, even from Adam, Gen.4.3, 4. the conſtant practice of it among Gods people in all ages, Gen.8.20. & 12.7. & 35.7. Exod.5.3. & 8.27. the ſtrict and ſolemn enacting of it, with an exact injunction and determination of ſo many obſervations and circumſtances about it; and the prefiguration of future accompliſhments repreſented in it, Heb.9. & 10. do evidently evince the practice of this rite, to have been from the beginning a divine inſtitution; which the Devil, Gods ape, as well in this, as in other ſacred ordinances of God imitating, did after arrogate to himſelf.

concerning] Heb. concerning the word, or, matter, of them: as Eſt. 9. 26, 31. Chap.52.34. So alſo, Chap. 5. 28. verſ. 2, 4, 8.

in the day that] Or, what time; when: as Gen. 3.17. Ruth 4.5. 1 King. 2. 37. Heb. in the day of my making them to go forth; and ſo Chap.11.4.

V. 23. But this thing commanded I them, ſaying, Obey my voice; and I will be your God, and ye ſhall be my people.] The main matter, that God firſt and principally required then of them, was obedience, Exod.19.5,6. and the ſacrifices afterward, as a teſtification of their obedience and allegiance to him, and an obſignation of the Covenant, concerning the ſame, plighted between him and them, in the blood of the Meſſias, Exod.24. 3-8. Mat.26.28. Luk.22.20. Heb.9.19,20.

this thing] Heb. word: as Eſt.1.21. & 2.4.

Obey] Heb. Hear. So Exod.15.26. Deut.6.3. ver.24.

and walk ye in all the wayes that I have commanded you, that it may be well with you] So Deut. 5.29,33. See ver.6.

in all the wayes] Heb. in every way; as Deut.5.33.

V. 24. But they hearkened not, nor enclined their ear, but walked in the counſels, and in the imagination of their evil heart, and went backward, and not forward.] By ſolemn covenant this they engaged themſelves unto, Exod.19.8. & 24.3. Deut. 5. 28. but they were not careful to make it good, Exod. 22. 8. Deut. 9.24. & 31.27.

But] Heb. And: as Chap.6.16. and ſo after again.

enclined their ear] As the manner is of thoſe that liſten to ought, which they are deſirous to hear. So Chap.11. 8. and 17. 23.

in the counſels] Or, contrivements, or, devices. So Pſal. 81. 12.

imagination of their evill heart] See Chap.3.17.

they went backward, and not forward.] Heb. they were to backward and not to face: that which he ſaid before, Chap.2. 27. they turned their back unto me, and not their face.

V. 25. Since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt unto this day, I have even ſent unto you all my ſervants the Prophets, daily riſing up early, and ſending them.] A defect of the pronoun: as Chap.6.29. I have not from time to time failed to adviſe and admoniſh both you and your anceſtors by my miniſters and meſſengers of thoſe things that concerned your duty and your welfare, Deut.18.18. Amos 2. 11. See on ver.13.

Since] Or, From. Heb. To from: as ver.7.

I have even ſent] Or, I have ſent; for the copulative here is as oft elſewhere redundant: as Jon.1.1.

V. 26. Yet they hearkened not unto me, nor enclined their ear; but hardened their neck, they did worſe then their fathers.] A change of the perſon, very frequent in this Prophet; as chap. 2.7. & 5.19,21. & 6.17. As if God unwilling to ſpeak further to them, or loath to talk any longer with them, ſhould turn his ſpeech to the Prophet, telling him how croſly and perverſly they had carried themſelves towards him. So Chap.44.10.

did worſe then their fathers] Or, have done worſe. Heb. have done evill from their fathers; that is, worſe then they. So Judg.2.19. Chap.16.12. thus have they proceeded from evil to worſe, chap.9.3. ſo far are they from amendment.

V. 27. Therefore thou ſhalt ſpeak all theſe words unto them, but they will not hearken to thee: thou ſhalt alſo call unto them, but they will not anſwer thee.] Or, And though thou ſpeak all theſe things (as ver.23.) to them, they will not hearken to thee: yea, though thou cry unto them, they will not anſwer thee. So ver.13. Of this ſyntax, and ſuch uſe of the copulatives, ſee Chap.2.5,20. & 5.7. & 6.9,10. Howbeit, true it is, that God will have his Meſſengers and Miniſters, to ſpeak, admoniſh, warn, and do their duty, whether that people will hear and take warning, or no, to render them the more inexcuſable, Ezek.2.5,7. & 3.7,12.

V. 28. But thou ſhalt ſay unto them, This is a nation that obeyeth not the voice of the Lord their God, nor receiveth correction:] Or, Therefore: for the illative doth better here, then before, ver.27. Heb. And; as ver.14,16.

obey not] Or, will not hear. Heb. hear not; as ver.23. and the verb is plural, becauſe the noun nation is collective.

nor receiveth correction] Or, nor receive, or, will receive inſtruction. See Chap.2.30. & 5.3.

truth is periſhed, and is cut off from their mouth.] There is no truth, or true dealing, to be expected from them, Pſal.5.9. & 12. 1,2. Eſay 59.14,15 chap.9.3. Hoſ.4.1. See Pſal. 119.43.

V. 29. Cut off thine hair, O Jeruſalem, and caſt it away,] This is ſpoken to Jeruſalem, as to a woman, (for the verbs are feminine) inviting her to lamentation, and to external expreſſions of it, in regard of the calamities that were to befall her. It was the manner with them, in thoſe times, for men in occaſions of mourning, to cut off their hair, or ſhave their heads. So Job 1.20. Eſay 15.2. but it is a ſign of greater grief, and deeper mourning, when women tear off, or cut off, and caſt away, their hair, being deemed a principal ornament with them, Eſay 3.24. 1 Cor.11.15. 1 Tim.2.9. and this it is that is here alluded unto; as alſo, Mic.1.16. and there is an emphaſis in the word; for it ſignifieth a crown: nor is it uſed of hair, or applyed thereunto, ſave in the narrative of the Nazarites, Num.6. and when ſhe is bid therefore to cut off her hair, under the name of a crown; and not to cut it off onely, and reſerve it, as many are wont to do with their comings, and the like; but to throw it away, to caſt it upon the ground; it ſeemeth to intimate that which our Prophet bewaileth in the perſon of his people, The crown is fallen from our head, Lam.5.16. and which the Pſalmiſt hath more full, Thou haſt profaned his crown, by caſting it to the ground, Pſal.89.39. So I ſhould rather apply it, then with a learned late Writer, to imply the diſperſion of them into forrein parts; as that, Ezek.5.2.

and take up a lamentation on high places] A lamentation, ſee chap.9.10,20. on the high places, ſee chap.3.21. for I can not accord to that learned man, who in this place alſo would have it to be, in the valleys, or on the plains, ſee the like, Chap. 12. 12.

V. 30. For the children of Judah have done evil in my ſight, ſaith the Lord] A paſſage again, from perſon to perſon, as before, ver.26.

For] Or, Becauſe; as chap.6.13.

the children of Judah] Either the poſterity of Judah; as Joſh. 14. 6. or, the people of Judea; as, the children of Noph, chap.2.16.

have done evil in my ſight] Or, have done that which is evill in my ſight. Heb. in mine eyes; as 2 Sam.11.27. either, done evil to my face, where I ſee it, ver.11. or, done thoſe things that are diſpleaſing to me. See Eſay 65.12. & 66.4.

to burn their ſons and their daughters] See this ſavage and unnatural practice, 2 King.16.3. & 21.6. 2 Chr.28.3. & 33.6. the children of both ſexes are mentioned, as here, ſo Pſal.106. 38. the more to aggravate the immanity of theſe unnaturall miſcreants, whom neither the dearneſſe of the one, nor the tenderneſs of the other, their own bowels both, (as Paul of Oneſimus, Phil. 12.) could move unto mercy, or with-hold from exerciſing ſuch cruelty on them. This inhumane practice they learned from thoſe heathen, whom God had caſt out before them, Deut.12. 31. and from thoſe that ſucceeded the Iſraelites in Samaria, 2 King.17.31,41. Concerning the manner of acting this hideous rite the Jewiſh Writers relate many things: but their relations ſeem much of them rather fable then ſtory: and I therefore let them paſs.

V. 32. Therefore behold, the days come, ſaith the Lord, that it ſhall no more be called Tophet, or the valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the valley of ſlaughter; for they ſhall bury in Tophet, till there be no place.] See the ſame, chap.19.6. That place, which is now ſo horribly abuſed, ſhall be ſo filled with the carcaſſes of ſlaughtered perſons, that there ſhall not be room enough to afford them all burial, but they ſhall, many of them, ly rotting there above ground; and the valley ſhall have a new name given it from the multitude of thoſe ſlaughtered bodies, that ſhall, partly, be enterred therein, and partly, ly there unburied.

behold, the days come] Heb. behold, the days coming; as Eſay 39.6. chap.9.24.

it ſhall no more be called Tophet, or the valley of the Son of Hinnom] Not that it ſhould not at all be ſo named any more, or known by either of thoſe names (for unto this day the name continueth) but that another name ſhould be given it, that might as well, or much better, be uſed of it, then either of thoſe two. See the like, Gen.32.28. chap.20.3.

Howbeit, ſome by ſlaughter here, underſtand ſlaughtered ones; which the article prefixed, ſeemeth to back: and they render it therefore the valley of the ſlaughtered; for the meaning is not, that the ſlaughter of them ſhould be made there; but that either their ſlaughtered bodies, for burial, ſhould be brought, there being no place readier, or fitter, at hand, to receive them.

for they ſhall bury in Tophet] Heb. and; but, for, here; as chap. 5.2. becauſe a reaſon is rendred, why the name before mentioned ſhould be given unto it.

till there be no place] Or, becauſe there is no place, or no room; to wit, to bury elſewhere. Heb. for no place being; that is, for want of room; all wonted places of burial, being ſo glutted with corpſes, that they are able to receive no more: for the particle is oft uſed in a cauſal notion; as Chap.4.6. & 10.6. & 19. 11.

V. 33. And the carcaſſes of this people, ſhall be meat for the foules of the heaven, and for the beaſts of the earth; and none ſhall fray them away.] They ſhall lye unburied, and be devoured by birds and beaſts, either for want of perſons to bury them, or for want of places to bury them in: ſo Pſal.79.2,3. Verſ. 1. AT that time, ſaith the Lord, they ſhall bring out the bones of the Kings of Judah, and the bones of the Princes, and the bones of the Prieſts, and the bones of the Prophets, and the bones of the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem out of their graves,] That this Chapter hath coherence with the former, is apparent by the very firſt words of it. In it the Prophet proceedeth to ſhew the grievous calamities that ſhould befall this people, with whom the enemy ſhould ſpare neither living nor dead, but wreak their rage upon either, ver. 1-3. complaineth of their extream ſtupidity and obſtinacy in evil, ver.4-12. threatneth them with utter and unavoidable deſtruction. ver.10,13,16,17. and bewaileth their forlorn and incurable condition, ver.14-16,18-22.

At that time] When thoſe dayes are come, whereof chap. 7.32.

they ſhall bring out the bones] The enemy, either for greedineſs of gain, or in extremity of deſpite, ſhall even rifle their graves, and not ſuffer their bodies, or their bones to reſt in them. A further addition to what was before denounced, that they ſhould not onely want room to bury their ſlain, Chap.7.32. but thoſe alſo that were already buried, ſhould be plucked out of their graves again. See Baruc.2.24.

of the Kings of Judah, and of his Princes] In whoſe ſepulchres, it is not unlikely, that they looked for rich ornaments and jewels, or treaſure: ſee Joſeph the Jew in his antiquities, l.13. c.15.

of the Prieſts, and of the Prophets,] Thoſe eſpecially are here aymed at, that had been corrupt Prieſts, and falſe-Prophets. See the like in ſome kind, through the juſt judgement of God, both denounced and executed upon the like, 1 King.13. 2. 2 King.23.16,20.

of the inhabitants] See this judgment in the like manner promiſcuouſly threatned, Lev.26.30.

V. 2. And they ſhall ſpread them before the Sun, and the Moon, and all the hoſt of heaven, whom they have loved, and whom they have ſerved, and after whom they have walked, and whom they have ſought, and whom they have worſhipped] And ſo made idols of them, committing idolatry, that is ſpiritual adultery with them, preferring the creature before the Creator, Deut. 4.19. 2 King.23.5. 2 Chr.33.5. Chap.7.18. Ezek.8.16. their bones ſhould be laid before theſe creatures of Gods making, whom they had abuſed to idolatry, as their carcaſſes were laid and burnt upon the altars of their own making, Lev.26.30. 2 King.23.14,20. as in way of deteſtation on the one, ſo in way of demonſtration alſo to the other, thereby ſhewing how little good either the one, or the other, could do them, being unable to ſafeguard them, either alive, or dead.

before the Sun, and the Moon, and all the hoſt of heaven] That is, the ſtars, 2 King.23.5. implying, that they ſhould lye night and day unburied, as of Jehojakims carcaſs, Chap.36.30.

they ſhall not be gathered, nor buried, they ſhall be for dung upon the face of the earth] They ſhall not be gathered to be laid up in the monuments of their anceſtors; nor obtain ſo much as common ſepulcure: ſo ſome. But the words ſeem to be intended rather, in a larger, and more indefinite ſenſe either of them: for bones thus ſcattered, muſt of neceſſity be gathered, ere they can be enterred any where: the meaning is, they ſhall lye above-ground till they rot. So Pſal.83.10. Chap.9.22. & 16.4.

V. 3. And death ſhall be choſen rather then life, of all the reſidue of them that remain of all this evil family; which remain in all the places whither I have driven them, ſaith the Lord.] Or, in all the places of the remaining ones (ſo the words run) whither I ſhall have driven them. Though the cruelty of the barbarous enemy be ſuch, as that they ſpared neither living nor dead, but ſlaughtered the one, and digged up the other; yet ſo great ſhall be the calamities, and ſo miſerable the condition of thoſe that ſurvive, and are carried away captive, that being weary of their lives, they ſhall wiſh that they had dyed with the reſt of their people, that had periſhed either during the ſiege, or in the ſurpriſal of the city; and counted them happy that ſo did. See Lev.26.36-39. Job 3.20,21. & 7.15. 1 King.19.4. Rev.9.6. & 14.13.

V. 4. Moreover, thou ſhalt ſay unto them; Thus ſaith the Lord;] Heb. And: as Chap. 1.11. To manifeſt the equity of Gods proceeding thus in ſeverity with them, he doth in the words following, deſcribe their extream folly, and wilful obſtinacy, running on head-long with an utter refuſal to be ſtopped or ſtaid on the way, unto thoſe courſes that tend to their utter ruine and deſtruction.

Shall they fall, and not ariſe?] Or, when men fall, will they not riſe? See the like ſyntax, Chap. 6.9,10. & 7.27. Is there any man ſo abſurd and witleſſe, who when he hath by accident got a fall, will lye ſtill, and not aſſay to get up again? or that will refuſe to be holpen up again, by ſuch as offer him their help? Eccleſ.4.10. Hereby intimating the folly of this people, that having fallen by, and for their ſin, Hoſ. 14. 1. yet refuſed to riſe, or to be raiſed again by thoſe, that took pains with them to that purpoſe. Some render the words; are they ſo fallen, that they cannot riſe again? do they deem their caſe deſperate? See Chap.2.25. But the former ſeems the proper ſenſe of the place.

ſhall he turn away, and not return] Or, will not one that hath turned aſide, or, gone aſide, return? Will not any man that hath gone unwillingly out of the way, deſire to come into it again; and be willing to receive direction from thoſe, that would ſet him again in it? See the application of it to this people, ver.5. For thoſe, either of the Jewiſh, or ours, that render it; if he did return, would not God return? as if he ſhould ſay, undoubtedly he would, Chap.3.1. Zach.1.3. make a needleſs inſertion, and ſeem to go beſide the ſcope of the place.

V. 5. Why then is this people of Jeruſalem ſlidden back, by a perpetuall backſliding.] Heb. why is this people, (not, of Jeruſalem; for the word people here, is intire and abſolute, but either) in Jeruſalem, (as the old Latine) or, Jeruſalem, (by way of appoſition) revolted, or, gone aſide (for the verb is feminine, as anſwering not to people, but to Jeruſalem; as the like, Judg.18.7. and is the ſame word, with that in the former branch, though in another form) by a perpetuall, or, a pervicacious revolt, or, averſion: and to little purpoſe, doth a learned man trouble himſelf, and torture the text, becauſe he findeth the participle uſed actively, Eſay.47.10. to have the words rendred, Jeruſalem; (that is, the rulers of it) miſleadeth this people; or, a pertinacious averſion leadeth this people away: when as he may find the participle, or participiall at leaſt, ſo oft elſe-where in a paſſive or neuter notion; for, refractary, or, rebellious, Eſay.57.17. Chap.3.14,22. & 31.22. & 49.4. and the meaning is plain enough. What is the reaſon then, that this people contrary to the uſuall manner of men in ſuch caſe; having gone out of the right way, and being in a wrong way, prejudiciall to themſelves, yet will pertinaciouſly thus perſiſt, and go on in the ſame, and refuſe to be reduced? Chap.2.26. & 5.3. & 9.16.

they hold faſt deceit, they refuſe to return] Or, carrying on the ſentence in one tenor with the former; do they hold faſt deceit? do they refuſe to return? more fully thus: Why is it, that this people do thus pertinaciouſly perſiſt in their going aſide, or, revolt, that they hold faſt deceit? that they refuſe to return? where by deceit, ſome underſtand their unjuſt and fraudulent courſes, which were exceeding rife among them, Chap.9.6. Mic.6.10. & 7.5. See Pſal.36.3. & 55.11. Others rather, thoſe frauds and falſhoods, wherewith their falſe-Prophets deceived and deluded them, Chap.5.31. & 14.14. & 23.26. Eſay 30.10. See 2 Theſſ.2.10-12.

V. 6. I hearkned and heard, but they ſpake not aright.] The moſt Interpreters, both Jewiſh and others, conceive theſe words to be the Prophets, relating, how he had obſerved it to be with the people; as Chap.6.27-29. I ſuppoſe them rather to be, the ſpeech of God himſelf, implying as his long expectation and forbearance, ſo his earneſt and longing deſire of their repentance, expreſſed by a phraſe borrowed from the practice of men, who are wont diligently and conſtantly to liſten after that, which they much deſire to hear, See Pſal.85.8. Eſay 50.4. See of God the like, Mal.3. 16. See alſo 1 King.20.33.

I hearkned and heard] Or, I have liſtned to hear; as, ariſe and warred, for, ariſe to war, Joſh.24.9. for he could hear nothing of that, which he deſired to hear.

they ſpake not aright] Or, none ſpake aright; as the word is uſed, 2 Kings 7.9. Eccleſ.8.10. Chap.23.10. or, as the Greek rendreth it, none ſo ſpake: So the word is moſt commonly taken, Exod. 10.11. Deut.18.14. Pſal.1.4. in ſuch manner, as men would do in the caſes before mentioned, ver.4.

no man repented of his wickedneſs, ſaying, what have I done ?] Heb. there is not a man, (as Chap.5.1.) repenting of his wickedneſs; as, to ſay, what have I done ? that hath any remorſe, or touch at all in his conſcience, for any of his ſins ſo far forth, as but to think once ſeriouſly with himſelf, what it was that he had therein done ? that which they were exhorted to do, Chap.2.23.

What have I done ?] The manner of a mans ſpeech or thought, recollecting himſelf after ſome ſuddain and inconſiderate act: So Samuel, to Saul, 1 Sam.13.11. and Joab to David; what haſt thou done? 2 Sam.3.24.

every one turned to his courſe] Or, each one of them turneth to their courſe, or, race; to his evill courſe, or, race: as it is, Chap. 23.10. it implyeth their eagerneſs in the purſuit of evill; ſo Eſay 59.7. Prov.6.18.

as an horſe ruſheth into the battell] Heb. like an horſe ruſhing into the war: the word rendred, ruſhing, is very emphaticall; for it ſignifies properly an inundation of waters, with much violence breaking in, and over-flowing all before it, Eſay 8. 9, & 28.15,18. Chap.47.2. war, for, battell, as 2 Sam.18.6, 8. They run head-long after their own luſts and fancies, and will not be curbed or reſtrained of them: like an head-ſtrong horſe, that hearing the noiſe of the trumpet, and ſmelling the battell a far off, doth with much violence in a full carier, make towards it; his rider having now no command of him, nor being able to keep him in; See Job.39. 21-25. and of this peoples unbridled, untamable, and untractable diſpoſition, Chap.2.23,24.

V. 7. Yea, the ſtork in the heaven knoweth her appointed time, and the turtle, and the crain, and the ſwallow, obſerve the time of their coming, but my people know not the judgment of the Lord] In theſe words is reproved, not their obſtinacy only and willfulneſs, but their ſtupidity and blockiſhneſs, wherein they came ſhort even of the unreaſonable creatures; whereof divers ſorts here mentioned, do duly obſerve the times of their coming, and going from place to place, from one region to another, according to the ſeaſon of the year, Job 39.26. whereas this ſottiſh people, had not ſo much wit as to take notice off, and obſerve Gods courſes and dealings with them; of the ſeaſons of grace, when in mercy he offereth himſelf unto them; or of the times of wrath, wherein he ſheweth himſelf diſpleaſed with them; to lay hold on, and embrace the one, and to ſeek to prevent and ſtay the proceeding of the other, Eſay 5.12. the ſtork] The foul here mentioned, is ranked among the unclean ones, Lev.11.19. Deut.14.18. where ſome render it a kite; and the Jewiſh Doctors ſome of them tell us, that it is a kind of white kite, or, puttok: Some, an hern; becauſe it is ſaid to build in the firres, Pſal.107.14. Some would have it to be the oſtrich, grounded on that place, Job 39.13,14. where ſhe is ſaid as they ſuppoſe, to leave her egges in the ſand, where by the heat of the Sun, they are hatched; but if the text be duly weighed, it will be found, that this foul, what ever it be, and the oſtrich, are there diſtinguiſhed: See the note on the place. That it is a foul of large wings, it is apparent from Zach.5.9. and that it is one of thoſe, that change their quarters at time of year, is no leſs apparent from this place. The moſt therefore, among whom divers of the Jewiſh writers, take it for a ſtork, which breedeth alſo, ſaith one of the Jewiſh Maſters, as well in high trees, as in lofty turrets, that which thoſe muſt do of neceſſity, that live in the wooddy waſts where no houſing is. That the ſtork, as well as the crain, changeth his quarters, autors generally agree. See Ariſtotle in his ſtory of living wights. l.8.c.16. and Pliny in his naturall hiſtory. l.10.c.23. ſave that Pliny ſaith, that the one cometh againſt Summer, and goeth away againſt winter; the other cometh againſt winter, and goeth away againſt Summer; and ſeemeth of the ſtork to affirm this latter, which is certainly untrue: and Elian ſaith, they go and come together: It is deemed in Hebrew, to have its name from a term that ſignifieth piety, or kindneſs; and this foul, ſay the Jewiſh Critiks is ſo called, becauſe he parteth his prey among his companions: but others, becauſe they are reported to feed their parents, when through age they grow impotent. Hereof Ariſtotle l.9. c.13. Pliny alſo where before. Elian l.3.c.23. Ariſtophanes the Comick in his birds: and others, not a few; and among the Greeks a proverbiall term, denoting this duty in children towards parents, is in very frequent uſe. Howbeit, I ſuppoſe rather, that this name was at firſt given unto this foul, in regard of her tender affection to her young; whereof divers examples have been in the Netherlands, (where I have alſo ſeen of them, on their neſts on the houſe top) and among others of ſome, that have either burnt themſelves, to ſave their young; or together with them, when they could not ſave them, the houſes being fiered on which their neſts were. See Adrian Yong in his Batavia, for how either they ſhould come, to know their ſires or dams again, when they are grown old; or it ſhould come to be obſerved of them, how they then tend them; as of their young it may well be, is neither of them eaſie to conceive.

in the heaven] What the Rabine hence gathereth concerning this foul, that it ſhould be a great foul, and of high flight; as the like therefore is ſaid of the eagle, Prov.23.5. & 30.19. is frivolous, ſince all birds in generall, are called birds of the heaven, Pſal.8.8. and heaven both here and elſewhere, is no other then the air, See Chap.7.33.

the crain and the ſwallow] Or, the ſwallow and the crain; of the terms, See on Eſay 38.14. of the crains coming and going: See before with the ſtork. of the ſwallows the Greek proverb is well known, being grown as familiar with us, as with them, that one ſwallow maketh not a ſummer.

but] Heb. and: as Chap.7.24.

my people know not the judgment of the Lord.] See Chap.5. 4,5. judgment, for, courſe, or, manner of dealing; as 1 Sam.2. 13. & 8.11. thus man who ſhould be wiſer then the fouls of the air, Iob.35.11. ſeemeth to come ſhort herein of them, in things ſo neerly concerning him.

V. 8. How do ye ſay, we are wiſe, and the Law of the Lord is with us ?] Or, How can ye ſay (as Chap.2.23.) We are wiſe: the pronoun demonſtrative, includeth the verb ſubſtantive; ſo Eſay 19.11. How have you the face to arrogate wiſdome to your ſelves, when ye are more ſottiſh and ſenſleſs, then the very bruit creatures themſelves, ver.7.

the Law of the Lord is with us] We have the Law of God with us, have been trained up in it, and are well acquainted with it, and are not therefore ſuch ſely ſots, as you would make us to be: As they preſumed much of the Temple, Chap. 7.4. ſo they vaunted much of the Law, Chap.18.18. Rom.2. 17,18. as if the having of the Law among them, were enough to make them a wiſe people, though they neither regarded it, nor walked according to the rules of it, Rom.2.21-23. This ſome ſuppoſe ſpoken to the Prieſts, whoſe office it was to inſtruct the people out of the Law, Deut.33.10. Mal.2.7. and it may well in ſpeciall have an eye unto them: but it ſeems to be more large, as the charge is more generall, both here, ver.7. and before, Chap.5.4,5. as alſo Eſay 1.3.

loe certainly in vain made he it; the pen of the Scribe is in vain.] In vain hath he, (that is, God; the pronoun for the noun, as Exod.34.28. 1 Sam.6.19.) made it; a defect of the pronoun, as Chap.4.4. or the verb being taken indefinitely, in vain was it; (to wit, the Law) made, in vain; as the word is uſed, 1 Sam.25.21. Chap.5.23. for they that render it, in vain hath he, (that is, the writer) prepared his pen, regard not the pauſes in the Hebrew text. Now according to this verſion the meaning is, that the law was in vain enacted by God or by his appointment put in writing by Scribes thereunto deſigned for the uſe and benefit of his people, Deut.17.18. & 31.9. in regard of any uſe that they made of it, or benefit that thence redounded to them by it, becauſe it was by them, no whit regarded, Hoſ.8.12. and thus do the Jewiſh Commenters ſome of them expound it, whom divers of ours therein concur with. Howbeit, the old Latine after the Greek, and the Chaldee, which ſome other of the Rabines agree with; and not a few of ours follow, underſtand this paſſage as ſpoken of the wicked Scribes, that mis-expounded the Law, perverting and wreſting it, to pleaſe the humors of the people, and ſided with the falſe-Prophets, whom they adhered to, and approved; and to this effect they render the words: Lo, ſurely the deceitfull, or, lying, pen, or, quil, of the Scribes, worketh for falſhood, or, dealeth deceitfully: Heb. the quil, or, pen; for it is properly a pen made of the quil of ſome foul, of the bigger ſort eſpecially, ſuch as are uſed to prey, Gen.15.11. 1 Sam.14.33. Eſay 46.11. Chap.12.9. though uſed more generally for any kind of pen, Pſal.45.2. or, ſtyle, though of metall, Job 19.24. Chap.17.1. and, the quil, or, pen, of falſhood, for, a falſe quil, or, pen: as, a tongue of falſhood, for, a falſe tongue, Prov.26.28. that telleth lies the one, that writeth lies the other: of the Scribes; ſuch as were to interpret the Law, Ezr.7.6. but delt corruptly and falſly with it, Mat.23.15. Luk.11.51. Heb. doth to falſhood; as, to ſwear to falſhood, Lev.6.3. Chap.5.2. or, doth falſhood; as, to do truth, for, to deal truly, 1 Joh.1.6. ſo, to do falſhood, for, to deal falſly ; for the particle is oft redundant ; as Gen.2.24. compared with Mat.19.5,6. Ezek.37.27. with 2 Cor.6.16. 1 Kings 19.18,20. See Pſal.94.20. Eſay 10.1. either verſion may well be admitted, in regard of the terms; but the former ſeems the genuine.

V. 9. The wiſe men are aſhamed, they are diſmaied and taken] That is, as ſome, the wiſeſt among them, may well be aſhamed of their groſs ignorance, and folly, ver.7,8. Rom.1.22. or, as others rather, The wiſe men ſhall be confounded; and all their wiſdome ſhall not avail, to keep them from being diſmaied, confounded, and captived, when the judgment now denounced ſhall be put in execution ; See Chap.4.9. & 6.11. ver.12. So of Babel, Eſay 47.10-14. Howbeit, ſome of note read the words, by way of interrogation, and thus render them ; Have theſe wiſe men, made the people to be aſhamed, (to wit, of their ſins) diſmaied, (with fear of Gods wrath) and taken, with remorſe, and repentance, and ſo brought home to God : But this reading ſtraineth the words of the text over-much ; nor is the firſt word, though the form be ſuch, found but once only in an active notion, and the other two not at all ; of the firſt, See on Chap.6.15. of the laſt, on Chap.6.11.

loe they have rejected the word of the Lord,] Which yet they ſo much vaunt of, ver.8. See Chap.6.10,19.

and what wiſdome is in them?] Or, What wiſdome then have they? Heb. and the wiſdome of what is to them: and, for, then; as Chap.4.1. what wiſdome can they have, who reject that wherein all true wiſdome conſiſteth? Deut.4.6. Pſal.19.7. & 119.130. Prov.2.6. 2 Tim.3.15.

V. 10. Therefore will I give their wives unto others, and their fields to them that ſhall inherit them] See on Chap.6.11.

therefore] This term may have reference, either to their rejection of Gods Law, mentioned ver.9. or, to thoſe vices afterwards charged on them in this verſe.

will I give their wives unto others] Put them into the power of ſtrangers, as 2 Sam.12.11,12.

to them that ſhall inherit them] Heb. to poſſeſſors, to ſtrangers that ſhall poſſeſſe them ; or, poſſeſſe themſelves of them : the word ſtrangers ſupplyed from the former branch, as Eſay 26.5. & 58.13. and a defect of the pronoun, as Ezek.7.25.

for every one, from the leaſt even to the greateſt, is given to covetouſneſſe ; from the Prophet, even to the Prieſt, every one dealeth falſly] Or, becauſe, &c. See the ſame paſſage, Chap.6.13.

V. 11. For they have healed the hurt of my people ſlightly, ſaying, peace, peace, when there is no peace] Heb. and they heal, or, cure, &c. See the ſame before, Chap.6.14.

V. 12. Were they aſhamed when they committed abomination? nay, they were not at all aſhamed, neither could they bluſh ; therefore ſhall they fall among them that fall in the time of their viſitation, they ſhall be caſt down, ſaith the Lord.] See the ſame, Chap.6.15.

V. 13. I will ſurely conſume them, ſaith the Lord] Or, utterly conſume them : Heb. Gathering, I will gather them, or, conſuming, I will conſume them : for thoſe two roots come very neer the one to the other, and roots ſo neer in their ſeverall forms, are oft confounded : for it is againſt the uſuall manner of the tongue in ſuch forms as this, to have the words in two ſeverall notions ; the verb infinitive in one, and the finite in another ; See the like denunciation, Zeph.1.2,3.

there ſhall be no grapes on the vine, nor figs on the figtree, and the leafe ſhall fade, and the things that I have given them, ſhall paſſe away from them.] All means of relief and ſuſtenance, ſhall be taken away from them, in the time of the ſiege of the city, So Joel 1.7,12. Habb.3.17. the enemy having deſtroyed, and devoured all before them, ver.16. and he mentioneth theſe two, the grape, and the fig, ſaith the Rabine, becauſe theſe two among their fruits were of greateſt reckoning, and moſt generall uſe in thoſe parts, See Eſay 36.16. Chap.5.17.

and the leafe ſhall fade] Or, fall, rather ; See Eſay 1.30. being together with the fruit beaten down, before the uſuall time of ſhedding. Howbeit, ſome read the words, as ſpoken by way of ſimilitude, (as ſome of our verſions do the like, Pſal.48.7.) thus rendering the text; I will utterly conſume them, as when no grapes are on the vine, nor figs on the fig tree, and the leafe is ſhed : as when, with ſome ſore tempeſt, both vine and figtree are ſo ſmitten, that there is neither fruit, nor leafe left on them, Pſal.78.47. And this ſhould I prefer, before that ſome other of prime note exhibit ; rendering the words, there is no grapes on the vine, nor figs on the figtree, yea, the leafe is faded ; that is, there is no fruit of good works to be found among them, as Eſay 5.2. not ſo much as any ſhew of ſuch, neither fruit, nor leafe ; it is worſe with them, then with that figtree, Mat.21.19. Luk.13.6. But I add here, to that which our verſion hath, though the ſecond be not improbably.]

and the things that I have given them, ſhall paſſe away from them.] They ſhall be deprived of thoſe fruits of the earth, and other the like commodities, which I had formerly in great abundance beſtowed upon them, Hoſ.2.8,9. according to this reading, there is a defect in the text, both of the antecedent and the relative ; as Chap.2.8. and the prepoſition is included in the verb ; as Job 29.3. Chap.20.25. Howbeit, the Chaldee, which ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, the old Latine, and divers others of ours alſo follow, underſtand it of the peoples tranſgreſſions of Gods Law ; and render the words : ſome of them, and the precepts that I gave them they have tranſgreſſed them : as an addition to what was ſaid concerning their want of fruit and leaf. Others, becauſe (the copulative for the cauſal, as Chap.6.29,32.) they have tranſgreſſed them, or, thoſe things, (that is, the Laws ; the pronoun for the noun, as Eſay 33.2.) that I gave to them : a defect of the relative ; as Chap.6.15,20. So it ſhould render a reaſon of the foregoing denunciation. See the like, Eſay 24.4,5. And this ſeemeth very probable : more probable at leſt, then that of ſome other, whatſoever I uſe about them paſſeth away ; there cometh nothing of all the care, pains, and coſt taken about them ; it is all but loſt labour, Chap. 6. 30. for how the words of the text will admit this, I ſee not : or, (as I ſuppoſe) then that of another, I gave them theſe things, (to wit, the fruits before mentioned ; not that they ſhould enjoy them, but) that they ſhould paſſe away from them ; and leave them deſtitute ; and no marvel therefore, if they be all gone.

V. 14. why do we ſit ſtill ? aſſemble your ſelves ; and let us enter into the defenced cities ; and let us be ſilent there.] A ſpeech conceived, as in the perſon of the people, exciting one another, upon notice of the enemies approach, with all ſpeed, to betake themſelves for ſhelter and ſafeguard unto the places of greateſt ſtrength and ſurety. See the like before, Chap.4.5,6.

Why do we ſit ſtill ?] Heb. for what ; or, upon what are we ſitting ? as reproving one another, that they made no more haſte ; and demanding, what they ſtaid conſulting upon ; or what ſuccour other wayes they could expect. See Mat.24.16-18.

aſſemble your ſelves] Or, retire ye. See on Chap.4.6.

defenced cities] Heb. cities of defence, or, fortification ; as Eſay 36.1. Chap.5.17.

let us be ſilent] Heb. quiet ; as Eſay 62.7. Lam.3.28. as if they ſhould ſay ; it is in vain for us to ſtir, or conceive hope to be able to do ought againſt ſo potent an enemy ; and our wiſeſt courſe therefore, is to betake our ſelves to ſome ſuch place, and to keep our ſelves quiet there.

for the Lord our God hath put us to ſilence ;] Theſe words ſome make the ſpeech of the Prophet, in way of anſwer to the former ſpeech of the people : and they read the words ; Surely (as Exod.3.12. Eſay 63.16.) the Lord our God hath put us to ſilence ; that is, ſay they, hath ſtopped our mouthes, that we ſhould not complain of the wrongs done us by the Chaldean forces. See Lam.3.26-29,39. Pſal.39.9. But the moſt rather conceive them as the words of the people, beginning at length to ſee an hand of God in thoſe things that befell them, and concluding therefore that it was in vain for them to aſſay to make head againſt the Chaldeans ; as the Egyptians, Exod.14.25. for, or, ſince that, (as Chap.10.7.) ſay they, the Lord our God (he who had wont to be our protector, and encourager) hath put us to ſilence ; that is, hath now withdrawn himſelf, and ſo taken our courage away from us, that we dare not ſo much as open our mouthes againſt the enemy, much leſſe to lift up hand againſt him. See Exod.11.7. Joſh.10.21. Pſal.38.13,14. And this ſeems to be the genuine ſenſe of the place. However we take it, there is an elegant antanaclaſis, or variety of notion, in the term ; as if he had ſaid, It is beſt for to get us into ſome ſtrong city, and be quiet there ; for God hath ſtruck us with aſtoniſhment, and made us as mute, or as ſtill, as a ſtone. See Exod.15.15,16.

and hath given us waters of gall to drink ;] So is the word rendred, Pſal.69.21. Deut.29.18. where yet it may ſeem not ſo proper to ſay, a root bearing gall : grapes of gall, for, grapes as bitter as gall ; may ſeem more tolerable, Deut.32.32. but that alſo cometh ſhort of what is there intended ; to wit, not bitter barely, but venomous, or, poiſonous grapes : for in the next words, ver.33. it is ſaid of the wine that cometh of them, it is as the venome, or poiſon, of aſpes ; from which place ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks gather, that it is a kind of poiſon that lyeth in the head of the aſpe, and thence hath its name ; but other of them, that it is the gall of the aſp : and to reconcile theſe two, ſome further affirm, that there are certain veins reaching from the gall of the aſp, unto her mouth, by which the poiſon, when ſhe is angred, is conveyed to the one from the other : but theſe are things uncertain. One of the Jewiſh Commenters well rendreth it here, a cup of death, or deadly poiſon ; and withal telleth us, that it is the name of a poiſonful herb, or plant, wherewith they uſe to poiſon and kill people ; people: and that it is indeed ſome ſuch herb or plant, appeareth plainly by Hoſ.10.4. where it is ſaid to grow in the furrows, or, ridges, of the field: ſuch was the cicuta, or, hemlock, at Athens, with the juice whereof, they uſed to put condemned perſons there to death. Whence that ſaying by ſome uſed of Socrates, who ſo ſuffered death, dying with much confidence and courage, that hemlock made him a great man; as being made more famous by his death, then his life: and aconitum, or, wolfs-bane, in much uſe and note for wicked practices in that kind: in regard whereof, as the name aconitum, is more at large both in Greek and Latine Writers, uſed for rank poiſon in general: ſo the name of this roſh (for ſo it is termed in Hebrew) is uſed in Scripture more generally for any kind of venome or poiſon whatſoever. By water therefore, or juice, of roſh, that is, of hemlock, wolfs-bane, or the like, wherewith God is ſaid here to have drencht this people, is imported thoſe grievous afflictions and calamities, tending even to death and deſtruction, that God had brought upon them for their ſins. So Chap.9.15. & 23.15. Lam.3.19.

becauſe we have ſinned againſt the Lord.] The curſed root from whence all theſe poiſonful fruits ſpring, Lam. 3. 39,42. & 5.16.

V. 15. We looked for peace, but no good came; and for a time of health, and behold trouble] Heb. Looking we looked (of which kind of ſpeech, ſee on Eſay 59. 13. we looked long till our eyes failed us, Lam.4.17.) and (as ver. 7.) good was not; for a time of healing, and behold trouble, or terrour; as Job 6. 4. Pſal. 88. 16. our Prophets ceaſed not to put us in expectation of peace and ſafety, and bare us ſtill in hand that all ſhould be well, and that all the evils we feared, would be eaſily helpt and healed, ver.11. but we ſee nothing leſs, no good, but all evil, matter of conſternation, trouble and terrour. See the ſame, Chap.14.19. yet ſome would have them the words of the Prophet to the people, reading the text thus, Look for peace, but there will be no good; for a time of remedy, but behold it will prove trouble. But the former followeth more ſmoothly from the context, and the terms of it; as alſo, the parallel place confirmeth it.

V. 16. The ſnorting of his horſes was heard from Dan, the whole land trembled at the ſound of the neighing of the ſtrong ones; for they are come, and have devoured the land, and all that is in it, the city and thoſe that dwell therein.] The noiſe of the Chaldean forces, entred upon the land, of their cavalry eſpecially, is heard far and neer, and maketh all to tremble; for they ſpoyl and deſtroy all before them, as well in city as country.

ſnorting] the former Verſions had it neighing: but that followeth after; and this, and that, in propriety of ſpeech, are two diſtinct and diverſe things: for that which is rendred neighing in the words following, is that noiſe, properly, which horſes make, when they are frolick, or when they look after the mare, or miſſe ſome of their company, that they uſe to keep with: Of which, ſee chap.5.8. and this proceedeth by the mouth: whereas that here rendred ſnorting, and the Rabbine expreſſeth by a word that ſignifieth neeſing, (from which yet it much differeth) is the noiſe that they make, when they are held in, or are chafed; ſo called, becauſe it paſſeth thorow the noſtrils, Job 39.20. the glory of his noſtrils is terrible; or, of his ſnorting, as ſome there render it; and of the Leviathan, Job 40.20. out of his noſtrils goeth ſmoke: both words are here uſed to comprehend whatſoever dreadful noiſes horſes are wont to make, either in their march, or in the field, and withall, ſuch hideous noiſes, as ſo numerous an army would fill the ayr with, Eſay 13.4.

of his horſes] Of the enemies, the Chaldeans, Chap.4.13. & 6.23.

was heard] Or, is heard: Either the noiſe it ſelf, or the report of it, Chap 6.24.

from Dan] Thorow with Nebuchadnezzar, having ſubdued Phenicia, marched toward Judah and Jeruſalem. See Chap. 4.15.

the whole land trembled] Or, trembleth, Chap.6.24.

the neighing] See ſnorting before.

of his ſtrong ones] So the Chaldee underſtanding it of his mighty and valiant men; and the old Latine, of his Warriers: but the word of neighing, though metaphorically attributed to luſtful wantons, Chap.5.8. will not well agree to men here: it doth evidently anſwer to the word horſes beforegoing, and may well be rendred ſteeds; or more fully, ſtout, or ſturdy ſteeds: for that is the commendation of ſuch, and the word doth properly ſignifie, the prime, chief, choice, or excellent in each kind; uſed of men, whom valour and courage commendeth, Job 24.22 & 34.20. (ſee Eſay 46.12.) of angels, whom might and excellency, Pſal. 78.25. of buls, whom fatneſs and bulk of body, Pſal.22.12. & 50.13. & 68.30. Eſay 34. 7. Chap. 50.11. of horſes and ſteeds, whom ſtoutneſs of ſtomack, Judg. 5.22. Chap.47.3. and ſo here: it is in the ſingular number uſed very frequently of God. See Eſay 1.24.

for they are come] They are entred the country. Heb. and they are come; as Chap.6.29,32.

and have devoured the land and all that is in it] Or, do devour; or eat up and deſtroy. Heb. the land and the fulneſs of it; as Pſal.24.1. See Chap.4.20. & 5.17.

the city and thoſe that dwell therein] That is, as ſome, Jeruſalem with her inhabitants, Chap. 4. 29. but I ſuppoſe rather, that the word city is here taken collectively; city, for, cities; as Eſay 27. 10. as if he had ſaid, city and country are alike before them, they ſpoyl, plunder, and deſtroy all alike: or if we underſtand it of Jeruſalem, it muſt be rendred, as ſome alſo do, for they are come to deſtroy the land, and all that is in it, the city, and thoſe that dwell therein. See the like ſyntax, verſe 6.

V. 17. For behold, I will ſend ſerpents, cockatrices among you, which will not be charmed; and they ſhall bite you, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. behold, I am ſending (as Chap. 29. 17.) among you ſerpents, cockatrices, (by way of appoſition: Of which kind of ſerpent, ſee on Eſay 11. 8. & 14. 29.) whom there ſhall be no charm for them; an elegant redundancy in that language very frequent, as Pſal.1.4. & 144.8. that is, for whom there ſhall be no charm: Of the uſe of charms, to prevent ſtinging by ſerpents, ſee Pſal. 58. 4, 5. Eccl.10. 11. for abſurdly doth a Writer of ours alledge this place, to prove that there is no ſuch thing: and as well might he alledge Exod. 22.18. to prove that there are no witches, the main ſcope of his work: for as God there forbidding to ſuffer a witch to live, doth preſume that ſuch there were: ſo when he threatneth to ſend ſerpents that ſhall not be charmed, he doth imply, that ſuch ſometime were charmed, though not indeed by any intrinſecal virtue, or natural power in the ſpell or charm, or the terms uſed in it, but by the act of Satan ſubtily co-operating with it. the ſerpents here menaced to be ſent in among them, are the Chaldeans, whoſe cruelty they ſhould by no means be able to mitigate. See Chap.4.25. 2 Chr.36.17.

and they ſhall bite you] There is an elegant conſonancy in the original, between the word that ſignifies a ſerpent, and this of biting, differing but in a letter, and that alſo of a neer ſound the one from the other, which our Engliſh cannot expreſſe; but hereby it appeareth, that the kind of ſerpents here alluded to, is not as thoſe that have their ſting in the tail; as the ſcorpion, Rev.9.10. but that have their venome in or about their teeth; as aſps and vipers, and our adders and ſnakes.

V. 18. When I would comfort my ſelf againſt ſorrow, my heart is faint in me.] After Gods menacing ſpeech, ver.17. the Prophets words profeſſing his exceeding great and continuall ſorrow for the woful condition of his people, of which he was by no means able to eaſe himſelf, though he had aſſayed ſometime ſo to do. See the like, Eſay 22.4. Heb. as ſome, O thou that refreſheſt me, or ſhouldeſt refreſh me againſt grief, or amidſt grief; that is, ſay they, my ſoul. Others, when my ſoul is, or would be refreſhing it ſelf, or refreſhing me, (as ſome) my heart fainteth within me; a defect of the particle of time; as Eſay 17. 6. & 26.10. and the word ſoul ſupplyed, becauſe the term is feminine; as, the word, preacher, Eccl.1.1. See Chap.4.19. yet ſome make the word to be, not a participle, but a noun, rendring it, my recreation is joyned with grief: But the verb I find divers times uſed in Scripture, Job 9.27. & 10.20. Pſal.39.13. and the participle with the ſame ſyntax that here it hath, Amos 5. 9. but no ſuch noun any where. And ſome would have it the ſpeech of the people beſieged in Jeruſalem, and after long expectation of helps in vain fainting, Lam. 4.17. but this ſeemes not ſo well to ſuit with the courſe of the context.

my heart is faint in me.] Heb. upon me; as Pſal. 143.4. See Lam.1.22.

V. 19. Behold, the voice of the cry of the daughter of my people becauſe of them that dwell in a far country:] The reaſon of this his ſore grief, that he can have no eaſe of; becauſe he ſeems to hear continually ſounding in his ears, the lamentable ſhricks and cryes of his people, in their difficulties and diſtreſſes: ſee Chap.4.19. & 21.31.

the voice of the cry] As, the voice of my cry, Pſal. 5. 2. voice of cry, for, a loud cry: as, voice of report, for, a loud report, Chap. 10.22.

of the daughter of my people] As Chap.4. 11. & 6. 26. So ver.21.

becauſe of them that dwell in a far country] By reaſon of the Chaldeans coming from a remote country, that grievouſly afflict and diſtreſs them. See Chap.5.15. & 6.22. Heb. from the land of remote ones; which ſome therefore, with the old Latine, would have to be underſtood, of the peoples bewailing their captivity in Babylon: but the particle here uſed, is very frequently a cauſal. So Pſal.12.5. Eſay 31.4. & 53.5. and ſo the Rabbine here well rendreth it; for fear of the enemy coming from a remote land.

Is not the Lord in Zion? is not her King in her?] Theſe words,ſome would have to be the ſpeech of God returned to the people,bewailing themſelves in the time of their captivity; and demanding of them, as of Ahaziah, 2 King.1.3. whether there were no God in Iſrael , that he muſt needs ſend for an oracle to Beelzebub at Ekron ; ſo whether they had not at Jeruſalem God as a King to protect them , that they muſt needs ſend for King Moloch (ſo that idols name ſignifies, whence the ambiguity, Zeph. 1. 5.) to ſet him up in Tophet, and make him in the room of God their King, Chap. 7. 31. But the moſt,both Jewiſh,and others,expound them rather as the words of the people themſelves,in their ſtreits, demanding in woful wiſe,how it ſhould come to paſs, that the enemy ſhould be able thus to prevail againſt Jeruſalem ; and ſome underſtand both branches of God ; Hath not God his ſeat at Jeruſalem ? and will he not,as their King,protect them and his own Palace with them ? See Pſal.44.4.& 48. 2, 3. & 74. 12.& 76.1,2. Others,underſtand the former, of God ; the latter, of their King ; as if it were ſaid, Have they neither God to ſave them , nor King to help them , that they are brought to ſuch diſtreſs? See Hoſ.10.3.& 13.10,11.

why have they provoked me to anger with their graven images, and their ſtrange vanities?] Theſe are,queſtionleſs,the words of God, returned to their expoſtulatory complaint, and rendring a reaſon why he had left them , and with-drawn the wing of his protection from them, and their city : to wit, for their leaving him,and betaking themſelves to vain idols,Ch. 2.11,13.See Chap.5.19.

provoked me to anger] Heb. angred me ; as Chap. 7. 18, 19.

graven images] Put here for all manner of idols ; as Pſal. 78.58.Eſay 42.8.

ſtrange vanities] Heb.vanities (ſo are idols termed, Chap. 14.22.) of a ſtranger, that is, of a ſtrange god ; as Deut.32.12. put collectively for ſtrange gods ; or, of a ſtrange people ; as Joſh.24.20.the vanities of the heathen,Chap.14.22.

V. 20. The harveſt is paſt, the ſummer is ended, and we are not ſaved.] The ſpeech of the people, again complaining that they had a long time looked for relief;but the year was gone, the time ſpent, within which they made full account to have had it,but none appeared.So ver.15. ſee Chap.37.7-10.& 46. 7,8,17.Lam.4.17.

V. 21. For the hurt of the daughter of my people am I hurt, I am black ; aſtoniſhment hath taken hold on me.] The Prophets words, again, lamenting the remedileſs afflictions of his people, and profeſſing his ſad and mournfull affection for the ſame.Heb.for the breach (as ver.11.) of the daughter of my people (as ver. 19.) I am broken : ſo , my heart is broken , Chap. 23. 9.

I am black] Or, I go in black ; as mourners are wont to do : I mourn,and am in heavineſs,Pſal.38.6.Chap.14.2. aſtoniſhment hath taken hold on me.] While I conſider the incurable condition of my people. See ver.22.

V. 22. Is there no balm in Gilead ? is there no Phyſitian there? Why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?] The words contain an implication of evils and calamities, ſo grievous,ſo deſperate, that no power,or skill of man,was able to overcome,and eaſe them of.

no balm in Gilead] A place famous for the moſt ſoveraign balſome,ſee Gen.37.25. Chap.46.11. Howbeit, the Greek, and the old Latine,following it,renders the word, both here, and Gen.37.25.& 43.10.roſen; and from the word here uſed, the name of rozen, both in Greek and Latine, ſeems to have deſtended ; ours in Engliſh,alſo, coming neerer to it,then eithers which ſome retaining , affirm it to be meant of ſuch a kind of liquid roſen,or turpentine, as we term it, as iſſued from the Terebinth tree, which yeeldeth the beſt balſome , and is highly commended for the cloſing up of wounds. See of it , Pliny in his natural hiſtory,l.14.c.20 & l.24.c.6.

is there no Phyſitian there ?] Or, is there no chirurgion there ? for the word includeth both : The place being ſo famous for ſuch a ſoveraign confection , it is not unlikely that there would be many artiſts there , of either profeſſions to direct the uſe of it ; as with us at the Bath : The Prophet therefore demandeth,as one that ſhould wonder at it,that there ſhould be no balm at all to be had at Gilead , no one chirurgion at all to be found there : but withall implying , that though there were there never ſo much ſtore of the one , or great number of the other ; yet all would not ſerve to cure a mortal wound,to recover a patient altogether incurable;and that the ſtate and condition of the people was ſuch : for what ſome ſpeak here of ſpiritual Phyſitians, Prieſts, or Prophets, at Gilead ; as Elias, 1 King 17.1. See Hoſ.6.8,9. ſeems to ſwerve from the genuine ſenſe of the place.

why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?] Heb.why is no cure, or healing of the daughter of my people gone up, or come ? of which form of ſpeech, ſee on Chap.30. 17.

CHAF. IX.

Verſ. 1. OH that mine head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears , that I might weep day and night for the ſlain of the daughter of my people.] The Prophet in this Chapter proceedeth to lament the grievous calamities that were to befall his people; together with their wickedneſs and general corruption, the procuring cauſe thereof,v.1-16. enciteth others to the like ſolemn lamentation , ver. 17-22. and laboureth to bring them off from their vain confidence, either in natural and worldly parts and abilities , as ſtrength, wiſdome, and wealth, ver.23,24. or external rites, as circumciſion, ver.25,26.

Oh, that mine head were waters] Or,water ; for the notion is ſingular, though the form plural: ſo Gen.24.13. 1 Sam. 7.6. Pſal.119.136. Heb. who will give, or, make, (as Hoſ.11. 8.) my head water ? an uſual form of wiſhing, in Hebrew : ſo Deut.5.26. Pſal.55.6. Mal.1.10. for ſo I ſuppoſe that place alſo would be rendred. So alſo ver.2.

and mine eyes a fountain of tears] Heb. tear ; as Pſal. 80. 5. & 116.8.Eſay 25 .8. the very ſame word in Hebrew ſignifieth both an eye, and a ſpring, Gen.16.7. Neh.2.13.

that I might weep day and night] Heb. and I will weep ; the copulative for the finitive : as Joſh. 24. 9. Mal. 1.9. day and night without intermiſſion ; as Lam.2.18,19. as if he could never lament or mourn enough. See the like, Eſay 22. 4. Chap.4.19. & 8.18. & 14.17.

for the ſlain] Heb. the ſlain : weep the ſlain, for, by weeping bewail the ſlain. So Deut.21.13. ſhe ſhall weep for her father and mother ; that is, weeping bewail them : ſlain ; that is,ready to be ſlain : as, deſtroyed, for, to be deſtroyed, Pſal.137.8. periſhed, for, ready to periſh, Eſay 27.13. as ſure to be ſlain , as if ſlain already. So Gen.20.3. Job 3.18. Chap.32.24. Ezek.21, 24. So alſo, chap.33.5. of the daughter of my people] My dear country-men; as chap. 8.19,21,22.

V. 2. Oh that I had in the wilderneſſe a lodging place of way-faring-men, that I might leave my people and go from them.] A ſecond wiſh, that he might withdraw himſelf from his people, and live in any ſolitary deſert,and in any ſory lodge or ſhed there, rather then among them , whoſe wicked lives were ſuch a continual eye-ſore, and heart-ſore to him : as were the Sodomites to Lot, 2 Pet.2.7,8.

Oh that I had] Heb. who will give me ? as ver.1.

in the wilderneſſe] In the moſt ſolitary waſte, Pſal. 55.7. and among the wild beaſts , not ſo much to eſcape danger from them ; as Elias, 1 King.19.3,4.or to avoid moleſtations by them : as Prov.21.19. Pſal.120.5,6. Eccl. 25. 18,22. as hoping to find better entertainment with the wild beaſts, then with them ; as thoſe faithful ones, Heb. 11.38. or,that his ſoul might not be continually vexed with the ſight of their ſinful courſes,as the words enſuing ſhew.See Davids affection in the like kind,Pſal.119.136,139,158.

a lodging place of wayfaring-men] Or,a travellers lodge ; any ſuch ſory ſhed,as is wont to be erected in ſolitary places where no houſing is, for travellers to reſt,and repoſe themſelves in, by the way : ſee Eſay 24.19.

that I might leave my people] Heb. and I will leave ; ſee on ver.1. ſo Pſal.55.6.that I might flee away,and be at reſt.

for they are all adulterers] The reaſon why he would rather retire himſelf to any place, were he at his own choice , then live among them,ſuch as they were.

all adulterers] For the generality of them,ſee chap.5.8. So Hoſ.7.4.

an aſſembly of treacherous men.] Or, a company of perfidious dealers ; not an holy congregation, for which the word is commonly uſed,Lev.23.36.Num.29.35. Deut.16.8. but a whole rout,or,pack,of perfideous wretches,Eſay 1.4. See Chap.3. 10. Howbeit,becauſe the word is uſed commonly for an holy meeting , or a day of reſtraint from civill employments , Lev, 23. 36. Some reade the text here , dealing perfidiouſly in the day of reſtraint ; as if they dealt never more wickedly,then on thoſe days,wherein they ought to have been moſt ſtrict,and to have demeaned themſelves moſt devoutly : ſee Eſay 58.3,4.Ezek.23.38, 39. And another, becauſe the word it cometh of ſignifieth ſometime to rule , 1 Sam. 9. 17. 2 Chr. 14. 11. and another derivative very neer to this,regiment,or dominion, Judg.18.7. would therefore have this here to ſignifie, a Kingdom of perfidious ones. But the firſt is as the moſt received,ſo the moſt familiar,and moſt free.

V. 3. And they bend their tongue like their bow for lies ;] Heb. And they tread their tongue their bow to falſhood : to tread; the uſual term,in Hebrew,for to bend; becauſe by treading on it,the bow bendeth : ſo Chap. 46.9. & 50.14.& 51. 3. one of the Rabbines tels us,that it came ſo to be uſed,at firſt, from an engine, not unlike to our croſs-bow, that uſed to be bent with the foot : their tongue their bow, that is, their tongue which is as their bow, or which they uſe as a bow to ſhoot out lies,to the impeaching of others,in their name,ſtate and life ; the tongue is, in Scripture, compared oft to a bow, and words to ſhafts : ſo Pſal.64.3.& 120.1,2.ver.8.and this bending of the tongue like a bow, may ſeem to be that which the Pſalmiſt calleth, deviſing of miſchief with the tongue; that is, of miſchievous matter to be uttered by the tongue, Pſal.52.2. ſee Pſal.64.3, 4. For that conſtruction of a great man ſeemeth ſomewhat over-harſh; they bend their tongue; their bow is a lye: the lye ſhould be the ſhaft rather: ſee ver.8.

but they are not valiant for the truth upon the earth :] The text is here by divers diverſly both diſtinguiſhed and interpreted. The Greek teareth ſomewhat from the former clauſe, and faſtening it unto this, rendreth the words, falſhood and not faithfulneſs prevaileth upon earth. But this the text will not bear. The old Latine on the other ſide pulleth ſomewhat from this, and affixeth it to the former, reading them thus; they bend their tongue as a bow of falſhood, and not of truth : but neither doth this ſuit well, either with the pauſes in the Hebrew, or ſome terms in the text. The Chaldee, whom the Jewiſh Commenter concurreth with, hath the ſame in effect that our verſion exhibiteth, ſave that thoſe laſt words, upon the earth; which might ſeem to anſwer our Engliſh phraſe, in the world : as if it were ſaid, for the truth they have no courage in the world : as the like, Eſay 26.18. no deliverance upon earth; (of which, ſee there) they ſeem rather to underſtand of the land that they lived in; that they did not put out themſelves, or make uſe of their ſtrength for the maintenance of truth and equity in the land; but for the wronging of the weak. So Eſay 59.4. and this I take to be the native ſenſe of the place: and, for, but; as Chap.8.15. though the copulative may well here be retained. Howbeit, ſome late Writers of note render it, and not according to faithfulneſſe, or by neglect of faithfulneſs, (that is, by falſhood and unfaithful dealing) they grow ſtrong upon earth, Pſal.73.12. Chap.5.27,28. & 12.1,2. But this to me ſeemeth ſomewhat to force the text.

for they proceed from evill to evill] Or, but they proceed (as Pſal.118.17.) from evil to evil; from one evil to another; or from one degree of it to another: they grow daily worſe and worſe, Chap.7.26. So 2 Tim.3.13.

and they know not me, ſaith the Lord.] This cometh laſt, as the main cauſe of all the former; the principal ground of all evil is in Scripture aſſigned, as ſometime to the want of the ſincere fear of God: as Gen.20.11. Pſal.36.1. Mal.3.5. Rom.3.18. ſo otherwhile to the want of the ſound knowledge of God, as here, ſo Judg.2.10,11. 1 Sam.2.12. Chap.4.22. Hoſ.4.1.2. and indeed the former followeth upon this latter; for where no knowledg of God is, no fear of God can be: what a man knoweth not, he cannot fear.

V. 4. Take ye heed every one of his neighbour; and truſt ye not in any Brother: for every brother will utterly ſupplant; and every neighbour will walk with ſlanders.

V. 5. And they will deceive every one his neighbour, and will not ſpeak the truth] They are generally ſo corrupt, that a man can hardly find, or light on any one honeſt and faithful, whom he may truſt, though he be never ſo neer to him in nature, or pretend never ſo much friendſhip or fidelity to him, Pſal.12.1,2. Prov.20.6. Chap.5.1. & 12.6. Mic.7.5,6.

his neighbour] Or, friend; as it is well rendred, 2 Sam.15.37. & 16.17. 1 King.4.5. and ſo would be here, and verſ. 5. for there is here an emphaſis in it: nor is it barely as in that common phraſe, Chap. 22.8.

will utterly ſupplant] Or, will ſurely ſupplant. Heb. ſupplanting ſupplant; over-reach, go beyond, and cheat his own brother: the word ſignifieth properly to trip up ones heeles; a figurative ſpeech taken from the practice of runners, or wreſtlers, an alluſion to the name of Jacob thence ſo termed, Gen.25.26. & 27.36. Hoſ.12.2. See the contrary enjoyned, 1 Theſſ.4.4.

every neighbour] Or, friend; as before.

will walk with ſlanders] Carrying tales to and fro, and ſpreading abroad falſe reports. So Chap. 6.28. a wicked practice, inhibited, Lev.19.16. ſuch friends as ſpeak a man fair to his face, will be detracting from him, and traducing him behind his back. So Chap.12.6. & 18.18. See Prov.26.20,22.

they will deceive] Or, mock, and delude; as Job 13.9. or, beguile : as Gen.31.7.

every one his neighbour] Heb. a man his neighbour, or, his friend; not ſimply, one another; as ver.20. Zach.8.10. but each one his neereſt and deereſt friend, as ver.4. and will not ſpeak truth] See the contrary enjoyned, Zach.8.16. Eph.4.25.

they have taught their tongues to ſpeak lies;] Or, they have enured, or, accuſtomed, them; as the word is, Chap. 2.24. Hoſ.10.11. where it would alſo be ſo rendred; they have got ſuch an habit and cuſtome of lying; that they cannot leave it. See Chap.13.23.

and weary themſelves to commit iniquity] They take pains to do wickedly, and tire out themſelves in it, Pſal.7.14. Eſay 5.18.

V. 6. Thine habitation is in the midſt of deceit] Gods ſpeech to the Prophet. Thou my Prophet liveſt among a company of deceitful and falſe-hearted people, and haſt need therefore to walk warily, Chap.12.6. or, as others, there is little hope therefore that thou ſhouldeſt do any good upon them, they are ſo wedded to their deceitful wayes: and this the words following ſeem to confirm. See Chap.8.5.

Thine habitation] Heb. Thy ſitting; that is, Thine abode: as Exod.16.3. Deut.6.7. & 11.19.

in the midſt of] Or, among; as Chap.39.14 & 40.5.

deceit] That is, deceitful perſons: deceit, for, men of deceit; as Pſal.109.2.

through deceit they refuſe to know me, ſaith the Lord.] They are ſo addicted to their deceitful courſes, that they will rather ſtick to them, though to their own ruine, then return to me for their good, Ch.8.5. or, that their ſtrong affection to them, makes them altogether unwilling and averſe unto the knowledge of me and my Will, becauſe contrary thereunto, Pſal.36.3,4. or, as others, they ſo truſt to their frauds and falſehoods, to their wiles and guiles, and whereby they make account to ſecure themſelves, that they regard not me, or ought that cometh from me, Job 21.14. Pſal.52.7. Eſay 28.15.& 30.15. But I adhere rather to the former.

they refuſe to know me] A further decree then the former, of not knowing, ver. 3. a refuſal to know; implying a wilful, affected, obſtinate, ignorance; a rejecting of means offered them, whereby they might come to knowledge. See Pſal.82.5. 2 Pet.3.3,5.

V. 7. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts; Behold, I will melt them, and try them.] I will melt them, as the finer doth his oar, or metal, in the furnace and fire of affliction, to conſume the wicked as droſs out of them, and to refine the reſidue, Eſay 1.25. & 4.4. & 49.10. Dan.11.33. Mal.3.3. or, as ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, I will try them by ſome leſſer and lighter afflictons, whether they will be brought home to me, or no, before I proceed to an utter deſtruction. That which a late learned Writer exhibiteth in the time paſt, rendring the words; I have melting them tryed them. I have by milder caſtigations aſſayed to amend them; but to little purpoſe, Chap.6.29. But the ſequel of the context, and the illative in the front of the verſe, carrieth it rather the firſt way.

I will melt them, and try them] Heb. I am melting them, and I will try them; that is, I am about by melting to try them. See the like, Chap.6.27.

for how ſhould I do for the daughter of my people ?] Or, what elſe ſhould I do for the daughter of my people ? that is, as ſome, what could I do leſs? underſtanding it of the time paſt: or, as others rather, what other courſe can I take with them, being generally grown ſo deſperately evil? as, How can I do this great evil ? Gen.39.9. See Eſay 5.4,5. Hoſ.11.8. it may well be rendred; How ſhould I deal (as Hoſ.6.4.) otherwiſe, with (as the particle here uſed ſeems to be taken, Pſal.68.2. Mic.1.4.) the daughter of my people : or, as one of the Jewiſh Doctors not amiſs, becauſe of the wickedneſſe of the daughter of my people, as ver.1,3. and there ſeems to be, as he well obſerveth, an emphaſis in it; as if God had ſaid, how can I endure to ſee, or ſuffer, to mine own extream diſhonour, ſuch horrible abominations to reign among thoſe, that are called and counted my people. See ver.9.

V. 8. Their tongue is as an arrow ſhot out;] The tongue was before compared to a bow, ver.3. here, to a ſhaft : to a bow, in regard of the fitting of it for the uttering of falſhood by wicked contrivances; to a ſhaft, in regard of the ſpeech paſſing from it to the wrong and prejudice of others; as Pſal.64.3. Prov.25.18. There is concerning the attribute here aſſigned to this ſhaft, or arrow, a two-fold reading in the original: for ſome copies had it a ſlaying, or, ſlaughtering ſhaft: (for the ancient Greek and old Latine rendring it, wounding, and ſome other cutting, come far ſhort of the true notion of the term) and arrowes are mentioned as inſtruments of death, and of deſtruction, Pſal.7.13. Deut.32.23. Ezek.5.16. others, a ſhaft drawn out, as the word is uſed, 2 Chr.9.15,16. of gold drawn out, or, beaten out into plates; which thoſe that follow, expound, either of a ſhaft drawn out of the quiver: or, ſhot out from the bow; (and this our verſion followeth) or, drawn over the whetſtone to ſharpen it: according to that, they have whet their tongues like a ſword, Pſal. 64.3. and they have ſharpened their tongue like a ſerpent, Pſal. 140.3. and this laſt the Chaldee alſo exhibiteth: But neither do any of theſe expoſitions ſute well with that uſe of the word concerning gold, & the notion of it thereby in that place expreſſed: for in that notion, or in any other, ſave that of ſlaying, it is no where elſe found: yea, ſome of thoſe Jewiſh Doctors alſo that retain this latter reading, bring it fully home to the ſenſe of the former, affirming the word to be, not a paſſive participle, though it have the form of ſuch an one, but a toar, as they term it, or a noun adjective; alleadging ſuch an one of the ſame ſtamp uſed for an oppreſſing perſon, Prov.28.17. whereunto may be added, that as in Greek and Latine, and with us alſo from the latter, ſome ſuch paſſive forms have yet an active notion, as when we ſay, a conſiderate, and, a circumſpect man; ſo in Hebrew alſo, their Pauls, as they term them, have ſometime the like, Prov.7.10. a woman, not reſerved, as ſome; but as ſome other, circumſpect; or, as others again, cautious: as our verſion, ſubtil; word for word, obſervant, or, watching warily to entrap and enſnare fooliſh youth: and whether reading therefore for the frame of the word we follow, this may well be, and I conceive to be the true ſenſe of the words, A ſlaying (that is, a pernicious and miſchievous) ſhaft (for the two terms in Hebrew have ſome conſonancy with them) or, arrow, is their tongue: for the note of ſimilitude (that which maketh it the more emphatical; as Chap.6.8.) is not in the text. Some late Writers of prime note, inſtead of a ſhaft here, give us a knife: and it is true, that a wicked tongue is compared ſometime to a ſword, Pſal.57.4. & 59.7. and to a raſor, Pſal.52.2. but theſe learned Interpreters do not ſhew us, where the term here found is ever uſed for a knife; nor doth any ſuch place appear.

it ſpeaketh deceit] Or, fraud; it uttereth nothing leſs then what in truth they intend: as it is reported to have been a common by-word concerning one of the Popes, and a baſe ſon of his, that the one of them never ſpake what he meant, and the other, never meant what he ſpake: and this deceit, or fraud is commonly pernicious or miſchievous, as the Latine word for fraud is uſed for either; in regard whereof, the falſe tongue, is ſaid to be as the raſor of ſuch a guileful barber, as pretending to trim a mans hair, inſtead thereof cutteth his throat, Pſal.52.2.

one ſpeaketh peaceably to his neighbour with his mouth; but in his heart he layeth his wait] Or, with his mouth will a man talk peaceably, or kindly, (Heb. ſpeak peace, as Pſal.35.20. and 85.8. Eſt.8.30. & 9.3.) with his neighbour, or friend, (with another; as Zach.8.16,17.) when inwardly, or, in his heart, (Heb. in the midſt of him; as Chap.4.14. See Pſal.5.9.) he layeth wait for him. Heb. and, for, when; as Chap.6.14. and, his wait, that is, wait for him: as, his ſnare, and, his gin, for, the ſnare, and the gin, ſet for him, Job 18.10. when they ſpeak a man faireſt, they then mind him the moſt miſchief. So Gen. 34.13. 2 Sam.3.27. & 13.26. & 20.9. Pſal.5.9. & 28.3. & 55. 22. Prov.26.23-25.

V. 9. Shall I not viſit them for theſe things? ſaith the Lord; ſhall not my ſoul be avenged on ſuch a nation as this?] Or, Should I not puniſh? See the ſame, Chap.5.9.

V. 10. For the mountains will I take up a weeping and wailing, and for the habitations of the wilderneſſe a lamentation; becauſe they are burnt up, ſo that none can paſſe thorow them, neither can men hear the voice of the cattel; both the fowl of the heavens, and the beaſt are fled, they are gone.] The Prophets words returning to his lamentation again; as before, for the multitude of the people ſlain, ver.1. ſo now for the utter devaſtation of the whole country, as well hill, as vale, left deſtitute of all living wights. See Chap.4.23-26.

the mountains] For Judea, about Jeruſalem eſpecially, was much of it hilly, Pſal.87.1. & 125.2. Eſay 14.25. Chap.17.3. & 33.13. Ezek.36.1,8.

the habitations of the wilderneſſe] Or, paſtures (as the word is uſed, Joel 2.22.) of the plain, or, vale. See Eſay 63.13. thus the whole country is divided into hill and vale, Chap.17.26. & 33.13. Ezek.36.4,6.

a lamentation] As Chap.7.29. Ezek.19.14. So hereafter, ver.20. and, to take up a lamentation; as Ezek.19.1. & 26.17. & 27.2. & 28.12. & 32.2. Amos 5.1.

burnt up] Or, deſolate: ſo waſted and ſpoiled, as if they had been burnt up with fire. So ver.12. Chap.46.19. See Joel 2.3.

ſo that none can paſſe thorow them] Heb. from no man paſſing; that is, either becauſe none paſſeth to and fro by them; for through want of paſſengers, wayes become waſte, Lam.1.4. or ſo that none paſſeth thorow them, they are ſo waſte and uncouth: ſo extreamly are they waſted, that not onely there is no dwelling in them, but no paſſing by them. So Chap.2.6. ver.12. man, for, any one; as chap.5.1. and a defect of the pronoun; as chap.8.10.

neither can men hear the voice of the cattel,] Heb. nor do they hear the voice of the cattel; that is, nor is the voice of cattel heard there. See Eſay 62.10. the lowing of oxen, or bleating of ſheep, Judg.5.16. 1 Sam.15.14. that had wont to feed and graze there. See Chap.33.10,12,13. a defect of the particle there, or, therein; as chap.6.16.

both the fowl of the heavens and the beaſt are fled] Heb. from the fowl of heaven and unto the beaſt they are fled; as Gen.7.3. chap.50.3. See Chap.4.25.

they are gone] Becauſe nothing is left that may ſuſtain either, Chap.12.4.

V. 11. And I will make Jeruſalem heaps, and a den of dragons] Heb. I will give (as ver.1.) Jeruſalem unto heaps: as Job 15.28. The city ſhall be ruinated. So Pſal.79.1. See Eſay 25.2. & 37.26.

a den of dragons] As they made Gods houſe a den of robbers, Chap.7.11. Heb. an habitation, or, dwelling place: as Pſal.90.1. and ſo it is rendred, Chap.51.37. where the ſame things are ſaid of Babylon. See Eſay 34.13. Chap.10.22.

and I will make the cities of Judah deſolate, without an inhabitant] Heb. the cities of Judah I will give, (or, make, as before) deſolation; that is, utterly deſolate. So Chap.4.27. & 10.22.

without inhabitant] Or, as ſome, becauſe there is no inhabitant. So Chap.4.7. See ver.10.

V. 12. Who is the wiſe man that may underſtand this; and who is he to whom the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken, that he may declare it;] The Prophet having related the dreadful devaſtation that the whole land ſhould undergo, doth now encite men to conſider ſeriouſly with themſelves, what might be the procuring cauſes of ſo great and grievous evils.

who is the wiſe man that may underſtand this] Heb. Who the man the wiſe, and he will underſtand this: but the copulative is oft uſed in a finitive notion, as before, ver.1,10. as if he had ſaid, Is there never a wiſe man among you, who vaunt ſo much of your wiſdome, Chap.8.8. to underſtand and take notice of the procuring cauſes of theſe evils? See the like, Pſal. 107.43. Hoſ.14.9.

and who is he to whom the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken, that he may declare it?] Or, or; (as Chap.5.12.) to whom the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken. Heb. whom the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken to him (as Pſal.1.4.) and he will tell it; as before: Or, if there be none ſo wiſe among you, that is able of himſelf to conceive it, is there never a Prophet among all thoſe with you, that profeſs themſelves to be ſuch, chap.27.16,18. whom God hath acquainted with his mind herein, that he may, from him, at leaſt make it known to you?

for what the land periſheth, and is burnt up like a wilderneſſe that none paſſeth thorow?] Or, Wherefore is the land periſhed? See ver.10. Chap.2.6.

V. 13. And the Lord ſaith;] Or, Therefore ſaith the Lord: the copulative, for the cauſal; as Chap.6.11. & 7.16,28. if there be none among you, that can tell wherefore all this cometh upon you, God himſelf, by me, will inform you of the cauſe of it: ſo Chap.5.19. & 16.10,11. & 22.8,9.

Becauſe they have forſaken my Law, which I ſet before them, and have not obeyed my voice, neither walked therein;] Or, Becauſe they have left my Law, which I ſet (Heb. gave; as Dan. 9. 10.) before them, (ſee chap.26.4.) and have not hearkened to my voice (as chap.3.25.) nor walked therein; to wit, in, or according to my Law; for to that it hath reference: ſee Dan. 9. 10,11,14.

V. 14. But have walked after the imagination of their own heart,] Heb. And (as ver.3.) ſee Chap.7.24. & 15.8. ſo 2 Pet. 3.3.

their own heart] As, their own face, Chap.7.19. and, thine own way, Chap.4.18.

and after Baalim] See Chap.2.23.

which their fathers taught them.] Or, as (Lev.7.26. Chap. 48.8.) their fathers taught them, or accuſtomed them; as ver.5. training them up in ſuch idolatrous practices, as themſelves exerciſed: ſee Chap.7.18. 1 Pet.1.18.

V. 15 Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael,] God purſueth ſtill his anſwer to the former demand. The ſame ſtyle, ſee Chap.7.21.

Behold, I will feed them, even this people, with wormwood, and give them the water of gall to drink.] Heb. Behold, I am feeding, (that is, about to feed; as Chap.8.17.) them, this people; as Exod.2.6. and ſhe ſaw him, the child, Chap.27.7. that ſhall not ſerve him, Nebuchadnezzar; pronoun and noun both together, for the more emphaſis; and our verſion therefore well inſerteth, even.

with wormwood] That the word here uſed, is the name of ſome herb or plant, is not doubted: and it ſeems to appear by Deut.29.18. but what herb it ſhould be, the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves ſeem as uncertain as we: it is a kind of herb, ſaith one; a bitter herb, ſaith another: and that not unlikely, by the alluſion in likelihood to that place of Moſes, Act.8. 23. & Heb.12.15. and more evidently by Prov.5.4. and therefore wormwood, ſay ſome, becauſe bitter, Rev.8.11. but a third addeth, that it is a plant, or ſimple (ſo I render the word ſam, becauſe larger then our ſpice) not of life, but of death; that is, not vital, or wholſome, but mortal, hurtful even to death, a deadly poiſon, as well as the other here joyned with it: which epithet the Chaldee alſo in that place of Moſes giveth it; and then ſurely not wormwood: for that is no unwholſome, or hurtful, though nothing toothſome or pleaſant, much-leſſe a venemous or poiſonful plant; as this is acknowledged to be: and may well be deemed to have its name, as an accurſed herb, or plant, from the Arabick word, that ſignifieth ſieth to curſe. Said to be uſed in that verſion, Gen. 3. 17. & 12.3. Mar.11.21. and I ſuppoſe therefore the text might better be rendred; I will feed them with wolfs-bane, and drench them with water, or, juice of hemlock: or uſing the names of ſome other like poiſonful plants; for water of gall, ſeems no fit phraſe; but of this latter, ſee before on Chap.8.14. they are both joyned together, as here, ſo Deut.29.18.Ch.23.15.Lam. 3.19. Amos 6.12. but this apart without that, Amos 5.7. and Lam.3.19. where this people complain, that God had given them to drink ſuch a quantity of it, that they were even drunk withal; ſo that the ſame thing is mentioned as their meat here; as their drink there; and the meaning is, that God would bring ſuch grievous afflictions upon them, that ſhould put them to that torture and torment, as rank poiſons would do, had they no other thing either to eat or drink but ſuch.

V. 16. I will ſcatter them alſo among the heathen, whom neither they nor their fathers have known;] That which God by Moſes had long before threatned them. Deut. 28. 64. See Chap. 15. 4,7.

and I will ſend a ſword after them, till I have conſumed them.] So Lev. 26.33,38,39. See Chap. 42. 16. & 43. 11. & 44.12,27.

V. 17. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts;] Becauſe this people were ſo ſtrongly poſſeſſed with a ſpirit of ſecurity, which their ſalſe Prophets confirmed them in, pronouncing them aſſured peace and ſafety, that they little regarded the Prophets dolefull lamentations, as of one, whom they conceived to be but either a mad or a melancholike man. Chap.5.12,13. The Prophet now telleth them, that God himſelf did invite them unto ſolemn lamentation, to try whether that would work upon them or no. So Eſay 22.12.

Conſider ye] as Chap. 2. 10. or, underſtand, as Eſay 1. 3. either conceive aright what your condition is, and ſuffer not your ſelves any longer to be therein deluded; or conſider with your ſelves ſeriouſly of it: I encline to that rather.

and call for the mourning women, that they may come; and ſend for cunning women that they may come;] Heb. call for mourning ones, (but in the feminine form, as the next alſo,) and they will, or, ſhall come; and ſend for wiſe ones, and they ſhall, or, will come, the copulative in a finitive notion, as Eſay 53.2. ver. 1,2. and wiſe, for cunning, or, skilful, as Exod. 31.3,6. Such there were among the Greeks, and Latines, and were for the moſt part women, by a peculiar term in Latine, called præficæ, that profeſſed an art and skill of mourning, and making exquiſite lamentation; to which purpoſe alſo they were wont to be hired at ſolemn funerals, where going along with the corps, they made much more ſemblance uſually of lamentation and wailing, then thoſe did that mourned indeed, and ſuch it ſeemeth there were alſo among this people; ſuch at leſt as were skilful in compoſing of doleful poems and ditties, that might raiſe up and enhance affections of that kind in others. See 2 Chron.35.25. Job 3. 8. Eccl.12.5. Amos 5.16.

V. 18. And let them make haſte and take up a wailing for us, that our eyes may run down with tears, and our ey-lids guſh out with waters.] Theſe words would thus rather be knit to the former, that they may come, and take up ſpeedily a wailing for us; the ſyntax, as before, ver. 17. to haſt and take up; for to take up haſtily, or, ſpeedily; as, to haſte and come, for, to come haſtily, 1 Sam. 4. 14. to haſte and take; for, to take ſpeedily, without delay, Eſt.6.10. to haſte and forget, for, eftſoon to forget, Pſal.106.13.

that our eyes may run down with tears] Heb. and (as before) our eyes ſhall deſcend with tears. So verſ. 1 Chap. 14. 17.

guſh out] or, flow down; as ſhowers from the sky, Job 36. 28. Eſay 45. 8. or, as ſtreams from a ſpring, Pſal. 78.16. Eſay 48.21. See verſ.1.

with waters] or, with water, as verſ. 1. a defect of the particle, with, both here and before, as Eſay 61. 8.

V. 19. For a voice of wailing is heard out of Zion; How are we ſpoiled?] Or, as ſome render it, will be heard out of Zion: that is, out of Jeruſalem. Yet the preſent tenſe may be retained, it being as ſure to be heard, as if heard at preſent, and as ſounding in the Prophets ears already, as Chap. 4.19,20. & 6.24. & 8.16,19.

we are greatly confounded, becauſe we have forſaken the land, becauſe our dwellings have caſt us out.] We are at our wits end; becauſe we are compelled to leave our land, (ſee Eſay 2.11,12.& 6,12.) and are violently caſt out of our dwellings. See Job 15.33,34. Deut.29.28. but the form of ſpeech is very pregnant: our dwellings themſelves caſt us out; as being weary of us for our impurities, and even ſpewing us out, Lev. 18.18. & 20,22. the ſpeech of the people, either enforced to retire to Jeruſalem, abandoning the places of their former abode, or of thoſe of Jeruſalem, expecting ere long, to undergo the like. A defect of the pronoun; as Eſay 37.4. Howbeit, ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, whom ſome of ours alſo follow, read the words, they (that is, the enemy) have caſt down our dwellings, to the ground: as Ezek.19.12. and then no ſupply needeth.

V. 20. Yet hear the word of the Lord, O ye women; and let your ear receive the word of his mouth;] Or, For hear, &c. becauſe it is a further confirmation of what was before ſaid, verſ. 17. that God himſelf inviteth them to it, and enjoyneth it. See the like exhortation, Eſay 32.9,11. and the phraſe, Job 4. 12. if ye regard not what I ſay, yet weigh well, and take to heart, what God ſaith.

and teach your daughters wailing,] Learn them before-hand ſome doleful ditties, that may expreſſe your grief, and affect others alſo with it.

and every one her neighbour lamentation.] Heb. and a woman her friend, or, familiar; that is, one teach another: as Gen. 11. 2. Eſay 34. 15, 16. a ſupply of the verb from the former branch; as Gen.1.16. Implying, that ſo great ſhould be the calamity, and ſuch cauſe of mourning on all hands, that no lamentation might ſeem ſufficient. See Amos 5.16.Lam. 1.12. & 2.13.

a lamentation] As Chap.7.29. ver.10. from this is Cain deemed, by ſome, to have had his name; but his mothers words ſeem to carry it another way, Gen.4.1.

V. 21. For death is come up into our windows, and is entred into our palaces; to cut off the children from without, and the young men from the ſtreets.] Deſtruction cometh in ſo on every ſide of us, that there is no poſſibility to avoid it; as Ezek.21. 14. it entreth into our privy chambers, or, cloſets: nor can our ſtrongeſt places keep it out, Chap.6.5. & 17.25. Lam.2.5. an alluſion, as ſome, to an enemy ſcaling and ſurpriſing a city, 2 Sam.5.8. Chap.5.10. as others, to the ſtones and fire-works, that by engines were thrown into the city. See Chap. 6. 6. as others again, to the heaps and piles of dead bodies reaching up to the very windows, and the enemy by them climbing up to them. See Chap.33.5. others, to thieves, that break in, or ſteal in, at windows, Joel 2.9. Joh. 10. 1. and thoſe would have it to imply, not ſo much the unavoidableneſs, as the ſuddenneſſe, and unexpectedneſſe of it; for in great and high buildings, ſay they, the dores commonly in the night time are ſhut, but the windows are left open, there being no fear of danger by them, in regard of their height. But the former is more probable, and ſeems to allude to a city taken by aſſault.

to cut off the children from without, and the young men from the ſtreets] Or, it proceedeth to cut off the children without, and the young men out of the ſtreets: ſo that there is no ſafety for any, either without dores, or within. See 2 Chron.15.5. Lam.4.18,19. nor regard of any age, ſee chap.6.11. Some ſuch word muſt of neceſſity be ſupplyed to make the ſenſe full: for to ſay, that it entreth in by the windows into the great houſes, to cut off them in the ſtreets, ſeems not to ſound ſo well; children from without: whither they are wont to run and ſteal out, and where wont to play together, Zach. 8. 10. and young men from the ſtreets: where they are wont to meet together, not deſirous, or enduring commonly to be couped up much in the houſe, Chap.6.11. & 49.26. both words here uſed are of the ſame notion, and ſignifie ſtreets; though the former ſeem the more general. See Chap.5.1.

V. 22. Speak, Thus ſaith the Lord;] I conceive with ſome learned Interpreters, that theſe words are to be read by way of parentheſis; and thoſe that follow, to be thus knit unto the foregoing ſentence: it proceedeth to cut off the children from without dores and the ſtreets; (ſpeak it, the Lord ſo ſaith, or, it is the Lords ſaying) and mens carcaſſes ſhall lye as dung upon the open field.

even the carcaſſes of men] Heb. and (which need not be altered) mans corpſe, or, the carcaſſe of man: but both taken collectively; as chap.7.33.

ſhall fall as dung] Or, ſhall fall (that is, be ſlain; as chap.6. 15. & 44.12.) and lye (a double notion in the ſame term; as Eſay 14.12.) as dung, See chap.8.2. there is an elegant conſonancy in the original, between the noun carcaſſe, and the word fall; as the like is alſo in Greek.

upon the open field] Heb. on the face, or, ſurface, of the field, as 2 King.9.37.

and as the handful after the harveſt-man] Or, as the ſheaf (as Amos 2.13.) from after, or, behind the reaper: which the hired reaper, either forgetting, or not regarding, letteth lye, and leaveth behind him. See Ruth.2.7.

and none ſhall gather them.] Or, where there is none to gather, or, take it up, (ſo, and they ſhall ſerve, for, where they ſhall ſerve, Gen.15.13.) as having relation to the ſheaf let fall, or left behind. Heb. and no gatherer; the meaning is, none to afford them ſepulture, Pſal.79.5.

V. 23. Thus ſaith the Lord, Let not the wiſe man glory in his wiſdome, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, nor the rich man glory in his riches.] God by the Prophet here laboureth, to beat them off from thoſe vain confidences, either in publike, or private ſtays and ſhelters, whereby they made account ſufficiently, to ſecure themſelves againſt thoſe evils, that the Prophets of God threatned them with, For the publike, they made account they had many wiſe counſellours, and politick men, to manage as well military, as civil affaires. Chap.8.8. and ſtore of warriers, and men of valor, to execute great matters; and they wanted not treaſure if need were, to hire forces with from abroad, and ſo be well enough able to withſtand the Chaldeans, if they ſhould come in upon them, Eſay 30.6. Chap.37.5. Again, many among them made account if it came to the worſt, yet they ſhould ſhift well enough, either by their ſhifts and ſlights, or by their might, or by their money, wherewith they might ranſome themſelves, Pſal.49.6. & 52.7. Prov.10.15. & 13.8. & 18.11. Eſay 28.15. & 30.2. & 31.1. God here aſſureth them, that it is in vain to glory in, or relye upon any of theſe, power, policy, or wealth, for not any of theſe ſhould avail, to deliver them from death or captivity, when God ſhould bring the judgment now denounced upon them, Pſal.33.16,17. Prov.11.4. Eccl.9.11. Eſay 28.17. & 30.3. & 31.2,3. Ezek. 7.19. Amos 2.14-16.

V. 24. But let him that glorieth, glory in this, that he underſtandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord that executeth kindneſs, judgment, and righteouſneſs in the earth] If they will glory in ought, or relye on ought, let it be in, and on mee, who alone am able to ſave and ſecure them, Pſal.20.7,8. Eſay 43.11. & 45.25. & 63.1. 1 Cor.1.31. 2 Cor.1.9,10. & 10.17. and in the ſound and ſaving knowledg of mee, (whom this people refuſe to know, to their own ruine, ver.3.6. Hoſ.4.6.) and of my goodneſs and faithfulneſs, to thoſe that do ſincerely relye on mee, which will be the only means to ſecure them, Pſal.9.10. & 32.10. & 34.22. & 37.40.

underſtandeth and knoweth me] The Jewiſh Doctor thus diſtinguiſheth theſe two, that the former ſignifieth an intellectual or contemplative knowledg, by which we conceive aright of the nature of God, his attributes, and his works; the latter an active or practical knowledg, whereby men do ſo know him, that they imitate him in heart and life, and live according to his law; whether the words are ſo to be diſtinguiſhed, I much doubt, yet make no queſtion but that the conjunction of theſe two words together, as if it were ſaid, in knowing me skilfully or underſtandingly, (for that I conceive to be the true ſenſe of the phraſe, in underſtanding and knowing me) doth intimate ſuch a ſound and ſolid knowledg of God, as doth not float in the brain, but ſinketh down into the heart, and ſo worketh upon the affections, that it worketh them unto God and his will, the efficacy whereof appeareth, and is expreſſed in the life; all other knowledg of God being but knowledg falſly ſo termed, and no true or ſound knowledg at all, 1 Tim.6.20. 1 Joh.1.6. & 2.4. that execute kindneſs, judgment and righteouſneſs] Heb. that do, or, doing, (as Exod. 20.6. Chap. 32.18.) kindneſs, (and goodneſs, in favours and bleſſings exhibited to the godly, Pſal.5.12. & 25.10. & 103.17,18.) judgment, (which he executeth upon the obſtinate wicked; and righteouſneſs, (whereby he maintaineth and defendeth the faithful, Eſay 1.27. & 51.4,5.) or, goodneſs in general, whereby he dealeth kindely with all that reject not him, and his kindneſs; uprightly and equally withall in general, Pſal. 92.15. & 97.2. & 99.4. & 105.8,9. for ſo judgment and juſtice are uſually taken where they are thus coupled together. See Eſay 56.1. Chap. 5.1. and in this ſenſe rather do I take the words here for that which followeth.

for in theſe things I delight; ſaith the Lord,] both in doing them my ſelf, and in ſeeing them done by others, Pſal.5.4. & 11.5,7. & 15.1,2. & 24.3-5. & 99.4. Eſay 33.15,16. & 61.8. Mic.6.8. & 7.18.

V. 25. Behold the dayes come ſaith the Lord; that I will puniſh all them that are circumciſed with the uncircumciſed,] The Lord here endeavoureth to take this people off from another priviledg, which they relied much upon; as formerly from the Temple, Chap.7.4. and their Temple-ſervice, Chap.7.21. ſo here, from their circumciſion, whereby as the genuine ſeed of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, (with whom, and their poſterity in that line, the Covenant whereof circumciſion the ſign and ſeal, Rom.4.11. was continued) they were diſtinguiſhed from other nations that were without it; and this prerogative they ſtood not a little upon, and preſumed much on it, Gen.34.14. Act.11.2,3. Rom.3.1. Eph.2.11. Phil.3.3,5. Now this the Lord, to take them off, as a ſory ſtay for them to truſt to, telleth them here, that he intendeth very ſhortly and ſuddenly, to hold a viſitation, wherein he will proceed againſt wicked perſons and people, as well circumciſed as uncircumciſed, without any regard had to that external rite, promiſcuouſly and impartially one with another. See Rom. 2.25-27. Phil.3.3. Heb. the dayes are coming, (as Chap. 7.32.) and (as Chap.3.9.) I will viſit upon (as Chap.5.9. & 23.34.) circumciſion with uncircumciſion: as Rom.2.26,27. Gal.2.7-9. For the Jewiſh Talmudiſts are here moſt abſurd, expounding it of ſuch as having been formerly circumciſed, to renounce their circumciſion, drew on again their foreskin: (of which practice, ſee 1 Cor.7.18.) as, ſay they did Iſmael, and hence thoſe corner ones here; Eſau, and thence here the Edomites; the iſſue of Lot, whence the Moabites and Ammonites here; the Egyptians, that had in Joſephs dayes received circumciſion, but after his deceaſe, abandoned it again; and Jehojakim King of Judah, to pleaſe the King of Babel. But theſe are no other then their own groundleſſe fictions and fables; the meaning of the text is plain enough, God himſelf by the Prophet, explaining it in the words next enſuing.

V. 26. Egypt, and Judah, and Edom, and the children of Ammon, and Moab, and all that are in the utmoſt corners, that dwell in the wilderneſs.] He ſeemeth to begin with the Egyptians, becauſe this people relied much upon them, Ezek.29.6,7,16. and to them in the next place he ſubjoyneth the Jews, reckoning them up without diſtinction, among the nations uncircumciſed, the reaſon whereof is afterwards given. And concerning thoſe here mentioned, there is no great doubt or difficulty, ſave only about the laſt, deſcribed not by any peculiar name, but by ſome remarkable circumſtance, and the place of their abode; that they are of the Kedarens, and the kingdome of Hazor, ſeems to appear from Chap.49.28,32. but why ſo ſtyled, as both here and there, that is the queſtion; the Hebrew is, word for word; cut off to the corner, or, polled by the corner, which the Jewiſh Commenters expound, of the country they lived in, as if the meaning were, that they lived as cut off from other people, in the utmoſt nooks, and remoteſt parts of the wilderneſs. But the Chaldee, Ancient Greek, and old Latine expound it, of the manner of their cutting of their hair off, by the corners, or ſides of the temples, which was the manner of ſome people, but forbidden Gods people; and which Herodote, lib.3. affirmeth to have been the Arabian faſhion; and this ſeemeth the more likely, the place of their habitation in the wilderneſs; to wit, in part of Arabia the deſert, is noted apart here: now that theſe ſeverall people were by Nebuchadnezzar to ſuffer, together with the Jews, appeareth plainly by that other prophecy, where they are related with others added unto them, Chap.25.18,19,21,23,24.

for all theſe nations are uncircumciſed, and all the houſe of Iſrael are uncircumciſed in the heart.] Or, in heart; as Ezek. 44.7. for the article is ſuperfluous here, nor is in the text. In theſe words God renders a reaſon, why he ranked the Jews among the uncircumciſed ones; to wit, becauſe they were ſuch in heart, as the other were in their fleſh; whence it appeareth, that the Edomites, though deſcended from Iſaak by Eſau, who was doubtleſs circumciſed as well as Jacob, had abandoned the uſe of this rite, which yet Hyrcanus in the times of the Maccabees, enforced them to reſume. See Joſephs antiquities, l.13.c.17. for theſe nations, ſaith he, are all uncircumciſed; though that no way either backeth that Talmudick fancy concerning the ſenſe of this place, or addeth force to their figments, which they fabulouſly adjoyn concerning ſome others. But hence is appeareth that the generality of Iſaac's poſterity were at that preſent uncircumciſed, either in the one kind, or in the other: his whole iſſue by Eſau having caſt off the outward circumciſion; and the main body of Jacobs poſterity, then in being, (the whole houſe of Iſrael, as well Judah, as the other ten tribes) wanting the inward circumciſion of the heart; without which, the outward rite in the fleſh is of no force or worth in Gods account. See Chap.4.4. Amos 9.7. Rom.2.28,29. Gal.5.6. & 6.15.

CHAP. X.

Verſ. 1. HEar ye the word which the Lord ſpeaketh to you, O houſe of Iſrael.] The Lord by the Prophet in the former part of this Chapter, (for the latter is of a far divers ſubject) diſſwadeth and dehorteth his people from attending to, or at all regarding thoſe heatheniſh practices of Aſtrology and idolatry: for he coupleth them both together, ver.1-16. and this former part, as to me ſeems, principally concerns thoſe of the former captivity, under Jeconiah, who already were in Babylon; the latter, thoſe that remained yet in the land under Zedekiah. V. 2. Thus ſaith the Lord, learn not the way of the heathen] Becauſe the Jewiſh people, were a great party of them to go in captivity into Babylon, and other the regions adjacent, yea, many of them in likelihood were there in captivity already, (See ver.11. Chap.24.1. & 29.1,2.) God by the Prophet endeavoureth to confirm and ſtrengthem them, the pious eſpecially among them, (for ſuch alſo there were there of them, Chap.24.5. Ezek.11.16.) againſt thoſe ſuperſtitions and vanities that were rife in thoſe parts; and they might be in danger, being exiles and captives in a ſtrange land, to be ſtrongly tempted unto: Heb. Learn not to the way: where either the particle is ſuperfluous, omitted therefore, Pſal.106.35. Chap.12.16. or elſe it may be rendred, Accuſtome not your ſelves to the way of the heathen; and ſo ſome render it; do not imitate them, See Chap.9.5. their way; that is, their ſuperſtitious courſes, Lev.18.3. & 20.23.

and be not diſmaied at the ſigns of heaven] The firſt head of ſuperſtitions, which he beginneth with, is Aſtrology, a ſtudy and practice ſo rife among them in thoſe parts, Eſay 47.13, that the profeſſors and practiſers of it, not with them alone, Dan.2.2. & 5.7. but among other nations alſo, are generally deſigned by the names of Chaldeans, See Strabo l.17. Cicero of divination l.2. Pliny l.6.c.26. Aſtrology, I ſay, not that which we commonly term Aſtronomy, whereby the true nature and motion of the celeſtiall bodies are by grounds of reaſon, and rules of art thence taking their riſe, enquired into, and diſcovered; but that judiciary Aſtrology, as it is uſually ſtyled, whereby men take upon them, from the poſtures and aſpects of them, to foretell the iſſue of humane affaires, either publike, or private, and what caſuall events, ſhall befall either perſons or people: a practice grown of late with us into great eſteem, being either countenanced or connived at, by thoſe in authority with us, though having entred themſelves, and cauſed others with them, to enter into a religious bond of a ſolemn oath and covenant, to endeavour the extirpation of all thoſe things among us, that are contrary to ſound doctrine, and the power of godlineſs, whereof this is none of the leaſt. For the originall whereof, (ſince it hath not, nor can be ſhewed to have any ground from the light of nature, or naturall reaſon) we ſhall not need to go far to find it out. We have a blind, but inſolent, buzzard (I may well ſo term him) among us, one that profeſſeth himſelf no ſmall Doctor in theſe impoſtures, and dotages (wherewith he hath bewitched not a few with us, eſteeming his predictions, as no other then divine oracles) and taketh upon him by the ſtars, to ſteer the affaires of our ſtate, pretending to read in the book of heaven, all that he writes, who will ſufficiently informe us herein. Now this man to juſtifie the warrantableneſs of this his practice, telleth us, that the good Angels of God in former ages, at firſt by perſonall conference, acquainted the ſons of men with this learning of the ſtars; and thoſe holy men, (ſaith he) ſo inſtructed, living many years, and in purer airs, where they curiouſly obſerved the Planets and their motion, brought this art to ſome maturity, without the leaſt hint of ſuperſtition. But as the ſons of men fell from God in divine worſhip, ſo in flitting and ſhifting their habitations, they forgat the purer part of this art; and in ſome Countries added ſuperſtitious conceptions. The holy Angles then belike by this mans relation, did at firſt inform thoſe holy men, which they could not otherwiſe have known, of the nature of the Planets; to wit, that Saturn was a melancholick malignant planet, Mars, a colerick and litigious one, Mercury, a theviſh, Venus, a laſcivious and wanton one: and that they do accordingly affect and diſpoſe ſuch people, or perſons, as are either bred under them, or whom they have ſpeciall relation unto. For theſe, and the like ridiculous fopperies, and impious calumniations of thoſe glorious creatures, are with them, as the Popiſh Purgatory with the Papiſts, the main grounds and principles of their whole Art, which being taken away, the whole fabrick and frame of their ſuperſtitious ſuperſtructures, will preſently fail and fall flat to the ground; as with thoſe other, all their maſſes, dirges, obites, pardons, and indulgences, if you deny them their Purgatory; which becauſe they can produce no clear Scripture for, they run with theſe men to their forged revelations. But whence theſe frivolous conceits, and irreligious ſurmiſes concerning thoſe celeſtiall bodies, (which if you queſtion, you ſhake the ground of all their conjecturall skill,) had their originall, may well be conjectured from the very names, the heathen impoſed upon them, being borrowed from their counterfeit deities, whom they deemed ſo quallified: aſſure our ſelves we may, that Gods holy Angels never raiſed any ſuch foul aſperſions and groundleſs defamations, upon thoſe pure and ſpotleſs creatures, far from, and wholly uncapable of any tincture of ſuch vicious diſpoſitions. But all that this man relateth, we may if we pleaſe, and be ſo ſily as ſo to do, take upon his credit; for he telleth us not what times thoſe were, wherein it was thus, or who thoſe holy men were, unto whom the holy Angels at firſt revealed thoſe things; or out of what records he hath theſe relations, concerning ſuch pretended revelations. And as little reaſon have we, to engage our faith to his Antagoniſt, another foul of the ſame feather, that flieth yet ſomewhat higher then he, and pretending his predictions, to be grounded on Art and Nature, telleth us (that we may not miſ-doubt or queſtion his Art) that this art was deduced from God to Adam, to Seth, to Abraham; for proof whereof, he referreth us to a Knight of note, for his ſtudies in this kind, who in favour indeed of this Art, which he was overmuch addicted to, and beſotted with, affirmeth in part what he ſaith, but bringing no better proof of it, then a tale out of Joſeph the Jew, who in his Antiquities l.1.c.3. telleth us, that thoſe of Seths iſſue living long and without diſturbance, gave themſelves to the ſtudy of heavenly things, and the conſtitution or adminiſtration of them; and becauſe Adam had foretold, a twofold deſtruction of the world that ſhould come, the one by water, the other by fire; they left the ſumme of what they had, of that kind of learning obſerved, engraven on two pillars of brick the one, of ſtone the other: but neither is any word in the Jew, of this their judiciall Aſtrology, nor of any skill in this kind, or any other by God imparted unto Adam, which they yet father upon him: and the whole relation of the two pillars ſeems as true, as that which he addeth of the continuance of the latter of them in Syria unto his time. And indeed, if any ſons of Adam ever had any ſuch immediate communion, either with God himſelf, or his holy Angels, it muſt be thoſe Ancient Patriarks, Abraham, Iſaak, and Jacob, and thoſe Prophets of God among his people; unto whom God uſed ſometime immediately, ſometime by the Miniſtery of Angels, to impart his minde, concerning future events, as well publike, as private: but no where in Scripture read we, that God did this, either by the naturall courſe of the celeſtiall ſigns, or, as from thence to be obſerved; nor undoubtedly had any ſuch art and skil, been taught the godly ones among Gods people, whether by God himſelf, or his Angels; would they either have concealed it from them, or much-leſs committed it unto Paynims, and Pagans, and by ſuch, have tranſmitted it unto poſterity, for from ſuch in corrupt times, it crept in among Chriſtians, being yet ever among them liable to cenſure; nor was any in the Ancient Church, that had profeſſed ſuch arts, admitted into the profeſſion of Chriſtianity, unleſs that firſt they renounced thoſe damnable practices, and recanted ſuch their ſuperſtitious conceits. But men may eaſily gueſs what Angels they were, that acquainted men at firſt with theſe things, and ſet them on work, to buſie their brains about ſuch matters, as neither light of nature, nor grounds of reaſon, were able to inform them of, but muſt have ſome revelation; either Divine, or Angelicall, or Diabolicall rather, for the finding of them out; ſo far are God himſelf and his Prophets, from taking notice hereof, as ſome ſuch heavenly diſcovery, or giving any approbation thereunto, that God by them ſometime derideth it, Eſay.44.25. & 47.13. and ſometime diſſwadeth and condemneth it, as an heatheniſh practice, not befitting his people to heed; as here, ſo elſe-where, Deut.18.10-14. from the Prince of the air therefore, it may juſtly by this mans own grounds and grants, be deemed to have proceeded at firſt by him, taught the heathen that were ruled and ſwaied by him; and from them, together with the worſhip of them in their idols, conveyed unto Gods own people; for what of further obſervation he ſubjoyneth, to omit, that thoſe ridiculous principles muſt firſt be made good, ere any obſervation can be grounded upon them: the like did the Heathen Magicions report of their charms, and other ſuperſtitious divinations by the flight of fowls, and from the bowels of beaſts; to wit, that obſervations had been made of them, for many hundred of years. See Pliny l.28.c.2. and this and thoſe may well go together, one with the other unto him, that was the firſt founder of them, the father of lies, John 8.44.

and be not diſmaied at the ſigns of heaven] As if the event of things, or the iſſue of your affaires depended upon them; which thoſe fond ſtar-gazers bare people in hand, and took upon them thereby to determine and foretell, what good or bad ſucceſs mens deſigns ſhould have, Eſay 47.12,13. Howbeit, ſigns there are of two ſorts; firſt, naturall, and ordinary, the ſtars themſelves being ſet in the skie, to diſtinguiſh the times and ſeaſons of the year; to which may be added, the conjunctions of them one with another, or oppoſitions of them one to another, whence the eclipſes of ſome of them, at ſome time do proceed; and theſe are thoſe ſigns, which comming in a conſtant courſe, and continued tenor, (in regard whereof men skilfull therein, are able either going backward, to tell how it hath been with them for thouſands of years paſt, or looking forward how it will be for as many, if the world it ſelf ſhould ſo long continue:) God would not have his people to be affected or affrighted with, as if in regard of them, or from them, any evill in the ſucceſs of their affaires could betide them: other ſigns there are extraordinary, in dreadfull apparitions, beſides the ordinary courſe of the creature, by which the Lord doth ſometime give notice unto his people, of his diſpleaſure, and warning of enſuing wrath; and theſe for the heathen are diſmaied at them]. Or, rather, though the heathen be diſmaied at them. Though they be ſo ſily or ſuperſtitious, as to be therewith thus affected, yet ought ye not ſo to be. So is the particle very frequently uſed, in our verſions alſo not ſeldome expreſſed, Gen.8.21. Joſh.17.18. Pſal.23.4. Eſay 12.1. Dan.9.9. Mic.7.8. Hab.3.17.

V. 3. For the cuſtomes of the people are vain] Heb. The ſtatutes, or, ordinances of the people; (that is, thoſe courſes of his nature, which people of ſeverall countries herein concurring do, as if it were ſome ſacred or divine ordinance, very preciſely and ſuperſtitiouſly obſerve) vanity it; that is, are each of them exceeding vain, as vain as vanity it ſelf; and a matter therefore very ill-beſeeming ſuch as profeſs themſelves to be Gods people, as did the Jews then, and as Chriſtians at this day do, to be taken and carried away, with ſuch frivolous and ridiculous fancies and fopperies: the pronoun, for the verb ſubſtantive, as Chap.6.16,28. the abſtract, for the concrete, as ver.15. Eccl.11.8,10. and the ſingular diſtributively joyned with the plurall, as Chap.5.8.

For one cutteth a tree out of the foreſt, (the work of the hands of the workman) with the axe.] From their Aſtrology, he paſſeth to their idolatry; and theſe two, ſay ſome, he joyneth together, becauſe thoſe Eaſtern people had a conceit, that the images of thoſe celeſtiall bodies which they worſhipped, had a ſecret efficacy conveyed unto them from thoſe celeſtiall bodies, whom by and in them they adored. But the connexion to me, ſeemeth to be apparent from the context it ſelf: yee muſt not be affraid of the ſigns of the heavens, though heathen ſo be, for their courſes are full of folly and vanity; and that they are ſo, doth further appear by their idols, which though they either made themſelves, or cauſed to be made by ſome other, yet they worſhip and ſtand in awe off. The words would rather be read without any parentheſis, A tree is cut down out of the foreſt, for the work of the hands of the carpenter, or, carver, with the axe; that is, for the carpenter to exerciſe his handy-work on it with the axe; for the axe here ſeemeth not to be mentioned, as the inſtrument of felling the tree, but of framing the image out of the wood, or timber of it. So that here, the ſorines and baſeneſs of their images is intimated, by the matter of it, a piece of wood; the maker of it, a poor man that worketh upon it for his penny, and the inſtrument wherewith he frameth it, his axe. See the like, Eſay 40.20. & 44.12-17. Heb. a tree cutteth he it out of the foreſt; the verb uſed indefinitely, and moſt fitly therefore expreſſed by the paſſive: as, he planteth an aſh; for, an aſh is planted, Eſay 44.14. the pronoun redundant, as Eſay 8.13. & 45.9. the particle for ſupplied, as ver.9. Mal.2.5. of the word rendred workman, See on Eſay 40.20. of axe, Eſay 44.12.

V. 4. They deck it with ſilver and with gold] Or, It is decked: the verb being taken indefinitely, as ver.3. Heb. make it fair, or, beautifull: to add ſome grace to it, having no beauty otherwiſe of it ſelf, but what by ſuch means they give it, See Eſay 40.19. & 46.6.

they faſten it with nails and with hammers, that it move not] Or, it is faſtened with nails and with hammers, as before; that is, as ſome, the joynts of it, one to another, that they may not fall aſunder; but the image he ſpeaketh off, ſeems carved out of the main trunk or timber of the tree, ver.5. as others, the ſilver and gold plates to the woodden ſtock, that they may fit cloſe to it: but he ſeemeth here to ſpeak only of ſuch woodden Gods, as were only made beautifull, with ſome leafe-ſilver and gilt; of others afterward, ver.9. and others therefore rather, to the wall pillar or poſt, that it is nailed to, that it may ſtand faſt and not ſtagger, (ſo the word properly ſignifieth, Eſay 28.7. Neh.2.10.) and fall. See Eſay 40.19. & 41.7. & 46.7. Heb. and it ſhall not (as Chap.9.1,2.) ſtir, or, ſtagger; as before: Goodly Gods, about whom ſo much coſt muſt be uſed to made them handſome, ſo much care muſt be taken, as with children to keep them from a fall.

V. 5. They are upright as the palm-tree, but ſpeak not] They ſtand bolt upright like a palm, or a pillar, and cannot move or bend; or they ſtand upright, as one that ſtandeth up to ſpeak, but are not able to utter ought, Pſal.115.5. & 135.16.

They are upright] Heb. They are firme work, or, maſſy matter, carved out without joynts, as works of maſſy metal beaten out of a main piece. So the word is commonly taken, Exod. 25.18,31 36. the pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive, as ver.3.

as a palm-tree] That groweth ſtraight and even up to the top, without knots or boughs, skaled only, and the flaggy leaves, which are the only branches of it; at the top of the trunk, or, as a pillar; for ſo the word alſo is uſed, Cant.3.6.

they muſt needs be born, becauſe they cannot go] Heb. bearing born they ſhall be; or, carrying they are carried; which ſome underſtand, of their carrying them about in their ſolemn proceſſions, either in chariots, or on mens ſhoulders: but it may be underſtood more generally, of bearing them from place to place; either at the firſt ſeating of them, or upon any occaſionall removall. See Eſay 45.20. & 46.1,7.

becauſe they cannot go] Pſal.115.7. much leſs help, or hurt.

be not afraid of them] No more then of the ſigns of heaven; though theſe ſottiſh people fear as well theſe, as thoſe, ver.1.

for they cannot do evill, neither alſo is it in them to do good.] Heb. they will not, or, ſhall not, do evill; but the verb is taken potentially, as Chap.2.23,32. See Eſay 41.23.

V. 6. Foraſmuch as there is none like unto thee, O Lord; thou art great, and thy name is great in might] Unto theſe vain and baſe idols, the Prophet oppoſeth the true God, (whom he turneth his ſpeech unto) as indeed in regard of his incomparable might and majeſty, alone worthy of all fear and dread, Pſal.86.8-10. & 89.7,8. & 145.3. Heb. from none being like thee; the particle in a cauſall notion, as Chap.4.6. That which ſome ſuppoſe to have reference, unto what went before, ver.5. concerning the inabiſity of idols, to do good or evil; becauſe not like to the true God: but others rather to what followeth, ver.7. concerning reverence and due regard to be given unto the true God; as ſhewing the cauſe, why he ought to be ſo reverenced and regarded.

V. 7. Who would not fear thee, O King of Nations?] Theſe words make up an entire ſentence with thoſe of the former verſe: and might therefore not unfitly be annexed unto them. Of the title therein given unto God, together with the ground of it. See Mal. 1. 14. Rev.15.4. Pſal. 47.7. and 103. 19.

for to thee doth it appertain] Or, ſince that (as Chap. 8.14.) it agreeth to thee; as Gen.34.15,22. fear and reverence ſorteth and ſuiteth well with thee, not with them; the noun ſupplied from the verb foregoing, Pſal.76.7,11. & 89.7. or, as ſome; the kingdome, implied in the word, King, 1 Chr.29.11, 12. Mat.6.13. but the former rather, this being the cauſe of that.

foraſmuch as among all the wiſe men of the nations, and among all their kingdoms, there is none like unto thee] Heb. for in all the wiſe of the nations, and in all their kingdoms, becauſe none being like unto thee: the particle in a cauſall notion, as before, ver.6. and there is a two-fold particle; either the one being redundant, but added for the more emphaſis, or ſome ſupply to be made, as ſome conceive, rendring it; for among all the wiſe of the nations, and in all their Kingdoms, thou art great, or the greateſt; becauſe there is none like unto thee: and he mentioneth the wiſe ones and the Kings, ſaith the Rabbine, becauſe the wiſer ſort among the heathen knew well enough, that there was but one ſupream power, and if they worſhiped any other, it was but as mediators between him and them; and that no Kingdome was perpetual, but Gods alone: and Kings that converſed with, or made uſe of ſuch, knew as much alſo, Dan.4.3,32,37. But I concur rather with thoſe, who conceive theſe two to be mentioned, the rank of wiſe, and of royal, (for it is Kingdome, not Kingdoms) becauſe of theſe two ſorts, the heathen uſed to deifie after their death; ſome for their wiſdome, ſome for their royalty. See Eſay 46.1. Chap.50.2. among either of which, either for wiſdome or proweſs, there is none comparable to God, 1 Sam. 2. 2. Pſal. 18.31. 1 Cor.1.25. 1 Tim.1.17. & 6.15. And to cut off theſe difficulties for matter of ſyntax, I ſuppoſe the words may well thus be rendred; even among all the wiſe of the nations, and all their royalty, becauſe there is none like unto thee: the firſt particle being taken not as a cauſal, but as a note of aſſeveration, or amplification, as the ſame is apparently found ſo uſed, Eſay 32.13. Kingdome, or, royalty, for, Kings: as, government, for, governours, Eſay 60.17.

V. 8. But they are altogether brutiſh and fooliſh:] Heb. And (as Chap.9.13,14.) in one they are brutiſh and fooliſh. Which the Jewiſh Commenters expound with reference to the wiſe men mentioned ver.7. that though in other things they were wiſe, as in acknowledging one ſupream power; yet herein they dealt fooliſhly, in teaching the people to worſhip ſtocks and ſtones, Rom.1.21—23. But this expoſition narroweth the text too much: our verſion rendreth it, altogether; and a form ſomewhat like it, is uſed for, together, Ezr.2.64. & 3.9. and would ſo be rendred Pſal.82.7. but the word one, is there maſculine; here, feminine: nor is the particle the ſame. I ſuppoſe it may well be rendred, at once: and ſo it is rendred, though, as I conceive, not aright, Prov. 28. 18. but ſo the very ſame form is uſed in the Greek, Luk. 14. 18. which will come well home to what our Verſion exhibiteth: for it is as if he had ſaid, not of ſome ſpecial ones, but of all idolaters in general; as ver.14. (unto whom with their folly, and brutiſh ſtupidity, he now returneth again) Take them all at once, or altogether, they are even as brutiſh and ſenſeleſſe, as thoſe very ſtocks and ſtones they worſhip, Pſal.115. 8, & 135.18. See Eſay 41.29. & 44.18——20.

the ſtock is a doctrine of vanities.] Either that which the idols teach, is nothing but meer vanity and falſhood; as they are ſaid to be teachers of lies, Hab.2.18. Zach.10.2. (and images then ſurely ill Laymens books) or thoſe things, that are taught and received, or believed concerning them, are moſt vain things, as the idols themſelves are, ver.3, 14. See Eſay 44.10, 20. Heb. word for word; an inſtruction of vanities, wood it is: the pronoun poſitive for the verb ſubſtantive; as ver.3. for all the coſt beſtowed upon it, and pains taken about it, it is but a piece of wood, or a ſtock ſtill. See Eſay 10.15. and 44. 15——17.

V. 9. Silver ſpread into plates is brought from Tarſhiſh, and gold from uphaz, the work of the workman, and of the hands of the founder.] He cometh in this paſſage, to the better and richer ſort of their idols, and ſuch as were moſt ſumptuouſly and gorgeouſly ſet forth: becauſe with ſuch ſottiſh people are wont to be more taken, then with thoſe ſory ones of wood or ſtone; and ſheweth, that theſe alſo, for all their rich materials and their bravery, were as far from any divine power or efficacy as the former.

Silver ſpread] Heb. drawn out, or, dilated: beaten out into plates, Exod.39.3. Numb. 16. 13. to cover their images with, that were not all of maſſie metal. See Eſay 40.19.

from Tarſhiſh] From beyond ſea; from the Ocean; either Eaſtern, or Weſtern, or, as ſome, from Tarteſſus, Ezek. 27. 12. See on Eſay 2.16. & 23.1.

gold from uphaz] Where the fineſt gold ſeemeth in thoſe times to have been, Dan.10.5. this ſome ſuppoſe to be the ſame with Paz, or Phaz, Job 28.17. Pſal.21.3. See on Eſay. 13. 12.

the work of the workman] Or, for the work of the workman; as ver.3. for the carver, or carpenter there; ſo, for the founder, or goldſmith here, to exerciſe his art and skill upon: for the word hath here reference not to the work done about it f[illegible]merly, in beating it out into plates, but unto the work further to be done, for the framing of an image out of it. See Eſay 40. 19.

and of the hands of the founder] The former word was more general, comprehending any skilful workman, working in wood, ſtone, or metal; this thoſe that work in the laſt onely, and ſuch properly as exerciſe their skill thereupon, by caſting melting, and refining with fire, alluded to, Pſal.66.10. Mal.3. 2, 8.

blue and purple is their clothing] With garments of ſuch coſtly ſtuff, and gorgeous colours, they were wont to adorn, and ſet out their idols. See Eſay 30.22. Ezek. 16. 17, 18. Hoſ. 2. 3.

blew] Stuff, either ſilk, linnen, or woollen, died of that colour; which the Jewiſh Doctors of greateſt repute ſay was a sky-colour: yet ſome of them ſay it was died with a worm. Others, with the bloud of a fiſh; and thoſe ſuppoſe it to have been yellow; theſe blew. The Greek rendreth it an hyacinth, or violet colour: whatſoever colour it were, it appeareth that it was much worn by Kings, and great Perſonages, Eſt. 8.15. Ezek.23.6. and uſed for hangings in Kings Courts, Eſt. 1.6. it was uſed alſo about the furniture of the Tabernacle, and the Prieſtly robes, Exod.25.4. & 26.21. & 28.5, 6. and about the Temple, 2 Chr.2.7, 14.

purple] For the term here rendred purple, the Rabbines tell us it was a red colour; and ſome of them, that it was that which the Arabians call kermes, we crimſon, whence ſome gather that this was the forrein name of that which the Hebrews called tola, and tolaat: whereof, ſee on Eſay 1.18. but of this latter conceit, there is no probability; for theſe two are diſtinctly mentioned in the work of the Tabernacle, where the one is rendred purple, and the other ſcarlet, Exod. 25. 4. and howſoever it be true, that theſe two come ſo neer the one to the other, that they ſeem to be uſed ſometime promiſcuouſly; whence the garment that the ſouldiers in mockage arrayed our Saviour with, is termed a ſcarlet robe, Mat.27. 28. and a purple robe, Joh.19.3. yet there is no doubt, but that they were two diſtinct colours, the ſcarlet, or crimſon died of a grain, or a worm, or both, which in theſe times we call cocchionele, (ſee on Eſay where before) the purple of the bloud, or mature of a ſhell-fiſh, at this day out of uſe and unknown. See Pliny in his natural hiſtory, l. 9. c.36. Howſoever, that this purple was anciently the wear of Kings and great perſons, appeareth not by the ſacred records alone, Judg. 8. 26. Eſt.8.15. Luk.16.19. Rev. 17. 4. but by the forrein hiſtories of ſeverall nations of all ages, ancient and modern. The former and this, are oft joyned together in divers of the places above-recited, and very frequently in relating the work of the Tabernacle, and the Prieſts veſtments.

they are all the work of cunning-men.] Heb. the work of wiſe ones all they, or they all wiſe, for, cunning, or skilful; as Chap. 9. 17. a defect of the ſubject, as before, ver. 7. and the pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive; as ver.3, 8. Both the idols themſelves, and all their furniture, are the workmanſhip of ſory people, unable to give any deity, or divine power and efficacy unto them, which they have not themſelves. See Eſay 37. 19.

V. 10. But the Lord is the true God] To this baſe traſh he again oppoſeth Jehovah, the true God, a God of another manner of might and majeſty, power and efficacy, then theſe ſory counterfeits. Heb. And (as ver.8.) Jehovah God truth; rendred generally, as our Verſion in the margent exhibiteth it, a God of truth; as he is alſo expreſly termed, Pſal. 31. 5. But it may ſeem that it ſhould rather be rendred, Jehovah God, or God Jehovah is truth: for the word Eleohim here is in an entire, not in a contracted form, the uſual form of regiment; and albeit, the entire form be ſometime found uſed in ſtead of the contract, as Pſal.80. 7, 19. yet the commanding accent here making a ſtay at Eleohim, ſeems to require the other reading. Howſoever the attribute of truth, in the abſtract here aſcribed unto God, as to the Word of God, Pſal.119.142. Joh.17.17. doth intimate God to be, not true onely, but even truth it ſelf. Nor do I conceive that this term is here given unto God, as in that place of the Pſalm, in regard of his veracity and fidelity, becauſe he ſpeaketh nothing but truth; he cannot ly, Num.23.19. 1 Sam.15.29. Tit.1.2. and he keepeth his truth for ever, Pſal.146.6. but in regard of the verity and truth of his eſſence; as of our Saviour it is ſaid, that he is true God, or very God, 1 Joh.5.20. and ſo is the phraſe uſed, 2 Chr.15.3. the God of truth, for, the true God; that is, no counterfeit one, Phil.2.6. whereas thoſe idols were all of them but meer counterfeits, having nothing of the nature or eſſence of God, Chap.16.20. Gal. 4. 8. Nor do I miſlike therefore the judgment of that learned man, who readeth it with ſupply of the prepoſition, in truth; Jehovah is God in truth, or truly; as Deut.13.14. & 17. 4. where the word ſo taken, the copulative ſhall not need to be inſerted.

he is the living God] As Pſal. 42. 2. both endued with life himſelf, and being the fountain of life, Pſal.36.9. from whence all life is in any kind or degree derived unto any: whereas theſe idols are but dead things, ver.14. and in that regard inferiour unto the worſt and meaneſt living creature, wholly deſtitute of all life themſelves, and altogether unable either to impart it in the leaſt and loweſt degree unto others, or to maintain and preſerve it in others, Eſay 46.7. as the name of God is here in a plural form, ſo is the attribute alſo plural; as the like, Joſh.24.19. and the ſame, Chap.23.36.

and an everlaſting King:] Heb. a King of eternity; as, Father of eternity, Eſay 9.6. another manner of King then either theſe idols, whom they call their Kings: ſee on Chap.8.19. or their Kings, that ſet them up to be worſhipped, Dan. 3. 1. for theſe are both of them corruptible creatures, ver.11, 15. Pſal. 146. 3, 4. they and their Kingdoms ly down in the duſt together, Eſay 14.9-19. Ezek.32. 18-32. whereas the true God is an eternal King, and his Kingdom endureth for ever, Pſal.93.2. & 103.19. & 146.10. Dan.4.34. 1 Tim.6.15, 16.

at his wrath the earth ſhall tremble,] Or, trembleth. His angry look, his frown alone, is able to ſhake the main body of the earth, Pſal.18.7. & 68.8. & 77.18. & 104.32. & 114.4, 6, 7. Hab.3.6, 10. Other manner of works, and effects, then their poor puppets were able to produce.

and the nations ſhall not be able to abide his indignation.] Heb. ſhall not ſuſtain: the verb is ſo uſed, chap.6.11. Amos 7.10. but it is here in a potential notion, as the like, ver.5. All the people of the world being put together, are not able to ſuſtain his wrath, that is, either to withſtand his wrath, or to ſtand before him when he is wroth, Pſal.76.7, 8. Eſay 40. 15-17. Dan. 4. 35.

V. 11. Thus ſhall ye ſay unto them] Or, on this wiſe. This verſe is conceived not in pure Hebrew, but in the Syrian dialect, in which alſo ſome other paſſages and portions, either in, or of the Scriptures of the Old Teſtament were penned (ſee Dan.2.4. Ezr.4.7.) becauſe that was moſt generaly ſpoken among the Chaldeans, with thoſe eſpecially at Babylon: whence it is obſerved, that when Cyrus had taken Babylon, he cauſed it by his Heraulds to be proclaimed thorow the whole city in the Syrian tongue, that every man, upon pain of death, ſhould keep within dores, Xenophon, l.7. In this Dialect, therefore, is this paſſage conceived, that they might have it at hand to ſtop the Chaldeans mouthes in their own language, when they ſhould be enticing of them unto idolatry; for neither did the Chaldeans well underſtand the pure Hebrew, nor the Jews the Syrian, which both the Aſſyrians, and the Chaldeans alſo uſed. See Eſay 36.11. chap.5.15. The Chaldee Paraphraſt ſeems to intimate, that this ſhould be the ſum of a letter; that Jeremy ſhould write and ſend unto the Jews, that abode in captivity at Babylon; wherein ſome other control him, and ſay, That it was written rather before-hand to confirm them againſt they came thither. And true, indeed, it is, that this is not that Epiſtle that Jeremy is reported to have ſent unto Babylon, unto thoſe that with Jehojacin or Jeremiah, had been carryed thither before the reign of Zedekiah, 2 King. 24.14-16. See chap. 29. But it may well be, nor is it unlikely, that this prophecy was penned as well for the behoof and uſe of ſuch as were there already, as for thoſe afterward that were, with Zedekiah, to be brought thither, chap. 52.11,15. See ver. 1.

The Gods that made not the heavens, and the earth, even they ſhall periſh from the earth, and from under theſe heavens.] The peculiar character of the true God, to be creatour of heaven and earth, Gen. 1.1. Pſal. 146.6. Eſay 37.16. & 44.24. & 48.13. Rev. 10. 6. and it is obſerved, that it was an uſual ſpeech among ſome Greeks that held one ſupream deity, Let him that ſaith he is God, make another world; and ſome of the ancient Fathers adviſe Chriſtians living among Paynims, to ſay, when they would preſs any ſtrange God upon them, Let him make me a world, and he ſhall be my God.

the gods] In the heathen language, as the gods, Dan. 2.11. and, a ſon of the gods, Dan. 3. 25. ill rendred there, the ſon of God, whom the heathen King never dreamed of termed Gods, becauſe by the heathen ſo called and accounted, Pſal. 96. 5. 1 Cor. 8.5,6.

that made not the heavens and the earth] Or, the heaven and the earth; as it is rendred, Gen. 1. 1. See Eſay 1.2. the word uſed for the earth in this former branch is no where elſe found in Scripture: and it ſeemeth to have been a term of ſome peculiar dialect in the Syrian language, that uſed to turn Ayin into Koph, as the other Syrians did the Hebrew Tſade into Ayin; whence from the Hebrew the word for earth in the next clauſe. Howbeit the Jewiſh Doctors, as one of them here telleth us, make it an Hebrew term, to make up four names in Hebrew for the earth, very fondly applyed by them to the four Seaſons of the year, the Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter; and that here reſpecting this laſt.

even they ſhall periſh] Theſe words, even they, are neither of them in the text, nor are needful here, unleſſe the pronoun in the cloſe of the verſe be fetched in hither, which then muſt be omitted there. See ver. 15. Eſay 2.18.

from off the earth] A divers word here from that before, deduced from the Hebrew, and of more frequent uſe in the Syriack, Dan. 2. 35, 39. Ezr. 5. 11. from off the earth; as Pſal. 21.10.

from under theſe heavens.] Or, this heaven; or, as ſome, heaven, ſimply: if we read it, this heaven, it muſt be underſtood, as if they ſhould ſpeak it, pointing up to heaven; as ſome ſuppoſe that our Saviour did to his own body, when he ſaid, this Temple, Joh. 2. 19. this heaven, which the true God made, ſee the like, chap. 7.4. but ſome of note refer the word, theſe, not to the heavens, but to the counterfeit gods, Theſe ſhall periſh from off the earth, and from out of the regions under heaven; for ſo they, with ſome others, ſupply the text here; as Deut. 9. 14.

V. 12. He hath made the earth by his power;] After this admonition, by way of advice, given them, which ſome Interpreters incloſe as a parentheſis, he returneth again to relate ſome of thoſe works of the true God, wherein his incomparable might, wiſdome, and majeſty, moſt appeareth. The whole paſſage contained in this verſe, and the next, is found the ſame, chap. 51.15,16. The firſt, is the creation of the earth aſcribed to his power. The next, his ſetting the habitable part of it, aſcribed to his wiſdome. The third, his conſtitution of the heavens in a way of wondrous skill. The laſt, his diſpoſition of wind and rain, with the appurtenances attending either. He hath made. Heb. making; or, It is he, (to wit, the the true God, ver. 10.) that made; as Pſal. 146.6. and ſo in the enſuing branches.

the earth] The main body and bulk of it, Gen. 1.1.

by his power] A work requiring an infinite power to produce a frame of that vaſt and immenſe bigneſs, Chap. 31.37. Job 38.4-6.

he hath eſtabliſhed the world by his wiſdome] Or, that hath prepared, (as the word is rendred, Pſal. 147.8.) or, ſetled (as Pſal. 65.6.) the world (that is, the habitable part of the earth, Pſal. 24.1. & 93.1. See Eſay 13.11. & 14. 16.) by his wiſdome. So diſpoſing in moſt wiſe manner of it, that there might be a conveniency, and ſufficiency of room, for the ſons of men, and other land creatures, to dwell upon; That which at firſt he did by cauſing the waters to quit a great part of the ſurface thereof, and retire unto ſuch places as he had aſſigned them; and afterward, from time to time, as by continual keeping them within the bounds before aſſigned them, ſo by framing in-lets for them into the land, and diſpoſing of ſprings and ſtreams, for the ſeveral parts thereof, whereby it might become the more uſeful, both for man and beaſt, Gen. 1. 9. Job 38.8-11. Pſal. 104.6.11,34. Chap. 5.22.

and ſtretcheth out the heavens by his diſcretion] Or, and that ſtretcheth out the heavens by his underſtanding, or skill; for ſo the word properly ſignifieth, Exod. 31.3. Job 12.13. Prov. 21. 30. an unconceiveable meaſure of art and skill hath the Lord ſhewed in framing and drawing out that goodly canopy of the sky, ſo gloriouſly adorned, and embelliſhed, with unexpreſſable variety of reſplendent lights, over the whole circumference of the earth, Eſay 42.5. & 44.24.

V. 13. When he uttereth his voice, there is a multitude of waters in the heavens;] Heb. at his giving a voice; (of which phraſe, ſee on chap. 2.15.) Or, at the voice of his giving; or, at whoſe giving out a voice (the poſſeſſive, for the relative, as Eſay 48.2.) That is, ſay ſome, at his will, at his pleaſure; for his Word is his Will, and his Will his Work, Pſal. 105.31. & 115. 3. & 135.6. Dan. 4.35. But others rather, when he cauſeth it to thunder, (for that is commonly called Gods voice in Scripture, Pſal. 18.13. & 77.18. Exod. 20.18. and is, indeed, a moſt majeſtical voice, Pſal. 29.3-10. & 66.33. which ſome wretched Tyrants have endeavoured to imitate, ſome of the moſt impious of them have been exceedingly afraid of) abundance of rain uſually followeth, Job 37.2-5. or, as ſome render the words, there is a noiſe of waters (And the word may ſignifie either, ſee Eſay 63.15.) in the heavens, that is, in the air; as Pſal. 8.8. & 18.11. See 1 King. 18.41.

and he cauſeth the vapours to aſcend from the ends of the earth] Or, and that, or, who, cauſeth, &c. a defect of the relative; as Chap. 8.13. See the ſame, Pſal. 135.7. Chap. 51.19.

vapours] Heb. elevations; it is rendred clouds, Prov. 25.14. but the Jewiſh Criticks tell us, it is more general, comprehending as well dry exhalations, the matter of wind; as moiſt vapours, the matter of rain.

to aſcend] Or, go up; becauſe unleſſe they go up, no rain can come down, Gen. 2.5,6.

from the ends of the earth] Not, as the Jewiſh Doctor, from thoſe remote Northern, and Southern parts, which he conceiveth not to be inhabited; but from all parts of the earth, eſpecially from the Sea at the Lands-end, Pſal. 72. 8. to water the Earth, and to feed and maintain the Springs; from which the rivers ſtream, Pſal. 104.10,13. & 147.8. Eccl. 1.7. Howbeit, we need not to render the words therefore with the Jewiſh Critick; after that he hath made the vapours to go up; though the copulative ſeemeth ſo uſed, Lev. 9.22. or with another learned late Writer, to read the text, As (that is, ſo ſoon as he giveth out) his voice, whereby to ſet a multitude of waters in the heavens, he cauſeth the vapours to go up from the end of the earth. The ſame reaſon they give both, becauſe the aſcent of vapours goeth before rain: but the copulative in its proper ſenſe may well ſtand here; for the Prophet doth not tye himſelf to any ſuch ſtrict method here, as that one member of his diſcourſe muſt be ſo riverted into another, but relateth the ſeveral works of God apart one from another, and this, together with thoſe that follow, in that order, as to his hand he found them recorded by the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 135. 7.

he maketh lightnings with rain] So is the particle uſed, Ezr. 1.5. & 2.63. yet in this very paſſage, Pſal. 135.7. it is rendred, lightnings for rain: and ſo it is uſed, Ezr. 10.14. Chap. 7.18. either may well ſtand; for lightning, by rending the clouds, maketh way for rain, which goeth commonly along with it, Job 38. 25, 26. neither of which any idol is able to do, Chap. 14.22. Zach. 10.1,2. nor are the heavens themſelves of themſelves, Job 38.28,34,35. Chap. 14.22.

and bringeth forth the wind out of his treaſures.] Heb. treaſuries, or ſtore-houſes, as 2 Chr. 11.11. Neh. 13.12. Joel 1.17. God hath his ſtore-houſes, as well for wind, as for water, Pſal. 33. 7.

V. 14. Every man is bruitiſh in his knowledge,] Or, as ſome other, by his knowledge; that is, as ſome, man dealeth then moſt bruitiſhly, when he thinketh to do moſt wiſely, Job 11. 12. Rom. 1.22. Or, as others, reſtraining it to thoſe idol-god-makers, they deal moſt bruitiſhly in abuſing their knowledge, that is, their art and skill, to the making of idols, and in giving ſuch honour to that that is of no worth or uſe, Eſay 44.9-20. But others render the words, Every man is become more bruitiſh then to know; that is, then to underſtand and take notice of the palpable folly and vanity of ſuch ſilly courſes as theſe are; they are ſo bewitched and beſotted therewith, Eſay 44. 18. Others again, from knowing, for, more then to know; as, from ſpeaking, for, more then to ſpeak; 1 Sam. 25. 17. from reckoning, for, more then to reckon, Pſal. 40. 5. Or, Every man becometh bruitiſh, falling from knowledge, or having loſt his underſtanding, and his wits, as we ſay; as Hoſ. 9. 1. Thou haſt played the harlot from thy God; that is, falling or departing from thy God. But I conceive the genuine notion and conſtruction of the words to be this; Every man is become bruitiſh for want of knowledge: for this particle oft-times implyeth a defect of the thing ſpoken of. So Pſal. 109.24. My fleſh faileth from fatneſſe; that is, for want of fatneſſe; and Lam. 4.9. thoſe pine away from the fruits of the earth; that is, for want of the fruits of the earth. So the meaning is plain; It is for want of knowledge and underſtanding, that people, all ſort of them, even theſe among the reſt that would ſeem wiſer then the reſt, are become ſo brutiſh, and ſo ſtupid, Eſay 44.18. ver. 8. for what difference is there between a man and a bruit beaſt, when he wanteth that that ſhould diſtinguiſh him from a beaſt? Job 35.11. Of the Heathen-idol-makers and worſhippers he ſpeaketh, whoſe follies he doth here again return unto. See the ſame again, Chap. 51.17.

every founder is confounded by the graven images:] Or, ſhall be confounded, or may be confounded for, or aſhamed of the graven image; which he caſteth to have it afterward graved, and poliſhed, to make an handſome god of it; or, as others, for which he caſteth ſilver plates to cover it with, that it may be more gorgeouſly ſet out: aſhamed of them, at preſent, they may be, and one day ſhall be, Pſal. 97. 7. For as for thoſe learned late Interpreters, that would have the word rendred actively, not is, or may be, or ſhall be confounded, or aſhamed, but maketh confounded, or aſhamed: it is beſide the ordinary uſe of the word; and as I conceive hath no more place here, then in Chap. 6.15. & 8.12. where they alſo ſo render it. Nor do I conceive that the word will wel bear that ſenſe, which ſome other give it here, who render it, is grown infamous; the graven image, for, any at large; as Eſay 42.17. as the molten followeth after.

for his molten image is falſhood.] Heb. his molting; as Eſay 41.29. falſhood, or a ly; as Eſay 44. 20. having nothing of that which they conceive it to have, or attribute unto it. See ver. 8.

and there is no breath in them] Heb. and wind, or, ſpirit is not in them; there is no breath of life in them, Pſal. 135. 17. ſory dead things they are, altogether unlike the living God, ver. 10.

V. 15. They are vanity] Heb. Vanity they, for, are they. See verſ. 3. and the works of errors] Or, a moſt deceitful work; either proceeding from an unſound and erroneous judgment, Rom. 1.28. or, tending to nothing but deceit, and leading into groſs errours, ver. 8. Habb. 2.18. Howbeit, becauſe the verb is uſed ſometime for to mock, or delude; as Gen. 19.14. ſome render it, works of illuſions, or, meer mockeries: ſuch as people are ſtrangely deluded with, 2 Theſſ. 2.11. and deſerve rather deriſion and mockery then fear, or reverent regard, ver. 5.

in the time of their viſitation they ſhall periſh.] As verſ. 11. that is, ſaith the Rabbine, when the day of Babylons viſitation cometh, (ſee the phraſe, Chap. 11.23.) then will God deſtroy her idols together with her, Eſay 46.1. See Jer. 51.18.

V. 16. The portion of Jacob is not like them:] The true God, who is ſaid to be the portion of his people, Deut. 32.9. Pſal. 16. 5. & 73. 26. & 119. 57. is not like unto theſe vanities; but one that is able to protect and ſave his, Gen. 15.1. Pſal. 18.31. & 84.11. Eſay 41.11. & 63.1.

and Iſrael is the rod of his inheritance] They are his poſſeſſion, as he is theirs, Deut. 26.17, 18. Chap. 12.7 Zach. 2.12. a metaphor taken from the manner of the diviſion of land, as by lot and line, or cords, Pſal. 16.5, 6. ſo by rod, or reed, alſo, Pſal. 74.2. Ezek. 48.21.

the Lord of hoſts is his name. So Eſay 47.4. It is he that hath all the creatures in heaven and earth at his command, Gen. 2.1. Pſal. 119.91. Dan. 4.35. See this paſſage the ſame, Jer. 51.19.

V. 17. Gather up thy wares out of the land, O thou Inhabitant of the fortreſſe.] The latter part of this Chapter, as it conſiſteth of a far different ſubject from the former; ſo it ſeemeth to me to be the ſum of another Sermon. See on ver. 1. and the like hereunto, Chap. 22.20. In it the Prophet from God threatneth this people with extream diſtreſs and diſperſion, for the brutiſh ſtupidity of them and their Rulers, ver. 17-22. himſelf bitterly bewaileth that heavy doom, and maketh ſuit for mitigation of ſo ſore a ſentence, ver. 19, 23-25. In the entrance into it, the Prophet calleth upon thoſe his Country-men that abode in any place of ſtrength, to get in whatſoever they had in any place abroad, as the uſual courſe of people is in times of invaſion, Judg. 9.51. Chap. 4.5, 6. and 8.14. So rather, then as thoſe, who ſuppoſe it ſpoken to ſuch as had got into Jeruſalem, as adviſing them to pack away from thence, and get them out of the land of Judea; as chap. 6.1. Ezek. 12.3. Mat. 24.16, 18. Luk. 17.31.

gather up] Or, withdraw; as 1 Sam. 14.20. otherwiſe, gather up out of the land, ſhould be a complexive form, for gather and get out of the land: as, thou haſt loved my ſoul from the pit; that is, loved and kept it from the pit, Eſay 38.17.

thy wares] Or, merchandiſe; for it cometh from a word that ſignifieth a merchant, Job 41.6. Eſay 23.8. in times of publike invaſion, the manner of ſuch being to betake themſelves, and the commodities they trade in, unto places of moſt ſecurity: put here generally for all goods, cattel, or chattels whatſoever.

out of the land] That is, from the country abroad, where they lye open, and expoſed to pillage and plunder by the enemy.

O thou Inhabitant of the fortreſſe] Heb. Inhabitreſſe: as Chap. 21.13. for in a feminine form the Prophets uſe to ſpeak both of, and unto, companies of people that live as in a body together, in ſome city, or whole country, whence the names of virgin, or damſel, and daughter ſo frequent with them. See Eſay 1.8. & 37.22. & 47.1. Chap. 9.1. This one of the Rabbines reſtraineth unto Jeruſalem the ſtrongeſt fort in Judea; and it may well be, that the Jews there abiding, ſhould hereby among the reſt (for the words ſeem more general) be admoniſhed to get in what proviſion they could from abroad, as expecting a ſtrait and tedious ſiege. But another of them transferreth it to Babylon, as adviſing her to gather together all thoſe ſpoyls, which from other nations ſhe had pillaged, and to betake her to flight with them out of her own country; which all her idols and Magicians could not be able to ſecure againſt the Medes and Perſians her enemies. But this is many miles from the Prophets meaning.

V. 18. For thus ſaith the Lord; Behold I will fling out the Inhabitants of the land at this once; and will diſtreſſe them that they may find it ſo.] Heb. Behold I am flinging; I am out of hand about, by the Chaldeans, to caſt this people out of their land into Babylon, as eaſily and readily as a ſtone is caſt out of a fling, 1 Sam. 17.49. & 25.29. See Chap. 16.14.

at this once;] Or, as at one caſt: not making any long work of it; but ſlinging or flinging them all out at once, 2 Chr. 36.17.

and will diſtreſſe them that they may find it ſo.] The text here hath no more then, that they ſhall, or, may find. The old Latine here inſerteth a negative, rendring the words, that they may not be found: and ſo it ſhould have reference to the term of flinging. I will ſo caſt them out, and in that manner diſperſe them, that they ſhall not be found; as ſtones thrown far with a fling, are not eaſily found. But there is no negative in the text, nor reaſon to inſert it: neither is the verb in a paſſive form. Others underſtand it of the ſtreit ſiege of them in Jeruſalem; I will ſtreiten them that they (that is, their enemies) may find them. Others, I will put them to ſuch ſtreits, or, afflictions, that they may find, and receive the reward of their wickedneſſe. So the Chaldee, and ſome other, that they may find, by diſcovery, the folly and vanity of their former courſes, as alſo of their idols, and other lying helps, that they formerly relyed upon: or, as others laſtly, which to me ſeems moſt likely, that they may find, by woful experience, that Word of God to be true, which they will not now believe, Chap. 5.13, 14. Ezek. 6.10. & 33.33.

V. 19. Wo is me for my hurt; my wound is grievous] One of the Jewiſh Doctors knitteth this verſe by a ſupply thus to the former, I will afflict, or, ſtreiten them, untill they ſhall find, and ſay, Wo is me for my hurt, &c. wherein alſo ſome late Interpreters of ſpeciall note follow him. But ſuch forced connexions ſeem not to do ſo well. I conceive them rather with others, to be the words of the Prophet, either himſelf bewailing, or in the perſon of the people bemoaning that grivous condition, that by their ſecurity and ſtupidity, they had brought upon themſelves, ver. 18.

Wo is me] An ordinary form of lamentation; as Chap. 4.31.

for my hurt] Heb. my breach; as Chap. 6.14. & 14.17.

my wound is grievous] Heb. my ſtroke. So Chap. 14.17. & 30.12. Nah. 3.19.

but I ſaid, Truly, this is a grief; and I muſt bear it]. Some conceive theſe to be the Prophets words ſo delivered in the perſon of the people, as teaching them to take notice of, and acknowledge Gods hand in, their ſufferings, and humbly ſubmit to the patient enduring of it: not unlike that, 1 Sam. 3.18. Lam. 3.17, 18. Mic. 7.9. and they render the words, But I ſaid, Surely this is my infirmity, (that which God hath allotted me) and I muſt, or, will bear it. Others take it as ſpoken by the Prophet of himſelf, as making account ſometime that he ſhould overcome his grief; but finding himſelf now unable to maſter it, Chap. 8.18, 21. or in the perſon of the people with himſelf, as having ſometime made account that it was an infirmity, that might well enough be born, a fit of ſickneſſe that would eaſily away again; but that they found it now to be far otherwiſe, Chap. 6. 14. & 8.16. and theſe read the words, Yet I ſaid, It is but ſuch an infirmity, and I ſhall bear it; or, that I may bear.

But] Heb. And: as Chap. 10.10. or, Yet: as Chap. 7.26.

I ſaid] Or, I thought with my ſelf; I made account; as Pſal. 39.1. & 77.10.

Truly] Or, Surely: as Pſal. 73.1. as if it were a note of certainty: or, Yet, or, But; for it ſeems here rather to be a note of diminution: as ver. 24.

this is an infirmity] The pronoun demonſtrative for the verb ſubſtantive; as Pſal. 25.12. ſome render it, my infirmi- ty, as Pſal.77.10. but the pronoun poſſeſſive is not here.

and I will bear it] Or, which I may bear: as Chap.5.22. or, that I may bear it, as chap.14.19.

V. 20. My Tabernacle is ſpoyled, and all my cords are broken] By Tabernacle, or, Pavilion, is here meant the city of Jeruſalem; or the ſtate of Judah: as Eſay 33. 20. & 54. 2. See Chap.4.20.

cords] Wherewith the curtains of their tents, or pavilions were faſtened to the pins, or ſtakes: all the ſtayes of city and State. See Eſay 3.1,2. & 33.20.

my children are gone forth of me, and they are not] They are gone into captivity, and are as if they were not, being paſt hope of all recovery; as Chap.31.15.

there is none to ſtretch forth my tent any more, and to ſet up my curtains] He perſiſteth in the ſimilitude of a tent or tabernacle, conſiſting of curtains erected, or ſtretched out, by help of poles, cords and pins, or ſtakes. See Eſay 54.2. Chap. 4. 20. & 49.25. There is none that may help to raiſe and ſet up my ſtate again. See Eſay 51.18.

and to ſet up] Or, or to ſet up: as Chap.9.12.

V. 21. For the Paſtors are become brutiſh, and have not ſought the Lord:] The main cauſe and ground of all theſe evils, the brutiſhneſſe and ſtupidity that was generally among them, (for if the Rulers were ſuch, the people much more. See Chap. 5.4, 5.) and their totall neglect and diſregard of God.

For] Or, Becauſe; as chap.6.13. or, For, becauſe: for the particle hath ſometime a two-fold notion included in it; as Deut.31.20. Chap.4.30. & 12.5.

Paſtors] Rulers, as well Civil, as Eccleſiaſtical, both Magiſtrates and Miniſters, Eſay 56.10,11. So is the word taken, chap.3.15. Num.27.17.

have not ſought the Lord] Or, ſeek not the Lord; do not look after him, Pſal.14.2. Eſay 9.13. Zeph.1.6. neither conſult at all with him, or take advice from him, Eſay.31.1.

therefore they ſhall not proſper;] Becauſe they neglect him, without whom nothing can proſper, Eſay 30.1-6. & 54.15, 17. chap.2.37.

and all their flocks ſhall be ſcattered] Heb. their paſture, (ſo the word conſtantly ſignifieth, Pſal.95.7. Eſay 49.9. Hoſ.13. 6.) for, their ſheep: or, the ſheep of their paſture; or, their paſture ſheep, as it is more fully expreſſed, Pſal.74.1. & 79.13. & 100.3. Chap.23.1. Ezek. 34.31. See Chap. 25. 36. The people committed to their charge, ſhall all be diſperſed. See Chap.13.26. chap.50.6,17. Zach.13.7.

V. 22. Behold the noiſe of the bruit is come, and a great commotion out of the North country, to make the cities of Judah deſolate, and a den of dragons.] The Prophets words, as if he ſaw the Chaldean army marching forward to invade and over-run Judea, and heard not the report of their approach alone, but the noiſe that they raiſed before them. See chap.4. 7,19,20. Heb, a voice of hearing: as, a word, or, ſpeech, of hearing; that is, a word, or, ſpeech, heard, Heb.4.2. or, of report, or, rumour, (as 1 Sam.2.24. chap. 49. 14, 23. that is, a loud rumor, or, a loud report: as, a voice of cry, for, a loud cry, Chap.8.19.) behold it cometh; as Ezek.21.7. See Chap. 4. 16. & 8.24.

and a great commotion] Or, concuſſion; or, ſhaking: as Eſay 14.16. Hagg.2.7,21. or, noiſe; ratling of chariots, and clattering of arms; for thereunto it is uſually applyed, Eſay 9.5. & 29.6. Chap.47.3. Ezek.3.12. Nah.3.2. See chap. 8.16.

out of the North-country] Or, of thoſe that come from the North country; that is, from Babylon, chap.1.15. & 5.15. & 6.22. and ſome ſuch ſupply muſt be to make the ſentence entire.

to make the cities of Judah deſolate, and a den of dragons.] See Chap.9.11.

V. 23. O Lord, I know that the way of man is not in himſelf; it is not in man that walketh to direct his ſteps.] The Prophet turneth his ſpeech unto God; acknowledging that warlike affairs do not depend upon the power or policy of man; but upon his providence and diſpoſal: and that therefore, though the Chaldeans were never ſo powerful and ireful; yet it is not in their power to do what they liſt, but what he is pleaſed to give way unto; who is able for all their power and policy, wrath and rage, to reſtrain them at his pleaſure, and to turn them which way he will, Pſal.78.10,12. Prov. 21.1. Eſay 37. 29. Some conceive it to have reference to a ſecret hand of God, in directing Nebuchadnezzar to ſhape his courſe toward Jeruſalem, when he was at a ſtand, and in debate about another way, Ezek.21.21. They that expound it as concerning free-will, are beſide the meaning of the text.

that the way of man is not in himſelf] Heb. that to man his way is not; or, mans way is not his own; he is not maſter of his own way: his way; that is, his own way; as Eſay 53.6.

it is not in man that walketh to direct his ſteps] Heb. it is not to man walking, (or, the man that walketh; it is not a thing in his power,) and to direct, or, ſettle his goings: that he ſhould (as Eſay 53.2. Mal.1.9.) directing direct, or ſetling ſettle, that is, with any certainty direct, or, order (as Eſay 9. 1.) that is, ſettle and eſtabliſh (as 2 Sam.7.12.) his goings: to carry them on, and give ſuch ſucceſſe to them, as himſelf pleaſeth, Pſal. 37.23. Prov.16.9. & 20.24. & 21. 30,31. of ſuch defective, yet emphatical, forms of ſpeech, ſee Eſay 59.13. chap.6.11. for the verb is an infinitive, in a gerundial notion.

V. 24. O Lord, correct me, but with judgment; not in thine anger, leſt thou bring me to nothing.] The Prophets ſupplication in behalf, and in the perſon of his people, as if ſeeing the approach of Nebuchadnezzars forces he ſhould ſay, Lord we know well, that this army could not come in upon, nor prevail againſt us, but by thy permiſſion and thy proviſion; but ſince that thou art reſolved thereby to chaſtiſe us, we beſeech thee in wrath remember mercy, Habb.3.2. and with ſuch moderation correct us, that we may be able to bear it, 1 Cor.10, 13. not with ſuch extream anger, as utterly to conſume us, Eſay 57.16.

but] Or, Yet. See ver.19.

with judgment] Heb. in judgment; that is, with moderation, in meaſure, Eſay 27,8. Chap.30.11.

not in thine anger] Pſal.6.1. not according to that which our ſins, whereby we have provoked thee unto wrath, Eſay 64.5. Chap.7.18,19. do moſt juſtly deſerve, Pſal.103.10,14.

leſt thou bring me to nothing.] Heb. diminiſh me, Ezek. 29. 15. ſo diminiſh me, that I ſhould no more be a nation. See Chap.30.11. & 46.26.

V. 25. Pour out thy fury upon the heathen that know thee not, and upon the families that call not on thy name:] Let the fierceneſſe of thy wrath be ſet againſt the Heathen, that do not acknowledg or worſhip thee, and not againſt thine own people, Pſal.74 1,2. See the ſame, Pſal.79.6.

pour out] See Eſay 42.25. So Chap.6.11. & 7.20. Lam.2. 4. & 4.11.

thy fury] Or, wrath, as it is rendred, Pſal. 79. 6. See Chap.4.4.

know thee not] As Exod. 5. 2. or, acknowledg thee not, as their God; as Eſay 10.11. & 37.10.

families] That is, countries, or, Kingdoms: as chap.1.15.

that call not upon thy name] That do not acknowledge thy Soveraignty in ſeeking to thee by prayer, Pſal.14.4. & 53. 4. invocation a ſpecial note of ſuch acknowledgment, Pſal. 50. 15. & 116.13. 1 Cor.1.2. 2 Tim.2.9.

for they have eaten up Jacob, and devoured him, and conſumed him, and have made his habitation deſolate.] Turn the rigor of thy wrath againſt them to take vengeance upon them for the miſchiefs that they have done to thy people, Pſal. 79. 7, 10, 12.

for] Or, becauſe; as ver.21.

eaten up Jacob, and devoured him, and conſumed him] Heb. eaten Jacob, and eaten him, and conſumed him. Which would rather be rendred, eaten up Jacob, even (as Chap.6.5,19.) eaten him, and conſumed him; that is, ſo eaten him up, that they have clean conſumed him. See Chap.50.7,17.

have made his habitation deſolate.] This ſome of the Jewiſh Interpreters underſtand of the Temple; and would have it read in the future: They will lay the Temple waſte. But this forced expoſition is needleſſe, when the words are of themſelves plain enough: as Jacob, for, his poſterity Gods people: ſo, his habitation, taken collectively, for the land and cities of their abode. See Chap.8.16. & 9.11. ver.22.

CHAP. XI.

Verſ. 1. THe word that came to Jeremiah, from the Lord, ſaying,] See Chap.1.1. The time when this meſſage was delivered by God to the Prophet, as well as of thoſe foregoing, Chap. 10. 1,17. is uncertain; they might very well be much about the ſame time. See ver.9.

V. 2. Hear ye the words of this Covenant] He is willed to mind them of the covenant which in Moſes his time, they had with God entred into, and to call upon them for the due obſervation of it; withal taxing them and their anceſtors for the wilful breach of it, and obſtinate perſiſtance therein, ver.8— 10. for which they are threatned with deſtruction, ver.11-17.

Hear] That is, conſider, regard, obey, obſerve: as verſ. 3, 7.

the words] Or, matter therein contained: as Chap.7.27. & 36.32.

of this covenant] Long ſince plighted between God and them, Exod.24.3,8. Deut.29.10-22. and it is not unlikely, that the Prophet held out the book, or volume of the Law, wherein the covenant was engroſſed, and recorded, then in his hand.

and ſpeak unto the men of Judah, and unto the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem]

Jeruſalem] Heb. and ye ſhall ſpeak, or, ſpeak ye; as 2 King.2.6. whence ſome ſuppoſe that this meſſage ſhould be delivered unto Jeremy, to impart unto the Prieſts, withal charging them, according to their duty, Deut.31.12,13. & 33.10. to acquaint the people with it. And they therefore render the whole verſe thus; Hear ye, to wit, O Prieſts, the words of the covenant, that ye may (as chap.10.18.) ſpeak them to the men of Judah, &c. But the words following, And ſay thou, or, thou ſhalt ſay, ver.3. ſeem to control this. Others rather, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors conceive, that ſome other Prophets of thoſe times were to joyn with Jeremy, in the delivery of this meſſage, either Zephany, if it were in the dayes of Joſiah, Zeph 1.1. or Uriah, if it were in the dayes of Jehojakim, chap.26.20. But I ſuppoſe we need not have recourſe unto either of theſe helps. The Scripture doth oft paſſe from number to number; as it doth apparently in this place: for in the next verſe the Charge is in the ſingular given to the Prophet, unto whom alone doubtleſſe this meſſage was delivered, ver.1. but the plural number is here uſed, as I conceive, to intimate, what God would have his Miniſters and Meſſengers preſſe eſpecially upon his people, to wit, the keeping of covenants with him; and to let the Prophet know, that this part of his meſſage was no other, then others in his place, were from time to time, as occaſion was, to be dealing in with his people. See ver.4.

V. 3. And ſay thou unto them;] Heb. And thou ſhalt ſay (as ver.2. Ye ſhall ſpeak) unto them; to wit, to the men of Judah, and to the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, ver.2. See Eſay 1.1.

Thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael] The Lord God that made his covenant with Iſrael, Deut.5.2.

Curſed be the man that obeyeth not the words of this Covenant] Heb. Curſed be the man; evil betide him, Deut.27.26. that heareth not, as Pſal.81.11,13. So ver.2. the words of this covenant. See ver.2.

V. 4. Which I made with your fathers, in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt from the iron furnace,] Egypt is called an iron furnace, or, furnace of iron: as here, ſo Deut. 4. 20. 1 King. 8. 51. in alluſion unto ſuch furnaces, wherein oar or metal is melted and tried, Eſay 48.10. and it is called an iron furnace, not in regard of the matter, whereof ſuch are wont to be made; for furnaces and melting pots are not made of metal, but of earth, Pſal.12.6. but in regard of the oar or metal therein to be melted; a ſtronger matter being required for the making of ſuch a furnace, wherein not gold or ſilver, tin or lead, but iron, either oar or metal, is to be melted and caſt, and a far fiercer fire to be uſed about it, then with any of thoſe other. God hereby intimating the grievouſneſs and extremity of that affliction, which this people ſuſtained in Egypt, and out of which he delivered them, by bringing of them from thence, Exod.1.13,14. Of the reſt of the verſe, ſee Chap.7.22.

ſaying, Obey my voice, and do them, according to all that I command you; ſo ſhall ye be my people, and I will be your God;] Exod.19.5,6. Lev.26.3,12. See Chap.7.23.

do them] To wit, my commandements, or the things contained and contracted on your parts in the covenant, ver.2,3. See ver.6. the pronoun for the noun; as Chap.4.9. and a paſſage from number to number; as ver.2.

V. 5. That I may perform the oath which I ſware unto your Fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day.] Heb. That I may confirm, or eſtabliſh, the oath, which I ſware unto your Fathers, by making it good unto them, Deut.7.12. & 8.18. & 9.5. Pſal.105.9,10. The end of Gods requiring obedience on their part, not for his own behoof, but for their benefit, that he may do them good.

to give them a land flowing with milk and honey;] Abounding with plenty of all good things, as well for neceſſary ſuſtenance, as for pleaſure alſo and delight, Exod. 3.8,17. Lev. 20.24. Num.13.27. Deut.6.3. & 11.9.

as it is this day] Or, as this day appeareth. So Deut. 8. 18. Chap.44.6.

Then anſwered I, and ſaid, So be it, O Lord.] Heb. And (as Chap.4.10.) I anſwered (as Eſay 21.9.) and ſaid, Amen, O Lord: which ſome expound with reference to Gods command, as if he had ſaid, Lord, what thou haſt enjoyned me, I will do, and excite others of my rank, Prieſts and Prophets, likewiſe, unto the doing of the ſame. Others conceive it, as ſpoken in the perſon of the body of the people, as obliging themſelves under a penalty unto the due obſervation of Gods commands; as Deut.27. 15,26. Pſal.106.48. I conceive it rather to be the ſpeech of the Prophet, ſpeaking in his own perſon, taking hold of, and having reſpect unto, thoſe gracious words in the cloſe of his ſpeech, and putting his Amen thereunto, as if he had ſaid, So Lord let it be, that this people being careful to keep covenant with thee, may enjoy ſtill that land, which thou didſt by oath bind thy ſelf to ſettle them in. See Chap.8.6.

V. 6. Then the Lord ſaid unto me;] Heb: And; as ver. 5. which need not here be altered. Or, Again; as Chap.1.11. For it is a repetition of the former injunction.

proclaim all theſe words in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem;]

Proclaim] As Chap.7.1.

in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem.] See the reaſon, ver.13.

Hear ye the words of this Covenant, and do them.] Action and practice the main end of hearing, Deut.6.3. See ver.2.

V. 7. For I earneſtly proteſted unto your Fathers, in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, even unto this day, riſing early and proteſting, ſaying, Obey my voice.] See Chap. 7.23,25.

earneſtly proteſted] Heb. proteſting proteſted, 1 Sam.8. 9. as, charging charged, Gen.43.3.

I brought them up] As Chap.2.6.

riſing early] See Chap.5.8. & 7.13.

V. 8. Yet they obeyed not, nor enclined their ear; but walked every one in the imagination of their evill heart.] See Chap. 7. 24.

therefore will I bring upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do; but they did them not.] Heb. and (as Chap.7.28.) I brought upon them: and ſo it would be rendred as ch.27.7. I brought upon them all thoſe menaces or judgements threatned in the Law againſt the willfull tranſgreſſors and violaters of the covenant plighted between me and them, Deut.28.16. & 29.19,20. a two-fold defect of the pronoun after the verb; as Gen.43,24. Chap.9-10.

V. 9. And the Lord ſaid unto me;] Or, Again; or, Moreover; as ver.6.

A conſpiracy is found among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jeruſalem.] Becauſe it might be ſaid, what is all this to thoſe that now live, if their fore-fathers in former ages brake covenant with God, and ſmarted then for the ſame; God therefore telleth the Prophet, that the main body of the Jewiſh people, and thoſe of Jeruſalem, among the reſt, had made a general revolt from him, and betaken themſelves unto thoſe idolatrous courſes, that their fore-fathers took before them. And hence the Jewiſh Commenters, not without ſome good probability, gather, that this Prophecy was delivered in the reign of Jehojakim; what time they fell back from Gods ſervice and worſhip, reſtored with them, and ſetled among them, in the days of good Joſias. See chap.14.1.

A conſpiracy] Or, combination, or, league, 2 King.15.30. & 17. 4. a defection from God, as by a general conſent of all ſorts of people thorowout the Land and State. So Ezek.22.25. a conſpiracy among the Prophets.

is found] That is, ſay ſome, is detected: as, the King of Aſſyria found conſpiracy in Hoſhea, 2 King. 17.4. and, as a thief is found, when he is taken in the manner, Jer.2.26. but it may after the uſual phraſe of Scripture, be underſtood ſimply, A conſpiracy is found, that is, there is a conſpiracy. See the like, Eſt.1.5. Eſay 13.15. Luk.17.18.

among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jeruſalem] Heb. in the man of Judah: but man, for, men; as Eſay 5. 3. among the main body of the Jewiſh State: for whereas one of great note underſtandeth it of a conſpiracy, between the men of Judah, and thoſe of Iſrael the ten tribes: as if, though being at enmity otherwiſe, they had now conſpired together in a revolt from God, he ſeemeth not to have obſerved the preciſe terms of the text: in, for, among; as Eſay 66,19.

V. 10. They are turned away to the iniquities of their fore-fathers, which refuſed to hear my words;] Being not warned, nor amended, by thoſe judgments, which for their diſobedience befel them, Chap.7.26. ver.8. See Chap.13.10. Heb. they have returned upon, or, unto; as Prov.26.11. with 2 Pet.2.22. Chap. 6. 9.

Fore-fathers] Heb. firſt fathers: firſt, for, former; as Eccl.7. 10. Eſay 61.4. 1 Tim.5.12. Rev.1.4.

and they went after other gods to ſerve them:] This thus rendred, may ſeem to be meant of their anceſtors. But it ſeems rather by the emphatical expreſſion of the pronoun in the text, to have reference unto thoſe that then lived, the preſent conſpirators and late revolters; and would therefore, to take away all ambiguity, be rendred, and they, or they alſo (as chap. 3. 6.) are gone after other gods. See Chap. 7. 9. and 13. 10.

the houſe of Iſrael and the houſe of Judah, have broken my covenant which I made with their Fathers.] As well Judah, as Iſrael; the other ten tribes, have broken covenant with mee. See Chap.3.6,8. & 5.11. Howbeit, it followeth not hence, that the conſpiracy mentioned, ver.9. was there intended between the two houſes, as that Learned Writer ſuppoſeth to be from this clauſe made good. Of the two houſes, See on Chap.3.18.

V. 11. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord] The ſin in breach of Covenant was before, ver.9,10. the denunciation of judgment for it, now followeth.

Behold, I will bring evill upon them, which they ſhall not be able to eſcape.] I will deal with them, as I did with their Fathers before them, ver.8. Heb. I am bringing, (as Chap.4.6. & 6.19.) evill to them, (for, upon them, as Ezek.7.16.) which they ſhall not be able to get out off, as Pſal.88.8. and ſuch a redundancy, as ver.12. that ſhall entangle them in ſuch difficulties and perplexities, as they ſhall not be able by all their might or ſlight, to wind themſelves out off. See the like, Mic.2.3.

and though they ſhall cry unto me, I will not hearken unto them.] I will deal then with them, as they deal now with me; I will then refuſe to hear them, as they now refuſe to hearken to mee, ver.10, Zach.7.11,13. Heb. and they ſhall cry unto me, and I will not hearken unto them; the like Syntax, See Eſay 58.9. Chap.7.27. & 8.4.

V. 12. Then ſhall the cities of Judah, and the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, go and cry unto the Gods unto whom they offer incenſe.] Let them ſeek then for ſuccour to them, whom now they ſerve, Deut.32.37,38. Judg.10.14. See Chap.2.28.

Then] Heb. And, as ver.5.

ſhall go and cry] Or, let them go and cry; as, let them ariſe, Chap.2.28.

the cities of Judah] The Inhabitants of them, as Eſay 40.9. to which they offer incenſe.] Which they worſhip; one part of religious worſhip put for the whole, as Chap.7.9. Heb. which they are burning incenſe to them; an uſuall redundancy, as Pſal.1.4. Prov.2.15. and before, ver.11.

but they ſhall not ſave them at all in the time of their trouble.] Heb. and (as Chap.10.10.) they ſhall not ſaving ſave them, (that is, be able at all to ſave them, as Eſay 45.20.) in the time of their evill, of that evill, which I am bringing upon them, ver.11.

V. 13. For according to the number of thy cities were thy Gods, O Judah, and according to the number of thy ſtreets, O Jeruſalem, have ye ſet up altars to that ſhamefull thing, even altars to burn incenſe unto Baal.] See Chap.2.28.

that ſhamefull thing] Heb. ſhame, as Chap.3.24. Hoſ ..10.

burn incenſe to Baal] See Chap.7.9.

V. 14. Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up a cry or prayer for them.] See Chap.7.16. So Chap.14.11.

for I will not hear them, in the time that they cry unto me for their trouble] As ver.11. not thee for them, as Chap.7.16.

V. 15. What hath my beloved to do in my houſe] Theſe words are by divers diverſly expounded. One of the Jewiſh Commenters maketh them the Prophets ſpeech, ſpeaking of God, What ſhould my beloved (that is, God, whom I love, as Eſay 5.1.) do any longer in my houſe? to wit, his Temple, which I as conſtantly frequent as mine own houſe: So Anna, Luk.2.37. One of ours, (who ſeemeth to have taken his riſe from the Rabbine) maketh them Gods ſpeech ſpeaking of the Prophet; What ſhould my beloved (thou my dear Prophet) do any more in my houſe? frequent my Temple any longer, there to preach to this people, or to pray for them, when as there is no good to be done, either upon them by the one, or for them by the other, ver.14. Another of ours expoundeth them as a ſpeech of God the Father, ſpeaking of Chriſt his beloved ſon, Mat.3.17. & 17.5. Eph.1.6. who had wont to manifeſt himſelf, in his word and power in the Temple, Exod.23.20. & 33.14. Ezek.1.26. and 10.2. Mal.3.1. But the Chaldee, whom another of the Jewiſh Commenters concurreth with, underſtandeth it as ſpoken by God of his people. What hath my people, whom I heretofore ſo entirely affected, and ſo dearly loved, Eſay 5.1. Chap.12.7. Hoſ.3.1. & 11.1. Mal.1.2. any more to do in mine houſe, when ſhe hath ſo grievouſly played the harlot? Eſay 1.12,21. Chap.7.9-11. And the entendment of it ſeemeth to be, to cut them off from hoping to prevail with God by prayer, and repairing for that end to his Temple, where he had promiſed to hear them, while they continued loyall with him; or when they returned ſincerely to him, 2 Chr.7.14,15. Heb. What to my beloved in my houſe? as Eſay 22.16.

ſeeing ſhe hath wrought lewdneſs with many] Heb. in her committing vileneſs with many; a defect of the prepoſition, as well before the verb, as the noun; when ſhe taketh ſuch vile and lewd courſes with ſo many, either wicked ones, Heathen, whom ſhe joyneth with, as ſome; or idols rather, after whom ſhe goeth on whoring, ſo others: as if ſhe were ſome common ſtrumpet; what ſhould ſhe do any more in my houſe, to make my houſe no better then a brothel-houſe? Chap.7.30. See Chap.2.20. & 3.1,2. ver.13. There is in the Hebrew a paſſage from gender to gender, whereof See Chap.2.14. A Learned late Writer would have it rendred, her doing; (that is, her doings, or deeds; the verb for the noun) is extreame lewdneſs, O ye great ones: the article in a vocative notion, as Deut.32.1. Joel 1.2. let others conſider of it. I concur with the former.

and the holy fleſh is paſſed from thee] Theſe words have almoſt as many interpretations, as Interpreters. Some by holy fleſh, underſtand the faithfull people among them clean waſted and gone, Pſal.12.1. Eſay 64.6,7. Chap.5.1. Mic.7.1. fleſh; for, people, as Pſal.65.2. Eſay 40.5. to paſs away; for, to periſh, and be gone, Job 6.15. & 9.26. Some the circumciſion, which they bare in their fleſh, as a ſeal of Gods Covenant, and the ſign of an holy ſeed, Gen.17.11,13. Ezr.9.2. which by reaſon of their profaneneſs and ungodlineſs otherwiſe, was become as uncircumciſion unto them, Chap.9.26. Rom.2.25,29. The moſt of the fleſh of ſuch beaſts, as were ſlain for ſacrifice, to be offered either unto idols, or unto God. And among thoſe that thus take the word fleſh; ſome read the words, as uttered by way of interrogation; ſome as by way of enunciation: of thoſe that follow the former manner of reading, one expoundeth them of their idolatrous ſacrifices, the fleſh whereof, ſaith he, is called holy, by a contrariety of ſpeech, as unholy and impure; as the Greek ἅγιος, and the Latine ſacer, is ſometimes uſed; and the Hebrew Kaddeſh, Lev.6.29. Deut.22.9. but herein I ſuppoſe this Author goeth alone, and ſo I leave him. Others of them, and ſo the Ancient Greek, and Old Latine, and thoſe many that follow either, underſtand it of the exerciſes offered to God in the Temple, called fleſh of holineſs, as Hagg.2.12. as ſanctified by the altar on which it was offered, Mat.23.19. and they render the words ſhall, or, can, the holy fleſh cauſe thy wickedneſs to paſs away from thee, wherein thou doeſt glory? do ye imagine, that your ſacrifices are able to expiate your ſins, when ye are ſo far from being humbled for them, that ye glory in them, See Chap.7.9,21. But this expoſition the words will not bear, for the verb is not hear in an active or tranſitive, but in a ſtanding or immanent form or notion; it ſignifieth not to put away, but to paſs away; and ſo the beſt Interpreters reading the words enunciatively, render them; the holy fleſh hath paſſed, or, is paſſed away, from thee. Which ſome expound of their utter neglect of Gods altar, and the ſacrifices to it belonging, which they diſregarded and no more looked after, then as if they were matters that had never been injoyned them, as 2 Chr.28.24. Eſay 57.5,6. but this ſeems not ſo probable. Others rather, that their devotions and holy performances, were all paſt away, in regard of any acceptance they found with God, or benefit that redounded thence to themſelves; See Eſay 1.11-15. and 66.3. Or, that they were ſo profaned, that the holineſs of them was utterly gone; though holy themſelves, yet not holy to them, Hoſ.2.13,14. Tit.1.15. or, laſtly, that they had no more right now to the holy fleſh, then the Prieſts daughter that had played the harlot, or joyned her ſelf to a ſtranger, Lev.21.9. & 22.12. The laſt of theſe I beſt like of. Howbeit, I ſhall crave leave after all this variety, to ſubjoyn mine own thoughts: the words in the text run thus, and the holy fleſh, they ſhall paſs away from upon thee, or, with thee; or, in plainer terms, from thee, as 2 Chr.33.8. compared with, 2 Kings 21.8. and the meaning, as I take it, is; the holy fleſh of your ſacrifices, which ye now ſo profane, ſhall be wholly taken away from you; the Temple wherein they were to be offered, being utterly defaced and deſtroyed, See on Eſay 29.1. this cometh freely from the words without force, only I would for and, put, therefore; ſo is the copulative oft uſed and rendred, verſ.11. Chap.1.17. & 2.19. & 3.3. & 6.11. & 7.14, 16. therefore the holy fleſh ſhall paſs away from thee: as having reference as well to the wickedneſs before mentioned, as to her delight in it, or ſecurity under evills denounced or imminent, in the next words related; there is in the text a noun ſingular, fleſh, joyned with a verb plurall in relation to the ſacrifices, the fleſh whereof was intended: ſo Eſay 25.3. the city of the terrible nations ſhall fear: whereas the city is ſingular, the verb fear plurall; and a paſſage as before from gender to gender, ſo from perſon to perſon, not unlike thoſe, Chap.2.6,7. & 5.19. & 6.17. and ſo ver.16. and both theſe irregularities, each one of the readings and interpretations before mentioned acknowledg, as well as this now given.

when thou doeſt evill then thou rejoyceſt.] Heb. when thine evill, or, becauſe when thine evill, then thou rejoyceſt; which ſome underſtand of evill of ſin and wickedneſs: ſo moſt Interpreters; thou are ſo far from ſorrow for ſin, and repenting thereof, that thou rather rejoyceth and glorieſt therein, as Prov.2.14. yet ſome underſtand it, of the evill of penalty and affliction, procured by, and inflicted for ſin, as ver.12. and they read the words, when thine evill is at hand, then doeſt thou rejoyce; that is, when thou art admoniſhed of thoſe evill courſes, and haſt warning given thee of evils approaching for the ſame, thou ſlighteſt all admonitions, and letteſt light by all warnings, and giveſt thy ſelf to nothing but ſenſuality and jollity, as Eſay 22.12,13. This latter I encline unto. See Chap.5.3. only whether of the twane we take to, I ſhould conceive the particle prefixed here to include, as oft it doth, a twofold notion, as Exod.18.16. Chap.4.30. & 10.21. & 12.5.

and ſhould therefore render it, becauſe when thine evill is, or, thou art in thine evill (be it of ſin or penalty) then thou revelleſt it; See Eſay 22.2. The ſumme of the whole verſe then is this, What hath my people to do any more in my Temple, ſeeing that with ſo many idols, they in moſt vile manner pollute themſelves? therefore ſhall the ſacred rites be all ſhortly taken away from them, the rather, becauſe that notwithſtanding thoſe calamities, that for theſe their wicked courſes, they were told would ſhortly ſeize upon them, yea had ſeized upon them in part already; they go on ſtill in following their delights and their jollity, and take nothing to heart.

V. 16. The Lord called thy name a green olive tree, fair and of goodly fruit.] What was before intimated of Gods love to his people, is here more particularly expreſſed, in the fruits and effects of it, together with the evill likewiſe before hinted, which God for their wicked and unthankfull carriage towards him, was now reſolved to bring upon them.

The Lord called] Or, The Lord that called; as, the Lord that planted, ver.17. a defect of the relative, as Chap.6.20. & 8.13.

called thy name] That is, had ſometime called thee, as Eſay 8.3. call his name, for, call him; and, called thee, that is, made thee, as, the Lord of the whole earth ſhall he be called, for ſhall he be, Eſay 54.5. and, thy land ſhall be called married, that is, thy land ſhall be married; as in the ſame place it is expounded, Eſay.62.4. See the like, Mat.5.9.

A green olive tree] Or, a freſh and flouriſhing olive tree, Pſal. 52.8. and ſo freſh oile, Pſal.92.10. ſuch a tree, as keepeth his verdure all the year long, as the olive and ſome others do: an emblem of conſtant and continued proſperity and excellency, Pſal.1.3. & 37.35. Chap.17.8. Hoſ.14.7.

fair and of goodly fruit] Heb. fair of fruit of form, or, faſhion; that is, as the Jewiſh Criticks expound it, fair both to ſight and for fruit, or, a goodly tree, with goodly fruit; that which ſome underſtand morally of their weldoing, and good works: but I ſuppoſe to be ment rather, as thoſe other before cited parellel places, of that externall proſperity, flouriſhing condition, and proſperous ſucceſſes, that God had been pleaſed to bleſs that people with, while they continued faithfull to him, See Chap.12.2.

with the noiſe of a great tumult hath he kindled fire upon it, and the branches of it are broken] That God who formerly bleſſed thee, and made thee ſo proſperous and glorious, hath determined to bring in thoſe upon thee, that ſhall waſte and deſtroy thee. There is in the words a paſſage again, from perſon to perſon, as Eſay 1.29. ver.15,18.

with the noiſe of a great tumult] Or, an exceeding ſtreperous, or, tumultuous noiſe: the word is found no where ſave here; and Ezek.1.24. ſuch a noiſe is intended, as ſouldiers are wont to make in the ſtorming of a city, See Eſay.5.29. yet ſome would have the word here uſed, to be of the ſame notion with Millah; that ſignifies a word, or, ſpeech, and ſo our Engliſh rendreth it, Ezek.1.24. a voice of ſpeech; and according to this notion they expound this place, God with a word will kindle a fire. But neither doth that verſion in Ezekiel, ſute well with the other reſemblances there adjoyned, of the ruſhing of many, or, mighty waters, and, the noiſe of a camp: nor doth the epithet great, here annexed to it, ſo well ſort with it in this place; with, as Chap.2.18. or, at, as Num.16.34.

hath he kindled a fire] Or, hath kindled a fire, or, will kindle a fire: the Lord, who called thee, &c. as before; will, now kindle a fire, is now reſolved to ſet thee on fire, to waſte and conſume thee with fire and ſword, Chap.17.27. & 21.14.

upon it] Or, as one of the Jewiſh Criticks rendreth it, in the branches thereof, ſo the word is uſed, Neh.8.15. and it may ſtand not amiſs here.

and the branches of it are broken down.] Heb. and they ſhall break the boughs of it: but the verb is put indefinitely, and is therefore by the paſſive not amiſs rendred, as Mal.1.4. Luk. 12.20. the word rendred branches; uſed alſo, Ezek.31.12. is deemed properly to ſignifie, high and lofty boughs, and by it therefore the Rabbines here would have underſtood, the Kings Palace, and Gods Temple, and ſome others, their Princes, as by the former the people.

V. 17. For the Lord of hoſts that planted thee, hath pronounced evill againſt thee, for the evill of the houſe of Iſrael, and of the houſe of Judah, which they have done againſt themſelves to provoke me to anger, in offering incenſe unto Baal.] In theſe words the Prophet doth more plainly unfold, what in the former verſe he had ſpoken concerning this people, and the evill that was to befall them, in the great change of their eſtate; withall, pointing them to the principall procuring cauſe of it, their idolatrous practices, whereby they had provoked God to wrath, and jealouſie againſt them.

that planted thee] As Eſay 5.2. Chap.2.21.

hath pronounced evill againſt thee] Heb. ſpoken evill againſt thee, or concerning thee; paſſed a doom of penalty upon thee. So Chap.26.13,19.

for the evill of the houſe of Iſrael, and of the houſe of Judah] Which they have learned the one from the other, and wherein the one hath imitated the other; for the houſe of Iſrael is here mentioned only, as the former in defection to idolatry, whom the other afterward did perfidiouſly follow. See Chap. 3.6,10,11.& 5.11.ver.10.

againſt themſelves] See Chap.7.19.or, as others, between them, ſee on ver.9,10. But I conceive it to be no other then an elegant redundancy in the Hebrew language very frequent: the evill that they have done them. So Gen.12.1. Go thee out of thy country, Exod.20.23. Ye ſhall make ye no gods: Make thee a ſerpent, Num.21.9 & Ezek.37.11. we are cut off us. See Chap. 7.8.

to provoke me to anger] See Chap.7.18.

in offering incenſe unto Baal.] As ver.13.

V. 18. And the Lord hath given me knowledge of it, and I knew it: then thou ſhewedſt me their doings.] In the latter part of this chapter, is a diſcovery made by God to the Prophet, of a ſecret conſpiracy, that his own country men the inhabitants of Anathoth, ver.21. had entred into againſt him, ver.18,19. the Prophets reference of his cauſe unto God, who had revealed it to him, with a demand of juſtice againſt them for it, ver.20.and Gods juſt doom paſt upon them, for ſuch their deſign againſt his faithful ſervant the Prophet, ver.21-23.

And] Or, Moreover; as Chap.1.11.& 8.4.

the Lord hath given me knowledge of it] Or, the Lord informed me, or, gave me notice. Heb. made me to know; as Exod. 33.12.

and I knew it] Or, ſo I knew it; as Eſay 59.19.by that means I came to the knowledge of it, which otherwiſe I could not have done; Gods care of his Prophets ſafety. So Act. 23. 12-24.and 26.21,22. A defect of the pronoun it; as Gen. 28.16.

thou ſhewedſt me] Heb. madeſt me to ſee; as 2 King.8.10. a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as before, ver. 15,16.

V. 19. But I was like a lamb, or an ox, that is brought to the ſlaughter;] I was as ignorant of their evil intentions, as a ſheep or an ox, that is leading to be ſacrificed in the Temple, or ſlain in the ſhambles, when he thinketh he is going to the field; or to the fold, the one; to the ſtall, the other, Prov.7.22. Eſay 53.7. neither aware, nor ſuſpicious, of any ſuch evil from them, as not being conſcious to my ſelf of any wrong that I had done them; but having ever ſought their good, Chap.15. 10.& 18.19.

But] Heb. And; as ver.12.

I was] The pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive; as Pſal. 92.10.

a lamb, or an ox] Heb. a ſheep (as Hoſ. 4.16. where a lamb doth not ſo well) an ox: the disjunctive is wanting, as Eſay 38.14. Chap.2.31,32. Howbeit, ſome make the latter to be an attribute onely to the former, rendring it, ſome, a tame, or gentle; ſome, a taught lamb, or a lamb taught and brought to hand; becauſe the root ſignifieth, ſometime, to teach, Job 15.1. & 33.13.and another, a friendly, or familiar lamb; becauſe the word ſeems ſo taken, Pſal.55.13. Mic.7.5. and is in Arabick for a friend frequently uſed. But hereof, let others judge.

that is brought to the ſlaughter] Heb. led to ſacrifice, or to ſlay; as Lev.9.4. a defect of the relative; as Eſay 53.7. Chap. 8.13.

and I knew not that they had deviſed devices againſt me, ſaying;] A neceſſary ſupply, as Pſal.105.15. Chap.4.31. See Chap.18.18.

Let us deſtroy the tree, with the fruit thereof;] The Chaldee, ancient Greek, and old Latine, whom Interpreters, Latine and Greek, not a few, follow, render theſe words, as if the text ſaid, Let us caſt wood into his bread; which they expound, Let us kill him, by mingling the juyce or powder of ſome poiſonfull plant or wood with his meat; becauſe the word, bread, includeth all kind of food, 1 King.4.22. Neh.5.18. or, as ſome, Let us give him wood to eat in ſtead of bread; as the Prophet complaineth in the perſon of Gods people, That God had fed them with ſuch gritty bread, that had rather worn out their teeth, then nouriſhed their bodies, Lam.3.16. Prov.20.17. Let us kill him with hunger, ſtarve him to death, ſhut him up where he ſhall have nothing to feed on, unleſſe he can eat timber and ſtones. But becauſe the word, in the Hebrew, ſignifieth, to deſtroy; as Chap.6.5. Some of them would have the text read, Let us ſpoil his meat with wood: And others, Let us ſpoil wood; that is, make powder of it, to put into, or mingle with his meat. But theſe ſeem all forced readings; and a tree or wood, for poyſon, is no where found: for whereas ſome of them point us to, Exod.15.25. the tales they tell of the tree there mentioned, are of equal weight with this their expoſition of the word in this place. A learned late Writer, rejecting as over harſh and hard, all the former, thus rendreth the text, Let us break wood upon his body. This to fetch about, he telleth us, that the word rendred bread is uſed both in Arabick, and in Hebrew, alſo, ſometime, for fleſh, (or for meat rather in general) Lev.3.10,11.& 21.8. Job 6.8. And another neer to it, for the fleſh of mans body, Job 20. 23. Zeph. 1.17. and the word rendred wood, for a ſtaff; as 2 Sam.23.17. Eſay 10,15. and ſo the meaning ſhould be, Let us beat him, or bang him, with ſtaves, or cudgels, till we break them again. That which to me ſeemeth not unlike that of the Talmudiſts, who expound that ſpeech of Adam, Gen.3.12. The woman gave me of the wood; that is banged me with a bough of the tree, and ſo enforced me to eat; and to ſound no leſſe harſhly, then any of thoſe other. The words run plainly enough in the text, Let us deſtroy the tree with its bread; where by deſtroying, ſome underſtand hewing down, as Deut. 20. 19. by tree, the ſtock of a tree, as Chap.2.27. and by bread, the fruit, that it affordeth for mans ſuſtenance, Gen.1.29. Some other, by tree the ſtalk of a plant, as of corn; and by bread, the grain: whereof bread is made; as Eſay 28.28. and it ſeemeth to have been a proverbial form of ſpeech, Let us deſtroy ſtock and fruit, or ſtalk and grain together; that is, Let us make an utter riddance of him, that nothing of him, or his doctrine, name, mention, or memory, may remain. So the words following expound this branch; for that which ſome of the Ancients dream of Chriſt and his croſſe; and Popiſh Expoſitors prate of Chriſt in the hoaſt, are but frivolous fancies, not at all touching the text.

and let us cut him off from the land of the living] Let us make away this Jeremy, that we may hear no more of him, nor he trouble us any more. So Pſal. 52.5. Eſay 38.10,11.

that his name may be no more remembred.] Heb. and his name ſhall be no more remembred; as Chap.6.5,10. So Pſal.9.5,6. & 83. 4. Some ſuppoſe that it hath ſome reference to the abolition of the name and memory of ſuch as were condemned for falſe Prophets; as they ſought, and thought, to have Jeremy dealt with, See the like, Joh.16.2.

V. 20. But, O Lord of hoſts] The Prophets words, committing and commending his cauſe unto God, and craving juſtice at his hands. So Chap.15.15.& 18.19.& 20.12.

that judgeſt righteouſly] Heb. judgeſt juſtice; as Pſal.9.4. that is, with juſtice; as Pſal.9.8.& 96.13.& 98.9.

that trieſt the reins, and the heart;] Or, ſearcheſt, Chap.6.27. Pſal.7.9. 1 Sam.16.7. 1 Chr.28.9. Chap.17. 10. & 20. 12. Rev.2.23. a two-fold metaphor; the one, taken from the trying of oar or metals, Pſal.26.2.& 66.10. the other, from the bodies of beaſts ſlain for ſacrifice, which being broken up, their entrails ly all open to the eye, Heb.4.12. and they ſeem over-nicely to diſtinguiſh, who by the reins, would have underſtood mens deſires, by the heart, their deſigns.

Let me ſee thy vengeance upon them;] So Pſal.79.10. A ſpeech proceeding, as moſt deem, from a prophetical ſpirit; which ſome therefore would have delivered rather by way of prediction, then of imprecation; as Pſal.59.10.& 92.11. rendring the words, I ſhall ſee thy vengeance upon them; as if he had ſaid, It ſhal ſurely befal them, and I ſhal ſurvive to ſee it: but it ſeemeth rather a direct prayer, or bill of complaint, wrung from him, by the contemplation of their extream malice againſt him, and commenced at Gods Tribunal, craving juſtice againſt them, as againſt perſons grown incorrigible; and that not without ſome mixture of humane frailty, as thoſe other, Chap.15.15.& 17.18.& 18.21-24.

for unto thee have I revealed my cauſe.] Or, do I reveal my cauſe; that is, commit it; as 1 Pet. 2. 23. becauſe thoſe that deſire to commit their cauſe unto any, are wont, before they ſo do, to open it to them, and acquaint them with it.

V. 21. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of the men of Anathoth, that ſeek thy life,] Gods anſwer followeth to the Prophets bill of complaint.

the men of Anathoth] The place of the Prophets ordinary abode. See Chap. 1.1. and theſe ſeem to have been the forwardeſt men in enforming and encenſing the Prieſts at Jeruſalem againſt him, Chap.20.10.

ſeek thy life] Heb. ſoul; as Chap.4.30. & 19.7.

ſaying, Propheſie not in the name of the Lord, that thou dy not by our hands] Propheſie not unto us, in that manner as thou doſt, menacing us with plagues and judgements. So Eſay 30. 10, Amos 2.12.& 7.16. Mic.2.6,11.

that thou dy not by our hand] Heb. and thou ſhalt not dy. So ver. 19. and his name ſhall be no more remembred by our hands; by our means, ſome one way or other; as 2 Sam.21.22. If thou doſt, we will diſpatch thee our ſelves, and never trouble them of Jeruſalem with thee: a deſperate ſpeech, expreſſing a great height of rancor and malice, that they were grown unto againſt Gods Prophet, which in likelyhood they began more openly to diſcover, when they perceived that he had ſome notice of their clandeſtine plots and projects, though they know not how he ſhould come by it.

V. 22. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, Behold I will puniſh them:] Heb. viſit upon them; as Chap.9.25. & 13.21. the complaints and imprecations of Gods Prophets, though proceeding ſometime from heat of paſſion, are oft ſeconded with very dreadfull and diſmall effects. See 2 King. 2. 24.

the young men ſhall dy by the ſword;] To wit, of the enemy, either in fight, or in ſurpriſal of the city, 2 Chr.36.17.

their ſons and their daughters ſhall dy by famine.] A death more grievous then the former, Lam.4.9.

V. 23. And there ſhall be no remnant of them] That which they intended againſt thee, ver. 19. ſhall be inflicted upon them; a juſt retaliation, Deut. 19. 19. Yet ſee on Chap. 16. 3.

for I will bring evill upon the men of Anathoth; even the yeer of their viſitation] Or, when (as Joel 2.20.) I ſhall bring evill (as ver.11.) upon the men of Anathoth (ver.21.) in the yeer (as Neh.1.1.& 2.1.) of their viſitation; what time I ſhall come to take vengeance upon them, ver.22. So Chap.10. 15. & 23. 12.

CHAP. XII.

Verſ.1. R*ighteous art thou, O Lord, when I plead with thee:*] This Chapter, which ſeemeth to have ſome connexion with the former, conſiſteth of three parts, 1. A diſceptation between God and the Prophet, concerning ſome paſſages of his providence, ver.1-6. 2. A renewed lamentation of the ſad condition of Gods people, juſtly deſerted by him, and given up to be deſtroyed for their ſins, ver. 7-14. 3. A denunciation of wrath againſt their bad neighbours, that had joyned with the enemy againſt them; yet with a promiſe of reſtitution, upon their reformation, ver.15-17.

Righteous art thou, O Lord, when I plead with thee:] Or, Righteous art thou (the pronoun ſupplying alſo the place of the verb ſubſtantive: as Ch. 11. 19.) though (as Ch.2.22.& 10. 2.) I ſhould contend with thee; as Eſay 50.8. Chap.2.12. thou wouldſt appear ſo to be, if either I, or any other mortal creature ſhould preſume to enter into debate with thee, concerning the juſtice and equity of any of thy proceedings. A learned late Writer would have it read by way of interrogation, Should I diſpute with thee? and ſo the particle ſeemeth to be uſed, Eſay 29.16.& 36.19. which may here alſo be well admitted. Howſoever, the Prophet fixeth this in the firſt place, as a ground not to be once queſtioned, much leſſe doubted of, or denied, that God is juſt and upright in all his dealings, though weak man be not able to conceive himſelf, or render to others, a reaſon of whatſoever he doth. So Pſal.51. 4. & 73. 1. & 92.15.& 119.75,137.& 145.17. Rom.9.14.

yet let me talk with thee of thy judgments.] Give me leave yet to argue a little with thee, concerning ſome of thy proceedings, that I may be the better informed, and more fully ſatisfied, concerning the ground and reaſon of them. Heb. Let me ſpeak judgments with thee: yet is not ſpeaking of judgments here taken in that ſenſe, wherein this form of ſpeech is uſed, for to paſſe, or execute, a judiciary doom, or ſentence, Ch. 1.16.& Chap.39. 5. nor yet, as ſome other would have it expounded, for ſpeaking moderately; becauſe the word judgment hath ſometime a notion of moderation in it, Chap.10.24. Pſal. 112.5. but for arguing and debating a caſe or cauſe, for the better clearing of truth and right, as in judiciary courſes is wont to be done.

Wherefore doth the way of the wicked proſper?] This conſideration of the proſperity of wicked men, and their thriving by wicked courſes, hath at ſundry times much moleſted the minds of many godly ones. See Job 21.7-13. Pſal. 37.1. & 73.2-12.& 94.3,4. Habb.1. 4,5. and the wicked thereby take encouragement unto evill, and of nouriſhing impious conceits in their hearts, concerning God and his providence, Job 21.14,15. Pſal.10.3-6,11,13.& 14.1.& 94.7,8. Mal.2.17. & 3.15.

wherefore are they all happy, that deal very treacherouſly?] Heb. are all the perfidious practiſers of perfidiouſneſs (that is, ſuch as uſe the moſt perfidious practices, or that moſt of all practiſe perfidiouſneſs. See Eſay 24.16.) at eaſe? (So Lam. 1. 5.) they live at eaſe, and free from troubles, Job 12.6. & 21. 9. Pſal.73.5. Zach.1.11. Chap.48.11. (for that is the proper notion of the word here uſed, Job 3.25.& 16.12.& 20.20. & 21. 23. chap. 49. 31.) the interrogative is ſupplyed from the former branch; as Job 3.11,23.

V. 2. Thou haſt planted them; yea, they have taken root, they grow; yea, they bring forth fruit.] They thrive and proſper as much as may be: a tree may be planted, and yet not take root; and then it cannot ſtand firm, or long continue: it may take root, and yet not thrive or grow, by reaſon of ſome inward defect, or outward accident, as the leanneſs of the ſoyl, or the ſharpneſſe of the ayr; it may thrive and ſhoot up, and yet not fructifie; make a goodly flouriſh with leaves, and bloſſomes,and yet yield no fruit: but the ſtate and condition of the wicked here mentioned,is deſcribed by the reſemblance of a tree,that being ſet in a rich ſoyl, and having taken firm root, thriveth exceedingly and ſhooteth up in height, and ſpreadeth in breadth; and is not onely clad with a garniſh of green leaves,and goodly bloſſomes;but is loaden alſo with great abundance of fair fruit; then all which, what can more be deſired? See Chap.11.16. Ezek.31.3-9. Dan. 4. 11,12, 20—22.

Thou haſt planted them] The ſame God that planteth his people, Pſal.44.2.& 80. 8. doth plant the wicked alſo; that is, aſſign them unto, and ſeat them in the places of their abode; he caſteth out others before them,and planteth them in their room,Deut.2.5 9.12. Act.17.26.

they have taken root] Heb.rooted.So Eſay 40.24.

they grow] In wealth and power,Chap.5.27,28.Heb.go on; as Gen.26.13.

V. 4. How long ſhall the land mourn, and the herbs of every field wither,for the wickedneſs of them that dwell therein?]Concerning the ſenſe of theſe words, there is no great doubt or difficulty: the queſtion is onely concerning the connexion and coherence of them with the reſt of the context: that which moſt Interpreters either take no notice at all of,, or fetch it ſo far about, that firſt to unravel their reſolutions, and then to diſcuſs them, would prove a work over-tedious. I concur with thoſe, who conceive, that in theſe words, the Prophet rendreth a reaſon, why he deſireth to have the proſperity and tranquility of theſe wicked wretches to be cut off, and themſelves removed and taken away, to wit, that the whole land might not fare the worſe for them, and the godly party,among the reſt,ſuffer in thoſe general calamities, that at preſent lay heavy upon the main body of the land, being procured by their impieties.

How long ſhall the land mourn] A land is ſaid to mourn,when it lyeth waſte, ſtript, and deſpoiled of its wonted verdure and bravery, in graſs, corn, plants, and fruits, wherewith it was formerly clad and adorned, whither through extremity of drought, 1 King.17.1. & 18.5. or ſpoyl and havock made of all, by ſtorm and tempeſt, Prov.28.3. or by vermine, Joel 1. 4 & 2.3. or by the irruption of an enemy, Eſay 1.7. as being now in a mourning weed. So Eſay 24.4. & 33.9. Chap.23. 10. Lam.1.4 Joel 1.10. Now this ſome would put off to the waſte that was to be made by the Chaldean Invaſion, chap. 4.20. ver. 10, 11. but they ſhew not how that may conſiſt here with the current of the context. It ſeems rather to be meant of the preſent dearth, by means of a long continued drought lying heavy upon the land at preſent. Whereof,ſee at large, chap.14.1,2.

See Chap.4.25,26. & 9.10. & 14.5,6.

becauſe they ſaid, He ſhall not ſee our laſt end] This impious ſpeech of thoſe wicked ones, ſome underſtand as a denial of Gods providence and preſcience, like that, Pſal.73.11. and they render the words,He ſeeth not our latter end. God himſelf doth not know, what our end ſhall be. Others, as ſpoken in way of preſumption, that whatſoever the Prophets might ſay, God would not bring thoſe evils that they threatned upon them; and theſe render the words, He will not ſee our latter end: he will not ſuffer ſuch an end to be made of us, as they ſay. But I conceive rather, that theſe words were ſpoken by them of Jeremy; though redounding and reaching to God himſelf, whoſe meſſenger he was,and whoſe meſſages he delivered to them; as if they had ſaid, This Jeremy telleth us what at length will befall us, and that all out preſent poſterity ſhall end in extream miſery: but his words are but wind, he will never live to ſee any ſuch matter befall us; we ſhall ſooner ſee an end of him,then he any ſuch end of us. See Chap.5.13. So Gen.19.14.

V. 5. If thou haſt run with the footmen,and they have wearied thee, then how canſt thou contend with horſes?] Hitherto was the Prophets ſpeech to God. Now followeth Gods ſpeech, whether in way of anſwer to the Prophet, or leaving him, directed to the people, is much controverted. Some, both Jewiſh Commenters and ours, conceive it as an anſwer returned to the Prophets expoſtulatory complaint; and either checking him for it,or meeting with the root and ground of it. Some ſuppoſe,that in it God checketh and controlleth the Prophets curioſity and preſumption, in taking upon him to enquire into thoſe things that were far beyond the reach of his ſhalow capacity: and they thus expound the ſimilitude of horſe and foot. If thou art not able to diſcover the privy plots and projects of men, that ſtand on eaven ground with thee,and are ſilly creatures like thy ſelf, as that conſpiracy of thine own Townſmen againſt thee, Chap. 11. 18,19. how is it, that thou takeſt upon thee to ſearch into, or ſuppoſeſt that thou mayſt be able to comprehend the reaſons & grounds of Gods ſecret counſels, concerning the adminiſtration of the affairs of the world? Others, (which is more probable) are of the mind, that the Lord conſidering from what ground this diſceptation of the Prophet proceeded, to wit, from ſome inward diſquiet of mind, that the wrongfull and ſpitefull carriage of his Townſmen had poſſeſſed him with; and animating him unto a quiet and patient undergoing theſe brunts of their malicious demeanure, by intimating unto him, that there were other manner of conflicts and oppoſitions to be dealt with in the further proceſſe of his prophetical function; againſt which he was to arm himſelf. As if he had ſaid, if theſe meaner men of Anathoth, that are but as foot, do ſo moleſt thee, that thou art almoſt tired out with them; how wilt thou be able to bicker with thoſe great maſterful ones at Jeruſalem, that are in regard of them, as horſe to foot? Thus they that underſtand it as Gods ſpeech to the Prophet. But divers others, whereof the Chaldee alſo giveth ſome hint, would have it to be the ſpeech of God to the people; demanding of them, to control and quell their vain confidence and ſecurity, how they will be able to make their part good with the Chaldean, ſo potent an adverſary, when as far meaner then they have at divers times put them to ſo much trouble. It ſeems to have been a proverbial form of ſpeech among them; as one not unlike it,is found in Greek Authors, A footman running with a Lydian-chariot: and, foot fighting with horſe in a plain.

if thou haſt run with the footmen and they have wearied thee,] Or, if (as Deut.12.21. Eſay 36.7.) when thou runneſt with footmen they weary, or, tire thee. See the like conſtruction, chap.7.27. & 8.4. & 11.11.

then how canſt thou contend with horſes?] Heb. and (as chap. 8.9.) wilt thou mingle, or, cloſe, (as Chap.22.15.) with horſes? that is, with horſemen; as Deut.20.1. for whom we alſo uſe the word horſe: the verb is in a potential notion: as Chap.2. 23, 32.

and if in a land of peace, whereunto thou truſtedſt, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the ſwelling of Jordan?] The Inſertions in this our verſion, are taken from the former part, all ſave that of the relative, which is not unfrequent; as Chap.8.13. & 11,19. Yet ſome inſert a divers clauſe,thus rendring the words, and if when thou truſtedſt in a land of peace, thou waſt deceived, how wilt thou then do in the riſing of Jordan? For ſenſe they come much to one; I ſuppoſe our verſion the better. Theſe apply it to the Prophet; who, if in his own native habitation among his kindred and acquaintance, he did not deem himſelf ſafe, or free from oppoſition and moleſtation, he had leſſe reaſon to look for a quiet life among thoſe haughty and lofty ones at Jeruſalem. Others apply it to the Jewiſh State, which if it were ſo much annoyed with her bad neighbours the Moabites, Ammonites, and Edomites that were allied to her; ſhe would much leſſe be able to ſecure her ſelf, when the Chaldean forces, like a ſtrong ſtream of ſome great river, ſurrounding its banks, ſhould break in upon her. See the like, Eſay 8.7,8. & 59.19. chap. 46.7. & 49.19. and ſome of theſe omitting thoſe former inſertions, thus read the words; and though (as Eſay 30. 20.) in a peaceable land thou mayſt confide, or, be ſecure; yet (Heb. and; as chap.7.26.) what wilt thou do in the ſwelling of Jordan? though thou ſeem now ſafe while all is as yet quiet with thee; yet thou wilt find it to be otherwiſe, when a potent adverſary ſhall over-run thy country.

in the land of peace] Or, a land of peace; that is, ſay ſome, a land of friends, or, a friendly land: as, a man of peace, for, a confederate, or, a friend, Pſal. 41.9. others, a land of peace; that is, a quiet, and peaceable land: as, an habitation of peace, for, a peaceable habitation, Eſay 32.18. for that which a great man hath; a land of peace, for, a land of no defence, or, ſtrength, to withſtand or keep out an enemy: as, a land of war, for, a land well fortified and fitted for war, a land of defence; ſeems to carry here no probability at all with it.

In the ſwelling of Jordan] Which in harveſt time uſeth to riſe up above his banks, and overflow all the lower grounds bordering upon it, Joſh.3.15. 1 Chr. 12.15. and there want not, who ſuppoſe ſome alluſion here to Nebuchadnezzars forces that were to paſſe over Jordan in his expedition againſt Judea; and others again to the lions and leopards that had their dens thereabouts; or in mount Lebanon, where the head of it was, Cant.4.8. chap.49.19. & 50.44. Zach. 11.3. But theſe things ſeem over-far fetched.

V. 6. For even thy brethren, and the houſe of thy father, even they have dealt treacherouſly with thee; yea, they have called a multitude after thee:] The men of Anathoth, thy Countrymen, allies and neereſt kindred, though they make fair ſhews of love and good liking to thee outwardly, yet are covertly plotting thy death, enforming and exclaiming to the State againſt thee, and enciting them to work thy ruine, chap. 11. 21. & 20.10. or if it be referred not to the Prophet, but to the people, thy confederates, O Judah, and in regard of deſcent, thy brethren, the iſſue of Lot, Pſal. 83.8. the Moabites and Ammonites, Gen. 19.37,38. and the iſſue of Iſaac, the Edomites, chap.35.29. & 36.1. have called a multitude] Or, a full aſſembly. Heb. full. So, a fulneſſe, Eſay 31.4. or, they cry, or, will cry, full, or, with a full throat, after thee: a defect of the ſubject here, as of the adjunct in the like form, Eſay 58.1. ſo, a full, for, a full cup, Pſal.73.10. Of the Edomites cry againſt Jeruſalem, ſee Pſal. 137.7. to cry after thee, ſeems here to be no other then, to cry unto, or upon others, to proſecute thee with hue and cry, as ſome notorious malefactor.

believe them not, though they ſpeak fair words to thee] Truſt them not, though they ſpeak thee never ſo fair; for they mind nothing leſſe then what they ſpeak, Chap.9.4-6. Prov. 26.15. fair words. Heb. good words, or, things. So Chap. 52. 32.

V. 7. I have forſaken mine houſe;] God having done with the Prophet, and hinted unto him what he muſt further expect and prepare himſelf for, as before, chap. 1. 17,18. doth now return to tell, what he intendeth to do, not with the men of Anathoth only; as chap.11.22,23. but with Jeruſalem, and the whole State of Judah.

I have forſaken my houſe] I am reſolved to leave, and abandon my Temple, that hath been hitherto as my Palace, my Court, the place of my ſpecial reſidence, Pſal.78.68,69. and 132.13,14. chap.7.14. & 11.15.

I have left mine heritage] Or, poſſeſſion. My people, that were ſometime my peculiar poſſeſſion, and as dear unto me, as any mans inheritance is to him, Chap.10.16. & 50.11.

the dearly beloved of my ſoul] Or, my dearly beloved: my ſoul, for, my ſelf; as Pſal. 3.2. ſo, his ſoul, for, himſelf, Amos 6. 8. but the word ſoul, maketh the ſpeech the more emphaticall; as Pſal.42.2. Cant.1.2. & 3.1. Heb. the love of my ſoul. See 1 Sam.20.17.

into the hand] Or, power: as Judg.6.13. Chap.20.5.

V. 8. Mine heritage is unto me, as a lion in the foreſt; it cryeth out againſt me, therefore have I hated it.] Becauſe that this might ſeem ſtrange, that thoſe whom God had ſo entirely affected before, he ſhould now deal ſo harſhly with, as to deliver them up unto the power and pleaſure of their utter enemies; the Lord ſheweth here, that the cauſe and ground of this ſo great an alteration in his affection toward them, and dealings with them, proceeded not from himſelf, but from them: they who were ſometime his ſheep, Pſal.77.20. & 100. 3. were now become fierce lions roaring againſt him, and renting his meſſengers, Chap.2.30. Mat.23.37. Act.7.51,53. and that is it that hath turned his love into hatred, Eſay 63. 10. for what the Jewiſh Doctors here have of mens leaving their way upon the hearing of lions roar; and of the cry of oppreſſion, Eſay 5.7. and of idolaters in the ſervice of their idols, 1 King. 18. 26, 28. is all beſide the intent of the place.

Mine heritage is] Or, is become, as Eſay 1.21. to intimate a change.

a lion in the foreſt] That is, a lion of the foreſt: as, mountains in Gilboa, for, mountains of Gilboa, 2 Sam.1.21.

it cryeth out againſt me] Or, yelleth aloud; as Chap.4. 15. Heb. hath given out her voice: as chap.4.16. Joel 2.11.

have I hated] Or, I hate; as Mal.1.2.

V. 9. Mine heritage is unto me as a ſpeckled bird; the birds round about are againſt her;] By another ſimilitude, God ſeemeth here to ſet out the cauſe of his diſaffection towards his people: becauſe they were become, as like ramping lions, ſo like ravenous fowls; for which cauſe alſo the Lord was reſolved to beſet them with enemies, that as birds of prey, ſhould in like manner prey upon them, as they had done upon others; and call thoſe in upon them, who as wild beaſts ſhould devour them. Some read the words as by way of interrogation, joyned with admiration, Is mine heritage become thus unto me? are the birds round about againſt her? Others, by way of enunciation, as our verſion exhibiteth it: the Jewiſh Criticks, and the uſe of the particle, carry it the former way; which I therefore alſo encline unto: yet ſo, as that I conceive a defect of the negative in the text; which in ſuch interrogations is not unuſual. So 1 Sam. 2.27,28. Job 20.4. See Chap.31.20. and I ſuppoſe the words may well be rendred, Is not mine heritage ſuch a bird to me? are not the birds, or, ſhall not the birds, be round about againſt her? and thus our ancienter Engliſh exhibited it: which in effect alſo, comes home to the preſent verſion. I ſhall ſubjoyn a learned Writers verſion, with his expoſition, and ſo leave it; O ye coloured birds, (ye birds of what colour ſoever ye be,) mine heritage is mine; (and I may diſpoſe of it, as I pleaſe, as Chap. 27.5.) O ye birds be round about againſt her; come and beſet her on every ſide; and bring the beaſts along with you. I adhere ſtill to the former, as better ſuiting with what went before, ver.8. for the former branch at leaſt, though not wholly rejecting what is here exhibited, for the latter.

as a ſpeckled bird] The word here uſed, and not elſe-where in this form found, cometh from a root, which though no where uſed in the Hebrew text of Scripture, yet is found in the Syriack of Daniel, Dan.4.15,23,33. & 5. 21. as alſo in the Syriack and Arabick verſions of the New Teſtament, Mat.20.23. Luk.7.38. and it is of the ſame notion with another very neer it in Hebrew, both ſignifying to dip, to bedew; and by conſequence, to dy, or colour; the word that is uſed for a ring, iſſuing from the one; and the finger that weareth it, from the other: now becauſe a term ſpringing from this root, ſeemeth to ſignifie a tincture of ſome remarkable colour, or variety of colour, Judg.5.30. hence it cometh to paſſe, that the old Latine rendreth it, a bird died; and our Engliſh, a ſpeckled bird: and hereby, ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Writers, is meant a kind of owl red with black ſpots, which other birds cannot abide, and are wont therefore to flock about her, and beat her. Others would have it a peacock, Job 39. 13. or ſome other bird as curiouſly feathered, as if ſhe were painted, or dyed, Pſal. 68.13. which other birds therefore for her beauty, uſe to gaze upon and admire; nor want there thoſe that further drive on this conceit, ſuppoſing an alluſion to birds kept in a cage, partly, for their goodly ſhape and ſightlineſs; and partly for their pleaſant note, which men are wont to take much delight in; that ſuch had this people been unto God, till they changed their note; and did not now ſing as a bird, but roar as a lion, ver.8. ſo one: or, till they became, of tame ones wild, like thoſe that live abroad in the woods, ver. 8. ſaith another. So expounding the word ſpeckled, as if it ſignified wild, or none but wild ones were ſuch: or is become wild, that is, fierce, as ſome render it. See ver. 8. which hither alſo they draw: but theſe things ſeem either fabulous, or forced. Some of ours conceive no ſpecial kind of bird to be intended, but any ſpeckled, or pied fowl to be deſigned: and that this people are here ſo ſtyled; becauſe not contenting themſelves with Gods livery, and the ſimplicity of his ſervice, they had put themſelves into a garb patched up as a party-coloured-coat, of divers ſorts of ſuperſtitious rites and practices, taken up as ſtrange faſhions from forraign nations, Ezek.8.5,10,11,16. And this ſeemeth more probable then any of the former. Howbeit, ſome of the Jewiſh Writers, by a bird died, or ſtained, underſtand here a fowl beſprinckled with bloud; as garments therewith beſprinckled, are ſaid to be died, or ſtained, Eſay 63.1,2. that which frequently befalleth birds of prey: and ſome of them conceive it to be ſpoken of Gods people; as if it were ſaid, Are the bloudy birds of prey with mine heritage? are the birds of prey, I ſay, gotten round about her? This, it is true, offereth too much violence to the text: but yet I ſuppoſe it hinteth us the true notion of the term. I conceive therefore the meaning neer the ſame in effect, that was before intimated, ver.8. Is not mine heritage become to me as a ſtained, or bedewed bird of prey? for ſuch fowl doth the word here uſed properly ſignifie, as both the generall uſe of it ſheweth, Gen.15.11. Job 28.7. Eſay 18.6. Ezek.39.4. as alſo the notation of it confirmeth; for the word it comes of, ſignifieth, haſtily, or fiercely, to fly, or fall upon ought, 1 Sam.14.33. & 25.14. and it is not amiſſe therefore rendred, a ravenous bird, Eſay 46.11. Gods people then are ſaid to have been a ravenous bird, or, a fowl of prey, in regard of that rapine and oppreſſion, that was grown ſo rife among them. See Chap.6.6. and not ſo alone, but ſuch an one all ſtained, or bedewed with gore bloud, that by their cruell courſes had been ſhed among them, wherewith their garments are ſaid to be all over beſmeared, chap.2.34. and this I take to be the genuine ſenſe of the place. To which alſo will in effect come home, what ſome late Interpreters of prime note have; who, becauſe from the ſame root with this ariſeth a word ſignifying a finger, would have the word here uſed to ſignifie a fingered bird, or, a tallanted fowl; that is, a fowl with great talons like fingers: and it is true, that Pliny, l.11.c.47. ſorteth birds or fowls into ranks; ſome fingered, ſome palm-footed ones: but this term is much more generall, compriſing as well ſparrows and wrens, as eagles or falcons: and the dirivation hereof in the originall, is nothing ſo familiar and free as the former, unto which therefore I adhere. In the text there is a defect of the note of ſimilitude, but ſuch as rendreth the ſentence more emphaticall, as Chap.5.8. and as I conceive an elegant redundancy in that form; unto me, as if it were ſaid, is become me; as, I will go me; Cant.4.6. See on Chap.11.17. What this people were become to him and his Prophets, or to him in his Prophets, he had ſhewed before, ver.8. here what they were among themſelves one towards another.

the birds round about are againſt her?] Or, Are not the ravenous fowl round about againſt her? the word fowl in the Hebrew is, as before, ſingular, but here in a notion collective, as all agree, and we alſo commonly ſo uſe the word, fowl; and it may well be rendred in the time preſent, according to the propheticall ſtrain, as foretelling what in Gods purpoſe, already reſolved on, ſhould be; So ver.10-12. or, as ſome render the words, not in way of interrogation, or of enunciation, but in way of invitation; O yee ravenous birds flie in on every ſide againſt her. Howſoever we read it, it is as if he had ſaid, as ſhe is become like a ravenous bird, ſo with a company of ravenous fowl, therein like her ſelf, ſhall ſhe be on every ſide beſet, that ſhall prey upon her, deſtroy her, and help to devour her; and by theſe ravenous fowls are queſtionleſs deſigned Nebuchadnezzar and his forces, that ſhould begirt and take Jeruſalem; as Cyrus and his army are reſembled by the like, Eſay 46.11.

come ye, aſſemble all the beaſts of the field, come to devour.] An invitation of wild beaſts to come in upon them, either as wolves; and the like into a flock of ſheep to wory them, and prey upon them, as Eſay 56.9. or, as wild boares into a vineyard, to root up and ſpoyl all, as Pſal.80.13. or as ravenous beaſts into a field, where many carcaſſes of men ſlain lye, to feed upon them, as Chap.7.33. & 15.3. Rev.19.17,18. and this laſt the Jewiſh Commenters pitch upon; withall rendring a reaſon why the fowl are firſt mentioned, becauſe they firſt commonly, from a far off, diſcover their prey, Job 39.29,30. Mat.24.28. Luk.17.37. and the beaſts uſually come after them. But this ſeems overcurious: certain it is, that by ravenous birds and beaſts, ſuch as are wont to prey upon the leſs, and more feeble of either kind, and to deſtroy and devour them, are here repreſented; thoſe forces conſiſting of many ſeverall nations, as the Chaldeans, Aſſyrians, Syrians, Ammonites, Moabites, Edomites, and others, that under the conduct of the King of Babylon, ſhould make foul ſpoyl and havoke of Gods people, 2 Kings 24.2,3. Chap.1.15.

Come ye] Or, Go to: Go your ways, and get you about it; for it is a term commonly uſed, to expreſs a ſetting or inciting of any to go about ſome employment, as Joſh.2.16. 2 Kings 1.2,6. Chap.7.12. and ſome conceive it, as ſpoken to the fowls both to come in themſelves, and to bring along with them the beaſts alſo. Howſoever, it is as if God were ſetting ſome on work, to go and ſummon people, as wild beaſts, to come in upon his people.

all the beaſts] Heb. every beaſt; as Pſal.50.10. wild beaſts of all ſorts, that uſe to prey upon man or beaſt. See the like, Eſay 56.9.

come] Heb. make, or, cauſe to come; for the injunction is not directed to the beaſts themſelves, but to thoſe that ſhould bring them together.

to devoure] Heb. to eate; as Chap.10.25. Rev.19.18.

V. 10. Many Paſtors have deſtroyed my vineyard.] The Kings and Princes that ſerve under Nebuchadnezzar, ſo termed before, Chap.6.3. have deſtroyed, that is, ſhall deſtroy (as ſure to be done as if done already) Gods people, his vineyard, Eſay 5.7. a ſimilitude borrowed from ſhepherds, or neat-herds, that turn their cattell into vineyards. For they ſeem to turn it a wrong way, that expound it of the governours of Gods people, either civill, or eccleſiaſticall, who by their miſ-government had ruinated the ſtate, Eſay 56.9-11. Chap.10.21.

they have trode my portion under foot] The word ſignifieth any portion of land, or the like, 2 Sam.14.30. 2 Kings 3.19. taken from the manner of dividing poſſeſſions, and inheritances, and aſſigning each one his peculiar ſhare, or portion; Joſh.13.7. & 18.10. Prov.17.2. So Gods people are ſaid to be Gods portion, or, poſſeſſion, Deut.32.9. as before his heritage, ver.8,9. and his vineyard, ver.10. as alſo the land wherein they lived, Lev.25.23,24. this the enemy is ſaid to tread down, as beaſts do a paſture ground, or a garden, where they ſpoil as much with their feet, as with their feed, Eſay 5.5. & 63.18.

they have made my pleaſant portion a deſolate wilderneſs.] This aggravateth the miſchiefe and miſery done by them, that they have made ſuch ſpoyl, not of ſome common field, or an ordinary paſture, but of a curious and choice paradiſe, which they have ſo ſpoyled, that they have left it like a wild waſte, Joel 2.3.

made] Heb. given; as Chap.9.10.

my pleaſant portion] Heb. my portion of deſire, or, delight, as Chap.3.19. See Pſal.16.6.

a deſolate wilderneſs] Not ſuch a wilderneſs wherein cattell uſe to graſe, and people, ſome at leaſt, inhabite; as 1 Sam.17.18. & 25.21. Luk.1.80. but ſuch as are wholly abandoned, in regard of the barrenneſs of them, to wild beaſts, Deut.32.10. Eſay 30.6. Chap.2.2. Mar.1.13. Heb. a wilderneſs of deſolation; that is, a moſt deſolate wilderneſs, as Joel 2.3. & 3.19.

V. 11. They have made it deſolate] Heb. He hath put it into deſolation, as Zeph.2.13. He, that is God, ſay ſome, ver.12. but it is God that ſpeaketh it: Nebuchadnezzar, or the people that come with him, ſay others not amiſſe. Howbeit, it may well be rendred ſimply, the verb being indefinite, It is made utterly deſolate; as afterwards, See the like, Chap.10.4.

and being deſolate it mourneth unto me.] It affordeth me a very ſad and rufull ſpectacle; See ver.4. for they ſeem to ſtray from the intent of the place, who expound it of the peoples mourning to God, and his not regarding them, Chap.11.14.

the whole land is laid deſolate] So Chap.4.20,27.

becauſe no man layeth it to heart.] Becauſe no man layeth to heart Gods menaces, that they may take ſome courſe, by repentance and reformation to prevent them, Chap.5.3,12,13. & 11.15. & 18.18. or, yet; (as the particle is taken, Job 5.7. Eſay 9.1.) no man layeth it to heart; few, or none amidſt theſe grievous calamities, do ſeriouſly conſider and apprehend aright, the grounds of this dreadfull judgment, and the procuring cauſes of it, See Eſay 42.25. Chap.9.12. Hoſ.7.9. Heb. there is not a man putting it upon heart, as Deut.11.18. a defect of the particle, it, as Chap.6.11.

V. 12. The ſpoilers are come upon all high places thorow the wilderneſs.] Or, In the plain; as Eſay.63.13,14. Lam.4.19. either that lay in the way, between Chaldea and Judea, Chap.4.11,12. or thoſe within the land of Judah, Chap.3.2,21. & 7,29. No place of fortification or defence, ſuch as high places naturally are, in regard of their ſituation and the difficulty of acceſs unto them, is able to ſtay or to with-ſtand them; See Habb.1.10. See alſo Chap.7.29. where, as here alſo, a Learned man would have the word rendred; not high, but low places, or, plains, in a wilderneſs. Whereof ſee there.

for the ſword of the Lord ſhall devoure, from the one end of the land, even to the other end of the land] The ſword of the enemy, called the ſword of the Lord, becauſe drawn, and comming by his appointment and ſecret deſign (as Eſay 34.5,6. Chap.47.6.) runneth thorow the whole land, from end to end (Heb. from the end of the land, and unto the end of the land, as Deut.28.64. Chap.25.33.) and deſtroyeth all before it. Heb. eateth, as ver.9. 2 Sam.11.25. Chap.2.30. & 46.10, and it is ſpoken as a thing preſent.

no fleſh ſhall have peace] Heb. there is not peace (that is, ſafety; as 1 Kings 8.27,28. Chap.4.10.) to all (that is, any; as Gen.3.1. Job 1.11. & 8.12.) fleſh, all fleſh; for, any fleſh, as Pſal.143.2. Rom.3.20. and, any fleſh here, for, any of that people, as Chap.45.5. Mat.24.22. thoſe that promiſed to themſelves and others, ſecurity and immunity, ſhall then find it to fare far otherwiſe with them, then they expected or hoped for, Eſay 28.15,17,18. Chap.4.9,10. & 6.14,15. & 8.11,12.

V. 13. They have ſown wheat, but ſhall reap thorns:] According to that curſe, Gen.3.18. Deut.28,38. no good fruit ſhall come of all their labour, Gen.4.12. Job 31.4. Mic.6.15. Hagg.1.6. no good iſſue of all their vain endeavours whereby they hope to help themſelves, chap.2.37.& 3.23.

but ſhall reap thorns] Or, but (Heb. and, as ver.2.) reap thorns: There is an elegant conſonancy in the words of reaping and thorns, in the original; as if it were ſaid, reap riſ-raf; nothing that is good for ought.

they put themſelves to pain, but ſhall not prevail:] They may tire themſelves out with plots and projects, and this courſe and that courſe, to wind themſelves out of the difficulties and ſtreits, that they have caſt themſelves into, but all will be to no purpoſe, chap.2.36,37. & 11.11. For the Rabbine that underſtandeth it of their crying unto God, untill their hearts ake again, and not prevailing with him, as Pſal. 18.41. is as much out of the way, as the ſame of ſome other, on ver.11.

and they ſhall be aſhamed of their revenews] Heb. of your revenews: a paſſage from perſon to perſon, as chap.11.15,16,19. They ſhall be aſhamed to ſee how little good cometh of all their labours, Eccl.5.16. See Eſay 17.10,11.

becauſe of the fierce anger of the Lord.] Which ſhall blaſt all their proceedings, as chap.51.45. Of the attribute, ſee Eſay 13.9. chap.4.8,26.

V. 14. Thus ſaith the Lord againſt all mine evill neighbours, that touch the inheritance that I have cauſed my people Iſrael to inherit;] This Prophecy is ſhut up for the ſtay and ſupport of the ſmall remnant of faithful ones, mixed here and there among the main corrupt body of the Jewiſh people, promiſing reſtitution to them, vindication of the wrongs by their bad neighbours done unto them; together with a gracious offer of mercy alſo to them, if they turned unto God, and joyned with his people in the true and ſincere ſervice of him.

againſt all mine evill neighbours] Againſt, or, concerning, rather; as chap.18.8-10.& 49.1,7. mine; not the Prophets, as may ſeem, but Gods, in whoſe perſon he ſpeaketh it, as by the words following appeareth: and his neighbours he termeth them, becauſe they bordered upon his portion, ver.10. thereby underſtanding, not the Chaldeans, as ſome, (for they are ſtill ſpoken of as a remote people, Eſay 39.3. chap.5.15. & 6.22.) nor the Egyptians neither, as ſome other, (for Paleſtine lay between Egypt and them) but the Philiſtines, Syrians, Phenicians, Moabites, Ammonites, and Edomites, who bordering upon Gods people, had invaded and annoyed them, by their preſent diſtracted and diſtreſſed condition taking occaſion ſo to do, 2 King.24.2. Pſal.137.7. chap.41.9. Obad.11-14.

that touch the inheritance] That is, as ſome, that border upon it, are contiguous unto it: but as others rather, that wrong, hurt, and annoy them, in the leaſt degree; for there is an emphaſis, in the term of touching. So Job 1.11. Pſal.105.15. Zach.2.8.

which I have cauſed my people Iſrael to inherit] Pſal. 135.12. and they therefore have no right, nor can make any juſt claim unto, Judg.11.23,24. chap.49.1.

Behold, I will pluck them out of their land;] I will deal with them, as they have dealt with my people: as they have diſpoſſeſſed my people of their land; ſo will I cauſe them to be diſpoſſed of theirs. See chap.30.16. that which was alſo done by Nebuchadnezzar; into whoſe hands they were likewiſe given, chap.25.20-22.& 47.& 48.& 49.1—27.

and pluck out the houſe of Judah from among them.] I will deliver my people, as by main might, ſnatching them out of their hands, that have poſſeſſed themſelves of them, and bringing them back from thoſe places where in captivity they ſhall abide, Deut.30.3. Eſay 1.11,12. & 27.12,13. chap.32.37. Ezek. 20.37,38. and there is an elegant diverſity and diſparity of notion in the ſame word of plucking out here uſed in this branch, and the former: the like whereunto, ſee chap.34.17.

V.15. And it ſhall come to paſs after that I have plucked them out] Heb. it ſhall be; as chap.3.16. So ver.16. after that I have plucked them out; not my people onely from among them, but them out of their own countryes alſo, ver.14.

I will return and have compaſſion on them,] Or, I will again have compaſſion on them; as Pſal.71.20.& 85.6. and bring again every man to his heritage, and every man to his land.] Reduce them to their own country, and reſtore them to their ſeveral poſſeſſions again. See the like promiſes, Eſay 18.7. and 19.22,24. and 23.17,18. and 24.22. chap.49,6,39.

every man] Heb. a man; as Chap.5.8.

V. 16. And it ſhall come to paſs, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to ſwear by my name, The Lord liveth; as they taught my people to ſwear by Baal; then ſhall they be built in the midſt of my people] The gracious promiſe of reſtitution is not made to theſe people, but upon condition of relinquiſhing their former idol-ſervices, and embracing the ſervices of the true God, having learned it from his people abiding among them, as Gods people had formerly learned the ſervice of their idols, by intermingling of themſelves with them; Num.25.1,2. Pſal.106.35,36.

diligently learn] Heb. learning learn.

the ways of my people] That is, the manners, faſhions, cuſtoms, and practice of my people: as, the way of the nations, Chap.10.2.

to ſwear by my name] Not, to my name; as giving up their names, and by a ſolemn oath of allegiance engaging themſelves to me, as Eſay 19.18. but ſwear by my name, that is, by me, as Eſay 48.1. ſwearing by him, being here put, as a principall part of religious worſhip, for the whole ſervice of God, as Deut.10.20. chap.4.2. as the ſwearing by Baal, and idols in general, for the ſuperſtitious and idolatrous ſervice of them, chap.5.7. Zeph.1.5.

the Lord liveth] Or, by the life of God: the moſt uſual form of an oath in thoſe times, chap.4.2.& 5.2.

then] Heb. and; as chap.4.1,2.

built in the midſt of my people] Or, among my people; as Deut.13.1.& 18.15. chap.9.6. that is, as ſome, they ſhal dwel quietly, as before in vicinity or neighbourhood with my people; or rather, they ſhall be firmly ſetled in the places of their former abode, (as the term of building is uſed, 2 Sam.7.27. Job 22.23. chap.33.7. Mal.3.15.) and ſhall, withall, have a ſhare among my people in ſuch ſpiritual priviledges as they enjoy. See Eſay 19.23—25.& 56.5—7.

V. 17. But if they will not obey, I will utterly pluck up and deſtroy that nation, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. And (as ver.13.) if they will not hear (that is, obey, as Pſal.81,11. chap.7.23. if any of them ſhall refuſe to yield hereunto) and (or, then, as ver.16.) I will plucking up pluck up, and will deſtroy that nation; that ſhall refuſe ſo to do. See Eſay 60.12.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſ. 1. THus ſaith the Lord unto me,] In this Prophecy, or Sermon, (which ſeemeth to have been delivered in the reign of Jehojacin: ſee ver. 18.) partly by the type of a girdle rotted and become fit for no uſe; and partly by the type of bottles, full of liquor, daſhed one againſt another; God ſetteth before the eyes of his people, how he purpoſed to deal with them; and that principally for the contempt of his admonitions and menaces, and their wilfull obſtinacy and perſiſtance in their evil courſes, which by continued cuſtome they were become ſo enured unto, that nothing could withdraw them from them.

Thus ſaith] Or, ſaid the Lord unto me; for he telleth them of an errand, not that God now was ſending him, but had ſometime before ſent him on.

Go, and get thee a linnen girdle, and put it upon thy loins, and put it not in water.]

Go] Heb. Going; as chap.2.2.& 3.12.

get thee] Or, buy thee, as chap.19.1.& 32.6. get thee, or, buy thee: as go thee, Gen.12.1. See chap.11.9.

a linnen girdle] Heb. a girdle of flaxes, or linnens: as, a garment of linnens, Lev.13.47. and it ſeems to intend, not an ordinary girdle, either lethern, or woollen, ſuch as were commonly worn, 2 King.1.8. Mar.3.4. but ſuch an one as the better ſort of perſons ware, Eſay 22.21. Ezek.44.17.

put it upon thy loyns] The wonted place of wearing girdles, 2 King.1.8. Eſay 11.5. why he was to do this, is afterward ſhewed, ver.11.

and put it not in water.] Or, but; as chap.12.2. do not wet it: do nothing thy ſelf to it, that may cauſe it to rot: thereby implying, that neither God, nor ought from him, had been any cauſe of the general corruption, and conſequently of the deſtruction of this people, by that girdle reſembled, ver.9-11. Hoſ.13.9. & 14.1. Nor can I aſſent unto that learned late Writer, who conceiveth, that the Prophet was forbidden to lay it in water for the ſoftening of it, that it might remain ſtiff; reſembling that peoples ſtiffneſs of heart and neck, Eſay 48.4. and much leſs with thoſe Jewiſh Doctors, who would have the meaning to be, that though with long wearing it in the place of ſweat Ezek.44.18. it would grow ſweaty and naſty, yet he ſhould not waſh it, that it might rot the ſooner.

V. 2. So I got a girdle according to the word of the Lord, and put it on my loins] I did as God bad me, I got me ſuch a girdle and wore it, as men uſe to do. Heb. And: (as Ezek. 3.14.) I got, or, brought; as Chap.32.9. word, for, command; as Jon.3.3.

V. 3. And the word of the Lord came to me the ſecond time ſaying,] Heb. was to me; as chap.1.13.

V. 4. Take the girdle that thou haſt got, which is upon thy loins,] Or, Take the girdle that thou boughteſt; and which thou weareſt.

and ariſe, go to Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock.] Whether this were actually done, or in viſion only, it being ſo long a journey for the Prophet to take, is very doubtful: and both the Jewiſh Writers and ours ſeem divided about it. I encline with the moſt, to the judgment of thoſe, who ſuppoſe it to have bin done in viſion, only ſo far forth as concerneth his journey, as well for the carrying of it thither, as for the fetching of it back again, ver.7. not unlike that journey of Ezekiel, from out of Chaldea to Jeruſalem, and from thence back again to the captivity in Chaldea, Ezek.8.3. and 11. 24.

ariſe,] As Chap.1.17. See there.

go to Euphrates] Heb. Prat, or, Phrat, Gen. 2.14. and it is made one of the limits, or boundaries of the promiſed land, Deut.1.7. & 11.24. Joſh.1. 4. The journey thither with this girdle thus enjoyned, ſome would have to ſignifie, that deſtruction which ſhould befall them for their travelling into Aſſyria, ſeeking unto, and relying on, the King of Aſſyria, whoſe country bordered upon that river, as ſafe under his protection, 2 King.16.7. chap.2.18,36. Others, with whom I rather concur, that they ſhould be removed out of their country, and carried captive unto Babylon, ſituate upon that river, Pſal. 137.1. See on Eſay 21.1. Ezek.1.1. & 3.15.

hide it there in the hole of the rock] Thus the Jewiſh Commenters expound the word here uſed, as our verſion rendreth it, an hole, both in this place, and elſewhere; where people are ſaid to be hid in the like, Chap.16.16. Eſay 7.19. and ſo both the ancient Greek and old Latine exhibit it. Howbeit, the Chaldee rendreth it, on the ſmoothneſſe of the rock; uſing the ſame term, both Ezek.26.14. & Eſay 57.6. in which latter place, the Hebrew hath, the ſmooth pebles of the brook: Whence it may be deemed, that the Paraphraſt conceived, that it ſhould lye hid among the beach; to which purpoſe, a learned Writer of ours ſuppoſeth, that it ſhould be laid in ſome place, where by the waſhing of the river it might be corrupted: but that were rather to lay it where it were to be waſhed away with the current of the ſtream; and not to be found at his return again. Some other late Commenters of note, render it, in the projecture, or, overhanging of the rock; to gain thereby ſome ſtrength to their former conceit of this people's, for ſafeguard, putting themſelves under the Aſſyrian Kings protection, which ſhould be hereby deſigned: but neither is the ſignification of the word probable; nor needed that ſtraining of the term here for their purpoſe; holes of rocks, as well as brows and prominences, being for ſecurity commonly repaired unto. See Eſay 2.19. and indeed where ſhould a girdle be hid out of ſight, but in ſome hole? and why in the hole of a dry rock, rather then in the moiſt ground, but that nothing from without might help to rot it, if it did rot, but its continuance there of it ſelf?

V. 5. So I went and hid it by Euphrates, as the Lord commanded me.] How this is ſuppoſed to have been done, ſee on verſ. 4.

by Euphrates] The Greek and Latine render it, in Euphrates; but the words of the injunction confirm our verſion: and the particle is ſo uſed, Joſh.1.25,26,32. where in Shechem, is, by it, beſide it, or neer to it: and ſo, in Bezec, Judg.1.4. and 1 Sam.11.8. and, in Anathoth, Chap.32.7. See Chap.20.2.

V. 6. And it came to paſſe after many days, that the Lord ſaid unto me, Ariſe, go to Euphrates, and take the girdle from thence, which I commanded thee to hide there.] Heb. And it was from the end of many dayes, and the Lord ſaid unto me: as Gen. 4.3. & 8.5. that is, a long time after: as Lev.15.25. Num.9.19.

take from thence] Or, fetch from thence: take, for, take and bring; as Gen.27.9. So, take, for, take and heap, Prov. 25. 22. receive, for, receive and give, Pſal.68.18. So Chap. 36. 14, 21.

V. 7. Then I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle from the place, where I had hid it:] Of this ſecond journey, ſee as before on ver.4.

Then] Heb. And; as Chap.11.5. or, So: as ver.5. because the next verſe beginneth with, Then.

digged] Either having before ſtopped up the mouth of the hole, where he hid it, that it might be there the ſafer, or, finding it by ſome other means obſtructed. So Ezekiel digged in a viſion, Ezek.8.8.

where I hid it] Heb. which, or, in which, I hid it there: that which, though it may ſeem a redundancy, as the like is found, Gen.2.11. & 3.23. yet the relative may have reference to the hole, or the cave, and the adverb of place, to the rock, wherein that hole, or the region neer the river, where that rock was ſituate, and behold the girdle was rotted, it was profitable for nothing] An emblem both of that unprofitable condition, that this people by corrupting themſelves and their wayes, had brought themſelves unto, Pſal.14.1,3. Eſay 1.4. Mat. 5. 13. Rom.3.12. Tit.1.16. and of that vile and ſorry condition, that by their captivity in forraign remote parts, and their long continuance therein, they ſhould for their wickedneſſe be juſtly reduced and brought unto, Lam.3.45. Ezek.33.10. & 37.11.

it was profitable for nothing] Or, as we ſay, it was good for nothing; and ſo is it well rendred, ver.10. Heb. it would not thrive, or, be uſeful, (ſo is the word uſed, Ezek.15.4.) for all; that is, for aught. See on Chap.12.12. So Gen.14.23.

V. 8. Then the word of the Lord came unto me, ſaying,] Heb. And, &c. as chap.1.12. ver.3.

V. 9. Thus ſaith the Lord, After this manner will I mar the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jeruſalem.] I will by the Chaldeans, who ſhall over-run the land of Judah, ſurprize and ſack Jeruſalem, overthrow the whole State, carry the people away captive, and detain them a long time in captivity far from their own country, utterly ſpoil all that pomp and power, wherein at preſent they ſo much pride themſelves. See Lev.26.19. Eſay 2.11-17. & 23.9.

V. 10. This evil people, which refuſe to hear my words, which walk in the imagination of their hearts, and walk after other gods to ſerve them, and to worſhip them, ſhall be even as this girdle, which is good for nothing.] The cauſe why God would thus deal with them; becauſe by their refuſal to be led and guided by him, and abandoning themſelves to the ſervice of their own hearts deſires and devices, and the worſhip of baſe idols, they had already made themſelves nought-worth and good for nothing, Chap.2.5. Eſay 57.6.

refuſe to hear my words] That is, to obey them. See Chap. 11. 10.

walk in the imagination of their heart] See Chap.9.13. & 11. 8. and the ſame again, Chap.16.12. & 18.12.

and walk after other gods to ſerve them, and to worſhip them] Heb. and that will walk after other gods, to ſerve them, and to bow down to them: the geſture uſed in adoration, put for adoration, or worſhip in general. So Exod. 20. 5. Numb. 25. 2. 1 King.19.18. See Chap.11.10.

ſhall be even as this girdle] Heb. and it, (to wit, this people or, they, (becauſe the word people, is collective) ſhall be as this girdle: nor is there any need at all to alter the native ſyntax; reading the fore-going part of the verſe, as by way of appoſition joyned to the words next before, I will mar the pride of Judah and Jeruſalem, this evil people that refuſe to hear my words,——and they ſhall be, or, ſo that they ſhall become, as this girdle; for ſo alſo is the copulative frequently uſed. See Chap.5.28. & 6.5,10. & 11.19,21.

V. 11. For as a girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man; ſo have I cauſed to cleave unto me, the whole houſe of Iſrael, and the whole houſe of Judah, ſaith the Lord; that they might be for a people, and for a name, and for a praiſe, and for a glory: but they would not hear.] The reaſon why he compared this people to a girdle; becauſe he had taken them unto him, to be as neer about him, and to ſit as cloſe unto him, as a mans girdle doth to his loins, Deut.30.20. Pſal.109.19. & 148.14. and that for this very purpoſe, that as ſome rich and goodly girdle, not lying out of ſight, or laid up in a cheſt, but being put on and worn abroad in open view, becometh thereby conſpicuous, hath notice taken of it, of the coſtly materials of it, and curious workmanſhip about it; and is conſequently a matter of grace and ornament to him alſo that weareth it, (ſee Exod. 28.8. & 39.5.) So this people, by this their vicinity, neerneſſe, and inwardneſs of conjunction to him, and communion with him, might become famous and glorious in the eyes of all nations, Deut.4.6-8,32-38. & 26.19. Chap. 33.9. Eſay 62.7. and that he himſelf alſo might be magnified and glorified in them, Eſay 43.21. & 60.19, 21. & 61.9,11. & 63.12. and withall, the reaſon why he would now ſo deal with them, that they ſhould be like ſome rich girdle, looſed from a mans loins, caſt aſide into a corner, or ſome remote and obſcure place, to lye therein out of ſight, unregarded and not looked after, till it rot there, (ſee Lev.26.39.) to wit, their wilful diſobedience, whereby they inconſiderately oppoſed and croſſed God in his deſignment intended for their good. See Pſal. 81. 8—16. a pregnant comment upon this place.

For] Or, Becauſe; as Chap. 23. 10. & 10. 21. becauſe it carrieth on the reaſon rendred of the foregoing paſſages, unto the very laſt words of the verſe.

the whole houſe of Iſrael, and the whole houſe of Judah] The whole poſterity of Jacob. See Chap. 2. 3, 4. and 3. 18. & 5. 11.

a people] A peculiar people, Exod.19.5,6. 1 Pet.2.9,10.

a name] name, for, renown; as Gen.6.4. & 11.4.

but] Heb. and; as Chap.11.2. ver.2.

they would not hear.] That is, they; as ver. 10. Heb. they heard not: as Eſay 66.4.

V. 12. Therefore thou ſhalt ſpeak unto them this word; Thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael;] Or, Moreover, (Heb. And: as Chap.1.11.) do thou ſpeak this word to them; or, tell them this from me; this word, for, this thing: as Dan.1.14. See chap. 7.8. & 26.2. & 36.2. For at theſe words, the Lord, having done with the former type, paſſeth on unto another, whereby he would have the Prophet make known unto them, and ſet further before their eyes, what he intended to do with them.

Every bottle ſhal be filled with wine] Another type the Prophet is now enjoyned to tell them of: a type taken from that they much loved, liked and looked after: for they loved and looked after the flagons of wine, Hoſ.3.1. and thoſe Prophets beſt pleaſed them, that propheſied of wine and ſtrong drink to them, Mic.2.11. God therefore ſendeth his Prophet to them with a prophecy of wine, but other wine then they expected. See ver.13.

and they ſhall ſay unto thee, Do not we certainly know, that every bottle ſhall be filled with wine?] Or, and when they ſhall ſay unto thee, Do not we know well enough (Heb. knowing know, as Chap.26.15. & 40.14.) without thy telling, that every bottle ſhall be filled with wine: (little deeming what manner of wine the Prophet meant, and dreaming of nothing but mirth and jollity; like thoſe, Eſay 22.13. their ſecurity and ſenſuality being herein glanced at) Thou ſhalt ſay unto them, or, Say thou then to them, &c. ver.13. The like ſyntax is very frequent, Gen.14.14. Prov.3.24. Eſay 30.20. Chap.8.4. & 11.11. & 12.5. and hereafter, ver.16.

V. 13. Then ſhalt thou ſay unto them; Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold I will fill all the Inhabitants of this land, even the Kings that ſit upon Davids throne, and the Prieſts, and the Prophets, and all the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, with drunkenneſs.] Since that ye are ſo addicted to wine and exceſſe, Eſay 5.11,12,22. & 22.13. Ye ſhall have wine to your fill. I will fill all ſorts among you from the higheſt to the loweſt, with another ſort of wine then that ye ſo much affect and delight in, untill ye be ſtark drunk with it. I will pour ye out ſo largely from the cup of my wrath, the wine of terrour, of anguiſh, of perplexity and aſtoniſhment, that ye ſhall be at your wits end, and ſhall no more know what to do, or which way to turn your ſelves, then men that are deep in drink: Of which wine, ſee Pſal.60.3. & 75.8. & 107.27. Eſay 51.17,21. chap. 25.27. & 48.26. & 51.7,39.

Behold, I will fill] Heb. Lo I am filling: as, Lo I am bringing, Chap.11.11.

even the King] Heb. and (as Chap.10.25.) the Kings; either the Kings themſelves ſucceſſively; or, Kings, for, King and Princes: as Chap.17.20. & 19.3.

that ſit on the throne of David] Heb. that ſit unto David (that is, as ſome render it, inſtead of David, as his Succeſſors: others, of the ſtock of David, being his iſſue. So alſo, Chap. 22.4.) upon his throne; as Chap.17.25. & 22.2. which ſhould not ſecure them; notwithſtanding that promiſe of perpetuity made to it, Pſal.89.29.

the Prieſts] That ſcorned to be ranked among the promiſcuous multitude; but were to fare alike with the reſt, Eſay 24.2.

the Prophets] The falſe Prophets, that preached peace and ſafety to them; and bare the people in hand that all ſhould be well. See Chap.4.9,10. & 8.10,11.

V. 14. And I will daſh them one againſt another, even the Fathers and the Sons together, ſaith the Lord:] I will ſet them together by the ears amongſt themſelves by inteſtine diſſentions, and cauſe them to fall foul one upon another, as men in drink are wont to do, as Eſay 9.19. & 19.2. or, I will break them altogether to pieces, as earthen bottels full of wine daſhed one againſt another; or like a confuſed company of people in drink, by the violence of the enemy breaking in upon them, Chap.6.11,21.

daſh them one againſt another] Some render it, I will ſcatter them one from another. So the old Latine: and the word here uſed doth oft ſignifie to ſcatter, as 1 Sam. 13.11. Eſay 11.12. & 33.3. but as oft, to daſh, and by daſhing to diſſolve, diſſipate, or, break to pieces, Pſal. 137.9. Eſay 27.9. Chap. 22. 28. and it is ſo applyed to potters ware, Pſal. 2.9. to earthen pitchers, Judg.7.19. to bottels, as here, ſo Chap.48.12. and ſo it muſt here be taken: for the ſyntax admitteth not the former.

one againſt another] Not, one from another. Heb. a man to, or, againſt (as Judg.2.11. Eſay 23.11.) his brother: as chap. 25.26. Eſay 19.2. or, one with another; as after, all together. So is the particle frequently uſed, Chap. 25.26. Lam. 3.41. Ezek.16.26.

even] Heb. and; as ver.13.

the fathers and the ſons together] No regard being had of natural bonds, relations, or affections, Eſay 3.5. Mic. 7.6. Chap.6.21.

I will not pity, nor ſpare, nor have mercy, but deſtroy them.] Heb. from deſtroying them; that is, ſo as not to deſtroy them: or, that I ſhould not deſtroy them: as, from ſeeing, for, ſo as not to ſee; or, that they may not ſee, Pſal.69.23. and, from reſcuing, for, ſo that I cannot reſcue, Eſay 50.2. an expreſſion of the ſame thing in various terms, to imply the certainty of it, as a matter irrevocably reſolved. So Eſay 27.11.

V. 15. Hear ye, and give ear, be not proud, for the Lord hath ſpoken.] Or, Hear and hearken; (to good advice when it is given you, and while it may be for your good) be not haughty. So the word properly ſignifieth; and ſo it is well rendred, Eſay 3.16. perſiſt not in your contumacy, and vain ſelf-confidence, Prov.3.5,7. Rom.11.20. abate of your haughtineſs, the highneſs of your hearts, and the ſtoutneſs of your ſtomacks, before God pull down your pride, ver.9. for it is he that threatneth to do it. See the like admonition, Eſay 28.14,22.

V.16. Give glory to the Lord your God] By acknowledgment of your ſins, Joſh. 7.19. and humbling your ſelves under his hand, Jam.4.7,10. 1 Pet.5.6. ver.18.

before he cauſe darkneſs] Before he bring a night of affliction and calamity upon you, Eſay 8.22. Lam.2.1.

and before your feet ſtumble upon the dark mountains,] Either upon the mountains, whereunto ye ſhall betake your ſelves for refuge and relief, while ye hope by that means to eſcape, Pſal.11.1. Mat.24.16. or the mountains over which ye ſhall be carryed away captive into Chaldea, and other forrein parts, ver.17. Heb. mountains of twilight, or evening, Prov.7.9. Eſay 59.10. the time of darkneſs approching after ſun-ſet; wherein men are prone to ſtumble, in ſuch places eſpecially, not without much prejudice and danger, Pſal. 35.6. Joh.11.9,10. 1 Joh.2.11.

and while ye look for light, he turn it into the ſhadow of death, and make it groſs darkneſs.] And while ye promiſe to your ſelves peace and ſafety, chap.4.10. & 6.14. and expect from forrein parts ſuch aids, as ye imagine will ſufficiently ſecure you, chap.37.5,6. God turn all another way, and wrap you up in ſuch inextricable difficulties, as ye ſhall not be able by any means to wind your ſelves out of, chap.8.15. & 14.19. Eſay 59.9. Amos 5.9. 1 Theſſ.5.2. Heb. and ye expect light, and he make it the ſhadow of death; as above, ver.12,13.

the ſhadow of death] Darkneſs ſo dreadful, that the very horrour of it is enough to damp a mans ſpirits, and ſtrike him even ſtark dead, Pſal.23.4. chap.2.6.

make it groſs darkneſs] Heb. put into groſs darkneſs: as, put into deſolation, Chap.2.14. See Eſay 60.2. So Joel 2.2. Zeph. 1.15.

V. 17. But if ye will not hear it, my ſoul ſhall weep in ſecret places for your pride, and mine eye ſhall weep ſore, and run down with tears, becauſe the Lords flock is carryed away captive.] All the Prophet can do, when he cannot prevail with them, to bring them to any ſerious conſideration of Gods meſſages delivered unto them, inviting them to ſincere humiliation and abatement of their haughty minds, is this, that out of his tender affection, he ſhall, apart by himſelf, much bewail their fooliſh arrogancy, and the miſeries, that by captivity and deportation will for the ſame befall Gods people. So 1 Sam. 15.35.

But] Heb. And; as ver.2,11.

if ye will not hear it] This hath reference to ver.15. the advice now given you, ver.16.

my ſoul ſhall weep] I ſhall weep: as, my ſoul refuſed, for, I refuſed to be comforted, Pſal.77.2. but the phraſe maketh it the more affectionate; as Pſal.42.1,2. & 63.1.

in ſecret places] Or, ſecrecies. So Chap. 49.10. for ſorrow commonly ſhunneth company, affecteth retiredneſs and privacy. See chap.15.19. Mat.6.16,18.

for your pride] Ver.16. Heb. from before your pride; as Chap. 4.4. & 9.7. fore-ſeeing what the iſſue of it will be, and what a fall your haughtineſs is ſure to have, Prov.15.25. & 16.18. & 18.12.

mine eye ſhall weep ſore] Heb. ſhedding tears ſhed tears: the verb is no where found but here, and is doubled to expreſs the grievous lamentation he ſhould make. See chap.9.1.

run down with tears] Heb. deſcend with tears; as chap.9.18. & 14.17. Lam.1.2,16. & 2.18.

the Lords flock] His peculiar people, Pſal.100.3. See chap. 10.21. ver.20.

V. 18. Say to the King, and to the Queen] By the King, the Jewiſh Commenters here generall underſtand Jehojacin, or Jeconiah; and by the Queen, the Queen Nechuſtah his Mother, who ſeemeth to have ſwayed much in regard of her ſons minority; and was, together with him, and a great party of the great ones, and other of the people, taken by Nebuchadnezzar, and carryed captive to Babylon, 2 King. 24.12-16. chap.29.2. Whence alſo they gather, that this Prophecy was publiſhed in the time of his ſhort reign, that did laſt but three months, 2 King.24.12. For what a late Writer hath here of perſons living delicately, as Kings and Queens, Lords and Ladies, dies, are wont to do, Prov.30.4. Mat.11.8. and of Bridegroom and Bride, that ſhould ſometime be ſo termed: of whom, Chap. 7. 34. and 25. 9. they are his private, not probable, opinions.

Say] Gods Words to the Prophet, ſay ſome: But ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter, not ſpoken to any particular perſon, but to any one indefinitely, that might ſay it to them; as Eſay 35. 4. Say to the fearfull hearted: and it is, indeed, as if it were ſaid, Let this, or Be this ſaid, or ſpoken to them. So, Say to the righteous, Eſay 3.10. and, Say to Archippus, Col. 4.17. Let it be as ſpoken to them, for them it concerneth.

the Queen] Or, Madame: the word properly ſignifieth Lady; as 2 King.5.3. or, Miſtreſs, Pſal.123. 2. Prov.30.23. Eſay 24.2. but it is uſed in a peculiar notion for Queen, the Kings wife, 1 King.11.19. 2 King.10.13. or, Regent; as 1 King.15. 13. 2 Chr.15.16. where it is ſaid of Maacah, the Queen-mother, that Aſa her ſon removed her from being Regent; for ſo might the word there well be rendred, that is, from having any power of authority in the State, as the notation of the word importeth.

Humble your ſelves, ſit down:] So there ſhould be a defect of the pronoun; as Eſay 57.9. but it may well joyntly be rendred without any ſuch ſupply. Sit below: Come down from your thrones, or chairs of eſtate, and ſit down upon the ground, or the pavement. See the like to Babylon, Eſay 47. 1. and to Dibon, chap. 48. 18. Heb, Make low, or, Lay low ſit down, for, Sit low: as, Make deep to dwell, for, dwell deep, chap. 49. 30. and, made deep corrupted, for, deeply corrupted, Hoſ. 9. 9.

for your principalities ſhall come down, even the crown of your glory.] Heb. your pillows, or, principalities is come down: the word cometh from a root that ſignifieth an head, and is uſed in a plural form always, but in a ſingular notion for a pillow, or bolſter, or ought that ſupplyeth the place of ſuch, Gen. 28. 11, 18. 1 Sam.19.13, 16. & 26.7, 11, 12, 16. and the Jewiſh Doctors here expound it, as our Verſion yieldeth it, Your Kingdome, or, Kingly State: but ſome late Writers, Your head-attires, which may be not improbable: the head being the place, whereon the enſign of royalty is uſually worn, Pſal.21.3. The Rabbine noteth it to be uſed in the plurall, to imply, that their Princely State, every jot of it ſhould be gone, that they ſhould be led captive, as other ordinary perſons: but it may well be, becauſe the word hath no other form then plural, as the word, heaven, water, virginity, childhood, and others. The ancient Greek, and old Latine, render it, in one continued tenour, the crown of your glory is fallen from your head. But the former Verſion ſeems the better.

the crown of your glory] Or, your crown of glory, or goodlineſs. So it would rather be rendred, then crown of your glory; as the like is rendred, Eſay 62. 3. (for both the latter term, and the ſyntax, is the ſame in either) that is, your glorious, or goodly crown. See Lam.5.16.

V. 19. The cities of the South ſhall be ſhut up, and none ſhall open them:] This the Jewiſh Commenters, and thoſe that tread in their track, underſtand of the cities of Judah, ſo called, ſay they, becauſe Judah lay South from Babylon, whence the enemy is ſaid to come from the North againſt it, ver. 20. as alſo becauſe it was ſo ſituate, in regard of the moſt part of the Land of Iſrael, Joſh.15. 1, 2. and ſaid here to be ſhut up, and none to open them, either becauſe ſo ſtreitly beſieged, that no going in or out for fear of the enemy, Deut.28.52. chap.5.6. or, becauſe depopulated, and left without Inhabitants to go in or out, chap.9.11. See Eſay 24.10. But ſome of ours, whom I rather concur with, underſtand it of the cities of Egypt, which lay South from Judea, Eſay 30. 6. which by the Chaldean forces lying between the Jews and them, ſhould be reſtrained, either from entertaining of them, or ſending any conſiderable relief, or ſuccour, to them. See 2 King. 24.7.

open them] The pronoun wanting, as chap.11.8.

Judah ſhall be carryed away captive, and all of it ſhall be wholly carryed away captive.] Heb, Judah is carryed away captive all of her; ſhe is carryed away captive with a captivity of entireneſſes: the noun is to be ſupplyed from the verb. So, an entire captivity, Amos 1.6, 9. This began in Jeconiahs captivity, 2 King. 24. 14-16. and was compleated in Zedekiahs, 2 King.25.10. See chap.52.28-30. A Writer of prime note renders the laſt words, the city of the peaceable ones ſhall be carryed away captive; alluding, ſaith he, to the name of Jeruſalem, and the perpetuity of peace and proſperity, which they promiſed to themſelves: but neither do I find the word ever ſo uſed; and it is apparent, that Judah is in either member intended.

V. 20. Lift up your eyes, and behold them that come from the North.] That is, the Chaldeans by whom this was to be done, chap. 1. 14. & 6. 21. The Prophet ſpeaketh it, as if he ſaw them coming, and they might alſo, if they would, but look up, or look out, as Eſay 60.4. and it is not unlikely, that even at the very time of the delivery of this Prophecy, they were well on-ward on their way. See on ver.18. The old Latine Verſion here goeth by it ſelf, rendring the words, Te that come from the North; as if the Chaldeans were called upon to view Jeruſalem: but the courſe of the context runneth directly contrary hereunto.

where is the flock that was given thee, thy beautifull flock?] Heb. thy flock of goodlineſs, as, your crown of goodlineſs, ver. 18. He ſeemeth to ſpeak this to the King; What is become now of that goodly flock, Gods people, that were committed to thy charge, and in whom thou didſt over-much pride thy ſelf? See Num.27.17. 2 Sam.24.1, 2, 17. Prov.14.28. chap. 10.21. ver.9. Howbeit, becauſe the pronoun is feminine, he ſeemeth rather to direct his ſpeech unto the State, ſpeaking to it, as to a woman entruſted with government: to which purpoſe, the reading in the text exhibiteth both the verbs in the foregoing branch in a ſingular feminine form, though the received lection read them in the plural.

V. 21. What wilt thou ſay?] As Joſhua, Joſh. 7. 8. and Ezra, Ezr.9.10. What ſhall I ſay? nor unlike that of Job, What ſhall I do? Job 31.14. ſpeeches importing ſuch a perplexity, as maketh perſons at their wits end, not knowing what to ſay, or do, ver.13.

when he ſhall puniſh thee?] Heb. when he ſhall viſit upon thee? as Chap. 11. 22. he, that is, God, ſay ſome. Nebuchadnezzar, and the Chaldeans, ſay others, coming from the North, ver.20. becauſe of them he ſpeaketh in the very next words: or, God by them, ſay others, including both, Chap.5.9, 10.

(for thou haſt taught them to be captains, and as chief over thee.)] Thou by ſeeking, and in baſe manner ſubmitting thy ſelf unto them, craving ayd from them, and inviting them, by rich preſents to thee, haſt ſhewed them the way, how to come, not to aſſiſt and relieve thee, but to over-maſter and ſubdue thee, and make a prey and a ſpoil of thee. See 2 King.16.7, 8. For that which a late learned Writer here hath, as if it were ſpoken to the King; charging him to have been the procuring cauſe of all theſe evils, by being a leader of them unto idolatrous practices, 2 King. 24. 9. the words, though never ſo much forced, will not admit. Heb. and, (for, for; as Chap.8.16.) thou haſt taught them againſt thy ſelf, captains to, or, for head, or, chief: taught them againſt thy ſelf; that is, to thine own damage and detriment: as Gen. 42. 36. all theſe things are againſt me: taught them captains; a defective form; for, taught them to be captains: as, from a King, for, from being a King, 1 Sam.15.22. from a Regent, for, from being a Regent, 1 King. 15.13. predeſtinated, conformable, for, predeſtinated to be, or, become, or, be made, conformable, Rom. 8.29. choſen, rich in faith, for, choſen to be rich in faith, Jam. 2.5. to an head, or, for an head; as Judg.10.18. & 11.8, 9, 11. or, upon the head: as Gen.49.26. Deut.33.16. the Jewiſh Doctor not amiſſe carrieth it thus on with the former, making the ſame ſupply in either; thou haſt taught them againſt thy ſelf to be captains, to become the head; or, thou haſt taught them to be captains, to be head over thee: for either way it may be read; but the former ſeems the better: thou haſt by thine Inconſiderate courſes brought that judgment upon thy ſelf, that God long ſince threatned to inflict upon thee, in caſe of wilful and obſtinate diſobedience, Deut. 28. 13, 44. See Lam.1.5.

ſhall not ſorrows take thee as a woman in travell?] Or, will not pains ſurpriſe thee, as a travelling woman? Heb. a woman of birth; an emblem of extream anguiſh and diſtreſs, Pſal.48. 6. Eſay 26.17, 18. & 37.3. Chap.6.28. & 22.23.

V. 22. And if thou ſay in thine heart] If ſuch thoughts as theſe ſhall ariſe within thee; as Deut.7.17. & 8.4. & 18. 21.

wherefore come theſe things upon me?] As Chap.5.19. & 16.10.

for the greatneſs of thine iniquity] The anſwer to their queſtion, pointing as with the finger, and directing them to the main cauſe and ground of all their miſery; for the greatneſs, or, for the multitude, (as it is rendred, Chap.30.14.) of thine iniquity; the word will well bear either, as Pſal.19. 13. & 25.11. So here.

are thy skirts diſcovered, and thine heels made bare] Thou art brought to extream ſhame and ſervitude; an alluſion to the manner of captives, that are led along without hoſe or ſhooes, bare-footed, and bare-leg'd, having ſcarce rayment wherewith to cover their nakednes, which in women captives (and to ſuch an one is Judah compared here) is the more ſhamefull and grievous. See Eſay 3.17. & 20.4. & 47.3.

are thy skirts diſcovered] Thou art compelled to tuck up thy cloathes about thee, as being to go thorow thick and thin, Eſay 47.2. or, thou art expoſed to publike ſhame, as women captives oft are, Eſay.3.17. and ſo the Chaldee rendreth it; See ver.26.

thine heeles made bare] Thy ſhooes being forcibly pluckt off from thy feet; for ſo the word implyeth, as Lam.2.6. and the text may be rendred, and thine heels being violently uſed, diſcovered, or, by violent uſage made bare, See Chap.2.25. There is in either branch a figurative ſpeech; for to ſpeak properly, not the ſkirts of the garment themſelves are diſcovered, but the fleſh of the body for want of them; whether truſſed up, turned up, torn away, or cut off; as 2 Sam.10.4. nor are the heels themſelves violently pluckt away, but the ſhooes being violently pluckt away, the heels by means thereof, come to be made bare and diſcovered. Howbeit in the latter part as ſome render it, the phraſe may be proper enough: thine heels are ſpoiled; being, ſay they, left bare of that covering, which in modeſt perſons, thoſe of faſhion and ſtate eſpecially, ſuch as ſhe is here compared unto, by means of the ſkirts or borders of their ſide garments they formerly had; ſo that this branch ſhould be but the ſame in ſubſtance with, or at moſt, but an effect or conſequent of the former. So the Greek, thine hinder parts are diſcovered, and thine heels expoſed to ſhamefull view.

V. 23. Can the Ethiopian change his ſkin? or the leopard his ſpots? then may ye alſo do good, that are accuſtomed to do evill.] God being now to paſs a peremptory doom upon this people, of utter diſperſion, and deſtruction, doth in theſe words render a more full reaſon of it, their incorrigible and incurable condition: they were by cuſtome and continuance ſo habituated in evill, that it was become as a ſecond nature in them; no means would prevail with them, to work it out of them, or work them to any good; aſſoon might a black-moor be with waſhing made white, or the leopards ſpots be taken from him, as this people brought to ought that was good, and it is in vain therefore to take any further pains with them: See 2 Chron.36.16. Chap.2.30. & 5.3. & 6. 29,30.

can the Ethiopian change his ſkin] Heb. will, or, ſhall the Cuſhite change his ſkin; that is, the hew, or colour of it: but the verb is taken potentially, as the like, Eſay 10.19. 2 Sam. 23.6. Lam.3.7. Amos 6.12. And it is a proverbiall form, uſed among the Greeks alſo and Latines, with whom, the waſhing of an Ethiopian, or, a black-moor, is commonly uſed as an emblem, of labour in vain: Heb. a Cuſhite, as Num.12.1. and from hence, as alſo from Amos 9.5. it appeareth that the Cuſhite, the poſterity of Cuſh, the ſon of Cham, and brother to Miſraim, the father of the Egyptians, Gen.10.6. were a people generally noted in thoſe times for their black hew, above any other; as alſo, have the Ethiopians been from time to time ſucceſſively in all ages, whence alſo that name was by the Greeks given them, importing as much, and thereby diſtinguiſhing them from all other people, as of a deeper dy then any other in that kind; which the rather would be obſerved, becauſe it confirmeth the received judgment, from all antiquity tranſmitted unto us, (though by ſome learned men of great note, without ground ſufficient, as to mee ſeemeth, of late controlled) that the Cuſhites are no other then the Ethiopians, and the Ethiopians of Africa that now are, the poſterity of Cuſh. Nor doth that which they alledg concerning the Ancient ſeat of the Cuſhites in Aſia, in ſome part of Arabia, bordering upon the red-ſea, any way croſs ought herein received, concerning theſe black Cuſhites; the very name and memoriall of whom is by theſe mens own confeſſion, now loſt in thoſe parts, ſince that it is well known, how frequent the tranſmigrations of people have been, from the places of their firſt abode: as alſo how ready the paſſage might be over that ſhoaly ſea, into the upper parts of Africa, is very eaſie to apprehend: and whereas ſome to ſhift off the force of this place, tell us that the Kedarens were black people, and therefore had their name, forcing in to that purpoſe that paſſage in the Canticles, Cant.1.5. and the Chaldee Paraphraſt, who renders Kedar there Cuſh; as alſo that the Arabians may ſeem to have had their name from the like hew, as being the colour either of the night, or, of the ravens; becauſe the Hebrew term for Arabia, and another for the evening, and a third for a raven, are referred all to one root, neither maketh much to this purpoſe. Since that it is not denyed, but that theſe Cuſhites had anciently their ſeat in thoſe parts. But exception ſufficient it is, for to enervate the force of any argument, againſt the received opinion from theſe fore-mentioned allegations; that what is ſaid of the former, to wit, the name of Kedar, is groundleſs; it being apparent that from Kedar one of Iſhmaels ſons, Gen. 25.13. that people had their name; nor are the people themſelves, but their tents, noted for blackneſs, in that place of the Canticles, and there is for the latter concerning Arabia, as little probability; with equall ground they might be deemed, to have been not of a black colour, like a crow, or, raven; but of a ſalow, or, willow colour; becauſe a word riſing from the ſame root, ſignifieth a ſalow, or, willow-tree. See Eſay 15.7. & 21.13. But the Cuſhites and the Kedarens, ſeem in Scripture ſtill diſtinguſhed, and the Arabes from either: Beſides, that one of thoſe Learned Writers, who goeth ſtiffe this way, acknowledgeth thoſe Arabes, whom he would have to be theſe Cuſhites, to be rather of a brown, or, tawnie, then a black hew.

or the leopard his ſpots] Heb. and; as Chap.6.20. & 9.12. the word renderd leopard, both here, and Chap.5.6. is ſuppoſed to ſignifie, that wild, fierce, and wily creature, the male whereof the Latines call Pardus, the female, Varia, in regard of the great variety of ſpots all over the body of either. See Pliny l.8.c.17. the Greeks call both by the name of Perdalis. So Ariſtotle l.9.c.6. for the other name, I find not in any Ancient Greek Author; it is here rendred a leopard; which word, found in Latine Authors of an inferior age, ſhould ſignifie a mungrell creature bred of a Pardus, and a Lioneſs; whereof ſee alſo Pliny where before. But the Hebrew word here uſed, as alſo the Greek Perdalis, and the Latine Pardus, and Varia, ſeem to deſign no other, then which we commonly call an Ounce, and ſome, a cat a mountain, becauſe it ſeemeth of a middle nature, between a Lion and a Cat; as our Cajus deſcribeth him, in an Epiſtle to Geſner of bigneſs of a maſtive, for head and face like a Lion, for body, tail, foot, and nails, like a Cat; the word rendred ſpots, not elſe-where found, ſignifieth properly dark ſpots, ſuch as ariſe in the body of one that hath been beaten, as we ſay, black and blew, Prov. 20.30. Eſay.53.5. and of a blackiſh colour are the Ounces ſpots.

then ye alſo] Or, then ye: This ſome would reſtrain to the King, and, the Queen, mentioned, ver.18. but it ſeems to be more generall, and to reach the main body of the ſtate and people.

accuſtomed] Heb. taught; as Chap.9.5. & 31.18.

V. 24. Therefore will I ſcatter them as the ſtubble, that paſſeth away by the winde of the wilderneſſe] Heb. And; as Chap.11. 8. yet may the copulative here be retained, if we read the 23. verſe as a parentheſis interjected between the 22. verſe and this. In that was intimated their captivity; in this, their diſperſion into divers ſeverall regions and countries, far remote and diſtant one from another; that which ſhould make their captivity much more grievous and uncomfortable, when they ſhould be thus ſevered one from another, Deut.4.27. & 28.64. Chap.9.16.

as ſtubble] So Pſal.83.13. Eſay 40.24. Hoſ.13.3. Zeph. 2.2.

by the winde of the wilderneſs] Heb. unto the winde (that is, to be carried away with the winde, as Ezek.5.2.) of the wilderneſs, or, the plain; as Eſay 63.13. See Chap.4.11. The Rabbines ſuppoſe, that the Prophet herein had ſome eye to the wilderneſs, that lyeth between Jeruſalem, and Babylon; but of that there is neither any neceſſity, nor much probability.

V. 25. This is thy lot, the portions of thy meaſures from me, ſaith the Lord.] This is thy ſhare, the ſtate and condition that God hath aſſigned thee, the ſad doom that he hath paſſed upon thee. It is a borrowed form of ſpeech, taken from lands meaſured out by line, into ſeverall portions and parcels, according to the number of thoſe that are copartners therein, and then divided by lot, that each one may have that part, that the lot hath aſſigned him. So Job 20.29. Pſal.11. 6. & 16.5,6. Mic.2.5. This denunciation a Learned Writer reſtraineth to the Queen-Mother, mentioned, ver.18. But therein he goeth alone, and ſeems to narrow the text too much. God ſpeaketh by the Prophet to the Jewiſh ſtate, as in the perſon of a woman, So ver.19-21,26,27.

becauſe thou haſt forgotten me] As Chap.2.32. Heb. that, or, which haſt forgotten me; as, which dwelt in Egypt; Exod. 12.40. but the relative is oft uſed in a cauſall notion, as 1 Kings 15.13. Chap.1.15.

and truſted in falſhood] Or, in a lye: either in idolls, as ſome; Chap.2.17,18. & 10.14. or, in vain courſes, that cannot ſtand thee in ſtead; but will fail thee in time of need, Chap.3.23. & 7.8. & 23.16,17.

V. 26. Therefore will I diſcover thy ſkirts upon thy face, that thy ſhame may appear.] Or, I will diſcover, Heb. make bare, as Eſay 47.2. & 52.10. Chap.49.10.) by caſting up thy ſkirts upon thy face, thy ſhame, that it may be ſeen; that that which naturall ſhame and modeſty ſeeketh to conceal, may lye open to ſight; See on ver.22. and Nah.3.5. where the ſpeech is defective alſo, as the ſame here; not unlike that, Pſal.89.39, 44. I will expoſe thee to open ſhame and ignominy, that as thy ſin hath been open and publike, ſo thy ſhame alſo may be ſuch. See Eſay 3.17. & 20.4. Ezek.16.37. & 23.29.

V. 27. I have ſeen thine adulteries, and thy neighings, the lewdneſs of thy whoredom, and thine abomination on the hills, in the fields.] Or, as the words ly in the text, Thine adulteries, and thy neighings, and thy lewd whoredome have been, or are upon the hils, and in the fields: I have ſeen, or, I ſee thine abominations.

adulteries] Idolatries; as Chap.2.20. & 3.1. Ezek.16. 32. & 23.44,45.

neighings] That is, ſaith the Jewiſh Doctor, thy rejoycing in thy wickedneſſe, Chap.11.15. but that is clean beſides the intention of the Prophet in this place: its parallel to that, Chap.5.8. ſave that there this neighing is of the male winding the female, becauſe ſpeaking of men: here of the female, the mare, when ſhe runs a madding after the male; becauſe the ſpeech is of the Jewiſh State, as in the perſon of a woman: as in that other paſſage of a wild aſs, therein parallel to this, Chap.2.24.

the lewdneſs of thy whoredom,] Or, thy lewd whoredom, Ch. 11.15.

on the hils in the fields] On the hils (and high places abroad) in the fields, chap.3.2. Eſay 65.7. Or, on the hils, and in the fields: no place is free from them, Eſay 57.5,7. Chap. 2. 20. & 3. 6.

I have ſeen] Or, I ſee thine abominations: I ſee them, and take notice of them, though thou thinkeſt I do not; as chap. 7.11. Hoſ.5.3.& 7.1,2. Of the term here rendred abomination, ſee on Eſay 66.16.

Wo unto thee, O Jeruſalem, wilt thou not be made clean? when ſhall it once be?] In theſe words, the Prophet cloſeth up this ſad Sermon, with an affectionate compellation of the Jewiſh State, under the title of Jeruſalem, the head city thereof; lamenting her wilful continuance in her ſpiritual filth; with an obſtinate refuſal of being reclaimed and cleanſed from it, after means ſo long a time tendered unto her, and preſſed upon her, to that purpoſe. See Chap.4.14. Ezek.24.13.

Wo unto thee] Spoken not by way of denunciation: as Eſay 5.8,11. but of lamentation: as Lam.5.16.

when ſhall it once be?] Heb. after how long yet, or ſtill? To wit, wilt thou cleanſe thy ſelf? ſay ſome: but as I ſuppoſe rather, Wilt thou perſiſt and continue in thy filth and folly, refuſing to come out of it? for the term, by ſome rendered, yet here, hath a notion of continuance. See the parallel place, Chap.4.14.

CHAP. XIV.

Verſ. 1. THe Word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah concerning the dearth.] The title prefixed before this Sermon, or Prophecy, acquainteth us with the occaſion of it, a dearth cauſed by drought; but not with the time when this dearth or drought was: Whence ariſeth ſome diverſity of opinion among Interpreters, concerning the time of it. Some ſuppoſing it to have been in the time of the ſiege of Jeruſalem by Nebuchadnezzar, in the reign of Zedekiah, chap. 52.6. but this famine was not in the city alone, as that was, for want of bread; but over the whole country, for want of rain, ver. 4-6. Others, would have it to be in the beginning of Zedekiah's reign, ſome good ſpace of time before that ſiege. I ſuppoſe it to have been rather in the reign of Jehojakim: the ground of my conjecture is, becauſe I find chap.36.9. that in the fift year of Jehojakim, a ſolemn faſt was proclaimed thorowout all Judah, which might well be, upon this occaſion; and the rather may be conceived ſo to have been, becauſe God, in his ſpeech to the Prophet, intimateth, that they either had already held, or were about to hold a faſt, to implore Gods favour and mercy, for the removal of this evil, ver.12. as alſo, the Prophet ſeems to imply as much in his ſpeech to God, ver. 2. Add hereunto the opinion of the Jewiſh Doctors, who ſuppoſe the former Prophecy contained in Chap.11. and 12. to have been delivered in Jehojakim's reign. See on chap. 11.9. and it may well be deemed from chap.12.4. that ſuch a drought then was, as is here deſcribed.

The word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah] See chap.1.2. & 7.1. This word ſeemeth to begin at ver. 10. for the foregoing part of the Chapter, ſeems to have been the Prophets ſpeech unto God, bitterly bewailing the ſad condition of the whole State, by reaſon of this great drought, ver.2—6. and earneſtly, with much affection, making ſuit unto God, for the removal, or mitigation, at leaſt, of this evil, ver.7—9. See the like inſcription chap.32.1.& 40.1. to Jeremiah] That is, to me; as ch.13.1. but the noun is here for the pronoun: as Eſay 2.1.

concerning the dearth] Or, drought. Heb. concerning the words (that is, the matter; as Eſt.9.31. Pſal.65.3. chap.17.8.) of the reſtraints: to wit, of rain, as chap.17.8. where the ſame is in the ſingular number. Hence ſome would pick out two ſeveral droughts, at two ſeveral times. but droughts rather, for a drought of long continuance: the plural often in Hebrew, implying an eminency, or enhancement, of the thing ſpecified. So wiſdoms, Prov.14.1. evenneſſes, Eſay 26.7. righteouſneſſes, Eſay 45.24. droughts, Eſay 58.11. ſtrengths, Eſay 63.15. Again, ſome would have it here denounced onely, none at all in preſent being. But the whole current of the context, ſeems to run ſtrongly againſt that conceit. See the cloſe of it, ver.22. Howbeit, a learned Interpreter (therein I ſuppoſe going alone by himſelf) ſuppoſeth no mention of drought or dearth at all, either preſent or future, to be here mentioned: for he expoundeth thoſe words of the text, concerning the words of cohibitions; that is, concerning the prayers and ſupplications commenced by the Prophet, and other godly ones, for the ſtaying of Gods wrath denounced againſt the State: who alſo therefore ſuppoſeth both this, and all the foregoing Sermons, to have been delivered in the reign of Joſiah, 2 King.23.26,27. but though it be true, that the Prophets prayer ſeems to have occaſioned the Prophecy; yet the preſent drought appeareth plainly to have occaſioned the Prophets prayer.

V. 2. Judah mourneth] The Prophets complaint of the ruful and diſtreſſed condition of the whole State, by reaſon of the preſent dearth: Judah (the whole land) mourneth; not Jeruſalem alone, as in the ſiege. See Chap. 12.11.

and the gates thereof languiſh] That is, her cities; as Exod. 20.10. Deut.16.5. Chap.15.7. Lam. 1. 4. and the inhabitants thereof: ſo called, becauſe the gates were the ordinary places of publike aſſemblies, and means of keeping in, or letting out, Ruth 4.1,2. 2 King.7.1,20. Pſal.127.5. when the country faileth through drought, the cities muſt needs faint through dearth, Eccl.5.9.

they are black unto the ground] Going in black, as mourners, Pſal.38.6. & 42. 9. Mal. 3. 14. or looking black in the face, through grief and famine, Lam.4.6. Rev.6.5. for faintneſs they hang the head, or ſink and fall down to the ground: for it is a defective, or comprehenſive form of ſpeech; not unlike thoſe, Pſal.74.7.& 89.39,44. Eſay 14.12. Lam.2.19.& 3.53.

and the cry of Jeruſalem is gone up.] That is, the cry of the people out of all parts of the country there aſſembled, to ſeek God in his Sanctuary by ſolemn prayer and ſupplication to have the preſent reſtraint removed, and the heavens opened again to them, 1 King.8.35,36. See Chap.36.9. ver.12. So 1 Sam. 5. 12. the cry of the city went up to heaven.

V. 3. And their Nobles have ſent their little ones to the waters, they came to the pits, and found no water, they returned with their veſſels empty; they were aſhamed and confounded, and covered their heads.] Or, when their Nobles had ſent their meaner ones to the waters, and they coming to the pits found no water, but returned with their empty veſſels; they were abaſhed, and confounded, and covered their heads. Of this Syntax, ſee Chap. 13.12,16.

Nobles] The great men; who if they were driven to ſuch ſtreits, for want of water, the poorer ſort much more. See Eſay 5. 13.

ſent their little ones] Or, meaner ones. Some of thoſe of the meaner ſort: their meanial or domeſtick ſervants. See Pſal. 119. 141.

to the waters] To theſe places where water was wont to be had. So Judg.7.6. or, for water; that is, to ſeek for water, where it might be found; as 1 King.18.5.

to the pits] Places hewen out, or digged, for the receiving and keeping, either of Spring water derived unto them, or ſuch rain water as fell from above, Eſay 7.3. & 22.11. Chap. 2.13.

found no water] As Eſay 41. 17. the rain being reſtrained, and the ſprings alſo that were therewith fed, dryed up, 1 King. 17.7.

they returned with their veſſels empty] As they carryed them out; not as Naomi, Ruth 1. 21. Heb. they returned their veſſels emptily, or, in vain, without effect; as 2 Sam.1.21. for the word is an adverb, and ſo in that of Ruth; either a defect of the inſtrumental note, with, which our Verſion ſupplyes; or the verb in an active notion, as ſome Jewiſh Criticks, they brought back, or returned, their veſſels empty. So 1 Sam.23.6. either, he came down with an Ephod in his hands; or, he brought down an Ephod in his hands.

they] This moſt expound of the ſervants ſent; I rather, of their Maſters that ſent them, and expected water by them, but were fruſtrate of their expectation.

were aſhamed and confounded] Or, abaſhed (which preciſely anſwereth the term in the text) and apalled: for it is not ſo much ſhame, as dejection and perplexity of ſpirit, that is wont to ſurpriſe perſons in ſuch caſes.

covered their heads] As in much grief and ſorrow the manner was in thoſe times to muffle up head and face, ſcarce leaving any ſpace free for ſight, much after the manner of cloſe mourners with us. See 2 Sam.15.30. So ver.4.

V. 4. Becauſe the ground is chapt; for there was no rain in the earth, the plow-men were aſhamed, they covered their heads.] Or, Becauſe the ground (that peculiarly which is wont to be tilled, Eſay 1. 7.) is chapt (Heb. is broken, or is waſted and ſpoyled, as Chap.48.20.) for that no rain hath been (or hath fallen) upon the land; (to wit, of Judah, as 1 King.18.1.) the husband-men (as chap.31. 24. for the word is larger then that of plow-men, Pſal.129.3.) are abaſhed, (ſo Joel 1.11.) they covered their heads, as ver.3.

V. 5. Yea, the hind alſo calved in the field, and forſook it, becauſe there was no graſs.] Yea (as Chap. 10. 7.) the hind alſo calved (Heb, brought forth; as Job 39.1,2.) in the field (not in the wild waſte) and forſook it (to wit, that which ſhe brought forth, her young, Job 39.4. (Heb. forſaking forſook, as Eccl.4.2. & 8.9. & 9.11. Eſay 43.8. & 59. 13. and a defect of the pronoun it, as chap.12.11.) becauſe there was no graſs, or tender, or green, herbage, Pſal.23.2. Eſay 66.14. So great is the drought that the very bruit beaſts, who by inſtinct of nature are very affectionate unto, and exceeding chary of their young, in which kind, concerning the hind, ſee Pliny, l.8. c.32.) have been enforced, though calving in the fields, where herbage uſually is not wanting, to leave their young, their milk being dryed up for want of moyſture, and wander to ſeek for water, or ſome green thing, where they can find either. Thus the Prophet relateth to the Lord, the poor bruit beaſts miſery ſuffering for mans ſin and iniquity; if in behalf of the guiltleſs creature, at leaſt, God may be moved to ſhew mercy to wicked man. So Joel 1.20. See Jon.4.11.

V. 6. And the wild aſſes did ſtand in the high places, they ſnuffed up the wind like dragons:] Or, The wild aſſes alſo (as Chap. 3.6.) ſtood in the high places, and ſnuſt up the wind; or, ſtand in the high places ſnuffing up the wind: as, ſtand and feed, for, ſtand feeding, Eſay 61. 5. inſtead of water thereby endeavouring to allay their inward drought and heat thence proceeding: another kind of their ſnuffing up the wind; and gales of wind are from that mentioned, Chap.2. 24. this for want of moyſture, that out of wantonneſs. And to this purpoſe, therefore, they are here ſaid, to repair and get up to the high places, in which if any where, freſh and cool ayr is to be had, that might that way give them ſome refreſhing, which in the lower grounds and valleys, neither breaths ſo freely, and is more heated with the reflexion of the ſun-beams from the higher grounds; and this place alone therefore may ſufficiently controll that learned mans conceit, who would have the word here uſed to ſignifie low places, or plains, eſpecially being compared with what himſelf hath on, Chap.4.11. See there.

like dragons] Whoſe inward drought, becauſe it is not eaſily ſlaked, ſuch of them as live in hot & dry deſarts, where uſually they moſt abound are therefore continually drawing in the ayr, wherewith alſo alone ſome of them can continue long, when they have nothing elſe to relieve them. See Ariſtotle, l.8.c.4. and Pliny, l.10.c.72. and of the word here uſed, ſee on Eſay 27.1. & 34.13.

their eyes did fail] Or, their eyes fail; being ſunk in their heads, or with faintneſs; for famine cauſeth faintneſs, and maketh the ſight fail. See 1 Sam.14.29. Lam.5.17.

becauſe there was no graſs.] Or, becauſe there is no herbage: nothing green or moyſt, to relieve or refreſh them. Of the word, ſee on chap.12.4.

V. 7. O Lord, though our iniquities teſtifie againſt us, do it for thy names ſake;] The Prophets complaint went before: his prayer now followeth, wherein he entreateth God, that although for their manifold great and grievous ſins they juſtly deſerved what they endured, yet that he would for his own names ſake ſhew mercy unto them, in removing of this heavy judgment. The onely remedy for removal of judgments, repentance and prayer: ſo ver.20-22. Lam.3.40,41.

though] Or, albeit. Heb. if; as Chap.5.2.

our iniquities teſtifie againſt us] Give in ſufficient evidence againſt us, to convince and evict us, as deſervedly ſuſtaining whatſoever we endure. Heb. anſwer; as Gen.30.33. So Exod. 20.16. ſee Eſay 3.9. & 59.12.

do it for thy names ſake] Take pity on us, and relieve us, if not for our own ſake, yet for the honour of thy mercy, and the glory of thy name: ſo Pſal.25.11. & 115.1,2. Eſay 43.25. & 48. 11. do it: a defect of the pronoun, as ver.5. forſook it: ſo Pſal. 39.9. or, work for thy names ſake, as Ezek.20.14. and then there needs no ſupply.

for our back-ſlidings are many, we have ſinned againſt thee.] Or, though our revolts are many, or great, whereby we have ſinned againſt thee. So the particle is uſed, Gen.8.21. Joſh. 17. 18. Pſal.23.4. and ſo would it be rendred in thoſe places parallel to this, Pſal.25.11. For thy names ſake, O Lord, pardon mine iniquity, though it be much, or great; and, heal my ſoul (that is, heal me) though I have ſinned againſt thee, Pſal.41.4. the defect of the relative is not unuſual: ſo chap. 8. 13. and 11.19.

V. 8. O the hope of Iſrael, the Saviour thereof in time of trouble, why ſhouldſt thou be as a ſtranger in the land, and as a wayfaring man that turneth aſide to tary for a night.] To the Prophets earneſt ſupplication in the words before-going, in this verſe, and the next, he ſubjoyneth a paſſionate, yet ſubmiſs expoſtulation, that he whom alone his people had to rely upon, and who had wont to relieve and deliver them in their diſtreſſes, ſhould now fail them, carrying himſelf towards them, as one that had little or nothing to do with them; no more regarding them, nor ſeeming to care what became of them, then ſome meer ſtranger, of a place, that he hath no relation to, nor ſetled abode in; or then a traveller of the Inne, where he lodgeth onely for a night, and careth not what become of it, when that is over, and he gone.

the hope of Iſrael] Chap.17.13. & 50.7. Pſal.22.4. For the Talmudick Doctor doth but dally with the text, who becauſe the word here uſed, doth ſometime ſignifie any place, ſea, lake, pond, or pool, wherein waters are gathered together, Gen. 1. 10. Exod.7.19. Lev.11.36. Eſay 22. 11. would have it here rendred, the pool of Iſrael, in which they are purged from their filth; according to that, Zach. 13.1. for hope, or expectation, the word is frequently uſed. 1 Chr.29.15. Ezr.10.2.

as a ſtranger] Or, ſojourner; as Exod.12.48. Lev.19.33.

that turneth aſide] So Jael to Siſera, Turn in to me, Judg.4. 18. and, let us turn into this city, Judg.19.11. whence the Latines call an Inne, diverſorium, that is, a place to turn aſide into: there is in the text a defect of the relative, as Chap.11.19. and as ver.9.

to lodge for a night] Heb. to lodge: but ſo much is implyed, as Judg.19. 11, 13. and it ſeems to have a glance at that promiſe of God, whereby he had engaged himſelf (but that engagement was conditional) to ſettle his abode among them for ever, 2 Chr.33.7,8. Pſal.132.14.

for a night] That is, but for a night, or, for a night onely; as, yeſterday, for, but of yeſterday, Job 8.9. and, a moment, for, but a moment, Pſal.30.5. and, one, for, one onely, or one alone, Eccl.4. 8,11. but the word night, is not at all in the text, which yet may well be rendred with the like ſupply, to lodge only, or but to lodge: lodging being here oppoſed to conſtant abode.

V. 9. Why ſhouldeſt thou be as a man aſtoniſhed, as a mighty man that cannot ſave?] The word uſed in the former branch, is no where found elſe in Scripture, and is by divers therefore diverſly expounded: the ancient Greek renders it aſleep, as if they had read nirdam, for nidham: the old Latine, a wanderer; on what ground I cannot gueſs. Others, as our Verſion, aſtoniſhed, or, amazed; ſtruck dumb, ſaith one, as if this, and the Hebrew dum, whence our dumb, were of an affinity: terrified, or, affrighted, ſaith another; as the word daham is uſed in the Arabick Verſion, Mat.24.39. though another, grounding, it ſeems, upon the ſame place, rendreth it, coming upon, and expounds it, as one that coming in upon one that is in danger, and expecteth help from him, either doth not, or dare not, or cannot reſcue, or relieve him. Others laſtly, as one that fainteth: and ſo one of the Jewiſh Criticks, affirming that in the Kedaren, or Arabian language, the word nidhum, which cometh very neer this, ſignifieth one, that with ſome grief, or ſickneſſe, hath his heart quailed: nor doth this ſwarve much from that which our Verſion hath, and ſeems to me moſt probable.

as a mighty man that cannot ſave] His power being ſpent; as Eſay 10.18. & 40.30. that which with God, being of infinite power, is impoſſible. See Eſay 40.28,29. & 50. 2. & 59. 1. the relative is wanting, as ver.8.

Yet thou, O Lord, art in the midſt of us,] Yet (Heb. and; as Chap.7.26.) thou art among us: as Chap.17.6. & 39.5. having thy Temple, the place of thy ſpecial preſence and reſidence, as thy court or palace, with us, ver.21. Pſal.46.5. Zach.2.5.

and we are called by thy name] We are accounted thy people, Deut.26.18. Pſal.135.4. and the evils therefore that befal us, redound to thy diſhonour, Ezek.36.20. See Numb. 14.13-16. Heb. thy name is called upon us: as Deut. 28. 10. Eſay 63.19. Chap.15.16.

leave us not.] Withdraw not thine aid from us in this our diſtreſſe, Pſal.27.9. & 38.21. & 119.8. or do not utterly caſt us off: as God ſeemed to threaten; this heavy judgment being by the Prophet apprehended, as a preſage and fore-runner of a far greater enſuing evil. See Chap.6.8.

V. 10. Thus ſaith the Lord unto this people;] Or rather, concerning this people. So is the particle uſed, Gen.20.13. Eſt. 3.2. Pſal.91.11. Eſay 8.12. & 27.2. & 56.4. and here beginneth the word mentioned, ver.1. as in way of anſwer to the Prophets ſuit and complaint. See the like, Chap.42.7. In it the Lord telleth the Prophet, that ſince this people are ſo addicted to defection from him, and going aſtray after others, either idolaters, or idols; he will not onely at the preſent diſregard them, and not hear them, or return any gratious anſwer to them, notwithſtanding all their faſtings and external humiliations, by removal of the preſent judgment; but that he is reſolved to proceed further in judgment againſt them, and by ſword, famine and peſtilence, two other evills added to this at preſent upon them, to conſume and deſtroy them: and forbiddeth the Prophet therefore any further to ſolicite him in their behalf.

Thus they] This people, whom thou moveſt me for, ver.8, 9. and he ſaith this people, as thoſe, whom God ſeemed now not to own as his. So ver.11.

have loved to wander] Or, love to wander: all their delight is in wandring, in running to and fro, this way and that way, after their copeſmates and their idols, Chap. 2. 23-25. and ſince they love wandring ſo well, they ſhall have their fill of it, Chap.15.4,7. Hoſ.9.17.

they have not refrained their feet] Or, they will not refrain, or, with-hold, (as Chap.2.20.) or, withdraw, (as Prov. 25. 17. though the word there be not the ſame) their feet; to wit, from running after ſtrange gods, and ſtrangers, Chap. 2.25.

therefore the Lord doth not accept them] Heb. and (as chap. 13.24.) the Lord (the noun for the pronoun; as ver. 1.) accepteth them not: as Hoſ.8.14. or, hath no favour, or, affection, to them, Pſal.44.3. & 85.1. or, taketh no pleaſure in them; as Pſal.147.11. & 149.4. for the ſame word is uſed in all thoſe places. See Eſay 57.6. & 65.5.

he will now remember their iniquity, and viſit their ſin.] Or, he doth now remember their iniquity; he calleth it to mind: which God is ſaid to do, when by ſome ſign he maketh it to appear, that he doth bear it in mind, though he forbear for ſome ſpace of time to diſcover his diſpleaſure, 1 King.17.18. Pſal.25.7. & 109.15. Chap.44.21,22. and will viſit their ſin, that is, puniſh them for it: as Exod.20.5. Chap.11.21.

V. 11. Then ſaid the Lord unto me] Or, Moreover, the Lord ſaid unto me. Heb. and; as Chap.1.11. & 8.4.

Pray not for this people for their good.] Heb. Make not ſupplication in behalf of this people, (ſee on ver. 10.) for good: as Neh.5.19. & 13.31. See the like inhibition, Chap.7.16. & 11.14.

V. 12. When they faſt, I will not hear their cry;] Or, Though (as Chap.12.1.) they faſt, (ſee Chap.36.9.) I will not hear their cry: whereof, ſee ver.2. The like reaſon of the ſame inhibition, ſee rendred, Chap.11.14. and the peoples expoſtulation upon Gods refuſal in ſuch caſe to hear them, Eſay 58.3.

and when they offer burnt-offering and an oblation, I will not accept them:] Or, and though (as before) they offer (Heb. make to aſcend, Eſay 56.7.) ſacrifice, or (as Chap.13.23.) oblation, (ſee Eſay 1.11,13.) I will not ſhew them any favour; as Pſal.85.1. for the word, them, may have reference as well to themſelves, as to their preſents and ſervices. So Chap.6.20. & 7.21. Eſay 1.11——15. ſacrifice, and oblation, collectively, for ſacrifices, and oblations: but there is an emphaſis in it, as if it were ſaid, not any ſacrifice, or oblation, whatſoever it be, never ſo goodly, never ſo coſtly, ſhall prevail with me to obtain any favour, or removal of evil, in their behalf. See 1 Sam.3.14.

but I will conſume them by the ſword, and by the famine, and by the peſtilence.] By further judgments added to what at preſent they endure. Three grievous evils, any one of them alone ſufficient to eat out a numerous nation, 2 Sam.24.12-14. but uſually concurring, and oft joyntly threatned, chap. 29.17,18. & 32.24,36. & 34.17. Ezek.5.17. & 6.11. & 7.15. & 14.13-21. See ver.18.

V. 13. Then ſaid I] Heb. And I ſaid. So Chap.13.7,8.

Ah Lord God, Behold, the Prophets ſay unto them; Ye ſhall not ſee the ſword, neither ſhall ye have famine;] See the like complaint of the Prophet to God, concerning theſe falſe Prophets deluding the people; and pitying the poor people deluded by them, Chap.4.10. & 23.9.

neither ſhall ye have famine] Heb. famine ſhall not be to you; no ſuch famine ſhall befall you, as theſe Prophets threaten you with, by the enemies waſting of your country, and the ſiege of your city, Chap.27.8. & 38.2.

but I will give you aſſured peace in this place.] Thus theſe wicked wretches ſpeak as in Gods name, as if God himſelf ſpake by them, Chap.23.17,31. See Chap.4.10.

aſſured peace] Heb. peace of truth. See Eſay 39. 8. and of theſe falſe Prophets promiſing the people peace, that is, proſperity and ſafety, Chap.6.14. & 8.11. & 23.17.

V. 14. Then the Lord ſaid unto me;] Heb. And; as ver.13. which may well be here retained. Gods anſwer followeth to this complaint of the Prophet concerning thoſe falſe Prophets, charging them with falſhood and abuſe of Gods name, ver.14. and threatning deſtruction both to them, ver.15. and to thoſe that are deluded by them, ver.16.

I ſent them not any ſuch errand, nor gave them no ſuch matter in charge to deliver as from me; as chap. 1.17. See Chap.23.21,32. & 29.9.

they propheſie unto you a falſe viſion and divination, and a thing of nought, and the deceit of their heart.] Heb. a viſion of falſhood, or, a lie, (as in the former branch, and Zach.10.2.) and a divination and a thing of nought, and the deceit of their heart; or, and a divination nought-worth, (as, a cloud and ſmoak, for, a cloud of ſmoak, or, a ſmoaky cloud, Eſay 4.5. and, a ſign and a witneſſe, for, a witneſſing ſign, Eſay 19.20. and, peace and truth, for, peace of truth, as ver.13. or, aſſured peace, Eſay 39. 8.) even (as Chap.13.13.) the deceit, or, deceitful device; as Dan.11.25.) of their own (as Eſay 56.11. & 57.17. V. 15. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord concerning the Prophets, that propheſie in my name and I ſent them not,] Or, when as I ſent them not, as Chap.6.14. & 9.8.

Yet they ſay] Heb. and (as ver.9.) they are ſaying: this is that, which they are ſtill telling the people; the pronoun demonſtrative including the verb ſubſtantive; as Chap. 17.15.

ſword and famine ſhall not be in the land] Neither war nor famine procured by it, or accompanying it: as Chap.42.14.

V. 16. And the people to whom they propheſie ſhall be caſt out in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, becauſe of the ſword and the famine, and they ſhall have none to bury them, their wives, nor their ſons, nor their daughters] The people deluded by them ſhall periſh together with them, and find too late by wofull experience, what wicked impoſters they were. So Chap.20.6.

V. 17. Therefore ſhalt thou ſay this word unto them;] Heb. And (as ver.10.) thou ſhalt ſay this word; that is, Say thou, or, ſpeak, on this wiſe to them: as Chap.13.12.

Let mine eyes run down with tears night and day, and let them not ceaſe;] Or, Mine eyes ſhall run down with tears night and day, and ſhall not ceaſe. Let them know that howſoever the falſe Prophets feed and flatter them with vain promiſes of aſſured peace and ſafety; and bear them in hand that all ſhall go well with them, ver.13. Yet that thou foreſeeing, and being well aſſured of what evils were preparing for them, and would certainly ſurprize them, if not ſpeedily prevented, canſt do no other then abandon thy ſelf unto an inceſſant mourning for them; if thou mayſt thereby provoke them unto the like. See Chap.9.1. & 13.17. Lam.1.16. & 2.18.

V. 18. If I go forth into the field, then behold the ſlain with the ſword; and if I enter into the city, then behold them that are ſick with famine.] The Prophet to ſhew them what cauſe he had thus to lament, ſpeaketh as already preſent at the ſiege of the city; and as if, whitherſoever he betook himſelf, he had nothing but ſad ſpectacles, and objects of much grief in his eye; without the city, of men ſlain by the enemies ſword; within the city, of people periſhing for want of food. them that are ſick with famine] Heb. ſickneſſes, or diſeaſes, of famine: for ſo the word being a ſubſtantive properly ſignifieth, 2 Cor.21.19. chap.16.4. the adjunct for the ſubject; as Prov.14.1. Dan.9.23. there is in the original an elegant conſonancy between the terms of ſick, and ſlain: the word ſlain, is uſed of the famiſhed alſo, Lam.4.9.

Yea both the Prophet and the Prieſt go about into a land that they know not.] Heb. yea (as ver.5.) alſo Prophet alſo Prieſt, that is, as well the falſe Prophets as the Prieſts, who had both conſpired together in deluding the people, and in oppoſing Gods true Prophets, (Chap.5.31. & 26.6.) ſhall be led captive into a remote land, into a ſtrange country where they had never been before, Chap. 15.14. This, ſay the Jewiſh Doctors, was fulfilled in the captivity under Jehojacin; of whom the like is ſaid, Chap.22.26,28. for with him were the moſt of any note in the State carried captive to Babylon, 2 King. 24. 14-16. and that there were ſome of theſe falſe Prophets among the reſt; (for of the Prieſts need no doubt be made) they ſuppoſe to appear, nor ſeems it improbable, by what we find Chap.29.8,15,21. and then indeed it is not unlikely that this was in part executed; though more fully under Zedekiah afterward accompliſhed. See Chap.20.6.& 52.24. and it is ſaid, ſay they, Go about, to note the length of the way, and the remoteneſſe of the place, whither they were to be carried: for thoſe that take long journeys, cannot alwayes go ſtrait on, but are enforced oft to fetch a compaſſe, and to go far about: and according to this expoſition, (which I conceive to be moſt probable) the copulative in the laſt clauſe ſhould be uſed for the relative; as oft-times it is: (ſee Eſay 49.7. chap.4.16.) for the Hebrew is, and they know not, or, knew not, or, ſhall not know. Whence ſome expound it, admitting the former Interpretation for the reſidue of the text; and yet for all this they ſhall not underſtand, or take notice of Gods juſt judgment upon them for their wicked courſes, (as Eſay 42.25.) but perſiſt ſtill in the ſame, Chap.29.8. Others, they ſhall wander up and down the country ſeeking for relief and refuge; being at their wits end, and not knowing what to do; as Eſay 8.21. See chap.4.9. Howbeit, becauſe the word here found is uſed frequently for merchants, Gen.23.16. Eſay 23.8. ſo called, becauſe they go to and fro from place to place with their wares. Some read the words, they ſhall go up and down trading in a ſtrange land: and ſome others of prime note, they make merchandiſe (not unlike the phraſe that the Apoſtle uſeth, 2 Cor.2.17. that is, to eat upon the people, and make a prey of them, pretend to have viſions and revelations from God, chap.23.25-27,30-32. Mic. 3.5.) againſt the land; (as the particle is uſed, chap. 1.19. & 15.20. to the ruine and deſtruction of it, Lam.2.14.) and they know it not: the people are not aware of it, apprehend it not, take no notice of it: or, becauſe the verb is indefinite, it is not known: their knavery is not diſcovered. But this ſeems a more forced interpretation then the former. Thus they that expound this of the wicked Prieſts, and falſe Prophets. Yet becauſe it may ſeem to be no matter of grief, ſuch eſpecially as the Prophet ſhould ſo much bewail, that Prieſts and Prophets ſo qualified, ſhould ſuſtain what they moſt juſtly deſerved; a learned late Writer would have it meant of Gods true Prophets, as Ezekiel and Daniel, that were alſo carried away captive into Chaldea, Ezek.1.1-3. Dan.1.3,6. or of the Prieſts onely, but thoſe of two ſorts; ſuch of them, as were employed moſt about ſacrifice and prayer, called here Prieſts; and ſuch of them, as were taken up with ſong and matter of praiſe, termed Prophets both here, and 1 Chr.25.1. But I ſee no reaſon of relinquiſhing the foregoing Interpretation; ſince that the Prophet might very well intermix together with the miſeries of his people, which juſtly alſo befel them, being the main matter of his grief, the deſerved judgment of God, which ſhould be inflicted upon thoſe by whom they had been ſeduced, as God himſelf in his ſpeech to him had before joyned them together, ver. 15, 16. Howbeit a learned late Writer, underſtanding this paſſage of the preſent famine, rendreth it, even the Prophet, even the Prieſt, (whom for their place and employment, ſhould of all others be relieved and ſupplyed with all neceſſaries) go to and fro in the land, (ſeeking for relief) and men know them not; that is, they are not regarded, nor notice taken of them; the famine is ſo general, and ſo great: the verb taken indefinitely; and rendred therefore paſſively; as the like, Job 7.3. but the ſword joyned with the famine here, confirmeth me in my firſt judgement.

V. 19. Haſt thou utterly rejected Judah] The Prophet after his profeſſed lamentation for the calamities of his people, impendent and imminent, but which he beheld and conſidered as incumbent and preſent; doth now return again unto God, directing his ſpeech unto him, as before, ver.7-9. by way of complaint, expoſtulation, confeſſion of ſin, ſupplication for mercy in the behalf of his people, and profeſſion of a conſtant purpoſe of dependance upon him, as in the perſon of the better ſort among them. Thus the Prophet yet ceaſeth not to ſolicite God for them, notwithſtanding that inhibition, ver. 11. as did Moſes before him, Exod.32.10,11,31. Haſt thou utterly rejected Judah? or, wilt thou utterly reject Judah? Art thou reſolved to deal with Judah, as thou haſt done with Iſrael, the other ten tribes? Chap.3.8. Heb. Haſt thou rejecting rejected? or, wilt thou rejecting reject? Lam. 5.22. See Pſal. 89.38.

hath thy ſoul loathed Zion?] Or, Doth thy ſoul (that is, doſt thou? as chap.6.8. & 12.7. & 13.17.) loath (as Zach. 11. 8. Pſal.11.5. Eſay 1.14.) Sion; the place that thou formerly ſo much delightedſt in, Pſal. 132. 13, 14. but the people here principally intended. See Chap.15.1. and this threatned, Lev.26.30.

why haſt thou ſmitten us, and there is no healing for us?] Or, ſo that there is no healing for us? as chap. 11.19,21. or, that there can be no curing of us; as chap.15.1. See chap. 8. 22. & 15.18.

we looked for peace, and there is no good; and for a time of healing, and behold trouble.] See the ſame, chap.8.15. ſee alſo, chap.13.16. Lam.4.17.

V. 20. We acknowledge, O Lord, our wickedneſſe, and the iniquity of our fathers; for we have ſinned againſt thee.] In theſe words the Prophet, as ſome conceive, would teach the people and preſcribe them a form of prayer, which they might uſe, humbling themſelves, in the time of their diſtreſſe; as Hoſ. 14.2. But I ſuppoſe it rather the Prophets own prayer, at preſent conceived in the perſon of the godly, which the Lord had among that people, as a ſmall quantity of good grain intermingled with, and buried in, an huge heap of chaff and traſh. See the like confeſſions, Chap. 3. 25. Pſal. 106. 6. Dan.9.8.

We acknowledge] Heb. we know; as Pſal.51.3. Eſay 59.12. So chap.3.13.

for we have ſinned againſt thee.] As it is rendred alſo, Pſal. 41.4. or, we acknowledge, that we have ſinned againſt thee: as the particle is uſed, chap.4 18. & 12.19.

V. 21. Do not abhor us for thy Names ſake;] Though for our ſins (we confeſſe it) we deſerve that thou ſhouldeſt. See on ver. 7.

abhor us] Or, it; to wit, Sion, ver.19. becauſe ſpeech of the Temple followeth; howſoever, a defect of the pronoun; as Eſay 37.1,9. Chap.15.14.

do not diſgrace the throne of thy glory] Or, thy throne of glory; as, thy hill of holineſſe, Pſal.15.1. that is, thy glorious throne, as 1 Sam.2.8. Eſay 22.23 Either Jeruſalem the ſeat of Davids Throne, chap.3.17. called alſo the Throne of God, 1 Chr.29. 23. or rather the Temple and the Ark in it, the place of Gods ſpecial preſence among his people; and his Chair of ſtate, Pſal.80.1. ver.7. See Chap.17.12. though we by our ſins have deſerved to be deſtroyed, yet ſuffer not thine own throne to be diſgracefully uſed, and thy ſelf to be diſparaged and diſhonoured therein. See Eſay 63.18. & 64.10,11. Pſal. 74.3—8.

remember, break not thy covenant with us.] Remember thy congregation; as Pſal. 74. 2. or, thy covenant, from the next branch; as Pſal.74.20. & 106.15. break not thy covenant with us: as they complain, Pſal. 89. 39. Howbeit, God never breaketh covenant with thoſe that continue loyall, and are careful to keep covenant with him, 1 King. 8. 23, Pſal. 103. 17, 18.

V. 22. Are there among the vanities of the Gentiles, that can cauſe rain? or can the heavens give ſhowres?] Neither are any of the heathen idols, Zach.10.2. nor the creature above of it ſelf, able to afford the earth a drop of rain, unleſſe God pleaſe thereby to give it. can the heavens give ſhowres?] Without thy proviſion, or permiſſion? God muſt hear the heavens, ere the heavens can the earth, Hoſ. 2. 21. Heb. ſhall, or, will, they give ſhowres? but the word is in a potential notion; as the like, chap.13.23. Of the word ſhowres, ſee chap.3.3.

Art not thou he, O Lord our God?] Either, Art not thou, O Lord, our God? the pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive; as Pſal.44.4. thou alone art our God, who in all our neceſſities we are to repair unto, and who alone art able to relieve us, Pſal.65.2,5. or, Art not thou he that giveth rain, or that maketh to rain? ſupplyed from one of the former branches; that canſt give it, and ſupply our want of it when thou pleaſeſt, 1 King.17.1. & 18.1.

therefore we will wait upon thee] Heb. and; as ver. 10, 16. we will ſeek to no other but to thee for it, in this our preſent want and diſtreſſe, Zach.10.1. and wait patiently untill thou be pleaſed to afford us this mercy, Eſay 8.17. & 30.18.

for thou haſt made all theſe things.] Rev.4.11. and having at firſt made them, doſt at thy pleaſure diſpoſe of them, Pſal. 135.6,7. they being all at thy command, Pſal.119.91.& 148. 5,6,8. or, thou doſt, or, workeſt, (as ver.7.) all theſe things: thou reſtraineſt rain, and giveſt it, when and how thou ſeeſt good, Pſal.65.9,10. & 147.8. See Zach. 11, 12. And this whole paſſage evidently evinceth, that this Prophecy was delivered in the time of a great drought.

CHAP. XV.

Verſ. 1. THen ſaid the Lord unto me; Though Moſes and Samuel ſtood before me, Yet my mind could not be towards this people:] The dependance of this Chapter upon the former (for they make up both one continued diſcourſe) ſtandeth thus: The Prophet had complained to God of the grievous judgment of drought then preſent, and moved him in his peoples behalf, for the removal of it, Chap. 14. 2-9. God hereupon telleth the Prophet, that he was ſo far from granting what he requeſted for them, that he was reſolved for their leaving him, to leave them, to expell them out of their land, ver. 10. and inſtead of removing the preſent judgment, to conſume them by other additionals to it, ver. 12. and forbiddeth the Prophet therefore to move him any further for them, ver. 11. The Prophet neverthelesse returneth to his wonted courſe of ſoliciting God earneſtly for them; entreating him, that he would not yet utterly caſt them off, or loath and abhor them, ver. 19, 21. And to this branch of his ſuit the Lord here returneth this anſwer, containing a cloſe, but flat denial of his ſuit; that his affection is ſo alienated from them, that though Moſes and Samuel, perſons ſo gracious with him, that at their requeſt he had oft ſpared this people, and granted what in behalf of them they deſired, Pſal. 99. 6, 8. were now ſurviving, and ſhould intercede for them, yet they ſhould not prevail to win or turn his heart to them; and it was in vain therefore for the Prophet to ſolicite him any further in their behalf. See the like, Ezek. 14. 14. Such an height of diſaffection toward perſons and people, may God be wrought and brought unto, by their obſtinate perſiſtance in croſs and crooked courſes, after all means uſed to reclaim and reduce them from the ſame, that no interceſſion of any ſhall avail, to find favour, or obtain mercy, at the hand of God, for them. The Prophet is ſaid to do, what by him God declareth and denounceth to be done: ſee chap. 1. 10. & 6. 11.

V. 2. And it ſhall came to paſs, if they ſay unto thee, Whither ſhall we go forth? then ſhalt thou tell them; Thus ſaith the Lord, Such as are for death to death; and ſuch as are for the ſword to the ſword; and ſuch as are for the famine to the famine; and ſuch as are for the captivity to the captivity.] To that heavy doom paſt upon this people, ver. 1. the Lord here ſubjoyneth, what the iſſue and effect of it ſhould be when they ſhould be thus caſt out of Gods gracious ſight, and gone out of his protecting preſence: as Gen. 4. 16. to wit, that they ſhould be expoſed to thoſe formerly denounced evils, ſome to one kind of them, ſome to another, accordingly as God had deſigned them thereunto, Chap. 14. 12. ſee Chap. 43. 11. Ezek. 14. 21. and theſe four, ſay the Rabbines, riſe by degrees: the ſword more grievous then the peſtilence, 2 Sam. 24. 13, 14. the famine then the ſword, Lam. 4. 9 captivity then any of them, being an evill of more length, and expoſing to all kind of calamity, Lev. 26. 39 Deut. 28. 48, 65-67.

it ſhall come to paſs] Heb. it ſhall be, as chap. 3. 16.

if they ſay] Or, when they ſhall ſay; as chap. 5. 19. where the particle is the ſame.

whither ſhall we go forth?] Or, ſimply go; as Gen. 4. 16. & 10. 11. 2 King. 5. 26. Zach. 6. 8.

for death to death] Death, for, the peſtilence; diſtinguiſhed from thoſe other kinds of death, by the ſword and famine; as alſo, Rev. 8. 5. ſo chap. 14. 12. Mat. 24. 7. death by diſeaſes; as ch. 16. 4. diverſe from death by ſlaughter, Ezek. 28. 8. See chap. 18. 21.

for the ſword to the ſword].] The ſword; becauſe a principal and moſt general weapon of offence, put for all other of that kind; as Gen. 27. 40. and death by the ſword, for a violent death from the force of an enemy, by what means ſoever effected; as Eſay 1. 20.

V. 3. And I will appoint over them four kinds, ſaith the Lord; the ſword to ſlay, and the dogs to tear, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beaſts of the earth, to devour and deſtroy:] I will appoint, or, ſet over them; as Lev. 26. 16. a borrowed ſpeech from officers ſet over people, or perſons, and appointed how to handle them, and deal with them, Exod. 1. 11.

four kinds] Of penalties. Heb. four families.

dogs to tear] Heb. to draw, or, drag, Chap. 49. 20. uſed of a corpſe or carcaſs, Chap. 22. 19.

fowls of the heaven] Heb. fowl, collectively: and heaven, for, ayr, as Chap. 4. 25.

beaſts to devour, and to deſtroy] Heb. beaſt; as, fowl, collectively: here for wild beaſts, ſuch as are wont both to aſſayl and wory living perſons, even unto death, and to prey alſo upon the dead. So Deut. 28. 26. Eſay 18. 6. ſee 1 King. 14. 11. & 21. 23, 24. 2 King. 9. 35, 36. Chap. 12. 9. Lev. 26. 22. Ezek. 14. 15.

V. 4. And I will cauſe them to be removed into all Kingdoms of the earth] Heb. I will give them for a removing. So chap. 24. 9. & 29. 18. & 34. 17. Ezek. 23. 46. See Deut. 28. 25. for thoſe that render it, wandring; as from Gen. 4. 14. chap. 14. 10. miſtake the root. The former threatning concerned thoſe that were deſigned to death; this, thoſe that were to go into captivity, ver. 2. that they ſhould be diſperſed into ſeverall Regions and countries one from another. See chap. 9. 16. & 13. 24. ver. 7. Deut. 28. 64. Ezek. 5. 12. & 12. 14.

becauſe of Manaſſeh the ſon of Hezekiah King of Judah, for that which he did in Jeruſalem.] That is, ſay ſome, ſuch ſins as his were; to wit, idolatry and murther, 2 King. 21. 2-7, 16. See chap. 2. 28, 34. ſo it ſhould be like that, 2 Pet. 2. 15. Jud. 11. or rather, as others, the ſins that Manaſſes did himſelf commit, and the people partaked with him, and imitated him in, 2 King. 21. 9, 11. and which albeit he repented of, 2 Chr. 33. 12, 13. yet the people were never truly humbled for, Chap. 44. 10. nor ſincerely reclaimed from them, chap. 3. 10. ſee 2 King. 23. 26, 27. & 24. 3, 4. See the like of Jeroboam, 1 King. 14. 15, 16.

the ſon of Hezekiah] But one altogether unlike his father, and that reverſed what had been by him well done, 1 King. 21. 3.

V. 5. For who ſhall have pity upon thee, O Jeruſalem? or, who ſhall bemoan thee? or who ſhall go aſide to ask how thou doſt?] So Eſay 51. 19. Nah. 3. 7. intimating, that ſhe ſhould be left in a forlorn condition, friendleſs, helpleſs, and comfortleſs, deſerted by all, and failing even of ſuch offices, as men are wont to afford even to meer ſtrangers in miſery. See Lam. 1. 2.

For] Or, But; as ſome: and ſo is the particle uſed, chap. 14. 12, 13. or, yet; as Job 5. 7. Eſay 49. 25.

have pity on thee] Shew any favour or mercy to thee. See 2 Chr. 36. 16, 17.

bemoan thee] Condole with thee, and ſeek to comfort thee, though they cannot otherwiſe help or relieve thee: as Job 2. 11. So Nah. 3. 7.

go aſide to ask how thou doſt.] So much as turn in, as they paſs by, to enquire how it fareth with thee. Heb. to ask of thy peace; as 1 Sam. 25. 5, 14. 2 Sam. 8. 10. For they miſtake the form, who underſtand it of praying for her peace, Pſal. 122. 6.

V. 6. Thou haſt forſaken me, ſaith the Lord.] See the ſame plea againſt them, chap. 1. 16. & 2. 13, 19, 32.

thou art gone backward.] See chap. 7. 24.

therefore will I ſtretch out mine hand againſt thee, and deſtroy thee] Heb. And; as chap. 14. 16, 22. See Chap. 9. 16. Job 6. 9.

I am weary with repenting.] Or, of repenting; as Eſay 1. 14. I am weary of reverſing or ſtaying the execution of ſuch dooms and denunciations, as from time to time have been paſt upon thee for thy wicked courſes; and reprieving thee, from the deſtruction pronounced againſt thee, upon thy formal reformation, and feigned repentance. I am now reſolved to forbear and ſpare thee no longer. So Gen. 6. 3, 6, 7. Pſal. 78. 36-38, 56-64. Chap. 4. 28.

V. 7. And I will fan them with a fan in the gates of the land;] Or, into (as Eſay 30. 29.) the gates of the earth; that is, of the wide world: that gates are here put for cities, or, coaſts, as Ch. 14. 2. is agreed. But thoſe that follow the former Verſion, ſuppoſe the place deſigned, from whence they ſhould be driven away and removed, to wit, out of the cities and coaſts of Judea : and ſo there may ſeem an alluſion to the place where men uſe to fan or winnow their grain, to wit, in the dore uſually of their garners, or barns. Thoſe that take to the latter, (wherein they have the Chaldee, and the Jewiſh Doctors, going before them) conceive reference to be had unto the places, into which they were to be driven and diſperſed, to wit, into the cities, regions, coaſts, and quarters, of the wide world; as ver.4. ſee Lev.26.33. chap.9.16. & 10.18. howſoever, they ſeem to be wide here, who would have the fanning here ſpoken of, to be a cleanſing onely, and purging fan, by which God had aſſayed to ſever them and their wickedneſs, but in vain, the one from the other, chap.6.29, 30. that this was no ſuch fanning, but ſuch a fanning as ſhould carry all away before it : ſee chap.4.11. ſuch as that, chap.51.2.

I will bereave them of children, I will deſtroy my people:] According to this reading, the pronoun is wanting, to be ſupplyed from the former branch, as chap.13.19. but the text without it may well be read, I will bereave, or, waſte, and deſtroy this people : bereave of their children, as Gen.42.26. Hoſ.9.12. (though that be not in the text) or, waſte and conſume: for the word is of a far larger extent. See Lev.26.22. (where, of your children, is groundleſly put in, as here) Deut.32.25. (where it is extended to old as well as young, and it is rendred, deſtroy) Lam.1.20. Ezek.5.17. & 14.15. in all which places it is rendred without that addition, either bereave, or ſpoyl: I will waſte and deſtroy my people ; or, waſte them untill they be deſtroyed : ſee chap.14.15, 16. ver.3, 6.

my people] Not, this people ; as before, ver.1. to let them know, that that priviledg of being called and accounted his people, ſhould not ſecure them, nor ſave them from deſtruction, See Chap.12.7.

ſith they return not from their ways.] Or, becauſe they return not from their ways, from their wicked courſes, but perſiſt obſtinately in them, Chap.8.4, 5. the particle is wanting, which ſome therefore otherwiſe ſupply, rendring the text, yet (as Chap.15.1.) they return not from their ways, and the words foregoing in the time paſt ; though, (as Chap.3.1.) I have fanned them, and waſted, and deſtroyed them yet (as ver. 10) they return not ; they are not reclaimed, they are never the better, for all that hath been done to them already ; So Eſay 1.5, 6. Chap.5.3. And this theſe Jewiſh Doctors that go this way, underſtand of the ten tribes carried away captive by Salmaneſer, 2 Kings 17.6. by whoſe ruine, the other two ſhould have taken warning, but would not, Chap.3.10. but this is very improbable. Others, with more probability ſuppoſe it to have referenee to thoſe calamities, that had befallen them by Pharao-Necho at the death of Joſiah, when many of them in likelihood were deſtroyed, and the land afterward pillaged, 2 Kings 23.29, 33. or to the evils that they ſuſtained by Nebuchadnezzar, under Jehojakim and Jehojacin, 2 Kings 24.2-16. but neither do we read of any ſuch diſpertion, as is here intimated, effected, either by the Egyptian, or by the Chaldean under Jehojakim, and for that deportation under Jehojacin, it is ſuppoſed to have been later then the date of this propheſie, See Chap.14.1.

V. 8. Their widows are encreaſed to me, above the ſand of the ſeas.] Heb. are many, or, more in number (as Pſal.40.5, 12. & 69.4. their husbands being either ſlain, or otherwiſe deſtroyed, Chap.18.21.) then the ſand of the ſeas. A proverbiall form of ſpeech, in an hyperbolicall or exceſſive expreſſion, intimating a numberleſs number, or exceeding great multitude of ought, not eaſie, if at all to be numbred, So Gen.22.17. & 32.12. & 41.49. Pſal.139.18. Eſay 10.22. The words, as the former, ver.7. are conceived in the time paſt, but if ſo rendred, it muſt of neceſſity be underſtood after the Prophets uſuall manner, ſpeaking of things future, as paſt or preſent ; for we read not of any ſuch havock in Jeremies time made of this people, before that under Zedekiah, for they ſeem to run too high, that would carry it up to Ahaz his time, 2 Chron.28.5-8. as do ſome of the Jewiſh Writers: nor ſee I therefore, why the words may not be rendred here in the future, as well as in the verſe foregoing : as, I will fan, I will bereave, or, waſte ; I will deſtroy there : ſo here, their wives ſhall be more in number, then the ſand of the ſeas ; as the red-ſea, the midland-ſea, and the like, Pſal.104.25. & 114.3.

to me] That is, ſay ſome, from me ; by my juſt judgment executed upon them : as, bleſſed of, or, from the Lord, 1 Sam. 23.21. and, ſalvation is of, or, from, the Lord, Pſal.3.8. for the particle is in theſe places the ſame. Others, before me, or, in my ſight. But I conceive it rather, to be only an elegant redundancy and fineneſs of ſpeech, the like whereunto, See Gen.22.11. compared with Act.7.3. Exod.18.27. Cant.4.6. Eſay 22.15. Chap.22.6.

I have brought upon them, againſt the mother of the young-men, a ſpoiler at noon-day.] Howſoever theſe words be read, as they are diverſly rendred ; that they are ment of Nebuchadnezzar, is in a manner generally agreed ; which may be good direction unto us, for the right rendring of the former paſſages.

I have brought] Or, I will bring ; as Chap.49.8. Ezek. 14.21.

upon them] Heb. to, or, unto them ; as Obad 5. that is, either upon them, as Eſay 3.26. & 26.9. or, againſt them ; as Chap.3.25. Howbeit, it may be no other then a redundant elegancy, as that in the foregoing branch.

againſt the mother of the young men] Heb. young-man, or, a young-man ; and here the Interpreters are divided, and go divers ſeverall ways : Some render it, againſt the mothers of the young-men, taking both mother and young-man collectively, and they thus expound it ; the women ſhall be deprived of their husbands, and the young-men of their mothers : others againſt the aſſembly of the young-men, Chap.6.11. becauſe from the word mother, come ſome terms that ſignifie company, family, or, people. So the Chaldee, and ſome Jewiſh Commenters treading in his ſteps ; others, againſt the mother, and, the young men ; that is, againſt both parents and children, 2 Chron.36.17. Chap.6.11. & 13.14. & 14.16 Others, againſt the mother of the young-men, as our verſion rendreth it, that is, againſt Jeruſalem that hath heretofore bred many choice young men, Eſay 51.18. Others, a ſpoyler of young-men ; one that ſhall ſpoyl and make havock of them, drawing in hither the word following, but by a trajection overſharſh. Others laſtly, againſt the mother, (that is, againſt Jeruſalem, the Metropolis, or, Mother-city ; as Eſay 50.1. alluded to Gal.4.26.) a young-man, or, a choice young-man ; as the word originally intimateth, Chap.49.19. & 50.44. Where it is uſed of Cyrus as many conceive. So is Nebuchadnezzar here termed, becauſe he ſeems to have been in the flower of his youth, and at the height of his ſtrength, when he came againſt Jeruſalem. See Chap.4.7. and this laſt I concur with, becauſe the words of the text do moſt freely yield it, and the points or pauſes alſo go with it.

a ſpoyler at noon-day] One that ſhall aſſault it ; not as a thiefe by night in the dark, Chap.49.9. 1 Theſſ.5.2. Rev.3. 3. & 16.15. but as an high-way man that robbeth openly at noon-day, Chap.6.4. Zeph.2.4.

I have cauſed him to fall upon it ſuddainly, and terrours upon the city.] Theſe words are likewiſe very diverſly rendred. I ſhall omit ſome verſions, becauſe they cannot be fitted to the terms of the text : the main difficulty and difference in the reſt, is about the word rendred city, as it moſt uſually ſignifieth, which ſignification thoſe that retain, here render the text, either as our verſion doth, and terrours upon the city ; or, becauſe the words lye otherwiſe in the Hebrew, as others, deſolation of city, or, cities, and terrours. But becauſe this latter maketh ſomewhat an uncouth inſertion, as the former ſeemed to do an over-harſh trajection. Some would have the word city to be put abſolutely, rendring the words, as for the city, there ſhall be terrours ; or, as others again, the city and terrours ; that is, the city ſhall abound with, or be full of terrours ; as it is all oppreſſion, that is, it aboundeth with, or is full of oppreſſion, Chap.6.6. But becauſe thoſe alſo ſeem ſomewhat forced, others therefore ſeek ſome other ſignification for the word rendred city : and here the Jewiſh Criticks ſuggeſt us, two divers ſenſes of the word ; the former from thoſe places, where the word in the plurall form at leaſt, hath the notion of an enemy, 1 Sam.28.16. Pſal.139.20. Dan.4.19. and theſe render the text, I will cauſe to fall upon her ſuddainly, an enemy and terrours, as, the ſpoyler is fallen upon thy fruits, Chap.48.32. and terrour and trembling is fallen upon me, Pſal.55.5. the latter, becauſe the word cometh of a root that ſignifieth to raiſe, or, rouſe, Chap.6.22. & 25.32. would have it rather to ſignifie, a tumult ; and this ſome Interpreters of the beſt note with us follow ; inſtead of enemy, rendring it tumults and terrours. To theſe two, a Learned late Annotator addeth a third, he conceiveth the word here uſed to be a Chaldee term, by change of a letter, framed from an Hebrew word that ſignifieth pain, or, torment, Eſay 21.3. & 13.8. and of ſuch enterchange of letters he giveth ſome inſtances, in this very word; for an Angell, or, Meſſenger, Dan 4.13. from the Hebrew term, for a meſſenger, Rev.25.13. Ch.49.14. Obad 1. and in that for the earth, Ch.10.11. Hence he rendreth the text, I will cauſe to fall upon her pain, or, torment and terrors. And theſe three laſt ſeem leaſt of any to force the text; all that can be objected againſt them is, that the word it ſelf is no where found in either of the two latter notions, nor the ſingular form at all in the firſt ; I ſhall therefore take the boldneſs amidſt this variety and diverſity, to ſubjoyn mine own conjecture ; the word preciſely the ſame is uſed for a watcher, Dan.4.13.23. and to the ſame effect with a very ſlight alteration, Cant.5.2. Mat.2.12. I ſuppoſe therefore that the text may well thus be rendred; I will cauſe to fall upon her (that is, upon Jeruſalem the mother-city) ſuddainly a watcher and terrours ; that is, ſuch a watcher, or ſuch watchers, (the word being collectively taken) as ſhall fill them with affrightment ; that the Chaldean forces ſet down before Jeruſalem, are compared to watchers, and are ſo ſtyled, though by another term, See Chap.4.16, 17. & 5. 6. and of the terrours that upon their approach ſhould ſurpriſe them ; See Chap.4.9. & 6.25.

V. 9. She that hath born ſeven languiſheth, ſhe hath given up the ghoſt.] Jeruſalem, that formerly had bred up ſo many children, (ſeven, for many, as Lev.26.18,24,28. 1 Sam.2.5. Job 5.19. Pſal.119.164.) now fainteth and faileth, is clean ſpent ; both bereaved of thoſe ſhe had, and unable to breed any more, See 1 Sam.2.5. Eſay 23.4. & 51.18-20.

her ſun is gone down, while it was yet day] Or, the ſun is ſet with her while it is yet day ; before the day is at an end, or the the time of evening yet come. Amidſt the height of her proſperity, and imaginary ſecurity ſhe is ſuddainly fallen. So, the Sun ſhall go down with them at noon-day, when they leaſt dream off, or look for any ſun-ſet, any fall, Amos 8.9. See alſo Eſay 13.10. & 59.10.

ſhe hath been aſhamed and confounded] Or, ſhe is abaſhed and confounded; as Chap.2.26,36. & 3.25. & 14.3.

and the reſidue of them, I will deliver to the ſword before their enemies, ſaith the Lord] That is, Judah and Benjamin, the two tribes that remain of that ſtock, ſaith one of the Jewiſh Commenters, Chap.13.11. their children, as the word is uſed, Eſay 14.22. ſaith another, thoſe that are not carried captive, ſaith a third ; applying it to thoſe put at Riblah to death, in ſight of the Chaldean tyrant, Chap.52. 10,27. as ſome other, to thoſe that were ſlain with Gedaliah, 2 King. 25.25. Chap.41.3. of ours, thoſe, ſay ſome, that fell not in the firſt encounter ; others, ſuch of them, as eſcaped the famine and peſtilence, by which many periſhed in the ſiege of the city, ſhall be expoſed to the enemies ſword : and this laſt ſeems the moſt likely. See Chap.14.12. ver.2.

V. 10. Wo is me my mother, that thou haſt born me, a man of ſtrife, and a man of contention, to the whole earth :] The latter part of this Chapter is ſpent in a communication or conference between God and the Prophet; not unlike to that, chap. 11 20——12.9. It beginneth with the Prophets complaint, (not wholly free from ſome tang and taint of diſcontent and diſtemper thence ariſing) of the general harſh uſage and croſs carriage that he had met with, for no other cauſe, then for the free and faithful diſcharge of his duty in the work of his miniſtery. See the like, Chap.17.15-18. & 20.14-18.

Wo is me,] An uſual form of lamentation. See Chap. 4. 31.

that thou haſt born me] Or, that ever thou didſt bear me, Chap.20.17,18.

a man of ſtrife and a man of contention to the whole earth] Or, land, rather ; as Chap.3.1. ver.14. not, a man of ſtrife, that is, a contentious perſon, a man given to ſtrife and contention ; one that ſtriveth and contendeth with every one : as Eſay 41.11. Job 31.35. but one whom the people do all generally oppoſe, whom the whole land ſtriveth and contendeth with. So Judg.12.2. the lot, as of Chriſt himſelf, when he was here upon earth, Pſal.2.1,2. Luk. 2.34. Act. 4. 27. ſo of his Miniſters and meſſengers, Luk.21.17. Act.28.22.

I have neither lent on uſury ; nor have men lent to me on uſury ; yet every one doth curſe me] Or, I have not lent to them, or, to any of them, nor have they lent to me ; for the word is more general, extending it ſelf unto any creditor or debtor, on any terms whatſoever. See Deut.15.2. & 24.10,11. 1 Sam. 22.2. 2 King.4.1. Eſay 24.2. and ſo the Jewiſh Doctor here expoundeth it : for uſury among themſelves was forbidden the Jews, Deut.23.19. there hath been no ſuch pecuniary contracts or dealings in money-matters between me and any of them, as are wont to breed difference and controverſie between man and man.

yet every one of them curſeth me.] Heb. is curſing me ; a defect of the diſcretive, as ver.1. or of the particle foregoing in the ſame notion, as it was there uſed, as Eſay 10.20. and ſo it may alſo here be rendred, that every one of them ſhould be curſing me ; as daily they do.

V. 11. The Lord ſaid ;] Gods anſwer to the Prophet, comforting and encouraging him againſt theſe his troubleſome, diſtracting, and diſquieting thoughts.

verily it ſhall be well with thy remnant] Heb. if it be not well ; a defective ſpeech in the nature of an oath ; and the like in the next branch : as if he had ſaid, Let me not be deemed a God of my word, or true and faithful in what I ſay or promiſe, if it be not ſo. See the like, 1 King.20.23. Pſal.89.35. & 95.11. & 131.2. Eſay 5.9. & 14.24.

with thy remnant] Heb. if thy remnant, or, reſidue, be not to, or, for, good : by his remnant, or, reſidue, underſtanding not his iſſue ; for it is not likely that he had any, Chap.16.2. but the remainder of his life, as ſome ; or the end and cloſe of it, as others. See Pſal.37.37. Eſay 3.10. for they may juſtly be deemed to ſtray far from the intendment of the text, who would have by his remnant, here meant a remainder of Gods people, which God would have reſerved for himſelf, in that general deſtruction, Eſay 7.3. & 10.20,21. thy remnant, ſay they, as, thy wealth, ver.13. But the truth is, there appeareth not any mention of remnant at all in the text. There was, it ſeemeth, ſome variety in Copies here anciently : the Cetib, as they term it, can nothing be well made of, the Keri, which the Critick Maſters hath ſubſtituted in the room of it, goeth evidently another way; neither of them afford the term that ſignifieth a remnant ; and where neither yieldeth it, ſmall reaſon ſeems to admit it, no neceſſity enforcing to it. Some therefore of the Jewiſh Commenters following their Maſorets corrected reading, render it, If I looſe thee not ; from a word that ſignifieth to looſe, Dan.5.16. and, as ſome alſo, Job 37.3. and they apply it to that of Nebuzaradans looſing, Jeremy from his bands, Chap.40.14. as a promiſe of God to procure liberty for them, from ſuch reſtraint and bands, as by his people he might endure. Which expoſition, as it ſuiteth well with the complement of Gods promiſe, ſo it removeth the ground of thoſe former difficulties.

verily I will cauſe the enemy to entreat thee well, in the time of evill, and in the time of affliction.] Heb. if I do not cauſe, &c. as before ; the word well, is not in the text : yet may not amiſſe be ſupplyed from the foregoing branch ; but is not neceſſarily required. In the words God may ſeem to meet with and prevent a doubt, that might ariſe in the Prophets mind ; to wit, that if this general evill threatned befall the whole State, the Prophet muſt of neceſſity bear his ſhare in it with the reſt. Now this to remove, God undertaketh to the Prophet, to ſecure him from that fear, by aſſuring him, that he will ſo manage the matter, that he ſhall find better entreaty, when that time of publike calamity ſhall come, at the hand of the enemy, then he had formerly found at the hand of his own people : for thoſe draw it too far, that beyond Jeremies own perſon, extend it to any other, of whom, though in part true, ch.39.17,18. & 45.5. & 52.31,34. (as formerly promiſed, 1 King.8.50.) Pſal. 106.46. Dan. 2. 48, 49. yet is not here intended.

cauſe the enemy to entreat thee] That is, ſaith one of the Rabbines, underſtanding it of the Jews, I will make thoſe of thine own people, who are now thy bitter enemies, to come and ſeek unto thee in the time of their diſtreſſe ; as alſo they did, Chap.21.1,2. ſo it ſhould not be much unlike that, Rev. 3.9. But the moſt rather underſtand it of the Chaldeans. To which purpoſe another of them ; I will cauſe the enemy to propound the queſtion to thee, and put thee to thy choice, whether to go along with him, or to ſtay in the land with Gedaliah, chap.40.4. or, as it may well be rendred, I will intercede for thee with the enemy ; as the word is uſed, Eſay 53.12. chap.36.25. I will ſo deal in thy behalf with the enemy, that he ſhall entreat thee kindly, he ſhall uſe thee no otherwiſe then well, chap. 39. 11, 12. I ſhall adjoyn my conjecture concerning the place, and ſo leave it : they make all (as to me ſeemeth) a needleſſe trajection in the text, where the words lye in order thus ; I will intercede for thee in the time of evill, and in time of affliction the enemy, or, with the enemy. I conceive that there is a defect of the prepoſition from, not unuſual. See Exod.15.19. & 19.12. Eſay 32.2. & 33.6. & 40. 21. I read it therefore, of affliction from with the enemy, or, ſimply, from the enemy : as, from the Lord, Gen.19.24. where the particle is the ſame with that here expreſſed ; referring the enemy, not to interceſſion, as the object of it, but to affliction, as the efficient of it, with which it ſtandeth alſo joyned in the text : all that can be objected againſt this is, that the particle here uſed, is commonly prefixed to the party with whom interceſſion is made, Gen.23.8. chap.7.16. & 27.18. & 36.25. Job 21.15. another moſtly, to the party in whoſe behalf ; as Gen.23.8. Eſay 53.12. and I ſhall leave it therefore to the deciſion of the learned.

V. 12. Shall iron break the Northern iron and the ſteel?] There are divers expoſitions given of theſe words : to paſſe by thoſe that miſtaking a letter in the text, and ſo miſled by another in ſhape very like it, do of neceſſity ſwarve very far from the genuine ſenſe of it, and ſcarce give any good or fit ſenſe at all. Some of thoſe that retain the right, ſuppoſe the verb here uſed, to come from a root, that hath a notion of confederacy, or friendſhip, Prov.13.20. & 22. 24. and they, with the old Latine, render the word, Shall iron be confederate, or, joyned, together, with iron from the North, and ſteel ? as if it were ſaid, There is no hope that this obſtinate people, and the Chaldeans, ſhould ever be brought to an accord, (that it ſeemeth they had been ſometime tampering about, ſee Ch. 51. 59.) no more then iron can be glewed unto iron, or to ſteel : Which they ſuppoſe to be ſpoken by God to the Prophet ; ſome, to free him from that fear that Jonas was poſſeſt with, of being accounted a falſe Prophet, things falling out otherwiſe then as he had denounced, Jon.4.1,2. Others, (becauſe this conceit is croſſed by the Prophets conſtant courſe of dealing with God in a contrary way,chap.9.1.& 13.15-17. & 14.7,8,19-21. & 28.6.ver.18. to aſſure him, that there was no hope or poſſibility of having any accord between them and the enemy ; that he might no more be troubled with it, nor trouble himſelf with ſoliciting of God , to no purpoſe , about it, that buſineſs being now as paſt cure and care. But neither doth this ſenſe ſeem to fit well with the place ; nor is any ſuch form, as that here, found any where ſpringing from that root. The moſt, therefore, both Jewiſh, and ours, take the word here,as our Verſion doth, and as it is frequently taken in the form here uſed,Job 34.24. Pſal. 2. 9. chap.2.16. & 11.16.but they divers ways apply it : Some,to Gods counſels, and purpoſes ; and they read the words thus, Can one break iron,the Northern iron,and the ſteel ? as if it were ſaid, Can ſuch iron be broken ? the verb being taken potentially, as chap. 13. 23. and indefinitely,as chap.8.4. that is, ſay ſome, ſhall any power be able to croſs my proceedings, or to hinder the execution of my word and purpoſe , being of greater ſtrength by far then iron, even the ſtrongeſt and tougheſt of it, then ſteel it ſelf ? Chap.23.29. Or, as others, ſhall any might or malice of the adverſary be able to prevail againſt thee my Prophet,whom I have made to be as ſuch, chap.1.18. ver.20. Others,retaining the received reading,which our Verſion exhibiteth,expound them, ſome of the Chaldeans, ſaid to come from the North,chap. 1. 14. & 4.6. This people, ſeem they never ſo ſtrong in their own conceit, chap.21. 13. ſhall never be able to match thoſe Northern forces, that I ſhall ſend in upon them,ver.8. Others,of the Prophet himſelf,as if he had ſaid, Though this people that thus oppoſe thee , be in regard either of their inward obſtinacy, or outward might, as hard and tough as iron,or the like metal, Eſay 48.4. chap.6. 28. yet ſhall they be no more able to cruſh thee, or prevail againſt thee , then ordinary iron is able to break ſuch tough iron ſtuff that the Northern parts yield , or then the firmeſt and ſtrongeſt ſteel.See chap.1.18,19.ver.20. See alſo,Ezek. 2.7,8,9.

Northern iron] Heb.iron from the North, that is, ſuch as is brought from the countries,that lye Northward,out of which regions the ſtrongeſt and tougheſt iron came to them:for the Chalybes, who were anciently moſt famous for iron-works, and their skill in tempering thereof , and from whom both with the Greeks, and Latines, the ſteel had its name, were a people of Pontus, neighbouring upon the Paphlagones, and their country northward from Judea. See Strabo,l.12.Mela. l.1.c.20.Eudoxus in Steven the Byzantine,and Virgil of huſbandry,l.1.

and ſteel] That is, ſaith the Jewiſh Doctor, iron and ſteel, mixt together : and ſome other ſuppoſe an alluſion to thoſe words,chap.1.18.a pillar of iron,and a wall of ſteel ; implying the Prophet to be as both, which, though they might ſeem able to prevail againſt him,in regard of the one, yet ſhould be ſure to fail in, when they come to the other : but the words I conceive would rather be read by way of disjunction : Northern iron,or,ſteel; as the like. Chap.10.20. & 14.22. Of the word,ſteel,ſee chap.1.18.

V. 13. Thy ſubſtance, and thy treaſures, will I give to the ſpoyl without price:]God in theſe words either continueth his ſpeech concerning the Chaldean forces,and their invaſion of the land according to thoſe, who of them expound the foregoing words, v.12.or as the moſt,who conceive them to concern the Prophet,turneth his ſpeech from him to his people, fore-telling what ſhould become of all their wealth, wherein they prided themſelves, chap. 9. 23. it ſhould all become a prey to the Chaldeans, chap. 17.3. as in conqueſt is wont to be,Eſay 10.14.& 45.3.

without price] Not regarding loſs, or gain, but execution of my juſtice only,Pſal.44.13.Eſay 52.3. and that for all thy ſins,even in all thy borders.] That is, as the moſt , for thy ſins that have been committed thorowout the whole land,from the one end of it to the other, Chap. 2. 28.& 3.2.& 11.13.Heb.and in (that is, for ; as chap.18.18.)all thy ſins,and (as chap.14.14.) in all thy borders : where becauſe the particle is the ſame in both members , a learned Interpreter would have the latter read, and for all thine ends, that is,evil projects and purpoſes : but neither is the word ſo uſed in Scripture ; and the former interpretation is confirmed by Chap.17.3.where the ſelf-ſame thing is repeated.

V. 14. And I will make thee to paſs with thine enemies into a land which thou knoweſt not.]Or,I will cauſe thee to ſerve thine enemies in a land, that thou knoweſt not : for there is a double reading here,as alſo,Chap.2.20.ariſing from the neer affinity for ſhape of two Hebrew letters,dalet and reſh : and from the like enterchange of letters, is that variety of Verſion in the ſame argument,he was ſeen,2 Sam.22.11. and,he did fly, Pſal. 18. 10. the latter reading (which the Chaldee followeth) ſeems to receive ſome ſtrength from Chap.17.4. Howſoever, there is a defect of the relative in the latter limb (ſupplyed it ſelf,chap. 17.4.by a copulative,chap.14.18.)of the pronoun in the former,which may as well be ſupplyed,it, as thee, with reference to the wealth or ſubſtance,mentioned,ver.13.it ſhall all be carryed away into a ſtrange country, into an unknown land ; as Eſay 8.4. & 15.7. & 39.6. For as for that learned Scholiaſt, who to reconcile thoſe two places that ſeem parallel,would have the words rendred , I will cauſe thine enemies to paſs over thee ; that is,ſaith he,to tyrannize, or rule imperiouſly over thee ; as they complain,Eſay 26.13. Pſal.129.1-3. and as the word,ſaith he,is uſed,Job 13.13. let what will paſſe to me,or,paſs over me,that is,beſide me,as himſelf there rendreth it ; it ſeems too much forced,and the place pointed to impertinent ; nor ſeemeth the old Latine to come any thing neerer home to the genuine ſenſe of the place, who rendreth it , I will bring thine enemies from a land that thou knoweſt not , or, that learned man,who yet more regarding the particle,yieldeth it, by a land, or, thorow a land that thou knoweſt not , or, which thou knoweſt not,which way they ſhould come to thee, being ſo remote from thee.

for a fire is kindled in mine anger, which ſhall burn upon you.] A defect of the relative,as in the former branch, and chap. 14.8.ſee chap.17.4.ſee alſo,Deut.32.22.Eſay 42. 25. chap. 4. 4.& 17.27.

V. 15. O Lord] The Prophet returneth here to the proſecution of his former complaint,ver.10.

thou knoweſt] Thou knoweſt me and mine integrity, Pſal. 139.1,23.or,thou knoweſt how it fareth with me, their malice and mine innocency ; and,that I complain not without cauſe, chap. 11.18.ſee chap.12.3. and revenge me of my perſecuters] See of this chap. 11.20. See Chap. 17. 18. & 18. 21. See alſo, Pſal. 119. 84. 2 Tim. 4.14.

take me not away in thy long ſuffering:] Or, as ſome,according to thy long ſuffering,take me not away: forbear to deal harſhly with me ; as chap.17.17. or ſuffer me not to be taken away by the malicious practices of my perfidious enemies : So is the particle taken,Pſal.119.91,154. As others,After thy long forbearance take me not away; to wit, among the reſt in the common calamity that ſhall befall this people, when thy forbearance ſhall have an end, 2 Chr.36.16. chap. 44. 22. ſo is the particle uſed,Eſay 38.17. Others, take me not away in,or,by, or,through thy long ſuffering. Heb. the length (that is,the dilation,or delay) of thine anger : not unlike that, Exod. 34. 7. Num,14.18. ſave that the word is there in an adjective notion,here,as ſeldome, if ever elſe-where,in a ſubſtantive. Suffer me not to be taken,and periſh by mine enemies malicious and miſchievous projects,while out of thy long ſuffering,and ſlowneſs to wrath,thou forbeareſt to right me on them. See on Eſay 48.9. So is the verb uſed,Ezek. 33. 4, 6. and ſo the particle,Neh.13.27.chap.5.2. Somewhat to this purpoſe, the Chaldee , and Greek , ſeem to ſuggeſt, as if a ſpeeding of juſtice, without longer delay , were deſired ; as Pſal. 29. 10,11.

know] That is, take notice ; and make it appear that thou ſo doſt : as Chap.2.19. & 3.13.

that for thy ſake I have ſuffered rebuke.] Or, I ſuſtain. Heb. my ſuſtaining of (as Pſal. 89. 50.) reproach, Pſal. 69.7. See Chap.20.8. and it concerneth thee to right thoſe that ſuffer for thee, Pſal.44.22-26.

V. 16. Thy words were found, and I did eat them ; and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoycing of my heart :] Or,when thy words were found,I did eat them ; as Prov.25.16. Haſt thou found honey ? eat of it what ſufficeth thee : and Ezek. 3. 1. eat what thou findeſt : and there ſeems here a defect of the pronoun were found by me ; as Eſay 29.6. that is, When as thy meſſages came at firſt to me,I received and entertained them, as readily, as willingly, as an affamiſhed man doth his meat. So Job 23.12. Joh.4.34. Of the ſyntax, ſee Chap. 13. 12,16. Of the phraſe of eating, Ezek.2.8. & 3.2,3. Rev.10.9.

found] Some put an emphaſis upon this term , and that two divers wayes ; the one,as if the Prophet ſhould intimate, that he had not ſought this employment, but had, unlooked after, been called unto it ; as Eſay 65. 1. the other, as if he ſhould thereby ſignifie, that he had been well aſſured , that the meſſages he came with, were the undoubted word of God : as Eccl.7.29. but theſe conſtructions I conceive to be over-nice : the ſenſe ſeems plain ; as before. See Ezek.3.1.

thy word was unto me the joy and the rejoycing of my heart ; for I am called by thy Name, O Lord God of hoſts.] Heb. thy word was unto me, to, or, for, joy, and to,or,for gladneſſe of my heart; that thy name was called upon me. According to our verſion, the ſenſe ſhould be,as divers give it,that Gods Word,though otherwiſe harſh, and like to be ſo unto others,yet was to him, becauſe it was his word, delightful, gratefull and pleaſant ; not unlike that profeſſion of the Pſalmiſt,Pſal.19 10. & 119.

103. or,as one of the Jewiſh Doctors, I was at the firſt much taken with the meſſages that I was ſent with, hoping that the people would repent thereupon*:* and ſo the words following,ſhould come in as a reaſon to induce God to regard him, as being one that had been willing and ready to undertake that office, which he profeſſed to have ſpecial care of, Pſal. 105.15. But neither of theſe ſeem to reach the intent of the Prophet. Which ſeems rather to be that which another of them ſuggeſteth, agreeable to the words as they run in the original, to wit, that that word or commiſſion given him by God, (whereof, ſee Chap.1.1,5.) whereby he had been called to bear Gods name, to be called his Prophet, (of which phraſe, ſee Chap.14.9.) was a great rejoycing unto him, and that which encouraged him chearfully to ſet upon the work of his miniſtery, howſoever it proved afterward, ver.9. See Ezek.3.3. Rev.10.10. to joy, or, for joy and gladneſſe of heart, for, great and hearty joy, ſimply; as Zach.8.19. Eſay 30.29.

V. 17. I ſate not in the aſſembly of the mockers, nor rejoyced:] Thus the moſt Interpreters,yea, all that I meet with,as if the Prophet ſhould profeſſe, that he had ſhunned the company and ſociety of profane perſons,ſuch as ſcoffed and mocked at Gods meſſages and menaces. Of which ſort were not a few among this people; and that eſpecially among the great ones, Eſay 5.19. & 28.14,22. Chap.5.13. & 20.7,8. and ſo it ſhould be the ſame with that, Pſal.1.1. & 26.4,5. Heb. ſecret, for, aſſembly; as Pſal.111.1. Ezek. 13.9. See Chap. 6. 11. and according to this ſenſe, the next member would rather be rendred, nor revelled it; as Eſay 22. 2, 13. But this ſeems not to be ſo congruent a profeſſion for the Prophet to make,that he had not kept company with looſe and debauched perſons, and revelled it together with them. I render the words, I have not ſate in the aſſembly, or, meeting, of thoſe that make merry. So is the word frequently uſed. So Eccl. 3.4. there is a time to make merry; and, better is grief then mirth, Eccl.7.3. and, they prepare bread (that is, victuals) to make merry with, Eccl.10.19. and 2 Sam.6.5. & 1 Chr. 13.8. all Iſrael made merry before the Lord, with all their might, with ſinging, and with harps: yea the word is in this very prophecy twice preciſely ſo rendred, Chap.30.19. & 31.4. The Prophets meaning then is plainly this; that howſoever he did at firſt chearfully entertain that employment that God had called him unto; and a place of that dignity to be ſo neer unto God, and be ranked among thoſe that were reckoned his Prophets, ſeemed much to affect him, yet he had found little joy of it,when he came to the execution of it; for that he met with nothing but matter of grief, and had been therefore far from joyning himſelf with ſuch that met together to make merry,as friends,acquaintance,and neighbours oft do,to partake with them in their mirth; but had rather abandoned himſelf to a retired and ſolitary courſe of life, in private continually bemoaning himſelf, in regard of thoſe heavy and ſad meſſages, that he was from God ſent with to his people, and the evil ſucceſs that his errands found with them,chap. 8.18.& 9.1,2. & 13.17. & 20.7,8. This I doubt not to be the genuine ſenſe of the place, confirmed both by what followeth here, and by Gods words alſo to the Prophet, Chap. 16. 8.

nor rejoyced] Heb.and rejoyced, that is, to rejoyce; to partake with them in their mirth; as,Balack aroſe and warred (that is, to war) againſt Iſrael,Judg.24.9. otherwiſe,the negative muſt from the former member be ſupplyed: as Pſal.9.18.

I ſate alone becauſe of thine hand] Alone, or, ſolitary; withdrawing my ſelf from company, as perſons full of grief and heavineſs are wont to do,Pſal.102.7.chap.13.17. Lam.3.18. ſo rather,then as ſome,being deſerted and forſaken of all: as Pſal. 88. 8,18. But this ſeems rather to imply a voluntary and affected privacy; becauſe of thine hand, that is, as ſome, becauſe I am at hand with thee,and yield conſtant obedience unto thee, in the faithful diſcharge of my miniſterial employment; in regard whereof,they refuſe to have any ſociety with me. So, hand, ſhould be for miniſtery: as Mal.1.1. but,becauſe of thine hand,ſeems here rather to import, in regard of thine injunction, and thoſe meſſages which thou ſendeſt by me,full of menaces,and dreadful denunciations of calamities and deſtruction to befall my people. So Ezek.3. 14 I went with bitterneſs heated in my Spirit, but the hand of the Lord was ſtrong upon me.

for thou haſt filled me with indignation.] Either with indignation from this people,who for thy meſſages, are generally encenſed againſt me,ver.10. or with indignation at this people,for their obſtinacy tending to their deſtruction,chap.9.1, 2. or with indignation, which from thee I denounce againſt them, being ſent daily upon errands of wrath and indignation to them. See Chap.23. 33. the particle is wanting, as chap.9.18.this laſt ſeems the beſt.

V. 18 Why is my pain perpetual, and my wound incurable, which refuſeth to be healed?] Why ſhould I continue perpetually in this ſad and diſconſolate condition, without hope or expectation of any change and alteration thereof for the better: a ſpeech proceeding from humane frailty, as conceiving no great likelyhood of the before-promiſed amendment of it,ver.11.

is my pain perpetual] Or,ſhould my pain continue (as Dan.1. 21.) for ever; as Amos 1.11. and there is a defect of the particle; as Pſal. 13. 1. or,ſhould my pain be a pain of perpetuity, or, eternity; that is,a perpetual, an everlaſting pain: as, pleaſures of perpetuity,or,eternity, for, perpetual, or,everlaſting delights,Pſal.16.11.

which refuſeth to be cured] A metaphor taken from ſuch wounds, or ſores, with which no plaiſter or medicine can either produce cure,or procure eaſe, and there is a figurative notion in the word refuſeth; like that, Jon. 1. 4. the ſhip thought,or,made account,to be drowned: for to ſpeak properly, the wound,or,ſore,can no more refuſe ought, then a ſhip think ought*:* and according to our Verſion,there is a defect of the relative; as ver.14.but ſome ſupplying the interrogative from the fore-going branch, read the words, Why refuſeth it to be cured? whether way we read it, it is not much material; onely the word,incurable, would be altered, if it be rendred the former way.See Pſal.77.2.Chap.8.18.

wilt thou be altogether unto me as a liar, and as waters that fail?] Or, Why (repeated from the former; as Job 3.23.) ſhouldeſt thou be altogether (being be; as Gen.18.18.) unto me as a deceitfull (Heb.lying) well,or fountain,or ſpring,(a defect of the ſubject; as Eſay 5.4. & 17.5. Ezek.13.11.) as waters that fail? Heb. that are not faithfull, or firm. See Eſay 33. 16. ſuch as are dryed up, and fail in the heat and drought of ſummer, when men have moſt need of them, Job 6.15—20. Why ſhouldeſt thou fail me, and not make thy word good unto me, but give me up to undergo ſuch diſtreſſe and difficulties without end or eaſe? Such fits of diffidence have the beſt and ſtrongeſt of Gods Saints and Servants been at ſome times ſurpriſed with. See Pſal.13.1,2.& 31.22.& 77. 7-9. & 116.10,11. 1 Sam.27.1.

V. 19. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord;] Or, Notwithſtanding (ſee Chap.30.16.) thus ſaid the Lord. Albeit, that the Prophet had in this his diſcourſe and diſpute with God, much want of that courage and confidence that ought to have been in him, and bewrayed a great deal of humane frailty; yet the Lord was pleaſed to ſtoop ſo low, as to return a gratious anſwer unto him: partly admoniſhing him in a mild and gentle manner, to ſhake off and abandon theſe diſtruſtful and diſcontented thoughts; and to go on conſtantly in the faithful diſcharge of his duty; and partly again further confirming him therein, by renewed promiſes of aſſured protection and ſafeguard, ver.20,21.

If thou return, then will I bring thee again, and thou ſhalt ſtand before me;] Theſe words ſome Interpreters expound of the people; unto whom God ſhould promiſe reſtitution,and confirmation upon their ſincere return to him by unfeigned repentance; as Chap.3.1. & 4.1,2. & 26.6,7. & 31.36. and 33.26. & 35.19. Zach.1.3. But the moſt rather of Jeremy; yet diverſly; ſome,as if God ſpake in way of approbation to him, thus rendring the words; ſince that thou doſt convert thy ſelf, as I do convert thee; that is, ſince that thou doſt apply thy ſelf diligently unto thoſe things that I enjoyn thee, and direct thee unto: or, as others, ſince that thou doſt turn from, that is, withdraw thy ſelf from the ſociety of thoſe profane ones, ver.17. I will reduce thee, that is, free thee from thoſe evils whereof thou complaineſt, and retain thee in my ſervice. Others, by way of admonition; if thou be carefull to convert this people from their wicked wayes; that which is the office of a true Prophet of God to labour in, Chap.23.22. taking the word in an active notion; which yet it will hardly here bear. But the moſt and beſt underſtand them in way of admonition indeed, but taking the word in a neuter notion; If thou turn from,and caſt off, theſe diſtruſtful thoughts and diſcontents, and apply thy ſelf chearfully and conſtantly to the work of thy miniſtery, I will continue and confirm thee in thy prophetical function.

then will I bring thee again] Or, then (Heb. and; as ver. 1.) will I reſtore thee: as Pſal.23.3. and thou ſhalt ſtand before me] Or, that thou mayſt ſtand,or, to ſtand, before me; as my ſervant and attendant in the room and place of a Prophet: as 1 King.17.1. Zach. 3. 7. a defect of the finitive particle, as Eſay 63.13. & 64.2. Howbeit, the whole paſſage may well thus be rendred; If thou wilt return, (as Chap.4 1.) and wilt be reclaimed by me, (Heb. and I ſhall have reclaimed thee) before me ſhalt thou ſtand. So run, and ſo lye, the words in the text: and I ſuppoſe this to be the genuine ſenſe of the place.

and if thou take forth the pretious from the vile, thou ſhalt be as my mouth:] Or, if thou wilt ſever (Heb. make to go forth) the pretious from the vile. This ſame expound of doctrine onely, if thou be careful to teach nothing but the pure truth of God, 1 Pet.2.2. without mixture of other baſe and vile ſtuff; ſuch as the falſe Prophets are wont to mingle it withall, Chap.23.26-28. Others rather, of perſons: that which the latter term doth neceſſarily carry it unto, being uſed of perſons only: If thou ſhalt draw out the pretious from the vile, by converting thoſe that are vile, that is, wicked ones, from their wickedneſſe, and making pretious ones of them, which Gods Miniſters are miniſterially ſaid to do, Dan. 12.3. Chap.23. 22. Mal.4.6. Luk.1.16. or, (which ſeems the genuine ſenſe of the text, and is by the moſt and beſt approved) If in thy teaching thou put a difference between the godly and the wicked, by confirming and comforting the one, and by ſharply reproving, convincing, and menacing the other. See Chap.20.27. contrary to the practiſe of the falſe Prophets deſcribed, Ezek.13.19,22. & 22.26.

thou ſhalt be as my mouth] Or, as ſome, according to my mouth: thou ſhalt be ſuch an one as I would have thee, and have commanded thee to be: as, according to his heart, 1 Sam. 13.13. thou ſhalt do all my pleaſure, Eſay 44.28. or, thou ſhalt thereby ſhew thy ſelf to be my mouth, to ſpeak from me, chap. 23.22. or what thou doſt ſpeak, ſhall be as if I my ſelf had ſpoken it, 2 Cor.5.20. & 13.3. See Exod.4.16. and I will be ſure to make it good. See 1 Sam.3.19-21.

let them return to thee, but return not thou to them] Heb. return ſhall they to thee; and (for, but; as Chap. 13. 17.) thou ſhalt not return to them. Which ſome therefore conceive, as ſpoken by way of prediction, or promiſe. They ſhall come and ſeek to thee; but thou ſhalt have no need to ſeek to them; fulfilled, ſay they, when they repaired to him for advice upon the murther of Gedaliah, Chap. 42. 2. to which might be added that before, Chap.21.2. But the moſt conceive them ſpoken rather by way of admonition, or injunction; (for the future is frequently uſed for the imperative; as Chap.3.7. & 5.10.) Some more narrowly, with reference to thoſe ſcoffers, mentioned, as they ſuppoſe, ver. 17. but of that there. Others, more generally, of the main body of the people, whom he was to deal with; Let them (this people, ver.20.) conform if they will, to thee; but be not thou over-enduced either by their force or flatteries, (for they will be both wayes tempting thee) to come over to them, to comply with them, to ſooth them up in their ſins, with vain hopes of better things, as their falſe Prophets do, or to conceal ought from them, that I give thee in charge concerning them, Chap.1.17. & 23.30,31. & 26.2.

V. 20. And I will make thee unto this people as a fenced braſen wall;] Heb. I will give thee (as Chap. 1. 5,18.) for a fenced wall (that is, to be ſuch an one, or, like ſuch an one, as ver.16. Pſal.31.2.) of ſteel. See ver.12. If thou doſt go on conſtantly and couragiouſly in the faithful diſcharge of thy duty, not relenting or yielding at all unto them, (for this ſeems to depend upon the laſt clauſe of the foregoing verſe) I will arm thee with ſuch power, as they ſhall not be able to prevail againſt thee. See Chap.1.18. & 6.27. ver.12.

and they ſhall fight againſt thee; but they ſhall not prevail againſt thee:] Or, So that though they war with, or, againſt thee, (as Judg.20.11.) yet they ſhall not prevail with thee, to take thy life away from thee. See chap.1.19. & 20.11,12. ſo that he might well ſay, as they do, Pſal.129.1,2.

for I am with thee to ſave thee, and to deliver thee, ſaith the Lord.] I will protect thee ſufficiently againſt all their might and malice. See Chap.1.8,19. & 20.12. So Act.18.10.

V. 21. And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked; and I will deliver thee out of the hand of the terrible.] hand, for, power; as Eſay 38.6. to redeem, for, to reſcue; as Pſal. 107. 2. of the terrible, or, violent, ones, Eſay 25. 6. ſuch as thou mighteſt moſt fear. See Chap.26.23,24.

CHAP. XVI.

Verſ. 1. THe word of the Lord came alſo unto me, ſaying;] Or, Moreover, the word of the Lord came unto me; as ſome of our former verſions, and as chap. 1.11. Heb. And the word of the Lord was unto me: as chap.1.1,2. Whence it may be queſtioned, whether this Chapter be one continued diſcourſe with that Chap.15. or this introduction to it be the title of a new revelation at ſome other time delivered. Whether of the two it be, the Lord in it forbiddeth the Prophet to contract marriage, or breed iſſue, the times enſuing ſhould be ſo bad, ver.2—4. or to mourn with any for the dead: for better dye then live, as the times ſhould be, ver. 5—7. or to make merry with them; for it ſhould be no time for mirth, ver.8,9. enformeth him, and willeth him to enform the people of the ground of ſuch evils as were to befall them, ver.10—13. yet annexeth a gracious promiſe of future reſtitution after theſe dreadful judgments executed upon them, ver.14,18, whereunto the Prophet ſubjoyneth an humble profeſſion, as in the perſon of Gods people, of the acknowledgment of Gods gracious and powerful protection, and their expectation of the Gentiles coming in to them, ver.19 all ſhut up with an expreſſion of Gods preſent indignation againſt his people, for their idolatry; for which, he would make them, by penalties inflicted upon them, to know and acknowledge his might, ver.21,22.

V. 2. Thou ſhalt not take thee a wife; neither ſhalt have ſons nor daughters in this place.] Or, Do not take thee a wife, nor have ſons, or (Heb. and; as Exod.21.15. Ezek.14.20.) daughters. The future for the imperative; as chap.15.19. Exod.26.13-17. So ver.5. intimating, that ſo great and grievous ſhould the calamities of that place in thoſe times be, that wife and children would be but an heavy burden amidſt them, and means of much aggravating his grief that had them. So Hoſ.9.13,14. Mat.24.19. Luk.23.29. 1 Cor.7.26.

in this place] That is, in Anathoth, ſaith the Jewiſh Doctor; but he ſeems rather to mean Jeruſalem, where this Prophecy was delivered unto him; ſee ver.3.

V. 3. For thus ſaith the Lord, concerning the ſons, and concerning the daughters that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that bare them, and concerning their fathers that begat them in this land;] All like to be involved in the ſame calamities one with another; that which ſhould make the condition of each one of them the more grievous, chap.13. 14. & 14.16.

in this place] This, again, the Rabbine groundleſly reſtraineth unto the men of Anathoth, who together with their whole iſſue were ſo, ſay they, to be rooted out, that there ſhould be no remainder of them, chap.11.23. But here they meet with a difficulty that they find, Ezr. 2.23. of the men of Anathoth, 128. that returned from the captivity: Which to ſalve, they ſay, that ſome of them did afterward repent, though God did not reveal ſo much to the Prophet: But the truth is, that neither that former denunciation reached unto all the Inhabitants of Anathoth, but to thoſe of them onely that maliciouſly oppoſed the Prophet, as it is there expreſly mentioned: nor is in this place Anathoth a poor Town in compariſon, Eſay 10. 30. but Jeruſalem intended; as alſo, ver.9. and as appeareth by the adjection in the next member; the whole land, to wit, of Judah, whereof that the head city, chap.15.8. ſo chap.7.7.

V. 4. They ſhall dy of grievous deaths:] Heb. death of diſeaſes, or, grievances; as 2 Chron.21.18. by the plague, or the peſtilence, chap. 14.12. ſee chap.15.2.

they ſhall not be lamented] No ſolemn lamentation ſhall be made for them, Job 27.15. Pſal.78.64. chap. 22. 18. & 25. 33. either becauſe they ſhall be deemed happier that are gone, and taken away from the preſent evils, then thoſe that ſurvive, chap.8.3. & 22.10. Rev.14.13. or becauſe every one ſhall be ſo taken up with their own particular and perſonall fears, cares, and calamities, that they ſhall have no luſt, or leiſure to look after their deceaſed, or to uſe any wonted ſolemnity about them. See Ezek. 24. 16—23. Amos 6. 10.

neither ſhall they be buried;] See chap.14. 16. & 22. 19. & 25. 33.

but they ſhall be as dung upon the face of the earth:] Heb. for dung: of which form of ſpeech, ſee on chap.15.20. ſo Pſal. 83.10. chap. 8.2.

and they ſhall be conſumed by the ſword, and by famine,] Some by the one, and ſome by the other, Chap. 14. 15. and 15. 2.

and their carcaſſes ſhall be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beaſts of the earth.] Chap.7.33. & 34.20.

V. 5. For thus ſaith the Lord;] Or, Therefore; as Chap. 9. 20. for the particle ſeems to be here an illative, (as Pſal. 116.10. I believed therefore I ſpake, 2 Cor.4.13.) inferring, and making way, to a further injunction, grounded upon the former denunciation, ver.3,4.

Enter not into the houſe of mourning, neither go to lament, nor bemoan them:] Heb. Thou ſhalt not go in, nor go; as ver. 1. into the houſe of mourning. Concerning the genuine notion of this term, there are divers opinions, and the Jewiſh Criticks themſelves are at ſome variance. Some of them ſay it ſignifieth mourning, and this way moſt of them ſeem to go: though ſome of them would have it ſignifie, not mourning, but a mourner; withall rendring, a ridiculous notation of the word, not worth the relating. But this Interpretation, as well the one, as the other, is croſſed by that place of Amos, 6.7. where it is rendred banquet, and muſt of neceſſity import matter of mirth: And ſo would a late learned Annotator have it here to import, underſtanding it of banquets made for merriment; the rather, becauſe ſuch are mentioned, ver 8. But the main current of the context, evidently croſſeth this conceit. Howbeit, by collation of thoſe two places together, it plainly appears, that the word of neceſſity ſignifieth ſomething at leaſt common as well to mirth, as to mourning. To which purpoſe, one of the Jewiſh Doctors telleth us, that it ſignifieth in the Arabick tongue, a ſhouting, or lifting up of the voice, whether out of joy, or out of grief; for ſuch out-cries are common to either: ſee chap. 48. 33. but hereof no proof is brought. Another of them, therefore, ſaith, it ſignifieth a feaſt, or, a banquet; for which he alleadgeth a place out of one of their Talmudiſts Writings; and it is ſo found uſed in the Chaldee Paraphraſt, Num. 25. 1. Now feaſts, or banquets, we know, are uſual as well at burials, as bridals: and this ſeemeth to be backed by that which followeth, ver. 7. for as for that which ſome learned late Writers here ſuggeſt, that the word ſhould ſignifie ſuch a perſon, as by the Latines is termed deſignator, one that did give directions for the marſhaling and ordering of matters at burials; it ſeemes a groundleſs conjecture, nor could the houſe of mourning be ſo fitly termed the houſe of ſuch an one. I ſuppoſe the words may well be rendred, the banquet-houſe, as the old Latine hath it; or for fuller explication, the funeral banquet, or, banqueting houſe.

nor go to lament or bemoan them.] To lament for the deceaſed, or to condole with the ſurvivers; as chap. 15. 5. By theſe forbearances, as Ezekiel, chap. 24. 24. the Prophet was to fore-ſhew them, how it ſhould be with them amidſt thoſe calamities that ſhould ſhortly ſurprize them.

for I have taken away my peace from this people, ſaith the Lord, even loving kindneſs and mercies.] For I am reſolved to take from this people whatſoever benefits of plenty, proſperity, or ſafety, (for all theſe, peace includeth, Pſal. 85. 8. & 119. 165. Eſay 48. 18. chap. 8. 11.) and whatſoever good thing out of my free favour and mercy I had formerly conferred on them, and they had ſometime enjoyed.

have taken away] Or, I will take away. Heb. gather up; as Pſal. 85. 3. chap. 10. 17.

even loving kindneſs and mercies] Or, my loving kindneſſe, and my tender mercies. See Eſay 63. 7. a defect of the pronoun, as chap. 4. 19.

V. 6. Both the great, and the ſmall, ſhall dy in this land; they ſhall not be buried; neither men lament for them;] Or, when great, or ſmall, (and, for, or; as ver. 2.) ſhall dye in this land, they ſhall not be buried, nor ſhall any lament for them; as chap. 14. 15. Nor need we, as ſome, to inſert, Therefore. See of this menace, on ver. 4. where the active here indefinite, is expreſſed in the paſſive, they ſhall not be lamented; no lamentation ſhall be made for them: onely here there is a more large extent of it; ſhewing that no regard ſhould, in this kind, be had of the great ones, more then of the meaner ſort: ſee Chap. 22. 18, 19.

nor cut themſelves, nor make themſelves bald for them;] Courſes in ſuch caſes uſually practiſed among the Heathen, whom the Jewiſh alſo did herein oft imitate, though forbidden ſo to do, Lev. 19. 28. Deut. 14. 1.

V. 7. Neither ſhall men tear themſelves for them, in mourning, to comfort them for the dead;] According to this Verſion, the meaning ſhould be the ſame with that before, of cutting themſelves, ver. 6. and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors alſo take it: but the word is there in a reciprocal form, whereas this here is not; nor is the word here ever elſe-where found ſo uſed. Some other of them therefore (by change of a letter into another, though in ſhape divers, yet for ſound in a manner, if not altogether the ſame) expound it of ſtretching out the hands, or ſmiting them one againſt the other; to which purpoſe, one Verſion rendreth it, they ſhall not ſtretch out their hands, and our ancienter Verſion, they ſhall not wring their hands, as in wailing people oft-times do, Chap. 4. 31. Lam. 1. 17. But others of them, which ſeems the true and genuine ſenſe of the place, underſtand it of ſuch proviſions of food, as friends, neighbours, and acquaintance, uſed to ſend home unto thoſe, that were in heavineſs for the loſs of parents, children, or other of the family neer of kindred, or otherwiſe dear unto them, taken from them by deceaſe; to the end, that repairing to them, and eating and drinking with them, they might endeavour to comfort them, and help to put away their grief; alluded unto, Deut. 26. 14. and this expoſition, as the words following confirm; ſo the uſe of the word elſewhere doth further alſo help to clear: for ſo is the word uſed, Eſay 58. 7. to deal thy bread to the hungry; and Lam. 4. 4. the young children ask bread, and there is none to deal it to them: to which purpoſe the text may well be rendred, Neither ſhall they deal them bread, in mourning, to comfort any for the dead: bread, being put for any proviſion of food in general, as in the places before pointed to, Chap. 5. 17. & Luk. 14. 1. as alſo, Ezek. 24. 17. a place parallel to this, where the Prophet is inhibited upon the death of his wife, to eat the bread of men; that is, ſuch as men uſed in ſuch occaſions of mourning, to partake in with others that came to viſit them; by which term it is alſo in our ancienteſt Engliſh Verſion here rendred. This ſenſe, both the ancient Greek, and old Latine, expreſs. Whence alſo ſome gather (nor ſeems it altogether improbable) that the Greek Interpreters, in whoſe ſteps the Latines trode, did in the Hebrew, for lahem, to them, which we now have read lechem, or lehem, (whereof Bethleem) that is, bread, and deem this latter the better reading; the rather, for that the pronoun in the latter place is ſingular, not them, but him, that is, ſaith the Rabbine, for any of them, though rendred, as taken collectively, in the plural. Howſoever, if the word bread, be not expreſſed, as in thoſe other places before produced it is, yet is it to be ſupplyed deal bread, or food; as in the like, Gen. 42. 33. where it is ſaid only, take for your families; that is, take bread, or food, for your families; as our Engliſh well ſupplyes it: and, they come out to draw, Gen. 24. 43. that is, to draw water: as it is aright ſupplyed there from ver. 13.

neither ſhall men give them the cup of conſolation to drink for their father, or for their mother.] Heb. neither ſhall they make them drink (as Chap. 8. 14.) a cup of conſolations (that is, a conſolatory cup: conſolations; as Eſay 66. 11.) for his father, and (for, or; as Exod. 21. 15. ver. 2.) for his mother: to comfort any orphan, for the loſs of his father, or his mother: the word them, put diſtributely for any of them; and ſo might well be expreſſed, both in the former branch (if the received reading be retained) and (howſoever for that) in this: Of ſuch conſolatory cups tendred to perſons in grief and heavineſs. See Prov. 31. 6, 7. The meaning is, that all ſuch neighbourly and friendly offices on ſuch occaſions formerly uſed, ſhould in thoſe calamitous times be wholly neglected, as others alſo more requiſite, for the reaſons before recited. See on ver. 4.

V. 8. Thou ſhalt not alſo go into the houſe of feaſting, to ſit with them to eat and to drink.] Or, Neither do thou go (as ver. 2. 5.) into (the particle ſupplyed, as Chap. 14. 18.) or, unto (as Chap. 34. 3.) the houſe of feaſting (as Eccl. 7. 2, 4.) to ſit there with them to eat and to drink: to make merry with them, Exod. 32. 6. Heb. And thou ſhalt not go; as ver. 13. Before, he was forbidden to repair with them, to their mournful and funeral banquetings; now is he charged not to keep company with them, at their merry meetings, or bridal banquetings; for at ſuch times feaſtings were ordinarily uſed, Gen. 29. 21, 27. by his abſtinence, and refuſal to joyn therein with them; intimating, what ſhould ſhortly and ſuddenly befall them, to wit, that they ſhould be utterly deprived of all occaſions and matter of ſuch mirth and jollity, ver. 9.

V. 9. For thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael;] As Chap. 7. 3, 21. & 9. 15.

Behold I will cauſe to ceaſe out of this place in your eyes, and in your days, the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladneſs, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.] I will quell and quaſh all your mirth, by ſending ſuch evils upon you, as you ſhall have little joy of ought. See the like, Eſay 24. 7, 8. Ezek. 26. 13. Rev. 18. 22, 23. and the very ſame, Chap. 7. 34. & 25. 10.

V. 10. And it ſhall come to paſs, when thou ſhalt ſhew this people all theſe words, and they ſhall ſay unto thee,] Or, it ſhall come to paſs (Heb. it ſhall be, as Chap. 4. 9.) when thou ſhalt tell this people all theſe things, (as Chap. 11. 6. & 36. 32.) if (as Job 10. 15. Chap. 18. 8.) they ſhall ſay unto thee.

Wherefore hath the Lord pronounced all this great evill againſt us? and what is our iniquity? or what is our ſin, that we have committed againſt the Lord our God?] Thus pertinacious and preſumptuous are wicked men, in endeavouring to ſmother, and either deny, or excuſe, their ſins, though never ſo notorious, and conſpicuous, Chap. 2. 22, 23, 25. and chooſing rather to charge God with iniquity, as if he puniſhed them without cauſe, then to acknowledge their own iniquity, and perfidious carriage towards him, whereby they had deſerved much more, then he either threatned them with, or inflicted upon them. See the like demand, Chap. 5. 19. & 22. 8.

or what] Heb. and what; as ver. 2.

V. 11. Then thou ſhalt ſay unto them] Or, Then; (Heb. And; as Chap. 15. 19.) ſay thou unto them; as ver. 8.

and there ſhall ye ſerve other gods day and night] Or, where ye ſhall ſerve; as Gen. 15.13. where ye ſhall have have your fill of ſerving ſtrange gods; ſuch as neither ye, nor your fathers had known or ſerved before, Deut. 28. 64. but with little eaſe, or reſt from thoſe, under whom ye ſhall ſerve them, Deut.28.47,48,65,66. whence the Chaldee, whom alſo ſome, both Jews, and others, here follow, rendreth it, Ye ſhall ſerve ſuch people, as ſerve other gods: but that is more then is in the text.

where I will not ſhew you favour.] Heb. in which (to wit, place; as Gen.21.17. Ruth 1. 17. onely here a defect of the particle, in; as Chap.5.7. & 11. 23.) I will not give you reſt; that which by Moſes was threatned, that they ſhould find no reſt in thoſe places into which God in wrath ſhould drive and diſperſe them, Deut. 28.65. which yet the Jewiſh Doctor expoundeth, according to that which our Verſion exhibiteth, I will not have mercy on you; as Eſay 27.11. Chap.13.13. Hoſ. 1.6. & 2.4. but proceed in rigour of judgment againſt you, Chap.14.16.& 15.14. ver.5. or, I will give you no favour in the eyes of your enemies, but ſuffer them to exerciſe much cruelty upon you, Eſay 47.6. contrary to that which at other times he had done with his people, Pſal. 106.45. and with ſomo of the godly alſo did at the ſame time, Chap.15.11. Dan. 1. 9. but this is ſpoken of the main body of the obſtinate wicked: Howbeit, there want not Writers of great note, who render the words, So long as I ſhall not ſhew favour unto you, or, have mercy upon you; to releaſe you out of captivity, which after ſeventy years I will, by Cyrus, do for you, Chap.25.12. But the ſenſe firſt delivered, ſeems genuine.

V. 14. Therefore behold the days come, ſaith the Lord;] To theſe dreadful comminations, yet for the ſupport and comfort of the faithful, is a gracious promiſe of a ſtrange and remarkable reſtitution ſubjoyned, to be exhibited to ſuch a remnant as God ſhould pleaſe to reſerve, after the execution of the judgments here denounced upon the reſt.

V.15. But the Lord liveth that brought up the children of Iſrael out of the North, & from all the lands whither he had driven them.] Thereby intimating, that the captivity in Babylon ſhould be ſo grievous and tedious, and their deliverance out of it, by the miniſtery of Cyrus, ſo ſtrange and great, that it ſhould ſeem, in ſome ſort, to aboliſh with them the memorial of the deliverance out of Egypt. See the like, Eſay 43. 18. But much more ſhould it ſo be with them, in regard of the ſpiritual deliverance and liberty from the ſervitude of ſin and Satan, by Chriſt, purchaſed for them. See Chap.3.16. & 23.7,8. where of the Meſſias his times the ſame is ſaid.

and I will bring them again into the land that I gave unto their fathers] Or, for (as Eſay 13.8.& 16.2 ch.13.21.& 14.15.) I will bring them again, &c. ch.24.6.& 30.18. nor can I accord with that Interpreter, who would have the copulative here rendred, if; (though it ſeemed, but rarely, to be ſo uſed: ſee before ver.10.) as if the Prophet ſpake not affirmatively, but conditionally, if God ever ſhould deliver them; intending onely to aggravate their miſerable condition during the time of their captivity, not to give any aſſurance of delivery out of it.

V. 16. Behold, I will ſend for many fiſhers, and they ſhall fiſh them; and after will I ſend for many hunters, and they ſhall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks.] In theſe words, the Lord ſeems to return to what he had menaced, concerning the deſtroying of them in their land, ver.4. or the carrying of them away out of it, ver.13. ſhewing further by what means he would effect either, to wit, by ſuch forces, as he would ſend in upon them, that ſhould ſo environ them, as fiſhermen do fiſhes, to make havock of them, that they ſhould be wholly at their mercy, either to ſlay or to ſave, and withal ſhould ſo purſue, and ferret out, thoſe of them that ſhould either flee into, or lye hid in, any place of retirement, or refuge, that none ſhould be able to eſcape their hands.

I will ſend for many fiſhers] Or, as ſome render it, to many fiſhers; and ſo there ſhould be a defect of the word meſſage: I will ſend a meſſage to them: as Gen.27,47. So Chap.23.38. or, I will ſend many fiſhers, as ch.40.2. and he took Jeremy, where the ſame particle is uſed. Heb. behold I am ſending; as chap.25.9. & 43.10. And howſoever we read, or render it, the meaning is, that God would by a ſecret inſtinct, and encitement, as by a ſolemn meſſenger or meſſage ſent unto them, cauſe them to come in upon this people. See Eſay 5.26.& 7.18,19. ch.1.15.

fiſhers and hunters] Who ſhould hereby be meant, Interpreters differ. Some ſay, the Egyptians and the Chaldeans; the Egyptians termed fiſhers, becauſe they fed much upon fiſh, and lived much by fiſhing, Num. 11.5. Eſay 19. 8. and they by Pharao-Necho much infeſted this people, 2 King.23. 29,33. the Chaldeans termed hunters; for their tyranny and fierceneſſe: as Nimrod, Gen.10.8,9. See Ezek. 19. 4, 8,9. But this Prophecy ſeemeth of a later date, then that action of Necho; nor do we read of any great havock that he made of the people; he fleeced them onely by Jehojakim of ſome part of their wealth, 2 King.23.35. Others therefore, and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters, underſtand both of the Chaldeans; who having encloſed them as fiſh in a net, by the ſiege of the city, did firſt ſweep them away, at the ſurpriſal of it, by ſlaying multitudes of them; compared in that regard to fiſhers, that take fiſh onely to kill them, it being the nature of fiſh to dye, when they are out of their own element: and did afterward make ſearch after them, that either lay hid in the city, or were fled, and had betaken themſelves for ſecurity to ſome ſecret places; and fetched them out of their lurking holes to make captives of them; compared therefore to hunters, that follow fowls and beaſts (for the word here uſed includeth fowling alſo, Lev.17.13.) in the woods, and in the mountains, to catch them, not to kill them onely, and make meat of them, but for other uſes alſo. See 1 Sam. 24.11,14. & 26.18,20. Pſal.90.3. and of the Chaldeans dealing in this kind with this people, ſee 2 King.25.5. Lam. 3.52. & 4. 18. and this latter ſeemeth the right; though ſome of thoſe Rabbinical niceties intermingled with it may ſeem needleſs. But there want not of our Writers and others, that underſtand theſe words, not as a menace, but as a promiſe: and theſe again are divided; for ſome conceive theſe fiſhers and fowlers, to be the Medes and Perſians ſerving under Cyrus, who ſhould make ſearch for, and gather the Jewiſh people, after Babylons downfall, out of all thoſe regions into which they had been diſperſed: and they parallel this with that, Eſay 27. 12,13. Another ſort would have the Miniſters of the Goſpel to be here meant: by fiſhers, the Apoſtles, who being formerly by trade fiſhermen, were made fiſhers of men, Mat.4.18, 19. Luk.5.10. by hunters, their ſucceſſors, that were ſent abroad into all parts of the world for to catch ſouls for Chriſt, Rom.10.15,18. and ſome of theſe go yet further, the Apoſtles, ſay they, were as fiſhermen, that caſt in the net, and bring up abundance of fiſh at one draught, Luk.5.6,7. Joh.21.6,8. So did Peter, who by the net of the Goſpel, caught 3000. at one draught, Act.2.41. and 2000. if not more, at another, Act. 4.4. the modern Miniſters, as hunters, that run up and down all day long with much noiſe and cry, and it may be ſcarce get one poor hare or deer ere night; with much toil and defatigation they weary out themſelves, and ſcarce catch a ſoul or two, gain at leaſt very few, it may be, all their life long, and may therefore juſtly complain as the Prophet doth, Eſay 49.4. & 53.1. thoſe of the latter age ſhall be as harveſt men, to bring in Gods harveſt, Joh.4.35-38. V. 17. For mine eyes are upon all their wayes; they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes.] Heb. concealed from before mine eyes; from lying open to my view; as Amos 9.3. Jon.1.5. Both they themſelves and all their wicked courſes lye open to mine eye, Job 34. 21, 22. Prov. 5.21. & 15.3,11. Pſal.119.168. & 139.2-12. Chap.13. 27. & 32.19. Amos 9.1-3. V. 18. And firſt I will recompence their iniquity and their ſin double,] firſt, that is, before I reſtore the remainder of them, and receive them into grace and favour again, ver. 15. for I conceive thoſe to miſtake, that refer this firſt, to the captivity under Jeconiah, 2 King.24.14. as ſo termed here in regard of that ſecond under Zedekiah, 2 King.25.11. here being nothing in the text to lead thereunto. Nor do I concur with thoſe, who render it, from the beginning, from the firſt to the laſt, their anceſtors ſins and their own; as Eſay 65.7. Mat. 23.34,35. the words of the text will hardly bear it.

Chap.7.31. & 19.5. Ezek.16.20. and of vile and unclean creatures, which they ſacrificed to their idols, Deut.12. 17. Eſay 65.4. & 66.17. called the carcaſſes of their idols, Lev. 26.30. wherewith they cauſed God to abhor his own inheritance, Pſal.106.40.) and with their abominations; that is, the idols themſelves, unto whom they ſacrificed them, ſo termed, Deut.7.25. & 27.15. 2 King.23.13.

V. 19. O Lord, my ſtrength, and my fortreſſe, my refuge in the day of affliction] An acknowledgment of God as the onely ſtay and ſtrength of his, and on whom alone they depended for relief and deliverance in times of trouble and diſtreſſe, Pſal.18.1,2. & 46.1. Chap.17.17.

the Gentiles ſhall come unto thee from the ends of the earth] A prophecy of the coming in of the Gentiles to God, being convinced of his power and majeſty manifeſtly diſcovered in his admirable works wrought for the deliverance and reſtitution of his people; that which ſome underſtand of ſuch, as upon the diſſolution of the Babylonian captivity, embraced the ſervice of the true God; and joyned themſelves unto his people. See Ezr. 6. 21. and the like, Eſt. 8. 17. Others, of thoſe that ſhould out of all parts be brought in unto Chriſt by the Miniſtery of the Goſpel, Chap.5.2. Mal.1. 11. Some of both, the one being as a type and fore-runner of the other.

and ſhall ſay, Surely our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things wherein there is no profit.] Some expound this of the Jewiſh people, returning from thoſe remote regions, into which they had been diſperſed, Deut.30.4. and whoſe anceſtors in former times had been idolaters, Joſh.24.2,3. but the moſt rather of the Gentiles, acknowledging, that their forefathers had fondly ſerved and ſet their hearts and hopes on vain idols that were not able to do them any good, or to ſtand them in any ſtead, and by the ſervice of whom they had gained nothing but loſs, ſhame and ſorrow; and it were extream folly therefore for them their children to perſiſt and tread ſtill in their ſteps. See Chap.3.24,25. & 14.20,22.

inherited] got or gained; as Prov.11.29. he that troubleth his own houſe, ſhall inherit wind: and, the ſely inherit folly, Prov.14.18. and, the upright ſhall inherit good, Prov.28.10. for I conceive their conceit to be over-nice, who ſuppoſe in this term, an eye to be had unto their receiving their ſuperſtitions and idolatries, as an inheritance from their anceſtors, chap.44. 17. 1 Pet.1.18.

and things wherein there is no profit] Heb. and in them there is not that profiteth: and in them, for, wherein: as, and they, for, who, Eſay 37.27. & 46.11. there is not that profiteth; nothing that can profit, or is good for ought, Eſay 44. 10. Howbeit, ſome render it, and there is none among them (that is, among their falſe gods) that profiteth; that can do any good, or availeth ought, Chap.10.5. Nor is this verſion improbable.

V. 20. Should a man make gods to himſelf, and they are no Gods?] Some ſuppoſe theſe words to be ſpoken by God in indignation, that his people who had ſo great, and ſo long experience of his power and deity, ſhould not yet diſcover the vanity of idols made with mens hands, which the Heathen themſelves ſhould ſome of them ſee and acknowledge. See Eſay 42.17—19. & 44.20,21. Chap. 10.1. And this ſeemeth very probable, for in the inference, that ſeems hereupon grounded, ver.21. Howbeit, the moſt Interpreters go another way; conceiving them to be meant of the convert-Heathens confeſſion, further acknowledging with ſome deteſtation, the extream folly of their forefathers, that could be ſo ſottiſh, as to believe, that ſuch idols made by mans hand ſhould be Gods, Act.17.29. Some render the words; Can a man (the indicative in a potential notion; as Chap.12.23.) make him gods? (either, make for himſelf, to worſhip, Eſay 2. 20. or, make him; by an elegant redundancy; as Eſay 31. 8.) yet they are no Gods. Others, Can, or, ſhould, a man make him gods; which are no Gods? and they, for, which; as chap. 17.6. Mal.3.1. and the pronoun demonſtrative for the verb ſubſtantive: as Chap.10.3,8. Can any man endued with reaſon, be ſo ſilly and ſottiſh, as to deem that his God, which either himſelf hath made, or ſome other man for him; whereas thereby he may know it not ſo to be, becauſe it is the work of mans hands? Pſal.115.14. Eſay 2.8. Chap.10.3,9. Hoſ. 8. 6. or, that he can ſo change the nature of things, as to make that God, which by nature is nothing leſſe then God? or that he ſhould attempt ſo to do? Eſay 44.16,17. Chap.2.11. Gal.4.8. But an Interpreter of prime note rejecting all theſe, as but cold notions, thus rendreth and expoundeth the text; Can any man (or, men, the word collectively taken) make them Gods, when as they themſelves are no Gods, but men? Can he that is no God, make a God? give that to another which he hath not himſelf: the words may well bear it; but I leave it to the judgment of others.

V. 21. Therefore behold I will for this once, cauſe them to know] Heb. behold I am making them for this time, or turn, to know.

Therefore] Becauſe this people perſiſt in their obſtinacy, ſay ſome: others rather, becauſe they are ſo addicted to idolatry, a ſin ſo palpable, and in them wholly inexcuſable, ver. 18,20. Eſay 2.8,9.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſ. 1. The ſin of Judah is written with a pen of iron, and with the point of a diamond, it is graven upon the table of their heart, and upon the horns of their altars;] Whether the four firſt verſes of this Chapter (which in the Greek Verſion are wanting) depend upon the Chapter foregoing, as I conceive them to do; or the whole Chapter ſo do, as ſome ſuppoſe: or whether it be an entire Sermon of it ſelf, as ſome would have it; or contain the ſum of ſome ſeveral Sermons, as ſome others are of opinion, with whom I concur, are matters neither very certain, nor much material. Certain it is, that in theſe four firſt verſes, the former denunciation of wrath and judgment delivered, chap.16.13,16,21. is again renewed, ver.3, 4. and the ground of it, to wit, their idolatry, there pointed to, ver.18,20. here preſſed and aggravated by their extream pertinacy therein, the notoriouſneſs of it, and their inward and entire affection unto it. The firſt whereof is in the former part of the verſe laid down, and illuſtrate by a reſemblance taken from ſome characters, cut or carved with iron or ſteel, or other ſtrong tool, in marble-ſtone, or the like hard matter, ſo deep, that they cannot eaſily, if at all, be done out again: thereby intimating, that in like manner, this evil of idolatry was ſo deeply rivetted into their ſouls, and had made ſo deep an impreſſion in their minds and memories, that it was not poſſible to get or raze it out thence, to work it out of their hearts, or to make them leave minding and remembring it. The ſame pertinacy in evil in them, ſee ſet forth by other expreſſions and reſemblances, Chap.2.22. & 6.29, 30. & 13.23. For I cannot concur with thoſe, who would have the words rendred, The ſin of Judah ſhall be written with a pen of iron, and an adamantine claw; that is, ſay they, the guilt and penalty of it ſhall be ſo ſet on with them, that they ſhall not be able in haſt to forget it.

ſin.] Their idolatry, by way of eminency, for the hainouſneſs of it here, ſo termed, (ſee Exod. 32. 31.) as appears both by the cloſe of this verſe, and by what followeth, verſ. 2, 3.

written] That is, cut, or engraven: for ſo the Hebrew word is commonly uſed, not onely for to write in a book, Deut. 19. 20. Chap. 32. 10. but to engrave alſo in ſtone, or other like material, Exod. 24. 12. & 34. 1.

with a pen of iron] Such an iron tool as men uſe to carve or engrave with: as Job 19. 24. Of the word rendred pen, ſignifying firſt a pen to write with, Pſal. 45. 2. then a tool to grave with, ſee on Chap. 8. 8.

and with the point of a diamond] The former word here uſed, ſignifieth properly the claw of a fowl; for from a bird, or fowl, it hath its name: but it is uſed alſo for the nail of man or woman, Deut. 21. 12. Dan. 4. 33. and becauſe the claws of fowls, birds of prey eſpecially, are ſtrong and ſharp: Hence by reſemblance, ſuch iron tools alſo, as artificers that work in hard matter, ſuch as maſons or ſmiths engrave with, are ſo termed, as by ſome places by the Jewiſh Scholiaſt here, and by others elſe-where, out of the Talmudiſts Writings produced, may appear. So that by the word here, rendred point, there ſeemeth no other to be intended, then what was rendred a pen before; at leaſt, that they were both names, if not of one and the ſame tool, of two tools not unlike the one to the other; the one, reſembling the pen of a fowl; the other, the claw, and both, as may ſeem alſo, among work-men, much of the ſame uſe. And hence, as here, a pen of iron; ſo out of the Midras, a claw of iron: but of the other word there is not a little difficulty; for ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks would have it to ſignifie any hard matter in general: and here, to ſignifie hard iron, or ſteel; ſupplying the word iron from the former member; as, ſay they, the Chaldee Paraphraſt uſeth it for an hard ſtone, joyning ſtone and it together, Deut. 32. 13. and that it ſignifieth not an adamant alone, (the point whereof, I ſuppoſe, was never in common uſe thus to grave with) but any hard rocky, or flinty ſtone, appeareth by the common uſe of it in the Chaldee, Deut. 8. 15. Job 28. 10. Pſal. 114. 8. and it is ſtrange, if this term ſignifie a diamond, how it came to miſs a place in the ſtones of the Ephod; for another word is deemed to go for a diamond there, Exod. 28. 18. I will not make uſe of that Talmudical tale, (which yet ſome of the Jewiſh Scholiaſts, on Eſay 5. 6. follow) to wit, that this Shamir ſhould ſignifie a worm, that Moſes made uſe of, to cut thoſe precious ſtones with, and Solomon, to cut out the ſtones for the Temple, being taught the uſe of it by Aſmodeus the devil, and fetcht out of Paradice by an Eagle: this were to confute, a miſtake at moſt, by a more frivolous fable: but that it ſignifieth a very hard ſtone, ſo called from its own laſting, and the ſure and long keeping of things therein cut and engraved, is evident by theſe two places, where in this notion it is found uſed, Ezek. 3. 9. & Zach. 7. 12. in the former place, whereof it is ſaid, ſhamir, harder then the rock. But what uſe is there ordinarily, ſave among ſavage people, where iron tools are wanting, of flints or ſtone to carve with in hard matter? Some therefore of the Jewiſh Writers would have the words read, with a pen of iron, and with a claw in an hard ſtone; ſuch as marble, or the like; and thereby to be meant, what by further explication followeth, upon the table of their hearts; for their hearts, ſay they, are elſewhere called hearts of ſtone, Ezek. 36. 26. and ſaid to be as this hard ſtone, Zach. 7. 12. But becauſe this ſeemeth an over-hard conſtruction, I adhere rather to that learned Writer, who by the claw, or iron tool of the hard ſtone, or long-laſting ſtone, underſtandeth a tool not made of ſuch a ſtone, but wherewith in ſuch ſtones, not ſoft, but hard marble, or rocky ſtones, things are wont to be cut and engraven; the rather, for that I find a furnace of iron, not for a furnace made of iron, but for a furnace, wherein iron is melted and wrought, Deut. 4. 20. See on Chap. 11. 4.

it is graven upon the table of their heart] Heb. engraven, or, being engraved. The word here uſed, anſwereth preciſely to the Latine exarata: for it ariſeth as that alſo doth, from a root that ſignifies to plow; whence the plow-ſhare, that enters and cuts the ground, 1 Sam. 13. 21. and a term for notion parallel to it, and in one radical letter onely differing, is found, Exod. 32. 16. and as that onely there, (where it is uſed of Gods Law engraven on the two Tables of ſtone) ſo this, in that notion alone here: Of the phraſe of the table of the heart, and ought written and engraven there, ſee 2 Cor. 3. 3. Their ſin, a tranſgreſſion of Gods Law, 1 Joh. 3. 4. is engraven and ſtamped upon their hearts, and that in ſuch manner, as was before ſaid, where the Law of God was ſometime, Rom. 2. 15. and ought ſtill to be, written, Ezek. 31. 33. Some think there is an alluſion to thoſe ſuperſtitious tablets, which idolatrous people uſed to wear next their hearts, with the name, mark, or number, of that god, whom they were moſt addicted to, engraven thereon; or to the common practice of ſuch perſons as uſed to carry about them, the effigies, or names of thoſe, whom they did in ſpecial manner affect, either drawn upon ſuch tablets, or engraved upon ſome agate, or the like ſtone in their rings, or ſeals. See on Eſay 49. 16. But hereof let the Learned judge. Some other ſuppoſe, that the meaning ſhould be, that the guilt of their ſin ſtuck ſo faſt to their conſcience, that all they could do, would not be able to raze it out, but that it would ſtand for ever firm and freſh, as upon record, there, Deut. 32. 34. Eſay 65. 6. But of this before.

and upon the horns of your altars.] In the former words was intimated their pertinacious diſpoſition, in regard of their ſin: in this clauſe, the notoriouſneſs of it; as if he had ſaid, You will ask me, peradventure, how I can come to know, or tell what is in your hearts. God, from whom I have it, ſeeth and knoweth it well enough, ver. 10. But I need not have recourſe to any ſuch ſpecial revelations, your outward courſes and practices do openly publiſh and proclaim it: as it is enſtamped upon the tables of your hearts, ſo is it likewiſe portraid upon the horns of your altars. In which term, there is by moſt Writers deemed an alluſion to be unto the bloud of beaſts offered in ſacrifices, which was uſually ſprinkled upon the horns of the altar, a rite enjoyned by God, and imitated by idolaters in the ſervice of their falſe gods: For Gods altar was four ſquare, and at each of the four corners of it, was fixed a riſing of braſs, to ſome height, in the faſhion of an horn, to keep from falling over ſuch things as were laid to be burnt upon the altar, Exod. 27. 1, 2. Ezek. 43. 15, 16. Now upon theſe, for expiation, was the bloud of the ſacrifice part of it put, Exod. 29. 12. Lev. 4. 7. & 16. 18. The like rite whereunto being uſed by theſe idolaters, was an open profeſſion of their idolatrous ſervices, and is here produced as a pregnant proof and evidence againſt them. Now this being the meaning of the text, the word of engraving, muſt be taken here in a double notion, as if it were ſaid, engraven upon the tables of your hearts, (for the terms are collective) and painted (for of bloud that is moſt proper) upon the horns of your altars. It is not unlike thoſe ſpeeches of Moſes, The people ſaw the thundrings and lightnings; ſaw the one, heard the other, Exod. 20. 18. & Deut. 4. 12. Ye ſaw no ſimilitude, a voice onely heard ye: as alſo to that of the Apoſtle, I made you to drink milk, not to eat meat; or fed you not with meat, 1 Cor. 3. 2. But this double notion, ſome avoid, ſuppoſing this clauſe to reſpect not the bloud put, or ſprinkled upon the altars; but to the names of thoſe gods, that at them were worſhipped, inſcribed, or engraved, upon the altars: Of which, ſee Act. 17. 23. and that in the term of horns is intimated, that by, and for thoſe, their abominable practices, they ſhould be goared, as with horns, unto their utter deſtruction. See 1 King. 22. 11. But the former ſeems the more probable, and is admitted by the moſt. Howſoever it be taken, there is in the text, the particle unto, for, upon, as Pſal. 9. 4. Ch. 15. 8. and a paſſage from perſon to perſon, from the third to the ſecond; as Eſay 1. 29. Chap. 16. 12.

V. 2. While their children remember their altars and their groves, by the green trees upon the high hills.] According to this verſion, which the old Latine holdeth forth, the meaning ſhould be, that the children took after their parents, treading in their idolatrous ſteps, while they kept in, or called to mind their courſes of that kind, and the places wherein they uſually exerciſed the ſame. See Chap. 7. 18. But the Chaldee Paraphraſt, whom both the Jewiſh Commenters, and ſome of ours, follow, render the words; As they remember their children, (Heb. according to the remembring, or, remembrance, of their children) ſo remember they their altars and their groves; that is, as men are wont to mind their children, the daily remembrance of whom, being moſt dear and precious to them, is very pleaſing and delightful; ſo are theſe men wont to mind and think upon continually with much pleaſure and delight, the places wherein they do ſervice to their idols, being far dearer to them, then the children themſelves. See Chap. 7. 31, 32. & 19. 5. See for the form of ſpeech, Pſal. 106. 4. Eſay 1. 7. and for the ſupply of the verb from the former branch, Gen. 1. 16. 2 Chr. 10. 11. Eſay. 10. 5. Chap. 8. 10. Thus read, (which I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe) it implyeth the great love and affection that they bare unto their idols. See Eſay 57. 5, 8. For that ſeems too much forced, which ſome Jewiſh ones ſuggeſt, of making memorials of their children, by burning them in fire to their idols; according to that, Lev. 2. 9. Eſay 66. 3. as alſo that of thoſe who expound it, that they ſhall for a long time remember theſe their practiſes, when the evils that they ſuffer for them, ſhall ſtick cloſe to them.

groves] Set apart and abuſed for idolatrous ſervices, Judg. 3. 7. Eſay 1. 29. See Eſay 27. 9.

by the green trees] Or, beſide; as Chap. 32. 20. or, with the green trees; (Heb. green tree; but taken collectively) the groves ſet with, or conſiſting of ſuch. So is the particle uſed, Gen.32.11. Exod. 35.22. 1 Sam. 1.24. for they needleſly wring the text, that by a trajection would refer, beſide the green trees, not to the groves, but to the altars; or that inſtead of, upon the green trees, as the particle moſt commonly ſignifieth, render it, under the green tree; becauſe it is ſo, chap.2. 20. for this particle is never that I can find, uſed in ſo croſs a ſenſe.

upon the high hills.] the uſual places of their idol-ſervices; whence the term of high places, Chap.2.20. & 3.2.

V. 3. O my mountain in the field, I will give thy ſubſtance, and all thy treaſures to the ſpoyl; and thy high-places for ſin, in all thy borders.] The fruit and effect of theſe their idolatrous courſes followeth, to wit, the expoſing of their ſubſtance and wealth to direption, and their perſons to deportation and ſervitude, ver.4.

O my mountain in the field] The city of Jeruſalem, and Sion more ſpecially, Gods holy hill, Pſal.68.15. & 133.3. becauſe the city ſtood, though in the midſt of a plain, Pſal. 125. 1,2. yet upon a riſing all of it, and that upper part of it, upon an eminent hill; with many rich and pleaſant fields round about it: for the Rabbine ſeems here to ſit beſides the cuſhion, who would have the name of a mountain to be given here to the Jewiſh people; becauſe on the mountains they uſually exerciſed their idolatry, Eſay 65.4. Ezek.18.6. nor ſeem they to have hit the nail on the head, who render the words, O thou mountain, thou people of Judah and Jeruſalem, that dwelleſt on and amidſt the mountains, and truſteſt much to the ſtrength of them, as if thou wert therefore impregnable, Chap.21.13. thou ſhalt be no more ſafe, then as if thou wert ſeated in the open field, expoſed to prey and ſpoyl: or, come down into the field, or thou ſhalt be brought down into the field; for thine enemies ſhall put thee down, lay thee low, and make thee level with the plain, Luk.19.44. as alſo thoſe no leſſe miſſe the mark, who by a trajection would render the words; thy wealth in the fields will I give for a prey. None of theſe (ſave the firſt, which the words may well bear) but ſeem to force the text too much. Thoſe I conceive to come neereſt to the genuine ſenſe of the place, who thus read it; My mountains, with the fields, thy wealth, and all thy treaſures, will I expoſe to ſpoil. Heb. My mountain, and field; but taken collectively; as heart, for, hearts, ver.1. tree, for, trees, ver.2. the mountains of Judah, being much of it hilly, Pſal.125.2. Luk.1.39. (which God calleth by a ſpecialty, his mountains, Eſay 14.26. & 65.9.) and the whole territory divided into mountain and field, or plain, as Ezek. 6.3. with the fields. So is this particle rendred, Chap.11.19. Deut. 6.7. Pſal.35.16. 1 Sam.1.24. Hoſ.5.6. thy wealth, that lyeth abroad in the field; and all thy treaſures, (the copulative ſupplyed from Chap. 15. 13.) whether abroad in the field; as Chap.41.8. or laid up in thy ſtore-houſes and treaſuries, chap. 15.13. Eſay 39.6. will I expoſe to prey. Heb. give to, or, for, prey; that is, give up to be preyed upon, or made a prey, Chap.9.10.

and thy high places for ſin, in all thy borders.] The former member is diverſly read and expounded. Some underſtand it of their high-places to be given up to the ſpoyl with the reſt, for the ſin therein committed. See Ezek. 6.6. Others, thy high-places erected for ſin; for ſinful and idolatrous practices, Chap. 7. 31. Others, thy high-places are ſin; as the calf is called their ſin, Deut.9.21. the particle redundant; as Job 18.8. See Eſay 26.4. & 40.10. ver.4. Others, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks, by a trajection, thy high places for ſin; that is, for the ſin of thine high places: as, after and build, for, and build afterward, Prov.24.27. and, a place there of ſepulture, for, a place of ſepulture there, Ezek. 39. 11. and, wailing to ſuch as are skilful in lamentation, for, ſuch as are skilful in lamentation to wailing, Amos 5. 16. and this in effect doth come home to the firſt; ſave that the one maketh the high places the common ſubject matter of direption with the reſt; the other maketh them the ſubject place of their ſin: the laſt clauſe may have reference, either unto their wealth and treaſure, that they ſhould in all places be ſtript of, chap.4. 20. or unto their high places, that the whole land was filled with in all parts of it, and the ſins therein committed, chap.3. 2. & 16.18. See the ſame with this, Chap.15.13.

V. 4. And thou, even thy ſelf, ſhalt diſcontinue from thy heritage, that I gave thee;] Heb. And thou, and in thee, ſhall intermit, or diſcontinue. Which ſome expound; And thou, even (as Chap.15.13.) thou; the other particle being redundant, as ver.3. Others, And thou thy ſelf, and thoſe that are in thee: all the Inhabitants of the land. Others, Then (as Chap.16 11. to wit, when thou haſt been thus ſtript) ſhalt thou, and that (as ver. 10. Chap. 20. 5.) for, or, through, thy ſelf, (that is, for, or through, thine own default: as Chap. 15. 13. Eſay 47.9. & 57.17.) diſcontinue, or, intermit, from thine heritage: ceaſe from, and forbear to till the land, that thou now poſſeſſeſt: there is in this term an alluſion to that Law, by which they were enjoyned to intermit the tillage of their land in certain years, called therefore Sabbatical years, becauſe the land in them reſted, as men did on the Sabbath. See Exod.23.10,11. (where the word here uſed is found) and to that intermination of ſuch a ceſſation or intermiſſion, while they ſhould abide in captivity abroad, Lev.26.34. which the words next following do evidently evince: and a learned Scholiaſt therefore ſuppoſeth, that there ſhould be here a ſupply of the word hand, becauſe he findeth it ſubjoyned there to the verb here uſed, rendring the text, thou ſhalt be compelled to omit, or, with-hold thine hand from thy poſſeſſion; but he might have obſerved, that the verb is there in an active form; here in a neuter: and it may well therefore be rendred, thou ſhalt ceaſe from (as the like, Eſay 2. 22.) thine heritage, or, poſſeſſion, (to wit, from tilling, or earing and enjoying of it) which I had given thee; to poſſeſs, Pſal.135.12.

and I will cauſe thee to ſerve thine enemies in the land that thou knoweſt not] Or, while (ſo is the copulative taken, 1 King. 11.25. and ſo rendred, Eſt.2.21. Pſal. 146. 2.) I cauſe thee to ſerve thine enemies in a land that thou knoweſt not, or, in the land (as particularly pointing at Babylon) which thou haſt not known, formerly, ſave by hear-ſay only; that is, during the time of thine abſence from thine own land, and of thy ſervitude in a ſtrange country. See Lev. 26.34,35. Of the divers reading here, ſee on Chap.15.14. where the other is in the text; which if we admit, the words muſt be rendred, and I will cauſe, or, when (as Chap.34.1. Zach.12.2.) I ſhall cauſe thee to paſſe with thine enemies into a land that thou knoweſt not.

for ye have kindled a fire in mine anger, which ſhall burn for ever.] See Chap.15.14. a want of the relative there in the former branch, as here in the latter.

for ever] That is, for a long time; as Exod.21.6. Deut.15. 17. 1 Sam.1.22. & 27.12. Pſal.89.1. Eſay 34.10.

V. 5. Thus ſaith the Lord;] Here ſeemeth to begin a ſhort ſum of another Sermon; though moſt conceive it to have dependance upon the former; as holding out a ſecond ſin after their idolatry, ver.1-4. to wit, confidence in an arm of fleſh, and worldly wealth, for which alſo they were to ſuffer. It beginneth with a curſe denounced againſt all that withdraw their hearts from God, ver. 5,6. and a bleſſing to all that conſtantly depend upon him, ver.7,8.

Curſed be the man, that truſteth in man, and maketh fleſh his arm, and whoſe heart departeth from the Lord] A corruption that this people were ever over-prone to, ſeeking unto, and relying upon, forraign aids from time to time with a neglect of God, and refuſal to reſt upon him. See 2 Chron.16.7. and 28.16,20. Eſay 30. 1, 2. & 31.1,2. & 36.6. Chap.35. 5, 7. Ezek. 29.6,7,16.

Curſed be the man,] Or, is the man: as the like, ver.7.

truſteth in man] Relyeth upon him, as his abſolute ſupport and firm ſtay, Pſal.146.3,4.

in man] Heb. in Adam; a man of earth, or dirt, or clay, or duſt; ſo the name importeth, Gen.2.2. & 3.19. Pſal. 103.14. See on Eſay 2.9.

maketh fleſh his arm] fleſh, for, man; a feeble, frail and corruptible creature, expoſed to caſualty, and ſubject to mortality, Pſal.103.15,16. & 144.4. & 146.4. Eſay 2.22. & 51.3. So Pſal.78.39. Eſay 40.6,7. arm, for, might and ſtrength; as 1 Sam.2.31. Pſal.10.15. and for ſupport, Eſay 33.2. Hence, an arm of fleſh, 2 Chr.32.8. as if one would ſay, of meer fleſh, without bone or ſinew, without ſtrength or firmneſſe, (for in the bone and ſinew, not in the fleſh, doth the ſtrength and firmneſs of the body conſiſt, Pſal.24.7. Job 40.18.) an infirm and feeble thing, unable to bear up it ſelf, and much leſſe able to ſuſtain or bear up ought elſe; and fleſh, for, a man that is nothing but fleſh; as Gen.6.3. and in the places before pointed to, Pſal.78.19. Eſay 40.6. and ſuch and no better is the mightieſt man without Gods ſupport, even as a meer fleſhy arm, without any nerve or bone at all in it; and a meer folly and madneſſe for any man to rely on ſuch a piece of infirm and feeble ſtuff, Eſay 31.1,3.

whoſe heart departeth from God] Though he make ſhew ſtill outwardly of continuance with him. See Eſay 29.13. & 48. 2. & 58.2. Chap.12.2. Ezek.14.4. & 33.30—32.

V. 3. For he ſhall be like the heath in the deſert] Heb. And; as Pſal.1.3. How uncertain the great Maſters in Iſrael are, and how far to ſeek in their own language, concerning the names as well of birds, and beaſts, as of trees and plants, mentioned in Scripture, hath in part been already ſhewed, for the former, on Eſay.13.21,22. & 34.14,15. for the latter, on Eſay 41.19. and we ſhall here make further to appear. The Hebrew Arar here, or Aroar, as it is found written, Chap. 48. 6. ſome of them affirm to be the ſame with dardar, Gen. 3. 18. Hoſ.10.8. which ſome render a thiſtle, ſome a bramble, ſome a briar. See the parallel place, Heb.6.8. which ſeems to carry it to the laſt. Others ſay, it is a kind of thiſtle, that is pricky without, but eatable within. And the like is ſaid of the term that the Chaldee Paraphraſt gives it; ſo it might be our artichoke. Another telleth us, that it is in ſome barbarous tongues called juncus, ſo it ſhould be a bulruſh, according to the Latine juncus. Another, that it is that which the Arabians call habel, by which name are the Juniper-berries ſaid to be termed: yea, ſome tell us, that the juniper buſh it ſelf is in the Arabian tongue called by the very name here uſed. Which it is marvel then how it eſcaped that Jewiſh Doctor that gave this Interpretation of it, by the name of the berry, rather then of the buſh. Others of them ſay, it is a plant that in forraign languages is termed myrice; and ſo the old Latine rendreth it. Now under this appellation, are two ſorts of plants comprehended, both with the Greeks, and with the Latines; the one called the tamariſk, that loveth watry places, and groweth uſually neer the brinks of brooks and rivers; the other called alſo erice, and with us heath, a ſhrub lower then the former, that affecteth dry grounds and waſte places; which from it therefore we uſually term heaths, whether heath grow on them, or no. Now of this latter ſort our Engliſh verſion, (wherein many other Interpreters concur with it) underſtandeth the word here uſed to be meant; as alſo ſome ſay, that the word uſed by the Chaldee, doth ſignifie the ſame. But of this plant or ſhrub, and the ſeverall ſorts of it, ſee Dioſcorides, l.1. c. 117. Baſil in his ſix dayes work, Sermon 5. Pliny, l.13. c.21. & l.16. c.26. & l.24. c.9. in which two latter places he telleth us, that this ſort of plant is reckoned among thoſe that were counted unlucky, or unhappy, and damned ones; ſuch as might not be admitted into any religious rite, and that were therefore ſo termed, becauſe they bare neither fruit nor ſeed, nor were wont at all to be planted or ſet: of which ſort this being one, was deemed good for nothing, ſave to make beſomes, or brooms, ſuch as are with us known commonly by the name of heath-brooms; that which ſuiteth paſſing well with the uſe of the word in this place. Howbeit, Pliny in thoſe places ſeemeth to confound theſe two plants: which Baſil well diſtinguiſheth, applying that to the former ſort, that is peculiar to the latter; becauſe the common ſort of people in his time uſed to give the name of the former to the latter. Which errour alſo, it ſeems, the Italian and ſome others alſo following him, are not free from, who render the word here tamerice, or tamariſk; the Italian note adding, that it is a baſtard plant (which what it ſhould mean, I wot not well, unleſſe it be, as baſtard-ſaffron, for, ſaffron, falſly ſo termed: and ſo baſtard-tamariſk, for, tamariſk; for likeneſſe of it to the right tamariſk, ſo commonly called) of no uſe but for the fire: for of the former, both Dioſcorides & others affirm, that it is planted, and doth bear fruit, and is very uſeful in Phyſick: and well the Greek therefore here, to take away all ambiguity, expreſſeth it, by a term that ſignifies wild-myrice; that kind of it (as the text ſaith) that groweth in the wilderneſſe. Howbeit, in the laſt place, another of them directly croſſing this opinion, yea, and himſelf too elſewhere, telleth us, it is a great tree, that groweth in the wilderneſſe; but what tree he ſaith not, relating onely what ſome other ſay of it. Thus theſe; agreeing, as we ſay, like harp and harow, yet all taking it for ſome peculiar kind of plant. But ſome late Writers are herein of another mind; for they conceive it not to deſign any ſpecial ſort or kind of plant; but an attribute onely of ſome plant, tree, or ſhrub in general: and with theſe I concur, for two cauſes; firſt, becauſe in the oppoſite branch, ver.7. there is no mention of any particular plant, but a tree only, at large: and ſecondly, becauſe I find it uſed, as an attribute, not of a plant, but of a perſon, Pſal.102.17. where ſome expound the word ſolitary, as there, ver.7. from a word that ſignifieth, barren, childleſſe, without iſſue, Gen.15.2. Lev.20,20,21. Chap. 22.30. and ſo it might here ſignifie a tree that ſtandeth alone by it ſelf on the waſte; or a hewen tree, ſuch as the Eunuch is compared unto, Eſay 56.3. but theſe both, are afterwards expreſſed. Others, low, or, lowly, or dejected; from a root that ſignifieth to throw, or, pull down, Chap.51.58. and ſo it might here be, a low ſhrub: but that ſeems not to ſuit ſo well with the root, whence it ſhould come, uſed of pulling down walls and buildings onely, as the word to raze, with us. Others laſtly, render it deſtitute; as thoſe, Heb.11.37. or, deſpoiled, left naked, made bare: as Job 1.21. from a verb that ſignifieth to ſtrip, to make naked, or, bare, Eſay 32.11. Habb.3.9. and accordingly ſome render it, a bare, or, naked tree; without any furniture of fruit or leaf. See Eſay 1.30. a defect of the ſubject; as, vile, for, vile grapes, Eſay 5.4. a fading, for, a fading plant, Eſay 28.4. untempered, for, untempered morter, Ezek. 13.11. and the word being of a doubled form, may well be deemed to ſignifie moſt bare: which I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of the word.

in the deſert] As, in the wilderneſſe, Eſay 48.6. but there is here an elegant conſonancy, between the term intimating the condition of the tree, and that deſigning the place of its abode: as if it were ſaid, an exceeding bare tree in an extream barren ſoil.

and ſhall not ſee when good cometh,] Or, that ſeeth not; that is, enjoyeth it not, partaketh not of it, hath not any ſhare in it; (as the word is uſed, Job 9.25. Pſal.34.12. Chap.29.32.) when any rain from heaven, or other benefit or bleſſing falleth upon, or befalleth other places, Eſay 5. 6. Amos 4. 7. for that learned late Writer ſeems here to have ſtrayed, who doth thus paraphraſe theſe words; it ſhall not bring forth any fruit fit for food, when the time of ſo doing ſhall with other trees be.

but ſhall inhabit the parched places in the wilderneſſe] Or, but (Heb. and; as Chap. 15.19.) is ſituate (as Joſh. 22. 19.) in ſome parched, or, extream dry place, (Heb. parched places, for ſome parched place: as, ſepulchres, for, any one ſepulchre, Gen. 23.6. cities, for, one of the cities, Judg.12.7. ſtreams, for, ſome one ſtream, Pſal.1.3. and a defect of the ſubject; as in the foregoing branch: or, a place of parchedneſſes, or, dryneſſes, for, a moſt dry, or, parched place: as, a place of drought, for, a dry place, Eſay 25.5. & 32.2. a land of drought, for, a dry land, Eſay 35.1. and, a land of droughts, for, an extream dry land, Pſal.105.41.) in the wilderneſſe: where ſuch places are moſt frequent, Chap.2.6. & 51.43. in ſuch a land or ſoyl, as can afford it no moiſture: and conſequently, that cannot thrive, receiving neither rain from above, nor moiſture from beneath. See Ezek.19.13.

in a ſalt land,] Or, a ſalt ground. Heb. a land, or, ground, of ſaltneſſe: as, a land of ſaltneſſe, Job 39.6. Pſal.107.34. ſuch as are altogether barren and unfruitful, Deut.29.23. to which purpoſe alſo were places ſometime ſowed with ſalt, on purpoſe to make them ſuch, Judg.9.45.

and not inhabited] Or, which is not inhabited; the copulative for the relative: as Chap.14.18. Heb. inhabiteth, for, is inhabited: the neuter in a paſſive notion; as Eſay 13. 20. where is no inhabitant to manure or dreſſe it, Gen. 2. 5, 13. Eſay 5.6. Luk.13.8. or where for the barrenneſſe of the ſoil, no man dwelleth, Chap.2.6,15. I am not ignorant, that ſome Writers of great note, underſtand, both this ſimilitude and the next, as intending, not external proſperity and ſucceſſe, but ſpiritual graces, and the exerciſe of them: the latter, as that alſo, Pſal.1.3. of regeneration by inſition into Chriſt; production of good works, and perſeverance in well-doing: that which the courſe of the context there doth abundantly refel: and ſo this former accordingly of the want of all theſe; he ſhall not partake in the grace of regeneration, nor be manured and dreſſed by Gods Word in his Church; nor bear any fruit of good works: but theſe things ſeem wholly beſide the intent of the Prophet; which is to ſhew ſuch as truſted to humane helps, how they ſhould not only miſſe of that benefit, good, proſperity, and ſafety, which by thoſe means they made account to attain; but ſhould alſo bring upon themſelves thoſe evils, which thereby they ſought and thought to eſcape and avoid.

V. 7. Bleſſed is the man that truſteth in the Lord, and whoſe hope the Lord is.] From the curſed condition of all thoſe, that withdraw their truſt from God, to repoſe it on the creature; he paſſeth to the bleſſed and happy eſtate of all thoſe that continue loyal to God, and depend wholly for ſupport and ſafety upon him, who alone is able to ſupport and to ſave. See the like bleſſedneſs promiſed and aſſured unto ſuch, Pſal.2. 12. & 40.4. & 125.1. & 146.5. Prov.16.20. Eſay 26. 3, 4. and 30.18.

and whoſe hope the Lord is.] Heb. and the Lord is his truſt, or, confidence: for the word is a verbal, derived from the foregoing verb: and his, for, whoſe; as Chap.5.22. & 15.19. and truſt, or, confidence, for perſon truſted on, or confided in. So Pſal.40.4. & 65.4.

V. 8. For he ſhall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that ſpreadeth out her roots by the river;] See the like deſcription of the godly mans proſperous thriving and flouriſhing condition, Pſal.1.3. and the like reſemblance, Job 8.16, 17. Ezek. 19.10. & 31.4.

For he ſhall be] As Pſal.1.3. ver.6.

planted by the waters] Or, planted (as Pſal.1.3. & 92.13.) by the water ſide; as Eſay 32.20. & 55.1. of which care hath been taken, to ſet it in ſome rich and well watered ſoyl, Eſay 5.1,2. Ezek.19.10.

and that ſpreadeth out her roots by the river] Where it may freely and conſtantly drink water; as the Prophet ſpeaketh, Ezek.31.4. ſee Job 8.17. & 29. 19. Ezek. 31.4,5,7. Heb. ſendeth out (as Pſal.80. 11. Ezek.17.7. & 31.5.) his roots; as Job 8.17.

and ſhall not ſee when heat cometh] Or, and doth not ſee; that is, feel, ſuffer, or ſuſtain any damage or annoyance by any parching or ſcorching heat, when ſuch cometh at ſome time of the year, becauſe it draweth moyſture ſufficient from the ſtreams of the neighbouring river, that run round about its roots, Ezek.31.4. to ſee, for, to ſuffer; as Chap.5.12. & 42.14. & 44.17.

but her leaf ſhall be green] Or, but (Heb. and; as ver. 6.) its leaf (Heb.his; as, his roots before) is (that is, continueth; as Dan.1.21.) green; neither falling, nor fading, Pſal.1.3. but retaining its verdure, notwithſtanding any ſcorching heat of the ſun. So Job 8.17.he is green before the ſun.

and ſhall not be carefull in the year of drought;] Or, Nor taketh thought,or,needeth to take thought; as Mat.6.25. to think what may become of it(a figurative ſpeech like that,Jon.1.4. the ſhip thought to be drownd, ſee chap. 15. 18.) in the year of drought.Heb.of reſtraint; as chap.14. 1. when the ſhowers are reſtrained,chap.3.3.and no rain cometh from above,1 King. 17.1.

neither ſhall ceaſe from yielding fruit.] Or, nor ceaſeth from yielding fruit.Heb.making fruit; as Gen.1.12.Eſay 37.31. V. 9. The heart of man is deceitfull above all things, and deſperately wicked; who can know it?] A lively and pregnant deſcription of the great pravity,and deep corruption of mans heart,very hard and difficult to be diſcovered by others. That which ſome ſuppoſe here to have reference to thoſe that with-drawing their hearts from God,put their confidence in man,ver.6. Others,to thoſe whom ſuch perſons rely upon, and are prone to deceive,ſure to fail,thoſe that rely on them, Prov.25.19.the former ſeems the right: whereof ſee more on the next verſe.

deceitfull] The word here uſed is a very pregnant term; and is diverſly rendred; by ſome,wily, fraudulent, prone (properly) to ſupplant, to circumvent and deceive. So it is ſaid of Jehu,by a term hence deduced, 2 King.10.19. when he made a ſhew,as if he meant to ſerve Baal; he did it ſubtilly, or, in ſubtilty; to deceive and deſtroy the ſervants of that idol; and chap.9.3.every brother will ſupplant,or,deceive,will undermine, go beyond, circumvent his brother: word for word, trip up his heels; for thence had Jacob his name, Gen.25.26. & 27.36.Hoſ.12.3. Others,render it perverſe,full of pravity, ſo the old Latine: or crooked, and uneaven; as the word is uſed of ways, Eſay 40.5. See Eccl.7.26,29. from, for, before, or, above; a particle much ſo uſed in a comparative notion; as Prov.22.1. Eccl.7.1. chap 5.3.and all,for,ought; as Job 1.11.chap.32.23.

and deſperately wicked]This word alſo (for it is but one in the text) is diverſly rendred; ſome render it,deſperate;ſome, deadly. Others joyning both together, deſperately bent unto,and ſet upon deadly miſchief: wholly given deceitfully to deſtroy,and to do miſchief,2 Sam.20.9,10.Pſal.64.5. whereof ſee a pregnant proof in the demeanure of this people toward this our Prophet,chap.11.18,19.& 12.6. as alſo in ſome other towards Gedaliah,chap.40.14,16.& 41.1,2. Of the word, ſee on Eſay 17.11.chap.15.18.& 30.12,15.and hereafter, ver.16. in which place,as alſo in this,ſome,inſtead of anuſh, by a miſtake of the vowel points read enoſh, and render it a man: whereof more on the next clauſe. But here the words run deſperate, or, deadly, it is; the pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive: as Eccl.1.5.chap.10.2,8.

who can know it?] Heb. who knoweth it? but the verb taken potentially: as chap.2.23.ſo Job 22. 13. how doth God know? for, how can God know? and, who ſeeth them, for, ſeeth us? Pſal. 64. 5. & Eſay 29. 15. Who ſees us? or, Who knoweth us? that is, who can ſee,or know, what we do? So cloſe and unſearchable is mans heart, ſo full of ſhifts and fetches, that no man can know what is in it but himſelf, 1 Cor. 2. 11. yea, ſo full of guile, that a man cannot fully know himſelf, Pſal.19.12. that oft-times it even gulleth and beguileth a mans own ſelf,Gal.6.3. Jam.1.22. The Greek here renders the text, joyning this and the former words together, and he is a man,and who knoweth him? and this divers Expoſiters apply unto Chriſt, and his humane nature: but the ground of this miſtake we pointed to before, and ſhall again meet with the like,ver.16.

V. 10. I the Lord ſearch the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his wayes, and according to his doings.] Becauſe he had ſpoken before of with-drawing the heart from God,ver.5. and they, it may be, would pretend, as Eſay 48.2.what the godly do ſincerely profeſs,Pſal.44.17,18. that their heart was not turned away from God, and would not ſtick herein to bear down Gods Prophets to their faces, when they charged them with it, and reproved them for it, chap.2.23,35. God therefore here telleth them,that though they might delude men,and blind or bleer their eyes,by raiſing many ſuch miſts of goodly pretences before them, that they could hardly,if at all,be able to diſcover what lay hid in their hearts; having ſo many ſlights and ſhifts to conceal and colour it withall; yet they could not beguile God, who had an eye, that was able to pierce and pry into every nook and corner of their ſouls, and thorow all thoſe cloudy miſts, and colourable pretences,deſcry the inwardeſt motions, and ſecreteſt intentions of their hearts,and accordingly deal with them,as they juſtly deſerved, 1 Sam. 16.7. 1 Chron. 28. 9. 2 Chron.6.30.Pſal.7.9.& 94.9—11. Prov. 15. 11. Chap.11. 20.& 20.11. Act.1.24. & 15.9. Hebr.4.12. Rev.2.23. Heb. ſearching,and trying,or exploring: and ſo both the Greek and Latine render it, which may two ways be expreſſed; either, I the Lord am he that doth ſearch and explore. So our Verſion; or, as in way of anſwer to the former queſtion, ver. 9. who knoweth it? I the Lord,who ſearch and explore. I that can ſo do, or do ſo, know it: either of both may well ſtand: heart and reins; for the inwardeſt motions,intentions,devices,affections, and deſires of the ſoul, Pſal. 16. 7. & 26.2. & 51.6. & 139. 23. Chap. 12. 2. and in the places before pointed to,

to give to every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings] Weighing as well the inward diſpoſition and affection of the heart,as the outward act and work of the hand, 1 King.15.14. 2 King.14.3. 2 Chron.15.17. and 25.2.Pſal.7.8—10.& 18.23,28.Chap.3.10. Prov.16.2. and 21. 2.

even] Or,and that: as ver. 4. to give unto every man according to his ways] So 1 King. 8. 32,39.Pſal.62.12.Rom.2.6.Rev.22.12.ways, that is, tenour, or courſe of life and carriage: as Pſal.1.6.& 119.1.Ezek.7.3, 4, 27.

according to the fruit of his doings]That is,the reward either of mercy by promiſe,Pſal.62.12.Mat.5.12. or in ſtrict juſtice due to them, Rom. 2. 7—10. and 3. 23. So is the word fruit uſed, Prov.1.31. & 31.31.Chap.21.14. & 32.19. Mic. 7. 13.

V. 11. As the partridge ſitteth on egges, and hatcheth them not; ſo he that getteth riches,and not by right, ſhall leave them in the midſt of his days; and at his end ſhall be a fool.]This people,as they relied much upon forrain forces,an arm of fleſh; which the Prophet met with,ver.5.ſo they truſted not a little to their wealth and treaſure, and that much of it gotten by wicked courſes, either fraud or oppreſſion, whereby they made account that they ſhould be able to hire forraign forces enough for their defence,or by means thereof,otherwiſe, ſhift well enough for themſelves. See Eſay 28.15. & 30. 6. and this the Prophet ſeems here to meet with, telling them, that this their wealth ſo gotten, wherein they put ſo much confidence,Pſal.49.6.& 52.7.Prov.18.11.Eccl.7.12. ſhal not avail them,nor be able to protect and ſecure them, Eſay 28. 17,18.for they ſhall be ſtript of it,or have it taken from them ſooner then they expect,Prov.23.5. Luk.12.15. and ſhall at length prove fools, Luk.12.20. as finding themſelves to have laboured for the wind,Pſal.39.6.Eccl.5.13-16. and this he illuſtrateth, by the ſimilitude of a fowl, that ſitteth upon ſtrange eggs,which being hatched,leave her; or having laid eggs, hath them broken by one means or other, ſo that ſhe never cometh to hatch them.

As] Both the notes of ſimilitude,as,and ſo, are here wanting; as alſo,Prov.26.7,9,14,21.& 27.17, 21. ſave that there the latter is ſupplyed by the copulative,but is wholly wanting,Prov.26.11.

the partridge,] Heb. kore; and ſo is this fowl alſo called, 1 Sam.26.20.the word importeth a caller,or,a cryer, Eſay 40. 3. which name might ſeem to be given her, from her manner,as ſome write, of calling her young after her, when having deluded the Fowler, by her ſlights, ſhe hath drawn her ſelf away from the place of her neſt. See Elian, l. 3. c. 16.

But one of the Jewiſh Maſters, in his Annotations on this place, telleth us, that this kore is that which the French (for in thoſe parts he lived) call a cuckow: and that indeed is a more clamorous fowl then any other ſo commonly and ordinarily is: but the hunting of this kore on the mountains, 1 Sam. 26. 20. ſeems to agree better to the partridge, then to the cuckow, which few, I ſuppoſe, in that manner follow: the ancient Greek reſpecting the notation of the word, rendreth it, as if they had read it doubled, the partridge cryeth.

ſitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not] Or, as ſome, gathereth eggs together, but (Heb. and; as ver. 6.) hatcheth them not: gathereth together; as, ſay they, the word ſignifies, Eſay 34. 15. and in the Talmudiſts Writings, ſeemeth ſometime to be taken: and, gathereth them together; to ſit on, and to hatch, but hatcheth them not; her eggs either proving windy and adle, as oft it falleth out, with thoſe eſpecially that have been produced without the company of the male, which with the partridge is ſaid to be frequent. See Ariſtotle, l. 5. c. 5. & l. 6. c. 2. Pliny, l. 10. c. 32. & 58. or otherwiſe miſcarrying, either by means of thoſe that take them away, Deut. 22. 6. Eſay 10. 14. or of beaſts that trample caſually upon them, Job 39. 15. or of her own mate, the male; that which is of the partridge reported, that the female uſeth not to ſit on her eggs where ſhe layeth them, but to remove them from place to place, where the male may not find them, becauſe being a very luſtfull bird, he will be diſturbing, and breaking of them, that he may have the company of the dam: Of which, ſee Ariſtotle, l. 9. c. 8. & Pliny, l. 10. c. 32. but the word here rendred hatcheth, is, in the Hebrew, bringeth forth, uſed commonly of birth, and that not in a woman-kind onely, but in the female of other creatures, Chap. 14. 5. Job 39. 1-3. and they confeſs it therefore thus taken, as they would have it, to be a catachreſtical, or a far-fetched metaphorical kind of ſpeech. The moſt therefore render it, ſome, gather together; (of which before) others, ſitteth on eggs, which ſhe hath not brought forth: and the former verb, indeed, ſignifies, to ſit upon, or, to brood; either eggs to hatch them, as the Chaldee uſeth it, Job 39. 14. and the Talmudiſts very frequently; or young ones already hatched; as Eſay 34. 15. for of the proper ſignification of the latter, there can be no queſtion; and that the copulative coming between them, is frequently put for the relative, appeareth by Eſay 3. 6. & 5. 4. & 44. 7, 14. Chap. 4. 16. & 14. 18, compared with, Chap. 17. 4. in all which places, and many more it is found ſo uſed. Now thoſe that go this way, ſome expound it of the male partridges ſitting on the young, which not he, but the female brought forth: and to this purpoſe, Ariſtotle indeed reporteth of them, l. 6. c. 8. that having divided their eggs into ſeveral neſts, they ſit on them apart. But neither doth this (were it granted to be ſo) any way well ſuit with the drift of the text, or that whereunto it is here applyed: for as for the maſculine form here uſed, ſee on chap. 2. 23, 24. Others therefore rejecting this, ſay ſome, that the partridge having loſt her own young, getteth ſome other partridges eggs, and ſitteth upon them, which when they are hatched, hearing their own dams note, and by a naturall kind of inſtinct diſcerning it, run away from this their nurſe, and go after her. So Ambroſe, in his ſix days work, l. 6. c. 3. and Jerome, referring us to Ariſtotle, Pliny, and others; in whom yet I find it not. Others, that the kore here mentioned, is a bird that gets together the eggs of Fowls, and is wont to ſit on them as her own, untill they be hatched, which then leave her, and keep with thoſe of her own kind. So the Rabbines, ſome of them, and ſome other obſcure Writers, ſay of the partridge; which if it can be made good, will very well ſuit, both with the terms, and drift of the text: And ſome ſuch thing certainly, either as this, or the firſt, to me ſeems undoubtedly here to be intimated: For as for the cuckow, whom ſome Jewiſh Doctors would have to be this Kore, ſhe is ſo far from filching, and ſitting on the eggs of other birds, that ſhe uſually layeth her own in the neſts of others, to be ſitten upon, and hatcht by them. So Ariſtotle, l. 6. c. 7. & l. 9. c. 29. Pliny, l. 10. c. 9.

he that getteth riches, and not by right] Heb. making, or, he that maketh, (as ſearching, ver. 10.) riches, (as, to make wealth, for, to get it, Deut. 8. 18.) and, or, and that, (as ver. 4, 10. for there is no certainty even of goods lawfully gotten, Pſal. 62. 10. Prov. 23. 5. 1 Tim. 6. 17. and much leſs of thoſe that are by unlawful courſes compaſſed, Prov. 21. 6.) not by judgment, that is, either without diſcretion and due conſideration; as the word is uſed, Pſal. 112. 5. without any regard of right or wrong, as it is with thoſe that ſet this down with themſelves, that they will be rich, by what means ſoever it be, 1 Tim. 6. 10. or not by right (for ſo alſo is the word uſed, Ezek. 18. 5, 19, 21.) that is, by unjuſt and injurious courſes, wrongfully, as it is rendred, Ezek. 22. 20.

ſhall leave them] Either having them taken from him, Eſay 8. 4. & 10. 13, 14. Eccl. 5. 14. ver. 3. Mat. 6. 19. or being taken away from them, Pſal. 49. 10—12, 17. and 52. 5, 7. Eccleſ. 5. 15, 16. Luke 12. 20.

in the midſt of his dayes] Coming to ſome untimely end, and not lengthening his life above half that time, which in courſe of nature he might have attained unto. See Job 15. 31-33. & 22. 16. Pſal. 55. 23. & 102. 24.

at his end ſhall be a fool.] Heb. at, or, in (wanting as Chap. 5. 7. & 11. 23.) his laſt (as Num. 23. 10. Chap. 12. 4.) he ſhall be a nabal, or, a fool, 1 Sam. 25. 25, 26. he ſhall appear ſo to be, Pſal. 49. 13. Luk. 12. 26. See the like, Joh. 15. 8.

V. 12. A glorious high Throne from the beginning is the place of our Sanctuary.] In theſe words themſelves, there is no great difficulty; but about the connexion or coherence of this paſſage with the reſt of the context, there is among Interpreters much diſſention. A learned late Writer deemeth, that this is here noted, as the fourth vain confidence, that this people were wont to truſt unto: the firſt whereof was their ſtrength, ver. 3. the ſecond, their forrein forces, ver. 5. the third, their humane policy, ver. 9. the fourth here, the Temple, which they relied upon as a fortreſs impregnable, Chap. 7. 4. Zeph. 3. 11. So ſhould theſe words be rather a ſpeech of the people, then of the Prophet; that which to me ſeemeth very improbable, finding in the text nothing that ſhould ſo make or hold it out; nor any other that herein accordeth with him. Howſoever, ſome think that the Prophet, whoſe own words they make them, might have ſome privy nip at that their vain preſumption. Among the Jewiſh Doctors, ſome conceive it to have reference to what was before ſaid, concerning truſt in humane helps, ver. 5. as if it were ſaid, Let them truſt in man, we will truſt in him whoſe throne is aloft in heaven, and his Sanctuary here on earth, as Pſal. 20. 7. but there is too far a diſtance between theſe two, then to be brought thus together, and to be made cohere the one with the other. Others of them would have it referred to Gods ſight and exploration of the heart and reins, ver. 10. which might appear, as well by his looking down from his palace in heaven, Pſal. 11. 4. & 33. 14, 15. & 113. 5, 6. and by his ſitting on his throne, to wit, his Ark, in his Temple ſituate here upon earth, Pſal. 80. 1. and that in the very midſt of all the earth, Pſal. 74. 12. for the earth, ſay they, ſtands in the middle of the whole world, and the land of Judah in the middle of the earth, and Jeruſalem in the middle of Judea, and the Temple in the middle of Jeruſalem, and the Ark in the middle of the Temple: but not to ſtand upon examination of the exactneſs of theſe vain niceties: this coherence ſeemeth to be no leſs far-fetched then the former. Others of them would have it depend upon the laſt branch of the foregoing verſe, he ſhall in his latter end be, or be found a fool, being caſt out of that glorious high Throne, the place of the Sanctuary: from which, by means of ſuch injurious carriages, he ſhall come to be ſecluded. But this ſeemes yet more forced, then either of thoſe before mentioned. Others of them refer it to that which followeth, as if it were ſaid, O thou whoſe glorious high throne, the place of our Sanctuary is, Jehovah, the hope of Iſrael. And this ſeemes moſt probable of any that I find by any produced. Onely ſome of our beſt and ſoundeſt Interpreters, reading it without ſuch preciſe connexion, (which ſome alſo of thoſe Jewiſh that go this way, regard not, nor is indeed ſo needful) as an entire ſentence of it ſelf, as our Verſion yields it, do add, That this is by the Prophet prefixed before his enſuing ſpeech directed unto God; partly, to ſhew the ſingular favour of God unto his people, who had ſetled the place of ſpeciall reſidence, as in his palace, among them: and thus pointing to him, whom thus dwelling among them, they ought to have truſted unto, Pſal. 68. 28, 29. and partly, alſo, to tax the ingratitude and folly of them, who notwithſtanding that hereby he had manifeſted to them his forwardneſs to protect and ſecure them, would leave him, and ſeek after others for protection and ſafeguard, which were not able to afford it, that which is intimated in the latter part of verſe 13. See Ezek. 7. 20. The words ſome read as our Verſion exhibiteth, taking throne, and ſanctuary, for one and the ſame. See Chap. 3. 17. & 14. 21. Others diſtinguiſh them, and make heaven the one, Pſal. 11. 4. Eſay 66. 1. the Temple the other, Exod. 15. 17. 2 Chron. 20. 8. and they render the words, with a note of ſimilitude prefixed; As the glorious and high throne (to wit, in heaven) is the place of our Sanctuary. But the former is the plainer, and ſeemeth the brighter.

A glorious and high throne] Heb. A throne of glory (as Eſay 22. 23.) high, or, of height; which Some render with repetition, a throne of height. Others, of the high one, that is, of God: and the word being as well of an adjective, as of a ſubſtantive notion, will admit either: but the latter is the rather here to be refuſed; not need the other to be received: but that of our verſion retained inſtead of either, becauſe of that parallel place, Eſay 6. 1. a throne high and lifted up; where the former term coming from the ſame root with this here, is adjective onely.

from the beginning]Heb.from the firſt; from the firſt foundation of it: and this the pauſes or points in the original, joyn unto the word, high: in regard whereof,the text would thus be rendred, A glorious throne, (for there is a ſtop) high(or lofty) from the beginning; in regard of Gods preſence and reſidence in it,1 King.8.12,13,27.& 9.3. For frivolous and ridiculous is that figment of the Rabbines, who to that purpoſe abuſing that place,Exod.15.17. and this, reckon the place of the Temple among thoſe ſeven things, which God, ſay they,made before the creation of the world. But a late learned Writer conceiveth, that this clauſe may be rendred, an height, or celſitude, far above the chief; that is, far in height and loftineſs, ſurpaſſing any earthly or worldly height and dignity; and ſuch uſe,indeed,of the particle,in compariſons, is frequent: as Gen.3.1. Chap.17.9. See ver.16. and of the height of Gods houſe,ſee on Eſay 2.2. But this I leave to the judgment of others. Onely I ſuppoſe it hard to find,where the word, firſt, is, in Hebrew, found for chief; that Eſay 41.27.is queſtionable.

V. 13. O Lord,the hope of Iſrael,] Or, expectation: See Chap.14.8.

all that forſake thee ſhall be aſhamed] Or, confounded; as it is rendred,Pſal.97.7.ver. 18. or, abaſhed; as word for word it ſoundeth: ſee on Chap. 8. 9. as in way of prediction, or denunciation, telling what the end of ſuch will be; as ver. 11. So Pſal.73.27.Eſay 1.28. Howbeit, ſome take it as ſpoken in way of ſupplication and prayer, rendring the words, Let them be confounded,or,abaſhed,as Pſal.35.4,26. & 40. 14. and ſo in the latter part of the next branch, Let them be written; as Pſal.69. 28. but that which our Verſion yieldeth, ſeemes herein the better.

and they that depart from thee] The words, from thee, are not in the original; and there is a four-fold reading of the Hebrew text: for ſome read it weſure, which our Verſion followeth, ſuppoſing the form contracted to be put for the entire; as Chap.22.14. and the words,from thee,to be ſupplyed from ver.5.the term is ſo found,Eſay 49.21.Some,waſuru,that ſhall depart: a defect of the relative; as Chap.14.18.Others, weſuray,that depart from me; that is,from the doctrine by me delivered to them:from me;as Joſh.1.7.depart,or, turn not aſide from him; that is,ſay they,from Moſes: Heb.that depart me, for,that depart from me: the prepoſition, ſwallowed up between the verb and the pronoun affixed to it; as,that riſe me, for,that riſe againſt me,Lam.3.62.and,which cometh in form neer to this,that contend me,for,contend with me, Pſal. 35. 1. Chap.18.19. Others laſtly,yeſuray; my caſtigations: whereof more anon; for the former three will in effect come to one; but the firſt of them is moſt received.

ſhall be written in the earth] Such as ſo do, ſhall not be written in heaven; as Luk. 16.20. where the book of life eternal is under ſafe cuſtody kept,Rev.13.8.& 20.12,15.but here on earth; as Mat. 6. 19. where their hopes and happineſs wholly conſiſteth,Pſal.17.14. grounded upon ſuch fickle and uncertain things like themſelves,ver.11. Prov.23.5. Mat.6. 19-21. 1 Tim.6.17. or,as ſome of the Rabbines, they ſhall be written in the earth; that is,they ſhall be laid in the duſt.Pſal. 7.5.die like bruit beaſts,be laid in the grave, and there go to duſt,Pſal.49.12,14.Eccl.3.20. or laſtly, it may well be a proverbial ſpeech, ſhall be written on the earth; they ſhall not be written in braſs, or marble, in ſome durable matter for long continuance: as Job. 19. 24. on which therefore men uſe to engrave their names,and memorials,to be tranſmitted to poſterity; but as ſuch things,as being of little regard,are written,or drawn upon the ground, or on the earth, or in the duſt; (earth, for, duſt; becauſe duſt is but earth with dryneſs diſſolved,and earth ſo diſſolved falleth into duſt, Gen.2.7.& 3.19. Pſal.22.15. Eccl.12.7.) and things written in the duſt, are with every puff of wind blown away,diſſipated, and done out: to write in duſt,a proverbial form, with the Hebrews; as to write ought in the wind, or, in running water, with the Greeks and Latines: and this laſt ſeemeth moſt likely; they ſhall be of no continuance, ſee ver.11. Howbeit,a learned late Writer, following the laſt of the readings before-mentioned, and conceiving the word here rendred, depart, to riſe from another root,that ſignifies,to chaſtiſe,or,to inſtruct, whereof ſee on Chap. 6. 8. and the word therefore to import caſtigation,and inſtruction; as he deemeth one not unlike it to do,Job 39.35.thus renders the words, Let my caſtigations,or, reproofs, be written in the earth; that is, Let my Sermons, and reproofs, whereby I have laboriouſly, from time to time,endeavoured to reclaim this revolted people, be entred here on earth in thy preſence,to remain, as upon record, in ſome book or monument,for my juſtification,and their conviction. See the like, Deut.31.19-21. Job 19.23,24. & 31. 35,36. Eſay. 30.8. But herein, for ought I find, he goeth alone, few ſure,if any, following him: nor ſeems this notion of the word to have place here: beſide that the word, in Job, referred unto, is very queſtionable, whether it be a noun,or a verb.

becauſe they have forſaken the Lord, the fountain of living waters] Living water, for,Spring-water, Gen.26.19. not rain-water that comes by times,either certain, or uncertain, with intervals and intermiſſions, and that ſometime very long ones,1 King.17.1. Chap. 3. 3. & 14.1.ver.8. or pond-water, that may ſoon be drained or dryed up,Eſay 19.6,8. or land-flouds,that ſwell up and run ſwiftly in winter,but fall again, and fail,when moſt need is of them,in heat of ſummer; and ſuch are all humane helps and ſtays, creature comforts and contentments, Job 6. 15-21. but Spring-water, and ſuch a fountain therefore,as runneth inceſſantly, and never faileth, for the ſupport, refreſhing, and affording a competent ſupply of all neceſſary good unto all thoſe that be his, and continue faithfull to him.Pſal.36.8,9. & 84.11. See Chap. 2. 13.

V. 14. Heal me, O Lord, and I ſhall be healed; ſave me, and I ſhall be ſaved:] The Prophet here again reneweth his ſuit unto God for himſelf; for conſolation and confirmation, preſervation and protection, amidſt thoſe manifold difficulties, dangers and diſtreſſes, that he was expoſed unto, and aſſaulted with, for the faithful diſcharge of his duty in the work of his miniſtery, ver.14,17,18. which he had not taken up of himſelf, but had entred upon at his command, ver.16. complaining of his peoples contempt of it, and ſcoffing at it, ver.15. and repairing to be righted on them for their wicked demeanure towards him, ver.18.

Heal me, O Lord, and I ſhall be healed; ſave me, and I ſhall be ſaved:] heal me; by freeing me from that affliction and grief of heart and mind, that I continually ſuſtain at the hands of this malitious people. See Chap. 15. 16. which place illuſtrateth this: and ſave me,or preſerve and deliver me, from the pits that they dig, and ſnares that they ſet for me, from thoſe plots and projects, whereby they ſeek to take my life away from me. See Chap.11.19,21. Some read the words, If thou Lord heal me, I ſhall be healed; if thou ſave me,I ſhall be ſaved: as they alſo read that, Pſal.51.7. as if he ſhould ſay, thoſe means of relief and ſafety that others leaving thee rely upon, ver.5,11,13. cannot anſwer their expectation; but thou Lord art able to afford what they cannot: they are ſure to do well, whom thou undertakeſt the cure of; to be ſafe, whom thou undertakeſt the charge of, Mat.8.2,8. Luk.5.16,28. A good notion, and a ſound conſequence; but an harſh conſtruction. Thoſe that expound it of ſpiritual health and preſervation, from being infected with the corruptions of the times, Joh.17.15. as ſome alſo do that, Chap.11.17. and of eternal ſalvation, which he ſhould pray to be preſerved unto, 2 Tim.4.18. ſeem to have ſtrayed from the genuine ſenſe of the text.

for thou art my praiſe.] praiſe; for the ſubject matter,or the object of praiſe; or the perſon praiſed, Eſay 60.18. & 62. 7. Chap.51.41. as, truſt, for,the object of truſt, the thing truſted in, and relyed upon, ver. 5. thou art he, whom I praiſe inceſſantly for the favours that thou art pleaſed to afford unto me, aſcribing them to thee alone, Pſal.40.3.& 65.1. or,praiſe, for, the ground and procuring cauſe of praiſe: thou alone art he that doſt miniſter occaſions of praiſe and thankſgiving to me, by thy mercies, for which I depend upon thee alone, and no other, Exod.15.2. Pſal.22.3. & 44.8. & 109.1. Howbeit, it may well be rendred, which ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters alſo ſuggeſt, in the future: thou ſhalt be my praiſe; thou ſhalt give me abundant cauſe and matter of praiſing thee for thy mercy, when thou ſhalt have delivered me out of their hands, Pſal.18. title, ver. 1, 2. & 32.7. & 37. 1, 2. Eſay 25.1. & 38.19,20.

V. 15. Behold they ſay unto me, Where is the Word of the Lord? let it come now.] Heb. they are ſaying; it is their common ſpeech to me in way of deriſion, Chap. 20. 7. to ask, where is the word of the Lord? as, where is the promiſe of his coming? 2 Pet.3.4. ſo,where is the deſtruction that you have ſo long threatned us with, as from God? why doth it not come? we would fain ſee it once, Eſay 5.19. Amos 5.18. the pronoun demonſtrative for the verb ſubſtantive; as Chap.10. 15. & 14.15. & 32.36,43.

V. 16. I have not haſtened from being a Paſtor before thee; neither have I deſired the woful day.] Becauſe the people and falſe Prophets would not ſtick to tell the Prophet, that he complained much of evil uſage, of deriſion and vexation, but he might thank himſelf for it; he had pulled it unadviſedly upon himſelf, by thruſting himſelf upon ſuch an employment, and taking upon him to be a Prophet, out of either a mad or ambitious humour,Chap.29.26,27. and telling them tales of his own forging,which he never had from God,chap. 5.13. the Prophet therefore appealeth unto God, who could bear witneſſe for him, that as he had not preſſed him to be diſcharged of this ſo troubleſome and thankleſſe an employment, ſince that it ſtood not with his duty to God ſo to do; ſo he had not ſought or deſired to be put at firſt thereupon; as well knowing, and then foreſeeing, when God at firſt called him thereunto, how troubleſome an employment it was like in all probability to prove, as alſo that he was able to teſtifie for him, with what faithfulneſs and integrity he had carried himſelf in the diſcharge of his duty therein.

I have not haſtened from being a Paſtor] The word indeed here uſed, ſignifieth commonly to haſten, or run head-long; as Joſh.10.13. Prov.19.2. & 21.8. & 28.20. & 29.19. and hence divers Interpreters render it, I haſtened not to be a Paſtor; that is, a Prophet; for he was, as a Prieſt, a Paſtor before, Chap.1.1. but this is directly contrary to the terms of the text; which are expreſly, not, to be a Paſtor, but, from being a Paſtor: which is rather as much as not to be a Paſtor: as, from being a King, for, to be no more a King, 1 Sam.15.22. from being a Prieſt, for, to be no longer a Prieſt, Hoſ.4.6. from being an harlot, for, to play the harlot no more, or, to ceaſe from playing the harlot, Ezek.16.41. and ſome other therefore render the word; I haſtened not from being a Paſtor; that is, an ordinary Prieſt, as before I was, to become an extraordinary Prophet: from a Paſtor, for, from being a Paſtor; a defect of the verb ſubſtantive; as 1 Sam.15.22. before alledged: and, from a city, for, from being a city, Eſay 17.1. and, from a nation, for, from being a nation, Chap.48.2. But this will hardly here hold; for Jeremy ceaſed not then to be a Paſtor, when he was to be a Prophet, any more then when he was a a Prieſt before. Others therefore again go another way to work: and becauſe the particle here uſed, is of frequent uſe, not in way of deprivation onely, but in way of compariſon, as Gen.19.9. we will do evil unto thee from them, or, in compariſon of them: the Latines, præ illis; that is, we will do worſe unto thee then to them: and ſo alſo, A name(that is, a good name, a good note, a good repute, a good report) is good (præ) above, or, in compariſon of a good (that is, a ſweet, or pretious) oil, or oyntment; that is, the one is better then the other: and the like, Prov.22.1. as alſo Eſay 54.1. the children of the deſolate are many in compariſon of the children of the married; that is, the one are in number more then the other; hence therefore they thus render the text; I preſſed not more then a Paſtor; I preſſed not upon this prophetical office more then was meet for Paſtor, that is, a teacher, to do, ſuch as I was already, being a Prieſt, Chap.1.6. But this ſeems ſomewhat forced; and hath found therefore few favourites. Howbeit, from it an hint may be taken of that, which with ſome ſome others, I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of the place: the word here uſed ſignifies, not to haſten onely, but to preſſe, and to urge: as Gen.19.15. they preſſed upon the Angels: and, the Taskmaſters urged, or, preſſed them, Exod.5.13. the word then may well be rendred; I have not urged, or, preſſed, from being a Paſtor; not to be a Paſtor: that which ſome apply to the time of the Prophets firſt calling; when howſoever at firſt he excuſed himſelf in regard of his want of years, Chap.1.6. yet he neither ſought by flight to avoid it, as Jonas did, Jon.1.3. nor refuſed to undertake the employment, when God further preſſed it on him. But I ſuppoſe it rather to be ſpoken by him of his carriage after his entrance upon it; that albeit, he had found it to be a very troubleſome, and difficult work, through the malice and obſtinacy of thoſe, whom he was ſent unto; yet he had not been earneſt with God in ſoliciting and preſſing him, to diſcharge him of that ſervice. For as for that which the ancient Greek exhibiteth, I have not been weary following thee: and the old Latine, I have not been troubled following thee my Shepherd: the one leaveth out ſomewhat that is in the text; the other putteth in that which is not in the text: the words of the text will by no means admit either.

I have not] Or, as ſome render it, As for me, I have not urged, or, preſſed; the nominative put abſolutely; as 1 Chr.28.2. I, (that is, As for me,) it was in my heart; and, I, (or, as for me) this ſhall be my covenant with them, Eſay 59.21. as oppoſed to their mockery, ver.15. which yet had not ſo far prevailed with him, as to move God for a diſcharge of his prophetical miniſtery, though it went much to the heart with him.

after thee] That is, as ſome render it, walking after thee; or, following thee, ſimply: either in obedience to thee, or to do thee ſervice: as 1 Sam.11.17. 1 King.2.25. yet a defect of ſome verb, as 1 Sam.7.2.

neither have I deſired the woful day,] Or, neither did I deſire the doleful, or, (as ſome) the deadly day. See of the word, chap.15.18. as I do not now preſſe thee to be rid of mine office; howſoever I ſolicite thee for right againſt thoſe that thus wrong me: ſo I did not at firſt deſire, much leſſe ſeek or ſue for the employment, offer my ſelf to it, or put my ſelf upon it; but excuſed my ſelf rather, as not ſo fit for it, Chap.1.6. as forecaſting what oppoſition and affliction I muſt look to ſuſtain from thoſe that I was to be ſent unto, with ſuch diſtaſtful and unpleaſing meſſages, Chap.1.15—19. Howbeit, ſome underſtand by deadly, or, doleful, day, the denunciation of ſuch ſad and ſore evils, as he was enjoyned by God to denounce: but this ſeems ſomewhat too far fetched. More probable is that of ſome others, who by the doleful day, underſtand the execution of thoſe judgments which from God he had denounced; for they ſuppoſe, that he alludeth unto the carriage of Jonas, who at firſt fled out of the way, that he might not go on Gods errand to denounce deſtruction againſt Nineveth; and yet was afterwards vexed, becauſe the judgment denounced was not put in execution, Jon.1.3. and 4.1. whereas Jeremy had neither withdrawn himſelf from the one, nor deſired the other. See Chap.15.16. & 18.10. Some read and render it, the day of man. So the ancient Greek and old Latine. Which ſome expound one way, and ſome another. Some, of ſome ſuch things as worldly men ſeek after, in undertaking offices, honour or gain: others, of mens cenſures of him, which he regarded not with the Apoſtle, 1 Cor.4.3. but of this miſtake, ſee on ver.9.

thou knoweſt] Or, thou knoweſt it; a defect of the pronoun, as Pſal.40.9. this may be referred, as the moſt, to the words before-going, concerning his manner of entrance into his prophetical employment; or, as others, to that which followeth, concerning his carriage in the exerciſe and execution of it; as I conceive, to both. See his like appeal to God, chap.12.3. & 15.15. and the Apoſtle Pauls in the like caſe, 2 Cor.1.12.

that which came out of my lips was right before thee] Heb. the out-going, or, the thing gone out of my lips (as Num.30.13. Deut.23.24.) hath been before thy face; or, ſimply, before thee; as Ezek.14.3,6. Lam.2.19. ſuch as hath been well known to thee, and ſuch therefore as thou art able to atteſt: or, as ſome render it, which cometh home to our Engliſh, according to the rightneſſe of thy face; that is, ſincere and upright, ſuch as I needed not to fear the laying of it open to thy ſight; but it may as well be rendred to the ſame effect without any ſuch ſupply, or circumlocution, was before thy face, or, before thee: as, to walk before God, is to walk ſincerely and uprightly, Gen.17.1. Eſay 57.2. I have delivered nothing to them, but thy truth, and that with a ſincere heart; thou who ſearcheſt the heart, and trieſt the reins, ver.10. knoweſt it. So Chap.15.15. to ſomewhat the like purpoſe, ſome render it, was before thy face, that is, came from thy face, or, from thee; as Pſal.17.3. let my judgment proceed, or, come forth from thy face, or, from before thee: but there is that there, that is not here; and this ſeems to be of larger extent, Some alſo reſtrain it, to his former profeſſion, as they take it, that he had not deſired, either to be an inſtrument of denouncing the ruine of that State, or to have what he had denounced, to be accordingly accompliſhed, for fear of being deemed a falſe Prophet, as Jonas had done, Jon.4.1. that which God was able to teſtifie for him, whom he had at ſundry times earneſtly ſolicited for the revoking of that heavy doom, Chap.10.24,25. & 4.7—9,19,20. See Chap.18.19. But this ſeems narrower then the Prophets intent; nor to be the genuine ſenſe of the foregoing branch.

V.17. Be not a terrour unto me; thou art my hope in the day of evill.] Having appealed to God as a witneſſe of his integrity and uprightneſſe, ver.16. he now ſueth to him, and ſoliciteth him, to be his patron and protecter, whom he had made choice of, to repair unto him in times of diſtreſſe.

Be not a terrour unto me;] Heb. for a terror; as Chap.48.39. or, as ſome of the Rabbines render it, unto contrition, or, deſtruction: and ſo the word is uſed, Pſal.89.40. Prov.10.14,29. & 13.3. Howſoever wicked men deal rigorouſly with me, yet do not thou in thine indignation handle me roughly, or deſtroy me, as Pſal.6.1. Chap.10.24. or, do not cauſe or ſuffer me to live in fear and terrour, expoſed to their might and malice, for want of relief and ſupport. See Chap.15.15. and for the manner of ſpeech, Eſay 63.17. Yet ſome others, Be not thou a fear to me; and then I fear not ought that they can do to me: as Pſal.27.1. but this ſeems not ſo freely or fairly to flow from the text.

thou art my hope in the day of evill] Or, be thou my hope, or, refuge, (as the word is well rendred, Pſal.46,1. & 104.18.) or, adjoyning it to the former, be not, thou my refuge, (or, who art my refuge) for a terrour, unto me: hope, or, refuge, for the party hoped in, or the place repaired unto, for relief, ſuccour and ſafety, Eſay 4.6. See Pſal.31.1—3. & 142.5. and 143.9.

in the day of evil] That is, of affliction, Chap.16.19. So Pſal.49.5.

V.18. Let them be confounded that perſecute me; but let me not be confounded: let them be diſmayed; but let not me diſmayed:] Or, Let my perſecutors be abaſhed; but (Heb. and; as ver.6. and ſo in the next) let not me be abaſhed; (ſee ver.13.) let them be diſmayed, or, deſtroyed, (Heb. terrified, or, affrighted; as Deut.1.21. Joſh.1.9. or, broken to pieces, as 2 Sam.22.35. Pſal.18.34.) but (Heb. and; as before) let not me be affrighted, or, broken to pieces. So Pſal.25.2,3. & 35.4. & 40.14.

bring upon them the day of evil] As, the time of evil, Eccl.9. 12. of affliction, miſery, or deſtruction. So ver.17.

and deſtroy them with double deſtruction.] Heb. break them with a double breach; that is, with breach upon breach; or, deſtruction upon deſtruction; as Chap.4.20. or, with full, abundant, utter, deſtruction. So is double commonly taken in Scripture, Chap.16.18. Rev.18.6. Of theſe and the like prayers, or imprecations, ſee Chap.11.20.

V. 19. Thus ſaid the Lord unto me;] This ſeems to be the ſum of a new Sermon diverſe from that foregoing; to which the rather he prefixeth Gods particular charge, for the publiſhing of it, in regard of the place where he was enjoyned to publiſh it, and of the perſons therein principally concerned. So Chap.7.2.

Go and ſtand in the gate of the children of the people, whereby the Kings of Judah come in, and by which they go out, and in all the gates of Jeruſalem.] Go and ſtand. Heb. Going (that is, going go, be ſure to go; as Judg.4.9. a defect of the verb finite; or, going, ſimply, for, go; the infinitive for the imperative. See Chap.2.2. & 13.1.) and ſtand. Heb. and thou ſhalt ſtand: as, thou ſhalt publiſh, Chap. 2. 2. and, thou ſhalt ſay, Chap. 34. 2.

in the gate of the children of the people, whereby the Kings of Judah come in, and by the which they go out,] That the uſuall manner of the Prophets was to publiſh their Prophecies in the gates, either of the Temple, or of the city; becauſe the greateſt concourſe of people was moſt commonly there, is apparent. See Chap.7.2. & 19.2. & 26.10. as alſo that ſome one gate among the reſt is here deſigned, doth as plainly appear; but what gate that was, is not ſo certain. Some would have it to be the ſheep-gate; whereof, Neh.3.1,32. & 12. 39. called, ſay they, here, the gate of the children of the people; as Cant.7.4. the gate daughter of many; or the gate moſt frequented: becauſe the greateſt confluence of people, by reaſon of the great ſheep-market there kept, was thither: but neither doth it appear that the gate in the Canticles mentioned, is the ſheep-gate, nor that it was any gate of more frequency then any other. Many take the word rather for the proper name of a place called Bath-rabbim. Nor again is the gate here deſigned, called the gate of the children of the people; becauſe either the moſt of them went out and in that way; or becauſe it was uſually more frequented then any other: for the term is no other then what agreeth unto any other gate of the city, that people ordinarily went in and out by: the children of the people, being no other then the people themſelves; as the Greeks uſe to ſay, the children of the Phyſitians, for, the Phyſitians themſelves: and the children of the Achaians, for, the Achaians themſelves. See Chap.5.7. So, the children of thy people, for, thy people, ſimply, and generally, whether young or old, parents or children, Ezek.3.11. & 33. 2, 12,17,30. & 37.18. the particular deſignation of it is from the words following. Whence ſome other conceive it to be the water-gate; whereof, Neh.3.26. & 8.3,16. 2 Chron. 29. 3,4. & 32.6. by which places it appeareth, that it was ſituate on the Eaſt-ſide of the city, and that the ſtreet it opened upon, was one of the eminenteſt, and of greateſt receit in the city, deemed to be that of Millo, which lay between the Temple and the Palace, by which the King and his Courtiers therefore did uſually paſs to and fro.

the gate of the children of the people] Not the court-gate, but one of the city gates, one of thoſe neereſt the Palace, by which the people of the land, as well as the King and his followers, had ordinary paſſage, ver.2.

the Kings of Judah] Either ſucceſſively in their ſeverall times and reigns; or, as the Rabbine here, the Kings children that were to reign after him, 2 King.3.27. or the Princes rather and Rulers that frequented the Kings court; as Chap.19.3. & 20.5.

and in all the gates of Jeruſalem.] In that firſt, of moſt eminency, or moſt made uſe of, neer the court; becauſe thoſe of the court were therein principally concerned: then in the reſt of the gates round about the city, that all might take notice of it, the gates of the city, being the places whereunto for civil affairs of ſeverall kinds, the people uſed to reſort, Ruth 4.1,2. 2 Sam.19.8. Chap.38.7.

V. 20. Hear ye the word of the Lord, ye Kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, that enter in by theſe gates,] As Chap.7.2. & 22.2. but here more ſpecially the Kings and Rulers: as ver.19. in the firſt place; becauſe they ſtood bound, not only to obſerve the Sabbath themſelves, but to cauſe it to be kept by others: ſo the tenour of the commandment runneth, Exod.20.8,10. See Neh.13.16-18. then all Judah; that is, the Inhabitants, who were wont from all parts to repair unto Jeruſalem, as a principall market, and the head city both, for Judicature, and for Gods ſolemn ſervice, Pſal.122.4,5. See ver.25,26.

V. 21. Thus ſaith the Lord] As ver.5.

Take heed to your ſelves,] Heb. to your ſouls; as, to your ſelves, Deut.4.15, Joſh.23.11. implying the importance and weight of the duty required of them: a matter that no leſſe then their lives lay upon, and that concerned the eternall welfare of their ſouls, Deut.32.47. See Exod. 31. 14, 15. Num.15.32-35. for that of the learned Scholiaſt, who renders it, Take heed in your ſouls, or, in your hearts; that is, Take diligent heed; ſeemeth over-harſh, and ſuiteth not ſo well with thoſe places pointed to, where himſelf renders it, Take heed to your ſelves.

and bear no burden on the Sabbath day, nor bring it in by the gates of Jeruſalem.] Or, that (as Chap.4.4. & 14.19.) ye bear not burden, (ſo the Hebrew) or, any burden (ſo rather, then burdens, as ſome; any ſupplyed: as Job 16. 17. Eſay 53.9.) on the Sabbath day, (Heb. the day of reſt, Exod. 20. 8, 11.) or (Heb. and; as Chap.16.1,7.) bring it, (a defect of the participle: as Chap.12.11.) or, any, (ſupplyed as before) in (ſupplyed from the oppoſite, carry out, ver. 22. Heb. make to go, or, come) by the gates of Jeruſalem. See Neh. 13. 15, 16, 19.

V. 22. Neither carry forth a burden out of your houſes upon the Sabbath day] Or, And that (as ver.21.) ye carry not out (Heb. make to go out, as Ezek. 12.7.) from your houſes any (as ver.24.) burden on the Sabbath day; as ver.21. not out by the gates of the city only, but out of your houſes within the city. Where it may be demanded why he ſaith, bring out of your houſes rather then bring into your houſes: to which ſome anſwer, that by carrying out a burden, is meant the caſting out the duſt, or dirt and ſoil of their houſes contracted the week paſt: but that ſeems over-narrow, nor very proper. Others would have it ſo ſaid, becauſe the gates of the city were on the Sabbath day ſhut, Neh.13.19. and they could not therefore bring in ought to be beſtowed in their houſes: but that ſeems no ſatisfactory anſwer; for neither doth it appear that that proviſion of ſhutting the gates, was conſtantly continued, in ſuch corrupt times eſpecially as theſe were: and notwithſtanding it, they might as well bring wares or other burdens from other places within the city into their houſes, as carry out of them to other places: but the better anſwer is, that the one by analogy, and juſt conſequence, comprehendeth both. See the like, ver.24. and as for our Saviours act, willing the man healed at the pool of Betheſda, to carry his bed home, Joh.5.8-11. which the Jews ſo much cavilled at, it no way either infringed the Law of the Sabbath, or croſſed this inhibition? for what ſhould the man do with his bed there then, when as there was no need or uſe either of his bed there, or of his ſtay there to keep it? it was fitter and better for him to get home with it, and to the Temple thence, to praiſe God there with Ezekiah for his recovery, Eſay 38. 22. then to ſtay idling at the pool among other cripples with his couch: nor need we with ſome to ſay, that being done by Chriſts command who was God, it was no ſin nor violation of the Sabbath, though the Law were otherwiſe; ranking it with Abrahams ſacrificing of Iſaac in reſolution and purpoſe, Gen.22. and the Hebrews ſpoiling of the Egyptians, Exod. 11.2. & 12.35,36. for to ſay nothing of them; little did the man at that time dream of Chriſts deity; nor was that which the man then did any other, then what any man lying abroad on his couch, being ſuddenly ſo cured, whether by miracle, or by ſome ſpecial providence, might lawfully, without breach of that commandment concerning the Sabbath, have done.

neither do ye any work, but hallow ye the Sabbath;] Or, nor do (to carry it on in one tenour with the former) any work, to wit, any ſuch work, as in the Law is forbidden to be done on that day. Heb. all work: all, for, any; as Lev. 3. 17. So Exod.20.10.

as I commanded your fathers] Exod.20.8. & 23.12. & 31.14, 15. Lev.19.4. & 23.3. Deut.5.12-15. Exod.20.12,20. and you alſo in them, Exod.31.13,16,17. the obſervation of the Sabbath, preſſed here, as much neglected; and put for all religious duties and offices, Eſay 56.2.

V. 23. But they obeyed not, neither enclined their ear;] See Chap.7.24,26. So Chap.19.15. in general: and of this precept in particular, Ezek.20.21.

V. 24. And it ſhall come to paſſe,] Or, Yet; the copulative for the diſcretive: as Chap.14.9,15. it ſhall come to paſſe. Heb. it ſhall be; as Chap.5.19. Their pollution of my day ſhall not be puniſhed in you, if you keep free from it your ſelves, or, reform it in your ſelves, Ezek.18.14-17.

V. 25. Then ſhall there enter into the gates of this city] Then, as having reference to the condition, if, ver.14. Heb. And; as Chap.16.11. but, That, rather here; as Chap.5.19. & 7.32. & 9.25. for it anſwereth not to the conditional, but to the words, it ſhall be, where the promiſe made upon that condition, beginneth after the condition it ſelf there interſerted, here proſecuted. from the land of Benjamin,] Which continued firm to Judah, when the other Tribes fell from her, 2 King.12.21. 2 Chr.11.12. & 15.2,8,9. and ſo ſtill did, Chap.6.1. See Chap.32.44. & 33.13.

and from the plain, and from the mountains, and from the South] and, or, both; as the copulative is rendred, Gen.36.24. Pſal.76.6. Chap.5.24. & 44.25. for the copulative doth not knit this branch to the former, as if the places enſuing were not within the land of Judah and Benjamin, and the territory about Jeruſalem, but in other regions elſewhere abroad; but it referreth to the latter, diſtinguiſhing the places in the former branch mentioned, and therein laid out according to their limits, and the tribes or principall parts of them, whereunto they appertained; and here further ranking them according to the divers condition of them, ſome of each ſort being found in each of thoſe parts: nor is therefore this diſtribution (the like whereunto, ſee Chap.32.44. & 33.13.) to be reſtrained (as ſome do it) to Judah onely, as if proper to that Tribe alone, Joſh.15. and not common to the reſt; but reſpects the land of Benjamin as well as that of Judah. See chap.33.13.

from the plain] or, as it is rendred, Chap.32.44. the valley, & Chap.33.13. the vale, and ſo would be here, for another word the Hebrews have for the plain, Chap.21.13. where the vale and it are diſtinguiſhed, and the term plain better agreeth to the laſt, Heb. the low land, or, ground, a defect of the ſubject; as dry; for dry land, Eſay 44.3. Jon.1.9,13. & 2.11. oppoſed there to the ſea; as this here to the mountain, for ſo is the word here ſingular, though uſed collectively.

from the South] Or, the upland; the word indeed here found, is uſed commonly for the South, in bounding of places eſpecially, as Joſh.15.1,2,4. in regard whereof that learned Writer, who reſtraineth the word here unto Judah, would have it to be here ſo taken, affirming from that place of Joſhuah, the land belonging to that Tribe, to be there devided into Southerly land, mountain, and vale, but there is no ſuch diviſion found there, the South is mentioned onely as in all entire diviſions of lands, and of the other Tribes alſo there, Joſh.17.9,10. & 18.13,14. & 19,8. nor was the Southern part of Judah, or of any other Tribe, without mountain, or vale, more then the Eaſtern, Weſtern, or Northern part of the ſame, but the word that doth firſt properly ſignifie South, where oppoſed to, or diſtinguiſhed from, Eaſt, Weſt, or North, hath a divers notion, where it is oppoſed to, or diſtinguiſhed from mountain and low-land, or, vale; as here & in that place of Joſhua afterward, and ſignifies a middle ſort of land, between mountain and vale; ſuch as we uſe to term heathes, and plains, and downs; as when we ſay, New market-heath, Saliſ-bury-plain, and the Downs; which are neither mountany places, nor valleyes, properly ſo called; and ſuch places in the Hebrew have this name given them; becauſe they are dryer commonly then the vale, as the Southern parts are ordinarily, being nearer to the Sun, and more expoſed to its parching heat. See Achſahs requeſt to her father Caleb, Joſh.15.19. Judg.1.15. See alſo Zach.7.7. where this and the low-ground, are expreſly diſtinguiſhed.

burnt-offerings, and ſacrifices, and meat-offerings, and incenſe.] Of theſe See on Eſay 1.11,13.

bringing ſacrifices of praiſe.] Heb. bringing praiſe, or, thanksgiving, or, confeſſion. So Pſal.50.14,23. as ſin; for, a ſin-ſacrifice, Lev.4.24. 2 Cor.5.21. or, a ſacrifice for ſin, Rom.8.3. Heb.10.6,8. ſo, praiſe, for a ſacrifice of praiſe, or thankful acknowledgment. This is mentioned apart, becauſe it ſhould be moſt frequent, while God by his mercies ſhould give frequent occaſions of ſuch. See Chap.33.11.

V. 27. But if ye will not hearken unto me, to hallow the Sabbath-day, and not to bear burdens, even entring in at the gates of Jeruſalem on the Sabbath-day] Heb. And, as verſ.23. See for the next verſ.21,24. the latter, ſome read, as you enter, or, while you paſs thorow, the gates of Jeruſalem, as the copulative is uſed, 1 King.11.25. but I ſuppoſe may rather be rendred joyntly with the former, thus, to ſanctifie the Sabbath-day, both by not bearing any burthen, or, (Heb. and, as ver.21.) going, or, paſſing, in and out, (as Eſay 23.1. & 24.10) thorow the gates of Jeruſalem, for by needleſs paſſing to and fro, as well without burden, as with burden, might they violate the Sabbath, Exod.16.29.

then will I kindle a fire in the gates thereof; and it ſhall devour the pallaces of Jeruſalem, and ſhall not be quenched.] Or, Then; (Heb. And, as Chap.16.11.) I will kindle a fire, (as Chap.21.14. & 43.12. & 50.32.) in the gates thereof, (in thoſe gates thus abuſed. See Neh.1.3. & 2.13.) which (as Chap.9.22.) ſhall devour, (as Eſay 9.18.) the palaces of Jeruſalem; (the lofty and ſtately buildings of it, as Chap.49.27. See it fulfilled, 2 King.25.9. Chap.52.13.) and ſhall not be quenched; until it have conſumed both the one and the other, as did thoſe Chaldean forces, 2 Chr.36.19. Pſal.74.7,8.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verſ. 1. THe word which came to Jeremiah from the Lord, ſaying;] Heb. Was to Jeremiah from the Lord, as Chap.7.1. The Sermon in this Chapter contained, conſiſteth of two principal parts, a prophecy, and a complaint. In the prophecy is conteined; 1. a demonſtration by a type, what God is able to do either with the Jewiſh people, or any other, ver.1-6. 2. A declaration of Gods meaning and intent, as well in his menaces, as in his promiſes, ver.7—10. 3. An exhortation to repentance and amendment of life, ver.11. 4. A relation of their obſtinacy, notwithſtanding mercy offered them, ver.12. 5. A redargution of their extream folly therein, ver.13, 14. 6. A denunciation of deſtruction to befall them for the ſame, ver.15-17. The complaint followeth to the end of the Chapter.

V. 2. Ariſe] See Chap.1.17. & 13.4,6. and go down] Or, go; ſimply: as alſo, Chap.22.1. See Eſay 38.8. go down from the Temple, ſay ſome, beneath which, the potters work-houſe was, Mat.27.10. but neither doth it appear by the one text, that Jeremy was then in the Temple, when God ſpake this to him; nor by the other, that the potters work-houſe ſtood either beneath the Temple, or neer unto it: and of the uſe of the word deſcending, ſee on the place of Eſay pointed to.

to the Potters houſe;] This with the fields belonging to it, ſeem to have been ſituate without the gates, on the South ſide of the city. See Chap.19.2. & 31.40.

and there will I cauſe thee to hear my words.] There I will further acquaint thee with my mind, and the meſſage that I mean to ſend by thee, upon that which there thou ſhalt ſee. So, to make, or, cauſe, to hear, for, to tell, Chap.4.15.

V. 3. Then I went down to the Potters houſe;] Or, So (Heb. And; as 2 King.9.4. Eſay 37.5. according as was commanded) I went. See ver.2.

and behold he wrought a work on the wheels] Or, he was working (Heb. making) ſome work upon the frames, or, ſeat; as the Chaldee giveth it: and ours render the ſame word, ſtools, Exod.1.16. The word is of a duall form; as that of a mill; whereof ſee on Eſay 47.2. and by the notation of it may ſeem to have conſiſted of two ſtones; as the duall, though irregular of Eben, which ſignifies a ſtone, and ſo the Greek rendreth it upon the ſtones. Howbeit, moſt Interpreters render it a wheel, or, as ours, wheels: and howſoever one of the Rabbines telleth us it was but one wheel, on which the potter uſed to work; yet another of them enformeth us, that in the Eaſtern parts the frame that they wrought on, conſiſted of two wheels, a bigger and a leſſe; that uppermoſt, this lower, or within that: and would have it by change of a letter to come of the word Ophan, that ſignifies a wheel. But I ſuppoſe the word to come neither from Eben, a ſtone, or, Ophan, a wheel; but either to be, or to have, a peculiar root of it ſelf, or its own; as the word for heaven, and that for loins, Chap.13.1. whoſe originals are now unknown.

V. 4. And

V. 4. And the veſſel which he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter] Or, the veſſel which he was making, (as ver. 3.) miſcarried as clay in the potters hand. But here cometh in a doubt which none of the Jewiſh Commenters ſeem to take notice of. That which we render of clay, is conſtantly in our Hebrew Bibles, as clay; that which is alſo exhibited in the margent of our laſt verſion, (howſoever moſt Interpreters take no notice at all of it) with the ſame particle prefixed to it, that is afterward uſed, ver. 6. where neither of the ſenſe or reading any doubt is or can be made. So that according to this reading, the meaning might ſeem to be, while it was yet clay; (as, when it was budding, Gen. 40. 10.) that is, moiſt and ſoft, as one of the Jewiſh Doctors interprets the word clay, here; before it was nealed and hardened, while he was yet framing and faſhioning it; as both the word making, not made, and the clauſe in his hand, (or, hands, collectively taken; for he maketh uſe of both, in giving it the faſhion) is implyed. Howbeit, both he alſo with the reſt, ſaith, that the particle here uſed is put for mem, or, min, deſigning the matter. Whence it may be conjectured; that they read it not with caph, the uſual note of ſimilitude; but with beth: and yet I no where find beth ſo uſed, ſave Exod. 38. 8. where it is ſaid, that the Laver of braſſe was made of, or, with, the womens mirhors, or looking-braſſes, rather then glaſſes. Where yet no good parallel is brought of this uſe of that particle: onely one of them telleth us, that ſuch uſe of it is frequent in the Iſhmaelitiſh tongue. So that whether caph were here, by ſome ſlip, written for beth, the letters being very like the one to the other; and beth, be the right, as moſt ſeem to have taken it, may juſtly require further conſideration, which I leave therefore to the learned.

in the hand of the potter] That is, in his hand; (as alſo ſome render it) whom he had before named, ver. 3. the noun for the pronoun: as Eſay 33. 2. & 35. 8. Chap. 10. 3, 4. and ſo in the cloſe of this verſe: and hand, for, hands, taken collectively; as alſo afterward, ver. 6.

So he made it again another veſſel, as it ſeemed good to the Potter to make it] Or, ſo he made of it again another veſſel, ſuch as he thought good to make.

So] Heb. and; as ver. 3.

he made it again] Or, of it, as Exod. 32. 4. Judg. 17. 4. Heb. he returned and made: as, returned and digged, for, digged again, Gen. 26. 18. See Eſay 6. 13.

as it ſeemed good to the Potter] Heb. as was right in the eyes of the Potter: as Chap. 27. 5. the potter, for, him, or, himſelf: as before.

V. 5. Then came the word of the Lord unto me, ſaying,] Heb. And: as Chap. 17. 27. the reſt, as ver. 1.

V. 6. O houſe of Iſrael, cannot I do with you, as this Potter? ſaith the Lord.] The Lord in theſe words ſheweth the reaſon why he had enjoyned Jeremy to meet him at the Potters work-houſe; to wit, there by a pregnant demonſtration to ſhew him how he was able without further ado to deal with this people; he was able to deſtroy them, and might well ſo do without further warning; and it was his meer mercy, if he gave them any warning, having ſo ill deſerved of him, before he ſo did: and that, as he had framed them, and made them a people, a nation, a Church, a State formerly, Eſay 43. 1. & 44. 2. & 64. 8. ſo he could again mar them, eſpecially ſince that they had firſt ſo corrupted and marred themſelves by their ſins, Deut. 32. 5, 6. Eſay 1. 4. unmake them either people, or nation, or Church, or State; and either remake and frame them again ſuch as before they were, Eſay 1. 25, 26. Chap. 33. 7. Rom. 11. 23, 24. or make others ſuch in their room. See Num. 14. 12. Mat. 3. 9. Rom. 11. 11, 17. and they had no juſt cauſe to complain, if he ſhould ſo do, Eſay 45. 9. Rom. 9. 20.

O houſe of Iſrael,] The people of the Jews; as Chap. 2. 26.

as this Potter doth] To wit, with his clay, ver. 4.

as the clay is in the Potters hand, ſo are ye in my hand, O houſe of Iſrael.] I have as much power over you, as the potter over the clay, that he works upon; and as much both might and right alſo to diſpoſe of you at my pleaſure, as he to deal as ſeemeth good to him with his own work, Eſay 29. 15, 16. and 49. 5.

V. 7. At what inſtant I ſhall ſpeak againſt a nation, and concerning a Kingdome, to pluck up, and to pull down, and to deſtroy it;] Whenſoever I ſhall by my Prophets threaten deſtruction to any people or State; that which in mercy he uſually doth before he come to deſtroy, Amos 3. 7. & 4. 12. and for that very end alſo that he may not deſtroy, Chap. 6. 8. & 36. 3. Ezek. 3. 18.

At what inſtant I ſhall ſpeak] Or, Let me ſpeak ſuddenly; as Job 34. 20. Pſal. 6. 10. or there may be a trajection in the text, as there is apparently in the next verſe, and then the words may be thus rendred; Let me ſpeak concerning a nation———ſuddenly———to deſtroy it; that it ſhall in an inſtant, without any long delay be deſtroyed; as with Nineveh he did, Jon. 3. 4. and to this I much encline.

againſt a nation, and concerning a Kingdome] Or, concerning any nation, (as Chap. 17. 21.) or (as Chap. 15. 1, 7.) concerning any Kingdome; for the particle is the ſame in either member, and ought to be alike expreſſed in either. So Chap. 16. 3. and in the parallel ver. 9.

to pluck up, and pull down, and to deſtroy it] The copulative may here alſo be well rendred, as before by the disjunctive, that I intend, or am about ſo to do. See Chap. 1. 10. a defect of the pronoun, it: as Chap. 3. 7. & 4. 28. So ver. 9.

V. 8. If that nation againſt whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent of the evil, that I thought to do unto them.] Or, If that nation concerning whom I ſo (ſupplyed, as the like, ver. 23.) ſpake, ſhall return from its evil, I alſo will repent concerning the evil that I thought to do unto it. Thus repentance in man produceth repentance with God. When people or perſons repent of the evil of ſin, for which God hath denounced a doom of penalty againſt them, God ſtayeth his hand, revoketh the doom, and repriveth ſuch people or perſons. So Judg. 10. 13-16. 1 King. 21. 20. Jon. 3. 10. Not that God repenteth as man through over-ſight, or want of forecaſt and foreſight, or out of fickleneſs and mutability of mind; for ſuch grounds of repentance are imperfections in man, and cannot befall him who is perfection it ſelf, Num. 23. 19. 1 Sam. 15. 29. Mal. 3. 6. Jam. 1. 17. but God is ſaid then to repent, when he doth as men uſe to do when they repent, 1 Sam. 25. 33, 34. when he undoeth what he had done before, revoketh a doom that he had paſt before, ſtayeth the execution of a ſentence that formerly he had denounced, Gen. 6. 6, 7. 1 Sam. 15. 11, 28. which as it was denounced becauſe of mans ſin, ſo is it reverſed, when man ceaſeth ſo to do; the end being accompliſhed for which it was denounced, to wit, that it might not be inflicted. See on ver. 7. So that, as the Schoolmen well ſay, Repentance in man is a change of the mind, or will; repentance with God, is the willing of a change, his mind and purpoſe abiding ſtill the ſame, chap. 20. 16. There is in the text a trajection of the words; as ver. 7. for in the text they thus lye; and let that nation return from its evil, concerning which I ſpake. See the like, Chap. 11. 16. and an elegant antanaclaſis between evil and evil; ſin meant by the one, and penalty by the other. So Jon. 3. 10.

If] Heb. And; as Chap. 16. 10. Amos 3. 4. Yet may the copulative be retained, reading the text as before, ver. 7. Let me ſpeak concerning a nation——— And let that nation turn——— and I will repent.

that nation] Or, kingdome, ver. 7.

againſt whom] Or, concerning whom; as ver. 7. Heb. whom againſt it: an uſual redundancy in Hebrew; as Pſal. 1. 4.

I have pronounced] Or, I ſo ſpake; as ver. 7.

return] A neceſſary companion of true repentance, Act. 3. 19. & 26. 20. whereby therefore repentance is frequently deſcribed, Eſay 55. 7. Chap. 26. 3. & 36. 7. Jon. 3. 10.

I will repent] Or, I will alſo repent. Heb. and I will repent: and, for, alſo; as Chap. 14. 5. or the copulative may ſtand, if we read the former branch, as was before hinted; Let that nation return,———and I will repent.

I purpoſed] Or, thought, or, had deviſed, Chap. 11. 19. See ver. 11.

V. 9. And at what inſtant I ſhall ſpeak concerning a nation, and concerning a Kingdom, to build and to plant it] Or, Let me ſpeak in like manner (the copulative for the redditive note of ſimilitude: as Eſay 10. 26. & 53. 7.) concerning a nation, or concerning a kingdome, ſuddenly to build or to plant it: acquainting them by my Prophets what I intend to do for them, and what good is coming to them. See ver. 7. & Chap. 1. 10.

V. 10. If it do evil in my ſight, that it obey not my voice, then will I repent of the good wherewith I ſaid I would benefit them.] Or, and let it (that nation or kingdom, whereof ver. 9.) do that which is evil in my ſight, (Heb. in mine eyes; that is, offenſive and diſpleaſing to me; as 2 Sam. 11. 27.) in not hearkening to my voice, (as Chap. 16, 12. & 17. 23.) I ſhall then (Heb. and; as Chap. 4. 1, 2. & 8. 9.) repent concerning the good wherewith I ſaid I would do them good. See before, ver. 8. As Gods menaces are denounced with a condition, if not expreſſed, yet ſecretly implyed and intended, of repentance; ſo are his promiſes of the like nature propounded unto perſons and people, though in abſolute terms oft-times conceived, yet with the like reſervation, not to take place, but upon their continuance and perſeverance in well-doing, unto whom the ſame are made. So Deut. 28. 1-10. 1 Sam. 2. 30. and 15. 1, 2.

V. 11. Now therefore, go to, ſpeak to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, ſaying, thus ſaith the Lord;] From the former declaration of Gods intentions and courſes, concerning both his righteous menaces and gratious promiſes in general: The Lord now proceedeth and deſcendeth to an application thereof in particular unto the Jewiſh people, ple, and the meſſage that his Prophet was now enjoyned to deliver to them from him.

Now therefore] Heb. And now, as Chap.15.6.

go to, ſpeak] Heb. ſpeak now; for the latter particle is commonly alſo ſo rendred, but it hath withal a notion; ſometime of entreating, as Eſay 36.11. ſometime of enciting, as Eſay 36.8. See there, and ſo here; and again in the cloſe of the verſe.

men] Heb. man, as Chap.11.12.

Behold, I frame evill againſt you, and deviſe a device againſt you:] Heb. I am framing (as the potter frameth a veſſel; ſo the word properly ſignifies: uſed alſo, Gen.2.7. And the very ſame word is uſed commonly for a potter, as ver. 3, 4.) againſt you, and am deviſing a device (to wit, of evill, as before) againſt you. So Chap.48.2. & 49.30. it is a borrowed ſpeech from that model that the workman or artiſt conceiveth in his mind, according to which he afterward faſhioneth his work, Exod.35.33. 2 Chr.2.13.

return ye now every one from his evil wayes, and make your wayes and your doings good.] Take notice of the evil that will otherwiſe befall you, and take the courſe above-mentioned, for the preventing of it, by ſincere repentance, and ſerious reformation and amendment of your lives: by theſe means alone yet may ye eſcape, ver.7, 8. 2 King.17.13. chap.3.12.& 7.3. & 25.5. & 35.15. Ezek.18.21. & 33.11.

every one] Heb. a man; as chap.5.8. & 12.15.

V. 12. And they ſaid, There is no hope; but we will walk after our own devices, and we will do every one the imagination of his evil heart.] And (or, But: as chap. 17.23.) they ſaid, or, they have ſaid, or, ſay: this hath been their former ſaying, and ſtill is; and this anſwer, I know, they will now give thee again. The effect, or ſum of the anſwer, either that the people did return to Gods admonition delivered to them by the Prophet, as ſome; or that God before-hand knew that they would return, as formerly they oft had done: ſo not improbably one of the Jewiſh Commenters; or, as ſome other, thus they ſay, or think ſtill with themſelves: And it is as if in a manner they had ſaid; It is to purpoſe to ſpeak to us, or to deal and ſtrive further with us; (whence Gods reſolution, Gen.6.3.) there is no poſſibility of reclaiming or reducing us: (ſee the like deſperate return, Chap.2.25. & 13.9.) we are fully and firmly fixed upon it, and reſolved to take thoſe courſes that we are pitched upon, and to live as we liſt our ſelves. See Chap.13.10. & 16.20. & 44.16. and hence it appeareth, that the words rendred device, and imagination, are much at one the ſame: and man here for every one: as ver. 12.

his evil heart] Or, his own evil heart; as Eſay 53.6. evill is inſerted, not as if they themſelves would ſo ſpeak, unleſſe it were in way of deriſion, as you account it, or uſe to call it: for they would never themſelves acknowledge their hearts to be ſuch: but thereby intimating what indeed they were; whatſoever conceit themſelves had of them, Prov.16.2.

V. 13. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord] Upon this their deſperate obſtinacy, and refuſal of Gods gratious offers; after ſome amplification of their ſtrange carriage and extream folly therein, ver.13, 14. God proceedeth to the paſſing of a peremptory ſentence upon them, ver.15, 16.

Ask ye among the Heathen, who hath heard ſuch a thing?] See the like conteſtation, chap.2.10.

the Virgin of Iſrael] Or, the Virgin Iſrael. See Eſay 1.7, 8. Iſrael termed a Virgin; as other States. See Eſay 23.12. & 47.1. though ſome ſuppoſe a further emphaſis here; as if it were ſaid, She that ſhould have kept her ſelf a pure Virgin for God, who had eſpouſed her to himſelf, Ezek.16.8. 2 Cor. 11.2.

hath done a very horrible thing.] Or, committed a very vile thing. See chap.5.30. So chap.23.14. See alſo chap.24.2. what this vile thing is, ſee ver.15.

V. 14. Will a man leave the ſnow of Lebanon, which cometh from the rock of the field?] Or, Shall the ſnow of Lebanon be left coming down from the rock in the fields? for the verb is indefinite; and may well therefore be rendred by the paſſive; as Chap.10.3, 4. or, as ſome again render it, Shall water like the ſnow (that is, as cold as the ſnow) of Lebanon iſſuing from a rock in the field be left? the word water, ſupplyed from the clauſe enſuing, and the note of ſimilitude, as Pſal.11.1. Eſay 21.8. The meaning of the words either of theſe wayes thus read, is, that neither any traveller in the heat of the day, meeting in the field with a ſpring, whoſe water iſſueth from ſome rock, having the head of it fed with the ſnow of mount Lebanon, where it hath its firſt riſe, being at time of year diſſolved, will paſſe by it, and go on looking for ſome other elſewhere; or no wiſe man having ſuch a ſpring at hand in his field, will, when he hath uſe and need thereof, refuſe it, and go to ſeek water in ſome pond or pool, puddle much leſs, elſewhere. For as for the Chaldee, Greek and Latine Verſions, who render it to this effect; Will, or, Can, the water fail from the rock in the field? or, as the Greek by miſtake of a point, the teats from the rock, or, the ſnow from Lebanon? But this the text will not well bear, the verb of leaving, or forſaking, being hardly found ſo uſed, as they take it. Howbeit, to remove that difficulty, a learned late Writer thus rendreth the text; Doth the ſnow of Lebanon from the rock leave, or, forſake, my field? that is, doth the ſnow that is perpetually on the mountains and rocks of Lebanon, ever leave running down, as it melteth, into my fields? as God thereby intimating the care that he had of making a conſtant proviſion of water for the land of his people lying below that mount. Which though it ſeem not ſo well to fit here, no more then what concerneth the next branch he ſuggeſteth, yet may for ſenſe ſeem to come home to the former; implying, that God, whom his people left to look after idols and ſtrangers, was as a well-ſpring of water that never faileth, but runneth continually, either guſhing out of ſome rock, or deſcending from mount Lebanon, from whence many conſtant ſtreams ran down to the fields and places neer about it; whom yet this people left, to ſeek relief and refreſhment where it was not to be found. So it paralleleth well with Chap.2.13. & 17.13. And this way the moſt go, both Jews and others; but rendring the words the former way. Howbeit, ſome late Writers of ſpecial note render the words far otherwiſe, thus; Will a traveller leave my fields, (as one of them) the fields (as another, ſuppoſing no affix pronoun here; but ſuch an irregular form as in ſome words and places is found; as Pſal.50.11. & 96.12. & 104.11. Eſay 56.9. Lam.4.9. Hoſ.10.4.) for a rock, and for the ſnow of Lebanon; that is, for the ſnowy Lebanon? whereof, ſee Eſay 2.13. and this is from them exhibited in the margent of our Bibles. So the meaning ſhould be; Will any traveller be ſo fooliſh or mad, as to leave the plain, where he hath a fair, even, free, and cleer way before him, without let or impediment, and inſtead thereof take his way over craggy and rocky hills thorow buſhes and briers, and thickets covered over with ſnow, no leſſe dangerous then difficult? as implying, that this people fooliſhly and unadviſedly left Gods ſervice, that was eaſie and free, Matth.11.29. to run after idols, who required of them other manner of ſervice, far more hard and harſh then any that he did, Deut.12.30, 31. 1 King.18.28. chap.19.5. ver.15. And this ſhould I encline to, in regard of the next verſes cloſe, that may ſeem to hint ſome ſuch matter, did I find the particle min here found, to be any where uſed in the notion of for, or, inſtead of: it oft indeed anſwereth the Latine præ; and they ſo expreſſe it. Which turned into Engliſh, importeth not for, or, inſtead of; but before, or, rather then; being much uſed in compariſons, as the Hebrew particle alſo is: and being ſo here Engliſhed, would make the text ſound clean contrary to what they would have it ſpeak; to wit, Will any traveller leave the plain before the rock, or, rather then the rock; and before, or, rather then the ſnowy Lebanon? when as they would have the meaning to be, that no wiſe man, or in his wits, will chooſe the rocky and ſnowy way before the plain; or will not leave that, to betake himſelf to this. So their verſion and their intention do directly croſs the one the other. The Italian Verſion rendreth it; Should ſnowy Lebanon be left for a ſtone of the field? implying as great an inequality between God the rock and ſtrength of all ages, Deut.32.4. Eſay 26.4. and idols; as there is between mount Lebanon and ſome ſtone in the field. See Deut.32.31. But to paſſe by the unuſualneſs of the word here uſed to ſignifie a ſtone: the ſame incongruity is here alſo that was in the former.

or ſhall the cold flowing waters that come from another place be forſaken?] About this latter branch there is no leſſe difficulty and diverſity among Interpreters, then about the former. The text is, word for word, or (ſupplyed, as Chap.11.19.) ſhall ſtrange, cool, flowing, waters be forſaken? or, fail? which the moſt thus expound; Will men though they have not ſuch a ſpring of water as was before-ſaid, yet if they have freſh conduit water with them at home, derived and brought to them by pipes, chanels, or other means of conveyance for that purpoſe contrived, from ſome place more remote, ſo long as it is cool, and floweth cleer, refuſe to make uſe of it, and content themſelves with it, rather then trouble themſelves with running abroad to ſeek for other elſewhere; and that in ſome pond or ſtanding pool, which neither runs freſh, nor is ſo cool, being conſtantly expoſed to the heat of the ſun? for ſuch ſupply the oppoſite attributes require; that which in effect for the application comes home to the ſame with the former. See Prov.5.15. And that learned man before alledged, taking the term in a notion of failing; ſhall ſuch waters fail? expoundeth it of the waters of Euphrates and Nilus, which though riſing in forraign parts, yet watered the land of his people; as if God had ſaid, when as hence it appeareth that I forget not my people, in that I furniſh them with water both ſpringing up in their own land from mount Lebanon; and ſuch alſo, as thoſe of Euphrates and Nilus, that have their riſe in regions more remote: what reaſon is it that my people ſhould forget me? But how theſe two great rivers ſhould water the land of Judah, (to ſay nothing of Lebanon) I ſee not: and the ſeeking after theſe waters is expreſly objected to them, and charged as a crime upon them, Chap.2.18. nor doth this therefore ſeem ſo well to ſuit with the drift of the place. Thoſe other Worthies above mentioned, do here alſo go a way out of the common road by themſelves; thus rendring the words, Shall the running waters be left for ſtrange cold waters? or, for waters ſtrangely cold? that is, is any man ſo fooliſh, as that when he is a thirſt, having wholſome running water by him, he will leave that, and ſeek elſewhere for water extreamly cold and unwholſome? But ſure it is a commendation of water to be cool. See Prov.25.25. nor is there any more then ſo in the text. for that which another hath of waters corrupted with ice, ſeems not to ſatisfie: and if I could go this way therefore, I ſhould chooſe rather to render it; ſhall the running waters be left for ſtrange ones. But neither is the particle min here at all in the text; as in the former branch it was: though not in that notion or uſe as they here take it; nor were it put in, would the text afford that ſenſe that they would give it; as in the former branch was evidently ſhewed.

cold] The ſame word with that, Prov.25.25. though ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks would refer it to another root that ſignifies digging, for water eſpecially, Eſay 37.25. as if the meaning were, water by digging procured: but the ready ſenſe is here needleſly rejected, for one without due analogy further fetcht.

that come from another place] Heb. ſtrange. for the meaning whereof, ſome of the Jewiſh Writers refer us to 2 King.19.24. where the ſame term is uſed of waters: but there of waters digged and delved for, where none appeared, nor were ever before known to be. Which they preſſe to confirm that formerly delivered concerning the meaning of that word from the ſame place, and Eſay 37.25. But other of them go the way before mentioned, underſtanding it of water brought from remote places, as before: for as for their curious application of it unto God, as being in ſome ſort remote from them; becauſe dwelling in heaven, Eſay 63.15. and yet neer unto them in regard of his Temple with them, and in his continual beneficence to them, 1 King.8.13,27. I let paſſe: nor are thoſe criticiſms of ſome of them worthy debate, that from a term uſed Eſay 1.6. would have the word ſignifie medicinal waters, like thoſe, Ezek.47.8,9. or that would derive it from another term that ſignifies an inundation, or a ſtorm, Eſay 25.4. & 32.2. as noting the abundance of them: which I therefore alſo ſo leave. for of that which draweth the term out to Euphrates and Nilus, ſee before.

be forſaken] So the moſt of the Jewiſh Interpreters; yet withal obſerving, that this is not the ordinary ſignification of the word; but that by change of a letter of like ſound, taw for thet, it cometh to ſignifie as here it is rendred. Howbeit, the old Latine retaining the ordinary uſe of the word, renders the text, can ſuch waters be pulled out, or, plucked up? but the inſolency of the phraſe is ſuch, as enforceth recourſe to the former acception. Howſoever our Romaniſts to maintain the authority of that verſion, which the Councel of Trent hath made authentick, endeavour to ſtrain ſome convenient ſenſe out of it.

V. 15. Becauſe my people hath forgotten me;] Or, That (as Chap.2.5.) my people hath forgotten me: as making application of what was before ſpoken, ver.14. to the practice of his people: they have ſo forſaken me, that they have even forgotten me too: for one may forſake a perſon, whom yet he doth not, nor can forget. See Chap.2.13,32. & 17.13.

they have burnt incenſe to vanity;] Performed religious worſhip (as Chap.7.9. & 11.17.) to idols, Chap.2.5. & 10.2.15. An Interpreter of great note, following the old Latine, thus rendreth this branch, as in coherence with the former, Becauſe my people have forgotten me; they burn incenſe in vain to me. See Eſay 1.13. & 66.3. which I leave to the judgment of others, adhering rather to the former.

and they have cauſed them to ſtumble in their wayes from the ancient paths, to walk in paths in a way not caſt up.] Or, while (as the copulative is uſed, 1 King.11.25.) they (that is, their falſe Prophets, ſay ſome; their idols, ſay others) cauſe them to ſtumble in their wayes, (as the corrupt Prieſts are ſaid to do the like, partly, by their corrupt doctrine, and partly, by their bad lives and evil example, Mal.2.8.) by leaving (a defect of the verb, as the Jewiſh Critick obſerves; like that, Pſal.89.29.) the ancient paths, (as Pſal.77.19. a word in this notion no where elſe found. Heb. the paths of eternity; as ſome, that is tending to life eternal: or, of antiquity, as the moſt; which God anciently in his Law by Moſes preſcribed them: and that Moſes himſelf, Joſhua, David, and other the faithful walked in before them, Chap.6.16. Deut.4.1. & 6.1. & 28.9.) to walk (as Prov.2.13.) or, by walking (as Lev.18.4.) paths, or, in (as Exod.13.18.) paths (the common word for ſuch paſſages) of a way not caſt up; or, where there is no way caſt up: where there is no cauſey; no way fitted and accommodated for paſſage, the contrary whereunto is the way of God, that the godly and faithful walk in, ſaid to be, Prov.15.19. Eſay 35.8. See on ver.14.

V. 16. To make their land deſolate, and a perpetual hiſſing;] Not that this was the thing they aymed at, but that this muſt needs, & would undoubtedly prove the iſſue and effect of it. See Eſay 3.8. chap.7.18. nor could they take a readier way to bring ſuch evils upon their land, if they deſired and ſhould ſtudy ſo to do. See the like, Prov.13.24. and 14.1. Heb. To put their land into deſolation, (as chap.4.7.) or, aſtoniſhment, (ſuch a deſolation as may make any one aſtoniſhed to behold it, ſee the next branch) an hiſſing of perpetuity: this and deſolation are joyned uſually together, 2 Chr.29.8. Chap.19.8. & 25.9.

every one that paſſeth by it, ſhall be aſtoniſhed, and wag his head.] Or, So that (as Eſay 58.6. & 63.13.) every one that paſſeth over it ſhall be aſtoniſhed, (the verb from which the noun before cometh) and wag his head: in way, either of admiration, wondring to ſee ſo ſtrange an alteration; or of indignation and vexation, to ſee ſuch ſpoyl and havock made of all things; or of ſcorn and deriſion, as enemies and ill-willers are in ſuch caſe wont to do, Pſal.22.7. Eſay 37.22. Mat.27.39. See Chap.19.8. & 50.13.

V. 17. I will ſcatter them as with an Eaſt-wind before the enemy:] Or, That (as before) I ſhould ſcatter them; that is, cauſe them to flee every way, glad to take any way to ſhift for themſelves, and (if it be poſſible) to make any eſcape, (as with armies routed by ſome fierce over-pouring enemy it uſually falleth out) Deut.28.25,64. like chaff or duſt before the wind, Pſal.18.43. Chap.4.11. & 15.7. the Eaſt-wind eſpecially, that is wont to be moſt violent, and furious in thoſe parts, carrying all away before it, Job 27.21. Pſal.48.7. Eſay 27.8.

I will ſhew them the back and not the face, in the day of their calamity.] Or that (as before) I ſhould ſhew them the back (Heb. the neck, or back-part of the neck. See on Eſay 66.3. Exod.23.27. Joſh.7.8,12. Chap.48.39.) and not the face in the day, or, time of their calamity; as Chap.46.21. To make me turn my face away from them, and turn my back toward them, not enduring to hear or behold them, when being in diſtreſs, they ſhall ſeek unto me for ſuccour, Eſay 1.15. dealing then with them, as they now deal with me, 2 Chron.29.6. Chap.2.27. & 32.33. Ezek.8.16.

V. 18. Then ſaid they, Come let us deviſe devices againſt Jeremiah:] Heb. And they ſaid; as Chap.17.27. This verſe holdeth out to us the ground of the Prophets enſuing complaint; to wit, the peoples malicious and miſchievous plotting againſt him for the faithful delivery of Gods meſſage.

let us deviſe devices] Contrive ſome one device or other to do him a miſchief: ſo the plural is oft uſed; as Gen.23.6. Judg.12.7. Pſal.1.3. See Chap.17.5.

for the Law ſhall not periſh from the Prieſt, nor counſel from the wiſe, nor the word from the Prophet.] The Prieſts cannot but conceive and teach the Law aright; nor can the Sages, being men of underſtanding, fail of giving good advice; and the word that our Prophets do ſo unanimouſly deliver, can be no other then Gods Word, Mal.2.7. Joh.7.48,49. but this Jeremy in his preaching diſſenteth from them all; and muſt needs therefore be in the wrong; and we have no cauſe then to regard what he ſaith: So fared it with Micah, 1 King.22.13,24. See Chap.7.4. & 5.12,31. & 26.8. This is juſt like the Papiſts plea, the Church, or the Pope, and his conclave (for he is virtually the Church) cannot erre. But ſee the contrary to what they here preſume of, by God himſelf threatned, Eſay 29.14. Ezek.7.26. to periſh, for, to fail, as Pſal.142.4. Chap.49.7. Amos 2.14.

Come, let us ſmite him with the tongue;] Let us enform, and by enforming, encenſe the higher powers againſt him, Chap.20.10. & 26.11. or, as others render it, let us ſmite him in the tongue; let us cauſe his mouth to be ſtopped, that he may preach no more on this faſhion, Tit.1.11. or, as others, for the tongue; for his preaching in this manner, as the particle is uſed, Gen.18.28. See Chap.26.11. & 38.4,6. and let not us give heed unto any of his words.] For they are not Gods, but his own. So Chap.5.12,13. & 43.2. Heb. all his words: all, for, any; as Job 1.11. & 8.12.

V. 19. Give heed to me, O Lord:] Though they heed not my words, that I deliver to them from thee; yet do thou vouchſafe to heed my words, wherewith I complain to thee of them.

and hearken to the voice of them that contend with me.] Or rather, hear the voice of them that contend with me (Heb. of my contenders; as Pſal.35.1. Eſay 49.25.) hear their words to take notice of them,and to puniſh them for them; as Eſay 37.4, 17.not hearken to them,to grant their deſires,Pſal.140.8. for the particle is here redundant and vacant, as oft elſe-where, Gen. 29. 13. 1 Sam. 10. 4. Job 8.8. Eſay 37.21. Chap. 40. 2.

V. 20. Shall evill be recompenſed for good?] Or, Should; as Chap.16.10. Should men be ſo wicked,and ſo maliciouſly minded, as to plot evill againſt, and ſeek to miſchief thoſe, that deſire and endeavour nothing but, or more, then their good? The common complaint and lot of Gods Prophets and people,1 Sam.24.17.Pſal.35.12.& 109.5.

for they have digged a pit for my ſoul.] Or, that (as before, ver. 15.) they ſhould dig a pit for my ſoul? that they ſhould ſeek to deſtroy me, and to take my life away from me, who have by all means that I could endeavoured to do them good: my ſoul,for,me; or,my life; as Pſal. 35. 7. & 56. 6. and there is in the words a ſpeech borrowed from the practice of thoſe that dig pits, or pit-fals, to take wild beaſts, or to catch birds in. So Pſal.9.15.& 35.7.& 94.13.Prov.16.27. & 26. 27.Eccl.10.8.Ezek.19.4,8. So ver.22.

remember that I ſtood before thee to ſpeak good for them,and to turn away thy wrath from them.] He appeals to God himſelf,as able to teſtifie, how he had from time to time laboured with him,to pacifie his wrath incenſed againſt them;and to obtain favour and mercy for them. So Chap.15.15.& 17.16.Heb. remember my ſtanding before thee. See Chap.15.1.

This ſeemeth ſpoken of the perſons themſelves,or the Parents; as the former of the children: let that befall them,that they intend againſt me,ver.20,23.Chap.11.22.

and let their wives be bereaved of their children, and be widows,and let their men be put to death.] Or,that (as Chap.14. 19.)their wives may be left childleſſe,and widows,their husbands (as Chap.44.19.) being taken away by death.Heb.ſlain of death; as,ſlain of the ſword,and,of hunger,Chap.14.18.Lam.4.9. ſlain by one means or other,enough to make their wives widows. Howbeit, by death here, ſome of the Rabbines not amiſs underſtand ſome one particular kind of it,the peſtilence; as Ch. 15. 2. where it is expreſly diſtinguiſhed from the famine, and the ſword: the like whereunto, ſee alſo Rev.6.8.So it may be rendred,their husbands being taken away by the peſtilence; as were multitudes of them no doubt in the ſiege of the city, Chap.14.12. & 21.6.

let their young men be ſlain by the ſword in battel.]The uſual lot of ſuch in war, becauſe fitteſt for ſervice in the field; whence the Greek Proverb, Young men for arms, and old men for advice; and the ſpeech of the Heathen King, that Peace was to be preferred before war, becauſe in times of war parents bury their children; children their parents,in times of peace: the old,the young in the one; the young,the old in the other; a thing more agreeable to the courſe of nature. So 2 King.8. 12. 2 Chron.36.17.Chap.11.22.Heb. ſmitten of the ſword: to ſmite,for,to ſlay; as Num.25.14. Chap. 21. 6. & 40.14; 15. the form of ſpeech,as before.

V. 22. Let a cry be heard from their houſes, when thou ſhalt bring a troop ſuddenly upon them.] Such an out-cry as people are wont to make, when military perſons break in upon them, to plunder all with them, and to ſurpriſe or deſtroy them,chap.20.16.So ſhould it be with them,when the troops of the Chaldeans,and their complices, ſhould ſurpriſe and ſack their dwellings,2 King.24.2.

Heb. for death: to deſtroy, and make me away, by one means or other; as if he had ſaid,this is no bare ſuſpition,or groundleſs ſurmiſe of mine own,concerning their miſchievous plots and projects againſt me,but that which the Lord himſelf is privy to,and knoweth to be true. CHAP. XIX.

Verſ.1. THus ſaith the Lord,]As Chap.17.5,21. or,That ſaid the Lord; to wit,ſometime to me; as Chap. 17. 19. The preſent prophecy containeth a threatning of deſtruction to the Jewiſh State, and a confounding of all thoſe courſes, whereby they ſhould endeavour to avert or avoid it, reſembled by the breaking of an earthen veſſel in Tophet,enjoyned by God,and effected by the Prophet,as for their idolatry in general, ſo more ſpecially for the ſame in that place committed.

Go and get a potters earthen bottel] Heb. Going,or, Go, and thou ſhalt buy, or get (as Chap.13. 1.) a bottel of the framer of earthen ſtuff; an earthen bottel of the potters framing, ſuch an one as is eaſily broken,Pſal.2.9.Eſay 30.19. Howbeit,the Jewiſh Criticks ſuggeſt unto us another ſyntax of the place, rendring the text,Go and get,or buy, of,or from, the framer of earthen ſtuff,a bottel,or from the potter an earthen bottel: a defect,ſay they,of the particle of,or from; as the like,2 Sam.23. 24.Dodo Bethlehem,for,Dodo of,or from Bethlehem: and this is much more probable, then that which the old Latine Tranſlator exhibiteth, who having jumbled together the two branches of the verſe, rendreth the words, Go and take an earthen bottel from the Elders of the people, and of the Prieſts; and would conſequently have this earthen pot, or bottel, not to have been bought or brought by Jeremy from the potter, but to have been demanded of, and received from,thoſe Ancients or Elders of the people,or the Prieſts.

a bottel] Heb. bakbuk; a word no where found in Scripture,but here, and 1 King.14.3. and it is ſaid by the Jewiſh Commenter here,to ſignifie a veſſel with a big belly,but narrow mouth or neck; ſo called from the bubling ſound that it maketh,when it is dipped in the water,or liquor,either poured forth,or drunk out of it; and he addeth withall, that the ſame is both in the Greek, and other Languages, termed bocal; wherein howſoever a learned Writer controll him, both affirming,that no ſuch term as that is found in Greek,or that cometh any thing neer it,ſave bikos,which the Greek Verſion here maketh uſe of,and that the veſſel in Spain and Italy, ſo termed,is not of that making: Yet herein, for the former, he bewrayeth his own ignorance; for Athenæus in his Supper-ſophiſters,l.11.out of ancient Greek Authors mentioneth it,adding withall, that it was at Alexandria much uſed, and made ſometime curiouſly,with images upon it,of glaſs. And Nicephorus alſo in his Eccleſiaſtical Story,l.8.c.5. telleth of a Presbyter at Alexandria, who was commonly called Bucalis, in alluſion to the veſſel ſo termed,which he ſaith was ſuch an earthen veſſel,as the Jewiſh Critick here deſcribes; and for the ſame reaſon ſo termed,to wit,in regard of the bubling, or guggling ſound that it made, either in taking in of liquor,or in the voiding of it again: whereof Alexander the Greek-queſtioniſt,(or,as ſome will have it,Trallian) rendreth a reaſon in his problems, lib.1.queſt.94. and for the latter exception,that the pot,or veſſel,in thoſe places now commonly ſo called,was of another faſhion then is there deſcribed: whereunto might be added,that ſuch a narrow-necked veſſel is not ſo fit to put or carry honey in. Of which uſe of this bakbuk,ſee 1 King.14.3. the anſwer is not difficult, that the ſame name may comprehend veſſels of divers ſorts, and differing in faſhion, though at firſt appropriated unto ſome one kind of them; as alſo that names borrowed from forrein Languages may, in time, much alter from that notion and uſe of them, which in their native at firſt they had: for ſo we uſe the term a viall, for ſome ſmall glaſs onely of ſuch a faſhion as hath here been mentioned; albeit the word phiala, from whence we have it,did both with the Greeks and Latines,from whom we received it, ſignifie a drinking cup: as by the frequent uſe of Authors,in either Language,appears. See Rev.15.7.with Chap.14.10. And alſo again the Hebrew ſephel,from which their phiala is not amiſs deemed to have deſcended, did with the Jews ſignifie,neither a vial,as with us, or a drinking cup, as with them; but a diſh for butter, Judg. 5. 25. or a bowl to hold water, Judg. 6.37. But howſoever it were for the ſhape or faſhion of it, that an earthen veſſel it was, appeareth by the word following, whereof ſee Eſay 45. 9. Nor can I concur with that learned Commenter here, who to comply with the vitious Latine Verſion, would have it to have been one of thoſe pots, wherein by way of ballatting (as the Ancient both Greeks and Romans, and ſome States alſo at this day, ſo the Jews alſo, and thoſe Ancients from whom Jeremy had it) in their places of judicature, when they ſat on the bench, uſed to give and gather up their Votes. But of the ſandy ground of that conceit, ſee before.

and take of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the Prieſts.] Some of the Elders of either ſort, (for of both theſe the Jewiſh Conſiſtory conſiſted, 2 Chron. 19.8. Act. 4.5, 6, 23.) to go along with thee, that they may be eye-witneſſes of what thou doſt, and take ſpecial notice of what thereupon thou ſayſt. See ſomewhat the like, Eſay 8.2.

V. 2. And go forth unto the valley of the ſon of Hinnom] A Valley neer to Jeruſalem: whereof ſee on Eſay 30. 33. and Chap. 7.31.

which is by the entry of the Eaſt-gate;] What gate this was, or why ſo called, is not ſo certain. Some affirm it to have been the dung-gate, mentioned, Neh. 2.13. & 3.12. & 12.31. So the Chaldee, and after him, thoſe of the Rabbines, upon this place, one of whom telleth us, that this Gate had ſeven ſeveral names; and that it is here called the Sun-gate, from a word that ſignifieth the Sun, Judg. 8.13. & 14.18. Iob 9.7. becauſe it looked Eaſtward toward the ſun-riſing, whence ſome alſo would have it to be the Eaſt-gate, mentioned, Neh. 3.29. Others render it, the Pot-ſherd-gate; as the word is uſed, Job 2. 8. or, the Earthen-veſſel-gate; as ver. 1. ſo the old Latine rendreth it: and it is ſo called, ſay ſome, in part concurring with the former; becauſe together with the filth of the city, and the Temple, the broken pot-ſherds of earthen veſſels uſed in the Temple, or in other places thereabout, uſed to be there caſt out: or, ſay others, with more probability, becauſe the potters-fields, whence they had the clay that they wrought with, and their work-houſes wherein they wrought it, being not far diſtant from thence, the ways thereabout could not want ſtore of that, in the drying and making of it up much of courſe neceſſarily miſcarrying. See Chap. 18.1, 2. I ſuppoſe therefore, that it is not likely to have been either the dung-gate, which ſtood farther out of the way; nor yet the Eaſt-Gate, if from the Sun it be ſo termed; but the South-gate rather, declining ſomewhat from the Eaſt-ſide of the city, ſo called, becauſe the Sun lay moſt upon it, in regard whereof it was the more uſeful to the Potters, for the drying and hardning of their ware. And again, by it was the way to the valley of Hinnom, which lay Southward from Jeruſalem, Joſh. 15.8. See Eſay 16.7.

and proclaim there the words that I ſhall tell thee] Heb. and thou ſhalt proclaim (as ver. 1. thou ſhalt get, or buy) to wit, in the preſence of thoſe ancients, ver. 1.

there] In that place, where ſuch horrible abominations are committed, ver. 4.

I ſhall tell thee.] When thou comeſt thither; as Chap. 18.2. whereby it appeareth that Gods meſſages many times were not revealed to the Prophets, before the very inſtant of time, wherein they were to deliver them.

V. 3. And ſay,] Or, Then ſay; as Chap. 18.18. Heb. thou ſhalt ſay; and ſo alſo, ver. 11.

Hear the word of the Lord, O Kings of Judah, and inhabitants of Jeruſalem:] He ſpeaketh to them as preſent, in the hearing of thoſe that might relate them unto them; and yet not unlikely but many of the people would for novelty flock after them, ſeeing the Prophet with thoſe Ancients going ſolemnly that way out of the city, and taking from the Potter ſuch a veſſel to carry along with him. So Chap. 17. 20.

Kings] That is, King and Queen-Mother, ſay ſome, Chap. 13.18. or, as others, King and his Councel, or Princes and Rulers. See Chap. 17.20.

Thus ſaith the Lord of Hoſts, the God of Iſrael] He that is able to do whatſoever he menaceth, and will do it, juſt cauſe being given him, even to thoſe, that call him their God, and profeſſe to be his Iſrael, Eſay 48.1. So Chap. 7.21.

Behold I will bring evill upon this place,] Heb. Behold I am bringing evil (as Chap. 6.19. & 11.11.) upon this place: not that particular place where the Prophet ſtood, but upon the neighbour-city, upon the ſtate of Judah and Jeruſalem.

the which whoſoever heareth his ears ſhall tingle.] So hideous, that whoſoever, not ſeeth it, but heareth of it, heareth onely the bare report of it, ſhall have his ears ſtricken with horrour and aſtoniſhment of it. So 1 Sam. 3.11. 2 King. 21. 12. he ſhall not eaſily get his ears rid of it again, Job 15.21.

V. 4. Becauſe they have forſaken me] Chap. 16.11.

and eſtranged this place] Or, have ſtrangely abuſed; as the word ſeems to be taken, Deut. 32.27. So abuſed this city contrary to what ſhould have been practiſed in it, and ſo polluted and profaned it, that I can no longer own it. See Eſay 1. 4, 11, 12. Pſal. 58.3. Eph. 4.18. Col. 1.21.

and burnt incenſe to other gods, whom neither they, nor their fathers, have known, nor the Kings of Judah,] Or, while they burn incenſe, (So the copulative is uſed, 1 King. 11.25.) or, in that they have burnt incenſe, (as Eſay 37. 24.) to idols, to ſtrange gods, ſuch as neither they, nor their anceſtors, Kings or others, had ever any experimental knowledge or proof of, for their good, as from time to time, they had of him, whom for theſe vanities they leave. See Deut. 32.17. Judg. 5.8. Chap. 1.16. & 44.3.

and have filled this place with the blood of innocents,] Both the city of Jeruſalem by oppreſſion and murther, 2 King. 21. 16. & 24.4. See Chap. 7.6. & 22. 3. and this place in particular where we now are, by ſacrificing of poor infants to their abominable idols, Pſal. 106.37, 38. See ver. 5. but the former principally here intended, as alſo, Chap. 2.34. for of the latter apart afterward, ver. 5.

V. 5. They have built alſo the high places of Baal to burn their ſons with fire for burnt-offerings unto Baal, which I commanded not, nor ſpake it, neither came it into my mind.] Heb. And have built, which may well be here retained. See Chap. 7.31. & 32. 35. 2 King. 23.10. What is here ſaid to Baal, is in theſe two latter places ſaid to Molech; but Baal and Molech, were two terms very generally and promiſcuouſly uſed of their idols; the one ſignifying a Lord, or Owner; the other a King; whence alſo Baalim oft, in the plural number. See Chap. 2. 23. and 7. 9.

V. 6. Therefore behold, the days come, ſaith the Lord, that this place ſhall no more be called Tophet, nor the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, but the valley of ſlaughter.] See Chap. 7.32.

V. 7. And I will make void the counſel of Judah and Jeruſalem in this place,] In this place, is in Jeruſalem eſpecially, as before, ver. 4. though ſome would have it ſpoken by the pointing to the Kings Palace, ſituate not far from thence, on the South ſide of the city: but that may be deemed ſomewhat over-curious. The plain meaning is, I will fruſtrate all your plots and projects, (as Chap. 18.23.) whereby you think to eſcape, and to ſecure your ſelves, (ſee Eſay 30.1-3. & 31.1-3. Chap. 37. 7, 8.) and make them as vain and empty as this earthen bottel is: for unto the name thereof in this word he alludeth, which ſome therefore would have to be ſo named, not from the ſound it makes in filling or emptying, but from the term of emptying onely, here uſed: but that is not neceſſary; for in Scripture alluſion is oft made to the vicinity of ſound in ſome term; from which yet the word never had its original. So Mic. 1.10, 14. and I will cauſe them to fall by the ſword before their enemies,] To fall, for, to be foiled, or, to be ſlain, or, to fall down, being ſlain: as 1 Sam. 4.10. & 31.1. Chap. 20.4. Ezek. 6.4. and by the hands of them that ſeek their lives;] Heb. their ſouls; as Chap. 4.30. & 18.20. So ver. 9.

and their carcaſſes will I give to be meat for the fowls of heaven, and the beaſts of the field.] See Chap. 7.33. & 16.4.

V. 8. And I will make this city deſolate, and an hiſſing: every one that paſſeth thereby ſhall be aſtoniſhed and hiſſe, becauſe of all the plagues thereof.] Heb. ſtrokes thereof; as Deut. 28.59. & 29. 22. See the ſame before, Chap. 18. 16.

V. 9. And I will cauſe them to eat the fleſh of their ſons, and the fleſh of their daughters, and they ſhall eat every one the fleſh of his friend, in the ſiege and ſtraitneſſe, wherewith their enemies and they that ſeek their lives ſhall ſtraiten them.] Before threatned, Lev. 26.29. Deut. 28.23. and in the ſiege of the city accompliſhed, Lam. 4.10.

every one the fleſh of his friend] Or, neighbour; they ſhall feed one upon another, (as Chap. 46. 16.) without regard had to any bonds of vicinity or amity. See Eſay 9.20.

——ſtraiten them.] Or, diſtreſſe them. See Eſay 29.2.

V. 10. Then ſhalt thou break the bottel;] Or, Then (Heb. And, as chap. 18.18.) break (as ver. 1. get, or, buy) the bottle: which he had brought or took along with him; thereby, as by a viſible type, repreſenting and obſigning what before he had ſaid, that it might make a deeper impreſſion in the minds of thoſe that behold it.

in the ſight of them that go with thee.] See ver. 1. Heb. to the eyes of them: as Chap. 28.1, 5, 11.

V. 11. And ſhalt ſay unto them;] Or, And ſay unto them; as ver. 3.

Thus ſaith the Lord of Hoſts; Even ſo will I break this people, and this city, as one breaketh a potters veſſel, that cannot be made whole again:] Before, he compared this people and State to moiſt and ſoft clay, which though it miſcarry in the frameing, yet may, with no great ado, be made up again, in ſome other faſhion, to the mind of the maker, Chap. 18.4, 6. Now, to an earthen veſſel, dryed and hardened, which being broken in pieces, cannot be made up, and ſet together again. So Eſay 30.14. and ſomewhat the like, Chap. 48.12.

as one breaketh a potters veſſel] Or, as a potters veſſel is broken; as chap.16.6. and they ſhall bury them in Tophet till there be no place elſe to bury.] Or rather, they ſhall bury in Tophet (for them is not in the text) for want of room to bury elſewhere. See Chap. 7. 32.

V. 12. Thus will I do unto this place, ſaith the Lord, and to the Inhabitants thereof,] this place; this city, ver.11.

and even make their city as Tophet] Where ye had wont to ſlaughter and ſacrifice your children, ver.5. I will fill the whole city with the carcaſſes of ſlaughtered ones, as ye filled it before with innocent bloud, 2 King.21.16. & 24.4. chap. 32.29. ſo that it ſhall be all like another Tophet, ver.13. not unlike that, Eſay 29.2. that the whole city ſhould be as another Ariel. See there. Heb. and (or, even, as Chap. 15.13.) to give (for, to make: as chap.25.18. Dan.12.11.) this city (ſo is the text) as Tophet.

V. 13. And the houſes of Jeruſalem, and the houſes of the Kings of Judah ſhall be defiled as the place of Tophet;] The houſes and palaces being filled alſo as well as the ſtreets, with abundance of dead corpſes, lying without ſepulture in them, for want either of perſons, or place to bury them. See of Joſias his defiling Tophet, 2 King. 23. 10. Howbeit, ſome read the words, the houſes of Jeruſalem, and of the Kings of Judah, which are defiled, (to wit, with thoſe abominations exerciſed in them, and upon them, hereafter mentioned) ſhall be as Tophet; and the words may very well bear it: Kings, as before, ver.3.

becauſe of all the houſes, upon whoſe roofs they have burnt incenſe unto the hoſt of heaven, and have poured out drink-offerings unto other gods] Or rather, with all the houſes (ſo is the particle frequently uſed, Ezr.1.5. & 2.63. Neh. 7. 65.) upon whoſe roofs; for their houſes being flat-roofed, Deut. 22. 8. they uſed on the tops of them to ſerve their idols, and to ſacrifice to them, to the celeſtial bodies eſpecially, as being in regard of the height of their houſes neerer there to them, and having them more conſpicuous there to their eye. See 2 King. 23.12. Eſay 65.3. Chap.32.29. Zeph.1.5.

V. 14. Then came Jeremiah from Tophet, whither the Lord had ſent him to propheſie; and he ſtood in the Court of the Lords houſe, and ſaid to all the people:] Heb. And; as ver.10. Having diſpatched his errand by God enjoyned him at Tophet, he returneth to the Temple, from whence in likelihood he took thoſe Ancients along with him, ver.1. and there in the Court, whereunto the people had acceſſe as well as the Prieſts, 2 Chr.23.5. he delivered in their hearing, the ſum of that which at Tophet he had before denounced.

V. 15. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael;] See the ſame proem, ver.3.

Behold, I will bring upon this city, and upon all her Towns, all the evil that I have pronounced againſt it,] Heb. Behold I am bringing (as ver.3.) unto (or, upon; as Chap.4. 3. & 11.11.) this city, and upon her cities, (the inferiour cities, and leſſer Towns belonging to Jeruſalem, as the mother-city. See chap. 15.8. & 34.1.) all the evil that I have ſpoken againſt it, or, concerning it; as Chap.18.7,9.

CHAP. XX.

Verſ. 1. N*Ow Paſhur, &c.*] This Chapter hath a manifeſt dependance upon the former, containing a relation of the evil uſage of Jeremy by one of the principal Prieſts, for his plain and faithful delivery of Gods meſſage before-mentioned, ver.1-6. together with a grievous complaint made to God by the Prophet; wherein a ſtrange mixture of contrary affections and paſſions is manifeſted; not free from ſome tang and taint of humane frailty, ver. 7—18.

Now Paſhur the ſon of Immer the Prieſt, who was alſo Chief Governour in the houſe of the Lord, heard that Jeremiah propheſied theſe things;] Or, Now when Paſhur——heard Jeremy propheſying theſe things; Paſhur ſmote Jeremy, &c. This ſyntax is very common, Chap.2.7,10. & 5.7. & 6.9,10.

Paſhur] Heb. Paſhhur, or, Paſhchur: as, Ahaz, or, Achaz. See Eſay 1.1.

the ſon of Immer] Not that this Immer was Paſhurs immediate parent, but his progenitor; this Paſhur being a Prieſt of the ſixteenth courſe, whereof Immer at firſt conſtitution of them was chief head, 1 Chr.24.14. and this ſeemeth added to diſtinguiſh this Paſhur from one of the ſame name, that was of another courſe, Chap.21.1.

who was alſo Chief governour in the houſe of the Lord.] Heb. and he, for, who; as chap.15.19. & 17.7. unleſſe we read it by way of parentheſis; (now he was principal ruler in the houſe of the Lord) for alſo is not in the text. As for the ſtyle here given him, in the original they are two ſeveral ſubſtantives; whereof the one ſignifieth a prefect, (rendred an officer, chap. 29.26. and, an overſeer, Neh.11.9,14,22.) the other a Prince, or, Ruler, uſed of Temple-officers, 1 Chron. 9.20. & 26.24. 2 Chr.31.12. the head it may be he was of that courſe whereunto he belonged, the Prieſts whereof, were then in their courſe attending the Temple-ſervice: or, as ſome ſuppoſe, the ſecond, next under the High-Prieſt; who upon any occaſional diſability betiding the high Prieſt, was to perform offices in his place, Numb.3.32. 2 King.25.18. Chap.52.24. called, ſay they, the principal; becauſe divers other Rulers were under this ſecond, 2 Chr.35.8. Chap.35.4. Others, again, ſuppoſe him to have been the Captain of the Temple; who had power to apprehend ſuch as committed any diſorder in the Temple, Act.4.1. See Chap.29.26. the thing, being uncertain, I ſhall leave to the conſideration of the learned. I concur with the firſt; for they that would have this Paſhur to be High-Prieſt, are eaſily anſwered; ſince, that beſides that he was one of the 24. courſes, whereas the High-Prieſt was of none (that which proveth Zachary alſo not to have been High-Prieſt, as the Ancients moſt of them imagined, Luk.1.5.) in the continued liſt of the High-Prieſts, from Aaron to paſt his time, we find none ſuch mentioned, 1 Chr. 6.4-15.

heard that Jeremiah propheſied theſe things.] Or rather, heard Jeremy propheſying theſe things; for ſo the words run in the text: he heard not of it by information from ſome other, but he himſelf heard him in the Temple delivering this prophecy. Heb. theſe words, for, theſe things; as Chap. 11. 6. and 16. 10.

V. 2. Then Paſhur ſmote Jeremiah the Prophet] Or, when Paſhur heard Jeremiah thus propheſying, he ſmote him; (the nouns for pronouns; as Eſay 64.2. Chap.4.4. 2 Tim. 1.18.) to wit, in likelihood with his hand, or fiſt, as Zedekiah ſmote Micajah, 1 King.22.24. and as they our Saviour, Matth.26. 67. And that, as may ſeem, interrupting him, while he was yet ſpeaking, ſo that he could not proceed. Thus this preſumptuous Prieſt, for ought we find, was the firſt that offered ſuch an affront unto the Prophet, as none either of the greater and more powerful, or the meaner and ruder ſort had hitherto done. Nor can I agree to that learned Annotator, who would have it to import no more then that he apprehended him, or laid hands on him; becauſe it is ſaid, Ezek. 33. 21. & 40.1. the city is ſmitten, for, the city is taken: for even there alſo is more then ſo implyed; not taken barely, but ſtormed, or, taken by ſtorming: beſides, that apprehending, or attaching, and ſmiting, are two diſtinct things, and diverſly expreſſed, Chap.37.14,15.

and put him in the ſtocks] Heb. gave him. as Gen. 39. 20. Chap.37.15. but for the word following, there is no ſmall doubt concerning the right ſignification of it: nor doth the original of it afford us any ſure ground to build on therein: it ſignifies properly ſubverſion, or, turning upſide downward, Eſay 1.7. & 13.19. Chap.49.18. & 50.40. our tranſlators are not conſtant to themſelves about it: they render it here ſtocks, elſewhere priſon, Chap.29.26. & 2 Chr.16.10. where the word houſe, or place, is joyned with it: as with the like, 1 King.22.27. 2 King.17.4. And for the Jewiſh Doctors, ſome of them alſo ſo take it: but others of them tell us, that it was a woodden engine, that they uſed to faſten men within the priſon; and ſome of theſe, that it was an engine made of two boards, wherein they were held faſt by the neck; ſuch as our pillory. Whereunto alſo ſome add, that it had three holes in it, one for the neck, and two for the hands. Others, that it was ſuch an one, wherein they held men faſt by the legs, which in forain languages, ſay they, is called cippus: (from whence the Chaldee ſwerveth very little; though ſome give the word uſed by him another notation) and ſo ſhould it be the ſame with our ſtocks; ſuch as Job ſpeaks of, Job 13. 27. (but there is another word there) and ſuch as Paul and Silas were laid in, Act.16.24. Some of the Greek verſions render it in general, an engine of torture. Among this variety to deliver mine own opinion; I ſuppoſe it rather to ſignifie the priſon houſe, then any engine for ſurer cuſtody, or torture therein uſed; to which purpoſe, ſee further on chap. 29. 26.

that were in the high-gate of Benjamin, which was by the houſe of the Lord.] Or, that was; if the word be taken for a priſon; which from hence alſo it may ſeem to be; becauſe it is ſaid to have been ſituate in the high gate, or, upper gate of Benjamin, where it is more probable that a priſon was, then ſuch an engine for any ſuch uſe without it. But about this upper gate of Benjamin, there is again ſome queſtion, whether it were one of the gates of the Temple, or one of the gates of the City. The Rabbines, and thoſe that herein follow them, go the former way, and the words of the text ſeem ſo to carry it, (for that is the moſt general notion of the particle here uſed) in the houſe of the Lord: not the Temple it ſelf alone, but the courts alſo and other buildings about them, coming within the name of Gods houſe. See Chap.7.2,10,11. Matth.21.12, 13. Joh.2.14-16. & 10.23,24. and this gate, ſay they, is called the gate of Benjamin, becauſe it ſtood on that ſide of the Temple, that belonged to the Tribe of Benjamin; the city of Jeruſalem, and the ground alſo whereon the Temple was built, being part of it within the lot of Benjamin, and part within the lines of Judah. That which ſeemeth true indeed concerning the city, Joſh.15.63. compared with Judg.1.21. but for the other concerning the Temple, though a learned late Writer of ours hath endeavoured, by a line drawn from Eaſt to Weſt thorow it, to cut it out to an hair, aſſigning juſt the one half of it, to wit, the North-ſide to Benjamin, and the other preciſe half of it on the South ſide to Judah; yet in the ſacred records doth no ſuch thing appear; nor is ought produced for the proof hereof, ſave ſome places out of Jacobs & Moſes his bleſſing of Benjamin, Gen.49.27. & Deut.33.12. by the Chaldee Paraphraſt, and ſome Talmudiſts, frivolouſly forced that way: which Talmudiſts alſo cut us out the Temple another way then this learned man doth, aſſigning to Judah the Eaſtern part unto the Altar of burnt-offerings, and to Benjamin thence the Weſtern part; grounding likewiſe this their diviſion on the ſame places as before abuſed. But taking for granted, that the Temple ſtood part of it within Benjamins lot, the forementioned Interpreters further add, that on the Benjamin-ſide of the Temple there were two gates, an upper, and a lower; that this was the upper, ſo called, not in regard of the loftier ſtructure of it; but in regard of the ſituation of it; becauſe it ſtood neerer to the innermoſt part of the Temple, the Holy of Holies: and that in this gate there was a priſon, to commit ſuch unto, of the Prieſts or Levites eſpecially, as did carry themſelves amiſſe in the Temple. Thus they. But others, whom our verſion followeth, ſuppoſe this gate to be one of the gates of the City. Howbeit, among theſe alſo I find ſome diverſity. For ſome would have it to be a gate within the city. So a learned Interpreter, affirming it to be a gate in the wall of the city, that divided Judahs part of the city, from Benjamins part of it, called therefore the gate of Benjamin; becauſe by it they paſſed out of Judahs, into Benjamins quarter. But others, and ſo the moſt of this way, conceive it to have been a gate ſituate in the outer wall; ſo called, becauſe it looked toward the lot and land of that Tribe: (as the Gate of Ephraim, 2 King. 14. 13. that opened that way) and it may well be alſo, that it was ſituate on that part of the city wherein that Tribe had intereſt, called either the high-gate, as ſome, for the ſtatelineſs of it, (as 2 Chr.23.20.) or, as others, the upper-gate, (as, the upper pool, Eſay 7.3.) to diſtinguiſh it from another that ſtood lower then it, on the ſame ſide: and this the rather they are induced to admit; becauſe they find elſewhere the gate of Benjamin, ſo uſed and taken, for one of the gates of the city, as twice in this prophecy, Chap.37.12. & 38.7. and Zach. 14. 10. but no where any of the Temple-gates ſo termed: all the difficulty here is in the laſt clauſe, wherein of this gate it is ſaid, that it was in the houſe of the Lord: which to remove, our verſion rendreth it, by the houſe of the Lord: and this verſion is herein well juſtifiable; for the particle here uſed doth oft import, not the comprehenſion of the thing ſpoken of in the place mentioned, but the vicinity of it thereunto. So Numb.33.37. they pitched in (that is, by, or, neer to) mount Hor. See there, ver.38. and, Joſhua ſtood, in (for, by, or, neer to,) Jericho, Joſh.5.13. So alſo Joſh.24.25,26. Joſhua is ſaid to have made a covenant between God and the people, in Shechem, ſetting up a ſtone for a monument thereof, under an oak, that ſtood in, or, by, the Sanctuary of the Lord; that is, neer to Shechem, where that oak ſtood, Gen.35.4. not in the Sanctuary, but neer unto it: as alſo in the ſame Chapter, verſ. 32. Joſephs bones are ſaid to have been buried in Shechem; that is alſo, neer unto it. Yea, ſo Chap. 13. 5. I hid the girdle in Euphrates; that is, by it, neer unto it, in the cleft of a rock: and Chap.32.7. my field in Anathoth, for, beſide it, or, neer unto it. And it is probable enough, that this gate of Benjamin was not far from the Temple. See further on Chap.37.12.

V. 3. And it came to paſs on the morow, that Paſhur brought forth Jeremiah out of the ſtocks; Then ſaid Jeremiah unto him;] Or, And ſo it was (as Chap.3.9.) on the morow, when Paſhur brought Jeremiah out of the priſon, that Jeremiah ſaid unto him. Of the ſyntax, ſee on ver. 1. Of the word priſon, on ver. 2.

on the morow Paſhur brought forth Jeremiah] Not to bring him to ſome publike hearing, as they did the Apoſtles, whom they had over night clapt up in priſon, Act.4.3,7. but to let him go again, whether admoniſhed ſo to do by ſome other more conſiderate then himſelf, or imagining this reſtraint and diſgracefull uſage of him in publike would ſtop his mouth for time to come, or for what other reaſon thereunto moving him, uncertain. But howſoever it was in this regard, this his contumelious carriage toward the Prophet, no more danted him, or damped his ſpirits, then Zedekiah's like preſumptuous demeanure did Micaiah; for at his parting with him, the Prophet freely delivereth him the like meſſage here, that Micaiah did to Zedekiah there, 1 King.22.25. confirming what he tels him concerning himſelf, by a new name, and that ſuch an one, as not man, but God ſhould give him; (ſee ſomewhat of the like kind in Paul to Ananias, Act.23. 3,4.) and withall reneweth again his former denunciations againſt the whole land and the city, ver.4,5.

The Lord hath not called thy name Paſhur, but Magor-miſſabib.] Together with the change of mens conditions are their names oftentimes altered; and names are impoſed oft to intimate as much: So was Abrams name changed to Abraham; Sarais to Sarah, Gen.17.5,15. Jacobs to Iſrael, Gen.32.28. Joſephs by Pharao to Zaphnath-Paaneah, Gen.41.45. and hence Naomi at her return out of Moab, Call me not Naomi, but call me Marah, Ruth 1.20. and ſuch or ſuch a name is God ſaid to impoſe on a perſon, not intending or importing ſimply that in ordinary compellation or communication, he ſhould be commonly ſo called or ſtyled; but thereby intimating, and aſſuring, that ſuch ſhould be the condition and ſtate of that party, as that he might well deſerve ſuch a name, and might juſtly ſo be ſtyled. See hereof on Eſay 7.14. & 9. 6. & 62.4. Chap.23.6. & 33.16. In like manner here the Prophet telleth this proud and godleſs Prieſt, that God, inſtead of Paſhur, had named him Magor-miſſabib; thereby to aſſure him, that ſo dreadful ſhould his ſtate and condition ere long be, that in regard thereof he ſhould juſtly bear that name, and have it on good ground commonly given him by others. What the notation, or ſignification, of his native name Paſhur, or Paſhchur, was, is uncertain: nor is it greatly material. Some make it a compound, conſiſting of two terms, whereof the one ſignifies a growing up, Mal.4.2. the other a noble, Eccl.10.17. & ſo would have it to import a growing up Prince, or Noble. Others, of a word uſed commonly for the mouth; and another that ſignifieth black; whereof Nilus hath its name Shichor, Chap. 2. 18. And others, of a word that ſignifies to diffuſe, Lev.13.5,7. And another that imports paleneſs, Eſay 29.22. as ſignifying one, that by his authority and ſtern carriage, makes men look pale; which the rather pleaſeth the Author of it, becauſe it ſorteth well with the name now given him; as if it were ſaid, he that is now Paſhchur, one that by his ſternneſſe makes men pale for fear on every ſide, ſhall hereafter become Magor-Miſſabib, one beſet with terrours on every ſide himſelf. But theſe far-fetcht and forced notations are of little weight, and of leſſe need or uſe here. Whatſoever it were that that term did or might import, God here giveth him another name, which to that needs have no relation; for the ſignification thereof is well enough known, and it is word for word, Terrour round about, or, Fear on every ſide; and it may well be deemed by the frequent uſe of it, to have been a proverbial form of ſpeech, uſed of perſons in extream diſtreſs ſo beſet with difficulties and dangers, that they are at their wits end, not knowing which way to eſcape or to ſhift for themſelves. See Pſal.31.13. Chap.6.25. & 46.5. & 49. 29. Lam. 2. 22.

hath called thy name] Or, calleth thy name; that is, calleth thee; as, call his name, that is, call him, Eſay 8.3.

V. 4. For thus ſaith the Lord,] He that giveth thee this name, (whereof the reaſon here followeth) and will make it good upon thee.

Behold, I will make thee a terrour to thy ſelf, and to all thy friends] Heb. I am giving thee for a terrour: giving, as bringing, Chap.19.15. to give for a terrour, for, to make one matter of terrour: as, to give for an aſtoniſhment, for, to make one matter of aſtoniſhment, Chap.25.18. I will inflict ſuch evils upon thee, as ſhall affright not thee alone, but all thoſe that have any ſpecial relation to thee, or intereſt in thee, Pſal.31.31. or, as ſome render it, I will expoſe thee to terrour, thee and thy friends. I will ſurround and environ both thee and them with frights and fears; according to which Verſion, the particle here uſed ſhould be vacant and redundant: as Chap.18.19. & 40.2. or, as others again, I will put a terrour into thee, into thee and thy friends: thee unto a terrour; by a trajection, for, a terrour into thee: as, they caſt the city into fire, for, they ſet on fire the city, Joſh.1.8. But the former ſeems the more familiar, and the better.

and they ſhall fall by the ſword of their enemies, and thine eye ſhall behold it;] Or, and (as Chap.17.4.) in thy ſight. Heb. and thine eyes ſeeing; as Deut. 28. 32. Thy friends, on whom at preſent thou relieſt, and to whoſe ſupport, it may be, truſting, thou now carryeſt thy ſelf ſo preſumptuouſly, ſhal be ſlain (as Chap.19.7.) and ſo taken from thee by the enemy, that thou ſhalt de deprived of all hope of relief or ſuccour from them; and this, to enhance thy grief, and augment thy terrour, ſhall be done in thy preſence, while thou ſtandeſt by looking on, neither able to afford any help unto them, nor to expect any from them. See the like aggravations, Deut. 28. 29——34. 1 Sam.2.33. and the like judgment executed on King Zedekiah himſelf, Chap.39.6,7.

and I will give all Judah into the hand of the King of Babylon, and he ſhall carry them captive into Babylon, and ſhall ſlay them with the ſword.] I will deliver the whole country and people of it into Nebuchadnezzar's power, to diſpoſe, either for captivity, or for ſlaughter, at his pleaſure, who ſhall alſo accordingly ſlay ſome, and enſlave others of them, Chap.25. 9.& 39.6,9. hand, for, power; as Chap.27.6. Pſal.22.20. & 49. 15. So alſo, ver.5.

and ſhall ſlay] And, for, or; as Chap.18.7. Heb. ſmite; as Chap.18.21.

V. 5. Moreover I will deliver all the ſtrength of this city, and all the labours thereof, and all the pretious things thereof, and all the treaſures of the Kings of Judah will I give into the hand of their enemies, which ſhall ſpoyl them, and take them, and carry them to Babylon.] Or, I will alſo deliver, or, give up. Heb. And, (as Chap. 1. 3.) I will give; and the ſame word is, again repeated.

ſtrength] So the word is uſed, Eſay 33.6. but here rather wealth; ſo called, becauſe by induſtry and exerciſe of ſtrength ordinarily attained. So Prov. 15. 6. & 27. 24. See Deut. 8. 18.

the labours thereof] Heb. labour; put here for the fruit of their labour, their goods thereby gotten: as Pſal.128. 2. Ch. 3.24. & 5.27.

all the pretious things] Heb. each pretious thing; as intimating, that nothing of price or worth ſhould eſcape their hands. See Eſay 39.2. Lam.1.10.

the treaſures of the Kings] Both of the King himſelf, and his Princes, 2 Chron.36.18. See Chap.17.20. & 19.3. or gathered together, and ſtored up, by many Kings ſucceſſively, 2 King.20.17. Eſay 39.6. where this alſo was all foretold. See Chap.15.13. & 17.3.

will I give into the hand of their enemies] The Chaldeans, Chap. 37. 10. So 2 Chron. 36. 17. God gave all into his hand.

and they ſhall ſpoil them] Not marre them, as we uſe the word, ſpoyl; though they did make foul ſpoyl and havock of many matters of much worth, becauſe they could not tranſport them whole and entire, Chap.52.17. but the word here uſed is of another notion, and may well be rendred, ſhall prey on them, or, ſhall make prey of them; as 2 Chron.14.14. and 25.13.

and carry them to Babylon] 2 King.25. 13——16. 2 Chron. 36. 18.

V. 6. And thou Paſhur, and all that dwell in thine houſe ſhall go into captivity, and thou ſhalt come to Babylon, and there ſhalt thou die, and ſhalt be buried there, thou and all thy friends, to whom thou haſt prophecied lies.] Thou and thy family ſhalt partake in the miſeries and calamities, howſoever thou wilt not now endure to hear of them, that ſhalt befall this place and people in either kind, both in the ſiege and ſurpriſal of the city at home, and in captivity, alſo and thraldom abroad: thy life ſhall for no other end be lengthened, but that thou mayſt ſurvive to ſee and ſuffer the more miſery, both in thine own perſon, and in thoſe that have ſpecial relation to thee.

there ſhalt thou be buried] Though not debarred of buriall; as againſt ſome other is denounced, Chap.22.19. & 34.20. yet enterred in a forrain land, out of the land of Iſrael, where to have their corpſe laid up, in regard of that peculiar intereſt that Gods people, by his aſſignment, had in that land, was in thoſe times counted a favour, Gen.50.5,25. Joſh.24. 32. and the contrary threatned as a penalty, Eſay 22. 16,18. Chap.22.10.

thou and thy friends] Thou, together with them that have been ſeduced and deluded by thee, faring both of you alike, ſee Chap.14.15,16.

to whom thou haſt prophecied lies] Heb. whom to them: an uſual redundancy; as Pſal.1.4. thou haſt prophecied by, or with a lie, or a falſhood; as the article in the particle included here carrieth it: ſo Ch. 5.32. & 23.14. and ſo Chap.13.25. as more particularly pointing to the preſent meſſage from God, by his lying prophecy, and preſumptuous contradiction of it, oppoſed: otherwiſe without the article with, the particle alone, it might well be rendred as ſome here do, in, or with falſhood; that is, falſly; as Chap.3.10. & 29. 9. but that is not ſo full here.

V. 7. O Lord, thou haſt deceived me, and I was deceived:] The enſuing part of this Chapter is wholly ſpent in a diſcourſe of the Prophets own concerning himſelf; ſuppoſed by ſome to have been uſed by him, while he was under reſtraint in the priſon, as the 57. Pſalm, to have been compoſed by David when he was in the cave: and that of Jonas, Chap. 2. while he was in the whales belly. But of this there is no certainty. But whether then, or afterward, which to me ſeems more likely: it is of an abrupt frame, having much of man in it, conſiſting of a medly of paſſions and expreſſions of diverſe nature, ſome pious, couragious, confident and comfortable, ſome ſavouring of diſcontent and diſtemper, whereby it may appear to have proceeded from an eager combat and conflict between two contrary principles within him, and altering therefore ere-whiles (as it fared in the fight between Amaleck and Iſrael, Exod.17.11.) as the one or other for the preſent either prevailed, or was foiled: the like ſee before, Chap.11.20. & 15.15——18. & 17.14——18. & 18.19——23. He beginneth with a complaint, wherein he complaineth not unto God onely, but even of God himſelf, and his dealing with him. The like fits of infirmity whereunto, ſee in Jonas, Jon.4.1,2. yea, in Moſes himſelf, Exod.5.22,23. Num.11.11——15. yet as Jonas his conteſtation with God, Jonas 4. 9. might well be ſomewhat mollified by a juſtifiable Verſion, as the margent there ſheweth; ſo may Jeremies complaint have the harſhneſs of it, in part, helpt by a favourable reddition of it in ſome milder terms, which the words may well admit. For inſtead of that which our Verſion exhibiteth, following the old Greek and Latine, O Lord, Thou haſt deceived me, and I was deceived: And others, with ſome little allay, Thou haſt enticed me, and I was enticed: the text may well be rendred, O Lord, thou perſwadeſt me, and I was perſwaded; to wit, by thee. Thou didſt perſwade me to undertake this prophetical employment, when I was of my ſelf nothing forward, but averſe rather thereunto, and deſired to be excuſed from being engaged therein, Chap.1.6. Howſoever by thine injunction and encouragement, upon thy preſſing it upon me, Chap.1.7,8. I was perſwaded and enduced willingly to condeſcend thereunto, chap.17.16. but I find it now far more troubleſome then at firſt I did or could expect. True it is, that the word here found, is ordinarily uſed for by ſmooth and colourable inſinuations to entice and ſeduce ſimple and ſilly creatures; (thence in Hebrew alſo denominated, becauſe prone to give heed to, and be taken with fair ſhews, and flattering language, Prov.14.15. & 21.11. Hoſ.7.11. Rom.16.18.) and conſequently by ſuch cunning carriage to deceive and beguile. So is it taken, Exod.22.16. 1 King.22.19——22. Job 31. 9. Prov. 16.29. & 20.19. and ſo hereafter, ver.10. but the word in his firſt notion ſignifieth more largely, to perſwade in generall and ſimply, and by perſwaſion (as it is oppoſed to a violent impulſion) to induce and allure unto the doing of ought good or evill, without any ſpeciall connotation of fraud or guile. So is it uſed, Prov. 25. 15. and is attributed to God himſelf by Noah, Gen.9.27. in alluſion to Japhets name; and by God himſelf uſed of himſelf, Hoſ.2.14. Thoſe that render it, as our Verſion doth, ſeek divers ways to ſalve it; ſome ſuppoſing, that Jeremy ſhould complain that God had deceived him, when he told him, that he had ſet him over nations and Kingdoms to pull down and deſtroy, Chap.1. 10. which he conceived to have been meant of forrein nations and kingdomes, the enemies of Gods people, to whom he was willing enough to go with ſuch meſſages; but he found it after to be otherwiſe, being ſent on ſuch errands to his own people. Others, that God had failed, in the promiſe made him of protection, Chap.1.8. by expoſing and leaving him to ſuch contumelious uſages, as he had lately endured. See Chap. 15.18. and the like, Pſal.89.39. Others, that he had ſent him to threaten judgment, but had not hitherto inflicted them; by occaſion whereof, he had expoſed him to deriſion, and cauſed him to be deemed a falſe Prophet, Chap. 17. 15. Jonahs caſe, Jon.4.1,2. But of this, ſee on Chap.15.15. Others laſtly, which would do well, if the ſequel would well admit it; Lord, thou haſt deceived me, if I be deceived; for I have delivered nothing, but what thou haſt enjoyned me: and the copulative indeed ſometime ſeems put for the conditional; as Chap.18. 8. Amos 3. 4. and we ſpeak ſometime in the ſame manner, The Prophet is miſtaken, and I be miſtaken; for I ſay nothing but what he ſaith. But the context of the Prophets diſcourſe ſeems to bend another way: and I adhere to the Verſion before delivered, as moſt fitly, in mine opinion, expreſſing the Prophets mind and intent here.

thou art ſtronger then I, and haſt prevailed:] Or, thou waſt too ſtrong for me, and prevailedſt with me: ſupplyed as before. Heb. thou waſt ſtrong from me; as Pſal.18.17. they were ſtrong from me; well rendred there, they were too ſtrong for me; ſave that there the particle is expreſſed, which here is ſuppreſſed, as included in the verb: the like ſyntax, ſee Eſay 65.5. Thou didſt by thy perſwaſions, and encouragements, prevail with me, and put me upon it, when I had no mind or inclination of my ſelf thereunto, Chap.1.6,7,8.

I am in deriſion daily, every one mocketh me.] Or, I am had in deriſion all the day long, (as Pſal.44.15,22. Eſay 62.6. & 65.2, 6.) each of them; to wit, of this people; (Heb. all he, as chap. 8. 10.) mocketh me. I am inceſſantly and univerſally derided. See the like complaints of other Gods ſervants, Job 12.4. Pſal.22.7. Lam.3.14. But here the Prophet complaineth to God of his continual and general deriſion; as an effect and fruit of the execution of his office by God impoſed on him, ver.8.

V. 8. For ſince I ſpake, I cried out, I cryed violence and ſpoil; becauſe the word of the Lord was made a reproach unto me and a deriſion daily.] In theſe words the Prophet relateth the cauſe why he was thus derided by his people.

For] Or, Becauſe; as Chap.3.21,25. Or, For becauſe; for the particle is oft uſed in a double notion: as Exod. 18. 16. Deut.31.30.

ſince I ſpake] So moſt render the particle here: as alſo, Ch. 31.20. ſince I ſpake of him, and ſo the meaning ſhould be, ever ſince I began to prophecy. But the Jewiſh Criticks, and others, treading in their ſteps, render it, So oft as I ſpeak; ſo oft as I propheſie, and ſo the term is uſed, 1 Sam.1.7. & 18. 29. 1 King.14.28. Eſay 28.19.

I ſpake, I cryed out,] Or, I ſpeak crying out: as God in ſuch caſe would have his Prophets to do, Eſay 58.1. Heb. I ſpake cryed, for, ſpake crying: as, cry ſtill, for, cry with full mouth, Chap.4.5. though ſome disjoyn them, thus reading the text, ſince I began to ſpeak, or, ſo oft as I ſpeak, I cry out. I am enforced by the evil uſage of thoſe that hear me, to cry out and complain of them; but this ſeems ſomewhat forced: rather, as before, Becauſe when I ſpeak, (that is, ſo oft as I ſpeak) I cry out. So the text runs moſt freely.

I cryed violence and ſpoil] Or, I cry, or, proclaim, violence and ſpoil: this clauſe ſome knit to the former branch, ſome refer to what followeth: and by violence and ſpoil here, ſome underſtand the violence and wrong, which himſelf was therefore enforced to complain of, becauſe he was ſo reproachfully entertained for it; but of that before. Others underſtand it of the wicked injurious courſes of his people, which in his prophecy he ſtill cryed out of, and enveighed againſt, chap.6. 6,7. Others again, of the ſpoil and rapine, that ſhould from the enemy befal them; which in his Sermons he was frequently foretelling. See on ver.5. and this unpleaſing matter was that indeed, that made the Prophet ſo odious among them: to which ſenſe of the words I the rather encline; becauſe the term of proclaiming, (Chap.3.12. Dan.3.4.) ſeems to carry it that way.

becauſe the word of the Lord was made a reproach unto me, and a deriſion daily] The words thus rendred, ſeem to render a reaſon, why he was conſtrained thus to cry out of violence and ſpoil; becauſe ſo oft as he prophecied, he found continually ſuch contumelious and reproachfull entertainment. Howbeit, the words may well be read on this manner with good coherence to the former; For when, or, For as oft as I ſpeak crying out, (in way of admonition and reproof) and proclaim violence and ſpoil, (ready to fall upon them for their wickedneſs and obſtinacy) ſurely (ſo is the particle oft uſed. See Eſay 60.9. & 63.16.) the word of the Lord becometh a reproach unto me, (ſee Chap.6.10.) or, For becauſe when, or, ſo oft as I ſpeak crying out, I proclaim violence and ſpoil, therefore (for this cauſe, becauſe I preach in this manner; as the particle is uſed, Pſal.116.10. See Chap.9.20. & 16.5. as alſo Gen.22.12. where the particle is alſo repeated in a twofold diſtinct notion, as here) doth the word become a reproach unto me, and a deriſion all day long: inceſſantly; as before, ver.7. not as ſome, becauſe what I ſpeak is not preſently executed; as if that were the ground of the Prophets complaint, and the occaſion of his preſent diſtemper and grievance; though that were one main cauſe, that made many of them ſo preſumptuous and inſolent in oppoſing the Prophet, imagining that his words were but wind; and that what he ſaid, would never be effected, Chap.5.12,13. & 17.15. but ſimply, that this was the continual iſſue of his teaching, as he had before hinted, ver.7. nothing but continual reproach and mockage; that which therefore made him weary of his employment, ver.9.

V. 9. Then I ſaid, I will not make mention of him; nor ſpeak any more in his name.] Heb. And I ſaid; as Chap.19.14. or, Therefore (as Chap.16.13.) I ſaid. I began hereupon to think or reſolve with my ſelf, (as Pſal.32.5. & 39.1.) to forbear propheſying any more; to ſilence my ſelf, conſidering what manner of ſucceſs I had with it; and to leave mentioning the Lord, and delivering any meſſage unto them as from him: him, for, the Lord; the pronoun for the noun; as Gen.15.13. Exod. 34. 28. I ſuppoſed it better to hold my peace; ſince that I ſaw nothing to accrew by my ſpeaking, either to God or my ſelf, but diſhonour and diſgrace, Amos 5.13.

But his word was in mine heart, as a burning fire ſhut up in my bones, and I was weary with forbearing, and I could not ſtay.] Or, But (Heb. And; as Chap.18.27.) there was, or, but that there was in mine heart as a burning fire ſhut up in my bones; which I was weary with holding, and not able to keep in; or, as ſome render the laſt clauſe, and I laboured to ſuſtain it, but could not: the former verb ſignifieth preciſely to be weary, Eſay 1.14. Chap.15.6. the latter either to contain: as 1 King.8.27. Chap.2.12. or, to ſuſtain, as Chap.10.10. Amos 7.10. but I follow rather here the former: for that parallel place, chap. 6.11. the ſubſtantive is imperſonal; nor is, his word, in the text; which ſhould therefore have had a different letter: though the Rabbines expound it, of the word of prophecy; and might better be deemed the word of charge: but neither is in the text; and the copulative for the relative is frequent: as Chap.14.18. & 17.6. The meaning is, I was ſo inwardly pained and tormented, while I did awhile ſtrive to forbear, as if I had had a glowing fire encloſed within me, in my bowels and my bones, ſo that I was not able to contain my ſelf, but muſt of neceſſity fall to my former employment again. See the like, Chap.6.11. Pſal.39.3. Job 32.18,19. See alſo, 1 Cor.9.17.

V. 10. For I heard the defaming of many, fear on every ſide.] Theſe words are taken from Pſal.31.13. and are applyed by the Prophet here to his own preſent occaſion and condition; if we take them ſimply, (which our verſion doth) as they are in the Pſalm, and as the latter branch is uſed, in ſome of thoſe other places above produced, on ver.3. there is no great difficulty in the text: for the meaning is plain enough, having reference to what the Prophet had before ſaid, of thoughts riſing within him of relinquiſhing his employment, and rendring the reaſon of ſuch his thoughts; to wit, becauſe he had notice given him of the ſlanderous reports and treacherous devices of many, that combined and conſulted together, how by falſe ſuggeſtions and malitious informations againſt him, they might work his ruine; in regard whereof, he perceived that from all ſides there was much danger towards him, and matter conſequently of affrightment: for ſo with David it was when he uttered thoſe words; and ſo with Jeremy at the preſent. Howbeit, ſome Interpreters here ſuppoſe the latter branch to be ſpoken of Paſhur and his complices; whereof more anon.

For I heard] Or, I had heard, (as Gen.12.1. God had ſaid) or, I had heard of: a report had come to mine ears of it: for it is not likely that theſe cloſe contrivers of miſchief would openly in the Prophets own hearing relate, what they intended to charge him with.

the defaming] Or, diffamation, or, detraction, or, ſlander, as it is not amiſſe rendred, Numb.14.36. Pſal. 31.13. Prov. 10. 18. for the word ſeems properly ſo to ſignifie, to wit, a falſe report, tending to the diſcredit of the party or thing, whereof it is reported, Numb.13.32. & 14.36,37. and the Jewiſh Criticks obſervation of it is both frivolous and groundleſs, to wit, that where it is joyned with the word jotſi, it ſhould ſignifie a falſe report; as Prov. 10.18. Numb. 13. & 14. where with the word hebi, a true: as Gen.37.2. for thoſe two verbs ſignifying, the one to produce, and the other to bring, do alter nothing at all in the nature of the word; a ſlander may as well be produced, as brought; and brought, as produced: and for that place of Geneſis, though Joſephs report made to his father concerning his brethren might be true, as in likelihood it was; yet that which he complained of to his father concerning them, (if it were, as I conceive it to have been, their opprobious language, and bad terms given him) might as well for the matter thereof be falſe as true: (emulation and ſpitefulneſs ſeldome ſpeaking otherwiſe) or if it were not matter of ſpeech, but evil and ſcandalous carriage, as ſome would have it, whereby they brought infamy and ſhame upon themſelves; (for ſo alſo is the word ſometime uſed; becauſe infamy is a brat of ſlanders breeding, Prov.25. 10. Ezek.36.3.) then the place maketh nothing at all to the purpoſe for the founding or grounding of the diſtinction concerning reports, true or falſe, by this term ſignified: which queſtionleſs is uſed as by David before concerning thoſe falſe reports that were ſuggeſted to Saul againſt him, 1 Sam. 24. 9. So by Jeremy here, concerning thoſe falſe aſperſions, and unjuſt charges, whereby his perſecutors conſpired together, to incenſe King and State againſt him. See Chap.38.4.

of many, fear on every ſide] Or, as ſome, the defamation of many, the terrour on every ſide, of thoſe that ſay, ſuch things as follow in the text: or, as others, the defamation of many, from whom terrour is on every ſide; by reaſon of the multitude of them that thus combine againſt me: a defect of the relative: as Chap.15.14,18. and of the particle from; as Chap. 10.20. & 18.1. But ſome Interpreters of note retain the Hebrew term here, taking the word for a proper name; ſome of them rendring the text; I heard the defamation of many Magor-miſſabibs; that is, of many ſuch as this Paſhur. Others, of many, of Magor-miſſabib, (that is, of Paſhur, and of the falſe Prophets, ſuch as are after here deſcribed) Others again, I have heard a report from many, concerning Magor-miſſabib; that is, concerning this Paſhur, how he hath ſet others on work to raiſe and bring in falſe reports and charges againſt me. But I rather encline to take the words here, as I find them in the Pſalm, from whence they are taken.

Report, ſay they, and we will report it;] Theſe ſome make the words of Paſhur, which thoſe many before mentioned ſhould hear him ſpeak; and they therefore inſert, how he ſhould ſay, Report ye to us, &c. Others, of him and his complices, or, his inſtruments, thoſe of his houſe, ver. 6. others indefinitely, of thoſe many, before ſpoken of; which ſeemeth moſt both ſafe and probable; and with our verſion well agreeth: for I cannot accord with that learned Interpreter, who (going herein, I ſuppoſe, alone) would have it to be a deſcription of the falſe Prophets, thus rendring the text, of thoſe that ſay, Tell us what we ſhall tell: that demand of the people what they will have told or taught them, and accordingly tell them, what they beſt like to hear. But the words ſeem rather the ſpeech of thoſe, who deſirous to get ſomewhat whereof to accuſe the Prophet unto the King and State, ſet others on work to watch him, and if they can catch hold of ought that ſlippeth from him, and that by miſrelating and miſconſtruing, may make any way againſt him, to bring it to them, that they may accordingly make uſe of it againſt him: and this ſuits well with the words enſuing. See chap. 18.18. See alſo the like practices againſt our Saviour Chriſt, when he taught here upon earth, Mat. 22.16,17. Mar. 12.13, 14. Luk. 11.53,54. & 20.21.

all my familiars watched for my halting;] Heb. every man of my peace: as Chap. 38.22. Even thoſe that pretended kindneſs, and made ſhew of good affection to me, carrying themſelves outwardly towards me, as if they intended me no evil, but were deſirous of my welfare; yet did generally lye in wait to take me tripping in ought if they could, that might give mine adverſaries any advantage againſt me. See the like perfidiouſneſs complained of, Job 19.19. Pſal. 41.9. & 55.13. and warning given of it, Chap. 9.4-6. & 12.6. and the like lying in wait, with the form of halting here uſed, Pſal. 35.15. & 38.16. See alſo Chap. 5.26. That learned Interpreter before mentioned, doth hitherto carry on the whole foregoing paſſage of this verſe in one continued tenour, on this wiſe; For I heard the infamous ſpeech of many, of Magor-miſſabib, of thoſe that ſay, Tell us what we ſhall tell you, of every one that ſhould have been at peace with me, of thoſe that watch for my halting. But it goeth better in parts aſunder; as our verſion exhibiteth it.

ſaying, Peradventure, he will be enticed; and we ſhall prevail againſt him; and we will take our revenge on him.] It may be by cloſing and gloſing with him, we may draw ſomething from him; whereby having over-reached him, we may prevail againſt him, and work our own ends. See of the term here uſed on ver. 7. of ſuch ſnares to catch and entrap perſons, Chap. 5.26. & 18.20,22. Eſay 29.21. See alſo the like defect of, ſay they, and ſaying, Chap. 2.25. & 3.22. Pſal. 27.8. & 115.25. Act. 15.5.

V. 11. But the Lord is with me as a mighty terrible one:] After the former ſtorm of diſcontent and miſdoubt, ariſing from the apprehenſion and conſideration of the general conſpiracy, and banding together of perſons maliciouſly and miſchievouſly diſpoſed againſt him, which ſeemed ſhrewdly to have ſtaggered him, ver. 9, 10. the Prophet in the next paſſage here beginneth to recover himſelf, and to ſtrengthen his faith againſt all oppoſitions, by aſſurance of Gods conſtant preſence with him, and powerful protection of him, according to his promiſe, Chap. 1.19. & 15.20,21. But, or, Howbeit, or, Notwithſtanding; Heb. And: as Chap. 35.14. the Lord is with me, as Pſal. 46.7. Rom. 8.31. as a mighty terrible one; one of infinite might; and able to terrifie the moſt terrible among them, that thus plot together, and ſet themſelves againſt me, thinking thereby to affright and daunt me, chap. [illegible] therefore my perſecutors ſhall ſtumble] They that thus purſue me, ſhall themſelves be overthrown, Chap. 18.23. Pſal. 27.2. and they ſhall not prevail] They muſt prevail againſt God, ere they prevail againſt me. See Chap. 1.19.

they ſhall be greatly aſhamed;] Or, abaſhed, Chap. 17.18. Pſal. 70.2,3.

for they ſhall not proſper] Or, they deal not prudently, or, ſkilfully: ſee whence our Engliſh word ſkill. See of the uſe of the word on Eſay 52.13. they take a very unwiſe courſe by oppoſing God in his Prophet, Act. 5.39.

their everlaſting confuſion ſhall never be forgotten.] Heb. ignominy of perpetuity. See Chap. 23.40. a defect of the pronoun: as Chap. 17.21. or, as ſome, referring theſe words to the firſt member, they ſhall be greatly abaſhed (becauſe they ſhall not proſper) with an everlaſting infamy, that ſhall never be forgotten; a defect of the relative: as chap. 50.5.

V. 12. But, O Lord of hoſts, that trieſt the righteous, and ſeeſt the reins and the heart, let me ſee thy vengeance on them; for unto thee have I opened my cauſe.] See the ſame in effect before, Chap. 11.20. See alſo Chap. 17.10.

trieſt the juſt] And by trying of them, knoweſt them, takeſt notice of them, and approveſt them, Pſal. 1.6.

V. 13. Sing unto the Lord, praiſe ye the Lord;] From the before profeſſed aſſurance of Gods preſence with him, and protection of him, the Prophet here riſeth higher, raiſing up his ſoul from his former damped and dumpiſh diſpoſition, to no ſmall degree of lightſomneſs and alacrity of ſpirit, expreſſed in an excitement of himſelf to ſing praiſes to God for his goodneſs ſhewed toward him, in delivering him out of the hand of Paſhur and his complices, and reſtoring him to his liberty again. See the like, Pſal. 42.5,11. & 43.5. or it may be deemed, as ſome take it, to reſpect future deliverances, praiſing God for them, before he receive them, out of an hopeful and aſſured expectation of them, as if already he had received them, like that of David, Pſal. 13.6.

for he hath delivered the ſoul of the poor from the hand of evil doers.] Or, becauſe (as chap. 24.7,8.) he hath delivered the ſoul of the poor (that is, the poor ſimply; as, to my ſoul, for, to me, Pſal. 3.2. or, the life of the poor: the poor man being in danger of looſing his life; as Pſal. 30.3. & 116.8. and his meaning is, my poor ſoul, my poor ſelf, Pſal. 34.6.) out of the hand (that is, the power; as Chap. 15.21. Pſal. 89.48.) of evil doers. So Pſal. 30.9. & 109.31.

V. 14. Curſed be the day wherein I was born] A ſtrange alteration and ſudden downfal from ſuch a ſtrength of confidence before profeſſed, ver. 11. and height of joy in the very next foregoing words manifeſted, to ſuch a low dejection of mind, and ſuch an uncouth diſtemper of ſpirit, as inconſiderately to curſe the day of his nativity, and the perſons themſelves that brought his father the report of his birth. Wherein is repreſented unto us a very lively pattern of humane imbecility, remaining even in the beſt, who in regard thereof therefore have need of an inceſſant aſſiſtance and ſupport from above, to carry them on inoffenſively thorow the croſſe occurrents of this preſent wicked world. See the like weakneſs in Job, Job 3.3-16. a taſte hereof we had before, chap. 15.10. Howbeit, ſome, to take away the ſtrangeneſs of this ſudden change, ſuppoſe theſe execrations not to have fallen from the Prophet at this preſent, but, that in theſe enſuing verſes is contained a relation onely of what had ſlipt from him, during the time of his reſtraint and diſtreſs: and they render the text with a connexion of theſe words to the former, in this manner; he hath delivered out of the hand of evil doers the ſoul of the poor; who ſaid, Curſed be the day wherein I was born, &c. that is, who out of impatiency and impotency of ſpirit, while he was yet in diſtreſs, curſed his birth-day in this manner: and this may ſeem to carry ſome ſhew of probability with it. Let the learned judge of it.

let not the day wherein my mother bare me be bleſſed.] The ſame in other terms with the former.

V. 15. Curſed be the man who brought tidings to my father, ſaying, A man child is born unto thee, making him very glad.] So our Saviour, for joy that a man (that is, a male) is brought forth, John 16.21. Heb. by gladding gladding him: as the like, Eſay 61.10. Thus are parents much gladded oft at the birth of their children, who if they did foreſee what miſery they are born to, would lament many times as much over them, as they are wont to rejoyce for them.

V. 16. And let that man be as the cities, which the Lord overthrew and repented not.] Let him periſh as did Sodom and Gomorrha, (Deut. 29.23. Amos 4.11.) which God deſtroyed without recovery, or without revocation of the doom paſſed upon them, Zeph. 2.9. which concerning Zoar was reverſed, Gen. 19.21,22.

and let him hear the cry in the morning, and the ſhouting at noon-tide;] The ſhouting of enemies breaking in, and the out-cries of people ſurpriſed by them, Chap. 4.19. & 15.8. & 18.22. & 49.2. Zeph. 1.16. Let him live in continual terrour and trouble, Job 15.21.

V. 17. Becauſe he ſlew me not from the womb;] Or, Why was I not ſlain from the womb? that is, ſo ſoon as I came out of it, ſo ſoon as I was born, Job 3.10. & 10.18,19. Hoſ. 9.11. for in the womb, which a late learned Annotator ſuggeſteth, will not do well here. Heb. did not cauſe me to die; that is, God, ſay ſome, which the Italian Verſion putteth into the text: he that brought my father news of my birth; as the moſt: but the verb ſeems indefinite, and is beſt rendred by the paſſive: as Chap. 18.14.

or that my mother might have been my grave, and her womb to be always great with me] Heb. and: but here in a disjunctive notion; as ver. 4. or was not (the negative ſupplyed from the former branch; as Pſal. 9.18.) my mother made my grave, and her womb ever great? being never delivered of that ſhe went with. Heb. her womb going great of perpetuity; or, an everlaſting going great; that ſhe had never been delivered of me; that I had never come to light; like thoſe, Pſal. 58.8. Eccleſ. 6.3.

V. 18. Wherefore came I forth out of the womb to ſee labour and ſorrow,] So Job 3.10. to ſee, that is, to ſuſtain and ſuffer:

as Chap.5.12.& 14.13.Lam.3.1.labour and ſorrow; or vexation and grief; that which man is born to, Job 5.6,7.

that my days ſhould be conſumed with ſhame?] That my whole life ſhould be thus ſpent, and my ſelf waſted away, through the ignominious and contumelious uſage of mine adverſaries, ver.7,8.

CHAP. XXI.

Verſ. 1. T*He word that came unto Jeremiah from the Lord,*] As Chap.18.1. This Chapter containeth an anſwer returned from God, upon occaſion of a motion made by King Zedekiah to the Prophet, to enquire of God, or addreſſe himſelf unto him, in behalf of the King, and the State, in regard of the Chaldean forces that were ſet down before the city, ver.1,2. and the anſwer is directed, 1. To the whole ſtate of the city, ver.4-7. 2. To the people, ver. 8-10. 3. To the King and Rulers, ver.11, 12. all cloſed up with a denunciation of utter deſtruction and devaſtation, notwithſtanding their imaginary ſtrength, ver.13,14.

when King Zedekiah ſent unto him, Paſhur the ſon of Melchiah, and Zephaniah the ſon of Maaſeiah the Prieſt, ſaying;] Thus Zedekiah, though an evil King, and one that would not take any wholeſome and ſafe advice from Gods Prophet, 2 Chron.36,12. Chap.38,15. yet in times of diſtreſſe, is glad to ſend here unto him, as at other times alſo afterward, Ch. 37.3. & 38.14. but not as Ezekiah to Eſay, out of an heart touched with ſincere ſorrow and remorſe for his ſins, 2 King. 19.1. Eſay 33. 2. but as Pharao to Moſes for the removal of judgments, if it might be, Exod.9.28.

Paſhur the ſon of Melchiah] One of the ſame name with the former, that ſo abuſed the Prophet, Chap.20.1. but of another houſe and courſe; for he, that Paſhur, was of the family of Immer, which was the ſixteenth rank, 1 Chr.24.14. whereas this Paſhur was of the family of Melchias, which was the firſt rank, 1 Chr. 24.9. and a man, in likelyhood, of a better and milder diſpoſition then that other.

Zephaniah the ſon of Maaſeiah] Of his race, which made up the twentieth courſe, 1 Chr.24.18. Of the ſame party, ſee further, Chap.29.25,29. & 37.3.

V. 2. Enquire, I pray thee, of the Lord for us;] Or, Entreat God for us; ſeek to him in our behalf: for ſo the word is commonly uſed, Deut.4.29. Eſay 55.6. Ezek.36.37. where it would much better be rendred, required, or requeſted, or ſought unto, then enquired of; which ſuiteth not well there.

(for Nebuchadrezzar, King of Babylon, maketh war againſt us)] Nebuchadrezzar; ſo is he called oft in this Prophecy; as Chap.25.9. who is elſe-where commonly termed Nebuchadnezzar, Dan.1.1. and by the Greeks and Latines, Nabuchodonoſor; and he was now ſet down with his forces before Jeruſalem, ver.5. the cauſe and ground of his invading the land, and beſieging the city, ſee 2 King.24.17-20.& 25.1,2. 2 Chr. 36.10,13.

if ſo be that the Lord will deal with us, according to his wondrous works] Or, it may be the Lord will deal with us, &c. for that is the proper and moſt uſual notion of the term here uſed; as Zeph.2.3. this they ſpeak as hoping that God might be induced, eſpecially upon Jeremies entreaty, to ſhew favour unto them, and work ſome ſtrange deliverance for them, as he had done formerly for Ezekiah, upon the prayer of Eſay, 2 Chr. 32.20,21. (for that deliverance they ſeem to have a more ſpecial eye unto) and for other of his ſervants at other times, 2 Chr.14.9-15.& 20.1-25. So Pſal.44.1. but in vain do wicked wretches hope for relief and ſuccour from him, whom they regard not to ſerve, by whom they refuſe to be ruled, Chap. 2.27,28.

that he may go up from us] That Nebuchadrezzar who now beſiegeth us, may be compelled to break up his ſiege, and ſo depart from us; as Sennacherib was ſometime enforced to do, Eſay 37.36,37. go up, that is, riſe; raiſe his ſiege: or rather ſimply, depart, go away; as Chap.37.5. So Chap.4.7,13. 1 King.15.19.

V. 3. Then ſaid Jeremiah unto them] Heb. And Jeremiah ſaid; as chap.20.9.

Thus ſhall ye ſay to Zedekiah:] Or, Thus ſay; as chap. 19.3.

V. 4. Thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael;] That God, from whom ye expect protection, as being a part, yea, the principal part of his Iſrael, ſee chap.19.3.

Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war, that are in your hand, wherewith ye fight againſt the King of Babylon, and againſt the Chaldeans, which beſiege you without the wals,] I will be ſo far from relieving and ſuccouring you, that I will turn the weapons that ye fight with, from your enemies, upon, or againſt your ſelves, by ſetting you together by the eares amongſt your ſelves. See chap.13.14. or, I will turn them back, and cauſe them to recoil, without doing of any damage at all unto them. See Pſal.89.43. So that all your fighting againſt them, ſhall be in vain, and to no purpoſe. See chap. 32.2. Heb. I am turning back, or turning about; as bringing, chap.19.15. and wherewith ye are fighting with him, and them; as chap.37.10. and wall, for, wals, as Ezek.38.11.

and I will aſſemble them in the midſt of this city.] Or, I will bring them (who are yet without the wals) into this city. So is the word uſed, Exod.9.19. that is not brought into the houſe: and Deut.22.2. thou ſhalt bring it into the midſt of thine houſe; that is, ſimply, home to thine houſe; where we have together, both the notion of the verb, and the form alſo here uſed.

V. 5. And I my ſelf will fight againſt you, with an out-ſtretched hand, and with a ſtrong arm, in anger, and in fury, and in great wrath.] So far will I be from defending you or this city, as in former times I have done, Eſay 37.35. & 38.6. Heb. fight with you, for, againſt you; as before, ver.4. an out-ſtretched hand; a term borrowed from the manner of ſtretching out the hand furniſhed with ſome offenſive weapon to ſtrike the enemy in fight, Joſh.8.18,19,26. So Eſay 9.12,21. of the arm, ſee the like, Exod.6.6. Pſal.136.12. and this carriage of God towards them, complained of, Lam.2.3,4.

V. 6. And I will ſmite the Inhabitants of this city, both man and beaſt] Or, I will ſlay (as chap.18.21.) thoſe that abide in it: for the word ſignifieth as well to abide, as to dwell, Judg. 5.16. chap.39.14. and would ſo be here rendred, as it is ver.9. Heb. and the man, and the beaſt; and, for, both; as Chap. 17.26.

they ſhall die of a great peſtilence.] See Chap. 16.4. and 18.21.

V. 7. And afterward, ſaith the Lord, I will deliver Zedekiah King of Judah, and his ſervants, and the people, and ſuch as are left in this city from the peſtilence, from the ſword, and from the famine, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of thoſe that ſeek their life,] See Chap.15.2.& 34.20,21.

and his ſervants] So Chap.22.2.& 36.31.

and ſuch as are left] Or, even ſuch; as ch.19.12. hand, for, power; and ſoul, for, life; as chap.20.13.& 38.16.

and he ſhall ſmite them with the edge of the ſword:] He, that is, the King of Babylon, ſhall ſmite, that is, ſlay them; as ver. 6. yet not Zedekiah himſelf, chap.34.4. but his ſons, his principal and chief officers, and other of the Prieſts and people, chap.39.6.& 52.7,9. with the edge of the ſword. Heb. mouth; as Deut.13,15. Luk.21.24.

he ſhall not ſpare them, nor have pity, nor have mercy.] Of the cruell carriage of the Chaldeans toward this people, ſee 2 Chr.36.17. Eſay 47.6. chap.6.23. Lam.5.12,13.

V. 8. And unto this people thou ſhalt ſay,] Or, And ſay to this people, or, Say alſo to this people; as ver.3.

Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, I will ſet before you the way of life, and the way of death.] Or, I ſet before you. Heb. I am giving before you: giving, as, turning, ver.4. and, to give, for, to ſet; as Deut. 30. 19. where ſee the like. I ſhew you how ye may eſcape; by yielding your ſelves unto Nebuchadrezzar, ch. 38.17. and how ye will bring deſtruction upon your ſelves, if ye ſtand it out againſt him, chap.27.8.

V. 9. He that abideth in this city ſhall die by the ſword, and by the famine, and by the peſtilence;] See ver.6. chap.38.2. the disjunctive would do better here (as alſo, chap.20.4,17. and v. 13.) then the copulative; becauſe the participle prefixed is ſingular, though collective: for ſome were to periſh by one of the three, and ſome by another, not each one by all three. See chap.15.2.

but he that goeth out, and falleth to the Chaldeans, that beſiege you, ſhall live,] Heb. and; as chap.20.9. he that goeth out; to wit, of the city; to yield himſelf into their hands (ſo chap. 38.2. & 2 King.24.12. Jehoiachin went out unto him) and falleth to the Chaldeans, (as chap.37.13. thou falleſt to the Chaldeans) ſhall live: ſhall eſcape.

and his life ſhall be unto him for a prey.] A proverbial form of ſpeech, importing as much, as he ſhall ſave, or gain his life: his life ſhall be to him, as ſome booty gotten in fight, in regard of the joy he may have of it, ſay ſome, Pſal.119.162. or in regard of the atchievment and poſſeſſion of it, as others rather; his life ſeeming to be as it were new acquired, and gotten again to him, and himſelf repoſſeſſed of that, which ſeemed in a manner utterly loſt before: as 2 Cor.1.8,9. Heb. 11.17,18. for lawful prey is deemed good purchaſe, Eſay 49. 24. See the uſe of this form again, chap. 38.2. & 39.18. & 45.5.

V. 10. For I have ſet my face againſt this city for evil, and not for good, ſaith the Lord;] Or, I have ſet my face upon this city (and ſo Pſal.34.16. as the particle is well rendred, Neh. 9. 10,& 13.21. Eſt. 3.6. that it may ſort the better with either member of the diſtrubition enſuing) for evil and not for good. So chap.39.16.& 44.11,27. Amos 9.4.

it ſhall be given into the hand of the King of Babylon] hand, for, power; as ver.7.

and he ſhall burn it with fire] He ſhall cauſe it to be burnt. So chap.38.23.& 39.8.

V. 11. And touching the houſe of the King of Judah, ſay;] Or, And unto the houſe of the King. So the text preciſely hath it. To thoſe of the Kings Court, that are in place of Judicature, or in offices thereunto belonging.

ſay] Supplyed; as Eſay 8.19.

Hear the word of the Lord;] Or, Hear the word of the Lord, O houſe of David; annexing the compellation unto this clauſe, though prefixed to the words enſuing, ver.12. as Pſal.96.12, 13.& 98.8,9.

V. 12. O houſe of David] Ye of the Court that was Davids ſometime, and that come many of you from his ſtock, ſee Eſay 7.2,13. chap.13.13.& 22.2.

Thus ſaith the Lord, execute juſtice in the morning;] Imitate him, of whoſe houſe ye are, who ſate conſtantly doing judgment and juſtice to all his people, 2 Sam. 8.15. 1 Chr. 18.14. So chap.22.3. Heb. Judge in the morning judgment. Either do it timely, not ſpending the morning in eating and drinking, when ye ſhould be about matter of judicature, Eccl. 10.16, 17. for in the morning did the people uſe to repair for juſtice to the place of judicature, Exod.18. 13. or, do it diligently, every morning; morning after morning, as Amos 4.4. daily without failing. See David, Pſal.101.8.

and deliver him that is ſpoiled out of the hand of the oppreſſor] Right the oppreſſed againſt thoſe that oppreſs them; and make a ſpoil of them. See Pſal.72.4,11-13.& 82.3,4. hand, for, power; as before, ver.7,10.

leſt my fury go out like fire, and burn that none can quench it, because of the evil of your doings.] Implying, that their neglect of juſtice, and default therein; was one of the main ſins that would be the cauſe of their utter and irrecoverable ruine, if it were not ſpeedily reformed, Eſay 1.23. & 59.4,14, 15. chap.5.28. & 6.6,7. & 22.17. See the like expreſſions, chap.4.4.& 17.24.

V. 13. Behold, I am againſt thee O Inhabitant of the valley, and rock of the plain, ſaith the Lord, which ſay, who ſhall come down againſt us? or who ſhall enter into our habitations?] In the cloſe of this anſwer returned to the meſſengers of Zedekiah, God, by the Prophet, meeteth with thoſe their preſumptuous conceits, whereby they imagined their city to be, in regard of its ſituation, and fortifications, an impregnable piece, able to withſtand any the greateſt forces, or force, that could be raiſed, or made againſt it; which to put them from, the Lord telleth them, that he will come himſelf againſt them, as in the head of thoſe that invade and aſſault them, and do that which they fondly and vainly ſuppoſe not to be feaſible. See ver.5.

Behold, I am againſt thee] Heb. no more but, I unto thee (for ſo the word moſt commonly ſignifies) or, againſt thee; a defective ſpeech in this Prophet not infrequent. So chap.23. 30,31,32. & 50.31.& 51.25. and it may as well be rendred, I am coming to thee; as in way of anſwer, to that their inſolent demand: who will, or, can come at us? as if he had ſaid, I will come my ſelf to you, againſt whom there is no ſtanding out, or withſtanding, Pſal.76.7. See the like, Obad. 3.4.

O Inhabitant] Heb. Inhabitreſſe; that is, Jeruſalem; whereof as a city he uſeth oft to ſpeak, in the feminine form. So chap. 10.17.& 22.23.

of the valley] For it ſtood in a vale, environed with mountains, Pſal.125.2. and they ſtrain it too far, who would have it ſo termed, in regard of what God intended to do with it; to wit, to deſtroy and bring it down into the vale.

and rock of the plain] Or, as ſome, of the rock of the plain: for though it were ſituate in the midſt of a lower ground, yet ſtood it, the upper part of it, eſpecially, on a rocky riſing, or hill, having much plain ground round about it. See chap.17. 3. as alſo, Joſh.15.8.

which ſay] Truſting over-much in this their ſituation; the word is here maſculine, and plural, as intending the citizens, or inhabitants of the city, who uſed inſolently thus to ſpeak.

who ſhall come down againſt us?] Who dare come to ſit down before our city, or to joyn battel with us? come down: a military term, as the Jewiſh Criticks obſerve; having in it a notion, as ſome of them, either of ſitting down in ſiege, or lying in ambuſh: as 2 King. 6. 9. the Syrians are coming down there; or, as other, of coming down into the plain, to joyn battell there: as 1 Sam.26. 10. he ſhall deſcend into battel, and periſh: the verb ſeems to be here in a notion of daring; as Eſay 10. 14. Zach.1.21.

or] Heb. and; as before, ver.9.

who ſhall enter into our habitations?] Or, who can enter upon our dwellings? as, who ſhall ſtand? for, who can ſtand? Pſal.76. 7. See the like vaunt, Chap.49.4.& Obad.3.

V. 14. But I will puniſh you according to the fruit of your doings;] Heb. And; which ſome render here, for; and ſo the copulative is uſed, Pſal. 60.11. But I ſhould rather retain the copulative it ſelf, as knitting this to the former branch ver.13. I will come to thee, and when I come, I will puniſh thee. I will come on viſiting, when I come, to thy ruine. Heb. I will viſit upon thee; as chap. 9.25. that is, in my viſitation of thee, inflict penal things upon thee; ſuch as thy wicked courſes do juſtly deſerve, Pſal.28.4. & 62.12. Prov.1. 31. chap.17.10.

and I will kindle a fire in the foreſt thereof; and it ſhall devour all things round about it.] Here by the foreſt thereof; to wit, of Jeruſalem, ſome underſtand their woods or groves, and high places thereunto belonging, wherein they had exerciſed their idolatry, chap. 3.2. Others, the inferiour Towns and Cities round about it, like ſo many tufts of trees in a wood or foreſt, chap. 19. 15. Others, mount Lebanon, being one of the boundaries of the promiſed Land. See Eſay 37. 24. Others, the goodly and ſtately buildings of the city, that ſtood as thick as trees in a foreſt, and were built with timber fetcht from the foreſt of Lebanon. See chap. 22. 7, 15, 23. Zach.11.1. Of this fire threatned, ſee chap.17.27. kindled, ſee 2 Chr.36.19. chap.52.13. there is a change of the perſon; as chap.16.21.

CHAP. XXII.

Verſ. 1. Thus ſaith the Lord;] It is evident enough, as we ſhall afterwards alſo further ſhew on chap. 27. 1. that the Sermons, or Prophecies, in this book recorded, were not ranged according to the times, at which they were delivered; for the relation made in the chapter next beforegoing, is of ſomewhat done in Zedekiahs reign, in the time of the ſiege of the city; whereas the ſubject-matter of this chapter ſeems to conſiſt of ſuch things as concerned Jehoahaz, ver.10——12. Jehojakim, ver.18. and Jeconiah, ver. 24. all of them foregoing the reign of Zedekiah. Howbeit, a learned late Writer rendring the words, Thus ſaid the Lord, (wherein I alſo willingly concur with him, and ſo do the like, chap. 19.1.) doth thence infer, that Jeremy ſhould together at the ſame time, when he delivered the former anſwer returned to Zedekiah, withall relate, what meſſages he had been before time ſent withall, either unto, or concerning thoſe other Kings his predeceſſours; and that for this end, to ſhew that God now threatned to do no otherwiſe with Zedekiah, then as he had done with thoſe other before him. But the whole file and ſeries of the context, and frame of this chapter, ſeems to carry it another way.

Go down] This, ſay ſome, becauſe he was in the Temple, when God gave him this injunction; and he was to go down therefore from thence, ere he could repair to the Kings houſe. But of this there is no neceſſity. For the words of aſcent, and deſcent, are oft uſed of motion from place to place, without any ſpeciall regard had to the ſituation of either. So Judg. 5. 14. from Machir came down (for, came forth) the Scribes: and, they went down (for, went) to the top of the rock, Judg.15.11, 12. See on Eſay 38. 8. It may therefore be well rendred here, ſimply, Go, as chap.18.2. and yet, Go down to the Potters houſe, would ſound better there, then, Go down to the Kings houſe, will do, with us at leaſt, here.

to the houſe of the King of Judah.] The words may import the houſe, or palace, in general, that the Kings of Judah did keep court in ſucceſſively: but the queſtion is, who then kept Court there, when Jeremy was with the errand here recorded ſent thither. To paſs by the conceit of the late Writer above-mentioned, who ſuppoſeth it to have been then the Court of Zedekiah; and that the whole diſcourſe throughout this Chapter, is no other, then a relation of matters already paſt and gone. The moſt deem it, to have been all delivered at the ſame time in the reign of Jehojakim; but to contain matter of prediction, partly concerning Jehojakim himſelf, ver.18. and partly concerning Jeconiah his ſon, ver. 24. I conceiving the Chapter to contain two ſeveral prophecies, or meſſages, of two ſeveral dates: the former, from ver.3. to ver.19. delivered in Jehojakim's reign: the latter, from ver. 20. to 30. delivered in the reign of Jeconiah. The former, by the ſubject matter of it, appeareth to have been delivered, while Jehoaz, or Jehoahaz, being depoſed, yet ſurvived in captivity, ver. 10, 11, 12. and while Jehojakim alſo was yet alive, whether at home, or abroad in captivity, uncertain; but retaining ſtill the royal title: for it foretelleth alſo his death, ver. 18. and, conſequently, within the compaſs of his reign.

and ſpeak there this word] Heb. and thou ſhalt ſpeak (as Ch. 1.17.& 15.19.) this word there; that is, this commandement, or precept; as, ten words, for, ten commandements, or, precepts, Deut. 10.4. for with an injunction he beginneth, ver.3. or, this word, that is, this thing; as Chap.7.2,23. and, no vain word, for, no vain thing, Deut.32.47. Speak this (to wit, that here followeth) there: ſo ver.6.

And ſay] Heb. Thou ſhalt ſay; as Chap.19.3.

V. 2. Hear the word of the Lord;] As chap.17.20.& 19.3. & 21.11.

O King of Judah] O Jehojakim. See on ver.1,18.

that ſitteſt upon the Throne of David,] Succeeding him in the Kingdom of Judah. See Chap.17.25.& 21.12.

thou, and thy Servants,] Thou, as the principal; and thy ſervants, that is, thine officers and attendants; as Chap.21.7. for they alſo oft-times are inſtrumental, and over-forward in wrong-doing, as well as their Maſters, Neh.5.15. Prov.29.12. Zeph.1.9.

and thy people] Thoſe that in any kind appertain to thy family, Joſh.24.15. Chap.21.12. or ſuch of the people, as repair to thee for audience, and for matter of juſtice: but the former here rather.

that enter in by theſe gates.] The Court or Palace gates, ver. 1. that go in and out by them: as Chap.17.19. the one here put for both: as Chap.17.23,27.

V. 3. Thus ſaith the Lord,] Gods meſſage now followeth to the King and his retinue; conſiſting of, firſt an injunction, backed with a double ſanction, of promiſe, ver.4. of menace, ver.5. 2. a denunciation of deſtruction, with the ground of it, ver.6—9. 3. a prediction of Jehoachaz his death in captivity, ver.10—12. 4. A ſharp reprehenſion of Jehojakim, for his oppreſſions; wherein he ſwarved from his fathers righteous and religious ſteps, ver.13—17. together with a prediction of his ignominious end, ver.18,19.

Execute ye judgment and righteouſneſſe, and deliver ye the ſpoyled out of the hand of the oppreſſour:] The injunction concerning the due execution of juſtice. See the ſame in effect, Chap.21.12. and of the terms here uſed, Eſay 56.1.

and do no wrong, do no violence to the ſtranger, the fatherleſſe, nor the widow;] Heb. And ſtranger, orphan, and (for, or; as Chap. 21.13.) widow, oppreſſe not, wrong not: theſe God eſpecially giveth a charge of, both becauſe ſuch as commonly are moſt expoſed to wrong, and ſuch as he hath therefore taken into his more ſpecial protection, Exod.22.21,22. Chap.7.6.

neither ſhed innocent blood in this place.] See chap.7.6.

V. 4. For if you do this thing indeed,] If carefully, or diligently ye do this. Heb. if doing ye do (as chap.7.5.) this word; as ver.1. So chap.26.2. & 32.17.

then ſhall there enter in by the gates of this houſe, Kings ſitting upon the Throne of David, riding in chariots and on horſes, he and his Servants and his people.] See the ſame in effect, Chap. 17. 25. Heb. Sitting for David upon his Throne.

he and his ſervants, and his people] Each of them, to wit, thoſe Kings ſucceſſively, and their retinue. See ver.2.

V. 5. But if ye will not hear theſe words,] Heb. And, as Chap.21.3. if ye will not herein obey me: to hear, for, to obey; as Chap. 7.23. and words, for, things: as Deut. 30. 1. and 32.46.

I ſwear by my ſelf, ſaith the Lord] God ſweareth by himſelf, becauſe he hath none greater then himſelf to ſwear by, Heb. 6.13. and what he thus ſweareth, binding by ſo ſolemn an oath, ſhall undoubtedly be fulfilled, Pſal.110.4. & 132.11. Heb.6.17,18.

that this houſe ſhall become a deſolation.] Heb. ſhall be unto deſolation. as Chap.7.32. that is threatned to the Kings Court and Palace here, that is elſewhere threatned to the Temple, Gods own Houſe, 1 King.9.7,8. Chap.7.14. though they ſwerve from the text here, that refer this and that which followeth here, ver.6. unto that.

V. 6. For thus ſaith the Lord unto the Kings houſe of Judah] Heb. concerning (as chap.12.14. See ver.11,18.) the houſe of the King of Judah: and conſequently concerning the whole Kingdom and State, whereof that was the royal Seat.

Thou art Gilead unto me, and the head of Lebanon: yet ſurely I will make thee a wilderneſſe, and cities which are not inhabited.] Becauſe the judgment threatned might ſeem to them very unlikely to be effected, truſting partly to their wealth, and partly to their ſtrength, ariſing as well from the natural ſituation of the place, as from their works and fortifications about it; ſee Chap.17.3. & 21.13. God further here telleth them, that though their land were as wealthy as Gilead, and their ſtructures as ſtrong and impregnable, as if they were ſituate on the higheſt part of Mount Lebanon; yet he would reduce their whole land and head city to a wild wilderneſs; and make the other cities about it like a vaſt deſart.

Thou art Gilead unto me] Or, Though thou beeſt as Gilead to me. the particle both of conceſſion and ſimilitude, is wanting; as Job 13.15. the one; and Chap.5.8. the other: as Gilead; that is, like to it for wealth: for the land of Gilead was not only a fat and rich ſoil of it ſelf, but a region abounding with ſuch precious commodities of balm & ſpicery, as did, by trade & traffick in thoſe kind of merchandiſe, much enrich her inhabitants. See Gen.37.25. Numb.32.1. of the ground of the name, ſee Gen.31.47. unto me; that is, as ſome, in mine eſteem and account: though I well know and grant thee ſo to be. Others, unto me; that is, before me, or, in my ſight: whereof more anon. Others, by me, (as ſome render the particle, Chap. 15. 8, 15.) through my bleſſing upon thee; whereby thou haſt been enriched, and art grown up to this height of wealth and ſtrength, Deut.8.18. Prov.10.22. Ezek. 16.14. but I ſuppoſe the form here uſed, to be onely an elegant redundancy; not unlike the ſame, Chap. 5.7. and 12.9.

the head of Lebanon] This ſome joyn to the former, as ſpoken, not of Jeruſalem, or the Kings Court, but of Gilead; and of the Kings Court onely as by Gilead reſembled: and they ſay that Gilead is called the head of Lebanon, neer unto which it lay; becauſe it was eſteemed a principal part of the land thereabout: whereunto the Jewiſh Doctors add, that as the city of Gilead was the head city of thoſe parts, ſo Jeruſalem was the head city of the Kingdome of Judah; and the Kings Court, or Sion, the head of Jeruſalem; ſometime termed Lebanon, Zach.11.1. head, for, chief; as Exod.30.23. Others again ſay, that Gilead is called the head of Lebanon, becauſe at the South end of it doth mount Lebanon begin. So head ſhould be uſed here for beginning; as Eſay 51.20. Lam.2.19. but theſe things are over-forcibly ſtretched unto Gilead; nor is the head of a mountain any where uſed for the firſt riſe, but for the top of it rather, Eſay 2. 2. Amos 9.3. I rather therefore concur with thoſe, who conceive in theſe words another reſemblance to be uſed, diſtinct from the former, wherein the Kings houſe, or Sion, whereon it ſtood, is ſaid to be for loftineſſe, and ſtatelineſſe, as the head, that is, the top of Lebanon; that goodly high mountain, ſtored with abundance of fair and tall cedars, and other the like choice timber trees, Eſay 14.8. & 37.24. See ver. 23. Nor can I aſſent to thoſe, who expound both this and the former; as if it were ſaid, Thou Jeruſalem art in my ſight, as Gilead, as ſome waſte place; as reſpecting the preſent eſtate of Gilead, by the Aſſyrians laid waſte, 2 King.15.29. or, as the top of Lebanon: as a parcel of ſome wild foreſt, inhabited, not by men, but by wild beaſts: ſuppoſing the meaning to be, either that God no more then ſo regarded it for the preſent, Amos 9.7. or, that God would make it like unto thoſe two places, by laying it waſte, and diſpeopling of it: and ſo it ſhould be as that, which they parallel with this, Chap.7.12,14.

yet ſurely I will make thee a wilderneſſe,] Heb. if I make thee not a wilderneſſe: the uſual form of an oath. See Eſay 5. 9. & 22.14. and the like menaces, Chap.9.10—12. Some inſert the note of ſimilitude both here, and in the next member; as a wilderneſſe; and, as cities: expreſſed alſo, Chap. 9. 11. Hoſ.2.3.

and cities which are not inhabited] Like ſuch cities: and then there is a defect, both of the note of ſimilitude, as before; and of the relative alſo: as Chap.15.14,18. Howbeit, ſome render it, and thy cities ſhall not be inhabited; the cities round about thee ſhall be diſpeopled: but the former ſeemeth the more familiar.

V. 7. And I will prepare deſtroyers againſt thee,] Or, For (as Eſay 9.11.) I have prepared (Heb. ſanctified, as Eſay 13. 3. Chap.6.4.) deſtroyers (the Chaldeans, chap. 4.7.) againſt thee: to come againſt thee and deſtroy thee, Chap. 44.16. & 6.20.

every one with his weapons] Heb. a man (for, each one; as Chap.18.11.) and his inſtruments, for, with his inſtruments: as Eſay 7.24. Chap.1.13. So ver.14. and ſo rather then weapons, to keep to the ſimilitude of fellers or hewers, with axes and hatchets, ſuch as trees are wont to be felled and hewen down with, Pſal.74.5,6. See Chap.46.23.

and they ſhall cut down thy choice cedars, and caſt them into the fire.] Heb. the choice of thy cedars; as Eſay 37.24. Thy fair buildings made of the choiceſt cedars, chap.21.14. ver.13. and he ſpeaketh of them, as if they were felling ſome part of Lebanon. So Eſay 10.34.

V. 8. And many nations ſhall paſſe by this city, and they ſhall ſay every man to his neighbour,] Or, And when many nations (men of divers nations) paſſing by this city, (or the place where it ſtood) ſhall ſay one to another. Heb. a man to his friend, or familiar; as Chap.9.4. So Gen.11.3,7. Mal.3.16.

Wherefore hath the Lord done thus unto this great City?] So Deut.29.24. 1 King.9.8. See Lam.4.12.

V. 9. Then they ſhall anſwer,] Or, They ſhall anſwer; or, It ſhall be anſwered: for the verb is indefinite. This anſwer ſhall be returned them that make the demand, ver. 8. Heb. And they ſhall ſay, for, It ſhall be ſaid: as Ezek. 36. 35. See the like ſyntax, Levit. 9. 24. Chap. 13. 12, 13. & 16. 10, 11.

Becauſe they have forſaken the Covenant of the Lord their God, and worſhipped other gods, and ſerved them.] So Deut.28.25. 1 King.9.9. Chap.1.16. & 9.13,14. & 16.11.

V. 10. Weep not for the dead, neither bemoan him; but weep ſore for him that goeth away; for he ſhall return no more, nor ſee his native Country.] Theſe words ſome take as ſpoken in general of the perſons of thoſe times; to wit, that there was little cauſe to mourn for thoſe that ſhould then dye, whether by ſome natural or violent death; more cauſe to bewail thoſe that ſurviving them ſhould go into captivity, where they ſhould live in continual ſlavery, and much miſery, without hope of ever ſeeing their own country again, Chap. 8.3. & 16. 6,7. Ezek. 24. 16,17,21,22. Rev. 9.6. & 14.13. not unlike that of our Saviour, Luk. 23. 28. Others, and ſo the moſt underſtand it, as having reference to ſome particular perſon and Prince, or perſons and princes: the former whereof, the words next enſuing, ver. 11. do ſufficiently confirm; and of theſe, ſome underſtand the former branch of Joſiah, ſlain in fight by Pharao-Nechoh; for the loſſe of whom, grievous lamentation not without good and great ground, was generally made, 2 Chr. 35.24,25. Zach. 10.12. but the Prophet here telleth them, that howſoever in regard of their own intereſt, they had cauſe to bewail the loſs of ſo worthy and godly a governour; yet in regard of him there was no ſuch cauſe of mourning; for that he died with honour, was departed to peace, and taken away from the ſight of ſuch evils as were to enſue, 2 King. 22. 20. Eſay 57.1,2. the latter they conceive to be meant of Jehoachaz, whom the people ſet up upon his fathers deceaſe, but having ſate little above three moneths, was by Pharao-Nechoh depoſed, and carried captive into Egypt, where he dyed, 2 King. 23.30-34. 2 Chr. 36. 1—4. ver. 11. Ezek. 19.4. and this way, as the moſt probable, the greater part of theſe go. Some onely ſwarve a little from the reſt; expounding the whole paſſage of Jehoachaz, as more to be lamented in regard of his captivity, then of his deceaſe: but this ſeemeth not ſo probable as the former; which ſome alſo of the Jewiſh Commenters approve. Howbeit, a learned Chronologer, departing herein from both, ſuppoſeth Jehojakim in this latter branch intended, who was carried away captive, towards, at leaſt, if not unto, Babylon; nor was to return unto Jeruſalem again. See further on ver. 11,18. And again, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors would have Jehojakim deciphered in the former branch, who dyed by the way, being drawn out of Jeruſalem, but never carried to Babylon, 2 Chr. 36.6. whereof, ſee more on ver. 18. Jeconiah; and as ſome, alſo, Zedekiah in the latter branch; becauſe both carried captive to Babylon, where they both dyed. 2 King. 24.15. & 25.7. But the current of the context, with the conſent of the beſt Interpreters, leadeth rather the way before-mentioned.

weep not] That is, not ſo much: as, I ſpake not, Chap. 7.22.

for the dead] As if his ſtate were worthy lamentation, 1 Theſſ. 4.13.

neither bewail him] Or, not condole with others for him. See Chap. 16.7.

but] A defect of the adverſative: as Chap. 5.3.

weep ſore] Or, weep ſeriouſly, or, ſadly: weep to the purpoſe. Heb. weeping weep. as Eſay 30.19. as Eſay 30.19.

for him that is gone away] Heb. that goeth, for, is gone; to wit, into captivity: as ver. 11.

he ſhall return no more, nor ſee] Heb. he ſhall not return any more, and ſhall ſee; that is, he ſhall no more return to ſee: as Joſh. 24.9. Chap. 10.4. & 14.19. or, he ſhall never ſee again: as Gen. 26.18. Zach. 4.1.

his native country.] Heb. the land of his nativity: as Gen. 11. 28. & 24.7.

V. 11. For thus ſaith the Lord touching Shallum, the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah, which reigned inſtead of Joſiah his father, which went forth out of this place; He ſhall not return thither any more:] There is no ſmall diſpute and debate about this Shallum, who he ſhould be. The moſt ſuppoſe him to be Jehoachaz: one of the Jewiſh Doctors, to confirm this opinion, produceth that place of the Chronicles, 1 Chr. 3.15. where Joſiah is ſaid to have had four ſons, Johanan, or Jochanan, Joakim, or Jehojakim, Zedekiah, and Shallum; and this Shallum, ſaith he, muſt needs be Jehoachaz; for one of Joſiah his ſons was Jehoachaz, and there is no other left to be this Shallum but he. But againſt this is objected, that Shallum here mentioned, is ſaid to be Joſiahs fourth ſon; whereas Jehoachaz was his ſecond ſon at leaſt, the next to Jehojakim, who appeareth to have been the eldeſt, being born two year before Jehoachaz. See 2 King. 23.31,36. Other therefore acknowledging this Shallum to be Jehoachaz, ſuppoſe him to be the ſame with Johanan, Jochanan, or John (for theſe names are all one. See Chap. 40.8.) whom they ſuppoſe to have had two ſeveral names, (as divers others in Scripture; whereof, ſee on Eſay 1.1. Uzziah) Jehoachaz & Jochanan; and as they imagine a third alſo, in this place, Shallum. So the ſame perſon is called Shelomoh, and Jedidijah, and Lemuel, 2 Sam. 12.24,25. Prov. 31.1. Howbeit, they ſuppoſe him to be here called Shallum; not from his birth, but afterward in regard of the ſhortneſs of his reign, continuing not above ten dayes more then three moneths, 2 King. 23.11. partly, from another of that name King of Iſrael, who reigned but a moneth, 2 King. 15.13. and partly, from his younger ſon, who bare alſo the ſame name, and deceaſed it may be before him, as more worthy to bear that name then he, and to ſucceed him in the ſame. Beſides, they hold him to be termed Joſiahs firſt-born, 1 Chr. 3.15. not in regard of priority of birth, (for Jehojakim, as hath been ſaid, was the elder of the twain) but in regard of his primacy in the royal Succeſſion, being through the favour of the people preferred to the crown before his elder brother, 2 King. 23.30. And this way the moſt and beſt of ours go. But of the Jewiſh Interpreters, the moſt run other wayes: and ſome of them would have this Shallum to be Zedekiah, ſaid to be, both the third of Joſiahs ſons in regard of his birth, and again the fourth of them in regard of his reign; for of Joſiahs iſſue Jehoachaz reigned firſt; then Jehojakim; thirdly, Jehojacin, or Jeconiah; and in the fourth place Zedekiah: and they add that therefore he was called Shallum, becauſe the Kingdome of Judah ended and expired in him, at his downfall ſeeming to give out its laſt breath, Lam. 4.20. But the text in the genealogy expreſly mentioneth them as two ſeveral perſons; ſons of Joſiah; the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum. Some other of them therefore juſtly rejecting this, would have this Shallum, to be Jehojacin, or, Jeconiah; for both names he beareth in Scripture; called, ſay they, the ſon of Joſiah, here termed his father; and reckoned among his iſſue, becauſe he was his ſons ſon; as Belſhazzar, or Baltaſar, is ſaid to be the ſon of Nebuchadnezzar, and Nebuchadnezzar is called his father, Dan. 5. 18,22. But this alſo is very improbable; for in the next place there followeth, the ſons of Joakim, Jeconiah his ſon, Zedekiah his ſon. So that Jeconiah therefore and Shallum, are two ſeveral perſons there; the nephew the one, the uncle the other. In the laſt place therefore, that learned Chronologer before mentioned, by Shallum underſtandeth here, that fourth ſon of Joſiah; by the party here ſaid to be gone into captivity, Jehojakim: and he thus rendreth the text; For thus ſaith the Lord (not, touching, or, concerning, Shallum; though the particle be ſometime ſo uſed; as Pſal. 2.7. & 69. 27. ver. 18. but as it is moſt commonly taken,) unto Shallum, the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah, who reigneth in the room of Joſiah his father; as ſpeaking to him of ſome other) He that is gone out from this place, (to wit, Jehojakim thy brother, gone in captivity to Babylon) ſhall return no more hither. This he thus endeavours to cleer: Jehojakim ſet up by Pharao-Nechoh, 2 King. 23.34. was afterward by Nebuchadnezzar, Nechoes adverſary, invaded and compelled to hold from him; unto whom he continued loyal ſome three years, but began then to rebel againſt him, 2 King. 24.1. whereupon Nebuchadnezzar again invaded the land, ſurpriſed the city, took him priſoner, and bound him in fetters to carry him unto Babylon, 2 Chr. 36.6. yea, in likelihood did accordingly carry him thither. See Ezek. 19.9. where during his captivity and reſtraint, his brother Shallum, as viceroy in the minority of his ſon Jeconiah, governed the Kingdome; and is therefore here ſaid to reign in the room of Joſiah his father, unto Jehojakims deceaſe. Now whereas the people were poſſeſſed with a ſtrong perſwaſion, that Jehojakim ſhould at length return back from his exilement; God ſendeth the Prophet here to Shallum, who ruled in likelihood as Jehojakim had done, as to reprove him alſo for his evil government, ſo withall to aſſure him, that Jehojakim ſhould never ſee Jeruſalem again, but ſhould die in the land of his captivity. Had we any record of this Shallums viceroy-ſhip, I ſhould ſomewhat encline to this learned mans opinion. As it ſtandeth, I leave it to the conſideration of other learned.

V. 12. But he ſhall dye in the place, whither they have led him captive, and ſhall ſee this land no more.] Or, For (ſo the particle alone moſt commonly ſignifieth; and ſo ver. 11. but, uſually with an addition) he ſhall dye in the place, unto which he hath been led captive; (for theſe indefinites are beſt rendred paſſively. So ver. 6. Eſay 47.1. Mal. 1.4.) and ſhall ſee this land no more; and much leſs then this Court, or this City; ver. 10,11.

V. 13. Wo unto him that buildeth his houſe by unrighteouſneſſe, and his chambers by wrong:] This reprehenſion uſhered in with a wo, like that Eſay 5.8. & Habb. 2.9,12. is by the moſt deemed to concern Jehojakim; and the main current of the context carryeth it that way: for they force it too much that would divert it, either unto Shallum, or any other.

his chambers] Properly upper chambers; and the word is therefore rendred aloft, 1 King. 17.19. and the Greek fitly anſwering it, an upper-room, Mark 14.15.

—— by unrighteouſneſs, and by wrong] Heb. by not juſtice, or, righteouſneſs, and by not judgment, or, right; that is, without either, or contrary unto either, unjuſtly, wrongfully: as Prov. 16.8. Ezek. 22.29. either that buildeth with money gotten by oppreſſion and wrong-dealing; or by dealing unjuſtly and wrongfully with thoſe whom he employeth about his buildings: the next way, either of them, not to build up an houſe; but to ruine and pull down the building, Habb. 2. 9-13.

that uſeth his neighbours ſervice without wages, and giveth him not for his work.] The detaining, and denial much more of the workmans wages, and labourers hire, being forbidden, and condemned as a ſin, that cryeth unto heaven for vengeance, Lev.19.13. Deut.24.14,15. Jam.5.4. Heb. that ſerveth himſelf of his neighbour (as Chap.25.14. Exod.1.14. compelleth him to ſerve or work for him) freely, (without hire or due conſideration) and giveth him not his work; that is, hire or wages for his work: as Job 34.11. Eſay 49.4.

V. 14. That ſaith] Thinketh with himſelf; as Chap. 21.13.

I will build me a wide houſe, and large chambers;] Or, a ſpacious houſe (Heb. an houſe of ſpaces, or meaſures, or dimenſions: as, men of dimenſions, for ſquare and tall men; Num.13.32. 2 Sam.21.20. Eſay 45.14.) with wide, or, windy, (well-aired, or, as ſome render it, thorow-aired) chambers. Heb. widened, or, winded; for the participle here uſed, cometh from a root, that hath a notion, ſometime of dilating, or widening: whence a word uſed for ſpace, where applyed unto place, Gen.32.16. for reſpit, when applyed unto time, Exod.8.15. ſometime of breathing, or, drawing breath for refreſhment, rendred refreſh, 1 Sam.16.23. Job 32.20. and to this the old Greek, and Latine, refer it; as alſo, the Jewiſh Criticks, expounding it of ſummer-rooms or lodgings, fitted for freſh ayr; oppoſed to winter ones, Amos 3.15. the copulative, for the relative; as Chap.11.16. ver.7.

and cutteth him out windows,] To let in both ayr and light, to make the rooms not large onely and lightſome, but well aired alſo, as before; though ſome render the words, that teareth my windows; as if the word had a pronoun affixed to it; ſuppoſing that Jehojakim had mangled and defaced the windows of Gods Temple, to adorn and beautifie his own building therewith; as Ezekiah ſometime pilled off the gold from the dores and pillars thereof, to make up the ſum of money required of him to ſatisfie the King of Aſſyria, 2 King. 18. 16. But this carryeth with it no great probability: to cut out windows ſeems no more here, then to make open ſpaces, by cutting off the walls, wherein to ſet frames of windows; for the letting in as well of freſh ayr, as of light: and the plural, though irregular, is found in this form, as well with divers other words, as here with this. So 2 Chr.32.19. Eſay 19.9. & 20.4. See the like, Chap.18.14. In the word him, or, to him; as alſo in the word me, or, to me, as the Hebrew hath either, there ſeemeth an elegant redundancy: the like whereunto, ſee Chap.2.21. & 5.5. & 12.8. & 16.20.

and it is cieled with cedar] Or, and that cieled with cedar; to wit, the large houſe before mentioned; as was Gods houſe that Solomon built, and his own, 1 King.6.15,16. & 7.3. the like uſe of the copulative, ſee Chap.17.2,10,11. & 20.9.

and painted with vermilion.] Heb. anointed with Shaſhar; which the Jewiſh Criticks both here, and Ezek.23.14. expound one of them minium, or, vermilion; and ſo the Chaldee and the Greek: another ſinopis, or, ſinopel, which cometh all to one; and ſo the old Latine: yet a late learned Interpreter would have it to be indico; which coloureth and dyeth not red, but sky-colour, or blew. See Pliny, l.35.c.6. and he ſuppoſeth it to have had its name; as with the Greeks and Latines, from India, out of which country it was brought into thoſe parts; ſo with the Hebrews from the Saſiti, a people of that country, mentioned by Pliny, l.6.c.19. This may be not improbable, though the main current of interpreters go the other way: but that which the ſame Writer addeth concerning the ſenſe of the place, as if the meaning were, that Jehojakim having mangled and torn, not the windows onely of Gods Temple, but ſome of the cedar cieling of it alſo, wherewith to beautifie his palace, ſhould, to conceal his ſacriledge, colour it over with indico; and ſo rendreth the text, that teareth away my windows and cedar-cieling, and then coloureth them over with Indico; to me ſeems to carry with it no great probability.

V. 15. Shalt thou reign becauſe thou cloſeſt thy ſelf in cedar?] Doſt thou Jehojakim who are not reformed by Gods judgment upon thy brother Jehoahaz, ver.10-12. think to eſtabliſh thy throne and prolong thy reign, by ſtately buildings, raiſed from cruel oppreſſion, and by wrongful dealing erected? ver.13,14. or doſt thou think that a cieling of cedar can ſecure thee againſt the forcible aſſaults of a potent enemy, coming furniſhed with commiſſion from God, to execute vengeance on thee for thy violent and injurious carriages? for he ſeemeth to allude in the verb here uſed, unto a word that ſignifieth, a coat of mail, or, a brigandine, Exod.28.32. & 39.23. as ſpeaking of one that ſhould think himſelf ſufficiently armed, when inſtead of ſuch armour, he had got a caſe of fit cedar about him. For neither can I here accord with that learned Interpreter, who rendring the text; Shalt thou reign, becauſe thou mingleſt thy ſelf with that cedar? to wit, ſaith he, which thou haſt torn from my Temple, mingling thine and mine together, joyning ſacred and profane materials the one with the other, for the making up of thy building? True it is, that the word ſeems to have a notion of intermingling of perſons, or other things one with another, Chap.12.5. in which place, and this onely, it is found in the form here uſed: but this ſenſe ſeemeth but harſhly to be here wrung from the text. Nor is it likely, that either the Prieſts, or people, would ſuffer the very cieling of the Temple to be ſo defaced; which in tearing or taking down, could not but be much mangled, and made very unſerviceable for any exquiſite employment. As far, I ſuppoſe, alſo do they ſwerve from the true ſenſe of the place, who following the old Latine, render the words; Shalt thou reign, becauſe thou compareſt thy ſelf to a cedar? Some of them conceive his haughtineſs to be taxed, in deeming himſelf like to ſome tall cedar; a tree as well goodly to ſight, and great of growth, as alſo well rooted, and of long continuance; as of Aſſur, Ezek.31.3. Others, his preſumption, in comparing himſelf with his father Joſiah, a cedar of Gods own planting; as Ezek.17.21,22. and making account to do as well as he did. But theſe alſo ſeem as wide as the former. If any need were of ſwerving from the received Interpretation, I ſhould rather chooſe to render the words to this purpoſe; Shalt thou reign, that thou environeſt thy ſelf with cedar? Doſt thou expect and make account to continue thy reign, that thou art ſo buſie in building thee ſuch a goodly, brave, and ſtrong palace; when as God purpoſeth, ere long, to ſend thee packing out of this place, ver.18,19. So it might be not unlike the check given unto Shebna for his building, Eſay 22.16-19. and the places might well be parallel. But in regard of what next followeth, I adhere rather to that which was firſt propounded.

did not thy father eat and drink, and do judgment and juſtice?] He directeth the preſent King to another manner of foundation, for the firm grounding, and ſure ſetling of a throne or ſtate: that which Solomon alſo ſuggeſteth, when he telleth us, That by juſtice and judgement, and truth and mercy, and beneficence, the throne is ſupported, and the ſtate eſtabliſhed, Prov. 16.12. & 20.28. & 29.4,14. and pointeth him to a pattern and precedent of it in his father Joſiah, one that was ſtudious and carefull, as of the advancement and ſetlement of Gods ſervice, ſo likewiſe of the due adminiſtration and execution of juſtice; and thorow Gods bleſſing therefore upon him, and his government, enjoyed a long time of peace and proſperity, and paſſed the time of his reign in tranquillity and quietneſſe: the words may well be rendred; Did not thy father eat and drink, when he adminiſtred judgment and juſtice? did he not eat and drink; that is, live cheerfully and comfortably, free from carking cares, diſtracting thoughts, and diſtruſtfull fears, Eccl.2.24. & 3.13. & 9.7. Mat.11.18,19. See of Potiphar, Gen.39.6. when he adminiſtred judgment and juſtice? So to do judgment and juſtice is uſed of David, 2 Sam. 8. 15. 1 Chr.18.14. See ver.3. Chap.21.12. the conjunction copulative, for the adverb of time; as 1 King. 11. 25. he vexed Iſrael, and reigned over Syria; that is, when, or, while, he reigned over Syria. So the words would there be read, Eſt.2.21. In thoſe days, and Mordecai ſate in the Kings gate, for, when, or, while he ſate there; as it is well there rendred. See alſo, Eſay 36.9. Chap.17.4.

and then it was well with him?] We need not bring this clauſe within compaſs of the demand, as our Verſion doth: Nor need we with ſome Interpreters, who cut the demand over-ſhort, concluding it at eat and drink, (Did not thy father eat and drink?) annex it to the former branch, rendring the words; Surely he executed judgment and juſtice, and then was it well with him: it containeth an enunciation entire of it ſelf; importing a ground or reaſon of what was before ſaid, he well might, as he did alſo, then live chearfully and comfortably, though he had no ſuch ſtately palace, as thou art now building, which is but a preſage of thy downfal, Prov. 16.18. & 17.19. & 18.12. for it fared well with him, he was ſucceſsful and proſperous in all his undertakings: as Pſal. 1.3. Heb. then was good to him. So Deut. 5.33. & 19.13. Pſal. 128.2. Eſay 3.10. ver.26.

V. 16. He judged the cauſe of the poor and the needy: then it was well with him.] Or, When (as ver. 21.) he judged the cauſe (Heb. judged the judgement; as Chap.5.28. & 30.13.) of the poor and needy (as Pſal.72.4,12,13.) or, when the cauſe of the poor and needy was judged (for the verb may well be taken indefinitely, when juſtice was indifferently and impartially adminiſtred to all ſorts, even to the meaneſt, Deut.16.18-20.) then was it well: then were all things ſucceſsfull, it went well with the State: for by due adminiſtration of judgment doth a King eſtabliſh a land, Prov. 29.4. and cauſe a State to flouriſh; and the clauſe here ſeems to reach further then before, ver.15.

was not this to know me? ſaith the Lord.] Heb. that; that was indeed to ſhew by his deeds and carriage, by the effects and fruits of it, that his profeſſed knowledge of God was found ſound and ſincere, when he followed thoſe courſes that he knew God delighted in, and were pleaſing in his ſight, Chap. 9. 24. Mic. 6. 8. Jam. 1. 27. 1 Joh. 2. 6. the contrary hereunto ſee Chap. 9. 3. Hoſ. 4. 1. Tit. 1. 16. 2 Tim. 3. 5. 1 Joh. 2. 4. The old Latine, though in effect for the matter agreeing here with this, yet ſwarveth ſomewhat from the words of the text, rendring it thus, Was it not therefore, becauſe he knew me? and the Greek yet far further; rendring both this, and the foregoing branches, all in the negative; they do not thus, becauſe they know not me. As alſo do they mangle the text overmuch, that make two members of this concluding clauſe, rendring the words thus; Is not this? the knowledge of it is with me; as if it were ſaid, Is not that true that I charge thee with; ver. 14. though thou deny it, and others may be ignorant of it, yet I know and take notice of it; as Chap. 7. 11. & 13. 27. But the courſe of the context will not bear this; and it offereth too much force to a familiar expreſſion.

V. 17. But thine eyes and thine heart, are not but for thy covetouſneſſe] Heb. upon thy lucre, or, gain, Prov. 1. 19. Ezek. 33. 31. Thou, contrary to the diſpoſition and practice of thy religious Father, art wholly addicted unto, and ſet upon thy lucre and gain, not regarding by what wrongful and cruel practices thou compaſſeſt it: to ſet the heart and eyes upon ought, in Scripture, is greedily to affect it, and eagerly to purſue it, Pſal. 62. 10. Prov. 23. 5.

and for to ſhed innocent bloud,] Or, and upon ſhedding of innocent bloud. Heb. and upon innocent bloud to ſhed it: a defect of the pronoun; as Chap. 17. 21. So in the laſt member; ſee ver. 3. and for oppreſſion] Heb. upon oppreſſion.

and for violence to do it] Or, upon doing of violence. Heb. upon incurſion, or, contrition, to do it, as before: to act and exerciſe it at thy pleaſure: the word here uſed, the Jewiſh Criticks, ſome of them, expound incurſion; from a root that ſignifieth to run; whence it is uſed for a courſe, or, race, 2 Sam. 18. 27. See Chap. 8. 6. and ſo it ſhould ſignifie a violent incurſion, or aſſault, made upon a mans perſon. Others of them expound it a contrition, or breaking to pieces; from a word of that notion, Pſal. 74. 14. applyed to violent courſes exerciſed upon the perſons of the poor, Amos 4. 1. and herein both agree, that the former word rendred oppreſſion, hath reference properly to mens goods, the latter rendred violence here, to their perſons; eſpecially where they are found coupled together: as Deut. 28. 33. 1 Sam. 12. 3, 4. Hoſ. 5. 11. where this latter ſeemeth to be made matter of greater vexation and evill uſage then the former.

V. 18. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord concerning Jehojakim the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah] Having given in the charge againſt Jehojakim, he paſſeth now to his doom. Therefore; becauſe thou art altogether thus wickedly bent, ver. 17. carrying thy ſelf clean contrary to thy religious fathers courſes, ver. 15, 16. thus ſaith the Lord; the Lord hath paſſed this heavy doom and ſad ſentence upon thee: the particle commonly ſignifies unto: but here rather, concerning, as ver. 11. Gen. 20. 2. and it is ſpoken in way of denunciation of a thing to come; not in way of relation of ſomewhat formerly denounced, and already executed, as a learned Writer would have it. See on ver. 1.

Jehojakim] The name given him by Pharaoh-Nechoh, whereas before he was called Eliakim, 2 King. 23. 34. he is alſo called Joakim, by an abbreviation, 1 Chr. 3. 15. as, Oſhea, for, Jehoſhua, Num. 13. 8. a name for ſignification well agreeing with the former. He was the eldeſt ſon of Joſiah; howſoever the people had preferred his brother two years younger then him to the Crown before him; whereof ſee before on ver. 11. but Nechoh at his return, reverſed their choice, and ſetled it upon the right heir, 2 King. 23. 30, 33, 34.

They ſhall not lament for him,] For all his ſtately ſtructures and buildings, he ſhall not have ſo much as any ſolemn funeral, or honourable ſepulture: there ſhall no lamentation be made for him; for the verb is indefinite here; as alſo Chap. 16. 6. See the contrary promiſed to Zedekiah, Chap. 34. 5.

ſaying, Ah my brother, or, Ah ſiſter;] as they were wont to ſay upon the deceaſe, and at the buriall of ſome neer of kin of either ſex; or whom they eſteemed of as ſuch, 1 King. 13. 30. Heb. and, Ah ſiſter: the copulative in a disjunctive notion, as ver. 3. for it is a little too far fetcht, which ſome would draw from the word ſiſter; as if it were ſaid, that neither he nor his Queen ſhould be lamented.

they ſhall not lament for him, ſaying,] As before.

Ah Lord, or, Ah his glory.] Or, his magnificence. See Eſay 30. 30. He ſhall not be lamented either by kindred, or by ſubjects; who were wont to uſe ſuch expreſſions at the funerals of their Kings. See Chap. 34. 5.

V. 19. He ſhall be buried with the burial of an aſſe; drawn and caſt forth beyond the gates of Jeruſalem.] with the buriall of an aſſe; that is, as an aſſe is wont to be buried: as, with the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah, Chap. 49. 18. that is, in ſuch manner as they were overthrown. His corpſe ſhall not be laid into the ſepulchre of his anceſtors, 1 King. 13. 22. nor ſhall have any ſtately entertainment, ſuch as Kings uſually have, Eſay 14. 18. it ſhall not have ſo much as a place of ordinary buriall among the graves of the common people, Chap. 26. 23. but ſhall be caſt out like ſome carrion, as the carcaſſe of an aſſe, into ſome remote place, where it may not, as it lyeth rotting there, infect or annoy people with its ſtrength. So of the King of Babylon, Eſay 14. 19. But in what manner, or in what place this doom is executed upon the corpſe of Jehojakim is queſtioned. For firſt, to ſome it ſeemeth that he was buried; becauſe it is ſaid of him, he ſlept with his fathers, 2 King. 24. 6. which to reconcile, ſome ſay, that he was buried by his people, but after taken up again by the Chaldeans, and ſo caſt forth without the city: but it is very unlikely that the Chaldeans, having ſurpriſed the city, would ſuffer the preſent Kings corpſe being ſlain by them, to be buried, when as they dealt ſo barbarouſly with the corpſes of their former Kings, as to pull the remains of them out of their monuments, where they had long lien quiet, and lay them open to the light, Chap. 8. 1, 2. and though the phraſe of ſleeping with their fathers, be commonly uſed of thoſe, whoſe bodies are laid up in ſome monument among their anceſtors, yet the form of it ſelf importeth no more, then to dye, as his progenitors before him did, Pſal. 49. 19. and doth not neceſſarily imply any communion either in ſepulture, or in place of ſepulture with them: whence alſo to ſleep with ones fathers, and to be buried with them, are mentioned as two diſtinct things, 2 Chr. 15. 18. & 16. 20. That Jehojakims corpſe therefore was ever committed to the ground, there is none, either ſound proof from that phraſe, or probability of the thing it ſelf. But where he dyed and was thrown out, is further doubted, and is more doubtful. Some ſuppoſe that he dyed at Jeruſalem, being there ſlain, and that he was afterward caſt forth without the walls; where his corpſe lay unburied; that which the words themſelves may here ſeem to import: and Joſeph the Jew in his Antiquities, lib. 10. cap. 8. accordingly, in likelihood grounding on this place, relateth. But others rather ſuppoſe, that being carried away captive to Babylon he there dyed, and was after his deceaſe uſed there in ſuch ignominious manner, as is here foretold: for both in the ſacred Story it is ſaid of him, that Nebuchadnezzar came againſt him; and having taken him, bound him in fetters to carry him to Babylon, 2 Chr. 36. 6. nor have we any more added further of him there: in the prophecies of Ezekiel, it is further ſaid of him, that they put him in ward chained, and brought him to the King of Babylon, and ſo ſecured him, that his voice was no more heard on the mountains of Iſrael, Ezek. 19. 9. as for that which they preſs to prove that he ſhould be ſlain in Jeruſalem; becauſe it is ſaid here that he ſhould be caſt forth without the gates of Jeruſalem, as the old Latine renders it: the words ſhould rather be read far beyond (Heb. from beyond) the gates of Jeruſalem: the rather mentioned in likelihood, becauſe by his curious buildings there, he ſeemed to make full account, as to live and reign long, ſo at length when he died, to lay his bones there: whereas the Prophet from God telleth him, that his corpſe ſhould be dragged out, (as chap. 49. 20.) and caſt forth far beyond the gates of that city. So is the word uſed without the particle here prefixed, Gen. 19. 9. Stand aloof off; and with it, Amos 5. 27. I will carry you captive far beyond Damaſcus. Hereunto may be added, that the word gates, is frequently uſed for cities: as Deut. 15. 7. & 16. 5. & 17. 2. in any of thy gates, for, in any of thy cities: and ſo, far beyond the gates of Jeruſalem, may be, far beyond the cities of Judah; called alſo the cities of Jeruſalem, Chap. 34. 1. and ſo it would be as much in effect, as far beyond all the coaſts of Judea. See of the caſting out of his corpſe further, Chap. 36. 30.

drawn and caſt forth] The two verbs here uſed, are of an infinitive form: the former ſometime ſignifying ſimply, to drag out, or, draw away, 2 Sam. 17. 13. Chap. 49. 20. ſometime, to drag to and fro, as dogs uſe to do with a carcaſſe, when they have ſeized on it, whence it is rendred to tear, Chap. 15. 3. the old Latine here renders it, rotten: building I ſuppoſe on the uſe of the word, Ch. 38. 11, 12. but there alſo the word rather denoteth caſt-clouts, as our verſion rendreth it; or, torn, or, ragged, then rotten; though ſuch alſo thoſe there mentioned were: the latter word generally ſignifieth to caſt forth, or, caſt out: and if the former word be taken in its latter notion, there ſhould be an inverſion in the terms here uſed; for a carcaſſe muſt firſt be caſt out, ere it can be ſo dragged, and torn with dogs: but it ſeems rather to be uſed here in the former notion; for dragging of a corpſe forth of the place, where the party dyed; as they uſed to do among the Romans, with the bodies of malefactors executed in the priſon, or elſewhere made away, into ſome more remote and diſgraceful place, ſome layſtall, or the like. So the words may be rendred; dred; As an aſſe is buried, ſo ſhall he be buried; being dragged and caſt out, far beyond the gates of Jeruſalem. Heb. dragging dragged; and caſting caſt out. Of which form, both defective, and yet emphaticall, ſee on Eſay 59.13.

V. 20. Go up to Lebanon and cry, and lift up thy voice in Baſhan, and cry from the paſſages] Whether the reſt of this Chapter be one continued prophecy with the former, or another diſtinct from it, ſeems ſomewhat doubtful. See on ver. 2. Certain it is, that as the former part of it concerns Jehojakim, and his wicked courſes, together with the wretched end and iſſue thereof; ſo this latter concerneth Jehojacin, or Jeconiah, his ſon, who ſucceeded him in the Kingdome, 2 King.24.6. 2 Chr.36.8. and the Jewiſh State ſhortly to ſuffer under him; whoſe deſtituted and diſtreſſed condition is here prophecied, together with the cauſe of it, their refuſall to hearken unto wholſome advice in the time of their proſperity, ver.20—23. then Jeconiahs diſgracefull exilement is denounced, with the cutting off of the royal dignity from any of his iſſue, ver.21—30.

Go up to Lebanon and cry;] An abrupt entrance into a new diſcourſe not unlike unto that, Open thy dores O Lebanon, Zach.11.1. The ſpeech is directed unto Jeruſalem, or the Jewiſh State, ſpoken to as to a woman of ſome ſtate, but in diſtreſſe, ver. 23. and called upon therefore to get up into ſome high and eminent place, whence ſhe may be heard at diſtance, calling for friends and aſſiſtants to come in to her ſuccour and relief: but withall implying, that though ſhe turned her ſelf every way, and made out-cries on every ſide yet all would be in vain; for that thoſe, from whom ſhe expected ayd, ſhould be in as bad caſe as her ſelf.

Lebanon and Baſhan] Two high hills, Pſal.68.15. from the latter whereof, the whole fat and rich ſoil and country about it had its name, Pſal.136.20. Theſe two, ſay ſome, becauſe they looked towards Aſſyria, from whence they expected ayd againſt the Chaldeans: And it is true that of the Aſſyrians, they had ſometime made uſe againſt the Syrians, 2 King.16.7. but that they ever ſought to them for help againſt the Chaldeans, I no where find; and ſuppoſe therefore that the eminency of thoſe hills, and the vicinity of them, is alone here reſpected.

lift up thy voice] Or, cry aloud. Heb. give, or, give out thy voice; as Prov.2.3. Chap.2.15.

from the paſſages] The old Latine, to thoſe that paſſe by; not regarding the prefixed particle. The Greek, to the ſea-coaſt, or, to beyond the ſea; cutting the word into pieces. Others render it, at, or, beyond the fords; to wit, thoſe of Sichor, or Nilus, towards Egypt, Chap.2.18,26. But I find not where the word here found is uſed for fords, or, paſſages; though ſome other words ſpringing from the ſame root ſometime are: for ſides indeed it is frequently found uſed, Exod.32.15. 1 King.4.24. See on Eſay 7.20. Beſides it is not here, at, or, unto, or beyond, but, from, the place ſpecified, what ever it be: and will not therefore ſo well ſuit with the Egyptian fords. Others therefore render it, on every ſide; from, or, on all ſides, as Chap.49.32. Others, from the ends; to wit, of the land: as the word is uſed in the Syriack, Matth.12.42. Luk. 11.31. Howbeit, all things well weighed, I concur with thoſe, that take the word here for a proper name; the mount Abarim; a place of ſpecial note in the confines of Moab; by which the Iſraelites paſſed in their journey to Canaan, from the top whereof Moſes ſaw that land. Num. 27.12. & 33.47,48. Deut. 32.49. this the rather becauſe of the other two mountains of note. for all thy lovers are deſtroyed; According to this verſion, the meaning of the words before going ſhould be; not that ſhe ſhould get up into thoſe places to call in help, as yet all Interpreters generally take it; but bewail rather there with lamentable out-cries, the forlorn condition both of her ſelf, and of her friends and allies; as Chap.3.21. & 7.29. I ſhould therefore rather render the words; But thy lovers are all deſtroyed; ſo is the particle uſed, Chap.2.27,34. & 14.12, 13. thy lovers, thy friends, and wonted aſſiſtants, Chap.4.30. are all ruined (Heb. broken; as 2 Chr. 14.13.) before thee, by the Chaldeans already. See 2 King. 24.7. and all thy looking about thee therefore and crying for help to any of them, is but in vain, Lam.1.16,17.

V. 21. I ſpake unto thee in thy proſperity; but thou ſaidſt, I will not hear:] Or, When I ſpake unto thee in the height of thy proſperity, (Heb. in thy proſperities, or, tranquillities: for, theſe plurals have their emphaſis. See on Eſay 58.11. chap.14.1.) thou ſaidſt, I will not hear, thou refuſedſt to obey. See chap. 2.31. & 6.16,17. a defect of the adverb of time, as ver.16. and, to hear, for, to obey, as chap.7.23,24. See of Gods gratious diſpenſations in this kind, a large and pithy diſcourſe of Elihu, Job 33.14—28.

this hath been thy manner from thy youth; that thou obeyedſt not my voice.] Heb. this thy way (as Prov.1.19. & 30.20.) from thy youth, that thou haſt not heard, or, wouldſt not hearken to, my voice. Ye have been refractary and rebellious ever ſince I firſt moulded you into a State, Deut.9.7. & 31.27. Eſay 48.8. Chap.2.24,25. & 32.30. Of their youth, ſee Chap.2.2.

V. 22. The wind ſhall eat up all thy paſtors;] Thy Rulers ſhall all vaniſh or paſſe away, like wind, Pſal.78.39. Prov.10.25. or, they ſhall be blown away like chaff before the wind, Pſal.1.4. & 83.13. Chap.4.11,12. Hoſ.13.3. or, be blaſted, as graſs, grain, or fruit, with ſuch a wind as ſhrivels or withers it away, Pſal.103.15,16. Eſay 40.6,7. alluded to Hagg. 1.9. or all thy hopes of help from forein forces ſhall prove windy and vain, altogether uneffectuall and unable to produce ought for thy good, Hoſ.8.7. & 12.1. and this laſt way the moſt go: but then it ſhould rather have been; they feed upon wind; as Hoſ.12.1. (which the old Latine yet ſeems to have intended, rendring it; wind ſhall feed them) then the wind feed upon them. I conceive it therefore to be meant the ſecond or third way; though both come much home to one; and the Chaldee taking after the ſecond, giveth it, the wind ſhall diſperſe them, and carry them away: that which is elegantly expreſſed, Hoſ.4.19. where it is ſaid, the wind hath bound them up in her wings: though I prefer rather the third; as alluding to ſome malignant blaſt, that marreth and ſpoileth all that it meeteth with, Gen.41.6. Ezek.19.12. Howſoever, the phraſe here denoteth both a ſudden and utter deſtruction, as of things, ſo whether born away or blaſted. There is an elegant antanaclaſis, or variety of notions, in the ſame word here, twice uſed to a divers ſenſe, as if it were ſaid, All thy feeders, (ſo are Shepherds in Hebrew termed, as Pſal.23.1.) or, all that feed thee, (as thy Shepheads ſhould do, Ezek. 34.2.) ſhall the wind feed on: not, feed them; but feed on them: as, death ſhall feed upon them, Pſal.49.14. that is, devour, deſtroy, and conſume them; as our Engliſh here well rendreth it. So that the word hath a notion of ruling and governing in the former place: as 2 Sam.5.2. 1 Chr.11.2. a notion of depaſturing and deſtroying in the latter; as the like is, Ezek. 34.10. I am coming againſt the Shepherds, or, feeders, and, I will make them to ceaſe feeding the flock: nor ſhall the feeders, or, ſhepherds, feed any more upon them. So it ſhould be rendred: for it followeth; for I will deliver my flock from their mouthes, that they may not be meat for them; that is, that they may not be devoured and deſtroyed by them. See alſo chap. 23.2. Howbeit, by Paſtors, or Feeders, I conceive rather to be underſtood their rulers and governours, as Chap.3.15. & 10.21. & 23.1. then with the Jewiſh Doctor, ſuch forein nations as were called their lovers, ver. 20. though by them they made account that they were fed, maintained and kept in life, Eſay 57.10. Hoſ.2.5. for of them again in the next branch apart.

and thy lovers ſhall go into captivity;] Thoſe that thou and thy rulers relied upon for ſuccour and ſupport; (ſee ver.20.) ſhall become captives and exiles as well as thy ſelf; for of them alſo had the Chaldean King captives in Babylon, chap. 52.31,32.

ſurely then ſhalt thou be aſhamed and confounded for all thy wickedneſſe.] When thou ſhalt find thy ſelf wholly deſtitute of all help and relief, either from thy princes at home, or thy friends and confederates abroad, amidſt all thoſe evils which by thy wicked courſes thou haſt brought upon thy ſelf, chap. 2.17,19,37. & 4.18.

V. 23. O Inhabitant of Lebanon, that makeſt thy neſt in the cedars] Heb. O Inhabitreſſe. as Chap.10.17. & 21.13. for he ſpeaketh to the people and State of Jeruſalem, as to ſome ſtately and haughty Lady. See ver.20. ſaid here to dwell in Lebanon, (ſo is the city it ſelf termed, Zach.11.1.) not ſo much, as ſome, in regard of the vicinity of that mountain, reckoned not as a boundary only, but as a part alſo of the promiſed land, Deut.1.7. & 3.25. as of their preſent condition, living and carrying themſelves as loftily and haughtily, as if they ſate rouſting on the top of Lebanon, ver.6. as alſo in regard of their buildings, conſiſting much, the great mens palaces eſpecially, of choice cedar-wood brought from Lebanon, ver. 7,14,15.

how gratious ſhalt thou be when pangs come upon thee, the pain as of a woman in travel?] Heb. as of one bringing forth. So Pſal.48.6. Eſay 13.8. & 42.14. what will all thy pomp and ſtate, or all thy goodly buildings with their rich and gorgeous furniture avail thee? what will become of it all? or what comfort ſhalt thou have of it, when thou ſhalt be in theſe diſtreſſes? no more then a woman in travel full of pains and throwes, unable to find eaſe, or to procure delivery, (ſee Eſay 26.17,18. & 37.3.) can have any joy or comfort of any ſuch outward ornaments or bravery, while ſhe continueth in that condition. So Chap.6.24. & 13.21. See alſo the like demand, Eſay 10.3. or how lovely and amiable, for all thy preſent gallantry, wilt thou then appear in the eyes of thoſe, that now ſeem enamoured with thee, and whom thou reputeſt as thy paramore? See Chap.4.30.

V. 24. As I live, ſaith the Lord, though Coniah the ſon of Jehojakim King of Judah, were the ſignet upon my right hand, yet would I pluck thee thence.] From the State in general, and the diſtreſſes thereof denounced, God by the Prophet deſcendeth more ſpecially to the perſon of King Jehojacin or Jeconiah, foretelling, and that alſo ſolemnly confirmed with an oath, the ruine and downfal of him and his, with the utter ceſſation of the royall power in regard of him, or any of his poſterity.

As I live] Heb. no more but, I live. So Chap.46.18. Ezek. 5.11. & 14,15. and, I live for ever, Deut. 32.40. As when men ſware by the Lord one to another, they uſed commonly that form, The Lord liveth, Chap.4.2. & 5.2. ſo God, ſwearing by himſelf, ver.5. uſeth the like defective form; yet not unfitly ſupplyed, as our verſion yieldeth it: as if it were ſaid, As ſure as I live.

ſaith the Lord,] As ver.5,16. for as for that learned Writer, who would have it rendred, ſaid the Lord; as if it were a relation only of ſome former denunciation, enough hath been ſaid before, on ver.1,4,11.

though Coniah] Heb. Coniahu; as Zidkijahu, Chap.1.3. & 21.1. He is ſometime called Jehojacin, 2 King.24.8. 2 Chr. 36.8. and ſometime, Jeconiah, 1 Chron.3.16,17. and in the Goſpel according to the Greek uſage, Jechonias, Mat. 1.11, 12. whence in this place, the firſt letter of his name taken off, in a kind of ſcorn and contempt, to note his vileneſs and baſeneſs, (ſee on ver.28.) as nicking his name, or giving him (ſo we uſe to ſpeak) a nick-name, Coniah, or, Coniahu, as names ſo terminated were commonly expreſſed. See Eſay 1.1. Howbeit, that conceit of a learned Commenter, that the initiall letter of his name ſhould be taken away, becauſe it is one of the letters of Gods name, which he was not worthy to bear any part of, is frivolous and unſound: for neither was that initial letter in his name, or the notation of it, any letter of Gods name, being a formative onely of that verb, whereof that his name in part conſiſted; and not that one letter of Gods name alone, but the whole name of God, to wit, Jah, remaineth and appeareth ſtill in this his name, notwithſtanding that detraction; the name ſtill importing, one prepared, or, eſtabliſhed, by God: that which his fathers names both the one and the other, do in the latter notion alſo import. And as little ground hath the ſame Authors ſurmiſe, concerning the change both of the fathers name, and the ſons; to wit, that as whereas the fathers name was at firſt Helijakim, Pharao-Nechoh contracted it, and made it Heliakim; ſo Nebuchadnezzar in like manner when he had ſurpriſed Jeconiah, altred his name, and by paring away the firſt ſyllable of it, made it Coniah; which the Prophet here uſeth: for neither appeareth it, that his father ever had ſuch a compound name as he ſuppoſeth; nor that the King of Babylon ever thus altred the name of Jeconiah: ſomewhat over-curious and groundleſs alſo is that of another late Writer, who would have the initial letter of his name Coniahu, here mentioned, to be taken off, in token of the diminution of his eſtate; the latter ſyllable hu, being added to it, in way of contempt, as if it were ſaid, that Coniah: for it is no more that Coniah, then that Jeſhajah, or, that Ezekiah, or, that Uzziah, or, that Jeremiah, or the like; which have uſually the ſame adjection. See Eſay 1.1. & Chap.1.1.

were the ſignet on my right hand,] Though he were as near and dear to me, as a Kings ſealing-ring, that is moſt carefully carried about and kept, more commonly, yea continually, on ſome finger, not of the hand indifferently and indefinitely, but more ſpecially of his right-hand; the better and the more principal hand, (the right hand; as, the right eye alſo, Mat.5.29,30.) yet ſuch is his vileneſſe and baſeneſs, that I can no longer endure him, but would pluck him off, and caſt him from me; ſo offenſive is he to me, Mat.18.8,9. See Cant.8.6. Hag.2.23.

would I pluck thee thence.] A paſſage from perſon to perſon; as Eſay 2.19. & 22.18,19. Chap.16.12. & 21.14.

V. 25. And I will give thee into the hand of them that ſeek thy life,] An elegant antanaclaſis again. I will pluck thee off my hand, caſt thee out of my protection and cuſtody; and I will deliver thee up into the hand, that is, the power, (as Chap. 19.7. & 20.4,5.) of them that ſeek thy life. Heb. thy ſoul. So Chap.21.7. & 34.20. Howbeit, it ſeemeth that albeit he were delivered up into the power of perſons ſo affected, yet they did not make uſe of that power for the taking away of his life, God in his ſecret providence ſo diſpoſing it, that the line of David ſhould in his iſſue, though deprived of royall dignity, be continued unto the times of the Meſſias our Saviour. See Chap.52.31,32. 2 King.25.27,28. Mat.1.12.

and into the hand of them, whoſe face thou feareſt,] Or, of whom thou art afraid; as it is rendred, Chap.39.17. where is a promiſe to another of the contrary. Heb. from the face of whom thou feareſt. So Chap.1.8,17.

even into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon, and of the Chaldeans.] Or, into the hand, I ſay. Heb. and, as Eſay 59. 17. Chap.19.12. See 2 King.24.16.

V. 26. And I will caſt thee out, and thy mother that bare thee, into another country where ye were not born, and there ſhall ye dye.] Heb. I will throw thee out, (the ſame term that is uſed of Shebna, Eſay 22,17.) and thy mother that bare thee, (Nehuſhtah the daughter of Elnathan, 2 King.24.8. of whom, ſee Chap.13.18.) into another country (a ſtrange land: as, other gods, for, ſtrange gods, ver.9. and, other tongues, for, ſtrange tongues, Eſay 28.11. See ver. 28.) which ye were not born there; (to wit, into Chaldea; an elegant redundancy frequent in that language. See the like, ver.27. Chap.23.3.) and there ſhall ye dye: as before, of Jehoachaz, ver. 12. See the complement hereof concerning the captivity of Jehojacin and his mother, 2 King.24.15. 2 Chr.36.10.

V. 27. But to the land that they deſire to return, thither ſhall they not return.] Heb. And (as ver.5.) unto the land which they lift up their ſoul (as Exod.32.15. Pſal.24.4.) to return there, (as ver.26.) thither ſhall they not return. See Chap. 44. 14. the ſame threatning delivered in the ſame terms: and of Jehoachaz the like, ver.10,11. a change of the perſon again here, as before, ver.24,25.

V. 28. Is this Coniah a deſpiſed broken idol? is he a veſſel in which is no pleaſure? wherefore are they caſt out he and his ſeed, and are caſt into a land, which they know not?] Theſe words ſome conceive to be ſpoken in the perſon of the Jewiſh people, complaining of the diſgraceful uſage of their King, as if he were ſome ſorry picture or image fallen in pieces, or ſome old foul and filthy pot or pan paſt uſe, and therefore thrown out at dores, and caſt into the high-way or ſtreet, for every one that paſſeth by to trample upon: and expoſtulating concerning it, what the reaſon might be, that he and his ſhould be ſo contumeliouſly uſed; or, as ſome of them would have it, objecting it to Jeremy, thereby to diſprove the truth of his prophecy, concerning Jeconiah, that it could not be, that God ſhould ſo meanly eſteem of him, or ſet ſo light by him, as either to deal ſo reproachfully with him, or to permit him ſo to be dealt with. Others would have it to be the ſpeech of the Prophet himſelf, expreſſing his grief upon the conſideration, and at the contemplation of this Jeconiah his ignominious condition, that no more account then ſo ſhould be made of him. But I conceive them rather to be the words of God himſelf, demanding what the reaſon was, why he ſhould be thus uſed, as he had before threatned he ſhould be; and implying that it was for no other cauſe, then for his wicked courſes, wherein he followed his father Jehojakim; treading juſt in his ſteps, 2 King.24.9. See the very like, Chap.2.14-17.

this man] Spoken in way of contempt and diſgrace; as we uſe to ſay, this fellow. So Tertullus of Paul, Act. 24.5. that which ſheweth this not to be the ſpeech, either of the Prophet, who ſpeaking in his own perſon, would not in likelihood uſe ſuch language of him; and much leſſe of the people.

Coniah] Heb. Coniahu; as before, ver.24.

a deſpiſed broken idol] An idol, which when a man diſcovereth the vanity of it, and he now perceiveth it to be unable to ſtead him in his neceſſity, he then breaketh and caſteth away, or that by caſting away is broken, Eſay 2.20. & 17. 9. & 30.22. or, ſome old picture or image, that being either fallen in pieces of it ſelf, or broken by caſualty, or otherwiſe daſhed to pieces, is now of little worth, and of as little regard.

a veſſel in which is no pleaſure] Heb. a veſſel, no deſire, or, delight, in it. So Chap.48.38. Hoſ.8.8. that is of no uſe, and therefore not regarded; either becauſe broken or cracked, or ſo tainted and polluted, that it is become altogether unſerviceable. See the like, Pſal.31.12. Eſay 30.14. Chap. 19.11.

wherefore are they caſt out] Or, thrown out: as ſomething that being paſt uſe, and now good for nothing, is thrown away, or thrown out at dores, Mat.5.13. See ver.26.

he and his ſeed] Here is a queſtion moved, how it is ſaid, he and his ſeed, when as it may ſeem he had no iſſue; and is therefore entred upon record as one childleſſe, ver. 30. To which ſome anſwer, that he had iſſue, before he was carried away captive; but that they dyed in captivity, and ſo he became childleſſe. So the Jewiſh Commenters here. But againſt this ſome of ours object; that if he had had any iſſue, mention would have been made of them, where relation is of thoſe that were carried away with him, 2 King.24.12-16. and they therefore by his ſeed, underſtand the children that he might have had, had God been pleaſed to bleſſe him with iſſue. Others, by his ſeed, underſtand the whole race of Joſiah, which ſay they, he ſurviving Zedekiah, ended in him: but why the race of Joſiah ſhould be termed the ſeed of Jeconiah, is not made to appear. By his ſeed therefore, I conceive to be meant, the ſeed or iſſue, which God foreſaw that in captivity he ſhould beget, and accordingly did, Mat.1.12. ſaid here to be thrown out, and caſt into a ſtrange land in him, becauſe then in his loins; and by means of his deportation.

bred and born in the ſame condition of captivity and exilement with him; as Levi is ſaid to have been tithed in Abraham, Heb.7.9,10. and as this people that lived in Jeremies dayes, are ſaid, to have gone after God in the wilderneſſe; and to have been brought by him into the land of Canaan, Chap. 2.2,7.

and are caſt into a land which they know not.] The word here uſed is not the ſame with the former: and howſoever in notion they come very neer the one to the other; in regard whereof alſo the Rabbine makes this member of the ſentence no other then in divers terms the ſame with that before-going; yet there ſeemeth ſome difference here in the uſe of them: the former relating to the place out of which they were thrown; the latter to the place, into which they were caſt; with an addition of that which containeth ſome aggravation of their miſery; that it ſhould be into a ſtrange place, the condition whereof, and their own there, would be the more uncertain, and where no friend or acquaintance was like to be found. So Chap.16.13.

V. 29. O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the Lord.] To give the ſtronger aſſurance of this dreadful denunciation, and to cauſe it to make the deeper impreſſion in the minds of thoſe that ſhould hear or read this prediction; and the rather becauſe this ſelf-conceited, ſelf-willed, and incredulous people could hardly be induced to believe that God would herein make his word good; God doth by his Prophet call with much intenſion and eagerneſs to have a ſolemn record made of it, as intimating that it ſhould be as undoubtedly fulfilled, as if it were already accompliſhed, and the accompliſhment of it entred into ſome publike record; or that being entred upon record, it might remain there unto poſterity, whereby the truth of it, upon the iſſue and event of it, might afterward appear: (ſee Job 19.23,24. Eſay 30.8. chap. 17.13.) and the earth therefore is called upon, as to take notice and bear witneſs of, what concerning ſuch an inſtrument to be made, he here requireth, ver.30. But what is meant here by the earth, is ſome doubt made. Where to omit the Jewiſh Doctors deſcants upon the repetition of it; ſome in regard of a diſtribution of the land of Iſrael into three parts; Judah, Galilee, and that beyond Jordan: Others, of the land they were to go from, and the land they were to go to, and the land in the way thither. Whereas one of them well obſerveth, that ſuch three-fold repetitions are not to note any divers matter, but to make the ſpeech concerning the ſelf-ſame thing more emphatical and vigorous: as the like, Chap.7.4. Ezek.21.27. Some by the earth, underſtand the Inhabitants of the world; the men of the whole earth indefinitely: as, Let all the earth fear the Lord, and let all the Inhabitants of the world ſtand in awe of him, Pſal. 33. 8. others, the Inhabitants of the land of Judah onely; becauſe they were the people that made doubt of it, and whom it moſt neerly did concern: ſo it ſhould rather be rendred land, then earth: as, all lands, or, countries, (that is, people inhabitants of all lands, or out of all countries) came into Egypt unto Joſeph to buy corn, Gen.41.57. and ſo the Rabbine laſt before-mentioned. Howbeit, others again, whom I rather go with, underſtand the earth it ſelf to be ſpoken to, and called upon, as to hear, take notice, and be a witneſſe of what hereafter enſueth: as if he ſaid, Let the earth it ſelf ſo do, if none elſe will: the like compellations and conteſtations of heaven and earth hereunto, ſee Deut.30.19. & 32.1. Eſay 1.2. Chap. 2. 12. as alſo of a ſtone, Joſh.24.26,27. and our Saviours ſpeech of ſtones, Luk.19.40.

V. 30. Thus ſaith the Lord, Write ye this man childleſſe,] Here followeth that word which the earth was called upon to hear, ver.29. not to write, but to hear, what is required to be written: for the word of hearing there, was feminine and ſingular; the word of writing here, is maſculine and plural; and is indeed indefinitely here uſed: Write ye, that is, Let this be written; that it may remain upon record to poſterity. See on ver.29. Rev.14.13. So Eſay 3.10. Say ye to the righteous, that is, To the righteous be it ſaid: and, Say to Archippus, for, To Archippus be it ſaid, Coloſ.4.17.

Write ye this man childleſſe] So is the word here uſed, taken, Gen.15.2. and ſo is it rendred, Lev.20.20,21. and elſewhere in Scripture, ſave here, it is not found. the word in the original is deemed to ſignifie, a bare and naked, or a ſolitary and deſolate one. See on Chap. 17. 6. where a word from the ſame root, and of the like notion, is found. The antient Greek here rendreth it, a man abdicated, or, proſcribed. But we need not ſwerve from the common acception of the word. It ſoundeth as if it were ſaid; Enter this man in the roll or records of the royal race, a childleſs man. The queſtion is only, why he ſhould be ſo termed. Some ſay, becauſe he neither then had, nor was ever to have any iſſue; but remained childleſs to his dying day: as Mical, 2 Sam.6.23. Howbeit, others rather underſtand it to be ſaid of him, becauſe none of his iſſue were to ſucceed him in the Kingdome, and none therefore of his poſterity to be entred as upon record in the roll of the royall ſucceſſion: for that he had iſſue, ſeemeth apparent, by the mention made of his ſeed before, ver.28. and hereafter again: as alſo by the genealogicall relation, 1 Chr.3.17,18. where ſeven of his ſons are expreſly named; of the firſt whereof, to wit, Salathiel, the Evangeliſt alſo in as cleer and pregnant terms as can be, ſaith, After the Babylonian deportation, or, after they were brought to Babylon, Jechonias begat Salathiel, Mat.1.12. which is the very ſame with that which is in the genealogical Tables related, the ſons of Jeconiah Aſir (that is, the priſoner, implying, that the iſſue he had was begotten by him, and born to him in the time of his captivity.) Salathiel his ſon, and Malciram, &c. 1 Chr.3. 16. Nor is it unlikely, but that Jeconiah might have children in Babylon during the time of his captivity, (the captive Jews there being not reſtrained from the benefit of marriage. See Chap.29.6.) if not before, yet eſpecially, (though then well in years, about fifty and five old) when being by Evil-merodac enlarged, he lived in a freer condition then formerly; enjoying that conſtant portion by the Chaldee King aſſigned him in the Court of Babylon. See 2 King.24. 27—30. which he held to his dying day. The Rabbines indeed, to reconcile this Prophecy, and that relation, ſay, that Jeconiah repented him of his evil courſes, when he was in captivity, and that this ſentence paſt againſt him, was thereupon reverſed. Which though it be not altogether improbable, but that Jeconiah might do, as Manaſſes had done before him, and that God, as he reſtored Manaſſes then again to his Kingdom, 2 Chr.33.12-15, ſo he might give Jeconiah favour in the ſight of Evil-Merodac, and ſo encline his heart to enlage him; according to that, Pſal.106.46. But, becauſe of this their ſuppoſal, we have no ſure ground, we ſhall not have recourſe to any ſuch uncertainty for the cleering of this doubt; neither is there any neceſſity at all for us ſo to do: ſince that God himſelf expreſly here telleth, why he would have ſuch a record as is here mentioned to be entred concerning Jeconiah, to wit, not becauſe he ſhould dye without iſſue; but as a man that ſhould be ſucceſsleſſe in his reign, and with whom the royal dignity, in a manner, ſhould dye and expire.

a man that ſhall not proſper in his dayes] For he had both a very ſhort, and a very unproſperous reign. See 2 King.24. 8—16. in his dayes, for, in his reign: as Eſay 1.1. a defect of the relative, as ver.6.

for no man of his ſeed ſhall proſper, ſitting on the Throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah.] None of all his children ſhall ever ſo thrive or proſper, as to riſe to the royal ſtate, and attain to the Kingly government of Judah; for Zedekiah his Uncle ſucceeded him in the Kingdom for a few years, 2 King. 24.27. nor did any of his poſterity attain to the royall eſtate, which expired in Zedekiah, Lam.4.20. See the like of Jehojakim his father, Chap.36.30.

CHAP. XXIII.

Verſ. 1. W*O to the Paſtors that deſtroy and ſcatter the ſheep of my paſture, ſaith the Lord.*] This whole Sermon or Prophecy is mainly ſpent in menaces denounced: againſt bad rulers, ver.1-8. falſe Prophets, ver.9-32. and profane people, ver.33-40. The firſt part of it concerning bad rulers, conſiſteth of a threatning of the removal of them, ver.1,2. and a promiſe of the reſtitution of Gods people, principally to be accompliſhed in Chriſt, ver. 3-8. A learned Writer ſuppoſeth it to be a continuation of the Prophets relation of what had been before delivered by him in the reign of Jeconiah, concerning the abuſes and corruptions that reigned among all ſorts in his time; but of this his conceit, there is no great probability. See on Chap.22.1.

Wo] As Eſay 5.8. Ezek.34.2.

Paſtors] That is, Rulers; whether Civil or Eccleſiaſticall; Princes or Prieſts: for both ruled, Chap.5.31. & 10.1. Heb. feeders. So Chap.3.15. & 10.21. & 22.22. & 25.34. Ezek. 34. 2.

that deſtroy] See Ezek.22.27. & 34.3. Zach.11.4,5.

ſcatter] By their cruel dealing and oppreſſions, Ezek.34. 4-6,21. Chap.50.6.

the ſheep of my paſture] Or, my paſture-ſheep; as Pſal.100. 3. thoſe whom I take ſpecial care for; and had not turned out to graze on ſome bare common, in the wild waſte, but had procured good paſture for, Pſal.23.1,2. Chap.3.7. Ezek. 34. 14.

V. 2. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael,] Whoſe paſture-ſheep the people of Iſrael are, Ezek.34.30,31.

againſt the paſtors, that feed my people] Or, concerning (as Chap.12.14. & 22.6.) thoſe Shepherds, (Heb. feeders; as ver. 1.) that rule, (Heb. feed. as Ezek.34.16. Mic.5.4.) or, that ſhould feed, (as, learn, for, ſhould learn, Eſay 26.9. but do nothing leſſe, Ezek. 34. 2,3,8.) or, that feed upon my people; that feed upon thoſe whom they ſhould feed, Ezek. 34.3,8,10. See on chap.22.22.

ye have ſcattered my flock, & driven them away, and have not viſited them:] Or, but (as chap.22.27.) have not viſited them; ye expell them; and give them out of of their dwellings; but ye look not after them, nor take any courſe for their welfare, Ezek.34.4-6,8,21. ver.1.

behold I will viſit upon you the evil of your doings, ſaith the Lord.] Or, I will puniſh you for your evill doings; as Exod.31. 34. there is an elegant antanaclaſis in the various notion of the word, viſit; which in Hebrew ſignifies ſometime to take care of, and provide for, Ruth 1.6. Job 7.17,18. ſometime, to puniſh, Exod.20.5. & 34.7. Pſal.89.32. I will viſit you, ſaith God, for your not viſiting them. I will viſit you in wrath and indignation, by taking of vengeance upon you, for your not viſiting of them, by taking care of them, making proviſion for them, and procuring their welfare, according to your duty, Ezek.34.8,10.

V. 3. And I will gather the remnant of my flock, out of all countries, whither I have driven them,] To the foregoing commination denounced againſt thoſe bad rulers is ſubjoyned, for the comfort of the faithful, a promiſe of recollection and reſtitution of a remnant, after ſuch diſperſions as had been made of the main body of Gods people, partly through the iniquity of thoſe their rulers, and partly alſo in way of caſtigation by God himſelf for their ſins. See the like, Eſay 1.9. & 4.3. & 6.13. & 10.20-22. & 11.11,12. Ch.3.14. & 12.14. & 16.15. & 31.7. Ezek.20.40,41. & 34.11,12. Mic.2.12. Zac. 10.3. See Deut.30.1-5. Of the redundancy here, ſee Ch.22.26.

and will bring them again to their folds;] Or, paſture; for the word is ſingular; and it is uſed for paſture, Ezek.34.14. to the places of their former abode in their own land: for a dwelling alſo the word ſignifieth, Eſay 32.18. & 33.20. So Ch.24.6.

and they ſhall be fruitful and increaſe.] Or, multiply. as Gen. 8.17. Exod.1.7. Ezek.36.11. See the like promiſes, Eſay 44. 3,4. Chap.31.27. Zach.2.4.

V. 4. And I will ſet up Shepherds over them, which ſhall feed them] Heb. feeders; as before, ver.1. and they ſhall feed them: not feed upon them as the former did, ver.2. the copulative for the relative: as Chap.17.6. fulfilled in Nehemy, Zorobabel, and other faithful governours of the Jewiſh people, after the captivity, that ſought not themſelves, but the good and welfare of Gods people, Neh.2.10. & 5.14-19. Hagg.2. 23. Zach.4.9. & 6.10-14. as alſo in Chriſtian princes and rulers under the Goſpel. See Ch. 3. 15. So Ezek. 34. 11, 12.

and they ſhall fear no more, nor be diſmayed] They ſhall dwell in ſafety and good ſecurity; free from fear of any adverſary. So ver.6. Chap.28.25,26. & 34. 30. See the ſame terms, 2 Chr.20.15,17. & 32.7.

neither ſhall they be lacking, ſaith the Lord.] None of them ſhall be miſſing, whom God will have ſaved and reſerved for a remnant. See Eſay 27.12,13. So is the word uſed, Num. 31.49. 1 Sam.25.7,15,21. 2 King.10.19. Eſay 34.16.

V. 5. Behold the dayes come, ſaith the Lord, that I will raiſe to David a righteous branch,] Heb. Behold (ſo are the Prophecies concerning Chriſt uſually uſhiered in, to ſtir up unto attention and due conſideration. See Eſay 7.14.) the dayes coming (as ver.7. Chap.16.14,18.) and (as Chap.9.25.) I will raiſe, or ſet up, (as ver.4. for the term is the ſame) or, ſettle, (and eſtabliſh; for ſo alſo the word may ſignifie, as Gen. 6. 17.) to David, or, for David, (of his iſſue to ſucceed him in the government of my people, Pſal.132.11. Chap. 33.26.) a righteous Branch, or, Bud, or, Sprout. for the Hebrew word ſignifieth no other: and that great learned man therefore, who requireth to have it here rendred with the Septuagint, the Sun-riſing, and with much confidence condemneth them all that render it ſo as we do after ſome of the Greek, the old Latine, and other later verſions in ſeveral languages, of unskilfulneſſe, and going againſt the word of God, ſhould have had better grounds, then any that he hath produced, for ſo ſevere and peremptory a cenſure: ſure it is that they go beſides Scripture, if not againſt it, that otherwiſe expound it; the word it ſelf being no where found therein uſed but of plants, or with reference unto them; the root alſo that it ſpringeth from, never applyed but to plants, or to hay, that ſprouteth out from the body, as plants and herbage from the ground, and in metaphorical forms, with alluſion to the one or the other. Now this paſſage another learned late Writer expoundeth of Zorobabel: and we deny him not to be of the ſhepherds, or rulers before-mentioned, ver. 4. but the party here deſcribed is diſtinguiſhed from them, nor can be any other then our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. Yea the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves, both on the place, and elſewhere, acknowledge, that by the Bud, or, Branch, or, Sprout, here ſpoken of, is meant the Meſſias. Though they add withall ſome vain devices of their own, to confirm the ſame; to wit, becauſe, ſay they, the letters of the word Menachem, that ſignifieth a Comforter, and is the name of the Meſſias, Lam.1.16. and the letters of the word Tſemach, here uſed, do both make up the very ſame number; to wit, 138. But this is but a frivolous fancy of theirs; nor doth the truth of God need ſuch ſandy ſupports. Thus is he ſtyled, as here, ſo alſo, Zach.3. 8. and becauſe he was to ſpring up, as a bud, branch, or ſprout, from the root of Jeſſe, and of David, Eſay 11.1,10. Rev. 5.5. & & 22.16. though in regard of his meanneſſe and weakneſſe to outward appearance, like ſome young bud, or tender ſhoot, at its firſt ſprouting out, Eſay 53.2. yet that ſhould, in proceſſe of time, bud, ſprout, and branch out, like ſome ſuch plant, as retaineth its verdure perpetually, flowring and flouriſhing unto all eternity, Pſal.132.17,18.

a righteous branch] As Chap. 33. 15. a branch, bud, or, ſprout, of righteouſneſſe; ſo termed, not only, becauſe he is perfectly righteous in himſelf, that righteous one, Act. 21. 14. that holy and righteous one, Act. 3. 14. the Holy of Holies, Dan.9. 24. but alſo, becauſe he maketh multitudes righteous; he maketh all his people righteous, like himſelf, Pſal. 72.7. Eſay 53.11. & 60.21. Rom.5.18,19. 1 Joh.3.3,7. And it is as if the Prophet had ſaid, Be ye not diſmaid, when ye ſee ſo many wicked Rulers of Davids poſterity for their wickedneſſe removed, ſo many of them, as degenerate and rotten buds or branches, cut off and caſt away, without hope of recovery, Chap.22.10,11,18,19,24-30. Lam.4.20. God in the room of them will raiſe up a bud or branch of the ſame ſtock, that ſhall be herein altogether unlike unto them, ſhall not onely be moſt juſt and righteous himſelf, but ſhall adminiſter juſtice equally unto all, and make others alſo therein like unto himſelf. See the like prophecies and predictions of Chriſt and his Kingdome, Eſay 4.2. & 40.11. & 45.8. Chap. 33.14,15.

and a King ſhall reign and proſper,] Jeſus Chriſt, the King of Iſrael, Joh.1.49. the true Melchiſedeck, the King of righteouſneſſe, Heb.7.1-3. yea, the King of kings, 1 Tim.6.15. Rev.19. 16. he ſhall reign and proſper; that is, reign proſperouſly, or, proſper in his reign: unlike therein to Jeconiah and his ſeed, chap. 22.30. he ſhall be ſucceſsful in all his undertakings, Pſal.45. 4. Eſay 52.13. & 53.10. Rev.6.2. and ſhall execute judgment and juſtice in the earth.] Or, upon the earth. as Chap.31.22. Mat.6.20. he ſhall execute judgement thorowout the whole world, Pſal.96.13. & 98. 9. Eſay 2.4. or, in the land; as Eſay 5.8. Ezek.9.9. ver.8. among his people: as is ſaid of David, 2 Sam.8.15. 1 Chr.18.14. a type of Chriſt; therefore alſo called David, Ezek.34.23,25.

V. 6. In his dayes Judah ſhall be ſaved,] For he ſhall ſave his people from their ſins, and reſcue them out of the hands of their enemies, ſpiritual eſpecially, and deliver them from this wicked world, Eſay.33.22. & 63.1. Mat.1.21. Luk.1.74. Gal.1.4.

and Iſrael ſhall dwell ſafely] Heb. in, or, unto, confidence; that is, ſecurely, confidently; as Judg.18.7. Lev. 26.5. So Deut.33.12,28. Ezek.34.25,27,28. Judah and Iſrael here, one and the ſame, Gods people. So Chap.33.16. where the ſame thing is repeated.

and this is his name whereby he ſhall be called, The Lord our Righteouſneſſe.] Heb. this is his name whereby he ſhall call him, Jehovah Tſidkenu: he ſhall call him; that is, ſay ſome, God ſhall call him. Others, Iſrael ſhall call him. Others again, each one ſhall call him: and the word is here indefinite; and is therefore, as in our verſion, beſt rendred by the paſſive; he ſhall be called. But ſome queſtion is made, whom this title is here ſaid to be given unto: and ſome would have it given to Gods people, to Iſrael, So it ſhould be rendred, Jehovah, or, the Lord, is our righteouſneſſe: as, the name of the new Jeruſalem, Jehovah-Shammah; The Lord, or, Jehovah is there, Ezek.48.35. and it may not unfitly be given unto Iſrael, whoſe righteouſneſſe Chriſt is, 1 Cor. 1.30. being made one with him, 1 Cor.6.17. & 12.12,13. and profeſſing to have their righteouſneſſe in and from him, in whom all the ſeed of Iſrael are juſtified, and do glory, Eſay 45. 24, 25. that which by this title they ſhould acknowledge. But others rather, and ſo the moſt and beſt conceive it to be the name of Jeſus Chriſt the Meſſias, as Immanuel, God with us, Eſay 7. 14. So, Jehovah Tſidkenu; Jehovah, or, the Lord, our Righteouſneſſe: who, as he came to bring in everlaſting righteouſneſſe, Dan.4.24. So, he is by God made unto us righteouſneſſe, 1 Cor. 1. 30,31. while by his being made by God ſin (that is, a ſin-ſacrifice, as Heb.9. 28.) for us, who had no ſin himſelf, we become the righteouſneſſe of God in him, 2 Cor.5.21.

V. 7. Therefore, behold the dayes come, ſaith the Lord, that they ſhall no more ſay, The Lord liveth, which brought up the children of Iſrael out of the land of Egypt:] Or, Furthermore, or, Moreover: for ſo the coherence of this with the former, (and the ſubject matter of either being duly conſidered) requireth the particle here to be rendred, which Chap. 16. 14. (where the very ſame thing was before recorded) is upon the like ground, another way rendred: for theſe terms of connexion do frequently alter their notion according to the relations, that the members, or paſſages of the diſcourſe, which they come between, have one to another.

they ſhall no more ſay] Or, it ſhall no more be ſaid; as it is, Chap.16.14.

V. 8. But the Lord liveth, that brought up, and which led the ſeed of the houſe of Iſrael, out of the North country, and from all countries, whither I had driven them, and they ſhall dwell in their own land.] See the ſame in effect, Chap.16.15.

which led] Or, brought. Heb. made to come, as chap.2.7.

the ſeed of the houſe of Iſrael] A remnant of them, ver.3. that ſhould be as a ſeed, Eſay 1. 9. & 6.13. & 65. 9. Rom. 9. 29.

I had driven them] As ver.3.

and they ſhall dwell in their own land] Or, that they might dwell (as Joſh.24.9.) in their own land. Heb. on (as Eſay 24.22.) their land. So, their own heart, ver.16.

V. 9. My heart within me is broken becauſe of the Prophets;] Here from the Princes and Rulers before dealt with, ver. 1, 2. the Prophet paſſeth to the Prieſts and Prophets, whom he taxeth as the principal authors of that generall corruption, that was ſo riſe among the people: and threatneth them therefore with ſome dreadful judgment to be inflicted upon them for the ſame.

My heart within me is broken] Heb. As for, or, Concerning, the Prophets, (as Eſay 32.1. See there) my heart in the midſt of me (as Pſal.22.14. & 39.3. & 55.4.) is broken: as Pſal.51. 17. Eſay 65.14. Thus the Prophet expreſſeth his extream grief of heart, to conſider how the falſe Prophets (for ſuch he here meaneth, as chap.4.9.) did deceive, delude, and miſlead the people, to the utter ruine of them both. See Chap. 14.13-16.

all my bones ſhake,] With extremity of fear and trembling, to think what will befall them. See the like, Hab.3.16. the word ſignifieth properly to hover, or flutter, as a fowl doth over her young, Gen.1.2. Deut.32.11. in which places, and here, it is only found: and ſo is the heart wont oft to do, to flutter as a bird, in fainting qualms, or ſudden and vehement fears. See Pſal.38.10. Chap.4.19.

I am like a drunken man, and like a man whom wine hath overcome] Not able to ſtand on my legs, ſo aſtoniſhed; or as one at his wits end, not knowing what to do: as Pſal. 107. 27. Eſay 24.20.

and like a man] Or, even; as Chap.15.13. & 19.12.

whom wine hath overcome] Heb. paſſed over him. as we uſe to ſay, one that is in drink, or, that is drown'd in drink; as over-whelmed with it: in like manner as waves and billows are ſaid to paſſe over one, that is not on, but in the ſea, Pſal. 42.7. Jon.2.3. and the pronoun demonſtrative in place of the relative, as Eſay 42.1. & 46.4.

becauſe of the Lord, and becauſe of the words of his holineſſe.] Or, his words of holineſſe: his holy, or, moſt holy words: as Pſal, 105.42. that which the Jewiſh Commenter expoundeth of the words of the falſe Prophets, who had the name of God, and the word of God, continually in their mouth, as if whatſoever they delivered were no other then Gods oracles, ver. 17,31. So the Prophets meaning ſhould be, that he was affected and tranſported with grief and dread, to hear Gods name ſo horribly abuſed by them, fathering their lies upon him, and ſtrengthening men thereby in their rebellions againſt him, ver.17. Ezek.13.19,22. But the moſt rather underſtand it of God himſelf, his wrath hereby incenſed, and words of dreadful menaces thence proceeding, and expreſſing the ſame by denunciation of ſuch hideous effects of it, as were ſhortly to enſue. So Hab.3.16. Heb. from the face, or, wrath, of the Lord. as Pſal.34.16. or, ſimply, becauſe of the Lord: as in the next member, and ver.10.

V. 10. For the land is full of adulterers,] So Chap.5.8. & 9. 2. either while the falſe Prophets connive at them, and preach nothing but peace to them, ver.22,30. or, becauſe by promiſing of peace unto them, they encourage them to looſe and licentious living, ver.17. Ezek.13.22.

for becauſe of ſwearing the land mourneth] Becauſe of oathes and perjuries that are ſo riſe in it. So the Chaldee, whom the Jewiſh Doctors follow; and ſo the ancient Greek ſeemeth to have had it. It is word for word, from the face, or, becauſe, (as ver.9.) of the curſe, which they therefore ſo render; becauſe oath and curſe, ſwearing and curſing go commonly together, Lev.5.1. Judge 17.2. 1 Kings 19.2. Neh.10.29. Ezek.11.18. Howbeit, the old Latine, and divers others of the beſt note, retaining the expreſs term render the text: for becauſe of a curſe the land mourneth; that is, by reaſon of the curſe of God upon our land, in ſuch manner as followeth, the land mourneth, as Chap.12.4. & 14.2. So, the curſe hath devoured the land, Eſay 24.6. and I ſuppoſe it to be as well the genuine, as the plainer ſenſe; onely, I ſhould render it, though by reaſon of a curſe the land mourn: as if he had ſaid, though manifeſt expreſſions of Gods diſpleaſure be already upon us, and the land by means thereof ſeemeth to wear a mourning weed, as is apparent to the eye, yet it is full of abominable filthineſs; and theſe wicked wretches ſtill tell them, that all ſhall go well with them, Chap.6.14. & 8. 11. & 14.13. There is an elegancy in the ſound of the words of malediction, and mourning; and between it again, and the term of filling in the former member, neither of which our Engliſh can fitly expreſs: the uſe of the particle in this diſcretive notion, is very frequent, as Gen.8.26. Joſh.17.18, Pſal.23.4.

the pleaſant places of the wilderneſs are dried up.] This ſeemeth to be a knitting of things repugnant together, for what pleaſantneſs can be looked for in a wild waſt, or a wilderneſs? Some therefore render it, the habitations, or, habitable places, of the wilderneſs; that is, of the wilder, and leſs-peopled part of the land, called the wilderneſs of Judea, Matth.3.1. But the words would rather be rendred, the paſtures of the wilderneſs, or, of the plain; for ſo the word rendred wilderneſs oft-times ſignifieth, See Eſay 63.13. Lam.4.19. and the former word here joyned with it, is rendred paſtures, Pſal.65.12. & Joel 2.22. and ſo ſhould be rather then habitations, Chap. 9.9. And this is that wherein the curſe before-mentioned did conſiſt; to wit, in a great drought that had dried up their paſtures; that is, ſaith the Jewiſh Commenters, the places where beaſts feed, See Chap.14.1,2.

and their courſe is evill] Word for word, their race, See Chap.22.17. from whence ſome alſo render it violence here: but I rather take it as our verſion rendreth it, their courſe, (by that very word, one of the Rabbines here expounds it) is naught; onely I ſhould otherwiſe render the prefixed particle in a notion of reddition, as reflecting upon, or having reference unto the words before going; yet (as Chap.14.9, 15.) their courſe is naught, or, evill; though Gods curſe be upon the land, and his hand thus upon them, yet they will not learn to amend their ways, Eſay 26.9,11. Chap.5.3. but run on ſtill in a wicked courſe, and refuſe to be reclaimed, Eſay 59.7. Chap.8.6.

and their force is not right] Heb. their might, or, valour, (as Eſay 3.25. & 63.15. Chap.49.35.) is unlike. So the old Latine, following the Greek, that rendreth it ſuch, to wit, evill and naught, as their courſe before; or, as they expound the Latine, unlike to Gods preſcript, not ſuch as it ſhould be, becauſe the word ſometime ſignifies, ſo, or, ſuch, Pſal.1.4. Prov. 1.19. the Chaldee rendreth it, they ſhall not proſper by their might; having an eye, I ſuppoſe, to a ſpeech uſed of Moab to that effect, where this word is uſed, Eſay 16.6. Chap.48.30, but I conceive that our verſion is here in the right, and hath approbation from the Jewiſh Commenters, who for the expoſition of it, point us to that in Moſes, Num.27.7. the daughters of Zelophead ſpeak right, to which may be added, Prov. 15.7. the heart of the fooliſh caſteth abroad (ſupplyed from the former branch) that which is not right. But we need not go far, to find out the Prophets meaning here, two places of his put together will fully explain him; the one, Chap.8.6. no man ſpeak aright, or, what was right; the other, Chap.9.3. they bend their tongues like their bows for falſhood, but have no courage, or, are not valiant at all for truth, or, right; that which is ſaid here, their courſes are ſtark naught, nor is their courage or valour ſhewed for ought that is right, but rather employed wholly the contrary way; they run on in a violent courſe unto evill, and bend and band themſelves with all their might thereunto, Pſal.36.4. Chap.9.3.

V. 11. For both Prophet and Prieſt are profane] Heb. Prophet alſo, Prieſt alſo, or, even Prophet, even Prieſt, are both profane, or, deal profanely; for though the nouns are ſingular, (but collectively taken; as, from the Prophet to the Prieſt, Chap.6.13.) yet is the verb plurall, to include both; and is here aright rendred, having in it a notion of profaneneſs; not of hypocriſie, as is too oft given it; and as ſome of prime note render it here, play the hypocrites, See on Eſay 9.17. & 32.6. It is as if he had ſaid, No marvell, if the corruption be ſo generall in the land, when the teachers, as well thoſe that are ſet over them by God to inſtruct the people, Mal.2.7. as thoſe alſo that profeſs and pretend to be ſent by him on meſſages to them, do both by their bad lives, and falſe relations, lead them into looſe courſes, and confirm them therein. See ver.14,15.

yea, in my houſe have I found their wickedneſs, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. alſo, or, even, (as before) in my houſe. My very Temple it ſelf is not free from, but full of their abominable ſuperſtitions and idolatries, and horribly profaned with their leud and looſe practices, which they forbear not to perpetrate even there in my preſence, 2 Chr.36.14. Chap.7.10,11. Ezek.7.20. & 8.5-17. See ver.14.

V. 12. Wherefore their wayes ſhall be unto them as ſlippery wayes in the darkneſſe, and they ſhall be driven on, and fall therein.] Heb. Therefore their way ſhall be unto them as a way of ſlipperineſſes in the dark, or, in a miſt. It ſhall fare with them, as with one that is conſtrained to travel in the dark, or in a thick miſt, where he cannot diſcern his way, and in ſome ſlippery way, where though he could ſee it, yet he ſhould find no ſure or firm footing; and withall, ſo put forward, and driven on by thoſe that either puſh him on, or purſue him cloſe at his heels, that he can neither make any ſtay and ſtand ſtill, nor ſlacken his pace, nor take time with his foot to feel and try his way before him; but muſt of neceſſity, being ſo put upon it with all theſe diſadvantages, run on head-long, untill he fall and miſcarry: an emblem to life of unavoidable miſcarrying. See the very like, Pſal.35.6.

their way ſhall be unto them] An elegant redundancy: as, my deliverer unto me, Pſal. 144.2. and, their pathes they have made crooked to them, Eſay 59.8.

as ſlippery ways] Or, as a very ſlippery way. Heb. ſlipprineſſes: the word ſignifies ſometime, ſmoothneſſes, (for in the ſingular it is not read) and ſo it is uſed for flatteries, Dan.11.21, 34. And becauſe ſmooth things are commonly ſlippery; hence it is that it cometh alſo to ſignifie ſlipperineſſes; and ſo here: otherwiſe a ſmooth or eaven way is a matter deſireable, Eſay 26.7. & 40.3,4. and, ſlipperineſſes, for, a way of ſlipperineſſes, (the word way, ſupplyed from the former member; as Deut.32.4. all his ways are judgment, that is, ways of judgment) that is, a moſt ſlippery way. So Pſal. 35. 6. as alſo ſlipperineſſes, for, moſt ſlippery places, Pſal.73.18. for theſe plurals are, in Hebrew, much uſed to enhance and improve. See Eſay 58.11. & 59.9. Chap.14.1.

in the darkneſſe] Or, in the dark; as Deut.28.29. Prov. 7. 9. or, in a miſt; as Exod.10.22. See Eſay 8.22. ſo that they cannot ſee to chooſe their way, nor diſcern ought that may ly to endanger them in their way, nor know which way to turn themſelves, Eſay 8.22. & 59.9. Prov.4.18. Chap.13.16. Joh. 11.10. 1 Joh.2.11. Some render the words, not, in a miſt; but, as a miſt; and theſe two particles, in Hebrew, are for ſhape much alike; but the originals exhibit that, not this; and the Jewiſh Commenters ſo read it.

driven on] So Eſay 8.22. Pſal.35.6.

and fall] Or, untill they fall; being puſht forward (Pſal. 118.13.) untill they do fall. So is the copulative uſed, Dan. 12. 12.

for I will bring evill upon them] So Chap.6.19. & 11.11. & 19.3,15.

even the yeer of their viſitation, ſaith the Lord.] Or, in the year of their viſitation; as Chap.46.21. When in wrath I come on viſiting of them, ver. 2. So Chap. 11.13. & 48. 44. & 50.27.

V. 13. And I have ſeen folly in the Prophets of Samaria;] Or, as ſome render it, I ſaw indeed (when time was) folly; ſo it is rendred, Job 1.22. & 24.12. or, as ſome render it, abſurdity, or, an abſurd thing. Heb. properly, inſulſity, or, unſavourineſſe: a metaphor taken from meats, that for want of ſalt, being unſavoury, are offenſive to the palate, Job 6.6. See the like metaphor, Eph.4.29. compared with Col.4.6. it is applyed to the falſe Prophets fictions, Lam.2.14. and to their ill-tempered daubings, Ezek. 13.10,11,14,15. & 22.28. in the Prophets of Samaria; thoſe of the ten Tribes, whereof Samaria was the head city, Eſay 7.9.

they propheſied in Baal, and cauſed my people Iſrael to erre.] They delivered their prophecies not in my name, but in the name of Baal; and ſo cauſed my people to go after Baal. See 1 King.18.18 21. & 22.6,7. Iſrael, thoſe of the ten tribes; as Chap.3.6.

V. 14. I have ſeen alſo in the Prophets of Jeruſalem an horrible thing;] Or, But (Heb. And; as chap.22.5,27.) in the Prophets of Jeruſalem I ſee fedity, or, fetidity; filthineſſe, or ſtench; moſt vile and abominable practices, far worſe in ſome kind, then in thoſe of Samaria. See Chap. 5.30. & 29.17. Hoſ. 6.18.

they commit adultery] Do as Elias ſons did, 1 Sam.2.17,22. whence adultery became ſo rife in the land, ver.10.

and walk in lies] Or, walk up and down with lies. Heb. with falſhood, or, a ly; as Eſay 28. 15. they utter their lies not in Baals name, but in mine, and ſo father their lies upon me, Chap.14.14. See ver. 26. Heb. committing adultery, and walking with a lye; that is, at full, committing they commit adultery; and walking, they walk about with lies; they make a common trade & practice of either: a form, though defective, yet very ſignificant. See on Eſay 59.11,13. See theſe two vile practices joyned together in the falſe Prophets again, Chap. 29.23. For thoſe that here reſtrain the term of adultery to idolatry, ſpiritual adultery, ſeem therein to wrong the text.

they ſtrengthen alſo the hands of evill doers, that none doth return from his wickedneſſe:] Heb. and they ſtrengthen the hands of evil doers, that they may not return, a man (that is, each one; as Ch.22.7. or, any one; as Chap.5.1.) from his wickedneſſe. They confirm them in their wickedneſs, and ſo keep them from repentance, by bearing them in hand, that they ſhall do well enough, whatſoever Gods meſſengers tell them, though they do continue in their ſins. See Ezek.13.22.

they are all become to me as Sodom, and the Inhabitants thereof as Gomorrah.] By their means it is come to paſs, that this city of Jeruſalem is become as another Sodom, and the inhabitants thereof as the inhabitants of Gomorrah; for ſo it is to be ſupplyed; as way, ver.12. See Deut.32.32. Eſay 1.10. to me: either an elegant redundancy: as Chap.12.8. See there, and before, ver. 12. or, to me; that is, in mine account; as Amos 9.7. I make no other reckoning of them, then as of thoſe abominable cities, Ezek.16.46.

V. 15. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts concerning the Prophets;] Or, theſe Prophets: for the article is here reſtrictive, and demonſtrative; as Chap.27.7. the Prophets before deciphered.

I will feed them with wormwood, and make them drink the wine of gall:] Or rather, I will feed them with poyſon, and drench them with juice of hemlock, or wolfs-bane. See of the terms here uſed on chap.8.14. & 9.15.

for from the Prophets of Jeruſalem is profaneneſſe gone forth into all the land.] See before, ver.11. for hypocriſie, put in the margent, hath no place at all here.

V. 16. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, Hearken not unto the words of the Prophets that propheſie unto you] So chap.27.9, 14,16,17.

they make you vain:] Or, beguile you. Heb. they are making you vain: it is their practice to delude you, while they feed you with vanities, and make you truſt in vain things that will fail you in the end, and ſo make you vain, as all ſuch are, that follow after, and rely upon ought that is vain. So 2 King. 17.15. Pſal.62.10. Chap.2.5. Rom.1.21.

they ſpeak a viſion of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the Lord.] They vent the devices of their own heads and hearts, not ought that comes from God, chap.14.14.

a viſion] Alluding to the title given to Gods meſſages, Eſay 1.1. So chap.14.14.

of their own hearts] As, their own land, ver. 8.

out of the mouth] Or, from the mouth of the Lord; as 2 Chr. 35.22. & 36.12.

V. 17. They ſay ſtill to them that deſpiſe me, The Lord hath ſaid, Ye ſhall have peace, and they ſay unto every one that walketh after the imagination of his own heart, No evill ſhall come upon you.] See chap.6.14. & 8.11. ver. 14. Ezek. 13. 10, 22. Zach.10.2.

They ſay ſtill] Or, Saying ſtill: or, In ſaying ſaying; as, in ſaying ſay, Exod.21.5. ſee chap.3.1.

that deſpiſe me] Or, provoke, or, reproach me. See on Eſay 1.8.

that walketh after the imagination of his own heart.] See chap.7.24. & 16.12. & 18.12. his own heart; as his own way, Eſay 53.6.

No evil ſhall come upon you.] See chap. 14.13. directly contrary to what God had threatned, Deut.29.19,20.

V. 18. For who hath ſtood in the counſel of the Lord, and hath perceived and heard his word? Who hath marked his word, and heard it?] The ſpeech either of the Prophet himſelf, as the moſt, concerning theſe counterfeit Prophets, demanding which of them God had acquainted with any ſuch ſecret purpoſe of his, as they pretended to have received from him, as if they came like Angels dropt down from heaven, and ſent by God to reveal his will and pleaſure to his people. See ver.22. or, as ſome other, of the falſe Prophets, moving the queſtion, how Jeremy, or any other beſide themſelves, ſhould come to know any ſuch thing from God, as they delivered in his name; as if they were the onely men that were acquainted with Gods privy counſels, and none could know them, but from them: and ſo heartening the people againſt the menaces of Gods Prophets. See the like, 1 King.22.24. And the text thus taken, it would be read with a ſupply, For who, ſay they, &c. as Eſay 22.13. Act.15.5. Some ſuppoſe that the words of the Apoſtle, Rom.11.34. were taken from hence; but they are much miſtaken; for they are taken from Eſay 40. 13, 14. and are of a far other notion then this paſſage is they ſpeak of Gods taking counſel from others, this of underſtanding Gods counſel from himſelf.

who] Who but we, or beſides us; which ſome alſo thruſt into the text. So Eſay 40.16. & 44.7.

hath ſtood] Waiting, or attending upon God, as ſervants do upon their maſters, great perſonages eſpecially, miniſters and officers upon Kings and Princes, 1 King. 10. 8. Prov.22.29. and as on God, the Angels do in heaven, 1 King.22.19. Eſay 6.2. Dan.7.10. Mat.18.10. his miniſters and meſſengers here upon earth, expecting his pleaſure, 1 King. 17. 1. Habb. 2. 1.

in the counſel of the Lord] Heb. ſecret, Pſal.25.14. Prov.3.32. & 11.13. & 20.19. & 25.9. but ſometime it is uſed for counſel, as Prov.15.22. Amos 3. 7. becauſe counſel oft requireth ſecrecie: and ſometime again for an aſſembly in general, Chap. 6. 11. though properly and primarily of ſuch as meet to conſult about ought, Gen.49.6. and it ſeemeth to allude unto the manner of ſuch miniſters or officers, who attending on and hath perceived] Heb. and ſhall ſee; or, that he might ſee, as Ch.10.4. & 22.10.) to wit, in ſome viſion; as Eſay 2. 1. & 6.1.

Kings when they ſit in councel, do by means thereof, many times, come to the notice of ſuch things, as are wont to be concealed from others. So Job 15.8.

and heard] Or, or (as Chap. 22.3,18.) hear; as Pſal.85. 8.

marked] Or, attended, or, hearkned; as 2 Chr.23.10. Eſay 21.7. Chap.8.6.

V. 19. Behold, a whirl-wind of the Lord is gone forth in fury,] Behold, mark what I ſay, and aſſure your ſelves of it, (as Eſay 10.30.) whatſoever theſe falſe Prophets preach to you, as from God, of peace and ſafety, there is a grievous tempeſt in coming, that will fall heavily on the heads of thoſe whom they promiſe peace to, ver.14. and ye will find to your grief, when it will be too late, that what is now told you, was true, ver.20. ſee the ſame, chap.30.23,24.

a whirlwind] Or, a ſtorm, or, tempeſt, as it is rendred, Pſal. 83.15. Amos 1.14. Jon.1.4. for the alluſion is not to wind alone; but to a ſtorm of rain or hail, that lighteth on mens heads; as in the words enſuing.

of the Lord] That is, from the Lord; a ſtorm, or, tempeſt, coming from him, ſent by him; as Jon.1.4. ſo, an evil ſpirit of God, 1 Sam. 16.15,16. for, an evil ſpirit from God: as it is there expounded, v.14. or, a tempeſt of the Lord, for, a mighty tempeſt: as, mountains of God, for, great mountains, Pſal. 36. 6. and, the trees of the Lord, for, great, and tall trees, Pſal.104.16. So, a ſleep of God, that may be taken either way. 1 Sam.26. 12. The former way goeth the Chaldee, which the Jewiſh Commenters concur with.

is gone forth in fury] Or, with fury, or, in wrath: a defect of the particle; as Eſay 52.8. & 56. 11. and ſo the Jewiſh Doctors after the Chaldee: or, wrath is gone forth; as Num. 16. 46. as an explication of the former.

even a grievous whirlwind] Or, even (Heb. and; as ver.9.) a grievous tempeſt. Heb. grievouſly paining: from a root that ſignifies to be in pain, Job 15.20. Eſay 53.5. or, as ſome, lighting, or, falling, becauſe the word is after here ſo rendred. Others, continuing; as the word ſeemeth to ſignifie, Lam.4.6. Hoſ.11. 6. ſee chap.30.23.

it ſhall fall grievouſly upon the head of the wicked.] Or, that ſhall fall grievouſly: the relative ſupplyed; as chap. 22. 6,30. the word here uſed ſignifies ſometime, to be in pain, Chap.5.3. Ezek.30. 16. ſometime, to light, or, fall upon; or, as ſome, to ſtay and abide, 2 Sam.3.29. let them fall, or, reſt upon the head of Joab: and Hoſ.11.6. the ſword ſhall light, or, abide upon their cities: our Verſion hath joyned both together, and it may well be deemed a complexive form of ſpeech, (of which kind ſee on Eſay 38. 17, 21.) as if it were ſaid, it ſhall with pain light and reſt (as Damaſcus ſhall be its reſt, Zach.9.1.) upon the head (whereby it appears that ſome ſuch kind of ſtorm or tempeſt is alluded unto, as is wont to light upon mens heads, as Pſal.121.6.) of the wicked: either the falſe Prophets themſelves, ver.15,30. or thoſe that are confirmed in their wicked courſes by them, ver.14. or both, Ezek.14.9,10. See Chap.14. 15,16.

V. 20. The anger of the Lord ſhall not return, untill he have executed, and till he have performed the thoughts of his heart:] So Chap.30.24. Heb. done, and eſtabliſhed. This ſtorm of Gods wrath will not be laid, till what he hath purpoſed be fully accompliſhed. See Eſay 55.11. 1 Sam.3.12.

in the latter days ye ſhall conſider it perfectly.] Or, hereafter. Heb. in poſterity of days, (as Num.24.5.) conſider of it with underſtanding, or, conſideration: for the verb in this form is applyable to either ſignification, Eſay 1.3. & 52.15. Chap.2.10. & 9.16. a defect of the particle; as ver.19. When theſe days are once over, after a while, ye will fully underſtand and ſeriouſly conſider, what ye will not believe at preſent. See the like, Ezek.2.5. & 6.10. For there is little reaſon to refer this with the Jewiſh Maſter, to the days of Meſſias, when, ſaith he, the wicked ſhall at once be deſtroyed; though of thoſe times this form be found oft uſed, Eſay 2.2. Chap.48.47. & 49.39. Joel 2.18. Mic.4.1. Nor is there any neceſſity of carrying on this clauſe, by knitting the words of the next verſe to it; as if it were ſaid, That when the evils now denounced over-took them, then they ſhould come to know that theſe falſe Prophets were never ſent on any ſuch meſſage from God as they pretended: true indeed; but ſeems not the ſenſe of the Prophet in this place.

V. 21. I have not ſent theſe Prophets, yet they ran: I have not ſpoken to them, yet they propheſied.] They do on their own heads all they do, ver. 16. they have neither miſſion nor meſſage from me. So Chap.14.14. & 17.15. & 28.8,9. yet. Heb. and; or, and yet: ſo Chap.14.9,15.

V. 22. But if they had ſtood in my counſel, and had cauſed my people to hear my words, then they ſhould have turned them from their evil way, and from the evil of their doings.] Or, For (as rendring this as a reaſon, to prove, that they came with no meſſage from him. Heb. And; as Chap.14.15. & 16.15.) if they had ſtood in my counſel (as they pretended, and profeſſed to have done, ver.18. if they had been admitted into ſo neer attendance upon me, as to be made acquainted with my counſels and purpoſes) they would then (as Gen. 28. 21,22. but miſplaced there, as here, and Chap.4.1,2. & 15,19.) have declared my words to my people, (Heb. made to hear, as Chap.4. 5,15,16. they would have told them nothing, but what I have ſpoken, ver.28. acquainted them with my will) and would have turned them from their evil way, and from the evil of their doings: they would have endeavoured to withdraw and reclaim them from their wicked courſes, as other my faithful Prophets and Meſſengers do, Chap.25.3—5. and not have confirmed and ſtrengthened them, as now they do in them, ver. 17. So rather, then as ſome others following the old Latine, which our Verſion concurreth with, if they had faithfully declared Gods Word to his people, the people then had been converted; for that is not always the lot of Gods true Prophets, and faithful Miniſters, Eſay 49.4. & 53.1. was not of Chriſt himſelf, when he was here upon earth, Mat. 11. 20. Joh.12.37,38.

V. 23. Am I a God at hand, ſaith the Lord, and not a God a far off?] Some of the ancient Greeks reade theſe words, not by way of interrogation, but by way of enunciation, I am a God at hand, and not a God afar off; I am alike neer you every where, Pſal.139.1—12. Prov.15.3. the ſenſe is good, but not proper to this place: for the interrogative, though oft ſuppreſſed, as Hoſ.4.14. Mal.1.8. is in the Hebrew here expreſſed: the meaning is, Am I not a God here upon earth, that ſeems farther from me, Job 22.12—14. Pſal.103,12. & 138.6. & 139.15. as well as in heaven, that ſeemeth neerer to me, as being the place of my ſpecial reſidence, Pſal.33.13,14. & 115. 3. do you think, becauſe my palace is in heaven, Pſal. 11. 4. that I take no notice of what is done upon earth? Pſal.113. 5,6. ſee Ezek.8.12.

V. 24. Can any man hide himſelf in ſecret places, that I ſhall not ſee him? ſaith the Lord.] Heb. Shall a man be hid in hidneſſes, or, hiding places? the indicative potentially, as Chap.13. 23. & 15.22. and the paſſive reciprocally; as Chap.4.4. & 36. 19. and man, for, any man; as Chap.5. 1. and hidneſſes, or ſecrecies, for, hiding, or ſecret places; as Pſal.10.8. & 64.4. and ſecret, or hiding places, for, any ſecret, or hiding place; as, our ſepulcres, for, any of our ſepulcres, Gen.23.6.

that I ſhall not ſee him] Heb. and I ſhall not ſee him: the copulative for the finitive; as Pſal.119.73. chap.14.19. ver.18. or, where I ſhall not ſee him: the copulative for the relative; as Gen. 6.13. and, they ſhall ſerve, for, where they ſhall ſerve them, or rather, ſerve themſelves of them. See on chap.25.14. See Pſal.139.7-12. Amos 9.2,3.

Do I not fill heaven and earth? ſaith the Lord.] Not by my powerful and efficacious providence onely, 2 Chr.16.9. Pſal. 33.12. & 139.6. Prov.15.3. Zach.4. 10. but with mine eſſential preſence, Pſal.139.3,5,7-10. Am I not every where preſent? do the heavens ſo confine or encloſe me, that I am not preſent on earth, as well as in heaven? 1 King.8.27. Is not the earth my foot-ſtool, as well as heaven my throne? Eſay 66.1. Act.7.49.

V. 25. I have heard what the Prophets ſay, that propheſie lies in my name, ſaying, I have dreamed, I have dreamed.] Or, I hear what theſe Prophets (as ver.15.) ſay, &c. whatſoever theſe wicked and wretched counterfeits and impoſters imagine of me, as if I kept aloof, were pent up in heaven, and had no place of preſence or reſidence here upon earth, nor took notice of ought that were ſpoken and done here; yet I hear their lying, and ſee their doings. So, I ſee, chap.7.11. & 13. 27. ver.14. and, I know, Eſay 37.28. Hoſ.5.3.

lies in my name] Heb. a ly, or, falſhood; as ver. 14. ſo ver. 26. ſee ver.17.

I have dreamed] Or, I have a prophecy, or meſſage from God, revealed to me by dream, one of the wayes, whereby God, in ancient times, imparted his mind to his meſſengers the Prophets, Num.12.6.

V. 26. How long ſhall this be in the heart of the Prophets that propheſie lies? yea they are Prophets of the deceit of their own heart] Or, How long? an abrupt, but very paſſionate form: like that, Pſal.6.3. but thou, o Lord, how long? and, How long, O Lord? wilt thou forget me for ever? Pſal.13. 1. as alſo that, chap.13.27. after how long yet? as if he had ſaid, How long will it be ere they leave this courſe? are they reſolved to make a perpetual practice of it? So I read the next words; Is it in the heart of theſe Prophets to be ever propheſying of lies, and propheſying the deceit of their own heart? Is it in the heart (that is, is it their deſire and delight? as, the Law of God is in his heart; that is, he deſireth and delighteth in it, Pſal.40.8. & 112.1. or, are they deſperately bent upon it? as, the day of vengeance is in my heart; that is, I am fully reſolved upon it, Eſay 63.4.) of theſe Prophets (as ver.15.25.) to be ever (a defect of the verb ſubſtantive: as, give Jeruſalem a praiſe, for, make her to be matter of praiſe, Eſay 62.7. & Rom.8.29. be predeſtinated conformable, for, to be conformable: and, he hath choſen rich in faith, and heirs, for, to be rich in faith, and to be heirs, Jam. 2. 9. that, for ever, is ſupplyed, as implyed in the former how long? expreſſed, Pſal. 13. 1.) propheſying lies, (Heb. Prophets, or propheciers of a ly, or, falſhood; as ver. 25. chap. 14. 14.) and propheſying (as before) the deceit of their own heart; as chap. 14. 14. their own fancies and devices, wherewith they deceive and delude people, ver. 16. Thus rather, in my mind, then as ſome great ones; Should there be a dream (to wit, a divine one ſent from God) in the heart of theſe Prophets that propheſie falſhoods? that propheſie the deceit of their own heart? Or, yea, they propheſie the deceit of their own heart. But I leave this to the judgment of others. Some continue theſe words with thoſe enſuing; Is it in the heart of theſe Prophets that propheſie lies, &c. Do they think, I ſay, to cauſe my people to forget my name, &c. ſo, to have in the heart, and, to think, ſhould be all one: as 1 Chr. 28. 2. and this ſeemeth not improbable.

V. 27. Which think to cauſe my people to forget my name, by their dreams, which they tell every one to his neighbour, as their fathers have forgot my name for Baal.] Or, That deviſe (as the word is very frequently uſed, Pſal. 21. 11. & 140. 2, 4. chap. 11. 19. Amos 6. 5.) how to make my people forget my name (forget me and their duty to me, and all regard to my Prophets that come in my name, and with meſſages from me) by their dreams (their vain dotages, and lying devices, which they term dreams, ver. 25. as indeed they are no better, ver. 27, 28.) which they tell one to another (ſo chap. 22. 8. the falſe Prophets to the people; as one from another, the falſe Prophets from the people, ver. 30. as men uſe to do their dreams, Judg. 7. 13.) as their fathers (either their anceſtors, or thoſe falſe Prophets of Samaria, ver. 13. whom herein they imitate) forgat my name (as before, ſo chap. 2. 32.) by Baal; by joyning themſelves to him, and ſerving him, inſtead of me, the true God, and their God, chap. 2. 5, 13. Judg. 2. 11. So that thoſe counterfeit Prophets, though they would not be counted Baals Prophets, as thoſe Samaritans; but would be deemed the Prophets of the true God, yet carryed men away from God, as well as thoſe Prophets of Baal did. Thus theſe that pretend revelations from God, may prove no leſſe dangerous in making men forgetful of God, neglectful of Gods Word, and regardleſſe of their duty unto God; from whom yet either being deluded themſelves, or on purpoſe to delude others, they would be deemed to ſpeak, then thoſe that profeſſe to deliver oracles from idols.

V. 28. The Prophet that hath a dream let him tell a dream,] A learned Scholiaſt, by dream, here underſtands a divine dream: but the word of God in the oppoſite member, doth evidently ſhew, that thoſe dreams of theirs are here intended wherewith theſe impoſters cheated and deluded Gods people, ver. 25, 27. The words may very well be rendred, The Prophet that hath a dream (Heb. with whom a dream is with him: an elegant redundancy, as in the next member alſo, in that language very rife) let him tell it as a dream; which are uſually full of vanity, Eccl. 5. 7. as were theſe dreamers relations, Zach. 10. 2. not as a divine revelation: for ſuch defects of it, and as are frequent. See the former, chap. 17. 21. & 22. 17. the latter, Pſal. 11. 1. & 141. 2. Eſay 13. 8. & 21. 8.

and he that hath my word let him ſpeak my word faithfully.] Heb. let him with whom my word is, as chap. 27. 18. ſpeak my word truth; that is, either in truth, truly, faithfully; as Judg. 9. 15, 16, 19. without addition of ought to it, or mixture of ought with it, chap. 1. 7. 2 Cor. 2. 17. 1 Pet. 2. 2. & 4. 10, 11. a defect of the particle in, as Eſay 33. 7. & 34. 2. or, as a truth: ſuch as indeed it is, Pſal. 119. 142, 151, 160. Joh. 17. 17. a defect of the note of ſimilitude, as before.

what is the chaff to the wheat? ſaith the Lord.] According to this Verſion the meaning ſhould be; what is the chaff in compariſon of the wheat? Or, what compariſon is there between chaff and wheat? or, what uſe or worth is the one of, in regard of the other? But the Hebrew form (which the Greeks and Latines alſo very frequently imitate) here uſed, What to the chaff with the wheat? ſeems to have another notion; and that not ſo much as a learned late Writer, what ſimilitude is there between the one and the other? but, what ſhould the one do with the other? or, what hath the one to do with the other? as the like, 2 Sam. 16. 10. what have I to do with you? and Hoſh. 14. 9. what have I to do with idols? and, what have I to do with thee? Joh. 2. 4. to what end ſhould lies and fancies that are no better then chaff, light ſtuff, and uſeleſſe for mans food, be mingled with my word, the bread of life, and the only wholeſome food of mens ſouls, Joh. 6. 27. 1 Tim. 6. 3. Tit. 1. 1. the form is not unlike to that of the Apoſtles, 2 Cor. 6. 14, 15, 16. and it ſeemeth to have been a proverbial kind of ſpeech.

V. 29. Is not my word like as a fire? ſaith the Lord.] Heb. ſo as the fire: Gods Word is not like theſe mens vain and idle dreams, void of life and ſpirit; but ſuch as hath a powerfull and efficacious work upon mens ſouls, to confirm and comfort ſome, and to affright and diſturb others, to mollifie mens hearts, and to eat out their corruptions: in regard thereof like unto fire that warms, and heateth, and enflameth, melteth metal, and burneth out droſs, and burneth up chaff and ſtubble, and other like light combuſtible matter, chap. 5. 14. & 20. 9. Luk. 24. 32. 1 Cor. 3. 12, 13. 2 Cor. 2. 16. Heb. 4. 12.

and like an hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces] Or, or (as ver. 18.) is it not (ſupplyed from the former branch) as an hammer (as chap. 50. 23.) that (ſupplyed, as chap. 22. 6, 30.) will break a rock to pieces; or, or, will it not (the negative ſupplyed from the former, as Pſal. 9. 18.) break a rock to pieses as an hammer? Is it not able to break the ſtouteſt and ſtrongeſt heart, (chap. 5. 3. Zeph. 7. 12.) and to beat and bear down any oppoſition that is, or can be, made againſt it? 2 Cor. 10. 4.

V. 30. Therefore behold, I am againſt the Prophets, ſaith the Lord, that ſteal my word every one from his neighbour.] Or, Behold, I am coming againſt (as chap. 21. 15.) thoſe Prophets (as ver. 15.) that ſteal, or, filch, my words (for the word is here plural) one from another, as Gen. 31. 49. So ver. 27. one to another: many ſtrange expoſitions are given of theſe words, which I forbear to relate, confining my ſelf to thoſe alone, that ſeem to carry ſome ſhew of probability with them: the Jewiſh Doctors, whom ſome of ours alſo follow, underſtand it of ſuch of them, as did make uſe of thoſe prophecies, which they heard from Gods meſſengers, but turned them another way, and applyed them to other purpoſes: they inſtance in Hananiah who (ſay they) hearing Jeremiah ſay, I will break the bow of Elam, chap. 49. 57. made uſe thereof, and applyed to Babylon, what he had ſaid of Elam; ſaying, I will break the yoke of the King of Babel, chap. 28. 2. and the better to back this abuſive application, ſhould add, that if God would thus break the might of the Elamites, then of the Chaldees alſo under whom they ſerved, Eſay 22. 6. Others, going alſo much the ſame way, expound it of the terms borrowed from Gods Prophets, which were ſo rife with them, Thus ſaith the Lord, & the Lord hath ſaid it, ver. 17, 31. Others, that by their wiles and delusions, they withdraw the people from giving any credit to Gods meſſages, brought to them by his Prophets, and ſo ſtole away the authority of Gods Word, and peoples affections thereunto, as Abſolom by his fauning flatteries did the hearts of Davids Subjects from him and his government, 2 Sam. 15. 6. Others, of their conſpiring together to back one another, in their falſe prophecies, which yet they pretended to be Gods words, and ſuch meſſages as they had received from him: thoſe that propound and aſſert this ſenſe, reject thoſe former expoſitions that have reference to Gods Prophets, whom they ſhould either imitate, or undermine, becauſe it is ſaid, each one from his friend, fellow, or familiar; in which manner the Holy Ghoſt would not ſpeak of the true Prophets, as if any ſuch relation and communion were between them and theſe counterfeits: but not to inſiſt on that, which might be hereunto returned, that a man and his neighbour, brother, friend, fellow, or familiar, is in the Holy language no more then one and another: and one from another, here may well be no other, then the falſe Prophets from the people; as, one to another, the falſe Prophets to the people their followers, ver. 27. againſt this expoſition may well be objected, that my words here, anſwerable to what went before, where they are oppoſed to the dreams, dotages, devices and deceits of the counterfeit Prophets, ver. 28, 29. cannot ſo fitly be underſtood of them, or applyed unto them, as by this interpretation they are. Others therefore underſtand them of concealing from Gods people ſuch neceſſary truths, as they ought to have delivered unto them, and have acquainted them withal: to which purpoſe they are charged, not to have endeavoured, as they ſhould have done, to reclaim people from their wicked courſes, ver. 22. that which the Scribes ſeem charged with, Luk. 11. 52. and the Apoſtle purgeth himſelf of, Act. 20. 27. But I conceive rather the meaning to be, that by their cunning fetches and flatteries, they filched out of peoples hearts thoſe words or meſſages of God, which by his Prophets had been delivered unto them, and they had ſometime ſeemed to heed and regard, yea, to put in execution: as our Saviour ſaith, that the Devil comes and ſtealeth the ſeed of the word out of the hearts of ſome, with whom it hath been ſowen, Mat. 13. 19. Luk. 8. 12. that which comes ſomewhat neer to that before, of infringing of the credit and authority of Gods Word. An inſtance whereof we may ſee in that revolt, in likelihood by the deluſions of theſe falſe Prophets procured, from that which by Jeremies Sermons they had been formerly wrought unto, Chap. 34. 8—11.

V. 31. Behold I am againſt the Prophets, ſaith the Lord;] See before, ver. 30.

that uſe their tongues] The word here uſed is by divers diverſly taken, and that among the Jewiſh Criticks themſelves. Some of them expound it, as the word in its native, proper, and moſt uſual acception ſoundeth; that take their tongue, that is, as our verſion giveth it, that uſe it, or make uſe of it. But this others of them deeming too ſlender, would have it rendred, that teach, or, learn, or, enure, (for the word of teaching, or learning, is oft ſo taken. See Chap. 13. 23.) their tongue. See Chap.9.4. they have taught, or, learned, their tongue to tell lies: (the word is ſingular, though collectively taken both here and there) for the word of taking, ſay they, is uſed of teaching, or learning: and we uſe indeed the term of learning ſometime promiſcuouſly, of teaching, as well as of being taught: but whether the the word of taking (which we uſe alſo of learning, ſtrictly and properly ſo termed) be ever uſed in Hebrew for teaching, I much doubt: though doctrine, or that which is taught, hath thence a denomination in uſe; ſo termed, becauſe taken and received by the Scholar. Some of them keeping to the ſame root and notion, but with ſome reſtriction, render it, that ſweeten their tongue: for, ſay they, the word of doctrine thence derived, ſignifies properly, a ſweet, pleaſant, plauſible, or, delightful, doctrine, Prov. 4. 2. & 16.21. So it ſhould ſignifie that which the Greeks call, an acceptable ſpeech, or, a ſpeech worthy of acceptance, Luk.4.19. 1 Tim.1.15. & 2.3. but in a more general ſenſe ſeemeth Doctrine ſo termed; becauſe as it is given out, or delivered by the teacher, Prov.4.2. & 9. 9. ſo it is taken and received from him by the learner: and the ſame exception that was taken to the former interpretation, is of force againſt this alſo. Others therefore render it, that ſlick, or, ſmooth, their tongue: fetching the word from another root that ſo ſignifies, by tranſpoſition of the radical letters; that ſpeak nothing but ſmooth, pleaſing, and plauſible things, ſuch as the people deſired and delighted to hear, Eſay 30.10. See Chap.6.14. & 8.11. ver. 17. So is that word uſed, Pſal.5.9. they ſmooth their tongue, or, make ſmooth work with their tongue. and Prov. 28.23. one that ſmoothes his tongue, or, that ſmoothes, that is, flatters, with his tongue: thence David alſo of the diſſembler, the words of his mouth were ſmoother then butter, Pſal. 55. 21. and Solomon of the ſtrumpet, the roof of her mouth is ſmoother then oil, Prov.5.3. and, a ſmooth tongue, for, a flattering tongue, Prov.26.28. and, ſmoothneſſe of tongue, Prov.6.24. and, lips of ſmoothneſſe, Pſal.12.2,3. for, a flattering tongue, and, flattering lips. And to this I encline, both becauſe it ſuiteth ſo fitly with the ſmooth carriage of theſe counterfeits; and becauſe ſuch tranſpoſition of letters is not unfrequent in Scripture: lakach, for, chalak; as Eccl.9.4. bachar, which ſignifies to chooſe; for, chabar, which hath a notion of conjunction, or, aſſociation, as the Maſſorites there obſerve. So chedel, Eſay 38.11. for, cheled, the world, Pſal.49.1. taphel, Pſal.18. 26. for, patal, 2 Sam.22.27. to be perverſe: alwah, Hoſ.10.9. for, awlah, Pſal.43.1. iniquity. Zewaah, Eſay 29. 18. and, Zeawah, Deut.28.25. a commotion, or, a removal. ſimlah, and, ſalmah, Exod.22.9 27. a garment: cebes, and ceſeb, Lev.4.32, 35. a ſheep. ceſel, Chap.10.8. and celes, Chap.4.22. & 5. 21. folly. ſhachis, Eſay 37. 30. for, ſachiſh, 2 King. 19. 29. ſelf-growth. almuggim, 1 King.10.11. and algummim, 2 Chr.9.10. the ſame kind of trees, or timber; and more of the like ſtamp: theſe the rather I recite, that this here may appear the leſſe uncouth; as to ſome peradventure it may. For as for thoſe that expound it of taking their tongues to themſelves, and uſing them at their pleaſure; like thoſe that ſay, our lips are our own, Pſal.12.4. whereas Gods prophets give up their tongues to be moved and guided wholly by him, and his Spirit, 2 Pet. 1.20,21. as alſo thoſe that by their tongues, underſtand not their own tongues, but the tongues of the true Prophets, whoſe words and terms they imitated; ſee on ver. 30. they ſeem to warp too much from the text.

and ſay, He ſaith.] That is, the Lord ſaith; as before, Saith the Lord. Heb. Said: and ſo there. Said of the Lord, or, That which the Lord hath ſaid: for that is the proper notion of the term; ſo uſed, Chap.1.8,15,19. ver.29,30. that father their lying flatteries upon me, ver.17.

V. 32. Behold I am againſt the Prophets,] Or, I am coming againſt theſe Prophets. See on ver.3. Now becauſe here is a three-fold denunciation, ſome of the Rabbines would have three ſeveral ſorts of falſe Prophets here deſigned; ſome that filched forms from the true Prophets, but miſapplyed them, ver.29. ſome that were men of ſmooth and eloquent language, ver.30. and ſome that pretended viſions and dreams, in this verſe. But this ſeems groundleſſe; they may rather be deemed ſeveral attributes of the ſame parties, who counterfeited revelations and viſions, and thoſe of ſuch matter, as was pleaſing to the people; whereby pretending to have received them from God, they withdrew the people from the belief and liking of thoſe truths that from God were brought to them by his Prophets. The denunciation is thrice inculcated, to confirm the truth of it, and cauſe it to make the deeper impreſſion, if not on the Prophets, yet in the hearts and minds of the people. See Chap. 22. 29. and the like threefold Behold, but in a divers argument, Eſay 62. 11.

that propheſie falſe dreams, ſaith the Lord, and do tell them:] Heb. dreams of falſhood: as, words of falſhood, for, lying words, Eſay 32.7. not ſuch dreams, as God appeared in ſometime to his Prophets and people, 1 Sam. 28.6. though they pretended them to be ſuch, ver.25. and told them to the people as ſuch, ſee ver.27.

and cauſe my people to erre by their lies,] See ver.13—16, 26, 27.

and by their lightneſſe;] Or, looſeneſſe, or, leudneſſe. So Zeph.3.4. her Prophets are light, or, looſe, or, leud ones: as we uſe the word light, when we ſay, a light woman: the word is uſed by Jacob of Reuben, light as water, Gen. 49.4. and what his carriage was, in regard whereof his father gave him that title, is in the ſame place expreſſed: not unlike that which thoſe falſe Prophets are alſo charged with in the firſt place, ver.14. It is uſed alſo of thoſe leud wretches that Abimelech hired to be aſſiſtant to him in the proſecution of his wicked deſigns. Judg.9,4. where by the Chaldee according to ſome copies it is rendred by a word that ſignifieth perſons debauched: for that ſeemeth over-light that the Jewiſh Critick here giveth it, either lightneſſe of tongue, that is, quickneſſe, (which ſome of ours alſo follow) or, haſtineſſe, not ſmoothneſſe (as ſome amiſſe render him) of ſpeech, or, lightneſſe of knowledge; that is, ſhalowneſſe, want of ſolidity or ſound knowledge: for theſe are not ſo much the faults or defects charged upon them, as their lies and looſe lives. The Chaldee rendreth it here by a word that ſignifieth raſhneſſe, or, preſumptuouſneſſe: the Greek, errors: the Latine, miracles: theſe both much out of the way; the latter eſpecially.

yet I ſent them not, nor commanded them:] Or, whereas I had not ſent them, or given them ought in charge. See chap.14. 14. So ver.21.

therefore they ſhall not profit this people at all, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. and (as Chap.16.13. which yet may well be here retained) they ſhall not profiting profit, or, nor do they profiting profit this people; nor do they profit this people at all: a form of ſpeech expreſſed in terms of extenuation, but cloſely importing matter of aggravation: they do this people no good at all, but much hurt, by their falſe prophecies, and their flatteries, Lam.2.14. So, the treaſures of wickedneſſe, ill gotten goods profit not, Prov.10.2. they will do a man no good, but much hurt, Mat.16.26. 1 Tim.6.9,10. and, the father of a fool ſhall have no joy, Prov. 17. 21. but abundance of grief, Prov.17.25. and, he that ſhall break the leaſt of theſe precepts, and teach others ſo to do, ſhall be called the leaſt in the Kingdome of heaven; that is, ſhall have no part at all there, Matth.5.19.

V. 33. And when this people, or the Prophet, or a Prieſt, ſhall ask thee, ſaying, What is the burden of the Lord? thou ſhalt then ſay unto them, What burden? I will even forſake you, ſaith the Lord.] God by the Prophet, having before dealt, and that ſomewhat roundly, with the bad rulers, ver.1,2. and the falſe Prophets, ver.9-32. proceedeth now to the profane people alſo, who becauſe the Prophets of God uſed to begin their Sermons with The burden of the Lord, or the like. See Eſay 13. 1. & 15.1. & 22.1. & 30.6 Zach.9.1. Mal.1.1. would in mockery demand of them, what burden they had from God for them: or, as ſome would have it, when they intended in ſerious manner to ask one of another, or of ſome of Gods Prophets, what word was come, or they had from God, they uſed to ſay, what is the burden of the Lord? as if word of God, and burden, were all one, and nothing but menaces came or could be expected from him. But the former ſeemeth the more probable.

And] Or, Moreover; as Chap.11.18. & 14. 11. becauſe he entreth here upon a new matter.

when this people] The profane ſort of them; whom thoſe falſe Prophets ſeduce, ver.14,17,32.

or the Prophet, or a Prieſt] One of thoſe Prophets that thus delude them, or ſome one of the Prieſts that are combined with them, Chap.5.31. and he joyneth Prophet and Prieſt with the profane of the people; becauſe the Prieſts and the Prophets were no leſſe profane then the people, ver.11. and from them profaneneſſe iſſued forth unto the people, verſ. 15.

burden] See on Eſay 13.1. of the Lord] That is, from him, as ver.19.

then ſhalt thou ſay] Or, ſay then. as Chap.7.27,28. & 16. 11. Heb. and. as Chap.22.4.

what burden?] As if he had ſaid in way of indignation. Do ye ask what burden?

I will even forſake you, ſaith the Lord.] A burden heavy enough, as ye are like to feel, when ye ſhall undergo it, ere long. See Chap.12.7. Howbeit, ſome underſtand it, as if the meaning ſhould be, that God would rid them of thoſe burdens, as they eſteemed them, and it was no ſmall mercy that he hitherto vouchſafed to continue with them; he would withdraw himſelf away from them, and the gift of Propheſie by which he had been preſent among them. See Pſal. 84.9. Others, that they themſelves were the Lords burden, ſuch a burden to him, as he intended ſhortly to remove and eaſe himſelf of, Eſay 1. 24. Ezek. 6. 9. Amos 2. 13. But theſe things ſeem ſomewhat over-curious. Heb. and I will forſake you, and ſo ver.34. Chap.14.14.

V. 34. And as for the Prophet, and the Prieſt, and the people that ſhall ſay, The burden of the Lord, I will even puniſh that man and his houſe.] Or, And as for the Prophet, or the Prieſt, or the people: the copulative for the disjunctive; as ver.18. See ver.33. the words put abſolutely, as Eſay 65.12. that ſhall ſay, the burden of the Lord; in contempt and deriſion, as theſe now do: for otherwiſe the term was afterward uſed by Gods own Prophets, who ſo entituled their prophecies, Zach. 9. 1. Mal. 1. 1.

I will even puniſh that man and his houſe.] Heb. and (as ver.33.) I will viſit upon (as ver.2.) that man, (be he Prieſt, pretended Prophet, or private man) and upon his houſe; not he alone, but his whole family, or iſſue, (for the word is uſed of either, Chap.21.11,12.) ſhall ſmart for it; as Joſh.7.24,25. Zach.5.4.

V. 35. Thus ſhall ye ſay every one to his neighbour, and every one to his brother,] Heb. a man to his neighbour, or, friend, or, familiar, and a man to his brother; that is, ſay ye thus (as chap. 22.8. ver.33.) one to another, as ver.27,28. Chap.31.34.

what hath the Lord anſwered? and what hath the Lord ſpoken?] Speak ye in more reverent and religious manner, when ye come to enquire of ought from me by my Prophet. So ver.35.

and what hath the Lord ſpoken?] Or, or what, &c. as it is well rendred, ver.37.

V. 36. And the burden of the Lord ye ſhall mention no more] Or, But (as ver.14.) mention ye the burden of the Lord no more. This term, being grown into ſuch groſs abuſe with them, God would have to be forborn; and more reverent and reſpective language uſed to his meſſengers, and of his meſſages. See the like, Hoſ.2.16.

for every mans word ſhall be his burden] That which they thus deride and jeer ſhall befall them; and a burden indeed then ſhall they find and feel it to be. See Chap.5.13,14. or this your mockery of Gods meſſengers and meſſages, ſhall bring burden enough upon you, ye ſhall pay dearly for it. See Eſay 28.22. Heb. a burden to a man ſhall his word be: a man, for, every one; as ver.35. or, as ſome, becauſe his word is a burden to every one of you; becauſe ye count Gods Word as a burden, Chap.6.10.

for ye have perverted the words of the living God, of the Lord of hoſts our God.] Or, becauſe ye have perverted, (Heb. and, as Eſay 64.5.) or, pervert; as Chap.3.21,25. Some render it, if ye pervert (as Chap.18.8. either by deriding, or miſconſtruing) the words of the living God, (the onely true God, Chap. 10.10. and ſenſible therefore of the wrong ye herein do him) the Lord of hoſts (and able to take vengeance upon you for it) our God: from whom we ſpeak, and who ſpeaketh by us and in us, Eſay 1.2. Chap.15.19. 2 Cor.5.20. & 13.3. for that of the Rabbine ſeemeth ſomewhat curious; ours: not yours; becauſe ye have rejected and forſaken him, Eſay 1.4. Chap. 1. 16.

V. 37. Thus ſhalt thou ſay to the Prophet, what hath the Lord anſwered thee? or, What hath the Lord ſpoken?] Heb. And what, &c. the copulative in a disjunctive notion; as ver. 35. See the ſame with this there, ſave that here that is delivered in the ſingular, as ſpeaking to each particular perſon, as ver.34. that was there ſpoken, as to the main body of them, in the plural.

V. 38. But ſith ye ſay, The burden of the Lord: Therefore thus ſaith the Lord; becauſe ye ſay this word, The burden of the Lord; and I have ſent unto you, ſaying, Ye ſhall not ſay, The burden of the Lord.] Or, And if (ſo is the Hebrew term) ye will ſay, The burden of the Lord: (if ye will ſtill perſiſt in uſing this ſcoffing language; as ver.36.) for this cauſe, thus ſaith the Lord; becauſe ye ſay this word; The burden of the Lord; (ſince that ye ſtill uſe this term) albeit, (ſo is the copulative uſed, Eſay 10. 5. & 49.4.) I have ſent unto you, ſaying, Ye ſhall not ſay, The burden of the Lord; notwithſtanding this my ſtrict prohibition to the contrary.

V. 39. Therefore behold I, even I will utterly forget you] Heb. And (as ver.34.) I will forgetting forget you; as Deut.8.19. I will look no more after, take no more care of you, regard you no more for your good, then as if I had clean forgotten you. So Hoſ.4.6.

and I will forſake you, and the city that I gave you and your fathers,] So ver.34. nor need we, with that Jewiſh Critick, alter the word by change of a letter, to make it ſignifie, I will pluck you up: of which change, ſee alſo on chap.18.14.

I gave to you and your fathers] So chap.25.5.

and caſt you out of my preſence.] As heavy and unuſefull burdens, ſaith one, are wont to be caſt away: or rather, as things loathſome and abominable are wont to be caſt out of ſight, chap.15.1. the word of caſting is not in the text: there is no more there, then, I will forſake you —— out of my preſence, or, from, being before my face; but it is not amiſs ſupplyed; ſee the like defective, or complexive forms of ſpeech, Pſal.89.39. with 44. Eſay 14.12. & 38.17.

V. 40. And I will bring an everlaſting reproach upon you, and a perpetual ſhame, which ſhall not be forgotten.] Heb. I will give, or, put (as Ezek.37.7.) upon you a reproach of perpetuity, and a ſhame of perpetuity; that is, ſuch as ſhall ſtick to them, and abide by them for ever. See the like, chap.20.11.

CHAP. XXIV.

Verſ. 1. THe Lord ſhewed me,] Heb. Made me to ſee; as Amos 7.1, 4, 8. & 8.1. to wit, in a viſion, as Eſay 6. 1.

and behold two baskets of figs were ſet before the Temple of the Lord;] The word dud here after uſed, ver.2. whereof this queſtionleſſe is the plural: and in the Chaldee duda with aleph, 2 King.4.38 ſignifieth ſometime, a pot, or, caldron, 1 Sam. 2. 14. 1 Chron. 35. 13. and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors here render it: ſometime, a basket, or, a maund, 2 King.10.7. and ſo the Chaldee, whom other of them rather follow, here expreſſeth it; agreeable to that in the Law, Deut.26.2. hence, the plural dudae in a contracted form, in regard of its regiment, which in his entire ſhape would be dudaim, a word of ſignification very uncertain, uſed Cant.7.14. and contracted as this here, Gen.30.14,15,16. but ſuch as ſeemeth to have no affinity at all with this no more then ſir, for, a pot, Exod.16.3. with ſir, for a thorn, Eſay 34.13. or, then tſir, for a meſſenger, Prov.13.17. and tſir, for, pain, or, torment, Eſay 21.7. and tſir, for, an hinge, Prov.26.14. and tſir, for, an image, Eſay 45.16. for it is abſurd to imagine, that whereſoever the letters are found the ſame, the word muſt of neceſſity be the ſame, as well for ſenſe, as for ſound: As for the redundancy of aleph, in this dudaim, and dudae, from dud; the Jewiſh Critick upon the place directeth us for the like unto lulaoth, for, loops, Exod. 26.5. from lul; whence lulim, for, winding ſtairs, 1 King. 6.8. and the like ſuperfluity of aleph may be obſerved, in chalaim, for jewels, Cant.7.1. as alſo in tachaluim, and tachalue, for, diſeaſes, and diſeaſed, Chap.14.18. & 16.4. and in betſaoth, for, meers, or, miry places, Ezek.47.11. though our Engliſh manner of pronunciation expreſs it not: as alſo in ſome verbs; as in heeznichu, they have driven away, Eſay 19.6. and, in egalti, I have polluted, Eſay 63.3. and as aleph is, beſide the common analogy found added in theſe; ſo is it in like manner found wanting in others; as in ſherith, for, a remnant, 1 Chr.12.38. in maccolet, for, meat, 1 King.5.11. in maleph, a teacher, Job 35. 11. and many other the like: And though it ſhould be objected (as I ſee not why it ſhould) that none of theſe are in all reſpects parallel to this, it might well be anſwered, that ſome irregularities have no match; as beſide divers of thoſe before pointed to, ſo that of battim, or, bottim, for houſes, from bayit, for, an houſe: and banim, for, ſons, from ben, for, a ſon: and the like therefore may be here; yea, whether it have any match or no, certain it is, that the two dudae here mentioned are no other then thoſe, whereof it is immediately after ſubjoyned, the one dud, and the other dud: and this word dud having a plain and known ſenſe, it is but a needleſs work to hunt after any other far-fetcht notion for it, when we have already one at hand.

were ſet] Heb. onely ſet. Behold two baskets of figs ſet, or, ſtanding: for the word is a participle, not a verb; as Ezek. 21. 16.

before the Temple of the Lord] As preſented unto him for firſt-fruits, or the like, Deut.26.2.

after that Nebuchadrezzar the King of Babylon had carryed away captive Jeconiah, the ſon of Jehoiakim King of Judah, with the carpenters and ſmiths from Jeruſalem, and had brought them to Babylon.] The date of this prophecy, and time of the apparition, which from hence appeareth to have been about the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah. See 2 King. 24.12,14 ——16. 2 Chr.36.10. Chap.29.2.

Nebuchadrezzar] See Chap.21.2.

with the carpenters] The word here uſed is rendred craftſmen, 2 King.24.14,16. and it comprehends as well as carpenters, maſons alſo, and ſmiths. See on Eſay 3.3. & 40.19. & 41.7. Heb. and the craftſmen: nor need the particle be altered; but the noun is taken collectively, as alſo the next is.

ſmiths] About this word more doubt is made, becauſe in the notion wherein it is here uſed, it is not oft found, and but in this ſtory: in the reſt of the Scripture not at all: it ſignifieth properly an incloſure, (whence it is uſed for a priſon, Pſal. 142.7. Eſay 24.22. & 42.7.) or, an incloſer; and ſo both the ancient Greek and old Latine render it: and from ſome ſuch notion the Chaldee conſtantly rendreth it door-keepers, or, porters, ſuch as ſhut the doores, Mal.1.10. yet ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks, noblemen, men of price, or, worth; as from a word that is uſed for gold, Job 28. 15. or another, not much differing from that, that ſignifieth purified, or, refined; and is never found uſed but of gold; 1 King. 6.20,21. & 7.49,50. & 10.21. 2 Chr. 4.20,22. & 9.20. but why noblemen and craftſmen ſhould be in this ſtory yoked together, I ſuppoſe little reaſon can be rendred; and as little for that which ſome other would have, that there ſhould by theſe be meant wiſe men and counſellours: or, as others, men skilfull in the law: either ſo termed, by the former title, becauſe all others are ſilent, when they ſpeak, Job 29.9,10. by the latter, becauſe what they ſhut, none can open or aſſoil, Eſay 22. 22. but theſe ſeem trifling niceties, though delivered by ſuch as are deemed to be of the greateſt among the Jewiſh Maſters. And as far from the truth may that well be deemed, which a late Writer hath of military men, men skilful in entrenching and raiſing of works, either to ſecure Beſiegers, and to ſtraiten the beſieged, or to ſtrengthen the beſieged againſt the beſiegers: to which purpoſe he telleth us, that thoſe who are thus termed here, are in the book of the Kings termed, valiant men and warriours; but he was herein much miſtaken; for thoſe are there in the ſame terms mentioned, and thoſe other after them. Others therefore would have the word to ſignifie workmen of ſpeciall note and reckoning, in regard of their skill and cunning, ſuch as thoſe called, the skilfull of artificers, the word before uſed, Eſay 3. 3. I ſuppoſe with ſome of the Ancients, that this latter word ſignifieth properly gold-ſmiths, or ſuch as encloſe, that is, ſet ſtones in gold, or other metal. Though that be not improbable, which one of the middle age ſuggeſteth, who by the former word ſeemeth to underſtand ſmiths, by the other maſons; ſo called, becauſe their employment is in raiſing of walls for the encloſing of cities and other places of habitation, or ſpecial uſe otherwiſe, Cant. 4.12. The Chaldeans, ſaith he, dealt with them as the Philiſtines formerly, that left not a ſmith in Iſrael, 1 Sam. 13.19. So in like manner the Chaldeans carryed away from them, as the ſmiths, that they might not furniſh them with weapons, Eſay 54.16. ſo the maſons alſo, that they might not repair again thoſe breaches, which they had made in the wals of the city: though it may be queſtionable whether they made any at all then, Jehojacin yielding himſelf to him, as under Zedekiah they did afterward, 2 King. 25.19.

V. 2. One basket had very good figs, even like the figs that are firſt ripe:] Heb. The one basket of figs very good, as figs of the rath ripe ones; that is, ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter, as the figs of ſuch fig-trees, as bring rath ripe figs; which are uſually for their forwardneſſe, much eſteemed and deſired. See Eſay 28.4. Hoſ. 9.10.

and] Or, but; as Chap. 23.14. Mal. 1.3.

the other basket had very naughty figs, which could not be eaten they were ſo bad.] Heb. the other of figs very bad (as before) which ſhall not be eaten (the indicative potentially; as Job 6.7. ſo alſo, ver. 3,8.) for badneſſe; as, for fear, Job 22.4. So ver. 3,8. See Chap. 29.17. where the ſame, in effect, is found.

V. 3. Then ſaid the Lord unto me] Heb. And the Lord ſaid, as Chap. 23.33.

what ſeeſt thou, Jeremiah?] See Chap. 1.11.

and I ſaid, figs, the good figs, very good; and the evil figs very evil, that cannot be eaten they are ſo evil.] Or, the bad figs very bad, that cannot be eaten, they are ſo bad: for of ſuch things we uſe not the word evil: and the word is, firſt and laſt, the ſame, both here, and ver. 2.

V. 4. Again the word of the Lord came unto me, ſaying,] Heb. And (as Hoſ. 11.6.) the word of the Lord was to me; as Chap. 1.1,11.

V. 5. Thus ſaith the Lord, the God of Iſrael,] That hath not yet ſo caſt of all care of the ſeed of Jacob, or regard to them, as that he ſhould ceaſe wholly to be their God, Eſay 41.9. & 44.21. Chap. 31.36,37. & 34.26.

Like theſe good figs, ſo will I acknowledge them that are carryed away captive of Judah, whom I have ſent out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans for their good.] Here God beginneth to enform the Prophet what by this apparition was meant, and what by thoſe two maunds of figs, ſo diverſly conditioned, was intended.

Rom. 8.28. 1 Cor. 11.30,32. Phil. 1. 12, 19. and ſo this clauſe ſhould have reference to Gods ſending of them out, in theſe words, I have ſent out; yet it may rather have reference to the foregoing words, of Gods owning, or taking notice of them, in thoſe words, I will own, or take notice of them, whom I have ſo ſent out, for good: for the Hebrew hath no more. So Chap. 21.10. I will ſet my face againſt them for evil, and not for good: the former ſeemeth to have ſome ſtrength from that which followeth, ver. 9. the latter from what immediately is ſubjoyned, ver. 6. As for that which ſome hence gather, that God ſhould approve of Jeconiahs yielding himſelf to Nebuchadnezzar, as done in obedience to the like command with that, Chap. 21.8,9. & 38.17,18. neither is it very probable, nor hath it place here.

V. 6. For] Heb. And; which need not here be altered.

V. 7. And I will give them an heart to know me, that I am the Lord;] So to know me, as to acknowledge me for their God, and to carry themſelvs accordingly for matter of obedience towards me. So Deut. 30.6. Chap. 32.39. Ezek. 11.19. & 36.27. 1 Tim. 5.20.

and they ſhall be my people, and I will be their God:] Heb. And they ſhall be to me for people, and I will be unto them for God. Such a mutual relation, and entire communion, ſhall be between me and them, that it ſhall appear, that I regard them as their God, and they carry themſelves toward me, as my people. So Chap. 7.23. & 30.22. & 31.33. & 32.38. the ancient covenant being between me and them renewed, Gen. 17.7,19. Exod. 20.3,5,6. Deut. 26.17,18.

for they ſhall return unto me with their whole heart.] Or, when (as Chap. 10.2. & 11.23.) they ſhall return unto me (by repentance and amendment of their ways, Eſay 55.6.) with their whole heart: not feignedly, as in former times, Chap. 3.10. Pſal. 78.36,37. but ſincerely, Pſal. 119.2,10. Chap. 29.13.

V. 9. And I will deliver them] Or, I will, I ſay, (as Eſay 55.1. & 58.10. & 59.17.) give them up, or, deliver them; as ver. 8.

in the fourth year of Jehojakim the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah,] By the date of this prophecy, compared together with that next before,Chap.24.and the next following, Chap.26. that appeareth,which formerly hath been obſerved, Chap. 22. that the Prophecies, or Sermons, in this book recorded are not diſpoſed,or ranked,according to the preciſe order of time wherein they were delivered, that foregoing, in time coming after this; and that following, ſome time before it.

that was the firſt year of Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon.] Or,which was; the demonſtrative for the relative.But hence ſome doubt ariſeth concerning the compoſure of the firſt year of Nebuchadrezzar with the fourth of Jehojakim: whereas Dan.1.1. it is ſaid that in the third year of Jehojakims reign Nebuchadnezzar came to Jeruſalem, beſieged and took it. To which anſwer is given by ſome, that the third year mentioned in Daniel, is not the third year of Jehojakims reign,but the third year of the Sabbatical courſe; the like whereunto they ſuppoſe to be found, Chap. 28.1. But whatſoever may be ſaid of this latter place,whereof further when we come to it, that of Daniel ſeems ſo expreſs for the year of Jehojakims reign, that it cannot be ſo avoided. And others rather anſwer,that the firſt year of Nebuchadnezzars abſolute reign, wherein he reigned after his fathers deceaſe, concurred (as it oft falleth out) partly with the latter part of Jehojakims third year, and partly with the former part of his fourth; and that it may well be therefore,that in the latter part of Jehojakims third year, he might advance toward Jeruſalem, or arrive and ſit down there, and ſurprize it in the beginning of his fourth. So Don Joſeph upon Daniel, for Jehojakim was ſet up by Pharaoh-Nechoh in the room of Jehoachaz his brother, 2 King.23.34. but Nebuchadnezzar having abandoned the power of Pharaoh in thoſe parts, 2 King.25.7.about this third and fourth of Iehojakims reign came to Ieruſalem,took the city,and took away divers choice youths of the bloud royal to be trained up for attendance on him in his court at Babylon, Dan. 1.3. yet left Jehojakim enjoying the crown and kingdom ſtill, onely holding now from him, as from Nechoh he did formerly; untill about three years after,when finding diſloyalty in him,he returned again,took him captive,and carryed him to Babylon, 2 King. 25.1,2. 2 Chron.36.6.Ezek.19.9. See the like to this, Ch. 52.28. For Ioſeph the Iew, with thoſe that follow him, are far out of the way,who in his Jewiſh antiquities,l.10.c.7. writeth, that this firſt invaſion of Iudea by Nebuchadnezzar, was in the fourth year of his reign, and the eighth of Iehojakims; which the calculations of the ſacred records do evidently refel. Nor ſhall we need to have recourſe to that which a learned Writer ſuggeſteth,to wit, that in Daniel the words may be rendred, After the third year of Jehojakims reign; becauſe the particle there uſed doth ſo ſignifie, Exod. 2.23.& Num.28.26. Since that ſuch uſe of it in theſe conjugations is unuſuall; and the other way is familiar.

V. 2. The word which Jeremiah the Prophet ſpake unto all the people of Judah,and unto all the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, ſaying;] Unto all thoſe, that out of all parts of the land, repaired to Ieruſalem, (for it is not to be imagined that he went up and down to publiſh it from town to town, or from city to city) as well as unto thoſe that had their places of abode there; becauſe it concerned all of them, as well the one as the other,ver.1. and the former part of this prophecy is concerning them in particular; denouncing their deſtruction,ver,8—11.for their obſtinacy in their wicked courſes, notwithſtanding the manifold admonitions and warnings from time to time given them, both by Ieremy, and other Gods meſſengers,ver.3—7. and yet promiſing a reſtitution at ſeventy years end,ver.12—14.for the latter part is more general, containing a denunciation of the like judgment againſt ſundry ſeveral nations at large reckoned, the King of Babylon himſelf, by whom they were to ſuffer,not excepted, ver.15-38.

V. 3. From the thirteenth year of Joſiah the ſon of Amon King of Judah,even unto this day, (that is, the three and twentieth year) the word of the Lord hath come unto me,] To convince them of their obſtinacy,he relateth how aſſiduous and ſedulous God himſelf by his Prophets, and his Prophets from him,for a long time had been, in admoniſhing them of their wicked courſes, and endeavouring to reclaim them from the ſame; but all to no purpoſe, without any fruit, or good effect.

From the thirteenth year of Joſiah] So is the time of his calling to the Prophetical function preciſely fixed, Chap. 1. 2.

the ſon of Amon] So Chap.1.2.

this is the three and twentieth year] Heb.this three and twenty year; which need not be altered, nor put into any parentheſis: for twelve entire years being taken from the thirty and one of Joſiah,2 King.22.1. there will eighteen (with ſome advantage in likelyhood) remain; whereunto if we add ſix months,2 King.23.31.together with the third poer expiring, or fourth beginning of Jehojakims reign, the ſum of twenty and three will ariſe. So this prophecy ſeemeth to have been delivered much about the time of Nebuchadnezzars firſt invaſion of Judea,and ſurpriſing of Jeruſalem, or very ſhortly after it; and to be of the ſame date with that recorded, Ch. 36.1.

and I have ſpoken unto you riſing early and ſpeaking:] I have not failed to deliver faithfully to you, what I received from God; and that with all ſedulity, aſſiduity and diligence, for ſo much this form of ſpeech importeth. See Chap. 7.13,25. withall alluding, as ſome think, to the time of the morning meeting for Gods ſolemn ſervice, Num.28.4. 2 King. 3. 20. Luk.21.36.Act.2. 15. at which time it is not unlikely that the Prophet uſually preached,there being then the greateſt concourſe of people in the Temple: but the alluſion ſeems more general unto all ſort of diligent and induſtrious perſons,that riſe early to attend and follow their ſeveral employments in their ſeveral places, magiſtrates to ſit in judgment, merchants to attend their trade,workmen and labouring men to follow their days work, Pſal. 101. 8. & 104. 23. & 127. 2. Chap.21.12.

and dwell in the land] Or, ſo ſhall ye dwell in the land. as Pſal.37,3. and be fed; and dwell,for,ſo ſhalt thou be fed,and, ſo ſhalt thou dwell.

V. 6. And go not after other gods to ſerve them,and to worſhip them,] As both you and your fathers have from time to time done, Chap.16.11.

V.8. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts;Becauſe ye have not heard my words.] That is, not hearkened to him, and yielded obedience to them; but refuſed and rejected them,as Chap.7. 19. for had they not heard? yes,undoubtedly. See ver. 3, 4.

4. heard they had, (which aggravated their guilt) but obeyed they had not. See Rom.10.16,18,19.

V.9. Behold, I will ſend and take all the families of the North] What is termed ſending and taking here, is expreſſed by calling, Chap.1.15. and thoſe here called the families of the North, are called the Kingdoms of the North there: family, for, Kingdome: as Chap.8.3. thoſe of the ſeveral Kingdoms and Nations ſubject to the Chaldean Monarch, (whoſe country lay to the North of Judea, Chap.1.14. & 6.22.) and ſerving under him; whom by a ſecret Inſtinct, God would cauſe to come as readily and unanimouſly unto this ſervice, as if he had ſent ſome meſſengers to them to invite them thereunto, or ſome leaders to bring them on. See the like, Eſay 13.2-4. Heb. I am ſending and will take; that is, I am ſending to take, as Joſh.24.9. to take them up for this ſervice, and bring them on thereunto.

and Nebuchadrezzar the King of Babylon my Servant;] Heb. and to Nebuchadrezzar. I will ſend to him as well as to them; to bring them to him, (whom I intend to employ as my Commander in chief for this expedition, to do me ſpecial ſervice therein: as Chap.27.6. & 43.10. Ezek.29.18,20.) and to bring him and them together againſt this land, and the neighbouring countries. Thus doth the Lord ſhew himſelf to be the Lord of hoaſts, ver.8. and that he hath all the creatures, even wicked men, and the devils themſelves, at command, Pſal.119.91. & 148.8. making uſe of them, even without their privity, and beſide their purpoſes, Eſay 10.5,7. and 45.4,5. for his own glory, the correction and dejection of ſome, and the reſtitution and advancement of others, Prov. 16.4. and againſt all theſe nations round about,] That ye may not in vain expect or hope for any help againſt him from them. Whence it appeareth that Nebuchadnezzar had not as yet made entire conqueſt of thoſe neighbouring nations, when this prophecy was delivered; whom yet having ſubdued, he made uſe of afterward againſt Judah and Jeruſalem, when Jehojakim proved diſloyal to him, 2 King.24.1,2. he having at that time taken away from the Egyptian all the power and intereſt that he had in thoſe parts, and the regions thereabout as far as to Euphrates, 2 King.24.7.

V. 10. Moreover, I will take from them] Or, I will alſo take from them. Heb. And (which may well here be retained) I will cauſe to periſh from them; as Obad.8.

the ſound of the milſtones] Heb. the voice of the mill: and ſo alſo Rev.18.22. that which ſome underſtand, ſimply of the noiſe that the milſtones in grinding are wont to make: alluded to Eccleſ.12.4. implying that bread-corn, and bread it ſelf conſequently, (ſee Zach.9.16.) and together with it, whatſoever ſupply they had of means, wherewith to maintain, not jolity alone, but life and ſubſiſtence, ſhould be taken away: as Eſay 3.1. But ſome others underſtand it of ſuch ſongs as women uſed to ſing, to paſſe the time away, while they wrought at the hand-mill, Exod.11.5. Mat.24.41. Luk. 17.35. of which kind of ditties, we have ſome yet extant in the monuments of the ancient Greeks. And ſome again going alſo this way, reſtrain it to the ſongs uſed by ſuch at the grinding of corn for flower to make bride-cakes and ſpiced bread with for weddings; becauſe it is joyned here with ſuch wedding ſolemnities: but that ſeems of little weight, ſince that in that parallel place of John, where all theſe particulars are recited, it is ſubjoyned not to weddings, but to artificers; nor is it adjoyned to the former in this place. I concur rather with the firſt. Of the word here rendred milſtones, ſee on Eſay 57.2.

V. 11. And this whole land ſhall be a deſolation, and an aſtoniſhment,] Heb. all this land (to wit, Judea) ſhall be unto devaſtation, unto aſtoniſhment, or, deſolation; as it is alſo commonly taken, and rendred, chap.2.15. & 4.7. & 18.16. and ſo would rather here: and though the root it comes of have ſometime alſo a notion of aſtoniſhment, Lev.26.32. chap.2.12. Ezek.26.16. whence it may ſeem to be not amiſs ſo rendred, ver. 9. yet I ſuppoſe that but a groundleſſe nicety of a learned Writer, who would have the noun here uſed, and thence deduced, to be not a ſimple, but a compound term, and to ſignifie, there what? or what is there? as taken up from the uſual ſpeech of folk, who ſeeing a place ſtrangely defaced and waſted, are wont to ſay, what is there there? or, what have we here?

ſeventy years] The term and ſtint of the Jewiſh captivity, together with the ſervitude of thoſe other neighbouring nations, under the Chaldean Monarchy, is here preciſely ſet down, as for the further confirmation of the truth of this prophecy, ſo more ſpecially, for the better ſupport of the faithful during the time of their captivity, and nouriſhing in them an hopeful expectation of their undoubted deliverance, when that term of years ſhould be expired, Dan.9.3. Concerning the determination whereof, the agreement ſeems to be more general, the Holy Ghoſt having in the ſacred records expreſly fixed it upon the firſt year of Cyrus his abſolute reign, 2 Chr. 36. 22. Ezr.1.1. But about the time or tearm from which thoſe years commence is doubt made by divers. For ſome begin them at the date of this preſent prophecy, from the fourth year of Jehojakims reign, ver.1. about which time Nebuchadnezzar having given a great overthrow unto Pharaoh-Necho, King of Egypt, chap.46.2. did afterward alſo upon this occaſion invade Judea; Pharaoh-Necho had gone to recover Carchemiſh from the King of Aſſyria, 2 King. 23. 29. & 2 Chr.35.20. and having by the way ſlain Joſiah in fight, upon his return from thence entring upon Iudea, he put down Iehoachaz, whom the people had made King in his fathers room, and ſet up Iehojakim, his brother, in his ſtead, 2 King. 33.29,30,33,34. but Neduchadnezzar having met with the Egyptian, and given him the fore-mentioned overthrow, ſtruck into Iudea, came to Ieruſalem, took it, as may ſeem, without any notable reſiſtance, and compelled Iehojakim to renounce his tenure from the crown of Egypt, and to hold it, which Iehojakim was content to do, from him, 2 King.24.1. And from this ſurpriſal of Ieruſalem, in Iehojakims third and fourth year, ver.1. Dan.1.1. do divers writers make theſe ſeventy years to commence. But howſoever it be true indeed that at that time the Chaldean gave order to ſome of his Miniſters to bring with him unto Babylon ſome yong ſtriplings of the bloud-royall and princely alliance; to be trained up for his ſervice and attendance in his Court there, whereof Daniel was one Dan.1.34. yet neither did he then either carry away captive or depoſe Jehojakin, who continued his reign ſeven years after that 2 Kings. 23.36. 2 Chro.36.5. neither is there mention in the ſacred records, either of any great devaſtation at that time made in the land, or of any conſiderable number, that ſhould then be carried away captive. Others therefore chooſe rather to fix it at the eleventh year of Zedekiah; at which time that kingdom and ſtate ſeemed to draw its laſt breath. Lam.4. 20. for then was the city not onely ſurpriſed and ſacked, but together with the Temple, and the Kings Palace, a great part of it burnt down, the ſtate royal diſſolved, and a more general deportation of the people of the land then had at any time been before, 2 King.25.4-21. 2 Chr.36.17-20. chap.52.5-30. This further to confirm, they alledge that ſaying, 2 Chr.36. 20, 21. that thoſe which had eſcaped the ſword, were carryed away to Babylon, where they were ſervants to him (to wit, Nebuchadnezzar) and his ſons, untill the reign of the Kingdom of Perſia: to fulfill the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah, untill the land had enjoyed her Sabbaths: for ſo long as ſhe lay deſolate ſhe kept Sabbath, untill the ſeventy years were fulfilled. But hereunto is anſwer given, the end or uttermoſt term of the lands ſabbatiſing after it began to ly waſte is there ſpecified, and it is ſaid onely to have ſabbatiſed ſo long as it ſo lay waſte: but neither is mention made of the beginning of thoſe ſeventy years, nor that the land lay in that manner waſte that whole ſeventy years time, from that year commencing: and the like they find in the ſame chapter, where it is ſaid of Jehojacin, that he reigned three months and ten days, and when the yeer came about, or, expired, Nebuchadnezzar ſent and brought him to Babylon, 2 Chr. 36. 9, 10. yet is not the meaning, that he reigned an entire yeer; but that when that yeer went out, the three laſt moneths whereof onely with a few days over he reigned, this his ſurpriſal fell out. Others therefore laſtly, with whom I concur, begin them at the captivity of Jeconiah, or Jehojacin, Chap. 22. 24—26. at what time Nebuchadnezzar in the eighth yeer of his reign took him priſoner, having ſate little above three months in the royall ſeat, together with his mother, his Princes, and his officers, and carryed them away with him to Babylon; and beſides them all the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and all the men of might or valour in the land, ſome ſeven thouſand in number, and all the artificers, and ſmiths, or, maſons, a thouſand, and all that were ſtrong and fit for war, ten thouſand in all: leaving none ſave of the pooreſt ſort of people behind, 2 King. 24. 8—16. And this beginning of the ſeventy years captivity we have both from Jeremy and Ezekiel: for Jeremy himſelf, the fitteſt and beſt able to fix the head of this account, writing unto thoſe that were in captivity at Babylon, being carryed thither with Jeconiah, in the time of Zedekiahs reign, chap. 29. 1, 2, 3. telleth them expreſly, that when as ſeventy yeers ſhould be accompliſhed, God would viſit them, and bring them back to their own country again, chap. 29. 10. as alſo, Ezek. 4. 1. the captivity is ſaid to have begun eleven yeer before the ſacking of the city under Zedekiah; for the fourteenth yeer after the ſacking of the city, is ſaid expreſly to be the twenty and fift yeer of their captivity: And again the firſt tidings are ſaid to have been brought unto him abiding among the captives at Babylon, of the ſurpriſal of the city, by one that had eſcaped thence, in the twelfth yeer of their captivity, Chap. 33. 21. which cometh up juſt to Jeconiahs deportation, the eleven yeers of Zedekiahs reign coming between, 2 King. 24. 18. & 25. 2—4. whereby it evidently appeareth, that the yeers of their captivity were reckoned, neither from the fourth of Jehojakim, nor from the eleventh of Zedekiah, but between them both, from the deportation of the people together with Jehojacin, or Jeconiah.

V. 12. And it ſhall come to paſſe when ſeventy yeers are accompliſhed, that I will puniſh the King of Babylon, and that nation, ſaith the Lord, for their iniquity, and the land of the Chaldeans;] Thus the deſtruction of Babylon, and the deliverance of Gods people out of that captivity, Chap. 29. 10. do concur in time exactly the one with the other. See Eſay 14. 1.

it ſhall come to paſſe] Heb. it ſhall be; as chap. 17. 24.

when ſeventy yeers are accompliſhed] Of theſe ſeventy, ſix and thirty compleat, are of Nebuchadnezzars reign; for ſo we find that the firſt yeer of Evil-Merodac his ſons reign concurred with the ſeven and thirtieth yeer of Jehojacins captivity, 2 King. 25. 27. chap. 52. 31. the other thirty and four are to be divided between Evil-Merodac, and Belſhazzar, (the latter of which reigned two, at leaſt, compleat; for of his third is mention made, Dan. 8. 1.) unleſſe ſome vacation or uſurpation, as ſome deem, came between their two reigns. See chap. 37. 7. and out of Beroſus his Chaldean ſtory, Joſeph the Jew in his firſt book againſt Apion. For as for the Jewiſh Doctors that will give Evil-Merodac onely twenty three; and to make up the ſum reckon from the firſt of Nebuchadnezzar, and the fourth of Jehojakim, taking in the whole forty five of Nebuchadnezzars reign; they ſeem to go but on mere ſurmiſe for the former, and to croſſe the Prophets own computation in the former, ſee on ver. 11.

that] Supplied, as Eſay 4. 7.

I will puniſh for their iniquity] Heb. I will viſit upon them their iniquity; as Exod. 34. 7. Chap. 23. 2, 34. as he will viſit his people then in mercy, Chap. 29. 10. ſo he will viſit their oppreſſours then in wrath, for the wrongs done by them to his people. See Eſay 47. 6. & 51. 22, 23. Chap. 17. 18. & 51. 35, 36. So Gen. 15. 13, 14. Eſay 10. 12.

the King of Babylon] Not Nebuchadrezzar, but one of his iſſue and ſucceſſours in that Empire, Belſhazzar. See on Eſay 14. 4-19.

that nation] The Chaldeans, chap. 6. 12. & 24. 5. together with their land; by deſtruction the one, by devaſtation the other.

and will make it perpetual deſolations.] Heb. put it unto deſolations, or devaſtations, of perpetuity, or diuturnity; as ver. 9. See Eſay 13. 19. & 14. 23. chap. 50. 40. & 51. 26.

V. 13. And I will bring upon that land all my words that I have pronounced againſt it, even all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath propheſied againſt all the nations.] Hence ſome gather, that thoſe enſuing prophecies from chap. 46. to 51. the two laſt whereof do at large foretell and deſcribe the ruine of Babylon, were preached before this: and the ancient Greek therefore doth here, after theſe words, inſert them, in a confuſed way. But hereof there is no neceſſity.

And] Or, So; as Chap. 11. 18. ver. 14.

againſt all the nations] See the title prefixed at Chap. 45. 1.

V. 14. For many nations, and great Kings, ſhall ſerve themſelves of them alſo:] As many nations with their Kings ſhall for a time ſerve them; ſo after the term of that monarchy run out, they ſhall ſerve themſelves of them. Whence ſome obſerve, that theſe ſeventy yeers are to commence, not ſo much from the utter deſolation of the land of Judea, and thoſe other countries hereafter mentioned, as from their ſervitude, ſee on ver. 11.

many nations] The Medes and Perſians with others ſubject to them, and ſerving under them, Eſay 13. 4. Dan. 5. 28, 31. yet the word in the original is ambiguous to many, or great. So Pſal. 25. 11.

great Kings] Darius and Cyrus: under whoſe conduct thoſe forces conſiſting of divers nations came againſt Babylon. See Eſay 21. 7, 9. & 43. 14. & 45. 1.

ſhall ſerve themſelves of them] Heb. have ſerved upon them; which the old Latine following, rendreth the words, becauſe they ſerved them when they were many nations, and great Kings: and this ſome expound, as if the reaſon were here rendred, why the nations before-mentioned, ver. 13. ſhould ſo ſuffer, to wit, becauſe they had ſerved againſt Gods people under the Chaldeans: which though true of ſome of them hereafter mentioned, 2 King. 24. 2. Pſal. 137. 7. yet of ſome of them, the Egyptians eſpecially, is not true, Chap. 37. 5. and others therefore ſay, becauſe that Gods people had ſerved them and they had dealt rigorouſly and cruelly with them: to which purpoſe, a learned Writer citeth one of the Jewiſh Doctors, who ſhould ſo expound the place: but the Jewiſh Commenter, whom he citeth, ſaith no ſuch matter: he rather directly controlleth it; for firſt he obſerveth, that the verb of the time paſt is put here for the future, as our Verſion well rendreth it; then that the word of ſervice (which this Author alſo in part admitteth) in the ſyntax here uſed ſignifies, not to ſerve one, but to exact ſervice of one, or to ſerve ones ſelf upon one, (of which ſee on chap. 30. 8. & 34. 10. as alſo, ſee Ezek. 34. 27.) and laſtly, that the words are meant of the Kings of Media, and Perſia, with their people, who ſhould have the Chaldeans to ſerve them, as they had done with others before: and this expoſition is confirmed by that parallel place, Chap. 37. 7.

of them alſo] Heb. upon them; upon them alſo, as they have done upon others: or, even upon them; as Eſay 57. 6, 7. howſoever it may ſeem a matter very unlikely at preſent.

and I will recompenſe them according to their deeds, according to the works of their own hands.] Or, ſo; as ver. 13. or, thus, as chap. 7. 34. will I repay them, or, render unto them; as the word is rendred, chap. 51. 24.

V. 15. For thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael unto me;] Or, For thus ſaid the Lord, the God of Iſrael unto me; to wit, at that time when he delivered me the fore-going meſſage, ver. 1.

Take the wine-cup of this fury at mine hand,] Or rather, Take this wine-cup of wrath. Heb. heat, or, fervour: whence ſome render it, this ſmoaking wine-cup; an argument of anger, Eſay 6. 4. See Rev. 14. 10, 11. Eſay 51. 17, 22. from my hand. Thoſe judgments and afflictions that God allotteth, eſpecially out of anger and wrath to any, are in Scripture frequently compared to a cup of ſome hot or heady drink that doth exceedingly diſtemper. See Pſal. 11. 6. & 60. 3. & 75. 8. Job 21. 20. Lam. 4. 21. Ezek. 23. 32-34. Such a cup in a viſion is reached out to Jeremy, and he enjoyned, taking it out of Gods hand, to go with it unto the nations hereafter mentioned, and to tender it unto them.

and cauſe all the nations to whom I ſend thee to drink it.] Heb. make to drink it all the nations, whom I am ſending thee unto them: an elegant redundancy, very common in this language: ſo 1 King. 21. 11.

V. 16. And they ſhall drink it, and be moved, and be mad; becauſe of the ſword that I will ſend among them.] The effects of this drink, together with an explication of it, what it is: ſee further, ver. 27, 29.

they ſhall drink it] They ſhall be enforced to drink of it, whether they will or no, ver. 28. or, that they may drink it; as Chap. 22. 10. & 23. 18, 21. Mal. 1. 9.

and be moved] None of them being ſo ſtrong, as to be able to bear it; but ſhall be overcome with it: as chap. 23. 9. The word may well be rendred, They ſhall be toſſed, or, ſhall toſſe themſelves to and fro. See chap. 5. 22. as men unquiet and reſtleſſe, by occaſion of drink that diſturbeth their brains, or being in a diſtemper of frenſie, are wont to do, Prov. 23. 34.

and be mad] As men that are mad-drunk. So Ezek. 23. 34. chap. 51. 7.

becauſe of the ſword]Heb.from before, or, from the face of; that is,by reaſon of; as chap.23.9.

the ſword] That is,hoſtile invaſion with fire and ſword: ſo is the term ſword,commonly taken, Lev, 26. 25. Eſay 1.20. Ezek.30.4. and that is the cup, or wine of Gods wrath, the ſmoking liquor before-mentioned.So ver.27,29.

I ſhall ſend] For by his appointment,and with his commiſſion,it cometh,Chap.47.6,7.Ezek.14.17.

V. 17. Then took I the cup at the Lords hand]Or,So (as ver. 14.Heb.And; So Chap.13.2,5.) I took the cup from the Lords hand: being by his hand, in viſion, reached out to me, ver.15.

and made all them to drink,unto whom the Lord had ſent me.] As ver.15.either in viſion,or by denunciation. See chap.27.4. ver.30. For that conceit of a learned Writer ſeemeth to me nothing probable, that the Prophet ſhould go up and down with a cup in his hand, and travel to ſo many ſeverall nations,and ſo far remote one from another with it;enough to have taken up a main part of his life.

V. 18. To wit, Jeruſalem,and the cities of Judah] Thus judgment uſually beginneth at Gods own houſe, with Gods own people,Ezek.9.6. 1 Pet.4.27.

and the Kings thereof, and the Princes thereof,] The Kings thereof ſucceſſively,Jehojakim,Jehojacin,and Zedekiah,Ch. 22. 18, 19, 24, 25. and 21. 7. See Chap. 17. verſ. 19, 20,25.

to make them a deſolation,an aſtoniſhment, an hiſſing, and a curſe,] Heb.to give them unto deſolation,&c. See on Chap.24. 9. ver.9.

(as it is this day)] Or, as appeareth this day. So Chap. 4.20,38. & 8.18. 1 King. 8.24. whence ſome gather, that this prophecy was delivered after the captivity of Jehojacin: but the date of it,ver.1.directly controlleth this. Nor can I accord with thoſe, who would have this prophecy to be of a diverſe date from the former: the ſeries of the context, ver. 15. ſeeming not well to admit it: and with thoſe much leſſe, who would have it ſpoken in a prophetical ſtrain,in the time preſent,as of a thing to come, but as ſure to be, as if it were already done, and to be ſeen, even at preſent; becauſe I no where meet with this form ſo uſed. Others ſuppoſe that this clauſe hath relation not to the time when the prophecy was firſt uttered; but the time when it was afterward penned and publiſhed in writing,being made up in one volume together with the reſt of his prophecies; which yet to me ſeems no more probable then the former. I ſuppoſe it was ſhortly after the Chaldean irruption in the third and fourth of Jehojakim, ver. 1. Dan. 1. 1. when the land being queſtionleſſe of neceſſity much plundered by ſo great an army as Nebuchadnezzar in all likelyhood brought with him, after it had not long before by Pharaoh Nechoh been ſo pillaged, the city ſurpriſed, the crown toſſed from one head to another,and enforced to hold from the Egyptian one while, and the Chaldean another while; that diſmal work began then to break forth and diſcover it ſelf, that afterward grew to its higher growth in Jehojacins captivity; and to its full height in the expiring reign of Zedekiah. See 2 King.23.32-37.& 24.1-16.& 25.1-21.

V. 19. Pharaoh King of Egypt, and his ſervants, and his Princes,and all his people.] Pharaoh-Nechoh, chap.46.2. and Pharaoh-Hophra,chap.44.30.his ſucceſſour. Egypt comes in the firſt place, becauſe the Jewiſh people relyed principally upon them,preſuming much upon ſuccours and ſafeguard, which they promiſed unto themſelves from them, chap.37.5. Ezek.29.6,7,16 and the Prophet may ſeem the rather therefore to inſiſt upon particulars concerning them, their Princes, ſervants, and people; (becauſe though their King might miſcarry, yet the State might ſtand, managed by the Peers and Officers of State, and their ſtrength conſiſting in the multitude of their people, might not be much impaired,) to put them out of all hope of ſupport or ſhelter from thence. See chap.40.Ezek.29.& 30.& 31.

V. 20. And all the mingled people;] Concerning the term here uſed, Interpreters much differ; the word is uſed ſometime for a mixture of perſons, or people, a promiſcuous multitude, chap.50.37.and with the e onely lengthened in the ſame notion,Exod.12.38. Neh.13.3. to which purpoſe ſome underſtand it here. So ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, affirming hereby to be underſtood a mixture of people, conſiſting of divers nations,that were embodied together: but who in particular, or where abiding, they tell us not. But ſome others deem it to have reference to the nations enſuing, as generally comprehending the people, in this verſe and the next,by name more particularly there recited; and here ſo termed, becauſe,ſay they, their borders and confines were intermixed the one with the other. Others, going the ſame way for notion of the term, underſtand it, as having reference to the verſe before-going; of ſuch people as were mingled in their places of habitation with the Egyptians, or bordered neer upon them, and were in confederacy with them: to which purpoſe the Chaldee Paraphraſt expreſſeth it by a term,that is deemed to import auxiliaries; which may ſeem therefore to take in the Cuſhites, who are oft mentioned as borderers upon Egypt. See Eſay 18.1. confederates with it,and aſſiſtants to it,Eſay 20.4. Ezek.30.4-6. where in the 5. verſe, alſo the word here uſed is found: and this the rather may carry ſome probability with it,becauſe the Cuſhites in all this catalogue are not at all mentioned. Howbeit,Others take the word here to ſignifie Arabia, as ſometime in this very form it doth (though for the moſt part,with a very ſmall variation, as ver. 24. but ſometime alſo without any ſuch variation; as appeareth by 1 King. 10. 19. compared with 2 Chr.9.14. and whereas it might be objected, that Arabia is expreſly mentioned apart, ver. 24. it is anſwered. that there is mention made of thoſe that lived under ſome royal government,eitherin Arabia the fertile,or in Arabia the deſart; here ſuch of them are intended, as were under no ſetled government, but lived wildly, wandring from place to place; and withall, which hath ſome hint of the former notation, were a mixture of divers nations. To which purpoſe, alſo,ſome draw in hither that of Tidal,called King of nations, Gen.14. 1. In a matter ſo ambiguous, I ſhall forbear to determine ought,leaving it to the deciſion of the learned.

and all the Kings of the land of Uz] Uz, or Uts: of which name there are three ſeveral parties mentioned in Scripture; and accordingly three ſeveral places deemed to have born that name. The firſt and ancienteſt of them was the ſon of Aram,Gen.10.23.whoſe poſterity are ſuppoſed to have dwelt in that part of Syria,wherein Damaſcus is ſituate, 2 Sam. 8.5. Eſay 7.8. the large valley bordering upon it, retaining ſtill in the Arabick language the name of Gauta, by a change of letters not unuſual: as Gaza,for,Azzah,Act.8.26. Gomorra, for,Amorah,Eſay 1.9.and Tyre,for,Tſor,Eſay 23.1. Tanes, for, Zoan,Eſay 30.4. The ſecond was the ſon of Nachor,Abrahams brother, whoſe poſterity are deemed to have taken up their abode in ſome part of Arabia the deſart, neer to Chaldea,the place of Jobs habitation,Job 1.1. where he had ſuch bad neighbours, the Chaldeans on the one ſide, and the Sabeans on the other, Job 1. 15, 17. the region by the Greeks termed Auſitis,and the inhabitants thereof,by Ptolomy, Aeſitæ,or as ſome rather think Auſitæ. The third was by Diſhan the iſſue of Seir,Gen.36.28. thoſe of his poſterity ſeated themſelves, as ſome think,in ſome part of Arabia the ſtony; either within, or very neer unto the land of Idumea, Lam. 4. 21. and of theſe I conceive that the Prophet here ſpeaketh.

and all the kings of the land of the Philiſtines]See Chap.47. 1. Theſe were of the race of Cham, by Mitſraim his ſon, the Egyptians progenitor, Gen. 10. 6, 13,14. 1 Chr.1.8,11,12. thoſe of his poſterity in ſucceeding ages bordered to the weſt upon the land of Judea.See Eſay 2.6.& 9.12.

and Aſhkelon, and Azza, and Ekron,and the remnant of Aſhdod,] Or, even of Aſhkelon and Azza,&c. as Chap.19.12. & 23. 9. for theſe were all ſeveral Princes in the Philiſtines country, See 1 Sam.6.17.where theſe four are reckoned up among the five,which Gath,here omitted, maketh up there: the reaſon whereof may be, becauſe that albeit, it had a King in former times,1 Sam.21. 10. yet it may ſeem, in progreſs of time,before Jeremies days,either to have been ſwallowed up in ſome one of the other four,or to have been utterly ruined by ſome forrein force.See Amos 6. 2. of Aſhkelon, ſee ch.47. 5,7.

Azzah] Rendred Gaza, after the Greek pronunciation of it, 1 Sam.6.17. and Chap.47.5. See on the words before-going.

the remnant of Aſhdod] By the Greeks,and Latines,termed Azotus, Act. 8. 40. And it is here ſaid the remnant of it, as ſome ſuppoſe, becauſe it had been much impaired and waſted by Pſammetichus,father to Pharaoh-Nechoh, who a long time beſieged it. See Herodote,l.2. or as it may well be,by Tartan, a Commander under Sargon King of Aſſyria, who ſeemeth not to have beſieged it onely,as Pſammetichus did, but to have ſurpriſed alſo,and ſacked it,Eſay 20.1.

V. 21. Edom,and Moab,and the children of Ammon.]Theſe, the poſterity of Eſau,the firſt of them, Gen.36.1. of Lot the other two,Gen.19.37,38.did border neer upon one another, Deut.2.8,9. and they were as neer borderers, ſo bad neighbours alſo from time to time unto Gods people. V. 22. And all the kings of Tyrus,] Heb. Tſor; ſee Eſay 23. 1. and on ver. 10. either Kings of ſeveral colonies from thence ſent abroad,and countries thence peopled, of which ſort Carthage is generally acknowledged to have been one; or pety Kings, that held from, and were as vaſſals unto the hereditary crown of that State; or,Kings,for,Princes,and Rulers,as chap.17.20.& 19.3. & 20.5. the rather here ſo termed for their great ſtate and wealth, Eſay 23.8. and all the Kings of Sidon] Heb. Tſidon. Greek, Sidon, Mat. 11.21. A neighbouring city to Tyrus: whereof ſee on Eſay 23. 2, 12. they are found oft joyned together, in regard of their vicinity, Mat.11.21.& 15.21.

and all the Kings of the Iles which are beyond the Sea] Or, of the lands, or, countries, or regions (as Eſay 20.6.& 14.1.& 42. 4.& 49.1.) or, the coaſt (for the Hebrew term is ſingular) that are, or that is (and this rather) beſides the Sea, or, by the Sea ſide; as the word is uſed, Deut.1.1. whereby ſome (taking the words according to our Verſion) ſuppoſe Greece and Italy to be meant, divided from Judah by the midland-Sea. Others, Rhodes and Cyprus, and thoſe other Ilands toward the bottome of that Sea, which they tell us were ſurpriſed and ſubdued, by Nebuchadnezzar, but no record is produced for either of theſe; nor is there any great probability of either; and leſſe yet of the former. I conceive therefore rather to be hereby meant thoſe Parts of Syria that coaſted all along upon the midland-ſea. See chap.49.23.

V. 23. Dedan] Of this name we find two perſons in Scripture; the one Chams iſſue by Chuſh, and Raamah, Gen.10. 7. the other of Abrahams poſterity by Jokſhan, Gen. 25. 3. of whom, ſee Eſay 21.13. This preſent paſſage ſeemeth to concern the place where the poſterity of the latter was ſeated; which is deemed to have been part of Idumea. See chap. 49.28.

and all the kings of the mingled people that dwell in the deſart] Or, of Arabia; as well thoſe that inhabit Arabia the fertile, as thoſe that abide under Kingly government in Arabia the waſte. See on ver.20. which ſome conceive to be the Kedarens, mentioned, chap. 49.28. ſaid there to dwell without gates or bars; that is, without walled towns, or fenced cities, in tents removeable from place to place, chap.49.31. Eſay 13. 20. The old Latine rendreth it, of the Weſt; and the word indeed commonly ſignifieth the evening, Gen.5.8. and one derived from it, the weſt, or evening coaſt; becauſe the Sun ſetting in the Weſt, produceth the evening, Pſal.103.12. Eſay 59. 19. But where the word it ſelf is ſo uſed, I find not.

V. 26. And all the Kings of the North far and neer one with another:] Under the preſent Chaldean Government, chap. 1.15. ver.9. Heb. a man to his brother: as Gen 26.31. 2 King.7. 6. chap.13.14. but to, here, for, with; as Lam.3.41.

and the King of Sheſhach ſhall drink after them] That by Sheſhach is meant Babylon, appeareth plainly from chap. 51. 41. the King whereof is ſaid to drink laſt; becauſe the reſt were to drink, as before him, ſo by him, and he afterward by ſome of them, ver. 9, 12, 14. But why Babylon ſhould be thus termed, or how it ſhould come to have this name given it, is queſtioned. Whereunto the Jewiſh Maſters anſwer, that Sheſhac and Babel, the letters of the Alphabet, being traverſed and tranſpoſed, are all one. For of this trick, or device, they have two ſorts; one, that they call Albam; whereof ſee on Eſay 7.6. another, which they call Athbaſh, or Athas, in which two whole ſet of letters being placed, the one in a direct order above; the other under that backward, beneath on this wiſe,

they enterchange them, as they ſtand in order, the upper for the lower, and the lower for the upper; and thus ſhin being put for beth, and caph for lamed, for Babel ye have Sheſhac; and this trick ſome ſuppoſe, that the Prophet ſhould uſe on purpoſe to darken the Prophecy, for fear leſt if he ſhould have expreſly named Babylon, the King of Babylon, then being ſet down before the city, ſhould uſe more rigour and violence againſt it. But neither was this Prophet afraid freely to deliver Gods meſſage, and that in plain terms alſo, as afterward he did again and again, chap.27.6,7. & 29.10.& 50.1. & 51. 1.41,64. nor doth this prophecy ſeem to have been delivered untill Jehojakim had yielded himſelf unto Nebuchadnezzar, content now to hold the crown from him. See on ver. 18. nor are the pen-men of Scripture acquainted with ſuch tricks as theſe, being but late (to ſpeak of) Talmudical devices. Others therefore ſuppoſe, that there might be ſome other great and famous city in Chaldea, ſo termed from the firſt founder of it, becauſe they find a King of Egypt to have been of the like name, 2 Chron. 12. 2. But this ſeemeth to be a very groundleſſe conjecture. Others therefore think rather, and with more probability, that Babylon is thus termed from an idol, called Sheſhac, or Shak, from which Miſhael was by the King of Babylons Chamberlain termed Meſhac, Dan. 1. 7. which they worſhipped, and whoſe feaſtival they were celebrating what time the city was by Cyrus ſurpriſed. Whereof ſee more on chap. 51. 41. though what a learned Writer hath here, that Sheſhac in the Babylonian language ſignifies to feaſt, and ſhare feaſtivals, I find not by any author aſſerted. True it is, that Atheneus in his Supper-ſophiſters, l.14. relateth from Beroſus, in his Babylonian, and Creſius in his Perſian ſtory, that a feaſt called the Saccean-feaſtival, was wont to be held at Babylon for eleven days together; not unlike to the Greeks and Romans Saturnalia: and it is not improbable, that in the time of this feaſtival, Babylon was taken: of which more hereafter. But that the word Sheſhac in that language hath any ſuch general ſignification, is neither by the relater, nor by the Authors whom he relateth, averred ſhall drink] In this part is deemed to be ſome alluſion to that fatall banket, at which Belſhazzar was ſlain, Dan. 5. 1,30. there is in more likelyhood an alluſion thereunto, ch. 51.39,57. where God ſaith, that he will make their feaſt for them, and make them ſo drunk, that they ſhall ſleep an everlaſting ſleep: but here the ſame term is uſed promiſcuouſly of them all, and of him no more then of the reſt with him.

V. 27. Therefore ſhalt thou ſay unto them,] Or, Say thou unto them; as chap.19.3.11. to wit, in the publike delivery of this prophecy.

Act.1.1. & 11.15. with 10.44.) or in the term of beginning, (if any emphaſis be in it) having an hint of their precedency in regard of ſome others,ver.18. or to what God had already begun to do in the ſurprize of Jeruſalem by Nebuchadnezzar: whereof alſo ſee there.

The Lord ſhall roar from on high,and ſhall utter his voice from his holy habitation;] God is here ſaid to roar as a lion enraged, when he is about to execute ſome hideous work of vengeance, or puniſhment, to inflict ſome dreadful judgment, Joel 3.16.Amos 1.2.& 3.8. utter his voice] Heb. give,or,give out,his voice: to call together,ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, and others from them,thoſe whom he purpoſeth to employ; as Eſay 13. 2,3. but it ſeemeth rather to be here a further addition to the former: and it is uſed to imply the fierceneſſe and dreadfulneſſe of his wrath, which he cometh with unto judgment, with alluſion unto loud and hideous cracks of thunder accompanied with fearful and frightfull flaſhes of fire. See Pſal. 18.13.& 68.33.So alſo, Joel 3.16. & Amos 1.2.

he will mightily roar upon his habitation,] Heb. he will roaring roar; that is,roar exceeding loud: for theſe ingeminations imply,as a certainty ſometime,ver.28. ſo otherwhile a vehemency or exceſs; as Eſay 24. 16. upon his habitation. So the word doth commonly ſignifie, Job 5.3. & 18.15. Pſal. 79.7. Eſay 27.10.& 33.20.Chap.10.25. For the old Latine here doth miſ-tranſlate it,rendring the word beauty, which thoſe that follow,deſcant much on to ſmall purpoſe: it is applyed ſometime to Gods Sanctuary, Temple, or Tabernacle: as Exod.15. 2. 2 Sam. 15. 25. and ſo here, both Jewiſh, and ours,generally expound it, underſtanding the text, as intimating the place which God threatneth, in particular, to execute judgment upon: which to me ſeemeth nothing probable; becauſe all the following diſcourſe is bent in generall againſt the whole ſet of thoſe, whom God intended thus to deal with: and I chooſe therefore to go rather with thoſe Interpreters, though very few, yet of good note, who expound this,as the former,of the place,where,or from whence, God would thus roar; and render the text,not,upon, but, in his habitation,or dwelling. So is the particle oft uſed, Neh. 9.33,36.Pſal.143.4.Eſay 24.22. in priſon, Dan.11.20. in his place,Eſay 38.20. in the houſe of the Lord: and ſo here, in his habitation: whereunto may be added, that with this particle there is oft a defect of the other particle from; as Pſal.81.6. when he came from of,or,out of Egypt: and Dan. 2. 1. his ſleep was broken,or,departed from of him,or, from him; as our verſion rendreth it: and accordingly it may be here from, or, out of his habitation, or dwelling, for variety ſake, becauſe this word, and the former, though in notion the ſame, are in ſound and originall divers: and though by and from his ſanctuary he is ſaid ſometime, in the like caſe, to roar, and utter his voice,Joel 3.16. Amos 1.2. yet I ſuppoſe here is heaven rather meant,as before,becauſe the Temple then was demoliſhed, and lay deſolate, when God roared thus on ſome of the people before ſpecified.

he ſhall give a ſhout as they that tread the grapes againſt all the inhabitants of the earth.] Heb. he will anſwer a ſhout: whence ſome ſuppoſe it to allude to ſuch ſongs as the workmen that were employed in the Wine-preſſe uſed to anſwer one another withall, to make their work go the lighter and more merrily away with them: it is true, that the word here uſed ſignifies properly to anſwer, but ſometime alſo, to anſwer one another in ſinging, or to ſing by courſe; as they did, Exod.15.21. 1 Sam.18.7.& 21.11. & 29.5. Ezr. 5.11.& ſimply alſo to ſing;as Eſay 27.2. yea as to ſpeak ſimply;which is very common in both the books of the old and new Teſtament,where no queſtion at all goeth before; ſo more ſpecially to make a loud noiſe,ſhout, or out-cry. So Exod. 32. 17,18. when Joſhua heard the voice,or, noiſe of the people, as they ſhouted,he ſaid,there is a noiſe of war in the camp.But(Moſes) ſaid,It is not the voice,or noiſe,of ſhouting for maſtery;(valour,or victory) nor is it the voice of crying out (of out-cry) for diſcomfiture, (by reaſon of being ſurpriſed and vanquiſhed) a voice,or,noiſe,of chanting (ſinging by courſe,or ſinging aloud ſimply) do I hear: by which place, where the word is three ſeverall times repeated; in the light,or ſingle form, as here, twice; in the weighty form, wherein the middle radicall is doubled,once; it appeareth that it is uſed to ſignifie any ſuch loud ſhout, or outcry, as either aſſailants in war, or perſons ſuddenly aſſailed,and over-poured by an aſſailant enemy, are wont to make. And I conceive the ſhout here mentioned to be an alarm,or ſhout rather, of aſſailants, ſuch as they are wont to make,either at the joyning of battel in the field, or at the aſſault of ſome fort or city,Joſh.6.16,20. Sion is ſaid to be a quiet habitation: though I cannot accord to them, who think in the word ſhalom here, an alluſion to be unto Salem, or, Jeruſalem, Pſal. 76.2. becauſe that ſoundeth much to the ſame, Heb. 7.2. for the ſcope and ſenſe of this place is far more general. Heb. given before you: as Deut. 30.1, 15, 19. acquainted you with, and delivered to you for a rule of direction, to order your lives and courſes by: a borrowed ſpeech from artificers, novices eſpecially in ſome art, that have models and paterns ſet before them, whereby to frame and carry on their works: So chap. 9.13. & 44.10.

V. 5. To hearken unto the words of my ſervants the Prophets,] Or, In hearkning unto (as Eſay 50.10.) the words of my ſervants the Prophets: by whom, and in whom, I ſpeak, 2 Chr. 36.12. Jer. 15.19. 2 Cor. 5.20. & 13.3. and whom therefore when ye hear, ye hear me; and hearkning to them, ye hearken to me, Luke 10.16. Thus is the form here found frequently uſed, Gen. 3.22. Exod. 14.11. Deut. 9.18. 1 Sam. 12.17.

V. 6. Then will I make this houſe like Shiloh] Heb. And (as chap. 4.2. & 15.19.) I will give (as chap. 9.11.) and ſo in the next branch) this houſe as Shiloh: ſee chap. 7.14.

V. 7. So the Prieſts, and the Prophets, and all the people, heard Jeremiah ſpeak in theſe words in the houſe of the Lord.] Heb. And; as Eſay 8.7. chap. 18.3, 4. which here may be thus rendred, with connexion of this verſe, to the next. Now when the Prieſts and the Prophets (the falſe ones, chap. 23.9.) and all the people heard Jeremiah ſpeaking theſe words; So it was, that as ſoon as he had made an end of ſpeaking: the like ſyntax, ſee chap.8.4.& 12.5.and hereafter, verſe 10.

So the particle is uſed, verſe 12. chap.1.19. & 15.20. Yet ſome take it here in its moſt uſual notion, tendring it, unto Jeremy, as intimating the flocking of the people about him, to hear what he delivered: that which vexed the Prieſts and the falſe Prophets: for the people are ſaid afterward to have ſtood for him with the Princes: ſee ver.16.

V. 10, When the Princes of Judah heard theſe things, they came up from the Kings houſe unto the houſe of the Lord,] Or, Now when the Princes of Judah heard theſe things, they came from the Kings houſe into the houſe of the Lord. Heb. And they heard theſe words (words, for, things; as Gen.40.1. chap.7.22. ver.2.) and they came up: of which term, ſee on chap. 37. 5. for otherwiſe the Palace is deemed to have ſtood on higher ground then the Temple: of this manner of ſyntax, ſee ch. 2.7,20.& 7.27.& above on verſe 7.

So called, becauſe by Jotham repaired, 2 King.15. 35. 2 Chron. 27. 3 This new Gate, the Chaldee, whom ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters here follow, ſay was the Eaſt-gate of the Temple; in the Porch whereof thoſe of the great conſiſtory (of which ſome conceive theſe Princes to have been) uſed to meet and to ſit. Howbeit, their great Doctor, of whom they have a ſaying, that from Moſes to Moſes he had no male, is reported to affirm, that it was the Weſtern gate, in which the great Aſſembly uſed to ſit: Which to reconcile, ſome ſuppoſe that under the ſecond Temple that court might be tranſlated from the one gate to the other.

V. 12. Then ſpake Jeremiah unto all the Princes, and to all the People;] Before whom the Prieſts and falſe Prophets had thus accuſed him, and clamoured againſt him, requiring to have ſentence of death paſt upon him, verſe 11.

V. 16. Then ſaid the Princes and all the people, unto the Prieſts and the Prophets;] Then; having heard the Prophets apology for himſelf. Heb. And, (as verſ. 6.) the Princes that came from the Kings Court, hearing of the tumult raiſed about the Prophet by the falſe Prophets and the Prieſts, verſ. 10. as the Roman Colonel about Paul. Acts 21.31,32. & 23. 10. and all the people before incited, and incenſed againſt the Prophet, by the Prieſts and falſe Prophets, but now pacified by his Apology, and the Princes inclination to equity in favour of the Prophet, being in likelyhood by their carriage and countenance diſcovered by them. Thus the promiſcuous multitude are like the waves and billows, moving this way and that way, as ſome blaſt of wind bloweth upon them; crying Hoſanna this day, and, Crucifie him, the next; Matth. 21. 9. & 27. 20, 22, 23.

This man is not worthy to dy;] Or, is not guilty of death; doth not deſerve death; ought not to be put to death. Heb. judgment of death, is not for, or, to this man, as verſ. 11.

for he hath ſpoken to us in the name of the Lord our God.] He hath delivered nothing but Gods meſſage to us. Thus they pronounce a ſentence of abſolution in behalf of Jeremy, as being no counterfeit, but a true Prophet; the cogniſance whereof the Jewiſh Maſters tell us belonged to this ſupreme Court, the great conſiſtory.

V. 17. Then roſe up certain of the Elders of the land, and ſpake to all the aſſembly of the people, ſaying,] Heb. And (as verſ. 16.) there roſe up, or, ſtood up (as men uſe to do when they are either to plead as advocates, or to adviſe as counſellers, or to give ſentence, as Judges, Eſay 3. 13, 14. V. 19. Did Hezekiah King of Judah and all Judah put him at all to death.] Though he ſpake as much as Jeremy now ſpeaketh; and that which he then ſpake did as much concern, and as neerly touch Ezekiah, and the men of Judah, put him at all to death] Either do, or attempt ought in that kind, or to that purpoſe; as if he had been guilty of ſedition for ſo propheſying. Heb. ſlaying ſlay; as chap. 38. 15. but here the gemination in a diminiſhing or extenuating notion; as ſuch forms, which few obſerve, are ſometime uſed: So Gen. 3. 4. ye ſhall not dying die, for, ye ſhall not at all die; and Gen. 43.7. could we knowing know? for, could we at all, or, by any means, know? could we ſo much as ſurmiſe, or ſuſpect? in which places for want of this obſervation, the words are ſlenderly rendred by interpreters of great note, beſides the mind and drift of thoſe that ſpake them.

did he not fear the Lord, and beſought the Lord; and the Lord repented him of the evil, which he had pronounced againſt them?] See 2 Chr. 32.25, 26. Some Interpreters render the words, Did he not fear the Lord; and when he beſought the Lord, the Lord repented, &c. Of which ſyntax, ſee before on ver.17. and the like again, ver.21.

and the Lord repented] Not bringing that judgment upon the land in Ezekiahs days, Eſay 38.6. & 39.8. So did he alſo with Joſiah, 2 King.22.19,20. See on ver.3,13.

thus might we procure great evil againſt our ſouls] Heb. and we doing (for, we ſhould do; the enunciative in a potentiall notion; as chap.16.20.) great evil againſt our ſouls; that is, againſt our ſelves; as chap.17.21. & 44.7. We by taking this courſe, that the Prieſts and Prophets would put us upon, contrary to the practice of that religious Prince, ſhould, inſtead of averting the evill denounced, haſten the execution of it, and bring further evil upon our ſelves.

V. 20. And there was alſo a man that propheſied in the name of the Lord, Urijah the ſon of Shemajah of Kiriath-jearim, who propheſied againſt this city, and againſt this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah.] Some would have theſe words to be part of the Elders ſpeech before-mentioned, who ſpake in Jeremies behalf, ver.17. But that is nothing likely: for by this latter inſtance they ſhould rather croſs, then back, what before they had delivered: but they ſeem rather to be the words of the Pen-man (whether the Prophet himſelf, or any other, peradventure Baruc his Scribe) of this ſtory, concerning the preſent buſineſs, relating the iſſue of it; and to illuſtrate Gods providence in the preſervation of Jeremy, reporting another ſtory of the ſame ſubject, much about the ſame time, but diverſly managed, and with divers event. This to cleer, the text might well be thus rendred; Now though there were alſo, &c. (the copulative uſed; as Eſay 8. 7. the other ſupplyed, as chap.5. 22.) and ſo the context, carryed on unto, ver.24.

according to all the words of Jeremiah] The ſame things in effect and ſubſtance with him: So chap.27.11.

Urijah] Heb. Urijahu; as Jirmjahu, here alſo, and elſewhere, Chap.1. 1. of this name was one of Davids Worthies, 2 Sam.23. 39. and the High-Prieſt under Ahaz, Eſay 8. 2. and ſome other. But of this Prophet, ſave here, we find no mention in the ſacred records.

of Kiriath-jearim] A city in the lot of Judah, Joſh.18.14. where the Ark, returned by the Philiſtines, remained a long time, 1 Sam.7.2.

V. 21. And when Jehojakim, with all his mighty men, and all the Princes heard his words, the King ſought to put him to death:] As he would have done alſo with Jeremy and Baruc, Chap.36.26. Heb. And Jehojakim heard——and ſought: See the like, ver.17,19.

V. 22. And Jehojakim the King ſent men into Egypt] From whoſe King he held; with whom alſo he had correſpondence to his own ruine, 2 King.23.34. & 24.1, 2. and who therefore he knew would deny him nothing, were it never ſo unequal.

into Egypt] Or, even into Egypt: as, God will come, even God, Eſay 35.4. The repetition is of force: implying, as the Kings malitious diſpoſition, who would ſend ſo far after Gods Prophet to ſlay him; ſo that no far flight can ſecure any, when they once paſs the verge of Gods protection: ſee Jon. 1.3,4.

V. 23. And they fet forth Urijah out of Egypt,] Or, who (as chap.15.19. & 17.7.) fetched, or, brought away, Urijah out of Egypt. Heb. made to come out; as Deut.6.21.

and caſt his dead body into the graves of the common people.] Heb. ſons of the people; the promiſcuous multitude, men of the meaneſt condition: Not permitting him to have ſo much as an honeſt ſepulture, ſuch as perſons of the better rank had, who had buriall places uſually in their private poſſeſſions, 2 Sam.19.37. 1 Kings 13. 22, 30, 31. ſuch an extreme ſpite had he againſt Gods meſſenger, in regard of his meſſage, both living and dead: by this his cruelty exerciſed on him, ſuppoſing that he ſhould affright any from coming again on the like errand: which yet with Jeremy he could not do.

V. 24. Nevertheleſs the hand of Ahikam, the ſon of Shapan, was with Jeremiah, that they ſhould not give him into the hand of the people to put him to death.] This hath a manifeſt reference to that which this relation began with ver.20. Though it fared ſo with Urijah, who, out of fear, thus deſerted his employment; yet it fared better with Jeremy, that ſtayed by it, and ſtuck cloſe to his tackle: for albeit, the King himſelf were ſo cruelly minded, and had thoſe about him, ready enough to put his cruel deſigns in execution, ver. 22,23. yet God ſtirred up the ſpirit of ſome of his Princes, and one of them more eſpecially, to ſtand by him, and deal ſo effectually for him, that he was not delivered unto the power of thoſe that would have taken his life from him, according to promiſe for protection made to him, chap.15.20,21.

the hand of Ahikam was with Jeremiah] Hand, for, authority, power, help, aſſiſtance; as Deut.7.8. 2 Sam.14. 19. and ſo afterward again. This Ahikam was one of Joſiahs Princes and Counſellors, 2 King. 22. 12. whoſe name God would have to be left here upon record, for an honour to him unto all poſterity, as having been the principall Agent among them, that were inſtruments here of the Prophets delivery: and he ſeemeth to have been the Father of that Gedaliah, whom Nebuchadnezzar made Governour of thoſe whom he left in Judea, 2 King.25.22. chap.39.14. God, as may well be conjectured, for this pious act of his father, in patroniſing and reſcuing his Prophet, cauſing his ſon to find favour in that Heathen Kings eyes: howſoever by his folly, and fond credulity, he made it afterward unuſefull both to others and himſelf, chap.40.13——16. & 41.1,2. that they ſhould not give him into the hand of the people to put him to death.] Heb. to make him die; to ſlay him; as ver. 19. hand, for, power, as before; and chap.22.25. It may be objected, that the people ſpake in the Prophets behalf, as not deſerving to die, ver.16. But the tickle and fickle diſpoſition of the multitude hence appeareth, who though partly by the Prophets own ſpeech, and partly by the pleading of the Princes for him, were ſatisfied at preſent concerning his innocency; yet had not this worthy Prince ſtuck cloſe to him, would, by the wicked Prieſts, and falſe Prophets, ſoon again have been drawn to ſeek his deſtruction. See verſe 16.

CHAP. XXVII.

Verſ. 1. IN the beginning of the reign of Jehojakim, the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah] This Prophecy by the date of it may ſeem to have gone before that recorded, Chap. 25. and to have been neer of the ſame time with the ſtory related, chap.26. for that the ſeveral prophecies, or ſermons, are not in this book entred and ranked according to the exact order of time, wherein they were delivered, hath been before ſhewed on chap.22.21. And about the date of this there is among Interpreters ſome diſagreement: the ground whereof doth from hence ariſe. There is a charge here ſaid to come to the Prophet in the beginning of the reign of Jehojakim, for the making of bonds and yokes to be tendred to the Embaſſadors of forrein States in the reign of Zedekiah: there being eleven years between the beginnings of the reign of the one, and of the other: for ſo many years did Jehojakim reign, and Jehojacin his ſon ſome few moneths after him before Zedekiah, 2 King. 23.36. & 24.8.17. This difficulty to aſſoil, ſome, both of the Jewiſh Writers, and other, ſay, that this prophecy was revealed to Jeremy in the firſt year of Jehojakims reign, three year before Nebuchadnezzar came to the Chaldean crown upon his fathers deceaſe, Dan.1.1. but that he was to conceal it, and not to publiſh it, nor put in execution the thing it ſelf enjoyned, untill eleven year after in the reign of Zedekiah. Others, that he was preſently to make theſe bonds, and to wear them for eleven year, at leaſt, together, and then to ſend them, as hereafter abroad. But neither do the former ſeem to give any good reaſon why a prophecy of this nature ſhould be ſo long concealed and ſmothered; nor doth that ſeem to carry any ſhew of probability with it, which the latter have, that the Prophet ſhould go up and down yoked in that manner for ſo long a time together. Thoſe therefore who take this prophecy to be of a lower date, and to have been delivered in the beginning, not of Jehojakims, but of Zedekiahs reign; do ſome of them conceive, that this verſe doth not belong to this Chapter, but to that before-going; and to be the cloſe of it, ſhut up with the ſame words, wherewith it began; ſomewhat like that Hagg.1.1,15. where the laſt verſe formerly in moſt Verſions, for want of ſuch obſervation, was rent from the fore-going Chapter, and prefixed amiſs to the next: and ſo many of our Hebrew Bibles, indeed, divide the Chapters, both here, and there. But neither ſhew they how this paſſage can be fixed handſomly to the fore-paſſed relation: nor do thoſe inſtances they bring from Exod. 6.10,29. help any whit to clear the context from an abrupt tearing of this verſe, concluded with ſaying, from the next verſe, wherein the charge or injunction is expreſſed, becauſe they are not the expreſs words of God, but of the Prophet rather, ſpeaking from God; and yet why not of God himſelf, putting words into the Prophets mouth, or ſpeaking of himſelf in the third perſon, as he oft doth? See chap.25.31,33. ſome place would be produced, where the word, ſaying, ſhutteth up a ſentence, without any ſpeech or charge at all enſuing. Other therefore of thoſe that go this latter way, ſay that Zedekiah is here called Jehojakim, and that Jehojakim was a name common to the ſons of King Joſiah. But of this there is neither any proof, nor good probability. And others therefore ſuppoſe, that through the Scribes negligence, who having his eye on the Title of the Chapter next before-going, wrote Jehojakim, for Zedekiah; an errour was by over-ſight at firſt committed, which afterward being not regarded, bred that generall miſtake, that all commonly known copies now have. And this their conjecture, they ſuppoſe, to receive further ſtrength, from the repetition of Zedekiahs name again, ver.12. and the date of the next prophecy, Chap.28.1. ſaid to have been delivered in the ſame year with this, and that in the beginning, not of the reign of Jehojakim, but of the reign of Zedekiah.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Verſ. 1. And it came to paſſe the ſame year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah,] Heb. And it was (as chap.20.3.) in that year, to wit, before-mentioned, chap.27.1. that, for, the ſame; as Chap. 27.8. and ſo hereafter ver.17. So that this prophecy ſeemeth to bear date with the former, both by the common title, and the ſubject matter of either. That which much confirmeth the opinion of thoſe, who ſuppoſe that Jehojakim there named, was at firſt, and ſhould be Zedekiah.

in the fourth year,] Here we meet with a new knot, that ſeemeth neer as difficult, and as hard to unloſe, as that other, Chap.27.1. to wit, how the paſſage here reported and recorded, ſhould be ſaid to have faln out in the beginning of Zedekiahs reign, and yet in his fourth year; the one ſeeming to croſs the other. This ſeeming breach to make up, ſome make a rent in the context: for as before, they tore off the firſt verſe of Chapter 27. to annex it to Chapter 26. So here they rent from this Chapter, the foregoing words of this verſe, and annexe them to Chapter 37. expounding the words; And it came to paſſe (to wit, all that was before related of my ſpeaking on this wiſe to the King and his Princes, the Prieſts and the people, chap. 26. 12, 16.) the ſame year in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah. But this conceit of the author thereof hath been deemed ſo uncouth, that I find not any one other beſide himſelf therein to concur with him. Howbeit, ſome of ours, though they tear not this branch off from the context enſuing, yet they ſuppoſe it to have reference by way of tranſition, unto what had been before related, thus rending the words, Now when that (before-mentioned) had been in that year, and in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah; in the fourth year, that which now followeth fell out; to wit, Hananiah ſpake unto me, &c. Somewhat the like conceit the ſame authors have of another place, though not parallel to this, 1 Sam.13.1. whereof elſewhere. But beſides that, this giveth us a ſtrained ſyntax, with needleſſe inſertions, nor ſuiteth well with the ſtops in the text. It ſeemeth thereby preſumed, that four year together the Prophet did wear a yoke on his neck, which Hananiah ſhould now break: a thing nothing probable, that either the one ſhould ſo long wear it, or the other have the patience to endure the ſight of it ſo long worn. The Jewiſh Doctors out of their Talmudiſts tell us, that Nebuchadnezzar, when Zedekiah went to Babylon in the fourth year after the captivity of Jeconiah, Chap.51.59. gave him a kind of Lievtenantſhip under him over thoſe five Kingdoms mentioned chap. 27.3. and that this therefore is here termed the beginning of his Kingdome: but of that place before, and of the other when we come to it: for of the ſtory it ſelf there is no record produced, nor ſeems it to carry with it any great probability; though ſome of ours ſeem to warp ſomewhat this way. Others paſſing by theſe improbable relations, not admitting ſuch forced breaches as the former ſort ſeem to make in the context, ſuppoſe that the words, as they be, ſimply conceived may well ſtand together, without any ſuch diſagreement as they are ſuppoſed to import. The fourth year of Zedekiah ſay they, may not unfitly be termed the beginning of his reign: for dividing his reign, being eleven years in all, 2 King. 24. 18. as we uſe to do other things, into three parts, the beginning, the middle, and the end; of thoſe eleven years, the four firſt, or three firſt with part of the fourth, may well go for the beginning; the ſix following, for the middle; and the two laſt, in which his State was invaded and ruined, may well be reckoned for the end. But this, though carrying better ſhew of probability with it, then any of the former, yet is not deemed ſatisfactory by divers: Nor indeed will the like, I ſuppoſe, be eaſily produced, where ſomewhat that fell out in the fourth year of a reign of not above eleven, if ſo much entire, in all, ſhould be ſaid to be done, in the beginning of it. And ſome other therefore laſtly, both of the Jewiſh Writers and ours, ſuppoſe the fourth year here mentioned to be, not the fourth year of Zedekiahs reign; neither is it ſo ſaid, but the fourth year of the Sabbatical courſe or circle; or the fourth year after the ſeventh years reſt, Lev. 25. 4. and the firſt of his reign. This ſome of ours ſeek to back with the like, Dan. 1. 1. as they there expound the third. But the places are not parallel. See before on chap. 25. 1. Howbeit, to this I here encline; becauſe the Jewiſh Writers, and our beſt Chronologers do herein agree, that the year wherein the city was taken, the Temple burnt, and Zedekiah captived, being the eleventh and laſt of his reign, was a Sabbatical year; ſome hints whereof they ſuppoſe to be given, 2 Chr. 36. 21. and Chap. 34. 9-15. whereof, when we come to it: but they ground this their aſſertion principally upon the Jubilee calculations; and ſome of thoſe, who are deemed moſt exact in the computation of times, affirm that year to be the fourth Sabbatical year of the eighteenth Jubilee. Now his firſt year being the fourth of the ſeven, the ſeventh will begin in his third, and the ſeventh after that in his tenth, and expire with his reign in the eleventh: and this alſo ſome confirm from Ezek. 29. 17. where the twenty and ſeventh year mentioned, can hardly be deemed any other, then of the Jubilee then current; and that being the tenth year of Jeconiahs captivity, and Zedekiahs reign; as from the firſt verſe of that Chapter is obſerved: the next after it being Zedekiahs laſt, muſt of neceſſity be the twenty eighth, and conſequently the Sabbatical year.

that Hananiah the ſon of Azur the Prophet, which was of Gibeon, ſpake unto me in the houſe of the Lord, in the preſence of the Prieſts, and of all the people, ſaying,] This Hananiah, a pretended Prophet, ſo called, becauſe he took upon himſelf ſo to be, is by ſome fondly conceived to have been the High-Prieſt; but neither did any of that name about thoſe times hold that place; and his parentage alſo here recited refelleth it. Yet a Prieſt he might be: for Gibeon, the place of his abode, was a city aſſigned to the Prieſts and Levites in Benjamins lot, Joſh. 21. 13, 17. See chap. 27. 16.

V. 3 Within full two years I will bring again into this place all the veſſels of the Lords houſe, that Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon took away from this place, and carried unto Babylon] That which Jeremy telleth you ſhall be ſeventy years hence, I know not when, chap. 25. 11, 12. & 27. 22. ſhall be accompliſhed before two years be fully expired. V. 8. The Prophets that have been before me and before thee of old, propheſied both againſt many countries, and againſt great Kingdomes; of war, and of evil, and of peſtilence.] The Prophet admoniſheth this counterfeit, and the people together with him, of what other Prophets had before time propheſied in ſuch manner, and of ſuch evils as himſelf now did, which could not therefore be any good ground to detract ought from the truth of his preſent prophecy, ſince that he propheſied no other things then they had formerly done. The ſame ſurmiſe ſome good Authors of note have concerning that place, Heb. 11. 37. where in the midſt of many particular executions done upon the faithful, cometh in, they were tryed, or, tempted; ſuppoſing that for ἐπειράσθησαν, as we now have it, it was at firſt, ἐπυρέσθησαν: but there is no ſuch word as that found: and I ſuppoſe therefore it was rather ἐπρήσθησαν, they were burnt: and there is an elegant conſonancy (ſuch as the Apoſtle oft uſeth in his Epiſtles) between that and the word next before going, ἐπρίσθησαν, ἐπρήσθησαν, which differ but in a letter: nor is there much difference in writing between this and that which the copies now exhibit.

Heb. that ſhall propheſie unto, or, of peace, as ver. 8.

when the word of the Prophet] Or, that Prophet: as chap. 25. 25.

ſhall come to paſſe, then ſhall the Prophet be known, that the Lord hath truly ſent him] Whether a Prophet propheſie of good or evil, the event of that which they foretold was that whereby they were to be tryed, Deut. 18.22. albeit God ſometime extraordinarily to try his people, ſuffer ſuch things, as falſe Prophets alſo foretell, to fall out, Deut. 13.1-3. but then have Gods people another rule given them, whereby they may be diſcovered, to wit, by their doctrine, brought to the touchſtone of Gods written Word, and thereby examined, Eſay 8.20. But the Prophet here the rather applyeth the rule, to the Prophets of peace; ſuch as this counterfeit; becauſe people are wont more to give credit to ſuch as propheſie what they deſire.

then] Heb. and; as verſ. 5.

truly] Or, of a truth: as it is well rendred, chap. 26.15. Heb. in truth: as there alſo.

V. 10. Then Hananiah the Prophet] As verſe 1. Heb. And: as verſe 9.

took the yoke from off the Prophet Jeremiahs neck, and brake it] The Yoke which by Gods appointment he had made, and did then wear. See Chap. 27.2. whence it appeareth that this was done about the time of that command by God there given unto the Prophet. Thus this wicked wretch, led away with ambition and coveiſe, and deſirous to pleaſe the people, breaketh forth into this height of impiety and extremity of outrage, to pluck from the Prophets neck that yoke, which God had enjoyned him to put on, and to break that aſunder, that he had commanded to be made; as one deſperately bent to act directly contrary unto God himſelf in either; thereby as by a viſible ſign to juſtifie and confirm ſuch lies, as againſt knowledge and conſcience he had vented, and to maintain his own credit and repute with thoſe whoſe favour he affected. So the like, 1 King. 22.11,24.

V. 11. And Hananiah ſpake in the preſence of all the people,] Heb. to the eyes; as ver. 1,5. ſaying, Thus ſaith the Lord, Even ſo will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon from the neck of all nations within the ſpace of two full years] Even as I now break this wooden yoke: ſee ver. 3,4.

all nations] Before-mentioned, chap. 25.15,17——26. & 27.7.

and the Prophet went his way] Or, So: as Chap. 13.2,5. As not enduring longer to hear him vent ſuch groſs falſhood and lies in Gods name: as thoſe, Eſay 36.20. having no further errand then to deliver to them from God; which yet afterward he had, ver. 12.

V. 12. Then] Or, Moreover. Heb. And; as Eſay 8.1. for it was not at the preſent.

the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah the Prophet] Heb. was to him; as chap. 27.1.

(after that Hananiah had broken the yoke from off the neck of the Prophet Jeremiah) ſaying,] See ver. 10.

V. 13. Go and tell Hananiah, ſaying,] Heb. Going go, (as chap. 13.1.) and thou ſhalt ſay to Hananiah, that is, ſay thou to him; as chap. 22.2.

Thus ſaith the Lord, Thou haſt broken the yoke of wood, but thou ſhalt make for them yokes of iron.] Heb. and (as chap. 27.11.) thou ſhalt make (or, do thou make, as before ſay, thou Jeremy: for they ſeem out of the way, that apply it to Hananiah) inſtead of them (thoſe wooden yokes, one of which he hath broken) yokes of iron; ſuch as ſhall not ſo eaſily be broken: a type of a cruel, hard, and ſtrong bondage; and ſuch as cannot be ſhaken off, Deut. 28.48. this was all that he and they that gave credit to him ſhould gain by that preſumptuous and impious act of his, an improvement of their bonds. So Eſay 28.22. See alſo, chap. 36.27,28,32.

V. 14. For thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts the God of Iſrael] As Chap. 27.4.

I have put a yoke of iron upon the neck of theſe nations, that they may ſerve Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon;] Heb. I have given (as Eſay 42.1. I am reſolved to do it) or, I will put (as chap. 31.33.) a yoke of iron, or, an iron-yoke (as ver. 13.) upon the neck of theſe nations (of which, ver. 11.) to ſerve Nebuchadnezzar; as Pſal. 102.22.

and they ſhall ſerve him,] Chap. 27.7.

and I have given him the beaſts of the field alſo.] Thereby implying, that all ſhould be his, and at his ſervice; ſee Chap. 27.6. Dan. 2.38.

V. 15. Then ſaid the Prophet Jeremiah unto Hananiah the Prophet,] Or, Furthermore; as Chap. 14.11. or, Alſo: The Prophet Jeremy alſo ſaid; as chap. 27.12. Heb. And.

Hear now Hananiah, The Lord hath not ſent thee, but thou makeſt this people to truſt in a lie.] See chap. 27.15. & 29.9.

V. 16. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, I will caſt thee from off the face of the earth,] Heb. Behold I am caſting thee from off the face of the earth; as Gen. 6.7. I will, without any long delay, take thee away by death: the form of ſpeech is thence taken, becauſe the living keep above ground, Gen. 1.29. & 6.1. whereas the dead uſually are laid up in the earth, and lie under ground, Gen. 23.4. Pſal. 115.17.

this year ſhalt thou die;] Thou that telleſt lies of things that ſhall be within two years compleat, ſhalt not live ſo long thy ſelf, ver. 10. Heb. this year ſee, this year; as Eſay 37.30. ſo, the day, for, this day, chap. 1.10,18.

because thou haſt taught rebellion againſt the Lord] Heb. thou haſt ſpoken (as Deut. 13.5. chap. 29.32.) revolt (as chap. 5.23.) unto, or, againſt the Lord; as ver. 8. becauſe by thy lying tales thou haſt heartned and encouraged men to ſtand out againſt Gods Word, and againſt his admonitions and menaces by his Prophets. See chap. 23.17.

V. 17. So Hananiah the Prophet died the ſame year in the ſeventh moneth.] Heb. And; as chap. 13.2,5. the ſame year. Heb. that year; as ver. 1. in the ſeventh moneth; containing part of September, and part of October: whereby it appeareth that he ſurvived not this preſumptuous act of his, and the Prophets denunciation thereupon, full two moneths to an end. See ver. 1. that which might yet have been to this people, both a ſufficient conviction of his falſe and wicked dealing with them: and a ſtrong confirmation of the truth of thoſe things that by Jeremy had been delivered. But nothing could avail, or prevail with them, to bring them to repentance: Such is the obſtinacy of mans hard heart, untill by ſome gracious work upon it, it be altered and renewed: See Num. 16.41. Deut. 29.3,4. Ezek. 11.13,15. Joh. 12.37. The Jewiſh Doctors here tie us needleſs knots, and untie them again with groundleſs tales. They make queſtion, how Hananiah died that year, when as the ſeventh moneth began the next year according to the civil account: and this difficulty, indeed none, to take away, they tell us, (the Chaldee Paraphraſt hinting to them ſomewhat to that purpoſe) that he died indeed on the laſt day of the ſixt moneth at even, but gave in charge to his people, to conceal his death till the beginning of the ſeventh moneth, to make Jeremy a liar. But what need theſe fictions, when as the Prophets words are plain enough, and were true, what moneth ſoever he ſhould die in, if he died within a twelvemoneth after that denunciation: and much more, if he dyed ere the year then running were expired, according to either account, civil or ſacred: this latter the rather; becauſe the date of prophecies, and of this, among the reſt, were uſually reckoned according to it. Beſides, that this fabulous relation directly croſſeth the text; which ſaith, expreſly, that he died in the ſeventh moneth.

CHAP. XXIX.

Verſ. 1. NOw theſe are the words of the letter, that Jeremiah ſent from Jeruſalem unto the reſidue of the Elders, which were carryed away captive, and to the Prieſts, and to the Prophets, and to all the people, which Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jeruſalem to Babylon.] In this Chapter, as by the Inſcription of it, ver. 1—3. may appear, is related the ſum and ſubſtance of a letter ſent by Jeremy to the Jews that abode then in captivity at Babylon, wherein he perſwadeth them to reſt contented with their preſent eſtate there, untill Gods time ſet for their deliverance ſhould come, ver. 4—7. and not to hearken unto ſuch Prophets, as ſhould tell them of a more ſpeedy enlargement, ver. 8,9. promiſeth reſtitution of them upon their ſincere return to God, when ſeventy years are expired, ver. 10—14. and denounceth judgments from God both upon the reſidue of that nation, who remained yet behind, ver. 15——20. and againſt two of the falſe Prophets that abode with them at Babylon, ver. 20——23. together with a relation of a letter upon the receit of this, written back by one Shemajah, exciting ſome of the Prieſts to call Jeremy in queſtion for it, with a denunciation of Gods vengeance upon him for the ſame, verſe 24—32.

V. 2. (After that Jeconiah the King, and the Queen, and the Eunuchs, and the Princes of Judah and Jeruſalem, and the Carpenters, and the Smiths were departed from Jeruſalem)] See the like parentheſis, chap. 28. 12. and the very ſame for the moſt part of it, Chap. 24.1. to which relation this alſo hath ſome reference: ſee ver. 17. whereby it appeareth that this relation is of ſomewhat a later date then that.

Eunuchs] Or, Officers, or, Chamberlains: ſee Gen. 39.1. Eſay 39.7.

V. 3. By the hand of Elaſah the ſon of Shaphan, and Gemariah the ſon of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah King of Iudah ſent unto Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, ſaying,] In what year of Zedekiahs reign, or upon what occaſion theſe meſſengers were ſent to Babylon, is not expreſſed. Some ſurmiſe, that upon that judgment of God manifeſted in the haſtened deceaſe of that falſe Prophet, Hananiah, related chap. 28.16,17. Zedekiah being ſomewhat diſheartned, ſent theſe men ſhortly after with his yearly tribute unto Babylon, the rather to remove all ſuſpicion of having any compliance with the Egyptian, or thoughts tending to the leaſt diſloyall carriage towards him, unto whom, having raiſed him unto the crown, he had by oath obliged himſelf, Ezek.17.13.

by the hand of Elaſah] Or, by Elaſah; as Eſay 37. 24. Chap. 27.3.

Elaſah the ſon of Shaphan] Of this name we find divers, 1 Chron.2.39,40.& 8.37.& 9.43. Ezr. 10.22. but all divers from this Elaſah the ſon of Shaphan: who whether he were brother to Ahikam before-mentioned, chap.26.24. is uncertain: there ſeeming to be ſundry Shaphans living in ſome place of note in thoſe days.

Gemariah the ſon of Hilkiah] So deſcribed to diſtinguiſh him from another Gemariah the ſon of Shaphan the Scribe, Chap. 36. 10——12. nor is it certain what Hilkiah this was, whoſe ſon this Gemariah is ſaid to have been; divers about that time being of the ſame name: ſee chap.1.1.

ſaying,] This word hath not reference to their meſſage, but to Jeremies letter, mentioned, ver.1.

V. 5. Build ye houſes and dwell in them;] Or, that ye may dwell in them; as Gen.35.1. chap.27.12. a defect of the pronoun; as chap.6.16. & 9.10. or, to dwell in; and ſo there needs no ſupply.

and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them] Or, that ye may eat the fruit of them; as 1 Sam.28.22. 1 King. 13.15. and as before: or, the fruit whereof ye may eat: the copulative with the demonſtrative, for the relative; as chap.17 7. & 26. 23. & 28.7. See verſe 6.

V. 6. Take ye wives, and beget ſons and daughters;] Or, that ye may beget ſons and daughters; or, on whom ye may beget ſuch; contrary to the advice given to thoſe that abide at Jeruſalem, chap.16.2.

and take wives for your ſons, and give your daughters to huſbands,] The power of parents intimated in this form of ſpeech: as alſo, Deut.7.3.

that they may bear ſons and daughters] Heb. and they ſhall bear; as chap.4.4.& 26.3. Mal.1.9.

that ye may be increaſed there, and not diminiſhed.] Heb. and multiply (as before, dwell and eat, ver.5.) there (to wit, at Babylon) and be not diminiſhed.

V. 7. And ſeek the peace of the city whither I have cauſed you to be carried captive, and pray unto God for it.] Or, Seek the welfare; as it is rendred, chap.38.4. Heb. ſeek after, or ſeek to God (for it is the ſame word that is uſed, Eſay 55.6. Ezek. 36.37.) and pray to God for her; to wit, for Babylon; for the affix is feminine; howbeit they are willed and adviſed thus to do, not out of any ſpecial affection to that place or State, as they are willed and ſaid to ſeek the welfare of Ieruſalem, Pſal. 122. 6——9. but in regard of their own intereſt and ſhare in the common reſt and quietneſs, during the time of their abode there, that they might with leſs moleſtation and diſtraction patiently expect the time of deliverance. For otherwiſe they were to pray for the downfal of Babylon, when the time by God thereunto deſigned ſhould come, Pſal.137. 8,9. chap.51.35. as for that, whereat not they alone, but the whole world ſhould rejoyce. See Eſay 14.4.

for in the peace thereof ſhall ye have peace.] Your own welfare while ye abide there is enwrapped in the reſt, quiet, and welfare of that State, as of paſſengers in the welfare of the veſſel, wherein they are embarked.

V. 8. For thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael,] As verſe 4.

Let not your Prophets and your diviners that are in the midſt of you, deceive you,] in the midſt of you, or, among you: as chap. 39.14. to wit, at Babylon: as verſe 15. See Chap.27.9,15. & 23.26.

neither hearken to your dreams, which ye cauſe to be dreamed] Or, which ye dream: thoſe fancies which ye conceive within your ſelves, of ſome ſpeedy delivery, which are indeed no better then dreams: or, which ye make (your dreamers) to dream, (a form, though irregular, yet whereof a parallel is found, 2 Chron.28.23.) by giving heed to them, which if ye did not, they would not dream them. Yet the words may well be rendred, as ſome do, neither hearken to your dreamers (your men of dreams, your dream-wrights) whom (by liſtning unto) ye make to dream; ye give occaſion and encouragement to deviſe dreams, wherewith to delude you. See chap.27.9. Of theſe dreams alſo, chap.23.25-28.

V. 9. For they propheſie falſly unto you in my name] Heb. they propheſie in a lie: as chap.27.15.

I have not ſent them, ſaith the Lord] So chap.14.14. & 23. 21. & 27.15. & 28.15.

V. 10. For thus ſaith the Lord, that after ſeventy years be accompliſhed at Babylon,] Or, But (as chap.14.12,13.) thus hath the Lord ſaid, (as oppoſing what God himſelf had indeed ſaid to their lying relations fathered on him) that after ſeventy years accompliſhed at Babylon: nor before, nor ſooner, as your Prophets bear you in hand, and diviners and dreamers falſly enform you, chap.28.3. verſe 8,15. of theſe ſeventy years, which by this place appear to commence from the time of their deportation, whom the Prophet wrote this letter to, ſee on chap.25.12. Heb. ſaith the learned Scholiaſt, according to, or, at the mouth filling, of ſeventy years: but the term that he rendreth mouth, is nothing but a ſyllabical adjection, joyned frequently, both with this, as Exod.16.21. Num.6.21. & 7.5, 6. and with other prepoſitions of the like nature with it; as 1 King.17.1. Prov. 27. 21. then which alſo in the Rabbines Commentaries nothing is more rife.

I will viſit you] In mercy and for good: as Ruth 1.6. chap. 27.12. Luk.1.68.

and perform my good word toward you, in cauſing you to return to this place] Heb. to cauſe you to return, or, to bring you back. See the like, chap.18.15. & 28.6.

V. 11. For I know the thoughts that I think towards you, ſaith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil;] I well know what my purpoſes are concerning you: not ſuch as concern your evil, but your welfare and proſperity; peace: as before, ver. 7. See Eſay 55.8. Act.15.18.

not of evil] Heb. not to evil: ſuch as may tend to your hurt; as chap.38.4.

to give you an expected end] Or, in giving you (as before ver. 9.) an expected end: in not failing your expectation. Heb. an end and expectation. Such an end as your ſelves hope for, deſire and expect. Of the form of ſpeech, ſee on Eſay 4.5. Some render it, an end and an end of expectation; which cometh much up to the former. Howbeit, whereas by end, they would have underſtood a reward; (becauſe the word is ſo uſed, Prov. 23.18.) and ſo alſo expound that 1 Pet.1.9. receiving the end (that is, the reward) of your faith: end, for, reward; becauſe the reward cometh uſually at the end. I ſuppoſe over-nice, and unneceſſary, either in the one place, or in the other: though of reward ſome mention be made in this argument, Chap.31.16. but I conceive the end or iſſue only to be here intended. See Pſal.9.18. & 37.37.

V. 12. Then ſhall ye call upon me, and go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you] Then. Heb. And: as chap.28.5,9. go and pray; or, go to pray: addreſs and ſet your ſelves ſeriouſly thereunto: as did Daniel, Dan.9.3. See the like promiſe made, Eſay 65.24. preſſed by Daniel, and performed by God, Dan.9.17-19,23. & 10.2.

V. 13. And ye ſhall ſeek me and find me,] A defect of the pronoun in the latter ſprig, ſupplyed from the former: as Pſal.139.1. Chap.15.16. but it may well be rendred without the ſupply; Ye ſhall ſeek me and find: not miſs or fail of what ye ſeek for, Eſay 45.19. Mat.7.7,8.

when ye ſhall ſearch for me withal your heart] Or, becauſe ye ſhall ſeek unto me (as Ezek.36.37.) with all your heart: as Pſal. 119.2. that is, ſincerely and entirely. See Chap.24.7. Deut. 4.29. being throughly humbled by your fore-paſſed afflictions, for all your former tranſgreſſions and rebellions againſt me, Levit.26.40,41. Ezek.6.9. & 36.31.

V. 14. And I will be found of you, ſaith the Lord] As Pſal. 32.6. Eſay 55.6.& 65.1. A ſpeech borrowed from thoſe that are willing to be ſpoken with by thoſe that repair to them for advice, aid, or relief.

and I will turn away your captivity,] Or, bring back, or, turn again; as Pſal.14.7. & 126.1. captivity, for, captives: thoſe of you, that are in captivity. So ver.1,4. See Chap.30.3.

and I will gather you from all the nations, and from all the places, whither I have driven you, ſaith the Lord] Heb. which I have driven you there, or, thither: as Chap. 13.7. See the like promiſe, Deut.30.3. Eſay 11.11,12. Ezek.11.16,17. and 20.34,41.

and I will bring you again into the place, whence I have cauſed you to be carried away captive] Or, from whence I had tranſported you. Heb. which from there; as before. See Chap. 24.6. & 32.37.

V. 15. Becauſe ye have ſaid,] Or, Becauſe ye ſay. The Prophet here turneth his ſpeech from them, at leaſt, from the well-affected among them, and the gracious promiſes of good intended by God to them, unto thoſe that liſtened unto the falſe Prophets among them, whom he had given them warning of before, ver.8. and unto thoſe more eſpecially, that remained yet at Jeruſalem, foretelling how God intended to deal with them, howſoever their falſe prophets gave them aſſurance of the contrary, ver. 16—19. and withall what ſhould befall thoſe falſe prophets abiding with them at Babylon, ver. 20—23.

The Lord hath raiſed us up Prophets in Babylon] Some Interpreters here depart from the received both reading and interpretation of this verſe, rendring the words on this wiſe, as depending upon ver. 14. without reference to what enſueth; Then will I deal thus with you, when ye ſhall ſay, (that is, acknowledge) The Lord did indeed raiſe us up Prophets, (who told us) that we ſhould be carried captive to Babylon: like that, Ezek. 2.5. & 33.33. But this forced expoſition they ſeem to have pitcht upon, in regard of that word, the termination whereof commonly importeth motion to a place, rather then of abode in it: but that ſcruple may eaſily be removed, for divers places may be produced, wherein words ſo formed, are uſed in this latter notion: as here, to Babylon, for, in Babylon: ſo, to the earth, for, on the earth, Gen. 28.12. and, to the altar, for, on the altar, Exod. 29.13,16. Lev. 16.25. and, to the North, for, in the North, Chap. 46.6,10. as it is afterward there expounded: and this cleared, there is nothing left, that may perſwade, much leſs enforce us, to depart from the received interpretation of the place. See further on ver. 16. Becauſe ſome among you are over-prone to heed theſe counterfeits, to wit, Ahab, Zedekiah, and Shemaiah the dreamer, ver. 21, 24. hear how far it ſhall be from that which they would make you believe concerning the diſſolution of your captivity, and your ſpeedy return into your countrey; that thoſe who remain yet there at liberty, ſhall within a ſhort time be tranſported and brought over unto you, after they have ſuſtained much miſery at home, ver. 17, 18.

V. 16. Know that thus ſaith the Lord,] This ſupply, I ſuppoſe, is needleſſe. The particle that beginneth the verſe is in the original of various uſe, and the old Latine, which many herein follow, renders it, Becauſe, or, For: which ſome thus knit on to the former relation; as if the Prophet had ſaid, I have told you what God ſaith, but you liſten to other Prophets who have brought you to Babylon, and are ſo far from furthering your delivery thence, that they would rather help to bring you thither, if you were at liberty in your own countrey; for thus ſaith the Lord concerning thoſe that yet remain there. And this coherence would do very well, if the words of the foregoing verſe would admit the ſenſe here given them; which I ſee not how it can, even by any force, be wrung from them: and for that which ſeemeth to have put theſe alſo upon ſuch tentering and torturing of the text, enough hath been ſaid before. The particle being rendred, Therefore; Therefore thus ſaith the Lord; as anſwering to that, Becauſe ye ſay, ver. 15. the context will run on fairly and clearly, without need of help from any either ſuperfluous ſupply, or over-ſtrained coherence. So an Interpreter of prime note rendreth it: and ſo is the particle uſed, Pſal. 116. 10. compared with 2 Cor. 4.13. and in this prophecy, Chap. 16.5. & 20.9.

of the King that ſitteth upon the throne of David,] Of Zedekiah, ver 3. whom Davids throne ſhall not ſecure. See Chap. 22.2. and of all the people that dwelleth in this city, and of your brethren that are not gone forth with you into captivity] dwelleth, or, abide, remain: as Chap. 39.14 and, even (as Eſay 35 4.) your brethren that went not forth with you into captivity; but were left behind with Zedekiah, Chap. 24.8.

V. 17. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts,] This attribute is added to give the more emphaſis to the menace ſubjoyned.

Behold, I will ſend upon them the ſword, the famine, and the peſtilence,] Chap. 24.10. & 27.8. ſo that they ſhall be in worſe caſe at Jeruſalem, then you are in Babylon.

and will make them like vile figs that cannot be eaten, they are ſo evil] Or, ſo bad, ſo naught. See Chap. 24.8. and hence ſeemeth to appear, that this prophecy or epiſtle was penned and delivered ſome ſpace of time after that there related.

make them] Heb. give them: as Chap. 9.10. or, I will deal with them: as Hoſ. 11.8. How ſhould I deal with thee. So the words would there be rendred; and ſo here: for God made them not ſo vile and bad; but they by their wickedneſs having made themſelves ſuch, God juſtly reſolveth to deal with them, as men are wont to do with ſuch vile fruit, and rotten ſtuff, as is good for nothing but the dung-hill: the word rendred vile, is no where elſe in the concrete or adjective, but in the abſtract or ſubſtantive, Chap. 5.30. & 18. 11. & 25.14. See there.

V. 18. And I will perſecute them,] Or, purſue them: the fitter term here: and ſo Pſal. 35.6. & 83.15.

with the ſword, and with the famine, and with the peſtilence] As ver. 17. with theſe evils will I follow them, whitherſoever they go, and whereſoever they become. See Chap. 42.16, 17. & 44. 12,13.

and will deliver them to be removed to all the Kingdomes of the earth,] So Deut. 28.25. 2 Chr. 29.8. See Chap. 15.4. and 24. 9.

to be a curſe and an aſtoniſhment, and an hiſſing, and a reproach] Heb. for a curſe, &c. as chap. 24.9. & 25.4. & 34.17.

V. 20. Hear ye therefore the word of the Lord all ye of the captivity, whom I have ſent from Jeruſalem to Babylon.] Or, Hear ye alſo. Unto you of the captivity I now turn my ſpeech again, to let you know from God, what will ſhortly befall thoſe your Prophets, unto whom ſome among you give too much credit, through the juſt judgment of God upon them. Heb. And hear ye (and, for, alſo: as ver. 24. chap. 1.3. & 14.6.) all the captivity, or, the whole captivity; captivity, for, captives; as verſe 1,4.

of Ahab the ſon of Koliah,] Or, Achab; as the Greek rendreth it: and ſo Achaz. See Eſay 1.1. Of this man and his parentage there is no mention elſewhere. Some ridiculous ſtories the Talmudiſts tell us of looſe pranks played by him and his companion here mentioned, not worthy the recital.

by all the captivity that are in Babylon] Or, captives: as ver. 20. thoſe of their own nation.

ſaying, The Lord make thee like Zedekiah, and like Ahab, whom the King of Babylon roſted in the fire.] Or, burnt with fire: but it may ſeem by the uſe of the participle and verbals of it, applyed to green corn parched with the fire, Lev. 2.14. (for the verb it ſelf is found only in this place) that it importeth a putting of men to torment, and ſo to death, by a ſlow roſting or ſcorching of them with fire, ſo as they are not ſuddenly conſumed or ſlain with it, but endure much extremity of pain therewith ere they die: and ſuch a kind of death, it is very probable that theſe two wicked wretches did by that Heathen Kings appointment endure; being a kind of death not unuſual among the Chaldeans, Dan. 3.6,21. for venting ſuch things as might cauſe diſturbance in the State. Heb. whom he roſted them: an elegant redundancy very frequent in Heb. as Pſal. 1.4.

V. 23. Becauſe they have committed villany in Iſrael,] The reaſon is here rendred, not ſo much, wherefore the King of Babylon burnt them, as for which God in his ſecret providence, and by his juſt judgment ſo diſpoſed of them, that they ſhould fall into his hands, and be ſo handled by him: villany, or, folly: the form is uſed commonly of corporal filthineſſe and uncleanneſſe. See Gen. 34.7. Deut. 22.21. 2 Sam. 13.11,12.

and have committed adultery with their neighbours wives,] Or, in committing adultery with their neighbours wives: herein concurring with thoſe of the ſame ſtamp with them at Jeruſalem, Chap. 23.14. where another word is uſed inſtead of that rendred villany here, that ſignifieth vileneſſe; whereof thoſe vile figs, ver. 17. The like ſyntax, ſee Eſay 31. 5. chap. 6.23. & 8.6. & 9.18.

and have ſpoken lying words in my name, which I have not commanded them,] Chap. 14.14. & 23.21,32. ver. 9,21. Heb. a word of falſhood, or, a falſe thing: as Prov. 13.5.

a witneſſe] Both judge and witneſs: no other ſhall need both to convict and condemn them for theſe their carriages. See Mal.3.5.

V. 24. Thus ſhalt thou alſo ſpeak to Shemajah the Nehelamite, ſaying,] Or, Say thus alſo. Heb. And thus ſhalt thou ſay: as verſe 20. Chap. 27. 4. This latter part of the Chapter containeth a relation of a later date then the former: in likelihood after the return of thoſe meſſengers, mentioned verſe 3. back from Babylon, concerning Shemajah, who had given information by letters from thence, of that which Jeremy had written unto his country men at Babylon; with an heavy doom by God paſſed upon him for the ſame.

Shemajah the Nehelamite] Or, dreamer: for ſuch a notion the word hath in it. Which whether it have any reference to ſome place of his birth, or abode in times paſt, or to his parentage and deſcent, is uncertain; though it bear the name of ſuch a kind of appellation, whereby men are uſually deſcribed from their country, city, deſcent, parentage, kindred, and the like; but it may ſeem to have been a term coined of purpoſe to intimate his profeſſion and practice: as if we would ſay, one of dream-land, one of the houſe or lineage of dream-wrights; for he was one of thoſe in likelihood that profeſſed and practiſed that ſpecial kind of impoſture, whereof, ſee verſe 8. Chap.23.25-32. & 27.9. yet ſeemeth there not to be any probability of that, which a Writer of ſpecial note hath, that he ſhould be a Nahamite, one of the ſtock and lineage of that Naham, mentioned 1 Chron.4.19. and by inſertion of a letter, ſo termed as here, for ſome glance at this his practice.

V. 25. Thus ſpeaketh the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael,] As verſe 21.

ſaying, Becauſe thou haſt ſent letters in thy name unto all the people that are in Jeruſalem, and to Zephaniah the ſon of Maaſeiah the Prieſt, and to all the Prieſts, ſaying,] Letters. Heb. books. So verſe 1. books, for, letters: and it may ſeem that he wrote, and ſent more then one: though the ſum of that one to Zephaniah be here only related, verſe 26-28. which yet ſeems to have been directed by name indeed to him, but withal, to the reſt of the Prieſts together with him. See ver.26.

in thy name] Or, thine own name, (as, thine own way, chap. 4.18.) of thine own head; without warrant or commiſſion from me. So Joh.5.43. if another come in his own name.

Zephaniah] The ſecond under Serajah, who was then High-Prieſt, Chap.52.24.

the ſon of Maaſeiah] Not the immediate ſon of this Maaſeiah; as it is not unlikely that Zedekiah the falſe Prophet was to one of that name, verſe 21. but of the iſſue and family of Maaſeiah, and a Prieſt of that courſe, whereof Maaſeiah was at firſt the head. See Chap.21.1.

V. 26. The Lord hath made thee Prieſt in the ſtead of Jehojada the Prieſt, that ye ſhould be officers in the houſe of the Lord, for every one that is mad and maketh himſelf a Prophet, that thou ſhouldſt put him in priſon and in the ſtocks.] Of this Jehojada, by whoſe example this flattering paraſite would encite Zephaniah, as one endued with his ſpirit of zeal for Gods glory and the good of his houſe, to proceed with all ſeverity & rigor againſt Gods own Miniſter and meſſenger for no other matter then the free and faithful delivery of his Maſters meſſage, ſee 2 Kings 11. & 12. Thus there is no act ſo injurious or impious, but that wicked wretches and falſe Prophets will not only attempt it againſt ſuch as out of conſcience and duty to God either croſs and oppoſe them, or refuſe to comply with them in their corrupt courſes and carriages; but colour it alſo with ſome ſpecious pretence of piety and zeal for Gods glory. See Eſay 66.5. Joh.16.2. & 19.7.

made thee Prieſt] Heb. given thee to be Prieſt: as Chap. 1. 5. & 6.27.

inſtead of Jehojada] Hence doth one of the Jewiſh Commenters gather, that Zephaniah was High-Prieſt, as Jehojada was: but the contrary was before ſhewed from Chap. 52. 24. So alſo, 2 King.25.18. nor was that therefore the reaſon why he mentioneth Jehojada; but as pretending Zephaniah to be for ſpirit and zeal ſuch another as he: as John Baptiſt is ſaid to have had the ſpirit and power of Elias; and hath his name therefore given him, Mal.4.5. Mat. 11.10, 14. Luk.1. 17. & 7.27.

ye ſhould be officers] Or, overſeers. See Chap. 20. 1. thou and the reſt of the Prieſts unto whom alſo together with him this letter ſeems to have been directed, ver.25. So the Jewiſh Doctor here. Howbeit, the text may rather be rendred, that there might be officers; for that ye is not in the text: thou being at preſent the ſecond under the chief Prieſt, who it may be is either through infirmity of body, or ſome other employment, reſtrained from looking after theſe matters as he ſhould, oughteſt to take care that there be not a fail of ſuch officers as may be aſſiſtant to thee for the reſtraining and puniſhing of ſuch counterfeits as this Jeremy: to which purpoſe he may ſeem alſo to make mention of Jehojada, who diſpoſed and appointed officers in ſeveral places to be aſſiſtant to him in the ſetling of the State, 2 King.11.4. in the houſe of the Lord,] A defect of the particle in, as 2 King.18.15.

that is mad and maketh himſelf a Prophet] Or, every madman (ſo have Gods meſſengers been from time to time deemed, 2 King.9.11. Act.26.24.) that feigneth himſelf a Prophet; that in a mad fit or a frantick humour acteth the part of a Prophet, when as indeed he is not: for theſe reciprocall forms in Hebrew have oft times a notion of counterfeiting in them: ſo make thy ſelf ſick, for, feign thy ſelf to be ſick, 2 Sam. 13.5. and, make thy ſelf mourn, for, feign thy ſelf to be a mourner, 2 Sam.14.2. and, making, that is, feigning her ſelf to be a ſtranger, or ſome other, 1 King.14.2. and, he made, that is, feigned himſelf mad, 1 Sam.21.13. The like the Captains charged Jeremy with, when he croſſed them in their deſign, Chap.43.2.

that thou ſhouldeſt put him] Heb. and (as ver.6.) thou ſhalt give him: as Chap.20.2.

in Priſon] As Paſhur had before done, Chap.20.2. of the word here alſo uſed, ſee there; nor was there any ground to render it ſtocks there, and priſon here.

and in the ſtocks] Thus this beaſt, not content to have Gods Prophet impriſoned, or ſo dealt with as Paſhur had formerly done; but would have him yet more contumeliouſly abuſed, and further extremity to be exerciſed on him. That the term here uſed, ſignifieth ſome engin uſed for ſtricter reſtraint or painful torture is generally agreed; but of what kind, or in what manner, is not eaſily determined. One of the Jewiſh Doctors expoundeth it by a word that ſignifieth in the firſt place the ſtock of a tree, and from thence the ſtocks: which we commonly ſo term; as our verſion here rendreth it; ſo uſed by them in that common proverb with them, The workman ſitteth in the ſtocks of his own making: but another of them telleth us that it is an engine of iron for the hands: whence ſome render it manicles; adding withal, that the term cometh from an Arabick word, that ſignifies to ſtraiten, or, pinch in. A learned Interpreter rendreth it in the skif, and would have it to be a word compounded of two terms; the one ſignifying a skif, or, boat; the other having a notion of ſucking: ſuppoſing by it to be underſtood ſuch a kind of engine invented to put men to cruel pains, as Plutarch in the life of Artaxerxes reporteth to have been in uſe among the Perſians: this he deſcribeth to have conſiſted of two hollow frames made boat-wiſe, of equall ſize, between which the whole body of a man being cloſe ſhut up, his head, hands, and legs only extant, at places fitted and left open for that purpoſe: the party ſo encloſed, to prolong his pains, and encreaſe his miſery, through that naſty plight, that he muſt of neceſſity be in, they enforced to eat; and inſtead of drink, to take in milk mixed with honey: which, ſaith this learned Interpreter, the Hebrews termed, the ſuckling-skif: and becauſe it might be objected, that this ſavage and cruel courſe of torment is not found to have been in uſe among the Jews, (though another late Writer affirmeth, that it was at leaſt known to them) to prevent this, he ſubjoyneth, that the Jews uſed this term for any the ſtricteſt and painfulleſt courſe of reſtraint. But to me the notation of the term ſeems over-far-fetcht: nor is any proof brought of the word ſo uſed: it is no where found in Scripture ſave in this place: nor do I find any place produced ſave the Chaldee here, wherein mention is made thereof in the writings of their Rabbines: nor are themſelves, as ye ſee, agreed upon the ſignification of it in particular; which cannot therefore, I ſuppoſe, with any certainty be determined.

V. 27. Now therefore why haſt thou not reproved Jeremiah of Anathoth, which maketh himſelf a Prophet to you?] Heb. And now (as Chap.27.9.) why haſt thou not rebuked? as it is commonly rendred; that is, taken him up, and reſtrained him: for the word is uſed moſt commonly, of an active, as well as of a verbal rebuke, Ruth 2.16. CHAP. XXX.

Verſ. 1. THe word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, ſaying,] This inſcription (the like whereunto ſee Chap.18.1.) extendeth it ſelf unto that entire Sermon or Prophecy laid down in this Chapter and the next, conſiſting both mainly of gracious promiſes concerning the reſtitution of Gods people.

V. 2. Thus ſpeaketh the Lord God of Iſrael, ſaying, Write thee all the words that I have ſpoken to thee in a book.] In theſe words is a ſpecial charge given by God to the Prophet, either to gather together thoſe Prophecies that he had formerly delivered unto him, or to enter thoſe upon record that he ſhould at preſent acquaint him with, being of the ſame ſubject, and to engroſs them, and make them up in a book; thoſe of them eſpecially which concerned the future welfare of Gods people, that they might not be loſt, but remain to poſterity, and that the faithful might have them wherewith to ſupport their faith, and keep up their ſpirits in an hopefull expectation of Gods goodneſſe intended to them, during the time of their long captivity. So Habb.2.2.

write thee] Heb. to thee; an elegant redundancy; the like whereunto, ſee Exod.37.27. Ezek.24.2. as alſo, Chap. 36. 2.

all the words] Or, things; as Chap.26.2. & 29.1.

that I have ſpoken unto thee] Or, as ſome, that I ſhall ſpeak unto thee: and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters here underſtand it. See ver.4.

in a book] Not in looſe papers; leſt ſome of them be loſt; but made up together in a book. See the like charge; but that more ſpecially concerning the denunciation of judgements, Chap.36.2. Heb. unto a book, for, in a book: as, unto the Ark, for, in it, Exod.25.21.

V. 3. For lo the dayes come, ſaith the Lord, that I will bring again the captivity of Iſrael and Judah, ſaith the Lord:] The reaſon for which he would have this book written, to wit, to mind his people from time to time of his mercy intended to them: which he taketh occaſion alſo thereby at large here to relate.

lo the dayes come,] Heb. Behold, the dayes coming: as chap. 23.5. to be ſeen with the eye of faith, Joh.8.56. 2 Cor.4.18. Heb.11.13. and as ſure to come, as if coming, yea, or come already, Hab.2.3. Heb.10.37,38.

bring again the captivity] So Chap.22.27. & 29.10,14. there is an elegant conſonancy and vicinity of ſound between the verb and the noun here uſed: that which occaſioned a miſtake in the old Latine, rendring the words as if both belonged to one root, I will convert your converſion: which albeit, it be a palpable miſtake, and the ſame verſion elſewhere render it aright; yet divers Popiſh, even learned Interpreters admit, and deſcant upon, as ſound and genuine. The word moſt commonly in its firſt form here uſed is intranſitive, and ſignifieth to return: but in this frame of ſpeech ſeems rather to be uſed for to reduce, as here, ſo ver.18. & Pſal.85.1,4. See on Eſay 52.9.

of Iſrael and Judah] The remainder of his, as well among the ten tribes, as with the other two, Chap.3.12,14. & 23. 6. & 31.1-6. Ezek.37.21,22.

V. 4. And theſe are the words, that the Lord ſpake concerning Iſrael, and concerning Judah.] Or, Now (as Chap.29.1.) theſe are thoſe things (as ver.1.) that the Lord had ſpoken: as Gen.12.1. if we ſuppoſe it to have reference to former prophecies: otherwiſe it ſeemeth to relate to what at preſent was delivered; as the Jewiſh Doctors underſtand the words of the charge before related, ver.2. which to reconcile, we may with good ground ſay, that what here followeth is the main matter, ſum, and ſubſtance of all that God had formerly revealed at ſeveral times unto Jeremy concerning the deliverance and reſtitution of his people: for by words in the charge ſeems to be imported, as Chap.29.1. not ſo much the preciſe terms themſelves, as the matter therein compriſed.

V. 5. For thus ſaith the Lord.] Or, Thus then, or, Therefore, (as Chap.29.16.) hath the Lord ſaid: for there is no reaſon here rendred of ought foregoing, but a paſſage only unto the relation of that matter, that was to be recorded.

we have heard a voice of trembling, of fear, and not of peace.] Or, as ſome render it, (which the Hebrew pauſes favour, and which way the ancient Greek goeth) fear there is, but peace is not, or, there is no peace: as Chap.8.11. This ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, whom not a few of ours concur with, underſtand of the dayes of the Meſſias, and thoſe of the expedition of Gog and Magog, Ezek.38. theſe of the troubles raiſed in the world in way of oppoſition to Chriſtian profeſſion, Mat. 10.34. Luk.12.49,51. But the ſounder ſort of ours and theirs conceive the times intended of the Babylonian Invaſion, when the Chaldeans by their approach to Jeruſalem, and the aſſault thereof much more, filled all places thereabout with terrour and dread, Chap.4.9. & 6.4. before-hand mentioned, to ſhew how they ſhould then be rouſed up out of that ſleep of ſecurity, wherewith the falſe Prophets at preſent by preaching and promiſing nothing but peace to them, had ſo deeply poſſeſſed them, that Gods Prophets could hardly wake them out of it, Chap.4.13. for thoſe ſeem to ſtray fartheſt from the ſcope of the place, who expound it of the Medes and Perſians invading the Babylonian State, and ſtriking a grievous terrour into the Chaldeans, Eſay 13.8.

V. 6. Ask ye now and ſee whether a man doth travell with child:] The old Latine here rendreth the words ſenſleſly, Ask and ſee, if a man beget: whereas the Jewiſh Doctor noteth aright upon the place, that the man begetteth, the woman beareth, or, bringeth forth: and ſo the text is word for word here, Demand, or, Enquire now and ſee, if, or, whether, (as Chap.2. 28.) a male bear, or, bring forth: or, as it may well be rendred, Enquire now and ſee; doth a male bear? or, bring forth? make enquiry and try, whether it were ever ſeen or known, that a man, or male, (ſo Eſay 66.7.) brought forth.

wherefore do I ſee every man with his hands on his loins, as a woman in travel?] Why do men generally, even the ſtouteſt and hardieſt, ſeem to be affected, as if like women, they were in travel? See the like demand, Chap.46.5.

every man] The word here uſed, ſignifies according to the notation of it, a ſtrong, or, mighty man. See Eſay 22. 17. Chap.51.12. not the feeble and the faint-hearted only, but the ſtrong and ſtout-hearted ones.

with their hands on their loins] The wonted poſture and geſture of women in travel, ſtriving and ſtraining themſelves to get eaſe of their pains.

as a woman in travel] Heb. as one bearing, or bringing forth: See Chap.4.31. & 49.22,24.

and all faces are turned into paleneſſe?] As is wont to be in extremity of fear, Joel 2.6. the word properly implyeth the colour of corn blaſted, Deut.28.22. the old Latine rendreth it by a word that ſignifieth the diſeaſe commonly termed the yelow jaundiſe.

V. 7. Alas, for that day is great, ſo that none is like it:] Or, Surely (as Chap.22.22. & 24.8.) that day will be ſo great a day, (to wit, for calamity and miſery: as Joel 2.31.) as none hath been like unto it; or, as the like unto it hath not been. Heb. from not being as it: as Chap.10.6. See the like expreſſions, Joel.2.11. Amos 5.18. Zeph.1.14,15. day, for, time; as it is expounded in the next clauſe.

it is even the time of Jacobs trouble;] Or, even (Heb. and: as Chap.29.16.) a time it is (as chap.29.28.) of ſtraits, or diſtreſs, (as Eſay 29.2.) to Jacob; Gods people, Jacobs poſterity: as Chap.10.16,25. which ſome extend unto the whole time, not of the ſiege only, or ſack of the city, but of their captivity alſo that enſued thereupon: the rather to be admitted in regard of what followeth.

but he ſhall be ſaved out of it.] Or, yet. Heb. and (as chap. 27.15.) he ſhall be ſaved: not ſaved, by way of prevention, from it, but ſaved, by way of deliverance, by bringing them in ſafety out of it. See ver.10.

V. 8. For it ſhall come to paſſe in that day, ſaith the Lord of hoſts,] Heb. it ſhall be, as Chap.3.16. in that day, for, at that time: as Eſay 26.1. ſo, day, for, time, ver.7. to wit, when I ſhall viſit Babylon, Chap.27.7.

and will burſt thy bonds;] Either thoſe thongs, wherewith the yoke was faſtened to, or upon thy neck, (ſee Chap. 27. 2.) or bands, wherewith captives, priſoners and bondmen are wont to be bound, Pſal.107.14. 2 Chr.36.6. Chap.40.4. See Chap.2.20.

and ſtrangers ſhall no more ſerve themſelves of him.] Or, ſerve him, as ſome render it; that is, the King of Babylon, chap.27. 7. but rather, as our verſion, ſerve themſelves of him, or, on him; to wit, Jacob, ver.7. the Chaldeans and other people among whom they were captives, ſhall no longer make ſervants of them, detain them in ſervitude and ſlavery under them, as formerly they had done. So Zach. 8. 7. I will ſave my people (that is, bring them ſafe) from the Eaſt lands, and from the weſt: and Act.27.44. they were all ſaved (that is, came all ſafe) to land.

but I will correct thee in meaſure,] Heb. and: (as ver.9.) I will chaſtiſe thee to judgment, or, according to judgment: with diſcretion and moderation. So is the word uſed, Pſal.6.1. & 112.5. chap.10.24. I will deal by way of chaſtiſement in another ſort, in a milder and more temperate manner with thee, then with others; far for meaſure beneath that, which I intend to do unto thine enemies. See Eſay 26. 14,19. and 27.7,8.

and will not leave thee altogether unpuniſhed.] Heb. acquitting acquit thee: as Exod.34.7. Num. 14.18. Nah.1.3. Chap. 25.29. The old Latine rendreth it, that thou mayſt not deem thyſelf guiltleſſe; but I ſee not how the words can yield it. And whereas a learned Writer would have it rendred, I will not cutting off cut thee off, I ſuppoſe the word is no where found ſo uſed; though he affirm it; but producing no cleer place for ſuch uſe of it: for that Zach.5.3. elſewhere produced by him, is queſtionable, and by divers of good note otherwiſe rendred. One of the Jewiſh Criticks would have it here taken in a notion of ſweeping away, and deſtroying; becauſe by ſweeping away and caſting out of duſt and dirt, an houſe is ſaid to be cleanſed and purged: of which uſe of the word, ſee on Eſay 3.26. But this alſo ſeemeth too far-fetcht; the uſe of the form ſo oft uſed elſewhere, carrying it ſtrongly the other and plainer way. See this whole paſſage again repeated, chap.46.28.

V. 12. For thus ſaith the Lord, Thy bruiſe is incurable] Heb. Mortal, or, deſperate to thy breach, or, rupture; but the particle ſeemeth vacant here; as chap.18.19. & 40.2. deadly, or, deſperate. See chap.15.18. in regard of humane hopes or helps; ſuch as God alone is able to help and heal, Hoſ.5.13. & 6.1. Mic.1.9. Their condition by reaſon of their long captivity, chap.29.18. ſeemed deſperate and paſt all hope of cure, Ezek.37.11.

and thy wound is grievous] Heb. thy ſtroke (wherewith I have ſtricken thee) grievous. See chap.14.17. and yet nothing like ſo grievous as that, wherewith he had ſtruck, or intended to ſtrike thoſe, by whom he had ſtricken them, Eſay 27.7.

V. 13. There is none to plead thy cauſe,] Heb. There is none judging, or, deciding, thy judgment, or, controverſie: that offereth to debate, and decide thy cauſe aright, that juſtice may be done thee, and reparations made for the wrong that hath been offered thee. See Eſay 40.27. Ver.15.

that thou mayſt be bound up;] Or, for binding up: as the margent rendreth it: ſo it ſhould be a term borrowed from the binding up of wounds, for the cloſing of them: as the like is Eſay 1.6. & 3.7. but the word rather may ſeem to ſignifie unto compreſſion, or, cruſhing out: and ſo it ſhould be a metaphor, taken from the cruſhing out of ſuch corrupt matter, as feſtred ſores are peſtered with, and muſt be voyded, ere any ſound cure can be had; whereunto therefore way is wont to be made by the cruſhing of it out: that which ſeemeth alluded unto in another word uſed alſo Eſay 1. 6. and becauſe either of theſe actions tend to cure, moſt ſo render it, unto cure, or, binding. Howbeit, becauſe the word ſeems elſewhere uſed for an ulcer, or, ſore, that needeth and requireth ſuch compreſſion or cruſhing, Hoſ.5.13. Obad. 7. ſome render the text, there is none that judgeth thy cauſe, concerning thy ſore. And one of the Jewiſh Doctors ſeems to go ſomewhat this way, though rendring the word rather for healing, or, cure, yet thus expounding the text, There is none that can give any judgment, or, paſſe any doom, concerning help or healing that may be had for thine hurt ; they ſay all, there is no cure, no help for it : for he ſuppoſeth the words following to be conceived as the ſpeech of thoſe that had conſidered of her eſtate, as not unwilling to ſteed her, and recover her, if they could; not unlike that of Babels friends and aſſiſtants, chap. 51.9. But for the word it ſelf I encline ſtill to the former ſenſe of compreſſion, or cruſhing. But becauſe there is a two-fold cruſhing; there is a cruſhing of the fleſh, to put to pain, & to vex; and there is a cruſhing of it, to get out ſomewhat that annoyeth, and hindreth healing : I ſuppoſe that in the other places produced, the word may ſignifie rather a bruiſe, that cometh by an exceſſive preſſure, or over-hard compreſſion of the fleſh, rather then a wound, or ulcer, as moſt inconſtantly render it, ſometime the one, and ſometime the other; but here a cruſhing in the latter notion, as tending to help an healing. Howſoever we take it, There is in the text, a paſſage from one ſort of cure or help to another; from a judiciary to a chirurgicall courſe; ſome kind of cure being intended in either, of a mans body in the one, of his ſtate in the other. Yet an Interpreter of prime note here diſtinguiſheth the terms, as containing ſeveral notions, thus diſtinctly delivered ; There is none that decideth the cauſe ; there is no medicine, or, cure unto healing for thee : which might be admitted, if the pauſes in the originall were not directly againſt it. I rather accord with another learned Writer, who thus paraphraſeth this paſſage ; Thy wound is ſo great, and thy ſore ſo grievous, that it paſſeth the skill of any Phyſitian to tell what may be done to it , or to preſcribe any courſe for the managing and handling of it, whereby any hope of cure may be had: one way of dealing with an hurt being put for all ; cloſing up, as he ſuppoſeth, cruſhing out, as I conceive.

thou haſt no healing medicines.] For the ſenſe of this place in general, there is no great diſagreement, to wit, that there is in this paſſage an intimation of ſome incurable hurt, of an irrecoverable condition : But about both the right construction of the text, and the genuine notion of the words here uſed, there is no ſmall difference, not without ſome difficulty; the former word coming from a root that ſignifieth to cure, or, heal; (whence alſo one that cometh very neer to it; for healing, or, health, Prov. 3. 8.) is by ſome rendred medicines, as here, ſo chap.46.11. though by others there alſo, curings, courſes of cure; for the word is plural : yea, ſome ſo render it, Ezek.30.21. who yet render it the other way here ; and as I conceive, ſhould rather have ſo done there: for the words are, ſpeaking of a broken arm, it ſhall not be bound up, to give curings, or, healings; that is, any degree or help, of cure, or healing at all; as thoſe plurals are alſo in an extenuating notion uſed ; whereof ſee on Eſay 27. 11. for to render it, as they there do, it ſhall not be bound up with medicines put in, to me ſeemeth a verſion of thoſe words overharſh. But the old Latine (for the Greek runs here at randome, and the Chaldee is as ambiguous as the Hebrew) rendreth it curings, or, courſes of cure : which though it may ſeem not to differ much from medicines; yet it is of a larger extent then that term, as we commonly uſe : and I ſuppoſe this to be the proper ſenſe. But the latter word hath more difficulty in it ; it cometh of a word that ſignifies to aſcend, or go up : and it is uſed ſometime for a trench, or, a water-courſe; whereof ſee on Eſay 7.3. but being applyed, as here, and chap.46. 11. to matter of cure, what it ſhould ſignifie is queſtionable. Some render it a plaſter both here and there ; which ſhould be ſo called, becauſe it goeth up upon, and is applyed unto, the hurt or ill-affected place for its eaſe or cure : but other render it much after the ſame manner with the former term, health, or, healing ; ſuppoſing it, ſome of them, to be ſo termed from a word that ſignifies to profit, or, avail; becauſe where care is efficacious, it is available for health : but the form of the word wil hardly admit that deduction; though one of the Jewiſh Maſters here ſeem to allow of it. But others rather therefore from the root before-mentioned, becauſe in curing or healing of a wound or ſore, where the courſe uſed taketh effect, the fleſh groweth up, and either the skin, or ſome skar is drawn over the place, where the wound, or ſore, before was: whence that phraſe frequently uſed in caſes of that kind, cure, or, healing, is gone up : as Chap.8.22. and I will make cure, or healing, to go up, or, to come unto thee, ver.17. and Chap.33. 6. whereof more hereafter : though cure, or, healing may be ſo termed, either in regard of the impoſition of plaſters, or the like upon the place ill-affected ; or, from the procuration and bringing of eaſe & recovery thereunto : and this latter more general ſenſe the word ſeemeth to have. But concerning the conſtruction of the two words here uſed, a new controverſie ariſeth ; for ſome joyn them in regiment together, as the one governing the other ; and they render them curings, or curing courſes, of aſcenſion, to wit, of fleſh or skin ; that is, ſay they, courſes of cure contracting a skar. Others, curings, or, curing courſes of utility; that is, available for recovery : and ſo after one of the Jewiſh Criticks, the old Latine rendreth it. But others render the words apart ; ſome in way of appoſition, courſes of cure, plaſter there is none at all for thee ; or, none at all ſhall avail thee : ſome in way of conjunction ſupplying the copulative, oft wanting , as Eſay 32.13. Hab.3.11. rendring the words, curings (that is, courſes of cure) and healing (or, means uſed for recovery) there is none for thee. So one of the Iewiſh Commenters, who alſo affirmeth both words in effect to ſignifie the ſame ; and that the ſame thing is in divers terms expreſſed to make the ſentence the more vigorous: whom the rather I concur with, becauſe I find the very like, in ſome ſort the ſame, the copulative being there ſupplied in a parallel place , where God promiſeth to do that for his people, which by humane helps is here intimated not to have been feacible, I will cauſe to aſcend, or, bring to her (this city and ſtate) healing, or, health, (a word anſwering to the latter here) and cure : a word from the ſame root with the former : and the verb, or participle rather, that, from whence the latter here ariſeth.

Eſay 63.10. For the phraſe, ſee the like, but in a divers ſubject, Eſay 62. 5. and if we take the particle here for an adverb of time , then the former branch is to be rendred in the future ; All thy lovers will forget thee, they will ſeek, or, look, no more after thee, when I have thus ſmitten thee.

It is ſin alone that enforceth God to theſe harſh and enemy-like carriages toward his people, chap. 4. 18. the cauſal is wanting : ſo ver.15. ſee the like defect of it, chap.36.29.

V. 15. Why crieſt thou for thine affliction ? thy ſorrow is incurable , for the multitude of thine iniquitie ; becauſe thy ſins were encreaſed, I have done theſe things unto thee.] Or, Why doſt thou cry out of thine hurt (Heb. breach, or, rupture ; as ver. 12.) and (a defect of the copulative ; as ver. 13.) of thy deadly, or, deſperate, grief ; or, that thy grief, or diſeaſe, is deadly, or, deſperate ; a defect of the particle that : as chap.27.8. See chap.15. 18. ver.12. what reaſon haſt thou ſo much to complain of thy preſent preſſures, and deſperate condition, when as thou ſufferedſt nothing , but what by thy manifold ſins and exceſſes thou haſt procured to thy ſelf, chap.2.17.& 4.18. ſee ver. 14. and the like argument, Lam.3.39.

V. 16. Therefore all they that devour thee ſhall be devoured] Thoſe that thus render the compound particle here uſed, are compelled to give the words here following a reference unto what went before, ver.10, 11. and to encloſe all that lieth between that and this within the compaſs of a parentheſis : and yet with all their contrivance the context cannot eaſily be brought to hang handſomly together. And one of the Rabbines would have it taken in the nature of an oath. But it would rather be rendred, Notwithſtanding ; or, Nevertheleſs ; or, Yet ; as taken, not in an illative, as moſt commonly it is, but in a diſcretive notion, as in many places of neceſſity it muſt : that which having not been by any, that I can hitherto find, obſerved, hath in divers paſſages of Scripture produced very uncouth connexions, and needleſs hyperbations, to the puzzling of the reader, and disjoynting of the context ; whereas, being duly regarded, it would much conduce to the clearing of it in places not a few. See Eſay 7.14. & 30.18.& 51.21.a place not unlike to this: as alſo, chap. 16.14.Ezek.39.25.Hoſ.2.14. let the places be well weighed; and this here admitted,the coherence of this paſſage with the very next before-going will be cleer: to wit,that albeit, they had no juſt cauſe to complain of what they had ſuffered, ſuſtaining nothing, but what they had brought upon themſelves by their ſins, and deſerved therefore to be left ſtill in that calamitous condition; yet notwithſtanding all this, God would out of his mere mercy take a courſe for their delivery,and for the effecting thereof, inflict the like heavy and harſh things upon thoſe, at whoſe hands they had ſuſtained the ſame. Thoſe, ſaith he,that have devoured thee,or,eaten upon thee(ſee chap.50.17.)ſhall be devoured. Heb. eaten on, or, eaten up. That ſhall be renewed, and made good again, that formerly had been, when Iſrael was a thing conſecrated to God as his firſt-fruits, when all that did eat upon him attracted guilt,and ſome evil or other befell them for it, chap. 2.3.ſee Eſay 41.11.& 49.26.

and they that ſpoil thee,ſhall be a ſpoil,] Some render it,they that tread on thee ſhall be for a treading on to others: as Eſay 42.22. & 51. 22. but the general uſe of the word confirmeth the received Verſion. See Zach.2.9

and all that prey upon thee will I give for a prey.] See Eſay 33.1.

V. 17. For I will reſtore health unto thee] Heb.I will cauſe health,or,healing to come up to thee, or, come unto thee. The word here uſed ſome render a plaſter; and ſay ſome of them properly a long plaſter,ſo called from the length of it; becauſe the word originally hath a notion of length, or, prolongation, rendred long,chap.29.28.and lengthening,Dan.4.27.and ſo the form ſhould have reference to the putting of a plaſter on or over the hurt, or pained part, fully proportionable to the wound or ſore. Some other would have it to ſignifie a ſkar: and ſo ſhould it have relation to the ſkinning of a wound, or ulcer,which, where it hath been deep,is ſeldome done without ſome ſkar. So they ſay it is uſed in the Chaldee tongue, and in the Writings of the Rabbines: for which yet I ſee no cleer place produced out of either: for that of the Chaldee, Pſal. 147. 3. to this purpoſe alleadged by more then one of them,is altogether as ambiguous,as the word it ſelf is in the Hebrew. Thus taken here, it ſhould be as if he had ſaid, I will bring a ſkar upon, or, over thy wound: and ſuch a notion of it here would rather blemiſh, then commend Gods work, who in healing is not wont to leave ſkars behind, but to make a full and fair cure of what he undertaketh to heal,and in that tenour his promiſes of reſtitution are wont to run. See Eſay 54.4———14.& 60. Beſides,that in Eſay 58.8.to render the word either of theſe ways, thy plaſter, or, thy ſkar, ſhall ſpeedily ſpring forth, were palpably to wrong the text. I ſee no reaſon, therefore, why we ſhould recede from the ſignification of the word,as having a notion of health, and healing, in it, and being ſo commonly received: which if it be ſuppoſed to ariſe from that root,as it ſignifieth to lengthen, or, to be long: health, or, healing, may be ſo termed; becauſe it is oftentimes long in coming, and long looked for, before it come. We have a proverb, that ſickneſs comes on horſeback, but goes away on foot; intimating the ſuddenneſs of falling into maladies, together with the ſlowneſs of recovery out of them: but it may rather have its ground from another notion,that the ſame root hath in the Chaldee, to wit,of expectation,and hope,Pſal.147.11. Lam.3. 18. health being an uſual ſubject matter as well of hope, as of expectation and deſire,chap.8.15. now this health, or, healing,is ſaid to come up, chap.8.22.or,to be made to come up,as here,and chap.33.6.as I conceive,not ſo much in regard of the coming up, or bringing up of fleſh and skin to cover the parts, that were bare of either before: as Ezek.37. 6. as of accrewing, or coming unto the part or party healed: for the word that properly ſignifies to go up,is very commonly alſo uſed in a larger notion,for to paſs from place to place to come to,or,to go from, without any ſpecial reference unto aſſcent,or deſcent: as Num.16.24,27. chap.4.7. Joel 1.6. and ſo I conceive it to be taken in theſe and the like forms,wherein health,or healing,is ſaid to come,or to be brought unto one: as diſeaſes are ſaid to come and go at Gods command, Mat.8.8,9. and health conſequently being the removal of them,as in the ſame place is implied. So that the meaning is no more then this, I will bring health, or, healing to thee; or, cauſe it to come home unto thee: and it is not unworthy our obſervation,that the ſame form is uſed alſo of wals, that healing is brought, or cauſed to come to them, when they are repaired,Neh.4.7. and healing,or,health, is ſaid to come to a buſineſs,when it is brought to a good iſſue, or to a full end,2 Chr.24.13.

and I will heal thee of thy wounds,ſaith the Lord;] Or,of thy hurts. Heb from thy ſtrokes,or,plums; as ver.12. a word of larger extent then wounds. Gods reſtitution of his people, being as a recovery of life and health unto them, is very fitly called an healing of them.See Eſay 6.10. & 19.22. & 57.18, 19.chap.3.22.& 17.14.

becauſe they called thee an out-caſt,] The particle thus rendred,the words ſhould import a reaſon, why God would the rather be induced to help and heal his Sion, to wit, thereby really to check and control that conceit, that her adverſaries had of her, that ſhe was a meere abject and out-caſt, one that God had utterly caſt off and abandoned,one that neither God,nor Man,regarded. And it is true, indeed,that the inſolent inſultations of profane wretches over Gods people in times of their dejection and diſtreſs, is a motive ſometime to induce God the rather to ſhew mercy unto them, in delivering and raiſing them up again. But I ſuppoſe the particle hath rather here a diſcretive, or adverſative notion; and would be rendred although: as Gen.8.21. Joſh.17.18. Pſal. 23.4.chap.12.1.& 30.11. though they ſo deem of thee, yet I will by the delivery and reſtitution of thee, ſhew it to be otherwiſe with thee,then they imagine. Heb. they called an outcaſt to thee; that is, thou haſt been called and accounted (as Mal.1.4.) an outcaſt,Mic.4.6. Zeph.3.19. So Eſay 62.4. Forſaken ſhall not be ſaid any more to thee; that is,thou ſhalt no longer be ſo accounted. See the like form,Eſay 1,26.& 64. 4,12.

ſaying] Supplied: as Pſal. 105. 15. Chap. 4. 31. and 11. 19.

This is Zion, whom no man ſeeketh after.] Heb. Zion it,or,it is: the pronoun demonſtrative, for the verb ſubſtantive: as chap.29.28. ver.7. and they ſeem in way of deriſion to have played upon her name: the term Tſion,ſignifying originally, a dry,or,waſte place,Pſal.63.1. & 107.35. chap.2.6. & 50.12. as if it were in regard of its deſolation,for dryneſs, and waſteneſs,a place not worthy the looking after. Heb. Seeker, or, ſeeking to her none is: ſhe is utterly diſregarded both of God and Man: for the ſpeech is of her, as of ſome goodly and beautiful perſon,that in time paſt, living in a rich and honorable eſtate,had been much ſought unto by many, but now fallen into miſery,was utterly abandoned by thoſe that had ſought unto her before.See ver.14.

V.18. Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold,I will bring away the captivity of Jacobs tents,and have mercy on his dwelling places] A further gracious promiſe of the reſtauration of their decayed and ruinated cities, and dwellings, and conſtitution of their State.

Behold,I will bring again the captivity] Heb. Lo I am bringing again the captivity.See ver.3.

the captivity of Jacobs tents] In theſe and the like forms of ſpeech, the term captivity is commonly uſed for captives. See on ver. 3. but here it hath reference not ſo much to perſons, as to places, which cannot be properly ſaid to be captived,eſpecially in the Hebrew, where the word hath a notion of tranſmigration and deportation. But it may be obſerved, that the term of captivity is in Scripture ſometime uſed to denote any calamitous condition in generall: as where it is ſaid, that the Lord turned the captivity of Job, Job 42. 10. though Job was never in proper ſenſe a captive: which may the rather be admitted here, becauſe this deſolation,either with,or by reaſon of the peoples captivity, befell the places of their wonted abode.

Jacobs tents] As, Iſraels tents, 2 Sam.20.1. 1 King 12.16. and Davids Tabernacle,Amos 9.12. an alluſion to the ancient Patriarks dwelling in tents, Heb. 11.9. and the Iſraelites in the wilderneſs,Num.24 5.

have mercy on his dwelling places] Or,dwellings,or,tabernacles; as it is rendred,Num.24.5.Pſal.43.3 & 84.1. on them for him,Eſay 14.1. See the like phraſe,Pſal.102.14.

and the city ſhall be builded upon her own heap,] Or, her heap; where before was nothing but a ruinous heap of ſtones and rubbiſh, Pſal.79.1. Eſay 25.2.& 37.26. So is the word uſed,Deut.13.16.Joſh.8.28.Chap.49.2. or,as others, upon her little hill: which the margent of our Bibles exhibiteth: as if the word ſignified an hillock, or, a knole; ſuch as Jeruſalem ſtood upon,though ſituate in a plain. See Chap.17 3. But this the Jewiſh Doctor not content with, would have it, an high hill: for Jeruſalem, ſaith he,is the higheſt ground in all the land of Iſrael: (though therein we need not believe him) and a participle or participial from this root hath a notion of height,and is rendred eminent, Ezek. 17.22. on a mountain lofty and eminent. Howbeit,others take it more generally,as the Chaldee,who here rendreth it upon her place, that is,upon her ſeat, or, bottome: upon her former foundation: as the term ſeemeth to be taken without ſpeciall regard to hill, or dale,Joſh.11,13.the cities that ſtood ſtill upon their ſeat,or ſoil: and had not been ruinated in the ſurpriſall. Though that term ſeem uſed both there and here; becauſe cities were uſually built on ſome riſing, or the ground at leaſt raiſed for the founding and rearing of them: and from hence divers towns and cities had their appellations, as Telmelach, Ezr.2.59. Telabar, Eſay 37.12. Telabib, Ezek.3.15. But ſee Zach.12.6.& 14.10.

and the palace ſhall remain after the manner thereof.] By the palace, here, ſome underſtand the Kings houſe, or court; Others, and ſo the Chaldee, Gods houſe, the Sanctuary, the Temple which was as Gods palace, Pſal.11.4 & 68.29. Others, both: the middle ſeems beſt.

remain] Heb. ſit; that is, be founded, and ſeated, and ſettled, Eſay 13.20. Chap.50.39. or, abide; as Num.35.28. Pſal.9.7. & 29.10.

after the manner thereof] Heb. upon its right, or, judgment; that is, ſay ſome, ſeated in its former or wonted place; or, as others, ſo built, ſo uſed and ſo frequented, as formerly it had been: the word is of a very large extent. See 1 Sam.2.13. & 27.11. 2 King.1.7.& 17.26.

V. 19. And out of them ſhall proceed thankſgiving, and the voice of them that make merry:] The comfortable effect of this reſtitution, chearfulneſs of heart, and thankfulneſs to God for his goodneſs therein towards them, Chap.31.12.

out of them] That is, from the tents of Jacob and his dwellings, ver.18. and the people reſtored to them.

ſhall proceed thankſgiving] That is, becauſe the noun and the verb are of different genders; ſacrifice of confeſſion, or, praiſe, or, thankſgiving: ſo called, Lev.7.12,13. Chap.17.26.& 33.11. as ſome: or, as others, both Jews, and ours, the voice of praiſe, or thankſgiving, ſupplied from the next branch; as 1 Chron.1.15, Eſay 18.7.& 30.17. ſo Pſal.28.7. & 42.4. Jon.2.10. See Eſay 12.1. & 26.1.& 35.10. & 51 11.

the voice of them that make merry] Heb. that laugh. See on Chap. 15. 17. and it ſeemeth, as ſome not amiſs deem, to allude to the wonted mirth, muſick, and jollity, that was exerciſed by Gods people, at their ſolemn Feaſtivals, and repairs to Gods houſe, Pſal.42.4.& 118.15. Eſay 30.29. Chap. 31. 12, Eſay 30 29. but it may well be taken in a larger extent: as Chap. 31. 13. & 33. 11. See there, Zach. 8. 4. & 9. 15,17.

and I will multiply them, and they ſhal not be few;] Or, they ſhall not be diminiſhed; as Pſal 107.39. Prov.13.11. Eſay 21.17. See Chap.31.27. Ezek. 36. 11. & 37. 26. Zach. 10.8,9.

and I will glorifie them, and they ſhall not be ſmall.] Or, mean, or, of ſmall account, Pſal. 119.141. and ſo is the word alſo uſed in the Syriack, Mat.13.57.& 22.6. Mar.12.4. for they ſtraiten the text too much, (which yet many, both Jewiſh, and others, do) that make this branch no other then the ſame, though in other terms delivered, with the former.

V. 20. Their children alſo ſhall be as aforetime,] Their iſſue (Heb. his; to wit, Jacobs, ver. 18.) ſhall be ſettled in as good and fair an eſtate and condition as they were before the time of their captivity, Eſay 44.3,4. chap.33.11. Lam.5.21.

and their congregation ſhall be eſtabliſhed before me] There ſhall be a conſtant ſucceſſion of them, either protected by me, or attending upon me, Eſay 66. 22. Chap. 31. 36. and 35. 19.

and I will puniſh all that oppreſſe them] Heb. viſit upon (as Ch.29.32.) all his oppreſſers: as Judg.2.18. & 6.9. See ver.16.

V. 21. And their nobles ſhall be of themſelves, and their governours ſhall proceed from the midſt of them.] Heb. his noble, or, magnificent, or, honourable one: as Eſay 10.34. 2 Chr.23.20. and, his ruler, or, governour, from the midſt of him; that is, from among them: as Num.14.13. Joſh. 7. 12,13. This ſome reſtrain to Chriſt, the King and Ruler of Gods Church, Pſal.2.6. Eſay 11.1. Mic.5.2. Act.2.36. and ſome of the Jews themſelves expound them of the Meſſias. Howbeit, the words ſeem collective; and to imply, that ſtrangers ſhould no more rule over them, and keep them in ſubjection; but they ſhould have rulers and governours of their own, Deut.17.15. fulfilled in Zorobabel, and others in thoſe times, Zach.4.14. & 6.11,14. but principally indeed in Chriſt, of whom he was a type, chap.23.6. & 33.16.

and I will cauſe him to draw neer, and he ſhall approach unto me.] This ſome underſtand of the Ruler, or Rulers, before-mentioned, that God would take them to be neer unto him, in regard of of his favour toward them, and protection of them, whereupon the ſafety and proſperity of the people under them would very much depend, 2 Sam.7.14. Pſal.20.1-4. & 89.24-28. See Hagg.2.23. Others, of Jacob or Iſrael, Gods people in generall; a people neer unto God, and received into favour again with God, as before, Exod.19.5. Deut.4.20. Pſal.148.14. Zach.10.6. Others, of Chriſt, who as a Prieſt maketh his approaches unto God for us, and by whom we have alſo acceſſe unto God, Joh.14.6. Eph.2.18. Heb.4.15,16. & 9.11,12. & 10.21,22. 1 Pet.3.18. in whom without queſtion this was moſt conſummately made good: and the order of the context is not amiſſe by divers obſerved; as implying, ſay thoſe that go the firſt way, that no man may intrude himſelf into any office of government without call from God, Deut.10.8.& 17.14. Prov.8.15. thoſe that go the ſecond, that none come unto God, unleſs God convert them, and work them to himſelf by his Spirit, chap.10.23. & 31.18. Lam.5.21. Joh.6.44,65. thoſe that go the laſt way, that Chriſt was by his Father deſigned unto his office, before he undertook it, Pſal.2.6. & 110.1,4. Joh.6.27. & 10.36. Heb.5.4,5,9. 1 Pet.1.20.

for who is this that engaged his heart to approach unto me? ſaith the Lord.] This clauſe is very difficult, and Interpreters are much divided about it: thoſe, I mean, that take notice of it; for many of them let it paſs without any regard had of it. Thoſe that take ſpecial notice of it, ſome of them expound it of Chriſt; but diverſly: ſome in way of admiration of his dignity and excellency. For who is this, (that is, how excellent a perſon is he) that hath given his heart (that is, his ſoul) for a pawn, or, pledge, or, engagement, to procure acceſſe to me? Eſay 53.7,10. Heb.7.22. Others, in way of appropriation, and excluſion of all others; who but he hath engaged, or, can engage? who can engage his heart to approach unto God, in that manner, as Chriſt did? 1 Tim.2.5. or, as others, who dare in that manner offer to approach unto God, or, take upon him the office of mediating between God and man; unleſſe he be by God himſelf called and aſſigned thereunto? Heb.5.4. But others, not a few, apply it to Gods people; whom I rather concur with: and theſe go again two wayes. For ſome would have it ſpoken in way of admiration, as intimating the paucity of thoſe at preſent, that did apply themſelves to draw neer unto God; and they render the words, For who is he that engageth his heart to approach unto me? So it ſhould be like that, Eſay 53.1. Who believeth our report? that is, few or none; and Eſay 64.7. there is none that ſtirreth up himſelf to take hold on thee. Others, in way of confirmation, as rendring a reaſon, why he had ſaid he would make them to approach, that they might come neer to him; to wit, becauſe none could do it of himſelf, Cant.1.4. Joh. 6.44. & 15.3. Others, again, in way of ſtipulation; like that, Pſal.25.12. and that, Eſay 50.10. and one of thoſe that goeth this way, giveth a two-fold ſyntax of the terms here uſed: the words may, ſaith he, be rendred, either, who is he that hath engaged, or, undertaken for his heart to draw neer unto me? as, thy ſervant hath engaged himſelf for the lad, Gen.44.32. or, that hath made a covenant, or, agreement with his heart (that is, hath ſincerely obliged himſelf and made a covenant with his heart) to approach unto me? as he ſaith, Make a covenant, or, agreement, with my Lord, Eſay 36. 8. and as Job, I have made a covenant with mine eyes, Job 31.1. though this word be not there uſed: and he ſuppoſeth that the words may have reference either to what went before, of taking neer to him, ſuch as had any hearty deſire and reſolution thus to approach and come home to him, chap.24.7. & 50.4,5. Joh. 6.37. or to that which followeth, that if any ſuch were found, whoſoever they were that ſhould be ſo affected, they ſhould be his people, and he would be their God, ver.22. unto which one of the Rabbines, going alſo this way, addeth, that this is adjoyned to intimate, that not thoſe of that nation, whom God formerly had taken to be neer him, but ſuch Gentiles alſo as dwelt among them, and were in this manner affected, ſhould be taken in together with them, to enjoy the like communion and inwardneſs with him, Deut.29.11,12. & 31.12,13. Eſay 56.5-8. And this laſt ſeemeth very probable; though the Rabbies additional ſeem a little over-curious and needleſſe. For as for that of a learned Writer, who becauſe the word here uſed hath ſometime a notion of ſweetneſſe, chap.6.20. & 31.26. Pſal.104.34. Prov.3.24. & 13.19. Hoſ.9.4. Mal. 3.4. would have it rendred, who is he that hath ſweetned his heart to draw neer to me? beſide the uncouthneſſe of the phraſe, it cannot have place here; becauſe the word in all the places pointed to, where alone it is certainly found in that notion, is conſtantly uſed in a paſſive, not an active ſenſe, for, to be ſweet, or, pleaſant; not for to make ſuch. Howſoever there is here either a defect of the relative, as chap.23.29. or the demonſtrative put for it; and the other for the verb ſubſtantive: as Pſal.25.12. & 44.4. Eſay 66.1.

V. 22. And ye ſhall be my people; and I will be your God.] A ſtipulation renewed between God and his people. So chap.24.7. & 31.33. & 32.38. A paſſage from perſon to perſon: as chap.29.19. ver.8. and from number to number: as Pſal.127.5. & 140.7.

ye] Both Judah and Iſrael, ver.3. all the families of Iſrael, Chap.31.1.

V. 23. Behold the whirlwind of the Lord goeth forth with fury,] See before on chap.23.19. where the ſame denunciation in effect is found: the only matter of doubt is here concerning the perſons againſt whom it is denounced. It was there denounced againſt the wicked among Gods people, and the falſe Prophets by whom they were ſeduced: and ſo would ſome have it to be here; as foretelling what ſhall befall the obſtinate wicked among them, that kept aloof from God either in heart, or in life, or in both, Chap.12.2. notwithſtanding the gracious goodneſſe of God exhibited and made good unto thoſe that ſincerely drew neer unto him, ver.21. which they ſhould have no ſhare in, but ſhould taſte deeply of his wrath. So Eſay 65.20. Chap. 17. 5,6. But others rather, the moſt and beſt, conceive it to concern here the heathen people, the enemies of God and his Church before pointed at, ver.16,20. the deſtruction of the one being uſually joyned with, and making way to the deliverance of the other. See Eſay 14.1.

a continuing whirlwind] Becauſe the old Latine hath two ſeveral terms here, a whirlwind, and a tempeſt, or ſtorm; ſome Popiſh Writers ſtand deſcanting upon and diſtinguiſhing of them; but to no purpoſe: for the Hebrew word is in either member the ſame, ſave that it is of a maſculine form in this latter, of a feminine in the former: as the like, Eſay 3.1. Jon. 2.1,10. But of the attribute given to it, there is ſome queſtion; for ſome render it, grievouſly cutting, as with a ſaw, which from hence is deemed to have its name, 1 King. 7. 9. which ſeemeth to receive ſome ſtrength from that in the parallel place, chap.23.19. where the word is grievouſly paining, or, putting to grievous pain: for theſe reciprocal forms, where they have no reciprocal ſignification, carry a notion of aggravation and vehemency with them: and this I take to be the genuine ſenſe of the word. Howbeit, ſome other referring it to another root, render it, ſome, an affrighting, or, terrifying, one; becauſe that root hath ſometime a notion of terrour, Job 19.29. ſome, a whirling, or, involving, one; ſuch an one as gathering it ſelf together, ſhould ſo wheel about them, and environ them, that they ſhould not be able any way to get out of it, becauſe the word hath ſometime a notion of gathering together, Eſay 54.15. Hoſ.7.14. ſome, a continuing one, whom our verſion followeth; or, a ſojourning one; that is, ſaith one of them, one that ſhall as an unwelcome gueſt take up his geſſes and lodgings with them, and ſo paſſe in progreſs inceſſantly from place to place, until it have gone thorow their whole land, and made an utter riddance of them; becauſe the ſame root hath alſo other-while a notion of ſojourning, Lam.4.15. and the term is uſed for a ſojourner, 1 King.17.20. But I adhere to the firſt.

V. 24. The fierce anger of the Lord ſhall not return untill he have done it, and untill he have performed the intents of his heart] See Chap.23.20. the pronoun it, needed not here more then there.

in the latter dayes ye ſhall conſider it.] See likewiſe on chap. 23.20. where only the phraſe of conſidering, or, underſtanding, is by a gemination made more emphatical.

CHAP. XXXI.

Verſ. 1. AT the ſame time, ſaith the Lord,] This introduction evidently ſheweth that the fore-going Chapter, and this do joyntly make up one Sermon or Prophecy. For in it, the Prophet after a cloſe of that, with a denunciation of deſtruction to the enemies of Gods people; doth in this return again to the proſecution of Gods gracious promiſes to his people; in the reduction of them into their own land again, reſtitution of their ſtate, multiplication of their iſſue, collation of peace and plenty upon them in abundance, ver. 1——28. renovation and amplification of his covenant with them, ver.29——34. and the continuation of theſe his favours with them to their poſterity for ever, ver. 35——40.

At the ſame time] In the latter times pointed to, Chap. 30.24. (for where that Chapter ended, this beginneth) that is, after the return from the Babylonian captivity in part, but more compleatly, and principally, under the Meſſias, Chap. 30. 9. of whoſe times the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves obſerve, that the Prophets uſe to ſpeak in thoſe terms, Eſay 2.2. Chap, 48.47. & 49 39. Hoſ.3.5. Mic.4.1.

will I be the God of all the families of Iſrael, and they ſhall be my people] Not of Judah alone, but of Iſrael alſo, of all the twelve Tribes, and of all other that ſhall be called and adjoyned unto them, Chap.3.18. & 30.3,4,22. for to that laſt this hath reference. See to the ſame purpoſe, Ezek.37.19,22. Hoſ.1.10 & 2.24 Act.2.39. Rom.11.26.

V. 2. Thus ſaith the Lord, The people that were left of the ſword found grace in the wilderneſſe,] God to put them in hope of further favours, mindeth them here of his former mercies. So Chap.2.2. The words moſt read, as we have them here, in the time paſt; by the people left of the ſword, underſtanding, either thoſe that eſcaped the ſword of Pharao, who purſued them with a full purpoſe to cut them off and deſtroy them, Exod.14.9,10. & 15.9. or, as ſome, that ſurvived the execution done by the Levites among them for their idolatry about the golden calf, Exod.32.27,28. or, as others, the ſword of the Amalekites and Amorites that ſought to intercept them, and cut them off in their way, Exod.17.8. Num. 21.22,33. Deut.25.17,18. (but the former rather here intended) found favour with God, being by him ſupplied with all neceſſary accommodations in their paſſage thorow the vaſt and waſte wilderneſs into the land of Canaan, Deut.2.7. & 8. 2——4,15,16. & 32.10——12. or, as thoſe that go the latter way, they were for all that their horrible idolatry, at Moſes interceſſion and entreaty for them, reconciled to God, and brought into favour again with him, Exod.33.17. Deut.9.19. But ſome read and render the words in the future; The people that are left of the ſword ſhall find favour as in the wilderneſſe; that is, ſay they, thoſe that have eſcaped the ſword of the Chaldeans, ſhall after the diſſolution of that captivity in their return home again, find the ſame favour with me, for matter both of protection and proviſion, that their forefathers did in their journying thorow thoſe diſmall deſerts. Now true it is, that God doth oftentimes parallel the deliverance out of Babylon, with the bringing of them out of Egypt, and deſcribe the paſſages of his providence concerning their return home in the latter, by thoſe diſpenſations exhibited to them in the former, Eſay 11.15,16. & 43.19,20. as alſo that the note of ſimilitude is oft wanting, where of neceſſity it is to be ſupplied: as Eſay 21.8. & 22.18. & 66.3. But where there is no ſuch neceſſity, and the ſenſe is plain and clear of its ſelf without it, there to force it in, and force a Scripture to farther fetcht ſtrains, ſeemeth neither fair, ſafe, nor fit.

even Iſrael, when I went to bring him to reſt,] Heb. in going to reſt him, or, to bring him to reſt Iſrael. So the words lie in the text: which moſt, both of the Jewiſh Writers, and others, underſtand of Gods going to procure reſt to his people: and ſome of the Jewiſh expound of Gods conducting them, and going before them to ſeek out fit reſting places for them as they travelled along, or to and fro, in the wilderneſs, Exod. 13.22. Num.10.33. Deut.1.33. Others, of the bringing of them unto a ſetled place of conſtant reſt in the land of Canaan, Deut.12.9. Pſal.95.11. and the word may then well be rendred, to ſettle him. See Eſay 51.4. & 63. 14. So the word Iſrael muſt, by way of appoſition, be referred to the people before-mentioned, as our Verſion conceiveth it: or if we put off Iſrael to the end of the verſe, rendring the words, to ſettle him, even Iſrael; then there is a redundancy, but elegant and vehement, like that, Prov.5.21. His iniquities ſhall take him, the wicked one; and the end of it, mirth, is grief, Prov.14.13. Howbeit, ſome refer all this to Iſrael, reading the words, ſome in the future, Iſrael ſhall go to his reſt. So the old Latine. Others, in the time preſent, Iſrael going unto his reſt. So ſome of the Greeks. Others, in the time paſt, when Iſrael went, or, was going, to his reſt: or, in Iſraels going to his reſt. So a learned late Writer; who to ſtrengthen this expoſition, further obſerveth; firſt, that the verb infinitive is uſed ſometime for the preter tenſe, wherein the Jewiſh Doctor here concurreth with him, pointing us to the like, Chap. 14. 5. Whereof ſee there: and as leaving, for left there; ſo going, for, went here. And ſecondly, that the verb of reſting in the form here uſed, doth as often ſignifie to reſt, as to cauſe to reſt: and ſo indeed it it ſeemeth to be taken, Deut.28.64. Eſay 34.14. Chap. 47.6. and laſtly, that the infinitive is in Hebrew, as well as in other languages, uſed frequently as a noun: as Pſal.139.2. my down-ſitting, and mine up-riſing: and, thy ſitting, for, thine abode, Ch.9.6. The words may well bear either ſenſe; but I encline rather to the firſt, underſtood of the promiſed land.

V. 3. The Lord hath appeared of old unto me;] Heb. from afar: as Pſal.139.2. Eſay 5.26. but it is uſed as well of time, as of place; and ſo here. Howbeit, ſome refer it to the time to come; as if the meaning were, it is far of that the Lord appeareth unto us. Ye tell us, that God will appear for our deliverance, Eſay 60. 2. & 66.5. but his appearance to that purpoſe is long a coming. So it ſhould be the ſpeech of the people, complaining of the delay of their deliverance. But this Interpretation the words will not well bear. Others, and ſo the moſt read them in the time paſt, as the word is uſed, Eſay 22.11. and well rendred here, as there alſo, of old, in times long paſt and gone. That they are the words of the people in captivity is generally agreed; but ſome would have them the words of the profane party among them, as ſcoffing at Gods Prophets, when they tell them of Gods acts done in former times for his people, as if they ſaid, Ye tell us of things long ago done; but what is that to us, what was then done, if any ſuch things were then done? that was in the old time: ſhew us ſomewhat in our dayes. But the moſt rather of the main body of the people, acknowledging that God had indeed ſo appeared unto their fore-fathers as was before intimated ver.2. but withal implying, that he had now withdrawn himſelf and his gracious preſence from them, and did not manifeſt his affection to them, or might for them, as in times paſt he had done. See the like complaints, Judg.6. 13.

13. Pſal.44.1——3. & 74.12——14. Eſay 49.14. and 63. 15.16.

appeared] Heb. been ſeen: in the manifeſtation of his providence for his peoples good and ſafety; as Gen.22.14. Pſal. 102.16. Zach.9.14.

ſaying, yea, I have loved thee with an everlaſting love;] That theſe are the Lords words, is generally received: but according to our verſion, inſerting the word ſaying, between this and the former branch of the conteat, it may be deemed that they ſhould be the words of God uttered long agoe, at what time he ſo appeared to his people. Whereas indeed they are, as moſt Interpreters alſo take them, returned from God, as an anſwer to the peoples complaint covertly incloſed in their fore-mentioned ſpeech; aſſuring them of the continuance of that affection to them, that in former times he had born toward them, and manifeſted unto them: and inſtead of ſaying, therefore, ſay they, might be ſupplyed, as Eſay 58.3. but referring it to the ſpeech fore-going, and annexing it to the cloſe of the former branch, as alſo the words here following, might better be rendred, yea, (Heb. and, as Chap.18.23.) I love thee with a perpetual, or, everlaſting, love. Heb. love of perpetuity, or, eternity; as, kindneſſe of perpetuity, Eſay 54. 8. and, joy of perpetuity, Eſay 61.7. My love and affection continueth ſtill the ſame to thee, and ſo ſhall do for ever: or, as ſome other, with reference to the time paſt, I love thee with an ancient, or, a love of antiquity: I love thee ſtill with the ſame affection that in former ages I bare towards thee: and both the terms of the text, and the drift of the context will bear it; for the word here uſed hath oft reſpect to the time paſt, as well as to the future, Eſay 58. 12. & 63.9,11. See Mal.1.3. & 3.6. Joh.13.1. Rom.11.29.

therefore with loving kindneſſe have I drawn thee.] Or, I drew thee, as ſome; I woed thee to win thee and bind and engage thee to me with many benefits, as with cords and bands of love, Hoſ.10.4. or, as others, I will draw thee; to wit, after me, Cant.1.4. Joh.6.44. or, unto repentance, Rom. 2.4. But others rather, both of the Jewiſh Writers and ours, conceive the term here uſed, to be taken in a notion, not of attraction, but of extenſion: and ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors render the words in the time paſt, therefore did I extend kindneſſe to thee; to wit, ſay they, at Mount Sinai, when I took thee to be a people in covenant with me, Exod. 19.5,6. an effect of his love and affection to them, Deut. 7.7,8. But ours rather in the future, therefore will I extend kindneſſe to thee. So Pſal.36.10. extend thy kindneſſe; and, none to extend kindneſſe, Pſal.109.12. Heb. word for word, extend thee kindneſſe, for, extend it unto thee: the particle ſwallowed up, between the verb and the pronoun affixed; as Eſay 65.5. See inſtances of the like there; wherein he would extend kindneſſe to her, ſee in the words next following.

V. 4. Again I will build thee, and thou ſhalt be built,] Thou ſhalt be reſtored and ſettled again; a metaphor taken from architecture: for, ſaith the Rabbine, as timber and ſtones and other materials are diſſipated and diſperſed, when a building is diſſolved and pulled down; ſo in re-edifying of it, they are gathered and brought together again, and the fabrick is raiſed by the conjunction of them in due manner one with another: and in like manner was it with this people, who when they were diſperſed by deportation, had their State diſſolved, which God by the collection and reduction of them unto their own land, and ſetling of them therein, promiſeth as to re-edifie and build up again, Pſal. 51. 18. & 102.16. & 147.2. chap.24.6.

O virgin of Iſrael] Or, O damſel. See Eſay 47. 1. and, damſel of Iſrael: as, daughter of Sion, Eſay 1.8. and, the city of Jeruſalem, it is put here for the whole State of Iſrael, ver. 1.

thou ſhalt again be adorned with thy tabrets, and ſhalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry] Thou ſhalt return again to a comfortable and cheerful condition, ſuch as in times of peace and plenty, people generally, the younger ſort eſpecially, are wont to enjoy, Zach.3.10. & 8.5. & 9.17.

be adorned with thy tabrets] Or, adorn, or, furniſh, thy ſelf with thy tabrets, or, timbrels. So the verb is rendred, as in a reciprocal notion, chap.4.30. Ezek.16.13. & 23.40. thou ſhalt make uſe again of thy tabrets, or, timbrels, which they were wont to play upon in their ſolemn feaſtings; and at times of extraordinary rejoycing, Gen. 31. 27. Eſay 30.32. and theſe the rather he here mentioneth, because he had compared the State of Iſrael to a young damſel; and as theſe ſolemnities ſuch uſed to play on them, Exod.15.20. Judg.11. 34. 1 Sam.18.6. Pſal.68.25. and the uſe of theſe, ſaith the Rabbine, ſhould then be an ornament to them, becauſe they ſhould uſe them in ſeemly manner and ſeaſonably; not as thoſe that made uſe of them formerly, when occaſion was of mourning and grief rather then of mirth, Eſay 5.12. Amos 6. 5,6. but the meaning may be ſimply, thou ſhalt furniſh thy ſelf with them, and with other thine ornaments put them on about thee as we ſome ſcarf or ſilk ribbin, it is not unlikely they hung them on, when they made uſe of them. Howbeit, a learned Writer would rather have the words rendred, thou ſhalt adorn thy tabrets: and the word is applyed, as ſometime to that wherewith one is adorned, Eſay 61.10. Hoſ. 2.13. ſo other-while to the party or thing adorned: as Ezek. 16.11. and, ſaith he, in times of publick jollity, the timbrels were wont to be adorned and ſet out with garlands: and I ſuppoſe indeed, that the meaning may well be, (whether any ſuch garlands were uſed about them, and be aimed at, or no) that they ſhould furbiſh over and trim up their tabrets again, which had been caſt aſide and neglected before.

go forth in the dances of them that make merry] As the damſels alſo uſed at ſuch times to do, Judg. 11. 34. & 21. 21. 1 Sam.18.6. So ver. 15. Of the latter word, ſee on Chap.15.17.

V. 5. Thou ſhalt yet plant vines upon the mountains of Samaria;] Another note of times of publick peace and ſecurity, when men apply themſelves unto tilling and planting, which in times of war or dread and danger they are wont to neglect: as uncertain to enjoy, reap or receive any fruit of their labours, Judg.6.3,4,11.

upon the mountains] Deemed fitteſt for vines, as affording the beſt grapes, and ſuch as yield the ſtrongeſt wines. So Ezek.36.8,9. Joel 3.18.

of Samaria] The head-city and royal ſeat of the ten tribes, 1 King.16.24. put ſometime, as Iſrael, for that whole State and the land poſſeſſed by them, chap.23.13. Ezek.16.46. Hoſ. 7.1. & 8.5. Amos 3.9. hence thoſe that are here called, the mountains of Samaria, are called the mountains of Iſrael, Ezek. 36.8. & 37.22. This is deemed, to have been in part fulfilled, after the return from the Babylonian captivity; and that partly in many of the ten tribes that returned back with their brethren the Jews, repoſſeſſing ſome part of their land again, and partly in the Jews, who regained at ſometimes much of that countrey; to which purpoſe are produced out of Joſephs antiquities, lib.13. cap.5,8. the letters of two Demetrii, the Father and the Son, unto Jonathan the then Jewiſh Ruler, wherein upon their conqueſts made in thoſe parts they aſſign the land of Samaria with ſome other regions thereabout unto the Jews; but was to be more fully accompliſhed ſpiritually in the reſtauration of the Church under the Meſſias. See Ezek.37.21,22.

the planters ſhall plant them, and ſhall eat them as common things.] Heb. ſhall profane them: a defect of the pronoun; as Chap.24.6. After the time both of the uncircumciſion of them, which continued three years after the firſt planting of them, compleated, and of the ſanctification of them, which laſted unto the fourth years end, now expired, thoſe that planted them, ſhall in the fift year eat freely of the fruit of them. See the Law to this purpoſe, Levit. 19. 23-25. and Deut.20.6. Thoſe that plant them, ſhall in due time enjoy them, not being deprived of the fruit of their labours, nor that which they had taken pains for, being either deſtroyed or devoured by ſtrangers, Eſay 65. 21-23. of the uſe of the word, ſee 1 Sam. 21.5.

V. 6. For there ſhall be a day] Heb. there is a day. A time is ſet, and ſhall ſurely come; as Eſay 11.10. Zach.14.7.

that the watchmen upon the mount Ephraim] Heb. the watchers, or, keepers, on mount Ephraim; for there is no article in the text; and, mount-Ephraim, ſoundeth better with us: as alſo it is rendred Judg.19.1. 1 Sam.1.1. Ephraim; as, Samaria, for that whole land or State: the reaſon whereof, ſee on Eſay 7.2. there is a defect of the particle that, as Chap. 25. 12.

watchmen] Such, ſay moſt, as are deſcribed, Ezek. 33.2. perſons ſet of purpoſe on work by the State, to watch as ſentinels on publick places, to deſcry and give warning of any enemies approach, Eſay 21.6. and the word here uſed ſeemeth ſo to be taken, 2 King. 17.9. & 18.8. that which therefore moſt apply unto the Miniſters of the Goſpel; as Eſay 52. 8. & 62.6. Howbeit, I conceive rather that the alluſion is to the Keepers of the Vineyards, whereof mention was before made, ver.5. as ſuch are deſigned and alluded to under this term, chap.4.16,17. (for of thoſe in times of publick peace and ſecurity there is not ſo much uſe) that they ſhould be enciting and calling one to another, to go to worſhip God in the ſet places of his publick and ſolemn ſervice. Which albeit, it was to be in its chief and higheſt degree and accompliſhed under the Meſſias, when the Faith of him ſhould by thoſe of that nation be embraced, Joh.4.40,41. Act. 8. 1-25. Yet I ſuppoſe that conceit of a great man a little too curious, who would have the term of Nazarens in the term here found alluded to, ſometime given by ſome to the Chriſtians, Act. 24. 5. See Eſay 11.1.

ſhall cry, Ariſe ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the Lord our God.] See the like invitations and compellations of people calling one upon another to go together to Gods houſe, Eſay 2.3. Mic.4.2. Zach.8.21.

ſhall cry] As Eſay 21.8. or, call; in way of invitation; as Deut.33.19.

Ariſe ye] See Chap.18.2.

go up] Or, go, repair; as Pſal.122.1,4.

to Zion] Where the Temple ſtood: a type of the Church, Pſal.84.7.from acceſſe whereunto by Jeroboam they had been debarred, 1 King.12.27,28.

unto the Lord our God] From whom they ſeemed to be excluded before, as having no part or portion in him among his people, Ezr.4.2,3. Mat.10.5. Luk.9.52,53, Joh. 4.9,22. See the like prophecy of the conjunction and re-uniting of theſe two, Ezek.37.16-20.

V. 7. For thus ſaith the Lord, Sing for gladneſſe with Jacob,] An exhortation followeth, wherein the people of Iſrael are called upon to acknowledg and publiſh with much joy Gods gracious goodneſſe towards them in their deliverance. And this branch moſt take, as directed to the Churches friends, or forrein nations, as called upon to rejoyce for her, or, with her, (for ſo is the particle alſo uſed in the former way, Gen. 21.6. & 25.42. in the latter, Gen.46.25. chap.19.13.) ſo it ſhould be like that, Deut,32.43. the Gentiles being invited to rejoyce with Gods people, and in the next clauſe mentioned, as ſome, becauſe they were alſo to be brought unto Chriſt, chap.16.19. Rom. 15.10. Eſay 66.10. Howbeit, one of the Jewiſh Commenters, (whom the ancient Greek herein followeth) taking the particle in his moſt uſual notion, and ſuppoſing a trajection to be in the words, rendreth it, Thus ſaith the Lord to Jacob, Sing, or, Exult ye, for, or, with, joy: and ſo it is an encitement of Gods people themſelves to rejoyce; like that, Zach.9.9.

and ſhout among the chief of the nations,] Heb. cry aloud, or, ſhrill, (as it is rendred. Eſay 10.30. the word ſignifieth properly to neigh, chap. 5.8. & 50. 11. and it is uſed moſt in a notion of exultation and alacrity, Eſt.8.15. Eſay 12.6. & 24. 14. & 54.1.) in the head of the nations; which our verſion rendreth chief: and ſo the word is ſometime uſed; as Exod. 30.23. Eſay 9.10. Now this ſome expound, as inſulting over the nations; that being before as the head, had made them as the tail, Deut.28.44. and they urge the term of neighing, as to that purpoſe here uſed: and this way both the ancient Greek and Latine ſeem to go, rendring the words, neigh againſt the head of the Gentiles: and ſo is the particle uſed, Exod. 14.25. Num.12.1. But the moſt rather underſtand it, as the Chaldee renders it, openly, in, or, unto, the face of the nations; (the head, for, the face: as Job 10.15. Chap.14.3. 1 Cor.11. 7,10.) as implying only a free and open profeſſion and publication of what God had done for them: as Eſay 12.4. and this alſo the words following confirm. One of the Jewiſh Commenters renders it, on the towers: and, head, for, top, is uſual: as Exod. 17.9,10. Eſay 2.2. but then ſomething is added; the top whereof is ſaid to be the head, or, top; otherwiſe head, for, tower ſimply, is no where found.

publiſh ye, praiſe ye,] Heb. make to hear (as Eſay 48. 20.) praiſe ye; that is, with praiſe relate and publiſh it: as, went and wept, for, went weeping, Pſal.126.6. ſtand and feed, for, ſtand feeding, Eſay 61.5.

and ſay, O Lord, ſave thy people, the remnant of Iſrael.] This clauſe is in a manner generally thus rendred. But how to fit it to the preſent diſcourſe, Interpreters are ſomewhat troubled. For ſome would have them the words of the people remaining yet in captivity, entreating God to deliver them, ſuch of them, as yet ſurvived, having eſcaped the ſword of the Chaldeans, ver.2. but remained ſtill in thraldome; unto which their ſuit and anſwer ſhould by God be returned, that he would grant their requeſt and fulfill their deſire, verſ. 8. but others conceiving aright by the words foregoing, that this whole paſſage is directed unto, and concerneth the people as now delivered, and ſet free, as that Eſay 12. 4. & 48. 20. underſtand it, as a petition preferred to God by the Jewiſh people delivered, in behalf of the other tribes, a great part whereof remained ſtill. Which yet with others ſeeming not ſatisfactory, they would have it to be a form not of prayer, but of praiſe, as Hoſanna is, ſay they, Pſal.118.25. Mat.21. 9. But this ſuiteth not well with the uſe of the word in the Pſalm, from whence that in the Goſpel hath it; howſoever it may there receive another expoſition, from a rite uſed by the Jews at one of their feſtivals, as ſome learned Criticks have obſerved. Howbeit, that it ſhould be rather matter of praiſe, then of prayer, the foregoing words imply. And the Chaldee therefore rendreth it in the time preſent, The Lord delivers, or, is delivering, his people, (not as ſome render him, thou haſt delivered: for it is a participle of the preſent, that he maketh uſe of) and the ancient Greek in the time paſt, The Lord hath ſaved his people; and ſo it ſuiteth well with the parallel places, Eſay 44.23. Sing ye heavens, ——— and ſhout ye lower parts of the earth, —— for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob: and Eſay 48.20. Declare ye, tell this, utter it, —— ſay, The Lord hath redeemed his ſervant Jacob: (ſee alſo ver. 11.) and it may well be rendred, Thou haſt ſaved, or, ſaving ſaved thy people: for the verb ſeemeth here to be the infinitive, which is oft in this form and others the ſame with the imperative, and is uſed frequently for the indicative, whereof ſee on ver. 2. and that as well paſt, as there, and Eccl. 9.10. as future, 2 Sam.3.18. where the indicative of this verb there wanting, as in ſuch defective phraſes, is found ſupplyed, Chap. 11.12.

the remnant of Iſrael.] As Eſay 10.21,22. Rom.11.5.

V. 8. Behold, I will bring them from the North-country] Heb. Lo, I am bringing (as chap. 5.1,5. Zach.3.8.) them (the remnant of my people, ver.7.) from the North; from Babylon, and the parts thereabout, Chap.3.18.

and gather them from the coaſts of the earth] Heb. ſides, chap. 6.22. & 25.32. from Aſſyria, Media, and other parts, whither thoſe of the ten tribes had been tranſported, 2 King. 17.6.

and with the blind, and the lame, the women with child, and ſhe that travelleth with child together,] Or, the copulative caſt out, among them (as Eſay 65.4. & 66.19. chap.11.9.) ſhall be the blind and lame, ſhe that goeth great, (ſee Eſay 7.14.) and ſhe that is near her time (Heb. bringing forth, as chap. 6. 24.) together. Thereby intimating, that none in regard of any defect or infirmity, which uſually are wont to diſable perſons to travel, to take long journeys eſpecially, (2 Sam.19.26. Mat.24. 19.) ſhould in that regard miſſe or be deprived of the benefit of return into their own country; God would in his providence ſo diſpoſe things, that ſuch as were in theſe regards moſt unfit, and unable to travel, ſhould have ſuch means of conveyance provided them, as ſhould with ſafety bring them to their journeys end: See the like in part, Eſay 60.4,9. & 66. 20. So rather, I ſuppoſe, then as ſome other, implying, either the willingneſſe & forwardneſſe of the people to return home again, that no want or weakneſſe would with-hold from ſetting forward on their way, the women great with child, and neer their time, refuſing to ſtay till they were light: or, as others, to ſhew, that none for any natural infirmity ſhould be refuſed or excluded from having a part among Gods people. See Eſay 35.5,6. & 42.16. & 56 3,4. Luk.14.21. There want not that underſtand all theſe paſſages ſpiritually, the blind in mind, Act. 26.18. and through feebleneſſe diſabled to walk eavenly, Heb.12.12,13. and heavy laden with their ſins, Mat.11.28. and ready to faint for want of inward comfort, Eſay 42.3. & 50.10. But theſe particularities I conceive to be over-curious, and leave them to the judgment of others.

a great company ſhall return thither.] Heb. hither; into this land again. See Ezr.2.64,65. & 8.1——20. and of converts in the Apoſtles time, Act.2.41. & 4.4. & 8.6,12.

V. 9. They ſhall come with weeping] There are tears of joy as well as of grief. See Gen. 29. 11. & 43.30. & 45. 2,14. theſe might well be mixt, as well of grief for their ſins, whereby they had grieved God, Ezek.6.9. Zach. 12. 10. as of joy for their deliverance out of thoſe calamities, which they had brought upon themſelves by their ſins. So, going, and weeping, that is, weeping as they go along, chap. 50.4. Nor can I aſſent to that learned man, who would have it rendred, They ſhall go out, or, went out, with weeping; as Pſal. 126.6. expounding it of their going out into captivity: the current of the text goeth like a ſtrong torrent againſt it.

and with ſupplications will I lead them] With ſupplications, for the remiſſion of their ſins: and the word is commonly uſed for ſupplications, Dan.9.3,17,18,23. and weeping and it are joyned together, chap.3.21. Zach.12.10. But ſome other ſay, that the word is more general, comprehending as well praiſe and thankſgiving, as ſupplication and prayer; as another of the like notion is obſerved to do, 1 Sam.2.1. for Hannah's devotion there recorded, is rather tehillah, then tephillah, conſiſting of matter of praiſe, rather then of prayer. And ſome other again, which our margent exhibiteth, render it favours: and this, though the word it ſelf be not found directly ſo uſed, yet in the original, and the notation of it, it hath a notion of grace, or, favour; and another term riſing from the ſame root, and being of very near affinity with it, though commonly, yea, almoſt generally, uſed for prayer, properly to procure grace, yet is once or twice at leaſt found uſed for favour, or, grace it ſelf, Joſh.11.20. Ezr. 9.8. and ſo therefore I conceive, with one of the Jewiſh Commenters, that it is to be taken here; as being applyed rather to God that led them, then to the people led by him: with graces, or, favours, will I lead them: graces, or, favours; as, tender-mercies, and loving-kindneſſes, Eſay 63.7. for, great abundance, or much of either.

I will cauſe them to walk by the rivers of waters,] Or, I will lead them along (for this word and the former are in notion the ſame; and there is in the original an elegant conſonancy between them) by the water-brooks. Heb. to the brooks of water: and ſo it may ſeem to be, as ſome would have it, taken from the manner of leading out their ſhip to the water, Pſal. 23.2. but I ſuppoſe it well rendred, as in our verſion, by, or, beſide; (as the particle is uſed, Gen. 49.29. bury me beſide my fathers: and, as it is aright rendred, Job 29.19. my root was ſpread out by, or, beſide the waters,) becauſe the ſpeech is here of journeying or travelling: the meaning of it being, that they ſhould no more want water, (a principal and moſt neceſſary means of relief unto paſſengers travelling in thoſe countries, and thorow dry and waſte places eſpecially) then as if they went all the way by the ſide of ſome one or other river. See Eſay 41.18. & 43.19,20. and 49.10.

in a ſtreight way, wherein they ſhall not ſtumble.] Or, rather, in an even way, (ſee Eſay 26.7.) that they may not ſtumble therein; as Eſay 63.14. See Eſay 40.3,4. & 42.16. and 62.10.

for I am a father to Iſrael,] Heb. for a father; as Gen. 17.4. 2 Sam.7.14. I retain ſtill a fatherly affection towards him, as in former times I had, Deut.8.5.& 32.6. Pſal.103.13. Mal. 2.10. & 3.17. and we need not inſert, as a learned Writer would have us, the note of ſimilitude, reading the words, as a father; that is, as Jacob was to Joſephs ſons, whom he adopted, making him in regard of the double portion as his firſt-born, Gen.48.5,16,22. 1 Chr.5.1.

and Ephraim is my firſt-born] Heb. my firſt-born he: he, for, is: as thou he, for, thou art, Pſal.44.4. Ephraim is as dear to me, as is any firſt-born to his father. So the Chaldee, with whom the Jewiſh Commenters do herein concur. See the ſame ſpoken of Iſrael in general, Exod. 4.22. of David in particular, Pſal.89.27. of all the faithful, Heb.12.23. See after alſo, ver.20. So rather then, as ſome, becauſe Joſeph had the birth-right devolved to him from Reuben, 1 Chr.5.1. and Ephraim, though his younger ſon, preferred before Manaſſes in the bleſſing by their grand-father Jacob, Gen. 48.14,19. or, with ſome others, as if the Jewiſh people (for Ephraim here comprehendeth the whole body of them) were ſo termed in regard of the Gentiles, that were afterward to be taken in to them, Act.3.26. Rom.2.10.

V. 10. Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the Iles afar off, and ſay,] Iles, or, lands, or, countries; as Eſay 41.1. & 66.19. God will have his gracious promiſes concerning the deliverance of his people, to be before-hand publiſhed far and neer, that notice may be taken of it, and it may thereby be known whoſe work it is, when it is done. See Eſay 44.26. & 45.21. & 46.10. & 48.5,14. So as of the thing done and effected before, ver.7.

he that ſcattered Iſrael, will gather him,] God, who formerly in his wrath, for their ſins diſperſed them, (for it was not ſo much the enemies might, as his purpoſe and pleaſure, that enabled them to prevail againſt them; and unto him therefore is the diſperſion of them principally aſcribed, Chap.9.16. & 15.7. & 16.17. Zach.7.14.) being now reconciled to them, will gather them together again, Pſal. 147.2. Eſay 11.12. & 56.8.

and keep him] Not gather them together only, and ſo leave them to themſelves, but protect them alſo, when he hath brought them together, and keep them in ſafety, Eſay 38.6. & 26.2. & 27.3. Zach.2.5. called therefore the Keeper of Iſrael, Pſal.121.4. So of all the faithful, 1 Pet.1.5. not called only but kept, Jude 1. See Joh.10.27,28.

as a ſhepherd doth his flock.] Who not only ſeeketh after his ſheep, when they are ſcattered or have ſtrayed, Ezek.34.11—16. Mat.25.32. Luk.15.4,5. but keepeth them alſo and feedeth them, and tendeth them, and defendeth them, when he hath them together, 1 Sam.17.35. Ezek.34.22,23. hence David, The Lord is my Shepherd, Pſal.23.1. and God is ſtyled the Shepherd of Iſrael, Pſal. 80.1. and Chriſt, the good Shepherd, Joh.10.11—16. and, the chief Shepherd, 1 Pet. 5.4. See alſo Eſay 40.11.

V. 11. For the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and ranſomed him from the hand of him that was ſtronger then he.] Or, the Lord hath delivered (as Pſal.55.18.) Jacob, and reſcued him out of the hand (as Pſal.107.2.) of thoſe (for the term is collective) that were ſtronger then he, or, too ſtrong for him. Heb. ſtrong from him; as Pſal.18.17. See on Chap.20.7. of the Chaldeans and other powerful people, corporally, Eſay 40.10. of Satan and his inſtruments ſpiritually, Mat. 12.29. Luk.11.21,22. Col.1.13. Heb.2.14,15. Some render it, in the future, will deliver, will reſcue; becauſe it ran ſo, ver.10. but of that there is no neceſſity; freedom was both effected and publiſhed before they either were, or could be gathered together, being ſo diſperſed as they were.

V. 12. Therefore they ſhall come and ſing in the height of Zion,] Heb. And, as Chap.29.27. Howbeit, the copulative may here be retained. Thoſe of the ten Tribes, as well as the other two, ſhall after their return from captivity, repair to mount Sion, with ſacred hymns, to celebrate Gods praiſes, in his Sanctuary there ſeated, a type of his Church, Eſay 2.2. So ver.6. The text may well be thus rendred; And they ſhall go ſinging unto the high place of Zion. So is the particle uſed of motion to a place, Gen.21.4. Lev.16.21. Ezr.9.7. Eſay 9.8. & 10.22. go and ſing, for, go ſinging: as, go and weep, for, go weeping, Pſal.126.6. and, the height of Sion, for the high places there; as, the height of Iſrael, for, the high places thereof, Ezek.20.40. & 44.14. See Chap.17.12.

and ſhall flow together] Flock thither by ſholes, as waters come flowing in of themſelves abundantly, where they find open and free paſſage: for the word, as the Rabbine obſerveth, ſeems to note as well the alacrity, as the numeroſity of thoſe that ſhould repair thither. See Eſay 2.2. So Pſal.34.5. Chap.50.44.

to the goodneſſe of the Lord, for wheat, and for wine, and for oyl, and for the young of the flock and of the herd] to the goodneſs of the Lord; that is, as ſome, to his beneficence; or unto him as the fountain and wel-ſpring from which all theſe benefits and bleſſings do flow: or, upon the goodneſſe of God; having received theſe things out of his bounty beſtowed on them, as Hoſ. 3.5. or, as others, goodneſſe, for, good things; as Gen.24.10. and, the goodneſſe of the land, for the good things of it, Gen.45.18. Neh.9.12. Eſay 1.19. called here the good things of the Lord, becauſe he is the giver of them, Hoſ.2.8. Act.14.17. and promiſeth to beſtow ſuch on them, ver. 14. which good things what they were, is afterward more particularly expreſſed: and it may according to this expoſition well be rendred, for the good things of the Lord, for corn, and for wine, (Heb. new, or, ſweet, wine; as Eſay 36.17.) and for oyl, and for the young, or, iſſue (Heb. ſons; as Gen.18.7. Num. 7.15. Pſal.114.4.) of herd and flock, greater and leſſer cattel; as Eſay 7.25. and howſoever the particle before the term of good in general, be not the ſame with that which uſhiereth in the particulars; yet it is obſerved by the Jewiſh Criticks here on ver. 9. that theſe two, el and al, are oft promiſcuouſly uſed; whereof ſee inſtances not a few in this Prophet, Chap. 22.11,18. & 26.5. & 27.19. & 44.1. & 46.2. & 47.1,7. & 49.19,20,34. & 50.1. & 51.12. The meaning then is, that they ſhall repair for theſe things unto Sion, not to find theſe things there, as Eſay 55.1. but either to ſeek God for them, as Ezek.36.37. or to bleſs and praiſe him for them, who hath before bleſſed them with the ſame, Deut.7.13. & 8.10. & 16.13—15. and howſoever theſe temporal good things are in a generality types of better ſpiritual bleſſings, Eph.1.3. Heb. 8.5,6. & 9.23. Yet I ſuppoſe them ſomewhat over-curious, who by corn, here underſtand the bread of life, Chriſts body, Joh.6.33,35,51. by wine, his bloud, Joh. 6.53-56. the food of our ſouls, Mat.26.26-28. by oyl, the Spirit of grace, wherewith Chriſtian men are anointed, 2 Cor.1.21. 1 Joh. 2.20,27. or of conſolation, wherewith the ſoul is refreſhed, Act.9.31. 2 Cor.1.3-6. by the young-lings of herd and flock, Chriſt ſlain and ſacrificed on the croſſe, 1 Cor.5.7. Heb. 9.11-14,26,28. & 10.10,12. But ſuch particularities neither ſort ſo well with the types, to which they are applyed, nor agree ſo well among themſelves.

and their ſoul ſhall be as a watered garden,] Or, for (the copulative uſed in a cauſative notion, Chap.23.22. rendring a reaſon, why they ſhould thus bleſs God, Deut. 28.11,47.) their ſoul (that is, they themſelves: as Pſal.22.26. & 25.13,20. & 63.5. So verſ.14.) ſhall be as a well-watered garden, (for the word hath a notion of plenty in it: as Pſal. 36.8. Prov.5.19. & 7.18.) wherein every thing thriveth and flouriſheth: a lively emblem of a plentiful and proſperous eſtate. See Eſay 58.11.

and they ſhall not ſorrow any more at all.] Heb. they ſhall not add to ſorrow further: as, thou ſhalt not add to rejoyce further, Eſay 23.12. they ſhall have no longer cauſe or occaſions of grief. See Eſay 35.10. the ground of their repairing with ſinging to Sion.

V. 13. Then ſhall the Virgin rejoyce in the dance, both young men and old together:] Or, Then ſhall the damſels (of the word, ſee Eſay 7.14. it is here collective) make merry with dancing, and the youths and old together. There ſhall be abundance of joy with all ſorts of people of all ages, and either ſex. See the like, Zach.8.4,5. & 9.17. So are all of each age, and either ſex, excited unto the praiſing of God for his goodneſſe, Pſal.148.12,13. Nor need we yet to reſtrain the mirth here mentioned to ſacred employments, though of dancing in ſuch alſo we find mention in Scripture, 2 Sam.6.14,16. 1 Chr.15.29. Pſal.149.3. & 150.4. and of the dancing of damſels, in times of publick and ſolemn rejoycing, ſee Judg.11.34. and 21.21.

for I will turn their mourning into joy,] Heb. and: but ſo alſo, Chap.23.22. or, when I ſhall have turned; as Chap. 14.15. & 16.6. So David, thou haſt turned my mourning into dancing, Pſal.30.11. and God promiſeth to turn his peoples faſts into feaſtivals, Zach.8.19.

and make them rejoyce from their ſorrow.] Either, rejoyce, and ceaſe from their ſorrow; as, thou haſt loved and ſaved my ſoul from the pit, Eſay 38.17. or, rejoyce after their grief; as the particle is uſed, Eſay 38.15. Hoſ.6.3.

V. 14. And I will ſatiate the ſoul of the Prieſts with fatneſſe;] I will make large and liberal proviſion for my Miniſters, ſo as they ſhall have wherewith to maintain them and theirs in a plentiful manner to their fill. See 2 Chr.31.10. Mal. 3.10.

ſatiate] The word uſed alſo before, verſe 12. ſignifieth properly to water largely, and plentifully, Pſal. 65.10. Eſay 55.10. or, to ſoak, Eſay 34.7. then to drink largely, or to ones fill, Pſal.36.8.

ſatiate the ſoul] ſoul, for, deſire, or, appetite; as Deut.12.15, 21. Prov.6.30. & 13.25 of the Prieſts] Gods Miniſters, Eſay 66.21.

with fatneſs] Alluding to the offerings of fat beaſts brought for ſacrifice, whereof the Prieſts had their ſhare. So alſo Pſal. 36.8. Eſay 25.6. and my people ſhall be ſatisfied with goodneſſe, ſaith the Lord.] They ſhall be abundantly ſtored with all manner of good things. See verſe 12. 2 Chr.31.10.

V. 15. Thus ſaith the Lord, A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her children, refuſed to be comforted for her children, becauſe they were not.] God had before promiſed to turn their mourning into mirth: Now this promiſed mirth is here amplified by the mourning foregoing it, which is very pathetically illuſtrated by a two-fold rhetoricall introduction of perſons, Rachel the mother here, and Ephraim her grandchild by Joſeph, verſe 18. In this place Rachel Jacobs beloved wife, as the common mother in ſome ſort of both people, Judah and Iſrael, (for Ephraim, the head of the ten Tribes, Eſay 7. 2. verſe 9. was her grandchilde by Joſeph her elder ſon, Gen. 48. 5. and the iſſue of Benjamin her younger ſon, Gen. 35. 16, 18. continued ſtill in conjunction and conſociation with the Tribe of Judah, 2 Chron. 11. 12.) is brought in, as raiſed up out of her ſepulchre, ſituate between Ramah and Bethlehem, in the confines of either tribe, Gen. 35. 19. Joſh. 18. 25. Judg. 4. 5. 1 Sam 10. 2. lamenting the loſſe of her children led away into captivity, as making account never to ſee them, or to have them delivered again. And this ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors apply unto the Jewiſh and Benjamitiſh Matrones and mothers, who with weeping and wailing accompanied their children led away captive toward Babylon by Ramah, where Nebuzaradan ſeemeth to have muſtered them, and from whence Jeremy having been ſo far carried away from Jeruſalem, was diſmiſſed and ſent back, Chap. 40. 1. and the Talmudiſts tell us that Jacob buried her there, foreſeeing by the Spirit of prophecy, that his poſterity ſhould that way be led captive, that ſhe might, as they paſſed by her, intercede for them. But theſe are Jewiſh Fables. The Evangeliſt applyeth it to the mothers of the young ones at or about Bethlehem, that Herod had moſt barbarouſly cauſed to be ſlaughtered, Matth. 2. 18. Both the Prophet and Evangeliſt do hereby imply, what Rachel in likelihood would have done, had ſhe been ſurviving at either of thoſe calamities, which thoſe of her iſſue ſuſtained. The words may be read; In Ramah hath been heard a voice of lamentation, (a voice of lamentation, as chap. 9.18.) a voice (ſupplyed, as chap. 3.21. & 4. 31.) of moſt bitter weeping, (Heb. weeping of bitterneſſes. See Eſay 22. 4. chap 6.26.) a voice (continued, as Eſay 66. 6. chap. 4. 31.) of Rachel, (as Matth. 2. 18.) who weeping for her children, (Heb. her ſons) refuſeth to be comforted, (as Jacob, Gen.37.35. Aſaph, Pſal.77.2. ſo Eſay 22. 4.) in regard of them, (Heb. her children; the noun for the pronoun: as Exod.40.19,21,25,29. 2 Tim.1.18. and a defect of the relative; as chap.30.21.) becauſe they were not: as, Jacob, Gen. 42. 36. Joſeph is not, and Simeon is not.

in Ramah] Some take it for a common word, rendring it, in, or, on an high place; as Chap. 3.21. and this way goeth the Chaldee, the old Latine, ſome of the Jewiſh and ours. But the ancient Greek and the Evangeliſt take it for the proper name of a place; as in the places above pointed to.

V. 16. Thus ſaith the Lord,] After Rachels lamentation for her ſons, as loſt, followeth Gods conſolation of her, putting her in hope of their return.

Refrain thy voice from weeping,] Leave, or, give over weeping: but he ſaith, Refrain thy voice; becauſe he ſaid before, a voice of weeping, implying not a ſilent weeping, but ſuch as accompanied with wailing and loud expreſſions by voice; as it is ſaid of Eſau, he lift up his voice and wept, Gen. 27.38. and of Joſeph, he gave out his voice in weeping (of which form, ſee on chap. 2. 15.) ſo loud, that it was heard of the Egyptians and Pharaohs Courtiers that were without the room in his houſe, Gen. 45. 2. and thine eyes from tears:] Heb. tear; but collectively; as chap.9.1.

for thy work ſhall be rewarded, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. there is a reward for thy work; as 2 Chron. 16. 7. This ſome apply unto Rachel, that God for her piety would cauſe her iſſue to fare the better at laſt: and the Talmudiſts ridiculouſly expound it of her patience in ſuffering her Siſter Leah to be ſubſtituted in her room, and obedience in delivering her token to her, which they tell us alſo that ſhe pleaded to God in behalf of her people. See Gen. 29. 23, 25. but this is an idle fiction, as frivolous as that of Jacob before, verſe 15. Others, Popiſh eſpecially, to the patience of the Bethlemitiſh women, Matth. 2. 17. The Jewiſh Commenters underſtand it of the people her iſſue, that ſhould receive a reward for their conſtant keeping to God, during the time of their captivity, Pſal.44.17. Our Writers moſt of them, of that comfortable condition that God would reſtore them unto, and confer upon them, when the time of their captivity ſhould be accompliſhed. See Eſay 40.10. & 61. 7. theſe terms of work and reward being uſed, becauſe it ſhould ſucceed their former miſery and thraldome, as wages doth work; and ſhould abundantly countervail whatſoever hardſhip they had endured in the former. Of the ſuch ſpiritual compenſations, ſee Rom.8.18. 2 Cor.4.18. aſcribed here unto Rachel the mother, becauſe as the tribulations of children are the mothers grief; ſo their proſperous condition is matter of comfort and joy to her. See Mat.15.22.

and they ſhall come again from the land of the enemy.] Thy children, of whoſe return thou deſpaireſt, as they themſelves alſo did, Ezek.33.11.

V. 27. And there is hope in the end,] There is hope (and thou ſhouldeſt not therefore mourn as one that hath no hope, 1 Theſſ.4.13. Joh. 11. 18.) in thine end, (as Job 8. 7. Chap. 15. 11. when the time ſet for their exilement ſhall be expired, Chap. 29. verſ. 10.) or, for thy poſterity; as the word here uſed ſignifieth, Dan. 11. 4. and that ſeemeth the genuine ſenſe of it in this place.

that thy children ſhall come again to their own border.] Thy children, (Heb. ſons; as verſ. 17. becauſe the males moſt were captived) whom thou now deemeſt as loſt: (a defect of the pronoun poſſeſſive; as Eſay 60. 4.) ſhall return to their own poſſeſſions: border, for, borders; alluding to the limitation of the land of Canaan, and the ſetting out of it to the ſeveral Tribes by borders and boundaries, Joſh.15.1, 2. or to the general manner of bounding mens lands and poſſeſſions, Deut.27.17. Act.17.26.

V. 18. I have ſurely heard Ephraim bemoaning himſelf,] To Rachels lamenting for her ſons is here ſubjoyned Ephraims bewailing of his ſins; Gods taking notice of it, and returning an anſwer full of fatherly affection to it, ver. 10.

I have ſurely heard] Of Rachel was ſaid before, A voice was heard; here, as ſpeaking in the perſon of God, I have heard. Heb. hearing heard; as Exod. 22. 22. I hear attentively, ſo as to take notice and regard, Pſal. 5. 1, 2. & 77.1.

Ephraim] The ten Tribes, as ver.6,9.

bemoaning himſelf] The word hath ſometime a notion of wandring; as Gen.4.12. Chap. 1.1. and ſo the old Latine, and ſome others here take it; as if it were ſaid, being now in captivity and exilement, and thereby brought, as Manaſſes, ſometime, 2 Chron. 33.12. to a ſight of himſelf and his ſins: ſometime, of mourning, either of condoling with others, as Job 2. 11. Chap.15.5. and 16.5. or, bewailing ones ſelf; and ſo here the Chaldee, Greek, and moſt, both Jewiſh Interpreters, and others, take it: the verb being in a reciprocall form, wherein it is in the former notion no where found; nor would here well fit. See Ezek. 6. 9.

thus] Or, and ſaying; as Pſal.105.15. Eſay 22.13. ſpeaking on this wiſe unto God.

Thou haſt chaſtiſed me, and I was chaſtiſed; as a bullock unaccuſtomed to the yoke.] Or, Thou haſt chaſtiſed me, and I have been chaſtiſed; I was as a bullock unaccuſtomed (Heb. untaught. See Chap.13.23. to draw in the yoke. See Hoſ.10.11. I am at length amended by thy chaſtiſing hand upon me. See Chap.6.8. Hoſ.10.10. for before I was thus chaſtiſed, I was like an unruly bullock, that will not be brought to the yoke, nor endure to draw in it, Pſal.119.67,71. Howbeit, the Chaldee Paraphraſt, and ſome others (whom a late learned Writer followeth, and would have the ancient Greek copies to be thence corrected) render the text in the negative, Thou haſt chaſtiſed me, but I have not been corrected, or, I have not received inſtruction, as a bullock untaught, or, untamed. But the negative is not in the Hebrew, nor ought from whence it may be ſupplied: that which that learned man perceiving, and therefore caſting it out again, readeth the words, I have been chaſtiſed as a bullock untamed; that is, I remain never the better for all thy chaſtiſements, then ſuch an unruly and untamed beaſt: but this conſtruction ſeems over-much forced.

turn thou me, and I ſhall be turned.] A prayer either for grace and power to repent and return unto God; which without his help they cannot do, Cant. 1. 4. Joh. 6. 44. Act. 11. 18. 2 Tim. 2. 26. or that God would reduce them, and bring them back out of thraldom; which if he undertake to do, is ſure to be done, Pſal. 80. 3, 7, 19. Lam. 5. 21.

thou art the Lord my God] Or, thou who art the Lord my God: a defect of the relative; as Chap. 30. 21.

V. 19. Surely, after that I was turned, I repented;] After that thou hadſt wrought a gracious change upon my ſoul, by thine afflicting hand, and thy Spirit working together with it, Eſay 48. 10. Act. 3. 26, or after I came to my ſelf again, as Luk. 15. 17, and conſidered ſeriouſly with my ſelf, how it fared with me, I was touched with repentance, with ſorrow and ſhame, for my former miſcarriages, Deut. 30. 1, 2. So rather, then as a learned late Writer, after that I return home again, then will I repent: though it be true that their repentance then alſo continued, Ezek. 36. 31.

and after that I was inſtructed] As well as corrected, Pſal. 94. 12. unlike to thoſe, Chap. 2. 30. & 5. 3. Heb. it was made known to me; as 1 Sam. 6. 3. Neh. 4. 9. the prepoſition between the verb and the pronoun affixed to it being loſt; as Eſay 28. 15. Chap. 10. 20. ſo rather, then as that learned Scholiaſt, who would have the paſſive here taken in a reciprocal notion, rendring it, after that I knew my ſelf; or, then, as that other Annotator, After that thou haſt ſhewed me ſome kindneſſe, then ſhall I be thus affected.

I ſmote upon my thigh] In token of remorſe for, deteſtation of, and aſtoniſhment at, my former vile and lewd courſes. See Ezek. 21. 12.

I was aſhamed; yea, even confounded,] Or, I was abaſhed, and aſhamed alſo. So Ezr. 9. 6.

becauſe I did bear the reproach of my youth.] That is, ſuch miſeries as by mine exceſſes in former times committed, I had brought upon my ſelf. See Job 13. 26. Pſal. 25. 7. an alluſion to the ſtate of one, that having in his youthful days by riotous and exorbitant courſes waſted both his means and himſelf, and in his elder years now ſeriouſly conſidering with himſelf his own folly, and the miſerable condition that he hath thereby brought himſelf unto, is in contemplation thereof, both abaſhed and dejected in himſelf, and aſhamed to be ſeen of any. See Job 20. 11. Prov. 6. 26. & 5. 11. Eſay 47. 1, 5. So rather, then as that learned man, I am ſo full of ſhame and confuſion, that I cannot apply my ſelf to any ſerious repentance, ſo long as I ly under ſuch grievous ſufferings for my former exceſſes.

V. 20. Is Ephraim a dear ſon? is he a pleaſant child?] Gods gracious anſwer unto Ephraims lamentation and ſupplication. That the words are to be read by way of interrogation, the uſual notes thereof in Hebrew, one prefixed before the former member, another before the latter, do evidently ſhew. Now becauſe the interrogative affirmative is wont more vehemently to deny the thing ſpoken of; as Eſay 50. 2. Is my hand at all cut ſhort, that I cannot reſcue? and, Is Iſrael a Servant? is he an homebred ſlave? Chap. 2. 14. Interpreters therefore are much puzzel'd about the true notion of this paſſage: and ſome underſtand it as a flat denial of what is here demanded concerning Ephraim; as if it were ſaid, No, he is nothing leſs then a pretious or a pleaſant child; for by his croſs and crooked courſes he hath ſo carryed himſelf, that he hath even enforced me to caſt him of. And others again conceive it as ſpoken by way of reprehenſion: ſo a learned late Writer, who ſo carryeth on the whole tenour of Ephraims ſpeech, not as a profeſſion of his preſent repentance, but as excuſing himſelf that he did not yet, nor could repent, during his captivity; he was ſo full of ſhame and miſery, that he had no liſt or leiſure thereunto, but would do it, when God had ſet him at liberty, and ſhewed mercy and goodneſs unto him, by ſettling him in his own country again: and accordingly he bringeth in God returning anſwer here to this his preſumed profeſſion; Belike Ephraim deemeth himſelf ſuch a darling child, as I cannot be without him, when he is ſo nice and delicate, that he cannot repent ſo long as he is in miſery, and till all this be done for him. But thoſe that go either of theſe two ways, have few I ſuppoſe, going along therein with them; and the main courſe of the context ſeemeth to run with full ſtream againſt them. And another learned man of great note ſeemeth to take to as ſolitary a walk, who inſtead of an interrogative, would make it an enunciative, and turns the interrogation into a more vehement aſſeveration: For, ſaith he, the former interrogative here uſed, is oft found to ſignifie, ſurely, or verily, as Gen. 27. 36. 2 Sam. 23. 19. 1 King. 18. 31. Prov. 24. 28. Chap. 7. 9. and the latter is by a Jewiſh Critick obſerved ſo alſo to ſignifie, as both joyned with the former, Num. 17. 13. Job 6. 13. and alone by it ſelf, Gen. 47. 18. Num. 16. 30. Job 22. 20. Pſal. 63. 7. Prov. 3. 34. Eſay 44 & 29. 16. But as for the former, there is not any one place produced, where the interrogative may not in his proper notion well ſtand: and, for the latter it is true, that it hath divers other uſes, nor is it an Interrogative in his firſt and native notion, but moſt commonly a conditional, ſometime a diſcretive, and one of theſe two in moſt, if not all, of the places produced. Beſides, that for the former, the Author of this conceit, is not conſtant to himſelf: for in the cloſe of his diſcourſe where he hath this, he enclineth to conceive that in all thoſe places, ha may be put for he, and rendred behold; and elſewhere he goeth another way for divers of them; as hereafter ſhall be ſhewed. It is true, indeed, that divers Interpreters render ſome of the fore-mentioned places in the affirmative, and ſometime with a note of aſſeveration prefixed: but therein they have regard not to the preciſe ſignification, and grammatical conſtruction of the terms, but to the ſenſe and meaning of the ſentence in general, in the interrogative form implied. Another learned Interpreter, whom a Scholiaſt of note concurreth with, taketh the words as ſpoken in way of admiration or doubting; thus rendring the text, Is Ephraim my dear Son? Is he a child of much delight? Yes; or, He is; which they put into the context: but this ſeemeth ſomewhat overbold. I ſhould rather, did I ſuppoſe the words to be ſo conceived, render them on this wiſe, Is this Ephraim my dear Son? is it my darling child? as if it were ſaid, Is it he that bemoaneth himſelf in this manner? as Saul to David, Is this thy voice, my Son David? not as queſtioning whether David were his Son or no; but as with a kind of aſtoniſhment, making doubt whether it were he that ſpake to him in that manner: And ſo here, God brought in, as ſpeaking after mortal mans uſage, but not making doubt whether Ephraim were his dear darling or no; but whether it were that his darling from whom this pitifull and paſſionate complaint came. And this, whether it ſute not better with the courſe of the context then any other of thoſe already related, I ſhall leave to the deciſion and ſentence of others. Howbeit, I ſhall ſubjoyn, what I conceive to be the genuine ſyntax: For the firmer grounding whereof, I ſhall ſuggeſt that, which I find not any of our Grammarians, or Criticks, either Jewiſh, or others, to have obſerved, howſoever neceſſity putteth Interpreters, of force, now and then upon it, to wit, that in ſuch interrogative forms the negative particle is oft ſuppreſſed, and neceſſarily to be ſupplyed. So 1 Sam. 2. 27, 28. where our Geneva Verſion, and the next before it, as alſo the Tigurine and Italian, and ſome others, well render the text, Did not I plainly appear to the houſe of thy Father? and did not I chooſe him? So Job 20. 4. where beſides thoſe former, divers Latine Interpreters, and our lateſt Verſion alſo rendreth it, Knoweſt thou not this of old? So before, Chap. 3. 6. Haſt thou not ſeen what back-ſliding Iſrael hath done? So Ezek. 20. 30. Are ye not polluted after the manner of your Fathers? and, do ye not commit whoredom, or, go on whoring, after their abominations? and Amos 6. 2. Were they not better then theſe Kingdoms? Was not their border larger then yours? the very drift and current of the context doth in either neceſſarily exact it: and for this place, that I may not be deemed to walk alone in it; ſo doth the Tigurine Verſion, which Oecolampadius, and Bullinger alſo follow, here expreſs it, and the Chaldee Paraphraſt before them in the latter branch. As alſo that learned late Annotator that goeth here another new and and ſtrange way, yet doth elſewhere come home to us, contradicting what he here hath in affirming, that ha, is oft put for halo, eſpecially where it is joyned with ci, which is, ſaith he, in that form no other then an expletive particle. So he expoundeth, Gen. 29. 15. Art thou not my brother, and ſhouldſt thou ſerve me freely? though in that place himſelf acknowledgeth, that others generally expound the words there, (and that, as I conceive, aright) otherwiſe. But ſo he alſo taketh it, Gen. 27. 36. was he not juſtly called Jacob? wherein the Tigurine, and our three laſt verſions exactly agree with him. Yea, ſo he ſaith that it is without doubt to be taken, 2 Sam. 23. 19. where our verſion rendreth it, was he not the moſt honourable of the three? and ſo Tremellius, Junius and Piſcator before: and theſe two laſt places are of thoſe, which that learned Writer would above turn another way. Yea on that place, 1 Sam.2.27. after a long diſcourſe, much debate, many turnings and windings, having ſtriven and ſtrugled hard to cary it ſome other way, at length in the cloſe of all he concludeth, and is enforced to confeſs, that to take ha for halo, ſupplying the negative, doth beſt agree with the ſenſe and drift of the place: adding withal, that the like is in the Arabick very frequent, as he hath, he ſaith, in many places of the Alcoran obſerved. This I have the rather inſiſted upon, both becauſe I ſuppoſe it bringeth ſome light to this place, and becauſe I find divers Interpreters of great note driven to forced conſtructions in ſome places for want of this obſervation. See the like again, chap.40.14.

Ephraim] The people of Iſrael, the ten tribes; as before, v.9.

my dear ſon] Heb. a ſon pretious, or, dear to me; for it cometh from a root that ſignifieth to be pretious: and another word thence ſpringing is for pretious in common uſe, Pſal. 116. 15. Prov.17.27. but the word here uſed, is in a form that ſeems to import ſome eminency, or excellency of the thing thereby ſignified, and is no where elſe found. It is ſomewhat like that, Prov.4 3.

a pleaſant child] Heb. a child of delights: as, a vine of delights, Eſay 5.7. and, delights, for, ſuch an one as any perſon taketh exceeding great delight in, Prov.8.30.

for ſince I ſpake againſt him, I do earneſtly remember him ſtill:] Theſe words are very variouſly both rendred and expounded. Thoſe that render the former branch concerning Ephraim, as delivered by way of denial; do ſome of them thus render them, when I have ſpoken with him, (that is, further ſufficiently admoniſhed him) I ſhall have throughly minded him of this his pertinacious carriage; but this leaveth the ſentence abrupt and in ſuſpence. Others of them, I have a long time been talking with him; I have not ceaſed from time to time from dealing with him, to bring him to repentance; but all to no purpoſe: but yet I will think on him; I will, for all that, remember him ſtill in mercy. But this ſeemeth not to flow any thing freely from the text. As for thoſe that go the other way; (to paſſe by the Chaldee, who ſwarveth too much from the Hebrew, paraphraſing the text to this purpoſe, Since the time that he began to lay up the words of my Law in his heart to practiſe them, I am mindful of him to do him good,) Some of them render the words, Ever ſince I had ſpeech, or, I communed with him, I am ſtill mindful of him; that is, Ever ſince at firſt I ſpake unto him, and entred into covenant with him, Deut.4.12. & 5.2. I have not been unmindful of him; albeit, he hath not ſo carried himſelf towards me, as he ſhould, but have conſtantly retained my firſt affection to him, and ſo ſtill do, ver. 3. Others, Even ſince I ſpake againſt him (threatning to chaſtiſe them, Hoſ.10.10.) I do ſtill conſtantly remember, or, think upon him, in mercy, Habb.3.2. mine heart and affection is ſtill entire toward him, notwithſtanding my ſharp menaces of judgment againſt him. And others again laſtly, So oft as I ſpeak of him, I am mindfull ſtill of him; that is, So oft as I have any occaſion to ſpeak or think of him, as at preſent I have by this lamentable complaint, I am in mercy very mindful of him. See Eſay 49.14-16. And this laſt I concur with.

ſince I ſpake] So is the particle rendred alſo, chap.20.8. but would rather both here and there (as the Jewiſh Critick on either place obſerveth) be rendred, ſo oft; as alſo, chap. 48. 27. a place parallel to this; ſo oft as thou ſpeakeſt of him, thou skippeſt for joy. See more inſtances on Chap.20.8.

I ſpake againſt him] As Num.12.1. or, with him, as Deut. 6.7. or, of him; as Deut.13.12. Chap.38.24. & 48.27.

I do earneſtly remember him] Or, I do conſtantly, or, carefully remember him. Heb. remembring remember; as Deut.7.18.

therefore my bowels are troubled for him;] Heb. ſound for him, as Cant.5 4. or, earn towards him, or, on him: as the mothers did towards her child, 1 King.3.26. See Eſay 63.15. Hoſ.11. 8. for that learned Annotator ſeemeth to be very wide here, who rendreth it; for this cauſe am I vehemently incenſed againſt him, or, am very wroth with him: the form is never found ſo uſed, but the contrary way rather.

I will ſurely have mercy upon him, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. I will having mercy have mercy on him; or, I will abundantly have mercy on him, or, ſhew mercy towards him: and there is a notion of tenderneſs of affection in the term it ſelf, whereof, ſee on Eſay 54.7. & 63.15. and here again that learned man ſeemeth to run counter to the text, rendring it, as in way of indignation, with an interrogative, ſhould I ſhew any mercy to him? as if it were parallel to that, Chap.5.7,9.

V. 21. Set thee up way-marks;] God by the Prophet now turneth his ſpeech to his people in captivity, (as the term thereof being now expired) enciting them to think on and prepare for their return home to their own country; as was before promiſed, ver.17.

way-marks] Heb. ſigns, or, monuments, 2 King. 23. 17. Ezek.39.19. ſuch are here meant, as are wont to be erected upon the high-wayes, plains eſpecially, where paths are not ſo apparent, or where many croſſe wayes meet, to direct paſſengers the right way to ſome places of note, that they may not wander by miſtake.

make thee high heaps:] Or rather, pillars; as Hoſ. 12. 4. (for ſo the word may there alſo be rendred) and as one neer to it, Cant. 3. 6. & Joel 2. 30. and the words as it is here uſed, ſeemeth to be derived from a term that ſignifieth firſt and properly a palm tree, then a pillar ſet bolt-up-right and ſtraight like to the body of that tree. See Chap.10.5. So it is the ſame in effect, though in other terms, with the former; as the Jewiſh Commenter here obſerveth; who yet would have this latter word derived from a verb uſed, Dan.8.7. & 11.11. ſuppoſed by him to have in it a notion of lifting up; of which ſome doubt may juſtly be made. The ſame word, but riſing from another root, was uſed for bitterneſſes, ver.15. whence the Chaldee here conceiveth the whole paſſage to be no other then as an exhortation to repentance, admoniſhing them to remember the practice of their religious anceſtors, & to return to God, pouring out prayers unto him with bitterneſſe for their ſins: and this the old Latine ſeemeth to have followed, rendring the word bitterneſſes. Which howſoever the Popiſh Writers ſtrain their wits to make ſomewhat of, yet can have no place here; there is an elegant redundancy in thoſe forms, ſet thee, and, make thee: whereof ſee on Ch. 5. 5. and the like, Gen.12. 1.

ſet thine heart toward the high-way, even the way which thou wenteſt] There is in the original a two-fold reading; For ſome read it, the way that I went; to wit, with thee, ſaith one of the Jewiſh Commenters. Set thine heart upon the right way, the way that I directed thee to, and led thee in, and return to that again, chap.2.17. But the more received reading is, the way that thou wenteſt. Think upon the road, (Heb. the caſt-way, or, cauſey. See Eſay 49.11. & 62.10.) the way that thou wenteſt; that is, the way ye went, when ye were carried captive into Aſſyria, ſome of you, and others of you into Chaldea, and by which ye are now to go back home again; as Eſay 37.34. See Chap. 50. 4,5. a defect of the relative, as chap.30.21. and in the like manner with us, when we ſay, the way they went.

turn again, O virgin of Iſrael, turn again to theſe thy cities.] O virgin, or, damſel. See on ver.4. and the invitation to return is doubled, to make it the more vigorous; as Ezek.33. 11. Cant.6.13. to theſe thy cities, that have lien ſo long waſte and deſolate, to repair, and to people them again, Eſay 58.12.

22. How long wilt thou go about, O thou backſliding daughter?] So ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors render it, becauſe of a word thence deduced, ſignifying a compaſſe, Cant. 7. 1. the compaſſe of thy thighes; but ſome other both of them, and ours, How long wilt thou, or, doſt thou withdraw thy ſelf? as Cant.5.6. my beloved had withdrawn himſelf; though that be there in another form: and of this ſtock is no more found in Scripture; the Chaldee giveth it, How long wilt thou harden thy ſelf from returning? the ſame terms that he hath, Jer.8.5. and the Greek to the ſame effect, How long wilt thou avert, or, turn away? which many expound of their not returning to God by repentance, Chap. 5. 3. & 8. 5, 6. But the firſt ſeemeth the beſt; that which ſome underſtand of their running after idols, Chap. 2. 23,24. Others rather, of their thinking upon, and ſeeking after humane helps and other courſes, out of a diffidence and diſtruſt of Gods promiſes, and the performance of them, Eſay 57.10. Chap. 2. 17,18,36,37. Howbeit, ſome conceive the words as ſpoken by way of encitement, to ſet themſelves upon minding the way homeward to their country, as ver. 21. without fear or forecaſt of the length or difficulty of the way, which raiſeth oft doubtful thoughts and debates in the minds of weak and unſetled ones, Prov.26.13,14. which is alſo not improbable. Though ſome of thoſe that go this way, take their riſe from an unſound ground; as alſo the old Latine that rendreth it, How long continueſt thou diſſolved with delights? I ſhould rather render it with reference to their long and tedious captivity, How long ſhouldſt thou go to and fro? as thoſe are wont to do, who are in captivity, at the will and pleaſure of thoſe, under whoſe command they are. See Chap.4.1. & 14.18. as if God had ſaid, Think on thy former home again, and of thy way thither, ver.21. for why ſhouldſt thou be toſſed to and fro any longer, as in thy preſent exilement thou art?

O back-ſliding daughter] Or, revolting. See Chap. 3. 12. who by thy refractary courſes, haſt procured to thy ſelf thoſe evils in this kind, which at preſent thou endureſt, chap.2.19. & 30. 15.

for the Lord hath created a new thing in the earth;] Or, will create a new thing in earth; as Chap. 13.5. the rather in the future; becauſe the next clauſe is generally ſo rendred. God will do a ſtrange thing, ſuch as is not ordinary: ſo both the word of creating is frequently uſed, Eſay 4. 5. & 65.17, 18. & new, for ſtrange, Eſay 42.6. & 43.19. Mar.16.17. Act. 17. 18, 19. For as for that great mans conceit, who readeth it in the time paſt, as ſpoken of the peoples uncouth carriages, I ſuppoſe few or none therein concur with him; and of it more anon.

A woman ſhall compaſſe a man] The new or ſtrange thing that God would effect. The place is obſcure; and various Interpretations are therefore given of it, as well by the Jews themſelves, as by others. Some conceive it, as alluding to a woman, that ſhould woo and ſeek after a man; whereas men ordinarily are wont to ſeek after the woman. So it ſhould be like that, Eſay 4.1. Others, to a woman that having left her husband, and lived looſly with others, ſhould at length ſeek to him for reconcilement. So it ſhould be like that, Hoſ.2. 7. & 3.5. 1 Cor.7.11. and either of theſe the words would bear: but they ſeem no ſuch ſtrange matter ſimply conſidered. And yet more probable here to be meant, then that intended, which that learned Writer ſuggeſteth, of this peoples ſeeking, like a ſhameleſs and inſatiable ſtrumpet, by wanton dalliances and embracements, to procure love to her from ſtrangers, Eſay 57.8—10. Chap.2.24, 25, 36. Ezek. 16.33, 34. Hoſ.8.9. for certainly this was no work of Gods creating; and it ſeemeth to me a very forced conſtruction, to interpret the foregoing words of Gods giving them up, and abandoning them thereunto; as Rom. 1.26, 27. Chriſtian Writers the moſt, both ancient and later, underſtand it of Chriſt and the Virgin his Mother. A woman (ſo is ſhe termed, Gal.4.4.) being a Virgin, and ſo abiding, (Eſay 7. 14. Mat.1.18, 25.) ſhall encloſe in her womb, (Luk.1.31.) a man; (that is, a male, a man-child, Joh.16.21.) as the nut (ſaith one of ours) encloſeth the kernel; not receiving ought from without, but conceiving and breeding of her ſelf, by the power of the Almighty from within, Mat. 1.20. Luk.1.34, 35. And this indeed may well be termed a new & ſtrange thing; becauſe never the like heard of. See Eſay.7.14. But becauſe the one word ſeemeth not to be uſed of containing, but of compaſſing, and beſetting, Joſh. 7.3, 4, 7, 11, 14, 15. Pſal. 118. 10—12. Eccl.9.14. and the other, not a man ſimply, but a man of might, or, a mighty man. See on Eſay 2. 9. & 3.2, 25. Divers Interpreters of prime note expound it, of the Jewiſh people ſome; of the Church of Chriſt, others; and a third ſort of both, the one being ſubordinate to the other; as the thing typified to the type, or rather, as in part inchoated in the one, but more fully to be effected and accompliſhed in the other; to wit, that the Jewiſh people then, and the Chriſtian Church afterwards, though in regard of their low and dejected condition, compared to a weak and feeble woman, Lam.1.1, 6. Rev.12.1, 2. yet ſhould beſet and prevail againſt her temporal enemies, the one, Eſay 14.2. their ſpiritual adverſaries alſo the other, ſuch as for their power might well be compared to men of much might, Rom.16.20. Eph.6.10. 1 Joh.4.4. & 5.4. Rev.12.11. which I take to be the genuine ſenſe of the place.

V.23. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael] As Ch. 7.3, 21.

As yet they ſhall uſe this ſpeech in the land of Judah, and in the cities thereof, when I ſhall bring again their captivity, The Lord bleſs thee, O habitation of juſtice, and mountain of holineſs.] A further intimation of the reformation that ſhall be in the lives and courſes of thoſe, whom God ſhall preſerve for a remnant, and bring home to their wonted places of abode again. See Eſay 1.25—27. & 4.3, 4. & 60.21. & 62.12.

As yet] Or, Yet again; as ver.5. for the particle here implieth not a continuation of ſome preſent act; but the reſtoring or renewing of ſomewhat formerly uſed, which for ſome ſpace of time had been ſince intermitted. So alſo, ver.4.

they ſhall uſe this ſpeech] Or, this ſpeech ſhall be uſed. Heb. they ſhall ſay this word: the verb uſed indefinitely; as Pſal. 126.2. Eſay 8.19. Matth.24.26. Luk.12.20. So ver. 29.

in the cities thereof,] Heb. of him, or, his cities: as having reference not to the land, but to the people.

when I ſhall bring again their captivity] Or, when I ſhall have brought back their captives; as ver.13. Pſal.14.7.

The Lord bleſſe thee,] The uſuall form of ſalutation and well-wiſhing, Ruth 2.4. Pſal.129.8. for the expoſition is over-narrow that the Jewiſh Doctor gives it; Never mayſt thou be deſtroyed again.

O habitation of juſtice] Or, of men of juſtice; as Eſay 1.21. & 41.2. as ſome of righteous ones, Eſay 60.21. So 2 Pet.3.13. See Chap.50.7.

mountain of holineſs] Or, holy mountain; as Pſal.15.1. Eſay 11.9. in reference to mount Sion, whereon the Temple was ſituate, the principal ſeat of Gods ſolemn ſervice; wherein he ſhould now be worſhipped, by holy men, in holy manner, Eſay 56.7. Ezek. 20.40. 1 Pet.2.5, 9.

V. 24. And there ſhall dwell in Judah it ſelf, and in all the cities thereof together, husbandmen, and thoſe that go out with flocks.] Or, as ſome, in it (to wit, the land before ſpoken of, ver.23.) ſhall the people of Judah dwell, (Judah, for the men of Judah, as chap.23.6.) or, rather, as I conceive, there ſhall dwell in it, even (ſupplied, as Eſay 5.9 & 35.4. in the land of Judah, and in (a defect of the prepoſition, but ſupplyed from the former branch) all his, or, their cities (as before, ver.23. together, husbandmen that ſhall go out with the flock, or, and ſuch as go out with the flock; Either ſuch as ſhall both till their ground, and tend their cattel; as two ſeveral employments of the ſame perſons; or perſons employed, ſome in tillage, others, in tendance of cattel: the copulative for the relative, according to the latter, as v.21. Heb. word for word, and they ſhall go with flock: Whence a Jewiſh Commentator, therefore, keeping cloſe to the text, and retaining the proper uſe of the verb, (which ſignifieth, not a going out, but a going, ſimply, or, journying, and hath reference not ſo much to the ſhepherds leading out his ſheep, but his ſhifting with them, as his occaſion for their better feeding requireth) expoundeth it, and they ſhall go, or, men ſhall go, (for the verb is uſed indefinitely, as that ver.23.) with their flock; to wit, from place to place without fear. See Gen.37.17. Howſoever the words be taken, theſe employments conſtantly followed and exerciſed are here mentioned, as an argument of peaceable times, and a ſign of a quiet and ſettled eſtate: ſo Eſay 37. 30. Chap.33.12. So rather, then as ſome of note would have it, as a note of the moſt ſimple, harmleſs, and beneficiall courſe of life, which men in thoſe times ſhall generally apply themſelves unto: ſee Gen.25.27.

V. 25. For I have ſatiated the weary ſoul, and I have repleniſhed every ſorrowfull ſoul.] Or, I will abundantly refreſh (as ver.14.) the hungry, or, thirſty. as Job 22.7. Pſal.63.1. or, faint, or, fainting, as 1 Sam.14.31. 2 Sam.21.15. Eſay 29.8. See Pſal. 107.5, 9.

and I have repleniſhed every ſorrowfull ſoul.] Or, I will repleniſh every mournfull ſoul. (See Deut. 28. 65.) I will ſupply them with all manner of good, and matter of comfort to their fill, to the utmoſt of their deſire, Pſal.36.8. & 37.4. & 81. 10. & 107.9. Eſay 41.17, 18. & 43, 20. ver.12. Matth. 5. 4, 6. & 11.28.

V. 26. Upon this I awaked, and beheld, and my ſleep was ſweet unto me.] The Prophets own ſpeech, relating the great comfort and refreſhing that he had received upon this viſion, and theſe gracious promiſes of God therein ſignified unto him concerning his people; being therewith ſo affected, as one, who after ſome tedious travel, or long and weariſome watching, had taken comfortable reſt, had ſlept ſafely and ſweetly, and was exceedingly therewith refreſhed, Pſal. 3. 5. Prov.3.24. or, as ſome, after theſe things revealed unto me, as one awaked out of ſleep (Zach.4.1, 2.) I ſhored up mine eyes, and looked about me, and conſidering ſeriouſly what I had ſeen and heard, I was ſo affected with the contemplation thereof, that from that time forward, I was able quietly to compoſe my ſelf to reſt, which before I could not do, Chap. 4.20, 21. & 8.18. But I concur rather with the former.

V. 27. Behold, the days come, ſaith the Lord, that] As Chap. 30.3.

I will ſow the houſe of Iſrael, and the houſe of Judah, with the ſeed of man, and with the ſeed of beaſt] I will multiply and repleniſh the land of either family (ſee ver.1.) both with people and cattel, as if the whole land were ſowed with the ſeed of either, and it did multiply, as grain caſt into the ground is wont to do in ſome rich and fat ſoil, Gen.26.12. Mat. 13.8. See Eſay 60.21. Hoſ.2.23. Zach.2.4. & 10.8, 9. Nor need we depart here from the received verſion, to render the text, with the Chaldee, which ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters follow, with the ſeed of man, as with the ſeed of beaſt; becauſe the copulative is ſometime ſo uſed; as Prov. 25. 25. Much leſs to expound it with that Jewiſh Doctor, whom ſome poſtillers follow, of multiplying and bleſſing the wiſe and the ſimple together; abuſing to that purpoſe the words of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal.36.6. or to underſtand with that learned Scholiaſt, by men the Jews, by beaſts the Gentiles, expounding it of ſpiritual regeneration.

V. 28. And it ſhall come to paſs, that] As Chap.25.12.

Like as I have watched over them, to pluck up, and to break down, and to throw down, and to deſtroy, and to afflict;] Of the terms here uſed, ſee on chap.1.10, 11. & 10.12. & 18.7, 9. & 44.27. Dan.9.14. there are in them ſome elegant conſonancies, which our Engliſh cannot ſo well expreſs.

So I will watch over them, to build, and to plant, ſaith the Lord.] I will be ſedulous and aſſiduous (as Pſal.127.1. Prov. 8.34.) in promoting their good. See on Chap.1.10. & 18. 9. & 24.6.

V. 29. In thoſe days they ſhall ſay no more, The Fathers have eaten a ſowr grape; and the childrens teeth are ſet on edge.] Or, It ſhall no more be ſaid, as ver. 23. This ſeemeth to have been a common by-word in the mouth of profane wretches in thoſe times, thereby implying, that their parents or anceſtors had committed faults, and they being faultleſs, yet ſuſtained the penalty of it, Ezek. 18.2. This Proverb, or By-word, God ſaith in thoſe times, ſhall no longer be uſed, an end being now put unto thoſe grievous calamities, which had befain them, God puniſhing thereby, as well their own ſins, as their parents alſo in them joyntly together, Eſay 65.7. and they ſhould not have occaſion therefore to uſe that proverb any longer, as it is ſaid, Ezek. 18.3. And this I conceive, with ſome of the beſt Interpreters, to be both the genuine, and ful notion of the place: which they ſeem much to ſwarve from, who either with that learned Annotator, who taking an hint of that his conceit from one of the Jewiſh Commenters, would have the meaning to be, that howſoever God do juſtly puniſh children for their parents defaults, Exod. 20.5. and with this people had ſo done, 2 King. 24.3,4. yet would now in regard of the excellent parts and virtues, both of their ancienter progenitors, and their own alſo, put an end now unto that ſevere carriage: that which is directly contrary unto that freeneſs of his mere mercy, which he conſtantly aſſerteth, as the main ground of their reſtitution, Eſay 43.25. & 48.9,11. Ezek. 36.32. or, as another Jewiſh Doctor, becauſe there ſhould be no ſuch grand ſins among them, for which God with plagues ſhould purſue them unto poſterity: or, as that learned man alſo, fetching in hither what followeth, ver. 30. that the Magiſtrates ſhould be ſo diligent in execution of juſtice in thoſe times, that God ſhould not need now to puniſh in that manner, as formerly he had done. As all thoſe both Popiſh and ours; who reſtraining this paſſage unto the times of the Goſpel, ſay ſome of the former, that the penalty of Adam's ſin reached unto all his poſterity, and notwithſtanding their circumciſion; yet they went down all into Limbo for it, untill the coming of Chriſt, but that all penalty of that kind is in Chriſtian baptiſm taken away, original ſin being waſhed away in it: that of their Limbo being a mere fancy, and the other of baptiſm, alſo, a groundleſs conceit: and ſome of the latter, who dream of Gods dealing more favourably now then in former times with ſinners, when ſome one mans ſin brought a penalty upon others, and the ſins of the fathers were required at the childrens hands; for how they are able to make this good, that ſins of particular perſons have not an hand in procuring of general judgments, or that God doth not puniſh parents at this day, as well in their iſſue, as in their perſons, I ſee not: and a point of that weight requireth cleerer proof then from this place, that will well bear another ſenſe: which thoſe come neer to, who would have the meaning to be, that both in the one time, and in the other, as well after their temporal reſtitution, as alſo in their converſion to the Meſſias, they ſhould be hereafter convinced in conſcience, that thoſe their calamities had juſtly befallen them for their own ſins, Ezek. 6.9. & 7.15. & 36.31. and this may well be added to the former, as a conſequent of the ſame. The by-word it ſelf conteineth indeed a truth in it; for God himſelf avoweth it, and threatneth it, Exod. 20.3. & 34.7. and the Prophet himſelf, in the perſon of Gods people, doth in plainer terms complain of it, Lam. 5.7. that they ſuffered for their fathers ſins; nor was it without ground from Gods own words, who by him menaced to ſend them into captivity for the ſins of Manaſſes, who had been long before deceaſed, Chap. 15.4. But their meaning was, that being innocent and faultleſs, they ſuffered onely for their anceſtors exceſſes, which was moſt falſe; for they trode in the ſteps of their wicked fore-fathers, and were themſelves as bad, if not worſe, then they, Chap. 7.26. & 11.10. & 16.12.

V. 30. But every one ſhall die for his own iniquity; every man that eateth the ſowr grape his teeth ſhall be ſet on edge.] Heb. A man, for, every one; as Chap. 22.7. So Ezek. 18.4. So that albeit, God would by putting an end to thoſe their former calamities, take away the occaſion of this miſ-uſed by-word; yet he would not ſurceaſe to execute vengeance upon ſuch wicked ones as ſhould continue ſtill in their wickedneſs, or return to it in thoſe times. See Eſay 27.4. & 65.20. For as for thoſe who would reſtrain this and the former to the times of the Goſpel, that no man ſhould be excluded from Gods grace in Chriſt, upon his return unto God, either Jew for his fore-fathers obſtinacy, or Gentile for his anceſtors incredulity, is no other then what hath been Gods conſtant courſe in all ages; no iniquity of any progenitor ever debarring any from life eternall, that returned unto God by ſincere converſion, 1 Chron. 28.9. 2 Chron. 15.4. Joh. 6.37.

V. 31. Behold, the days come, ſaith the Lord, that,] That this paſſage hath ſpecial reference to the days of the Meſſias, and the times of the Goſpel, appeareth by the Apoſtles application of it, Heb. 8.8. & 10.36. See Chap. 23.5. and ver. 27.

I will make a new covenant] Heb. I will cut out; as Pſal. 50.3. Eſay 55.3. of the reaſon of the phraſe ſee there, and on Chap. 34.8,18.

a new covenant] Not ſimply in regard of the ſubſtance of it: for the main matter and ſubſtance of the former was, as here ver. 33. So Gen. 17.7, Deut. 26.17,18. & 29.13. And this old covenant was ratified as well as the new, by the bloud of the Meſſias (who was ever the ſame, Heb. 13.8. 2 Cor. 1. 19, 20.) that bloud of his being in thoſe times as well typified by the bloud of the ſacrifice, as by another element it is in theſe days obſigned. See the ſame words in a manner to this effect of either, Exod. 24.8. compared with Mat. 26.28. Luk. 22.20. 1 Cor. 11.25. Heb. 9.20. But it is in divers reſpects called a new covenant, as the commandement of Love, is in ſome reſpects called a New Commandement, though in nature and ſubſtance the ſame ſtill that it was ever, Lev. 19.18. Mat. 22.39. Luk. 10.27. Joh. 13.34. 1 Joh. 2.7,8. And ſo is it with this Covenant, though in nature and eſſence it continue the ſame, to wit, of remiſſion of ſin, and eternal ſalvation by the Meſſias, upon condition of faith in him, repentance, and newneſs of life; yet is it in divers regards ſaid to be New: Firſt, in that it is ratified by the death of our Saviour exhibited, which was but in expectation before: the faith of Gods people, being then fixed on the Meſſias to come; and to be ſacrificed for their ſins, Eſay 53.10,12. with the houſe of Iſrael, and with the houſe of Judah.] As ver. 27. Chap. 3.18. with the main b[illegible] of my Church conſiſting of Jews and Gentiles, Rom. 11.25,26.

V. 32. Not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers, in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt:] Of this covenant, ſee Exod. 24.7,8. Deut. 5.2. the ſame that was from time to time renewed with that people as Gods peculiar, Deut. 29.10—13. 2 Chr. 15.12. & 23.16. & 29.10. & 34.31. Mal. 4.4. and was a gracious covenant, as well of mercy, as of juſtice, with promiſe of pardon upon repentance, Exod. 20.5,6. & 34.6,7.

Deut.4.30,31. & 30.1—3. Pſal.103.7—18. it conſiſted indeed of the Law as a perfect rule for direction for matters of obedience; but had adjoyned with it faith in the Meſſias, (who as reſembled by the lid of the Ark, wherein the Law was reſerved, 2 Chr. 6. 11. called therefore the propitiatory, Exod.26.16,17,21. Rom.3.25,26.) for pardon of ſin upon ſincere repentance by his bloud, typified in the bloud of the ſin-ſacrifices, Lev.4.2—4,13—15,22—24. & 5.1—6. & 6.2—7. Heb.9.11—28. By all which it appeareth, that this was not barely the covenant of nature, extending it ſelf to all Adams poſterity indefinitely, nor holding out any promiſe of pardon to any upon any the leaſt diſobedience, Gen. 2.17. Rom.2.12,14,15. but the Covenant of grace and mercy in and by the Mediator the Meſſias. Howbeit, the Lord here promiſeth to renew it in another manner to his people, then as he made it then with them; and that as in divers reſpects that have already been ſpecified, ſo in ſomething further, which hereafter enſueth. For that learned man narroweth the text over-much, who would have this only to be the meaning of it, that the Covenant ſhould not now run in thoſe terms, as then it did, I am the Lord thy God that brought thee out of the land of Egypt; but in ſome other form mentioning ſome greater benefit, that ſhould drown the memory of that, Eſay 43.18. chap.16.14,15.

in the day that I took them by the hand] In this manner of ſpeech implying, as their imbecility and weakneſs, having need then as younglings, and weaklings to be led by the hand, ſo his own tender affection to them, and fatherly care of them, that did not drive them before him, like beaſts or cattel, nor leave them behind him, and bid them come after him, as ſervants: but as an affectionate father taketh his young weakling and darling child by the hand, and ſo leadeth him gently along with him as he is able to go. See Exod. 19.4. Deut.32.10—12. Hoſ. 11.1,3. Heb. in the day (or, at, or, about, the time; day, for, time; as Eſay 26. 1.) of my taking them by the hand: for it is an infinitive, not a verb finite, as the authors of our verſion ſeem to have taken it, ſuppoſing therefore a defect of the relative, which in a divers character they therefore needleſly expreſs.

which my covenant they brake;] By this adjection God implyeth, as their former diſloyalty, and unfaithfulneſs concerning the former covenant; ſo withal a greater ſtedfaſtneſs that ſhould be in this latter, as that which ſhould be more firm and effectual in regard of perſiſtance and continuance in it, then that former had been, which in a generality almoſt the whole body of them had ſo oft relinquiſhed and abandoned, making revolt from Gods ſervice unto the worſhip of idols. See chap.32.40. & 50.5. Eſay 59.21.

although I was an husband unto them, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. and (but ſo is the copulative oft uſed in a diſcretive or adverſative notion, as Pſal.78.23. Eſay 49.5. 1 Pet.3.6. for it would there alſo in the laſt clauſe be ſo rendred) I have married them; for the verb is active: whereof ſee on chap. 3.14. a place parallel to this. I had taken them, and joyned them unto me, as in a conjugal bond; and they had by ſolemn covenant obliged themſelves to continue loyal to me; and yet did they notwithſtanding break their faith, and deal perfidiouſly and diſloyally with me, chap. 3. 20. Now though this Interpretation be plain and familiar, ſuiting very fitly with the ſcope of the place, and courſe of the context, backed with that other place, and ſeconded by the Chaldee Paraphraſt, and expreſſed by another word deduced from one that is uſed for an husband, ſo termed as a companion, joyned to the wife in a bond of mutual ſociety, chap.3.20. Hoſ. 3.1. as that here uſed from one, that importeth an husband, as he is owner or poſſeſſor of her, Deut.21.13. & 24.1,3. Hoſ.2.18. (ſee Eſay 62.5.) Yet becauſe the Ancient Greek (whoſe words alſo the Apoſtle retaineth, Heb.8.9.) rendreth it, and I neglected them, or, regarded them not; and the old Latine, I ruled over them: hence divers Interpreters beat and buſie their brains, to make ſome other meaning of the words here uſed. And here ſome of prime note conceive it ſpoken by way of interrogation, with a kind of indignation, And ſhould I have continued an husband to them? as if he ſhould ſay, I had no reaſon ſo to do, when they dealt ſo with me; and therefore I neglected them as they neglected me; I caſt off them, as they caſt off me. See chap.3.8,20. Others, faſtening on the Latine tranſlation, render the words, I domineered over them; I dealt harſhly and roughly with them; as, ſay they, the term of ruling is oft-times uſed; as Pſal.110.2,6. but the word here uſed is not there: they might better have alledged Eſay 26.13. But the matter it ſelf ſeemeth not here to admit it. One of the Jewiſh Commenters telleth us, that his father, of bleſſed memory, conceived the word baalti, to be taken as the word bahalti, or, bachalti, Zach.11.8. and ſo rendreth it, I loathed them, or abhorred them; and ſo, ſaith he, the word baal, is ever taken, when it is joyned with beth; but of that his groundleſs Criticiſm, ſee before on chap. 3. 14. Howbeit, ſome taking hold of his fancy, would thence infer, that the text was by the Authors of the Greek verſion ſo rendred; and others again, that it was anciently neither the one of thoſe, nor the other, but gaalti, that cometh neerer to the now received reading, then that other of the Rabbi, and ſignifieth the ſame with that, chap.14.19. Thus many wayes men ſhift to and fro, and needleſly vex a plain reading, and trouble a clear text, to reconcile the Prophet and the Apoſtle, who retained the Greek verſion as he found it; having nothing in this clauſe contrary to that for which he alledged it, and ſpeaking otherwiſe fully to that, for which he produced it. See the like, Eſay 61.1.

V. 33. But this ſhall be the covenant that I will make with the houſe of Iſrael; After theſe dayes ſaith the Lord;] Or, But this is the covenant that I will make (Heb. cut, as ver.31.) with the houſe of Iſrael (and the houſe of Judah alſo joyntly, with my whole Church of choice ones, ver.31.) after thoſe dayes, or, as ſome render it, theſe dayes; in the ſucceeding ages, in the times before ſpoken of, ver. 31. as having reference to the time, when this covenant ſhould be made.

I will put my Law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts;] He doth not ſay, I will preſcribe them another Law, as if the Law of the two Tables were now to be utterly abandoned and aboliſhed, and ſome other precepts ſubſtituted in the room of them. For our Saviour himſelf enformeth us, that he came not to diſſolve it, or the leaſt tittle of it; and not only openeth and cleereth much of it, but preſſeth ſtill the obſervation of it, as neceſſary and perpetual, Matth. 5. 17—20, &c. But he promiſeth to write that Law in their hearts with the finger of his Spirit, which he had before time written in the Tables of ſtone, whereby they ſhould become conformable unto it, both in heart and life, Ezek.11.19. & 36.26,27. Heb.8.9. So is Gods Law ſaid to be in the heart of the godly, Pſal.37.31. & 40.8. See the like both alluſion and expreſſion, 2 Cor.3.3. It is that in effect, though in a far larger extent to be made good, which God had beforetime promiſed by Moſes, that upon their return, he would circumciſe the heart of them and their ſeed, Deut.30.6. to wit, with that inward circumciſion, that is, not in the fleſh, but in the ſpirit, Rom.2.28,29. Col.2.11. See Chap.4.4. For it is but a very ſlender ſenſe, that a learned man here giveth, to wit, that Gods benefits conferred on them ſhould be ſo great, that they could not poſſibly chooſe but minde him and his Law.

and I will be their God, and they ſhall be my people.] Heb. I will be unto them for God, and they ſhall be unto me for people. See the like form, Gen.2.24. Judg. 17. 10. 2 Sam. 7. 14. I will take them as their Soveraign Lord into my protection, and they ſhall yield me all willing ſubjection, loyalty and obedience, as my people. That which was the ſum and ſubſtance of the ancient Covenant, both before Moſes, Gen.17. 7. and under him, Deut.26.17,18. & 29.13. chap.7.23. and after him, chap.24.7. & 30.22. Ezek. 11. 20. & 36. 28. but that ſpiritual grace is withal here promiſed, whereby they ſhould be enabled to become Gods people, not in title and profeſſion alone, but in truth, Joh.1.47. Rom.2.28,29. Gal.6. 15,16.

V. 34. And they ſhall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, ſaying, Know the Lord.] This paſſage is not to be conceived, as if the meaning were, that they ſhould need no teaching at all in thoſe times; or that the office of Teachers ſhould then ceaſe as ſuperfluous; for while men live in this world, they know but in part, nor exactly indeed ought, 1 Cor.8.2. & 13.12. nor can any, while they live here, attain to ſuch an height of perfection, either in knowledg or in grace, but that they may ſtill grow in either, Phil.3.12—15. 2 Pet.3.18. and the office of teaching therefore is to continue to the worlds end, Mat.28.20. Eph. 4.11-13. Yea, it is expreſly ſaid, in the prophecies of the very ſame times here intended, that people ſhould call one upon another to repair together unto Gods houſe there to be taught; by whom, but by his Miniſters? Eſay 2.3. Mic. 4.2. But the queſtion is then, how theſe words are to be underſtood: For anſwer whereunto, ſome render the words, They ſhall not only teach one another; as the like defect of the reſtrictive term is oft found omitted, Gen. 32. 28. 1 Sam. 8. 7. and ſo the meaning ſhould be, that they ſhould not be taught by their teachers alone, but God ſhould co-operate together with their teaching, and inſtruct them inwardly by his Spirit, Eſay 54.13. & 59.21. Joh.6.45. 1 Joh.2.20,27. Others conceive it to be underſtood, that none ſhould ordinarily be ſo ſilly and ignorant, as not to have ſome competent meaſure of knowledge, of the main grounds, at leaſt, and the firſt principles of ſaving truth, though having need further to be built up in the ſame, Heb.6.1,2. Others, that they ſhould not need to be urged or preſſed upon the fear and ſervice of God; they ſhould be prone and forward to it of themſelves; by the knowledge of God, after the Chaldee Paraphraſt, underſtanding ſuch a knowledg of him, as worketh in the heart a reverent dread and regard of him, and care to ſerve and obey him, Chap.22.16. 1 Joh.2.4. Others, that men ſhall not need to take ſo much pains and travel about teaching of the Elect, as they had been conſtrained to take with people in former times, and all to no purpoſe, Eſay 28.9——13. the like manner of ſpeech they ſuppoſe to be found, Joh. 16. 26. I conceive in this form of ſpeech to be intimated; firſt, the great meaſure of cleer light that ſhould in theſe times be revealed, 2 Cor.4.3,6. Secondly, the great meaſure of knowledg that ſhould by reaſon thereof abound, Eſay 11,9. Hab.2. 14. Thirdly, the clearneſs of underſtanding, that many ſhould ſo be poſſeſſed with, that they might ſeem rather to have been taught by ſome immediate irradiation, then by any means of inſtruction; as Gal.1.12. Fourthly, the generality, or numeroſity, at leaſt, of knowing perſons, far above that, that had been in former times, and that even amongſt the meaner ſort. See Act.18.25,26. So in the next clauſe.

every man his neighbour, and every man his brother] That is, ſimply, one another. See Chap.23.34.

for they ſhall all know me from the leaſt of them unto the greateſt of them, ſaith the Lord.] Abundance of knowledge of God ſhall be among all ſorts of them, as well the meaner ſort as the greater, who have better natural endowments ordinarily, becauſe better means of education and inſtitution, and more opportunity of intending the meanes of inſtruction. See Chap.5.4,5. See Matth.11.4,5,25. Rom. 1. 14. 1 Cor. 1. 26——28.

all know me] As, all taught of God, Eſay 54.13. Joh.6.45. and, all righteous, Eſay 60.21. which places and many other, imply a multitude of ſuch in the Church, far above that which in former times had been: for to underſtand it ſimply, as ſome do of the Elect; though the doctrine be true, (for none but ſuch ſo know God, as is here intended, nor are ſincerely & ſoundly righteous) yet it reacheth not the intent & ſcope of the places, which import a greater number then ordinary in other times of perſons ſo qualified; whereas of the Elect it would be true, were they never ſo few, or in thoſe times no more of them, then had in any other age formerly been. The meaning is, that the knowledg of God ſhould be much more common and familiar then in former times it had been, and that even among the meaneſt ſort of people that were.

from the leaſt to the greateſt] See of this proverbial form on Chap.6.13. as all ſorts there covetous and lying; ſo all ſorts here, religious and knowing. See chap.24.7.

for I will forgive their iniquitie,] Or, when I ſhall forgive their iniquity; as chap.11.23. & 13.21. as intimating that God forgiveth not ſin to any, but ſuch as know him in Chriſt, Eſay 53.11. Pſal.36.10. See chap.33.8. Mic.7.18. Act. 10. 43. Eph.1.7.

and I will remember their ſin no more.] Or, and ſhall remember their ſin no more. God where he forgives ſin, forgets ſin: no more regards it in ſome reſpects, then as if he had clean forgotten it. See on Eſay 43.25. Ezek.18.21,22.

V. 35. Thus ſaith the Lord,] For the better aſſurance of the accompliſhment of the foregoing gratious promiſes to his people, the Lord is pleaſed to give them further ſecurity in the words following, for the continuance of a ſeed with them, even to the worlds end.

which giveth the ſun for a light by day, and the ordinance of the moon and of the ſtars for a light by night,] Gen.1.16. Pſal. 136. 8,9.

which divideth the ſea, when the waves thereof roar,] Or, as ſome, who when I trouble the ſea, or, ſet it on working, the waves thereof roar; and one of the Jewiſh Doctors here much to the ſame purpoſe, that make the ſea rough, or, rugged; drawing in hither, that of Job, Job 7.5. my skin is rugged, or wrinkled; but neither is that word commonly deemed there ſo to ſignifie: and the word, though being in the ſame form, is tranſitive here, intranſitive there. Others therefore rather, that ſtill, or, make quiet, the ſea, when (Heb. and; as Chap.16.6.) the waves thereof roar; or, that ſettle the ſea, (that is, keep it within compaſſe, and make it reſt within its bounds) though the waves thereof roar. See Chap. 5. 22. and thus the rather I here take it, becauſe he ſeems here to ſpeak not of ſome extraordinary or occaſionall act; as of dividing the red ſea, Exod.14.21. or the laying of tempeſts at ſome times, as Jon.1.15. but of a conſtant courſe fixed concerning the creature, Gen.9.15. Pſal. 104. 9. See on Eſay 51. 15.

the Lord of hoſts is his name:] Or, whoſe name is the Lord of hoſts; as Eſay 47.4. Chap.10.16.

V. 36. If theſe ordinances depart from before me, ſaith the Lord, then the ſeed of Iſrael ſhall ceaſe from being a nation before me for ever.] As ſure as the courſe, which I have eſtabliſhed in nature, for the conſtant motion and intercourſe of the celeſtial creatures, and the confining of that vaſt body of the ſea to the place aſſigned it, ſhall without interruption or intermiſſion perſiſt unto the worlds end, Pſal. 72.5,17. & 74. 16. & 89.2,36,37. & 104. 9,19. & 119. 89,91. ſo as undoubtedly ſhall my Church and the ſeed of Jacob in ſome of them adhering thereunto, continue until the frame of the world it ſelf be diſſolved, Pſal.102.28. Mat.16.18. & 24.34, 35. Rom.11.3,5,26. As for that, which ſome add of Gods continuance of the light of his Word and Spirit ſhining forth in his Church, for the illightening of mens minds, and directing of their lives, Pſal.19.7,8. & 119.105, 130. Prov. 6. 23. 2 Pet.1.19. as thoſe celeſtial bodies do in a conſtant courſe impart light unto the creatures here below; though it be true and ſolid, Eſay 59.21. Mal.4.2. 2 Cor.4.6. Rev.1. 20. & 4.5. yet its beſide the drift and intendment of this place.

theſe ordinances] To wit, of the ſun and the moon and the ſtars, ſaith the Rabbine; but not of the ſea: for the ſea departed from its ordinary courſe when it ſtood on heaps, Exod. 14.22. & was here produced only to ſhew, that as God wrought a new work then, ſo he would do the like here in refining his people, ver.22,23. Ezek.36.26. But that ordinance of God concerning the bounding of the ſea, at firſt ſetled, Gen. 1. 9. and by ſolemn oath and covenant again after the floud eſtabliſhed to continue for ever, ſeems rather here to be reſpected. See before on ver.35. & Eſay 54.9. and we need not therefore reſtrain it to the former only.

depart] See Eſay 54 10.

from before me] Heb. from to my face; either ceaſing to be, or being not looked after and regarded by me, and ſo left to an unſetled and confuſed courſe. See Eſay 48. 19. & 57. 16. So in the next branch. See the like expreſſions, chap. 33.20,21,25,26.

ceaſe from being a nation] But that there ſhall be a multitude of them diſtinct from other people abiding in the world; to the worlds end, as ſome: or, as others, that a Chriſtian Church conſiſting of Jacobs ſeed, made up of Jews and Gentiles, ſhall continue ſo long, Matth.16.18. & 28.20. or, as others again, that the Jewiſh people, when they ſhall be brought home unto Chriſt, they ſhall ſo perſiſt without revolt to the laſt, chap.32.40.

for ever] Heb. all the dayes: as Deut.11.1. & 12.1.

V. 37. Thus ſaith the Lord, If heaven above can be meaſured, and the foundation of the earth ſearched out beneath, I will alſo caſt off all the ſeed of Iſrael, for all that they have done, ſaith the Lord.] As moſt ſure it is, that theſe things cannot by any skill or might of man be done; ſo certain is it that God will never caſt off the whole race of Jacob.

If heaven above can be meaſured] To wit, by man; for God is ſaid to meaſure the heavens with his ſpan; but withal implying that none beſide him can do it, Eſay 40. 12. Heb. If heaven above (as Deut.4.39.) ſhall be meaſured: but the word is taken potentially; as the like, Prov. 30. 4. So alſo Eſay 40.12. & 49.15. Nor need we, with a learned late Writer, to have recourſe to the third heaven, that above the ſtars, which the Apoſtle was rapt up vnto, 2 Cor.12.2. and whither Chriſt is now aſcended, Eph.4.10. for the Lord ſpeaketh, as before, of the celeſtial bodies, that are viſible to the eye, ver.35. ſo here of that heaven, the vaſtneſs whereof is conſpicuous to mans ſight, and of which, what is here averred, is moſt true, that no man can make an exact dimenſion of it.

and the foundations of the earth ſearched out beneath,] If men can, by ſearch, pierce ſo far, and ſo deep, into the innermoſt parts of the earth, as to reach unto the very center thereof it ſelf: for the verb is to be taken here potentially, as well as the former.

caſt off all the ſeed of Iſrael] This God never did, never will do; for ſome of them have ſtill been, and ſhall ever be reſerved, Rom.11.1——5, 25——31.

for all that they have done] Notwithſtanding their manifold ſins and iniquities, whereby, and for which, they have juſtly deſerved to be utterly both caſt off, and cut off, Lam. 3.22. Ezek.30.32. but God in mercy would remit, ver.34. Ch. 33.8.

V. 38. Behold the days come, ſaith the Lord,] From hence to the end of this Chapter, is a prediction of the re-edification of Jeruſalem, together with an exact delineation of the whole compaſs of the city. Behold the days coming; as before, ver.31. But in this place, the Jewiſh Maſters, it ſeems, finding in ſome copies the word coming here wanting, were ſo ſcrupulous, that albeit they deemed it to have been by ſome eſcape omitted; yet would they not put it into the text, but left a blank for it with the vowel points underneath, and placed the head-letters in the margent.

that the city ſhould be built to the Lord] The city Jeruſalem ſhould be built again round about from the one end to the other, Eſay 44.28. Neh.3. & 12.28——40. to the Lord, or, for the Lord; that the Lord may again dwell therein, and be ſerved and worſhipped there as formerly he had been; ſo, ver.40.

from the tower of Hananeel] Whereof we find mention, as a place remarkable, Neh. 3. 1. & 12. 39. Zach. 14. 10. This albeit, ſome learned late Writers affirm to have been ſituate on the South ſide of Jeruſalem; yet it is more generally deemed to have ſtood on the Eaſt-ſide of the City: that which ſeemeth to receive ſtrength from the courſe of the compaſs both here, and in Nehemy expreſſed; this tower of Hananeel being ſituate between the tower of Meah, and the corner gate, Neh. 3. 1.

unto the gate of the corner] Or, the corner-gate: which ſtood on the North-Eaſt corner of the city; as Writers generally, for ought I find, agree: Of it, ſee 2 King. 14. 13. 2 Chr. 26. 9. Zach. 14. 10.

V. 39. And the meaſuring line ſhall yet go forth over againſt it,] Heb. the line of meaſure (as a cane of meaſure, Ezek. 40. 3. and, a cord of meaſure, Zach. 2. 1.) ſhall further go on, or, proceed forward of it, or, before it; as the ſame term is uſed, Joſh. 6. 5, 20. for ſtraight forward; or, as it is there rendred; becauſe ſpeaking of a perſon, ſtraight before him. For neither ſeemeth that here implyed, that a learned man would gather from the term further, that the city ſhould be built in a larger compaſs then formerly, the ancient limits of it being enlarged: for after the return from captivity, they repaired the wals according to the ancient ſituation and dimenſions of them, by towers, and gates, deſigned and diſtinguiſhed, as here, ſo Neh. 3. and the word onely hath reference to the carriage on of the work: nor again is it intimated in the laſt term, as if having been begun on the one ſide, they ſhould paſs thence to the other over againſt it; as thoſe two companies went over againſt one another, Neh. 12. 38. but it noteth rather a proceeding right on round about, taking their work ſtill before them, as it came in their way.

upon the hill gareb,] Or, unto (as the particle is uſed, Chap. 6. 9. & 23. 3.) the hill of Gareb, (for the word hill here governeth, as the hill of Jeruſalem, Eſay 10. 32.) the word ſignifieth a ſcab, Lev. 21. 20. & 22. 22. Deut. 28. 27. and it was ſo called, as ſome conjecture, as you would ſay, the ſcabby hill; becauſe the Lepers and Lazers uſed to lye much thereabout: It is ſuppoſed to have lien on the North ſide of the city toward the Eaſt.

and ſhall compaſs about to Goath;] Or, it ſhall paſs about from thence to Goath: ſuppoſed to be ſo termed from its troubleſome and difficult aſcent: It is by ſome deemed to be the ſame with mount Golgotha, Mat. 27. 33. lying on the Weſt ſide of the city towards the North.

V. 40. And the whole valley of the dead bodies,] A valley, as ſome think, not far from mount Golgotha, where were caſt the carcaſſes of the perſons there executed: As others, the valley of Rephaim; which, ſay they, ſignifies dead men, and lay on the Weſt ſide of the city, Joſh. 15. 8. but of that valley, and its name, ſee on Eſay 17. 5. Others taking their riſe from the Chaldee underſtand it of Tophet, where, ſay they, the multitude of the Aſſyrians under Sennacherib were ſlain; but neither is there any certainty of that, (ſee on Eſay 30. 33.) and they ſeem far out of the way, when they affirm Tophet to have lien on the Weſt ſide of the City.

and of the aſhes] The word here uſed, is ambiguous: for it ſignifieth either fat, or, aſh: for the term is ſingular; whence ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, taking it the former way, expound it, of the fat and burly-bodied Aſſyrians (the abſtract for the concrete) whoſe corpſes lay in Tophet: and the Chaldee Paraphraſt maketh of this and the former but one place: which the points, in the original, may ſeem to favour, carrying this on to that. But others of them affirm the latter to be the plain and ſimple notion of it here, and thereby to be meant that part of the valley, that was ſet apart and employed for the receit of aſhes, that came from the altar of burnt offerings, Lev. 4. 12. & 6. 11. which is moſt probable: more at leaſt, then that of others, who would draw it to Tophet, or Gehinnom, as ſo called from the aſhes of the bodies there burnt, Chap. 7. 31 & 19. 5. which lay on the South ſide of the city, but neer to the Eaſt. See Chap. 19. 2. with Joſh. 15. 8. and all the fields unto the brook of Kidron] There is here ſome variety of reading: for in the text is written haſhſheremot, which the Greek retaining, rendreth it aſſarimoth: but becauſe no ſuch root as ſharam is found in the Hebrew, ſome would cut it in two, and with ſomewhat ado would make it ſignifie the region, or, regiment of death; not unlike to that of Adramyttium, Act. 27. 2. and what the Chaldee here readeth is uncertain: for he renders it by a word that ſignifies pools; or water-courſes, which ſome would draw to thoſe water-works made by Ezekiah, 2 Chr. 32. 30. But what ground for any ſuch matter from the text howſoever read? The Jewiſh Maſter-Criticks, conceive not amiſs, that by ſome Scribes regardleſneſs, taking one letter for another, being much alike in the Hebrew character, (the like whereunto, ſee on chap. 2. 20. & 17. 4.) ſheremot came to be written for ſhedemot, which ſignifieth fields: many whereof lay on the South ſide of the city; as the Fullers field, Eſay 7. 3. and the Potters field, Mat. 27. 7. See on Chap. 18. 2. & 19. 2. For that the brook Kidron (2 Sam. 15. 3. Joh. 18. 1.) ran on the Eaſt ſide of the city, is generally agreed.

unto the corner of the horſe gate] Of this gate, ſee 2 King. 11. 16. Neh. 3. 28. It was ſo called, as the Jewiſh Commenters enform us, becauſe by it the Kings horſes were wont to be rid out, there being neer unto it, a fair and large plain, in which they uſed to exerciſe and run them.

towards the Eaſt,] Which as he began at, ſo he concludeth with, giving in the whole compaſs of the city; whereby it appeareth that the tower of Hananeel ſtood on that ſide the city, contrary to that which ſome Learned have without good ground deemed. See on ver. 38.

ſhall be holy unto the Lord] Or, it ſhall be (as having reference unto the whole body of the city thus bounded and to be built) holy (Heb. holineſs, as chap. 2. 3.) unto the Lord; as if the whole city were now as the Temple had been formerly his houſe, his court, his palace, his ſanctuary. See ver. 38. Eſay 52. 1. & 63. 18. Chap. 12. 10. Zach. 14. 20, 21. For it is ſomewhat too ſlender that ſome give it, as if the meaning onely were, that the whole city ſhould be full of, and ring again with the praiſes of God, Neh. 12. 27——43.

it ſhall not be plucked up nor thrown down any more for ever.] See ſomewhat the like, Eſay 33. 20. that is, ſay ſome, the city ſhall continue for a long time, being thus re-edified: but it is principally verified and accompliſhed in the Church of Chriſt, (whereof that city was a type, Gal. 4. 25, 26.) which ſhall never be razed, Pſal. 125. 1, 2. Mat. 16. 18.

CHAP. XXXII.

Verſ. 1. THe word which came to Jeremiah from the Lord,] In this Chapter is a relation of a purchaſe of land made at Gods appointment, by the Prophet, during his impriſonment, and the ſiege of the city ready to be given up, ver. 1——15. his prayer to God thereupon, ver. 16——25. and Gods anſwer thereunto, ver. 26. conſiſting of two parts; a denunciation of a ſpeedy deſtruction of the city and ſtate for their hainous and horrible ſins, ver. 28——35. and a promiſe of reſtitution again after ſome time over, though it might ſeem never ſo unlikely, ver. 27, 36——44. In this verſe, and the next, to make way thereunto, is the time of this prophecy, ver. 1. together with the condition of the city ſtraitly beſieged; and of the Prophet himſelf under reſtraint, ver. 2. with the cauſe for which he was reſtrained, ver. 3——5.

The word] This hath ſpecial reference to what followeth, ver. 26. all before driveth to that. See the like before, Chap. 14. 1. and after, Chap. 40. 1. which came from Jeremiah to the Lord,] Was to him; as ch. 21. 1. So alſo, ver. 6.

in the tenth year of Zedekiah King of Judah] The laſt but one of his reign; and the very laſt before the ſurpriſal and ſacking of the city by the Chaldeans, and the beginning of that deportation which thereupon enſued, 2 King. 25. 2, 11.

which was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar.] Whoſe firſt year of abſolute reign after his fathers deceaſe, concurreth with part of the third, and part of the fourth of Jehojakims, Dan. 1. 1. Chap. 25. 1. his eighth year, with the depoſition of Jehojacin, and advancement of Zedekiah, 2 King. 24. 12, 17. and the nineteenth with the eleventh and laſt of Zedekiah, 2 King. 25. 2, 8. Of his name here, ſee before on ch. 21. 2.

V. 2. For then the King of Babylons army beſieged Jeruſalem;] Heb. And then the Army of the King of Babylon were beſieging of, or, againſt Jeruſalem. Now his forces lay then in ſiege againſt the city: for the ſiege began in the ninth year of Zedekiah; but the city was not taken before his eleventh, 2 King. 25. 1, 2. Chap. 39. 1, 2. Ezek. 24. 1.

and Jeremiah the Prophet was ſhut up in the Court of the priſon, which was in the King of Judahs houſe.] That is, ſay ſome, in the priſon that was in the Court of the Kings houſe; as if there were ſome inverſion in the words: but this ſeemeth needleſs and groundleſs; the Court and the Kings houſe are diſtinguiſhed in the text: nor is it the Court of the Kings houſe, but the Court of the priſon houſe, though within compaſs of the Kings houſe, wherein the Prophet then remained; being now at ſomewhat more liberty, though a priſoner ſtill, then formerly he had enjoyed, while reſtrained to, and couped up in the cels, or wards, Chap. 37. 16, 20, 21.

priſon] Heb. cuſtody, or, keeping; as Mat. 14. 3. See Neh. 3. 25. & 12. 39.

V. 3. For Zedekiah the King of Judah had ſhut him up, ſaying,] The occaſion of his impriſonment, the doing of his duty, the faithful delivery of Gods meſſage. Howbeit, we read not where Zedekiah himſelf is at any time related to have himſelf committed the Prophet; only he is ſaid to have given order for the removall of him, at his own requeſt, from a more loathſome priſon to another more convenient one, where at preſent he was, Chap.37.21. but what was done by his permiſſion, and continued with his connivence, is not unfitly, or undeſervedly ſaid to be done by him. See Chap.37.15,18.& 38.5.

Wherefore doſt thou propheſie and ſay, Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the King of Babylon, and he ſhall take it.] The ſubſtance of that here related ſee foretold and denounced by the Prophet while yet at full liberty, Chap.34.2———5. which then, it ſeems, had at firſt ſome good work upon the King and State for the preſent, but afterward belike proved the occaſion of his commitment. See there. And ſee the like expoſtulation with the Prophet in the perſon of Jehojakim, Chap.36.29.

propheſie and ſay] That is, propheſie ſaying; as, ſtand and feed, for, ſtand ſeeding, Eſay 61.5.

Behold, I will give] Heb. Lo I am giving; as Chap.6.21. and hand, for, power; as chap.29.21. So ver.4.

V. 4. And Zedekiah King of Judah ſhall not eſcape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, but ſhall ſurely be delivered into the hand of the King of Babylon.] Though he do attempt and aſſay to make an eſcape, (as he did) yet ſhall he be taken by them, and delivered up to him, chap.39.5. Heb. ſhall being given be given; as chap.38.3. See chap.34.3.

and he ſhall ſpeak with him mouth to mouth,] Heb. and his mouth ſhall ſpeak with his mouth. See Chap.39.5.

and his eyes ſhall behold his eyes.] He ſhall ſee him face to face, or eye to eye; as Eſay 52.8.

V. 5. And he ſhall lead Zedekiah to Babylon, and there ſhall he be untill I viſit him, ſaith the Lord.] Untill by naturall and ordinary death I take him away: as Num. 16.29. for by the ſword he was not to die, Chap 34.3.

though ye fight with the Chaldeans, ye ſhall not proſper.] No weapons or courſes that ye uſe or take againſt them ſhall prevail, or avail to do you any good. See chap. 21.4. Eſay 54.17.

V. 6. And Jeremiah ſaid, the word of the Lord came unto me, ſaying,] See ver.1. The Prophet, having related the occaſion of his impriſonment, and the time of it, doth proceed to report a buſineſs moved to him, and tranſacted by him, upon an apprehenſion of Gods pleaſure therein, about a bargain and ſale of ſome land, which at that time might ſeem very unſeaſonable, and to the Prophets great diſadvantage, as not likely ever to be enjoyed either by him, or any his heirs.

V. 7 Behold Hanameel the ſon of Shallum thine unkle ſhall come unto thee, ſaying,] God foretelleth him of his kinſmans purpoſe to repair to him, and move him to buy his land of him, that he might before hand conſider ſeriouſly of it, and apprehend withall for what purpoſe he had acquainted him with it.

Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth:] Buy thee; as Chap. 13. 1. my field: for the Levites had a certain quantity of ground aſſigned them about each of their cities, Num. 35.3, 4. in Anathoth; that is, neer unto it, (as Joſh.24.25,26.) in the ſuburbs thereunto belonging; where Abiathar had fields ſometime, 1 King.2.26. and where Jeremy himſelf had lived, Chap.1.1. But there is ſome queſtion here, how ſuch fields could be ſold: for the ſale of them ſeems expreſly prohibited, Lev.25.34. But to this, ſome anſwer, that the meaning of that Law is, that they might not be alienated or ſold to any other; the copulative prefixed retaining his proper notion, and the ground of the Law rendred the ſame with the former there, ver. 33. becauſe their perpetual poſſeſſion. Some others underſtand it, that they might not be altered from their conſtant uſe, as converted to buildings, and ſo adjoyned for enlargment to their cities. And others add, that the Levites might have other grounds and lands deſcending to them from Mother or Grand-mother, having no brethren: and that this might be ſome ſuch parcel. See of Barnabas the Levite, Act.4.36.37.

for the right of redemption is thine to buy it.] To have it before another; as being next of kin to him that deſired to part with it, Lev.25.25,32.

V. 8. So Hanameel mine Uncles ſon came to me in the Court of the Priſon, according to the word of the Lord, and ſaid unto me, Buy my field, I pray thee, that is in Anathoth, which is in the country of Benjamin; for the right of inheritance is thine, and the redemption is thine: buy it for thy ſelf.] Of the priſon-court, ſee on ver.2.

according to the word of the Lord] Not of injunction to Hanameel, but of prediction to Jeremy.

in the country of Benjamin] Or, Land; as Chap.1.1. the right of inheritance is thine,] Heb. is, or belongeth to thee: thou art to have it before another, as next heir to it. See Ruth 3.12.& 4 3,4.

and the redemption is thine,] Heb. is to thee: and the poſſeſſions of the Levites might at any time be redeemed, Lev. 25.32.

Buy it for thy ſelf] That it may not paſs to ſome other, upon thy refuſal; as Ruth 4.6,8. or, Buy it thee, ſimply, as ver.7. Such a motion, as might juſtly ſeem unſeaſonable, and a requeſt ſomewhat unreaſonable, to importune a friend to lay out money for land, that was, in likelyhood, in the enemies hands, who were ſhortly after to be maſters of city and country, as the Prophet well knew, and had with confidence publiſhed, which his kinſman alſo could not be ignorant of, as being the known cauſe of his reſtraint, ver.3. It is recorded indeed, that when Anniball was ſet down before Rome, and made full account to carry it, the ground on which his pavilion ſtood being offered to ſale, was bought at a full valew, Livy, lib.26. and Florus, lib. 2.cap. 6. but that under hope yet, that he would be fruſtrate of his expectation; which with our Prophet was far otherwiſe, and the ground therefore of his proceeding in this diſadvantagious purchaſe, is in the next words related.

then I knew that this was the word of the Lord.] Heb. and I knew (as Chap. 29. 12.) that a word of God, or, a buſineſs of God (as 1 King.12. 24.) it was: the pronoun, for the verb ſubſtantive; as chap. 10. 3. I perceived by Gods fore-acquainting me with his coming, that it was his mind and pleaſure that I ſhould deal and go thorow with him for it, though no expreſs mention thereof had been made to me by God, ver.7. See the like, Act.16.7,9,10.

V. 9. And I bought the field of Hanameel my uncles ſon, that was in Anathoth.] Or, So I bought the field that was in Anathoth, of, or, from, Hanameel mine uncles ſon. For there is a trajection in the text: ſee the like, Chap.11.16. & 18.7,8. & 52.20.

and weighed him the money] The manner being in thoſe times to make payment, in greater ſums eſpecially, not ſo much by tale, as by weight. So Gen.23.16. Zach.11.12.

money] Heb. ſilver; as Eſay 55.2.

even ſeventeen ſhekels of ſilver] Heb. ſeven ſhekels and ten of ſilver; and ſo the ancient Greek preciſely giveth it: and there is the like trajection to that before in the text: which not obſerved, hath produced ſome miſconſtruction: for the Chaldee (whom alſo the Jewiſh Doctors follow) rendreth it, ſeven pounds and ten ſhekels of ſilver; but that without any ground or good probability: the old Latine ambiguouſly, ſeven ſtateres (a Greek coin of the ſame weight with the ſhekel, Mat.17.27.) and ten ſilverlings, or, pieces of ſilver; as Mat.26.15. But ſeven ſhekels and ten, ſeemeth to be here no other, then ſeventeen ſhekels: (as, four leaves or five, for, four or five leaves, Chap.36.33.) the manner of the Hebrew being ordinarily to place the leſs number before the greater. So, thirty and an hundred years, Gen.5.3. and five years and an hundred years, Gen.5.6. and, ſilver oft put alone for ſhekels of ſilver; as Judg.17.2. 2 Sam.18. 11. The Hebrew ſhekel weighing about ous half crown, the ſum amounteth to ſome forty two ſhillings and ſix pence.

V. 10. And I ſubſcribed the evidence,] Or, I engroſſed it. Heb. I wrote in the book; to wit, ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter, the words, or, matter of the ſale. I cauſed a book, or, a bill, (as Mat.19.7.) of bargain and ſale to be made of it; or the bargain and ſale to be ſolemnly entred and engroſſed in a book: for that which ſome Learned hence obſerve, that in thoſe times there were no Scriveners or publick notaries uſed commonly for ſuch purpoſes, ſeemeth as groundleſs as that which ſome other gather; that in the Romans Courts men accuſed of criminal matters were not allowed counſell to plead for them, from Pauls ſpeaking for himſelf, Act. 24.10.

and ſealed it:] Heb. and ſealed. I writ, and ſealed; that is, I cauſed a writing to be drawn, ſubſcribed and ſealed: for the ſealing, albeit it might be interchangeable, as in Charter-parties is uſual with us; yet the ſealing of the deeds was principally required from the party that ſold the land, and as the Rabbines here ſay, from the witneſſes who were to teſtifie the ſale.

and took witneſſes,] Heb. I cauſed witneſſes to witneſs; as Eſay 8.2. and ſo ver.25. See Ruth 4.9.

and weighed him the money in the balances.] Or, weighed out the money (Heb. ſilver; as ver.9.) in a balance; (of which term ſee on Eſay 40. 12.) in the preſence of thoſe witneſſes, who might teſtifie, as well the payment of the money, as the agreement and bargain.

V. 11. So I took the evidence of the purchaſe] Or, Then (Heb. And; as Chap.28.5,9.) took I the evidence (Heb. the book; as ver.10.) of the purchaſe. So ver.12,14,16.

both that which was ſealed according to the Law and cuſtome, and that which was open.] That there were two ſeverall deeds or inſtruments concerning this bargain and ſale, and conſequently in conveyances of the like nature, is from hence apparent: though it be not ſo cleer, of what nature and uſe they were, or wherein they differed the one from the other; and learned men therefore do ſomewhat vary in their, either conjectures, or aſſertions, about them. One of the Jewiſh Doctors (whom ſome alſo of ours follow) ſeemeth to make them for ſubſtance the ſame, only the one ſealed up and kept cloſe; the other being an exact copy thereof left open, that uſe might upon any emergent occaſion be made of it, without breaking up the other. Another ſaith, that the latter was to make known what had been done unto ſuch other of the kin, as had right, or might deſire to redeem it again. A third, that the one, to wit, that ſealed, was made up in private at the time of the contract; the other was to be tendered to the Judges in publike, called therefore the open one, becauſe it was openly publiſhed in the Court, and by the Judges ſubſcription, and conſignation, made authentical: and this way alſo ſome of ours ſeem to go. Others would have in the one writing contained an expreſs narration of Gods injunction made out to the Prophet for the making of this purchaſe; together with an exact deſcription of all paſſages concerning the purchaſe it ſelf; the other, ſo much only, as was neceſſarily required for the paſſing of it in the civil Court. Another learned man conceiveth, that in the one, which was ſhewed open to the witneſſes, that they might know between whom and whereabout the bargain was made, there was ſo much only recorded in general: whereas in the other which was ſealed up, were contained divers further particularities, which they would not have to be ſo commonly known. And a later learned Writer would have three ſeveral books here mentioned, to wit, 1 The book of the purchaſe, containing the condition of the land to be bought, and the ſum of money to be given for it. 2 The book ſealed, wherein the bargain and ſale were obſigned, and the right declared that Jeremy had to purchaſe it. 3 A publike inſtrument of ratification of the whole. But I ſuppoſe rather with the Jewiſh Commenters, that the word book in the front of the verſe is collective, and taketh in to it both the ſealed one and the patent, as the very courſe of the context carrieth it: and I conceive thoſe words according to the precept and the ordinances, to have relation as well to the one counterpart as the other; there being ſuch a trajection in the words as was before, ver.9. So that it is, as if it had been ſaid; the books of the purchaſe, that ſealed, and that patent, both made according to the precept and the ordinances; that is, according to the preſcript of Gods Law concerning ſuch ſales, and the ordinances about the ſame. Nor can I accord with thoſe learned men that disjoyn theſe two terms, by the one underſtanding the particular command that God had given in charge to the Prophet for the making of this purchaſe; by the other, the ordinances that God had enacted concerning ſuch tranſactions in general, Lev.25. See the like defect of the term of collation, Chap.2.28.

V. 12. And I gave the evidence of the purchaſe unto Baruch, the ſon of Neriah the ſon of Maaſeiah] Or, And I delivered (as ver.16.) the deed (Heb. book, as ver.11.) of the purchaſe unto Baruch, the Prophets Scribe and Attendant, Chap. 36.4,26. deſcribed here by his parentage, the ſon of Neriah the ſon of Maaſeiah; and in like manner runneth Seraiahs pedegree, Chap. 51.59. the ſon of Neriah the ſon of Maaſeiah. Howbeit, the Hebrew here exhibiteth not Maaſeiah, but Mahſeiah, or Machſeiah, which is a divers name.

in the ſight of Hanameel mine uncles ſon,] Heb. to the eyes (as Chap. 28. 5.) of Hanameel mine uncle: but the word ſon is wanting; for he was before called his uncles ſon, ver. 7, 8. which to ſample, the Jewiſh Doctor fetcheth hither that of Lot, where Lot is called Abrahams brothers ſon, Gen.12.5. & 14.12. and again his brother, Gen.14.14. to which may be added the like of Zedekiah, called Jehojacins uncle, 2 King.24.17. and yet his brother, 2 Chron. 36.10. but the brother is of larger extent: and neither therefore ſo well matcheth with this. That the word ſon is to be ſupplyed, I ſuppoſe that no doubt is to be made: for the Rabbines conjecture, that this Hanameel ſhould be another of that name, Uncle to the Prophet, doth carry no ſhew of probability with it.

and in the preſence of the witneſſes, who had ſubſcribed the book of the purchaſe,] Heb. to the eyes (as before, and ſo after again) of the witneſſes, who had written in the book of the purchaſe, ver.10.

Though the city ſhall be taken, the ſtate ſubverted, and the people, a great part of them, carryed away to Babylon, where they ſhall for many years abide in bondage; yet ſhall they, after the time by God aſſigned for their captivity expired, return to enjoy their poſſeſſions again: that which God would give aſſurance of by this act of the Prophet; and upon the thing executed, doth now acquaint them with, and enjoyneth him to make known unto the people. See ver.37,43,44.

V. 16. Now when I had delivered the evidence of the purchaſe unto Baruch the ſon of Neriah, I prayed unto the Lord, ſaying,] Heb. And I prayed unto the Lord after I delivered the book, &c. ſaying, a trajection; as ver.9,11.

Luk.1.37.) is hidden from thee; as Deut.39.11. or, is wonderfull with thee; as Pſal. 118.25. that is, is difficult with thee, or too hard for thee to effect. So the phraſe is uſed, becauſe things that we deem impoſſible, or over-hard, ſeem ſtrange to us, and are wont to be matter of wonderment with us; but are not ſo with thoſe, that can eaſily effect them, Zach. 8.6. and in Scripture language to know, is as much as to be able to do; as Eſay 7. 16. & 8.5. chap.6.15. & 8.12. 2 Pet.2.9. (for thine eyes are open upon all the wayes of the ſons of men] Or, whoſe eyes (Heb. whoſe thine eyes, by an elegant redundancy) are open (that is, who haſt thine eyes open) upon all the ways of the ſons of men. Heb. of Adam; as Job 25.6. V. 20. Which haſt ſet ſignes and wonders in the land of Egypt,] Or, Who didſt ſet ſigns and wonders, &c. Pſal. 74. 43. & 106.22. & 135.9.

as at this day.] Or, as appeareth this day. So Chap. 25. 18.

V. 21. And haſt brought thy people Iſrael out of Egypt with ſigns and with wonders, and with a ſtrong hand, and with a ſtretched out arm, and with great terrour:] Or, And broughteſt, or didſt bring, &c. Exod.6.6.Deut.4.34. 2 Sam.7.23. 1 Chr.17. 21.Pſal.136.10—12.

V. 24. Behold the mounts] Or, ramparts, as ſome; or engins, of battery, to diſcharge ſhot and artillary, ſuch as were in uſe before the invention of guns and uſe of ſuch ordinance as we now have. See 2 Chr.26.15.Eſay 37.33. So Chap.33.4.

they are come unto the city to take it, and the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans that fight againſt it,] The Chaldean forces be ſet down with their warlike engins before the city: and the city is given for loſt, it is as good as ſurrendred and taken already, as ſure to be taken as if already ſurpriſed. So chap.9.1.& 37.10 hand, for, power, as ver.3, 4.

becauſe of the ſword, and of the famine, and of the peſtilence:] The firſt deſtroying without, the other two devouring, and diſabling to hold out, within, Chap.21.9. & 28.8. Heb. from the face of, or, from before; as chap.25.16, 37.

V. 25. And thou haſt ſaid unto me, O Lord God, buy thou the field for money, and take witneſſes:] Or, yet; as chap. 23.21. notwithſtanding that ſuch is the condition of our ſtate, that all is as as good as loſt, and no man like to enjoy ought that he either purchaſeth, or is poſſeſſed of, yet thou bidſt me buy land: for though God did not expreſly enjoyn him ſo to do; yet by the carriage of the buſineſs, he well knew it was Gods will that he ſhould do it, ver.8.

for the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.] This connexion is nothing ſuitable to the ſubject matter: it would rather be, when as the city is given; as the particle is rendred, Gen.4.11.Pſal.102 16. or, albeit, or, though, the city be given; as it is rendred, Joſh.17.18.Pſal.23.4 and would be, Gen.8.21. for the coherence is no more naturall there then here: hand again, for power; as ver.24.

V. 26. Then came the word of the Lord unto Jeremiah, ſaying,] Heb. And the word of the Lord was unto Jeremiah; as chap. 1. 4. And this is the word ſpecially deſigned and aimed at in the beginning of this Chapter; which all the fore-going diſcourſe and matter, intervening between this and that, tended to bring in. See on ver.1.

V. 27. Behold I am the Lord, the God of all fleſh:] Or, the Lord God of all fleſh: of every creature, Gen. 6. 13. & 7. 21. or rather of all mankind: as Gen.6.12; Pſal.143.2.Rom.3.20. which as he made at firſt, ſo he guideth and governeth at his pleaſure; and as he ſendeth them out when he will, ſo he can bring them back again when he ſeeth good, Act.17.25, 26, 28. Nor is he the God of their fleſh, but of their ſpirits too, Num.16.22. but the meaner part is the whole man deſcribed by, as Gen.6.3. to imply mans diſability to do ought againſt God, or to hinder his diſpoſal of ought. Pſal.56.6.

is there any thing too hard for me?] See before, ver.17.

V. 28. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord, Behold I will give this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon, and he ſhall take it.] As before, ver.3.

V. 29. And the Chaldeans that fight againſt this city, ſhall come and ſet fire on this city, and burn it] So Chap.37.10.

with the houſes upon whoſe roofs they have offered incenſe unto Baal, and poured out drink-offerings unto other gods to provoke me to anger.] One main cauſe of this great evil: ſee Chap. 7.18.& 19.13.

V. 30. For the children of Iſrael, and the children of Judah have only done evill before me from their youth:] Heb. have been only doing that which is evill in mine eyes (as chap.7. 30. & 18. 10.) from their youth: ever ſince they were firſt a people. See chap.2.2. & 22.21. Eſay 48. 8. they have not only failed in matter of omiſſion, refuſing to do that I required of them, ver. 13. but they have given themſelves inceſſantly to the practice of thoſe things that I profeſſed to be offenſive and diſpleaſing unto me, as if their minds were ſet on nothing elſe. See the like, Gen.6.5.& 8.21.

for the children of Iſrael have onely provoked me to anger with the work of their hands, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. have been onely provoking me: They have been continual matter of provocation to me with their idols; as if they intended and minded nothing elſe, but how to anger me. See chap. 25. 6, 7. and further, ver.31.

V. 31. For this city hath been unto me, as a provocation of mine anger, and of my fury, from the day that they built it, even unto this day.] Heb. For this city hath been upon anger, and upon wrath unto me. (See Eſay 65.5.) that is, the inhabitants of this city have been from time to time angring of me, ever ſince this city was built; (for the verb is indefinite; as the like, Mal.1.4. Luk.12.20.) to wit, by Solomon, who ſo enlarged and beautified it, that he might ſeem to have made a new city of it, and not long after polluted it with idol-worſhip, 1 King.11. 4—8. ſo the children of Iſrael are ſaid to have built Rameſes, Exod. 1. 11. though founded long before, Gen.47.11. and Nebuchadnezzar Babylon, Dan.4.30. though at firſt founded by Nimrod, Gen.10.10.

V. 32. Becauſe of all the evil of the children of Iſrael, and of the children of Judah, which they have done to provoke me to anger, they, their Kings, their Princes, their Prieſts, and their Prophets, and the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem:] As if all ſorts of them had conſpired to joyn together in angring of God, chap.2.26.& 8.10. 2 Chr.36.14. Heb. man of Judah; as Eſay 5.5.

V. 33. And they have turned unto me the back and not the face;] Heb, the neck, properly, the hinder part of it. See chap. 2.27.

though I taught them riſing up early, and teaching them, yet they have not hearkned to receive inſtruction.] Heb. and; or, and though (the copulative in a two-fold notion; as chap.13.12.) teaching I taught them, (that is, I conſtantly taught them; the verb is an infinitive; and of ſuch forms, ſee Eſay 59.11, 13.) riſing up early and teaching; (ſedulouſly taking pains with them, and uſing all diligence about them, by my Prophets, chap.7.13.& 25.3.& 26.3.& 29.19. See 2 Chr.36.16.Eſay 65.3.

V. 34. But they ſet their abominations in the houſe which is called by my name, to defile it] Heb. And they ſet, or, They ſet alſo, (as chap.29.20. for he proceedeth here to a further degree of their impiety) their abominations, (ſee chap.66.17.) in the houſe which my name is called upon it, (as chap.2.10, 11, 14.) to defile it, 2 Chr.36.14.

V. 35. And they built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, to cauſe their ſons and their daughters to paſſe thorow the fire unto Molech; which I commanded them not, neither came it into my mind, that they ſhould do this abomination, to cauſe Judah to ſin.] See Chap.7.31. & 19.5. but Molec (as Lev.18.21. & 20.2.) here, inſtead of Baal there: whereby it appeareth, that Molec and Baal are uſed promiſcuouſly, and in a kind of generality, the one containing the notion of a King, whence the ambiguity, Zeph. 1. 5. the other of an Owner, Lord, Maſter, or Husband. See chap. 2.23. to paſſe, as Lev.18.21. to wit, thorow the fire: a defective ſpeech, ſupplyed, 2 King.16.3. to cauſe to paſſe thorow the fire, for, to burn; as it is Chap.19.5.
